

THE WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. I.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, April 16, 1842.

Whole Number 1.

THE WASP.

IS EDITED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY

WM. SMITH.

At the corner of Water and Bein Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.

TERMS—$1.50 invariably in advance.

POETRY.

From the Palladium.

The Crusader's Return.

I'm once again in my native land,
I bare my brow to its breezes bland,
I stand once more on my own dear hills,
And gaze on their thousand gushing rills.
From the cold, and cheerless world I come
A pilgrim to thee, my childhood's home.
Where dwelt my sire, whose actions bold
Are shadowed forth in the tales of old.
As thy walls in the golden sunset glow,
Casting their shade o'er the vale below.
Thou seem'st the form of the warrior brave
Watching beside his loved one's grave.
The rustic bower, where fondly twine
The tendrils sweet of the creeping vine;
The brook where the crystal waters flow,
Are here as they were ten years ago.
No father is near to greet me now,
To lay his hand on my burning brow,
And welcome in tones so sweetly mild,
To his mountain home his wayward child.
No sister comes with her gentle smile,
Her lisping voice, and her sunny smile;
Each feature of other days to trace,
And gaze in her long lost mother's face.
Her burnt locks, and Madonna brow,
'Neath the churchyard mould are resting now.
There's not a sound that floats on the gale
But brings to my ear the sadd'ning tale.
My father fell in the battle field,
Where the Paynim foe was taught to yield;
And he, the boat of our house of pride,
My gentle brother sleeps by his side.
Was it for this I turned from the glance
Of the dark eyed maid of sunny France,
And came to my own Bavarian home

They are gone, they are gone, that youthful band,
The beauty and pride of my native land:
They are gone, they are gone, and I alone
Am left to weep o'er the altar stone.

CLARA.

From the N. Y. Atlas.

BURIAL OF THE MORMON GIRL.

BY WILLIAM CONSTOCK.

"And lightly they'll talk of the spirit that's gone,
And o'er her cold ashes upbraid her—
But little she'll reck if they let her sleep on In the grave where her brethren have laid her."
"To make French Muffins you must take three eggs to a pint and a half of milk, with a small piece of butter, a little yeast, and flour enough to make it thick as pancakes—let it rise and then pour it into rings. Split and butter them as soon as done. It appears to me as if these words would never pass from the table of my brain; words of small import to me, but which I heard between sleeping and waking—as they proceeded from the lips of my hostess, at a time that I was travelling in the West. It was early in the morning. There was but a board between the apartments in which I slept, and that in which the family cooked their victuals.
Loud talking in the adjoining apartment awakened me, and these words are remembered together with the interesting events of the day.
Having parted with my rude, but hospitable entertainers, I took my carpet bag in my hand, and struck into a winding path which carried me into the heart of the forest.

The birds of the wild wood carolled on every tree, and the green leaves to see cheerfully in the morning breeze. The little cataracts murmured, and the pure waters of the brook went joyously on in their gravelly beds. Beautiful wild flowers, which the far off citizens knew no of, sent up their perfumes. The lizard slid away among the dry leaves, and the fox drew after him his bushy tail, as I penetrated the sombre depths of the woods.
Here as I was, felicitating myself on the solitude that reigned around me, and admiring the harmony of Nature, I was suddenly interrupted in my contempla-tions by a human figure moving toward me, as if desirous of companionship.— Smothering my resentment as well as I could, I stepped until the stranger came up. My first glance at his countenance was very unsatisfactory. Large walleye that seemed to seek for an opportunity to get some advantage over me, a long sharp chin, and thin white lips, afforded a poor recommendation to my charity.
That a man in the midst of so much beauty, should feel the need of a companion —that he should be willing to forego the reflections which naturally arise when green leaves and wild flowers, and clat-tering vines invite the fancy to try it airy wing, was of itself sufficient to prejudice me against him. The world was stamped upon his features. As he approached me he spoke.

"Fine day for travelling, sir." It was impossible to deny the gentleman's assertion. He next stated that he was on his way home, and lived but a few miles distant—that he was tired of walking in the woods, and was in a hurry to get out upon the highway.

I replied that I preferred the wood to the highway, and pointed out a most romantic sight where a number of rocks seemed to have been thrown together by some revolution of nature, and a tall pine stood upon the summit, as if to call upon the passer-by to remark and ponder upon what had been done in ages long since gone by. I saw his countenance change and I thought he lowered with his white eyebrows. I could not imagine what right a man had to force himself upon my company, and then find fault with my discourse. He was silent a moment, and then seemed ready for an effort.

"There are a great many Mormons in this neighborhood," said he.

"Are there, indeed?" returned I.

He pondered another moment, and then demanded very abruptly if I had any dealings with that people.

I was in no hurry to answer a question so impertinently put; and in a moment he continued.

"Perhaps, sir, that you are a Mormon."

"I cannot be one until I know who they are," said I; "but have you a counsel to decide upon the creed of the inhabitants?"

"We don't allow Mormons here," returned he, eyeing me as if he still doubted whether I was a Mormon or not.

"May I ask why you do not allow people to believe their doctrine, and how you contrive to prevent it," replied I.

"We don't want them about here, and we won't have them on our lands," was his answer. "They are against everybody's religion, and Joe Smith is the greatest villain that ever went unhung.
Now, stranger, you may be a Mormon."

for all I know; but if you are I advise you to make tracks out of this State as fast as you can go."

"What are the principal tenets of the Mormon religion?" inquired I.

"A Mormon's a Mormon," cried he in trance, and his white lip quivered, "and they ought all to be hung—the one for the sake of the other."

"Put sir, I merely ask for information.
I have simply heard that there is such a scope, and am aware that they are everywhere spoken against.—I wish to know what are the most objectionable tenets that they hold?"

"You say you are not a Mormon?"

"I need not say it again."

"Very well, I'm glad to hear it. Then shall not be ashamed to keep your company."

"Then I hope you will tell me all about these Mormons."

"Why as to that," said he, "they've got a scape gallow's rogue Joe Smith for prophet, and a golden bible, while you now we've got one bible already, and that's more than I could ever find time to be;
but thank God they are not gam-
blers."

"You believe it, however. I presume?"

"Yes, I believe in the bible—I hope so."

"May I ask if you believe the whole of it?"

"Certainly. I was always taught to believe it, and so I'll stand up for it; but I've not read it very lately, not since I was a child."

"Have you read the Mormon's bible?"

"No no stranger, I wish that they and their bible were crammed into a big can and I had the touching of it off."

This edifying conversation had continued for some time, when I perceived that the wood had become less dense, and the rays of the sun occasionally fell upon our path. My companion then began to hint sentiments that belong to mortals in that some exhibition or adventure was about to take place, that many of his friends would be present at it, and that should be also welcome. As he uttered these words, there was a dark and sinister expression on his countenance—an unfeeling, hard, and worldly eagerness in the gaze with which he regarded me—some like that which is ascribed to the eye of a hawk when he is about to pounce upon his prey. In short, he spoke more plainly, and acknowledge that he followed the profession of a gambler; and it plainly appeared that he was desirous of ransferring what little loose change I might have, from my pocket to his own.

"What horrible creatures these Mormons must be," thought I, "when even a professed black'g, and a man who reverend the bible since he was a child, is hooked at their wickedness!"

I looked forth upon the green landscape, and the distant hills, which opened to the view as we emerged from the forest, and contrasted the heavenly prospect before me with the blackness and deformity of that heart which was passing at my side for an opportunity to strip me of my little all, and send me forth a despised and penniless wanderer upon the earth.
Thought of the Garden of Eden, which was deemed too sacred for the abode of alien man, and asked myself the question, "When shall the poisonous serpent and the laughing hyena no longer infest a world which the Almighty pronounced good on that morning when the stars of heaven sang together, and the sons of God shouted for joy;" and for a moment I seemed to anticipate a time when wrangling sectarians should no longer soul for the blood of those who dissented from themselves, or wander among the tombs, darkened and benighted, in search of the living among the dead.

The creaking of wheels interrupted my reverie, and looking up, I saw a train of wagons just coming over the brow of a hill; attended by men women and children. My companion seized my arm, and endeavored to hurry me back into the forest.

"Come," says he, "and go through the forest a piece—I will raise a few presently, and you will see some fun."

"I don't understand you," replied I.

"We will get together about fifty stout men, and make ourselves masters of the horses and wagons," said he.

"What!" cried I, "would you rob women and children of their all!"

"Women and children!" shrieked he,
"they are Mormons!" and the spirit of a demon gazed in his great white eyes.

Roused to the highest pitch of indignation, I exclaimed:—"Mormons they may be; but thank God they are not gamblers!"

Quick as thought the man showed the blade of a bowie knife; and then I drew a pistol from my bosom, and levelled it at the monster's breast. His countenance grew more white—his eye fell—he slowly backed off from me, until he was hidden in the recesses of the wood; and I remembered the words, "Resist the devil and he will flee from thee."

I now looked out upon the travellers as they came along, and their wagons filed by me. The men were generally well beaten, and plainly clad; but I did not see an ordinary countenance among them. Their bearing was dignified and manly. They talked cheerfully together, and their faces were irradiated with all those benign and lofty sentiments that belong to mortals in whom strong faith has slain the love of earthly objects. There were young women there; and as the light of their angelic eyes flashed upon me, I seemed to be translated from earth to heaven!

That uncommon union of high intelligence with perfect innocence—which is the great characteristic of angels—beamed upon their countenances, while their forms which had grown ethereal by suffering, needed nothing but wings to be true representatives of the celestial and radiant hosts who watch over the peaceful slumbers of infancy. "And these,"
said I, "are the hunted and the outraged martyrs of the present age. Those are the pilgrims upon the earth who seek a city not yet built. The world loves its own—why then should it not hate those who have come out from it? Why should not such worthies as the blackleg
—the bigot—the worldly professor—all join like howling wolves in pursuing a people who have risen and shaken themselves from the dust of the earth?"

By this time the pilgrim had gained the summit of a wooded hill at some distance from me, and there they halted. I walked leisurely on, until I arrived at the spot.
They had formed a circle and were gathered around some object in their midst.
Curiosity prompted me to press forward, until I saw a plain pine box lying upon the green sward. The cover was off and in the box lay that most delicately beautiful being that I ever beheld. A deep wound on the forehead caused me to shudder, for why should such a creature have perished by the hand of violence? These friendless people gathered around the lovely remains of the young and beautiful martyr; and they "gazed upon the face of the dead," and looked upward, penetrating with the eye of faith the veil of the flesh, and assured that in the moment death was victorious, he had been destroyed. From the words, spoken by some of the younger part of the company, I gathered that she had fallen the day before a victim to her own generosity. An attack had been made upon the camp by some of the "friends of good order," several were killed, & the girl had rushed between the uplifted arm of one of the assailants and an elderly man for whom the blow was intended. The axe fell upon her own head, and her life's blood flowed through the wound.—She had arrived from England a few months before, and had left the highest prospects behind. She had deserted the pleasant halls of her fathers—the flatteries of the young and gifted to find a grave in the wilderness, to procure her virgin blood upon the soil of a country whose constitution declares that none shall be molested in the free exercise of their religion. But when our fathers drew up the Declaration of Independence, and the Constitution of the United States, they promised more than their sons have ever performed. It is easy to say what ought to be done; but the devil is not killed because he is denounced. The cry that "our craft is in danger!" is as impudently raised now as it was in the day of the apostles; and if it was the high professors who stimulated Pilate and the common people to murder Jesus Christ; so it is the sanctimonious Pharisees who are at the bottom of all the religious persecution which has raged against the Latter Day Saints.

I stopped not to examine whether the faith of this martyred maiden was correct or not—my decision would be fallible, and I had no right to condemn those who differed from me; yet I conceived that I had quite as much right to do so as any other mortal upon the face of the earth.

As these solitary people stood around the new grave, and spoke of the day when the wilderness should blossom as the rose; as stern men and frail women lifted up their voices together and hailed from the earth the expected Redeemer, in the skies—the scene became sublime. Their strong faith in the literal fulfillment of the prophecies—so different from the thousand and one twistifications by which those prophecies are spiritualized into every thing and nothing—seemed to give a substantial reality to their religion—a freshness and vitality to their hope, which I had never witnessed among the jangling, Babal like, blind, bigoted sectaries of the day—who declares from the pulpit that one half of the revelations of God were nothing at all.

The rude coffin was nailed up, and the body was lowered into the grave. The turf was placed upon it, and the pilgrims pursued their way into the wilderness, followed by the dragon of this world who has not yet ceased to spout water after them, in order that they may be carried away by the flood. Yet it may be hoped that in the two great wings of the American Eagle—the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution—they will yet arrive at a temporary rest.

THE FIRST VINE.—When Noah planted the first vine and retired, Satan approached and said—"I will nourish you, charming." He quickly fetched three animals—a sheep, a lion, and a hog, and killed them one after another near the vine. The virtues of the blood of these three animals penetrated it, and are still manifest in its growth. When a man drinks a goblet, he is then agreeable, gentle and friendly. That is the nature of the lamb. When he drinks two, he is like a lion and says, "Who is like me?" he then takes of stupendous things. When he drinks more, his senses forsake him, and he wallows in the mire like a hog.

Love is found in gentle hearts. It resides not amid the riots of pleasure—it dies in the glare of splendor and cannot live in a heart devoted to dress and weak follies, it is more mature in quietness than loud applause or the world's praise. Give us the sharp defined feelings of a young and timid girl, and we leave you the professions of a gaudy coquette.

A naval rendezvous is about to be established at Cincinnati.

THE WASP.

SATURDAY, APRIL 10, 1842.

INTRODUCTORY.

In taking the charge of a public journal, we are aware of the responsibility devolving upon us, and the importance of the station we have assumed; and, as is customary upon like occasions, it becomes necessary for us to make a few remarks explanatory of the course we intend to pursue, and the principles and motives by which we shall, at all times, be governed.

Four years have elapsed since the Latter Day Saints first made a settlement in this place, and it is well known by every individual, at all conversant with the history of the church at that time, that the location was made under very unpropitious and gloomy auspices. Having been driven from their homes and possessions in Missouri, by a savage, barbarous, relentless and heartless foe—devoid of every feeling in common with mankind, or any principle of humanity, justice, or benevolence—their pecuniary embarrassments were truly distressing and the situation of many was indescribably deplorable. But fortune smiled upon them—Omnipotence interposed in their behalf; homes were providentially provided, prosperity crowned their labors, and an abundance flowed in to alleviate their wants and render them comfortable. It is unnecessary, however, for us to dwell upon their prosperity—the flourishing city of Nauvoo—smiling under the genial sun of happiness and contentment—speaks in language more loud and in strains more eloquent, than any thing that our feeble capacity is competent to introduce. Blessed with a soil unsurpassed, and with privileges unequalled by any in the world, what obstacles can interpose to impede her growth? Is there any thing to retard her progress, or hinder her in her onward course to greatness? No, there are no obstructions to log the wheels of her progression! Her march is onward, her course steady and rapid; and nought but the unsullied beams of prosperity, greatness and glory, illuminate her passage!

This state of things existing, we enter the field of our labors with cheerfulness and elasticity, and with a firm conviction that our undertaking will be approbated and our exertions liberally patronized. The advantages that are to result from the establishment of a weekly paper in this city, are obvious to every candid and reflecting mind. We are a community of people in whom the shafts of slander are levelled and the missiles of the wicked unsparingly hurled. The public press is daily teeming with slanders, foul calumnies, and base misrepresentations; and every effort is made, by the base and unprincipled, to turn the tide of popular opinion against our characters. Shall this state of things be suffered longer to exist without some channel through which we can convey correct information to the world and thereby disabuse the public mind as to the many slanders that are constantly perpetrated against us? Is it policy? Is it the characteristic of Americans thus tamely to submit to the false imputations of those depraved and misguided bigots who so assiduously assail our reputation and defame our character? Is there a single spark of philanthropy or one glimmering ray of patriotism existing in the bosom of that individual who will not raise loud his voice against the high-handed and unprecedented measures entered into by many of our opponents, whose only principle is that of slander and detraction? No American citizen, who honors the worthy blood of our progenitors, or boasts of the free and glorious institutions of this Republic, will thus silently submit. The Constitution of our country gives to every individual the "liberty of conscience" and the "liberty of speech." Blot this clause from the Constitution and wrest these privileges from our citizens; and this Government will become, at once, an oligarchy, more oppressive in its character and more corrupt in its administration, than those despotic dynasties over which kings and potentates spread the terror of their reign.

In this undertaking, we have the good of the people at heart. In our editorial labours we shall endeavor to manifest that decision of character, and speak with that simplicity and plainness, that will entitle us to the gratitude of the good and the respect of the great. We shall always endeavor to act upon the defensive with our opponents, not upon the offensive; but when we do speak, we shall manifest that spirit of boldness and determination that shall become our station and be worthy of our cause. This community will ever find us a faithful and diligent sentinal upon the watch-tower of their liberty, ever contending for their rights and privileges, with energetic and becoming zeal, and when the far-off clouds of approaching difficulty cast their portentous shadows in view, and the ominous mutterings of the distant thunder send their first faint echo upon the ear, the tocsin of alarm shall be sounded by us with promptness and fidelity.

It has long been the desire of our citizens to have a weekly paper established in this place, and had it not have been for the untimely death of our lamented Brother, DON CARLOS SMITH, they would, ere this, have had their desires consummated. At the time of his death, arrangements were being made for publishing a paper, to be entitled the "Nauvoo Ensign and Zarahemla Standard," and a considerable number of subscribers had already been procured. His decease baffled all expectations, and all hopes of a weekly newspaper were abandoned until the present time, when the strong solicitation of our friends induced us to engage in the publication of The Wasp.

It is true the Times and Seasons is published in this place; but it being devoted exclusively to matters of religion, and its size being quite limited, there can be no space found in its columns for the local and general news of the day, which makes the establishment of a paper doubly requisite; and we shall, therefore, look to the public for that patronage which its importance seems to demand.

EMIGRATION.

The emigration to our city is daily increasing. Some three or four weeks ago, it will be remembered, some hundred and fifty or two hundred emigrants arrived on the Aerial from England, accompanied by Elder Lyman Wight and eighty or ninety more from Mississippi. This was the first company of English emigrants that landed here this spring. Since that time there has been daily accessions made to our population, both from Europe and the Eastern States. Last Wednesday near one hundred and fifty English arrived on the Leiza—the Amazon, of the same day, we understand, brought sixty more. We witness the tide of emigration with feelings of satisfaction—it speaks well for the prosperity of our city.

We have a small compliment for Tom Sharp the Editor of the Warsaw Signal in our next. We shall keep our eye on the Signal of war until its exhausted Editor like any other dirty culprit hides himself amidst the rubbish of his own corrupt doings—and cries give me more TURKEY or I die.

We take the liberty to send the Wasp to many of the subscribers of the Times and Seasons and if they are pleased with the arrangement they can manifest it by sending us the money by mail or faithful hands, if not they can re-mail them to us again.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Mr. Smith, Sir:—I understand you are about publishing a weekly newspaper, in the city of Nauvoo, to be entitled the Wasp, containing general intelligence and the news of the day. I wish you much success and prosperity in your undertaking, and would be highly gratified, Sir, if you will do me the favor to give place in your paper, for a letter that was written, some time since, for the express benefit of Tom Sharp, the pretended editor of the Warsaw Signal.

FROM THE PRAIRIE PREACHER.
SERMON, NO. 1.

Mr. Sharp, Sir:—Among the many articles that claim a rank in the scientific world, is a certain piece of furniture or work of art, (the Mirror) that develops to the natural eye so much of that vile corruption that is peculiar alone to a certain class of men in the present age.

Firstly, I shall consider the utility of this work of art.

Secondly, I shall notice the ease with which all the defects of man's corrupt nature may be plainly manifest by the use of this article.

First. To consider the utility of the Mirror, it is not necessary for me to show where it had its origin, or who was its inventor; but chiefly to show the benefit of this wonderful, and most to be admired, of all inventions, and especially on the present occasion. I allude to this as a species of things, not of the feminine but of the masculine gender; that is, it is sufficiently strong to perform the work of its office. I speak of this as a matter of importance, and wish to be distinctly understood; and I would further state that experience has taught many a lesson on this point, where men have had sufficient courage to try the experiment. Here let me remark, If a man wanted to take a superficial view of a visage most horrible, or if he wanted to take a more critical observation, and thereby become acquainted with all the peculiar niceties of a comic nose, stuck square on the worst of all faces, rising not horizontally, but perpendicular and rather oblongish, with a mouth screwed into the shape of an italic O, and far more ridiculous than Roman Zodiacs or Mormon hieroglyphics, with the appearance of a mouth placed upon the head and shoulders of a Monkey or Baboon; and we might still add that a man could see himself from head to foot, whatever his defects or deformities might be. If he is a friend to sinners or sin, and has rendered himself obnoxious to his former friends; or if he is a liar, a fool, a knave, a rascal, a mobocrat, a traitor to democracy, a tory to his country, a Mormon eater; or if he teaches the citizens of Hancock that Joseph Smith has no right to vote, and that five thousand people have no privilege to visit the polls because they are Mormons, and none to change their politics if they see fit; and, in fine, if an ignoramus, or a non compos mentis editor of a newspaper, devotes his columns, exclusively, to the publishing of lies, foul calumnies, and every slander that he can invent, and then pour them upon the heads of unoffending Mormons, by saying they are murderers, and such like expressions, that go to show an editor a mean, contemptible puppy, whose tongue is set on fire of hell, and whose heart is the very seat of wickedness, agitating internal broils, without a cause, and also war in times of peace; and I believe, by way of a modest hint, that such men would steal on the Mormon's credit, if an opportunity would offer itself, and that to, on every and all occasions where a fear of detection did not operate too strongly upon the mind, and force the penalty of the law. However, be this as it may, all the before mentioned traits, if possessed in the person of one man, could be plainly manifest to him through this wonderful work of art, called the Mirror, provided an exertion were made to that effect.

After detaining you so long upon my first proposition, I hasten to the second and last: the ease with which all these defects can be seen by the use of the Mirror. This last part of my subject will include the moral and physical ability of man; though it might be argued with some degree of propriety, that in a debilitated state of the body, which comes in consequence of the deformity of nature's first work, that some men have not the ability to perform, or physical force to make the exertion, there being also a mental derangement; the whole system become prostrate, at once. But this, on the main, is not the case with all; for some, although morally, physically, and mentally deficient, by the aid of a few inferior props, are enabled to make the grand discovery of their own defects and extraordinary qualifications, and, Sir, if my arguments are not conceded to, and the position that I have taken, in this respect, should, by your most noble honor, be considered a matter of doubt; I would recommend to you, as experience is the best schoolmaster, to make the trial for once; but be careful to provide yourself with a plenty of hartshorn and camphor, that in case you should fail in the attempt, and fall beneath the ponderous weight of your own body, some restoratives may be administered immediately. Should you fail in the first attempt, you must call on the traitor Harris, and a few other apostate Mormons, to help their fainting brother and thus bring yourself in full view before the Mirror, and I will assure you that you will then believe, what I have said is true, and that all the before mentioned corruptions will be fully exemplified in the person of yourself. I must close my arguments on this point, and pass with haste to make a few observations by way of application. It must be evident to the hearers of the word, that the days and nights are as long as ever; that the earth continues to roll upon its axes, the sun, moon, and stars, perform their successive revolutions, and time rolls on with the same rapidity, and the sun rises and sets upon the wicked, and the righteous remain righteous still, while the unrighteous, that have been guilty of all the crimes that are enumerated in my first proposition, remain under the gnawings of a guilty conscience; and I have no doubt, sir, but that these few lines will find you enjoying the same blessing. I have nothing further to write, and must close for the present. As ever, a friend to sharps that are not flat, and also to signals, but not in times of peace. So mote it be.

NOT A TORY, BUT A FRIEND TO LIBERTY AND EQUAL RIGHTS.
N. B. Now Tomy, if you have as much regard for truth as you have for falsehood, you will give this letter a place in your columns.

There will be found more truth than poetry in the above article. It is a very correct exemplification of the peculiar character and extreme beauty of Tom Sharp, and forms, of itself, a most complete "Mirror" through which the editor can see reflected all of his most prominent features and traits with all their hediousness and natural deformity.

For the Wasp.
Mr. Editor:—"The Warsaw Signal," alias "Tartarn's Torch Light," of the 30th ultimo, contains the following interrogatories; to wit:

"1. Is it so, that you have established a Recorder's Office at Nauvoo, for the purpose of recording Deeds?"

Answer—Yes. Do you feel bad? How will you help yourself?

"2. Is it so, that marriage licences are granted by any authority at Nauvoo or that the marriage ceremony is habitually performed without a license?"

Answer—You can't come it old boy neither Sharp nor Gregg can marry in Nauvoo; but unless you are particularly fond of squaws you can be permitted to marry in the United States—otherwise you can just step over on the island in the vicinity of Warsaw—that Anus Mundi of the Universe. Come, Thom-ASS, try it again.
PLUTO.

LATE FROM TEXAS.
The following letter from President Houston to a gentleman in Galveston published in the Civilian, it will be seen, gives altogether a new aspect to affairs:—

CITY OF HOUSTON, March 17, 1842.
Dear sir—The news by express from Austin up to the 13th inst., is that the enemy have evacuated San Antonio, after having plundered the place. They were laden down with baggage and marched slowly. Col. Hays is harrasing them on their march. They only march about eight miles each day. The troops from Austin and those on the frontier are marching to overtake and beat them.

War shall now be waged against Mexico, nor will we lay aside our arms until we have secured the recognition of our Independence. Until then I will never rest satisfied, nor will the people of Texas. We invoke the God of Armies.

Your friend,
HOUSTON.

THE DAUGHTER OF COL. BURR.

Everyone who knows aught of the history of Aaron Burr, must recollect the mysterious death of his only daughter, the wife of the former Governor of South Carolina. She left Charleston in a brig for this city, as was said, with a large amount of money and plate; but the brig never reached the port, nor was ever heard of after. Years passed away, when a sailor in Maine, on his death bed, confessed to have been one of the crew of the brig, and that the passengers were all murdered for their money. Some few years since a sailor in Mobile died with a similar confession, and we find in the New Orleans Crescent City of the 2nd inst. the following paragraph concerning the same matter:

"A gentleman from Texas—an old and valuable friend, and one whose veracity is unimpeachable—informs us that an old sailor recently died in Matagorda, who made a full confession of a number of piracies in which he had been engaged, and stated that he was one of the crew of the vessel which sailed from Charleston, with Mrs. Alston on board. When three days out, a consultation was held, and it was determined that the passengers should be robbed and murdered. The work of death commenced, and all were killed; Mrs. Alston being the last victim who was made to walk the plank. Her image, he said, was always before him, and he could not die without confessing the horrid deed. The closing scene of his life was horrible in the extreme—he raved with madness, exclaiming, 'There!—there she is now!—I see her standing before me!—away—away!'"

"Many witnesses were present who can bear testimony to the confession, and we think there can no longer be a doubt on a subject which was long veiled in mystery."

From the Boston Evening Transcript, MATTERS OF COURSE.

There are certain things in the world which have so uniformly turned out in the same way, that nobody dreams of their resulting in any other. In short, they are set down as "matters of course"—For example:

When a bank suspends specie payment, it is always done for the public good as a matter of course.

If the said bank becomes irretrievably insolvent, and is forced to liquidate its affairs, the directors publish a card stating, that the assets are amply sufficient to pay every thing, as a matter of course.

People who put any degree of confidence in such statements are always deceived and disappointed, as a matter of course.

When a man commits a murder, or a forgery, or runs away with his neighbor's wife, and is detected and tried, he is proved to be insane, as a matter of course.

When a fire occurs, whether it proves destructive of property or not, it is the work of an incendiary, as a matter of course.

When a man is detected in some unmitigated rascality, which must destroy his reputation forever, he requests the public to suspend their opinions, as a matter of course.

When two locomotives come into collision on a railroad, destroying each other, knocking half a dozen cars to pieces, killing a dozen passengers, and wounding twice as many more, the public are promised full information concerning the same, as a matter of course.

When such information comes, if at all, it exculpates every body from blame, as a matter of course.

But every body who believes one-half that is stated of its wonderful virtues, gets egregiously humbugged, as a matter of course.

Every man of intelligence and common sense, is a subscriber to a newspaper, and if he is honest, he will pay his subscription punctually, as a matter of course.

The Music of Nature.

Nature, through all her depths, is replete with music, varied in its tones and rich in its melody. There is music in the stillness of the twilight hour—in the voices of the balmy breeze as it sighs amid the stirring leaves of the star-lit grove, or sleeps upon the calm bosom of the reposing waters; in the bubbling of the inland fountain, and the thunderings of the foaming cataract—in the ripplings of the mountain rill, and the majestic voice of the storm stirred sea. There is music in the joyous symphonies of the glad songsters of the grove beneath, and the mutterings of the pealing thunders above. In heaven—on earth—in the outspread skies and the invisible air;—in the solitary dell and on the high mountain's cloud-veiled top, where human footsteps have never left an echo—in the deepest cells of the passion-stirred heart, and the inanimate depths of the material world; and in the dim rays of earth and the beams of those Celestial Lights which illumine the high firmament and light the angels to their evening orisons; in the tones that the rill has in the rivulet, and the rivulet in the sea. Should every little streamlet tarry at the fountain head, in all, through all and over all; and forever vibrating—the rich music of universal harmony and the deep tones of undying melody! Thousands of invisible harps are pouring their united melody through the depths of air and earth, and millions of archangels touch their heaven-strung lyres and send celestial harmony through the vast halls of the temple of the living God, up to the burning throne of the Dread Eternal One! It is the air of earth—it is the atmosphere of heaven! The unbounded universe is one sleepless lyre, whose chords of love, and hope, and purity, and peace, are fanned into a dreamy and mystic melody by the breath of the invisible God!—Morning Star.

POETRY.

In looking over our old musty files of papers, we find the following, published some years ago in the Ohio Star. It appears over a fictitious signature; but, as we understand that "TOLLIA" is the signature over which the productions of our celebrated poetess, Miss Eliza R. Snow, appeared in early life, and knowing that she was once a popular patron of that paper, we do not hesitate to give it to our readers as one of the early productions of her pen. If we mistake not, it will be hailed as a rich treat by every lover of good poetry, who have so long been delighted with the occasional warblings of her muse.

From the Ohio Star.
GENIUS EMANCIPATED:

Or, the effects of Education on the Human Mind.
The scene was rude, and in its scenic pride,
Wild mossy thickets cluster'd side by side,
Spontaneous rubbish cloth'd the rugged soil,
The lean brake doated on the thistle's smile;
Nature's green umbrage closely interwove,
And form'd the darksome, orbless arch above.
There, on the rocky base by Ignorance chain'd, Uttam'd, uncultur'd, savage Genius reign'd;
Thick clouds of vapor gather'd round her head,
Her winding paths thro' miry mazes led,
Her ling'ring step and vague ambiguous air
Bespoke distraction rather than despair:
Her harsh speech grated thro' the craggy oaks,
Or fell unheeded on embedded rocks;
Her harp was silent, and it matter'd not,
For no kind gale could reach th' ill-fated spot;
And when full riming at the vocal song,
She seem'd the mimic of a palsied tongue.
At length, amid the strange mysterious gloom,
Freedom's bold spirit shook the bolted tomb;
And Education usher'd into birth,
Rose phoenix-like, to renovate the earth.
The scene is chang'd—the scenery now appears
Like hope's fine portrait of prospective years—
That mighty skill has swept th' encumber'd soil,
And made it teem with honey, wine and oil;
Fair lilies flourish'd and gay tulips bud,
Fresh roses bloom where prickly brambles stood,
Tall trees are bounding with perennial fruit,
And golden diamonds sparkle at the root;
Unbounded prospects in succession rise
On either side, and tow'r amid the skies.
See Genius now, in splendid robes array'd,
Expanding blossoms deck her laurel'd head;
Fair gems of science brighten on her brow,
She speaks, kings nod, and thrones and empires bow,
She takes the harp, and letter'd pinions bear Enchanting music thro' the ambient air.
See her ascend Olympus' blazing height
Where fabled deities carouse in light:
Aspiring still, she aims at crowns on high,
And seeks a passport to the upper sky;
Obtains the grant, by Inspiration giv'n,
And with its chart and compass, sails to heav'n,
Is crown'd immortal at the throne of God.

TULLIA.

DUTIES OF WOMEN TO THEIR COUNTRY.

The shelter and protection of a free government also demand awakened and grateful energies. Since its welfare is involved in the virtues and intelligence of its subjects, the character and habits of human every member of its great family, are of the importance. I imagine that I hear from the lips of some of the young and sprightly of my sex, the enquiry, "Why need we concern ourselves in the affairs of politics? What share have we in the destinies of our country?" The same share that the rill has in the rivulet, and the rivulet in the sea. Should every little streamlet tarry at the fountain head, where would be the river that dispenses fertility—the ocean, bearing commerce and wealth upon its never resting tide.— Woman possess an agency which the ancient republics never discovered. The young Captains of the mind are given in charge to her. She can tinge them with sweetness or bitterness, ere they have chosen the channels where to flow, or learned to murmur their story to the time worn pebble. Greece, that disciple and worshiper of wisdom, neglected to appreciate the value of the feebler sex, or to believe that they who had the moulding of the whole mass of mind in its first formation, might help to infuse a principle of permanence into national existence. Rome in her wolf-ras'd greatness, in her fierce democracy, in the corruption of her imperial purple, despised the moral strength that lay hidden under physical weakness. But our cuntry has conceded every thing, the blessings of education, the equality of companionship, the luxury of benevolence, the confidence of a culturer's office to those young buds of being, in whom is her wealth and her hope. What does she require of our sex in return for these courtesies? Has she not a right to expect that we give our hands to every cause of peace and truth—that we nurse the plants of temperance and purity—that we frown on every inroad of disorder and vice—that we labor in all places where our lot may be cast, as a gentle teacher of wisdom and charity, and that we hold ourselves, in domestic privacy, the guardians of those principles which the sage defends in the halls of legislation, and the priests of Jehovah upon the walls of Zion.

A WIFE.—When a man of sense comes to marry, it is a companion he wants, not an artist. It is not merely a creature who can paint and play, and sing and dance; it is a being who can comfort; can assist him in his affairs, lighten his sorrows, purify his joys, strengthen his principles, and educate his children. Such is the woman who is fit for a mother and the mistress of a family. A woman of the former description occasionally figures in the drawing room, and attracts the attention of the company, but she is entirely unfit for a helpmate to a man, or to train up a child in the way he should go.

A very delicate lady down east covers her cheeks with paint before going out—she says she does not like the young men to see them naked. Very modest!

We notice in a North Carolina paper the marriage of Mr. James Plank to Miss Rebecca Payne. If that plank don't get the rough edges play'd off, we are no judges of human "nature."

ABSENCE OF MIND.—A shoemaker in Boston the other day, took home a pair of shoes to his own wife.

A SOLEMN THOUGHT.—When we look abroad upon the great potatoe patch of the world, we see innumerable hills, filled to overflowing, with the very smallest kind of "taters," and a feeling of sadness comes over us at the thought that they'd never be any larger.

An exchange paper contains a notice of the marriage of Mr. Gallop to Miss Moon.—We suspect this is the only example of a man galloping to the Moon!

Despise not your neighbor because he is poor.

MARRIED.—On the 23rd of Dec. 1841, by Elder Daniel Cathcart, Mr. Owen Badson, to Miss Annis Nyman, both of this city.

—In Lee county Iowa Territory, on the 31st of March 1842, Mr. Philander Avery, to Mrs. Elizabeth Meakes.

—In Adams county, on the 31st of March, by Elder Heber C. Kimball, Mr. Isaac Bullard, of this city, to Miss Mary Ann Hyde.

DIED.—In East Bethany, Genessee co. N. Y., on the 25th of Jan., 1842, in the triumph of faith, after a long and painful illness, Miss Eunice W. Churchill, formerly of Hartford Conn., in the 62nd year of her age.

—In this city, at his father's residence, on the 12th of August, 1841, Elijah M., son of John W. and Annice Roberts, formerly of Fairfield Conn., aged 15 years and 16 days.

RALSTON WARREN & WHEAT,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW,
QUINCY ILLINOIS.

ARE prepared to attend to all applications for discharge under the Bankrupt Law.—Office on Hampshire Street, in the city of Quincy. One member of the firm will be at Carthage and Nauvoo on or about the 14th inst. to remain some three or four days on said business. RALSTON WARREN & WHEAT.
Quincy, April 5th 1842. 1-3w.

(For The Wasp.)
Funeral of Ephraim Marks.
BY L. O. LITTLEFIELD.

'Twas a delightful morning—beauty the bland, exquisite scenery of returning spring, began to spread an exhilarating and enlivening aspect over the gay landscape and scene around. The zephyrs cool and refreshing, rose into gentle life—the commingling voices of ten thousand warblers floated, in harmonic numbers along the balmy breeze—Mississippi reposing bosom received the fond caresses of the fluttering wings of the wind and the tiny waves broke with rippling melody upon the shore. In fine, all nature was robed in its most captivating charms, and seemed exerting a benign influence to cheer the house of mourning and calm the swelling tide of grief and bitter woe that flowed on ungovernably within the deep sanctuary of each agonized heart.

I stood by the house of the dead—the deep sighs of mortal anguish stole from within. 'Twas a solemn sight—Death the grand leveller of human greatness, and destroyer of social happiness, had visited that once cheerful, once happy abode, and taken from the penetralia of domestic enjoyment—from parents' caresses, and the society of brothers and sisters—one worthy the name of a son and a brother. Twenty-two pall bearers—all young, all noble and lofty in their mien—bore him forth upon his solemn bier. These had been his associates, his companions in life, which made them more deeply feel that they were his friends in death! They had shared his kindness, known his goodness, and participated in his friendship; he had moved with them in scenes of innocent amusement, but the scene was changed—death had taken him, and they bore him onward to the 'narrow house.' Their mien betokened the feelings of deep solemnity—their countenances were sad, and the occasional agitation and involuntary workings of the lip, seemed but to say, 'Ephraim is no more! peaceful be thy silent slumbers!' Each coat-sleeve wore a badge of mourning—the gloomy crape—so often worn by man.

To tell the world of friends deplored,
Of friendship true and lasting.

The 'Legion's' sweetly playing band' moved solemnly in their train, but all was silence; their instruments were invisible—no note of mellow music swelled upon the breeze. They strode in solemn silence; and next, in slow succession, came the band of sorrowful weepers.

ers! Their cheeks pale—their eyes made red with weeping—their countenances wearing the deep impress of utter desolation, rendered the scene more affecting to the contemplative mind, than any spectacle that human imagination can conceive. And 'mid that solemn group, up-welling gushes of its anguish, and the swelling tide of bitter feeling, strives in

These were followed by the members vain for reconciliation in a burning flood of the City Council—next by a long and orderly procession of citizens—male and female—and last of all closed in an unnumbered train of carriages. The master of life, and fastens upon the mind a splendor of ceremonies—seated upon a gentle of unbroken meditation. Have we staid—rode close beside the procession that path with thorns of difficulty, or to and near the coffin of the sleeping dead, sees of kindness for the deceased? they

Thus formed, the procession move are brought back upon the recollection slowly on toward the 'funeral grove'—and we feel appraised or condemned as they arrived; and 'neath the shadow cord as our works have been. If evil of the over-sweeping limbs that just be-remorse scatters its withering mellow upon the soul and spreads a feeling of desolation reminding us of the days of youth, re-creation throughout the agitated empire of life with the blossoms of hope, of joy, the heart; if good, satisfaction reflects its of bliss without alloy,—each beholder unsullied rays over the scene, and the found a commodious seat. The corpse, mind, emancipated from the his of mor was placed near the rude-made stand, and each sad mourner drew near in solemn awe. Now all were still around an awful death-like silence pervaded the vast multitude, save, over and on a vast sigh of grief broke from the overflowing bosom of some of the mourners. At length, the choir broke the solitude of the noiseless scene; and, with the artful modulation of harmonious voices, 'chantered forth a hymn to the Living God.' He ceased, and a chaplain, with graceful and manly attitude, rose and read a chapter from the sacred book. Again the choir swelled their heavenly music on the busy air; again the chaplain rose, and, after pouring out his soul in prayer, began the delivery of his address. His address, full of argument, sympathy and pertinence, was listened to with deep interest and marked attention. He dwelt upon the many virtues of the deceased with much earnestness, and when he came to speak of the relationship he sustained, in life, toward his aged parents, and the loss with which they had met by the sudden blow of death, the tide of grief within the mourner's breasts, refused submission to the dictates of silence, and sought relief in the deep, up-gushings of the heart. Then, as if to pour the balm of reconciliation upon the agitated ocean of sorrow, he spoke of the glorious hope that awaited them beyond the solemnities of the grave, when they should embrace the spirit of the departed in a better, a brighter world than this, and bask in the beatitude of heaven throughout a never ending eternity. He ceased; another chaplain rose; and, in strains of masterly eloquence—such as cannot be described or even conceived by any, save those acquainted with his powers of mind—uttered forth the feelings of his soul. He spoke at some length with remarkable pathos, at intervals interlarding his remarks with pathetic appeals to the young associates of the dead, that they might wake warning from what they then witnessed—remember their Creator in the days of their youth, and thus be prepared for the solemn hour of death. At length he was silent, and the solemn music of the choir again re-echoed through the grove. After the benediction of the man of God, the procession was re-formed as before; and with the same solemn, measured tread, pursued their way to the receptacle of the dead. Winding in graceful circle, down the gentle eminence they reached the burial place near its base—where numberless saints slept in silence, awaiting that eventful period when the resurrection morn shall dawn upon the world, dissipating from the mental horizon the dark, dank mists of by-gones, and the voice of Omnipotence dissolve the spell that holds them in slumber—the coffin was lowered into its last resting place, and the lengthy train, two by two, with heads uncovered, and deep solemnity seated on each brow—moved slowly by the grave, depositing therein a green, unwithered bough, to the memory of him who slept there in silence.

The trampling of the hoofs—so passionately described by the celebrated Butler—fell heavily upon the coffin! O that sound the ear of man as it forever hides the form of some loved one from his sight. At the dull monotony of its echo, the degradation, rendered the scene more affecting to the contemplative mind, than any spectacle that human imagination can conceive. And 'mid that solemn group, up-welling gushes of its anguish, and the swelling tide of bitter feeling, strives in

These were followed by the members vain for reconciliation in a burning flood of the City Council—next by a long and orderly procession of citizens—male and female—and last of all closed in an unnumbered train of carriages. The master of life, and fastens upon the mind a splendor of ceremonies—seated upon a gentle of unbroken meditation. Have we staid—rode close beside the procession that path with thorns of difficulty, or to and near the coffin of the sleeping dead, sees of kindness for the deceased? they

Thus formed, the procession move are brought back upon the recollection slowly on toward the 'funeral grove'—and we feel appraised or condemned as they arrived; and 'neath the shadow cord as our works have been. If evil of the over-sweeping limbs that just be-remorse scatters its withering mellow upon the soul and spreads a feeling of desolation reminding us of the days of youth, re-creation throughout the agitated empire of life with the blossoms of hope, of joy, the heart; if good, satisfaction reflects its of bliss without alloy,—each beholder unsullied rays over the scene, and the found a commodious seat. The corpse, mind, emancipated from the his of mor was placed near the rude-made stand, and each sad mourner drew near in solemn awe. Now all were still around an awful death-like silence pervaded the vast multitude, save, over and on a vast sigh of grief broke from the overflowing bosom of some of the mourners. At length, the choir broke the solitude of the noiseless scene; and, with the artful modulation of harmonious voices, 'chantered forth a hymn to the Living God.' He ceased, and a chaplain, with graceful and manly attitude, rose and read a chapter from the sacred book. Again the choir swelled their heavenly music on the busy

Thanks, in behalf of the mourners were rendered to the congregation for the manifestation of their respect for the deceased; the grave closed upon him forever; the multitude withdrew in silence; and, as I cast a lingering look toward the lonely bier that stood over the grave of Ephraim, the enquiry arose in my mind, 'Who next will it bear to the narrow house?'

PROPOSALS, FOR PUBLISHING
THE WASP.

The undersigned will publish a paper entitled "The Wasp," in the City of Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.

This Periodical will be devoted to miscellaneous subjects, and he trusts that the matter which will be found in its columns, will be subservient to the cause of humanity, justice & truth. As this is an age of strange events, and of much inquiry, in both the religious and political world, the editor has been induced by the strong solicitations of many of his old and tried friends, to publish a periodical of this kind, and he hopes to have his path circumscribed with truth and not error, and thus be enabled to meet the expectations of the high minded patriot, the philosopher, the logician and man of reason. It is not the design of the editor to condescend to the vulgar, or to often characterize parties, but will endeavor to draw around him, as much as possible, the spirit of those pure and sacred principles that give to all, all rights, parties and denominations, whether religious or political, the right to think, believe, or worship according to the dictates of their own conscience. He will contend for equal rights in the natural privileges, but also reserve to himself the privilege of weighing in a balance the correctness and character of every principle that may pass under his observation.

He would "doth our law judge any man before it hear him?" and again he said, "every tree is known by its fruits, and since good and bad men are known by their fruit, and others have judged and spoken—so the editor will also judge and speak, and answer them that do speak and have judged without knowledge, testimony, or law—according to their tal v. less; he should be wise in their own counsel." He will endeavor to benefit his patrons and friends generally, by putting down every unlawful and corrupting spirit that may show itself in the midst of our free institutions, and he hopes that the citizen and true hearted republican will assist him in this laudable undertaking. He will have no stone unturned, as far as his ability will admit, to pursue and advocate unwaveringly those holy and righteous principles of the Constitution, which "warned the hearts of the patriots of seventy six, and for the perpetuity of which, they cheerfully fell martyrs in the battle field, and will, without respect to party, toward to every individual, of whom he may have occasion to speak, the true reward of merit, without promise or restraint. He will also find place in his columns for scientific and literary subjects; he will notice the march of science here and there, the change of circumstances as well as the times and the seasons, and contrast the former with our present situation, as a community of people.

In contemplating the many misfortunes and adverse winds through which this people have had to pass, and now beholding them in peace, as budding up a noble city, an breathing once more a free air, it is my bosom with no little degree of joy and my heart with gratitude to our God that we still are remembered as his covenant people. In witnessing the growth and prosperity of the city for the three last years, the editor looks forward with feelings of pride, anticipating his bosom, and anticipates the day, not far distant when, in point of population and the magnificence of her edifices, she will be by far, the rival city of the West, and at least to that high scale of exalted pre-eminence which renders distinguishable the most populous cities in the East.

Under these circumstances, and as the public weal imperiously demands the establishment of a weekly periodical, devoted (as The Wasp will be) to the dissemination of useful knowledge, of every description—the Arts, Science, Literature, Agriculture, Manufacture, Trade, Commerce, and the general news of the day, the editor cheerfully engages in the commendable enterprise.

It will be the editor's studious care, at all times, to serve up a choice dish of poetry, for the gratification and benefit of those who indulge in the inspiration of the muse.

With a firm reliance upon the good sense and intelligence of the citizens of this and the adjoining counties, and friends abroad, to bear him out in his undertaking, he has been induced to publish the above named paper, and, believing that it will meet with their cordial approbation and support, he hopes to render it an efficient auxiliary in promoting their best interests—the improvement of the mind of the youth and the instruction of the aged.

The Wasp will be published weekly, upon a small sheet, at first, until success and prosperity will enable us to enlarge our borders. It will be printed at the office of the Times and Seasons, in the city of Nauvoo.

TERMS.—$1.50, invariably in advance. Advertisements conspicuously inserted on the customary terms.

Any person procuring ten subscribers and forwarding fifteen dollars, current money, shall have one copy gratis.

All letters addressed to the editor must be post paid, or they will receive no attention.

WM. SMITH.

A LIST OF LETTERS

REMAINING in the Post Office, at Nauvoo, April 1st 1842. If dead letters are not called for, before the 1st of July next, they will be sent to the General Post Office as dead letters. N. B. Persons calling for any of these letters, will please say they have been advertised.

M. I. Angel	25 Samuel Kimball
Alben Allen	Archibald Kerr
Onel M. Allen	C W Lyon
Lewis Abbot	Lucretia Lindsay
H. M. Alexander	Jno Lindsay
J. A. W. Andrews	Samuel Lake
John Alston	Mariah Lawrence
Jno Anderson	James Lake
L. H. Aldridge	2 Jno Landers
David Able	Thos Layton
Beni Brown	David Lewis
Josiah Butterfield	Jno G Luce
Charity Butler	Geo Miller
Thos Beutman	Charles McGary
C. Baldwin	Edward Melling
Saml. C. Brown	Margaret McLaughlin
Cyrus Boyd	Alno McBride
Geo. Brannan	James McMinda
N. B. Baldwin	Elizabeth Mangle
A. Bonney	L J Muck
Lewis Bon-y	Wm Maubard
Rebu Brotherton	Ruben Middleton
Jno. M. Burk	James Moss
B. n. Bent y	David Monroe
M ryan Bading	Olive Morton
Ch s. Barnam	Geo More
Jno. Bailey	Sam el Merri's
A. M. Bonney	Angin Merrils
Jno. Brown	2 Wm Marks
Levi Backen	Syrena Merrels
Et en - orrows	Wm Millard
Saml. J. Black	Haugh Nickerson
Chas. Butler	Henry Nisewanger
A. Bradford	Almon Newel
Dani Brewit	Jane Neyman
Gooch Burns	Samuel W A Oliver
Jos. Brown	3 P W C Osbourn
Hezekiah Bradley	Isaac Phippin
Jno. Bevin	Jared Porter
Jno. Bezead	Deborah Potter
Nath. Core	Or ill Potter
L. ann Corille	E J Pearsons
Jos. Cat on	Nathan W Parker
Father Conway	Charles Price
D. Corier	Lydia Partridge
Harriet C. Hon	Wm Pool
J. o. Cornichael	Geo W Price
A. Cutler	2 M A Price
J. W. Cummings	2 Jane Pany
Jos. Corall	Chester Phillips
R. v. T. Conway	3 Henry Parker
L. Clark	Jno Parker
M. Catridge	Jno M Piro
C. n t b e of Nauvoo	Semer Page
Darwin Chaze	Charles C Rich
Henry A. Cleay and	Jon W Roberts
Reynolds Calhoun	2 Thomas Rauchle
James F. Craford	Hugh Riging
Sarah Downing	Jeremiah Riley
Isaac Decker	Ca ist a Rowley
Hiram Dayton	3 Cath rin Robison
Phil Dennis	Josiah Richardson
Jos. as Dudley	2 Luana Rockwell
Joseph Dilson	2 Wesley Rose
Hannah Dr. ilinger	David H Redfield
Asa Davis	Josiah Smith
J. O. Duke	7 Wm Smith
W. lam Davis	2 Samuel H Smith
Chapman Duncan	Albert Smith
Peter Dustin	Josh Smith
Joe Drury	Hy um Smith
George Pike	Geo W Swartout
John Davis	Juliah Stettar
Mrs R. Derby	Edward Stevenson
Grace Evans	Jno Sni r
John Evans	Mable Str p
S. vester Ear	Almon Shermom
Jacob H E. fried	Jno Shater
S. Emmons	Ransom Shepperd
Edmond Fisher	Catharine Stout
Emily F. Fack	Ellis Sch eld
Jno S. Fulner	Sylvester B Stodard
Ruben R. Foot	Franklin Sawyer
Chas. G. Galaway	3 Wm String
Stephen H. Goddard	Harrison Severe
Haugh Grindel	James Standing
Isaac Gardner	Susanah Smily
Henry Go den	Catharin Sheridan
David M G ant	2 Samuel Suty Coa
W. lam Gr on	Wm W. Spen er
Mrs V. Green	Jul a Slaughter
Apponso Green	Jno Taylor
Ernan Gillet	Jonathan Taylor
Isaac Galland	Burr Tomlinson
Isaac N. Goddard	Abigail Tippetts
Edwin Guthrie	Nelson Turner
Mrs G over	Wm Thompson
Isaac Hoyt	Theopulos Tull r
Lam s B. Hambleton	Alanson Van'et
Stephen Huchings	Daniel H Wells
Peter Haws	N K Whitney
Roger Hebard	Wm White r s
John Haven	3 Wm Whit
Henry Haegland	Benj Worthington
Sylvester Hulet	Benj S Wilber
J. shua Holeman	James Worthington
Wm C. Huston	Edwin Webb
Wilberson Huit	Elh We d
Jonathan H. Hale	Jno Winn
Josh Heeler	Phoebe M. Whee'er
Lorah B Hastings	So'omon Wixon
Joseph Halford	Lucian Woodworth
J. Hardmar	Charles Warner
Jno S. Johnson	Samuel Waterman
Josiah James	Phares Wells
Nathan R Knight	2 Jane Wheaton
Thomas King	Erigham Young
Elizabeth Knight	Josep Young
Easton Kelsey	Jno Zundel
Samuel Kelly	Samuel Zemer

SIDNEY RIGDON, P. M.

THE WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. II.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, April 23, 1842.

Whole Number II.

THE WASP.

10 EDITED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY
WM. SMITH,
At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.
TERMS.—$1.50 invariably in advance.

POETRY.

THE STRANGER'S HEART.

BY MRS. HEMANS.

The stranger's heart! oh, wound it not!
A yearning anguish is its lot;
In the green shadow of thy tree
The stranger finds no rest with thee.
Thou think'st the vine's low rustling leaves
Glad music round thy household eaves;
To him that sound hath sorrow's tone—
The stranger's heart is with his own.
Thou think'st at thy children's laughing play
A lovely sight at fall of day;
Then are the stranger's thoughts oppress—
His mother's voice comes o'er his breast.
Thou think'st it sweet when friend to friend
Beneath one roof in prayer may blend;
Then doth the stranger's eye grow dim—
Far, far are those who prayed with him.
Thy hearth, thy home, thy vintage land—
The voices of thy kindred band;
Oh, midst them all when blest thou art,
Deal gently with the stranger's heart!

All I feel, and hear and see,
God of love! is full of thee!

Earth with her ten thousand flowers—
Air with all its beams and showers—
Ocean's infinite expanse—
Heaven's resplendent countenance—
All around, and all above,
Hath this record—"God is love."

Sounds, among the vales and hills,
In the woods and by the rills,
Of the breeze, and of the bird;
By the gentle summer stirred:

All these songs, beneath—above
Have one burthen—"God is love."

All the hopes and fears that start
From the fountain of the heart;
All the quiet bliss that lies
In our humble sympathies;—
These are voices from above;
Sweetly whispering—"God is love."

CULTIVATE FLOWERS.

A handsome woman never looks so beautiful as when her cheeks are flushed with exercise, and her eyes sparkling with cheerfulness, with her cape bonnet on and a hoe or dibble in her hand, she is busily engaged in working in her garden. It is a healthy employment, and exhibits besides, evidence of refinement and taste. To those who are disposed to treat our opinion on this matter with contempt, we would recommend a perusal of the following extract from an exchange paper:

"What is the use of flowers?" exclaims a thrifty housekeeper, meanwhile busily polishing her fire-irons. What is the use of bright fire-irons, say we in reply? or of any fire-irons at all? Could you not make a fire on two stones that would keep you quite a warm? What's the use of handsome table cloths and bed spreads? one might eat on a board and sleep on a buffalo skin, and not really starve either!

"When you see a house standing all alone, bare of a shrub or flower, except, perhaps, some volunteer bunches of thistle and pigweed, what do you infer of its inmates? And when you have passed even a log cabin, where the sweet briar was carefully trained round the door, while veils of morning glories and scarlet beans shaded the windows, did you not immediately think of the dwellers there, as neat, cheerful and agreeable? This is more especially the case in regard to the homes of the poor. The credit of the rich man's grounds may belong to his gardener, but they who can keep no gardener, and whose simple flower garden springs out of moments stolen from necessary labor, possess a genuine and cordial love of the beautiful, to render even a humble dwelling so fragrant and fair."

From the Messenger.
HOME, SWEET HOME.

I have often heard the beautiful words "Home sweet home," warbled by professional singers, with all the tact, talent and gusto they were capable of exhibiting before a large audience, but those same words fell cold and listless on the ear, failing to warm the heart and stir up the affections.—Again I have heard them as they came in plaintive tones from the lips of some cottage girl, and have been entranced with the melody. It was the association of ideas, without doubt, which produced the effect. I once heard it sung in a foreign land by an English lady, and ere the first verse was finished the tear drops were trickling down my cheeks—memory was busy—I was again with those who were nearest and dearest, and I almost felt the fraternal embrace, and parental kiss, that welcomes the return of the wanderer. Let the world call it weakness if it will, I care not, and despise the one who allows his feelings to become so callous as to make him forget or in fact, care but little for home and kindred.

Julia Clark was a beautiful girl, the pride of the village, full of life, and animation, and beloved by all who knew her. The sunlight of seventeen summers had tinged her cheek with the blush that denotes health; her step was elastic; her eyes sparkled and indicative of a superior mind, her movements graceful, and her form one like those that haunt us in our dreams. But alas! adversity laid its blighting hand upon her parents, and though they struggled long to redeem their fallen fortunes, and regain the high station in society they first held, their toil was in vain, and, heart-broken they soon paid the debt of nature. Julia was consigned to the care of her grandmother, who lived not exactly in affluence, but easily, and was one of those old fashioned, good natured souls that always look at the bright side of things, and contrive to get through life with an unruffled temper.

I remember well the cottage in which they dwelled—the old woodbine that had clambered up its sides and over the roof—the noble elms that cast their shadows around, and which stood, protecting spirits, to shield from the summer's sun and winter's blast. Peace and happiness then reigned supreme; but now all is desolation and misery! What has wrought the change?

The parents of Henry Lorraine were near neighbors to Julia, and an intimacy soon sprang up between her and them. Their son was with a merchant in Philadelphia, fitting himself for the active business of life. had been absent for some time, and, consequently, he and Julia had never met. He was expected daily upon a visit to the family mansion, and the usual preparations were made for his reception.

It was a delightful summer morning;—the light breeze played gently among the green leaves—the flowers were shedding their richest perfume, and the winged songsters were making the groves ring with music, when Julia donned her cottage bonnet and tripped lightly—so lightly she seemed a child of air—to the house of Mr. Lorraine. Imagine her surprise, when she entered, at beholding a young, and handsome man, a perfect stranger to her, seated in the parlor. The deep blush mantled her cheek and neck, and it was not until the kind voice of Mrs.

Lorraine was heard, bidding her welcome, that she recovered from her confusion.

"Good morning, Julia,—why you look as blooming as one of your own roses. Allow me to introduce you to my son Henry, who is paying us a flying visit.—Henry,—Miss Clark."

The usual salutations were passed, and Julia with the navette of a cottage girl seated herself, swinging her bonnet to and fro by the ribbon, confused, blushing and looking more charming than ever.

There is a charm in simplicity that irresistibly wins its way to the heart, and the one possessed of the virtues, and free from the vices of life, who can look upon innocence blooming in its beauty, and harbor a wish to cut down the frail flower, and leave it to perish, should, ever after, be pointed at by the finger of scorn.

Henry Lorraine had lived long in the city—had become imbued with city notions, and fashions—had lost that delicate sense of honor which appertains to the true gentleman—was a gambler and roue. He was always first and foremost in bacchanalian revels, but so contrived it that his employers knew nothing of his dissipation. A rake in every sense of the word, he had carried misery to more than one family, yet his good looks and superior education were a passport to the highest circles. He at once marked Julia for his prey.

He who has won a woman's love by assiduous attention, and then trifles with her affections and leaves her heart-broken, well deserves the execrations of the world. She is the feeble flower; he should be the sturdy oak, to shield and shelter when the rude blasts of adversity are sweeping by with desolating fury.

It is needless to describe the many arts used by Henry, after his becoming acquainted with Julia. His visits at home became frequent—intimacy ripened into friendship—and, on the part of Julia, friendship into love. Mr. and Mrs. Lorraine both watched with intense eagerness the glowing flame, and by their actions and conversation added fuel to the fire. They doated upon Julia, and longed to see her the bride of Henry. Months passed away, and under a promise of marriage, Julia became a prey to the wiles of the seducer.

In the spring of the succeeding year I visited the cottage, and could not but notice the change. She was once all life and animation—whose presence in any circle was a sure presage of joy—she, the once happy and beautiful, was now disconsolate;—the very type of misery. Consumption had painted upon her cheek that hectic flush which marks its wearer as one singled for the tomb. She would sit for hours at the window gazing on vacancy, occasionally singing in a low and plaintive tone a stanza of some simple ballad, regardless of all that was passing around her, blighted, crushed, heart-broken and weary, and patiently waiting for the hour when she was to lie down and die, and be rid of the cares of mortality. She may often have thought of Henry, but his name never passed her lips.

And where was he that had caused so much misery—who had been the means of making many a heart bleed with anguish—who had crushed to the earth the fairest flower that ever bloomed? Far away, in a foreign clime, he was endeavoring to ease the stings of conscience by a course of revelling and dissipation.—He had been spurned from his father's door, had gone to a land of strangers, with a curse resting upon his head, and soon, from his intemperate habits, was to close a career of infamy.

Evening in summer;—and the sun, which had just sunk beneath the horizon, had tinged the few clouds that were floating in the west with colors that human art can never rival. Julia was sitting at the window, uncommonly pensive, watching the varied hues of light and shade so richly pencilled on the sky by the hand of Omnipotence. She sat so long in the same position that her grandmother became alarmed, approached her and found that she was no more among the living. Gradually and quietly she had breathed her last.

Beautiful even in death! The smile that animated her countenance while living, still seemed to play around her mouth, and her features bore an angelic expression.

At the same hour Henry Lorraine, who had just emerged from a gambling house, was pacing his room to and fro, the perfect image of despair, when a wandering minstrel, so many of whom are to be seen in the streets of a large city, commenced singing beneath his window the song of "Home, sweet home." He paused and listened to each note as it fell from the lips of the singer, the tear drops were gathering in his eye, and at the conclusion he wept. Memory was at work—that simple air had stirred up thought, and the scenes of former years were brought in bold relief before him. In imagination he was again with those who gave him birth, who watched over his infancy, and the virtuous principles they inculcated came with renovated force to his mind. He reviewed his misspent life—thought of the anguish he had been the means of producing—thought so deeply and intensely that his mind became frenzied, and he committed suicide.

The guilty conscience knows no peace—"The worm that never dies" gnaws at the heart-strings until they are severed, and he who victimised soon lays as low as the victim.

SKETCHES OF FRANKLIN.

We happen to know something of the Doctor's determination, however, in two cases, both growing out of the same event where the natural temper of the man broke out—blazed up like a smothered fire—became visible, as it were, all at once, in spite of himself. Some time in the year 1767, or 9, he was in England acting as agent for some of our Transatlantic possessions. One day, he went before the Privy Council as agent, with a petition from the assembly of Massachusetts, or more carefully speaking—one day, when a petition from the provincial assembly of Massachusetts Bay, already presented by him was taken up. He was treated with great indignity—insulted—grossly abused by the Solicitor General Wedderburne. He bore it without any sign of emotion. All eyes were upon him. No change or shadow of change went over his face. His friends were amazed at his forbearance. They wondered at his equanimity—they were almost ready to reproach him for it. Such untimely self-command could only proceed from indifference to the great cause—or—as they thought from a strange moral insensibility. On his way from the place of humiliation, they gathered about him. He stopped—he stood still—his manner—look—voice—were those of a man who has quietly concentrated every thought, every hope under heaven—all his energies—upon a single point—"his master shall pay for it," said he and passed on. The other circumstances grew out of the same affair. As a mark of especial consideration for the Privy Council, the doctor appeared before them in a superb dress after the court fashion of the time. He wore it bravely;—he looked uncommonly well in it. Finding, however, that his courtly garb, thus chosen, thus worn, had been of no avail as a refuge or shelter to him; that, on the contrary, it had only made him a better mark, and exasperated his adversary; that worse than all, his considerate royalty had been misunderstood for a piece of dirty admiration—or worse yet—for a piece of wretched foppery—he went, on leaving the council, straightway home, threw the dress aside, and from that hour never wore it again, till the day on which he went, with full power into the court of the Bourbons, to sign the treaty between France and America—the United States of America!—What must have been his feelings? That paper gave a death blow to British dominion over the western world. It was done!—the threat was accomplished!—Franklin was at peace with himself!—The majesty of Great Britain had paid—bitterly paid—for the insolence of the Solicitor General.

MURDER AT THE MOBILE THEATRE.

The New Orleans Picayune of the 29th, gives imperfect particulars of a most terrible event—the murder of a husband by the wife—shortly after the curtain had closed upon the performance of their respective parts of the stage. The actors in this domestic tragedy were Mr. Ewing and Miss Hamblin, who have for a long time lived unhappily together. Recently, the account states—they agreed to separate, and it was the design of the latter to leave Mobile on Sunday morning for St. Louis. Whether a quarrel occurred on the Friday previously to the perpetration of this horrid act, is not known; but during the first act of the play many of the audience remarked a peculiarity of conduct in the parties towards each other on the stage.

After the falling of the curtain, the deceased proceeded to his dressing room, where he was followed by his wife.—Some disputation, it is said, occurred there between them, relative to the wardrobe, when the conflict ensued, which terminated the life of the deceased. There were three wounds inflicted, one of which grazed the arm, the others were in the body. The most fatal one was a little on the side, just below the ribs. The Ledger says it is the opinion now, that the wound was not sufficient of itself to cause death so rapidly as ensued, but it is supposed that its fatality was very much aggravated by the falling of the deceased.

The manner of Miss Hamblin after the conflict was such as to lead to the supposition that the act, so far as death is concerned, was unpremeditated. She inquired several times whether the deceased was much hurt, and not until there was a certainty of his death did she attempt an escape. The doors were then closed upon her, but she leaped from one of the windows about ten feet from the ground, and so escaped. She was in her stage attire, (the dress of a page,) but had thrown over it a coarse gown.

This act, taken in connection with the place, time, &c., is certainly one of the most solemn on record. The sudden transition of the deceased from the mimic world of the stage to the illimitable and unfathomable future; its unexpectedness, and the meretricious attire in which the act was committed, form altogether an appalling and dreadful picture.

The Editor of the Signal declares himself neutral—it should have been a newsnote.—Ed. Wasp.

PINE COUNTRY! LATTER-DAY SAINTS!! RUN HERE.

WANTED WITHIN ONE WEEK FROM THIS DAY,
10 Milch Cows With Calves, AT LEAST TWO WEEKS OLD:

AND

5 Yoke of Oxen:

All in good order for driving to the Lumber-Mill in the North. Brethren, shall this drove fail—and no lumber for the Temple?

THE WASP.

SATURDAY, APRIL 23, 1842.

WE WERE NOT THE AGGRESSORS.

The wrongs, the oppression, the persecution, and the injustice which the Latter-Day Saints have received from the State of Missouri, have never half been told. The sorrow, the woe, the grief, the misery and bitter anguish they have felt in consequence of these many injuries, can never be fully known to the world of mankind. The story of our persecution has re-echoed from one continent to another, since our expulsion from that State; but the great enormity of that transaction—the many tears that were made to flow, the many widows that were made to mourn, the wives to deplore the loss of companions and children the loss of parents—may be imagined but not described.

"All men were born free and equal" and are "endowed with certain inalienable rights" which are beyond the legal power of man to take away. The Constitution of our country places all mankind upon an equality, as to their rights of enjoyment. It does not grant one privilege to one portion of her citizens and withhold it from another; it draws no line of distinction between the north and south, between northerners and southerners; but all, of every State, whether northern or southern, eastern or western, are made free and welcome participants in the enjoyment of its privileges. It spreads its ample banner over every portion of this happy land, and when the principles it contains are equitably and impartially administered, all grievances can be redressed and all losses retrieved. And one of the greatest and most glorious privileges that it grants to mankind is that of "worshipping God according to the dictates of a good conscience." The Hottentot, the Turk, the Polander, or the subjects of any other nation or kingdom upon the globe, emigrating to America, will be protected in their worship by the laws of the Constitution. If they choose to bow down to stocks and stones and worship them, or if they wish, in sincerity and truth, to look to the one true and invisible God, and worship Him as the Deity, their devotions are tolerated. If they reject the principle of spiritualization, and believe in the literal fulfilment of the scriptures, if they adopt for their guide the principles taught by the Apostles in former ages, and believe that God can give revelations in the last days as well as the first, and that he is unchangeable and no respecter of persons, it will, if its principles are properly administered, throw around them the strong arm of its protection. But, alas! its principles have been violated, and the escutcheon of American Liberty has been sullied by the stain of dishonor, which can never be wiped away only by the hand of retributive justice. American citizens—made free by the blood of the Revolution—have been driven from their homes—rifled of their property, and been made to yield up the ghost, for attempting to worship "according to the dictates of their own conscience." The groans of dying martyrs have reached the high courts of heaven, the blood of husbands and their wives, of mothers and their infants, have mingled in one confluent streamlet; and the cries of the dying for mercy, have been disregarded by their ruthless assailants. The church has been driven from place to place, from county to county, and from State to State; mob after mob, in swift succession, have assailed them, plundered their effects, burned their homes, levelled their habitations with the plain, desolated their settlements and depopulated their villages. Cultivated fields have been turned into dreary wastes, and where once resounded the successive strokes of the axe, and the merry voice of the husbandman echoed along his fields of ripened grain, is now heard nought but the rude tones of uncultivated nature. Gentle reader, all this has been transacted in your own beloved America! Can you credit the assertion? Shrink not back with seeming doubt—these are truths which cannot be controverted. Patriots of the Revolution! your abode is now in the silent tomb; your voices cannot answer to our petitions; but we invoke your spirits! we appeal to the many blood-stained fields where you bled and expired for the good of your country! we look to these and ask if it was principles like those manifested by the barbarians of Missouri, that impelled you on to action and triumph! Ah, we think we hear the feeble voice of some venerated sage of the Revolution, exclaiming, 'It was for the liberty of our children' that we were to break off the shackles of oppression from our necks, that they might never be worn by our posterity, that we nerved our arms for the conflict, and braved the dangers of battle! This was the spirit that urged them on; but the blessed boon which they so gloriously won, and desired to transmit unimpaired to their posterity through the lapse of succeeding ages, has been disregarded and dishonored by their own legitimate offsprings! Men, claiming to be American citizens, and living under the protection of our country's laws, have thus wantonly, thus barbarously assailed a class of citizens—whose only offence was the zeal they manifested in worshipping their God—and drove them from their peaceful fire-sides, from the lands which they had purchased of the Government, into the howling wilderness, and beyond the limits of their State.

We blush for the national honor and patriotism of this Government, when we consider that these wrongs, these outrages upon her citizens, have not been redressed. Alas! she has closed her ears that she will not hear the supplicating voice of her oppressed citizens! she is deaf to the widow's moan and the orphan's lament!—Mercy pleades in vain at the shrine of benevolence, and justice is shrouded in the habiliments of the bolted tomb!

We do not intend this for a religious discussion; we merely design to show the degeneracy of the political genius of this Government, in not protecting her citizens in the enjoyment of their legal and Constitutional rights.

(SUBJECT CONTINUED.)

We took a pleasant walk the other evening through our city to witness her prospects and on her many attracting charms and beauties. The weather was fair and the evening delightful; spring had given life to the surrounding vegetation, and spread her green mantle over the delightful landscape. The distant lowing of numberless cattle, as they wended their way from the adjacent prairies, and the shrill whistle and song of the herdsman, all blending in one discordant echo, lent a new and romantic charm to the scenic beauty of Nauvoo.

We passed by the Temple, and was delighted at the prospect that here presented itself. A scene of lively industry and animation was there. The sound of the polisher's chisel—converting the rude stone of the quarry into an artful shape—sent forth its busy hum; all were busily employed—the work was fast progressing, and we believe from the industrious spirit that was there manifested, that it will not be long before Nauvoo can boast of as great and costly an edifice, as can be found in any portion of the West.

The Nauvoo House is, also, fastly progressing; the committee who have the superintendence of it, are making every possible exertion to urge on the work, and we hope to see the building soon completed.

In all parts of the city, buildings are being erected—industry characterizes our citizens—a spirit of peace and unanimity of feeling prevails among them, and, as union is the strong chord that binds and strengthens the social compact, we hope to live in peace and enjoy the freedom and blessings belonging to Americans, and exercise the right of our political franchise, to vote for and nominate whom we please, whether Latter-Day Saint, Methodist, or Baptist, whatever Tom Sharp and the Anti-Mormon Party may say to the contrary.

THE TURKEY.

That our readers may more particularly understand what is meant by the Turkey, when spoken of with reference to Tom Sharp, it will be remembered that on the sixth of April, 1841, the Latter-Day Saints assembled in Nauvoo, a large concourse of people to celebrate the day and lay the corner stone of the Temple. Much excitement prevailed in the adjoining country, and the interest of the people became quite intense to see a Mormon, as the infidel world call them, or a Latter-Day Saint, as a more refined, genteel and spiritual believer in the Bible would say. It was thought to be quite a treat or strange phenomenon; so the curious came running together as if to see a caravan of wild animals, and with them came the famous Tom Sharp, which reminded us of that proverb in ancient scripture that says 'when the sons of God met together the Devil came also.' As soon as the formal ceremonies had passed off, the congregation began to disperse in order to seek refreshments and return to their homes. It being the native honesty and characteristic of the Latter-Day Saints to be ever courteous and act with becoming hospitality toward strangers, a generous and polite invitation was given by Gen. Joseph Smith for the stranger to dine at his table. Accordingly, without many apologies or preliminaries, the work of eating commenced and were all soon satisfied with 'roast Turkey' and table dainties. But it appears that this repast did not end the sequel, for notwithstanding the kind treatment, and the courteous manner he was received, after his return to Warsaw, he commenced a most unwarrantable attack upon us and treated our kindness with mockery and has continued a continual tirade of abuse ever since, and that too without any just cause or provocation whatever, and truly in this man we can see the words of the Savior fulfilled when he said 'cast not your pearls before swine, lest they turn and rend you.' Now, if this man, Tom Sharp, has not proven himself to be perfectly swinish in his mal-conduct towards the Latter-Day Saints, then we are no judge of this matter.

Just as our paper was going to press this morning, we had like to have repented and had our feelings all knocked into pir, by a bystander setting up a most hedious and mournful cry about our condescending to notice in our columns so mean and unprincipled a man as Tom Sharp, or the Anti Mormon convention; that it was only got up by three individuals that are generally known to be Mormon eaters or mobocrats in principle, and that every gentleman in this county that was a true hearted republican and did not make religion a political hobby, were perfectly disgusted with their proceedings; and as for Tom-ass Sharp, he was a turn-coat at one time, a professed Whig at another, and at the same breath a pretended loco, and on the whole, he had been made a cats-paw for the Anti Mormon party and was a complete Jackass of an editor and was not a fit subject for either the Whigs, Locos or Anti Mormons. Well, says I, that's just what we thought, exactly.

The second sermon of the Prairie Preacher is on file and will appear in our next, with an apology for having condescended to take notice of so contemptible a demagogue as Tom Sharp.

"We have received the first number of a new six by nine, recently started at Nauvoo, yclept 'THE WASP.' Of the 'varmint' itself we have nothing to say, further than that the title is a perfect misnomer. If it had been called the Pole Cat, its name would then have corresponded perfectly with the character of its contents. It is needless to inform our readers that we don't fight with such animals—nature having given them a decided advantage."—[Warsaw Signal.]

Well done Thom-ass. Murder will out, so will truth; and we are glad you are so near coming to your senses as to learn that the "Pole Cat" has an "advantage" (over us Thom-ass!) But why is it, Thom-ass, that the Pole Cat has advantage over you? Surely, because that when there is nothing of an animal but his nose, he is bound to follow that nose let it lead him where it may, and as the distance is so great from the tip of your salacious proboscis, to its insertion in the cranium, or where the cranium should be, it is quite impossible for any thing to reach the organs of sense, through that channel, that is not very highly accented or peculiarly obnoxious, and as it requires all your powers to get a little scent of the strongest kind you have no time to defend your huge trunk from the sting of the Wasp, or even take any "notice of it." You are quite excusable, Thom-uss.

"Never suffer yourself to make a jest of Nature's deformities, or even give a hint of allusion to them, only as they are disconnected with the soul; lest you give an unnecessary wound. We never will!"

COMMUNICATIONS.

GREAT MASS CONVENTION OF THE PEOPLE OF HANCOCK COUNTY.

The Committee appointed at the Anti-Mormon Convention of last year, deem it expedient and highly necessary to have candidates of the People in the field at the ensuing Election. For the purpose of concentrating our efforts with a view to success, and allowing the independent citizens a voice in the nomination, as well as the election, of their officers, a Convention would seem advisable. There never was a time when combined action was more necessary. If we are defeated at all, it will be by Mormon votes, and the candidate who succeeds in opposition to us, must do it mainly by such votes—and should he succeed, he is welcome to the glory of it, say we.

In view of the important rights at stake, and considering this the last opportunity you may enjoy, in Hancock County, of both nominating and electing individuals of your own choice, you are requested to send at least as many delegates as before, to the Convention, or the People in Mass may assemble at the Court House in Carthage, on Monday, the 30th day of May next, at 11 o'clock, A. M.

ON BEHALF OF THE COMMITTEE.

April 1, 1842.

Our readers will perceive by the above, that the Committee appointed for that purpose, at the Anti-Mormon Convention last year, have fixed upon MONDAY, the 30th day of MAY NEXT, for the holding of another Convention.

People of Hancock county! It is for you to say whether such a Convention shall be held. And it is for you further to say whether that Convention (if held) shall be respectable in point of numbers and character; whether it shall be a fair representation of the eight thousand free citizens of your county. INDEPENDENT CITIZENS! In this matter it becomes you—by every sense of Justice—of Right—of Honor—of Patriotism—to ACT—and to act calmly—deliberately—fearlessly!!—You have done so! YOU WILL STILL DO SO!!—[Warsaw Signal.

MR. EDITOR:—

The above is from the Warsaw Signal of the 5th Inst., and contains the dying groans of the two asses of that ignoble print—Thom-uss C. Sharp and Thom-uss Gregg (we do not call them asses on account of the length of the ears of those two beautiful animals, but in consequence of the length of the nose of the Senior Ass.) GREAT MASS CONVENTION INDEED!!! Who ever heard the like! A great mass convention, composed of three jack-asses and a mule! that was the amount of the preliminary convention, in Carthage, and in the ultimate there will probably be an addition of two Thom-usses, and the ever enjoy, in Hancock County, of both nominating and electing individuals of your own choice," nominated by a convention of asses—such as Senator Roosevelt, Representative Catlin and the like, ranting, senseless, Anti-Mormons. The Mormons do not even claim their proportion of the offices, but we shall vote for whom we please, and abide the constitution and the laws, and the result of all elections; but we shall vote, MR. WARSAW SIGNAL! Do you hear that? WE SHALL VOTE, when, and for whom we please! Do you hear that? Now go it, ye crippled asses, with a perfect rush, for—"Your power to hurt each little creature feels, Bulls aim their horns, and asses lift their heels." PLUTO.

A SCARED EDITOR.

MR. EDITOR:—

In a late No. of the Times and Seasons there appeared a wood cut, taken from a record found in the Catacombs of Egypt, now in the possession of Gen. Joseph Smith. The pictures were intended for a different purpose, than the startling effect they produced upon the Editor of the Signal. He says, we saw ourselves, extended upon a bench, in a most imploring attitude, and the Prophet, whom we have so audaciously excited in his military garb, with scimetar in hand, ready to execute the contemplated deed."

He could explain no farther—being to completely Galvanized and leaves the wondering Public in ignorance as to the B. "if I take company they'll think I mean of the rest of the pictures. We come prepared to quarrel with them, and will interpret them. No. 1st represents a I don't wish to do that." fat Turkey suspended in a proper place. He then started, and had not gone for, to bring the Editor to a sense of grati-when the elder of the Ross boys came Greg and three sub Editors laughing at to fight you," at the same time exhibiting the calamity they have brought upon their ing a six-barrelled revolving pistol. Brad- tool (T. Sharp.) No. 9 the Editor in a street said he did not wish to quarrel future state. No. 11 the brakes and rush- with him. Ross instantly lifted his cane es near the Indian fishery below Warsaw. He can translate the rest of No. 11; we'll keep dark. Plate 2. The Editor's saty- rists (Anti Mormons) in confusion occa- sioned by the stings of the Wasp.

MOST HORRID TRAGEDY.

This has been a melancholy week for Burlington. It is sad to record the death of an esteemed fellow-citizen, when he is summoned away in the ordinary course of God's providence; but, oh! how much sadder is it to be the newbearer of an event that has cut down such a one by the hand of violence—in the public street—before our eyes. The heart sickens and the hand almost trembles, while we perform the duty of recording the tragical death of JOHN PORTER BRADSTREET, and the transactions that led to so fatal a result.

Mr B. had been absent from the city a few days and returned on Monday last. During his absence some liberties which he considered improper, had been taken with a building on his premises; the right of title to said building being in dispute between himself and the individual who had taken such liberties. Mr B. remonstrated; and hearing that his opponent had used some harsh language in reference to him, retorted the same in the presence of a young brother-in-law of his opponent. This young man informed his Elder brother, Wm. G. Ross, that Bradstreet had called his brother-in-law a "d—d scoundrel." The brother-in-law being confined to his room by indisposition, the elder Ross, thought proper of his own accord to view the insult as offered to himself.

Shortly after Bradstreet's arrival, himself and Wm. G. Ross met at the Post Office. Ross was on horseback. He asked B. if he had used such language concerning his brother as had been attributed to him. Bradstreet replied in the affirmative. Ross immediately dismounted and, lifting a whip, appeared in the act of striking Bradstreet, when the latter exhibited a small pocket pistol, and remarked that he wished to have no quarrel with him. (Ross.) This caused R. to fall back; in doing which he said, "if that's your game, I'll be prepared for you the next time we meet." Bradstreet repeated that he had no quarrel with him. During the afternoon Bradstreet was waited on by the partner of his opponent, who assured B. that no such language had been used by his partner as was attributed to him—that there was some misunderstanding, which could be easily rectified if both parties could meet—and that there was no real ground for animosity between the parties. After mutual explanations, Mr Bradstreet had now for the first time the case fairly presented to him and was satisfied. He then informed the gentleman of the billigerent attitude of those who had voluntarily taken up the quarrel, and this gentleman, acting as Bradstreet's friend, saw both the elder Ross boys, pointed out the absurdity of their taken up the quarrel—told them that B. had no enmity or hostile feeling towards them—and that they had better give up the idea of molesting Bradstreet. They gave him to understand that they viewed the case in a different light, although he did not from their manner dream of the hostility then rankling in their bosoms.

From appearances—the goings to and fro of the Ross boys before his office—and other billigerent indications on their part—led Bradstreet to arm himself. A F. M. Higbee was called to the chair and a little before tea time, a friend insisted that it would be unsafe for him to go out that evening. Bradstreet, in a pleasant, yet determined manner replied, "I'm bound to go to supper." His friend then insisted that he should go accompanied by him. "No," said the ed upon accompanying him. "No," said

He then started, and had not gone for, to bring the Editor to a sense of grati-when the elder of the Ross boys came Greg and three sub Editors laughing at to fight you," at the same time exhibiting the calamity they have brought upon their ing a six-barrelled revolving pistol. Brad- tool (T. Sharp.) No. 9 the Editor in a street said he did not wish to quarrel future state. No. 11 the brakes and rush- with him. Ross instantly lifted his cane and began to strike B. with his left hand. while with his right he snapped and fired his pistol at least once, if not twice, before Bradstreet could return the fire. Bradstreet did, however, fire both his pistols, while Ross was firing his six barrels. This whole horrid transaction transpired in so short a space that any attempt at rescue was out of the question. The reports—eight, if not nine—were heard all over the city in rapid succession, and did not seem to occupy more than a quarter of a minute. We said eight, if not nine. There was one volunteer pistol aimed and snapped at Mr Bradstreet, if it did not go off, we fear it was for no want of intention the more thoroughly to despatch him. This act was done by a young man whose conduct must undergo a judicial investigation, and it is on that account that we forbear to mention his name or dwell more minutely on the circumstance. Both were carried from the place of encounter mortally wounded. Bradstreet received three balls, one in the head, one in the breast, which lodged in the spine, and the other in the loins. He was attended by Doct. Ransom. According to his own request the ministers of religion were by his side praying and affording all the consolation in their power. He prayed much himself. Expressed much regret that he could not have died in a better cause—repeated that he had nothing against those who had been the means of his death—gave directions how his personal property should be disposed of until the arrival of his brother Albert, to whom he requested a letter to be written—and after suffering much from the poignancy of his pain, he prayed that he might die; and, in a few moments after, at about 12 o'clock that night, his spirit took its flight to the regions of eternity.

The young man is still alive, but no hopes are entertained of his recovery. While sympathy and public sentiment seem to be directed in another channel, we should not lose sight of any palliating circumstance that will enable us to scatter consolation in that quarter. The parents and relations of that young man feel the most acute anguish and intensest grief on account of his rashness, and regret the catastrophe much more than many are inclined to think. Any statements contrary to this are ill-founded. While the public are indignant in regard to this dreadful catastrophe, let them remember that that family has claims on the Christian sympathy of this community, which it would be the very acme of barbarity to overlook. A disregard to these claims show a wrong spirit, and should not for one moment be cherished. [The Hawk Eye.

Since the above was put in type, we learn that the young man is dead.

PUBLIC MEETING.

A meeting of the young men of this city, assembled at the house of Judge Higbee, on the evening of the 20th of April, 1842, for the purpose of taking into consideration the propriety of entering into some arrangements respecting the manner in which the evening of the 7th of May next shall be spent (as it is already set apart by order of the Court Martial of the Nauvoo Legion as a great military day.)

The meeting was called to order by Mr. Henry Marks, when on motion, Col. F. M. Higbee was called to the chair and Andrew Caboon appointed secretary. The President arose and in a brief and pertinent manner stated the object of the meeting.

Col. C. L. Higbee then addressed the meeting, and urged, in a very impressive manner, the propriety of, and the good resulting from, such socialities, when conducted in a proper manner.

On motion, it was unanimously Resolved, That there be a committee of arrangements appointed consisting of seven members for the purpose of negotiating with some individual to prepare a supper and the necessary conveniences for the occasion.

On motion, Messrs. Henry Marks, F. M. Higbee, H. K. Whitney, Joel S. Miles, Dr. J. F. Weld, Darwin Chase and Israel Ivins, were appointed said committee.

Resolved, That no spirituous liquors be introduced upon that occasion.

Resolved, That the committee of arrangements prepare twelve regular Washingtonian toasts, to be given upon that occasion.

Resolved, That the committee of arrangements report at the next meeting.

Resolved, That the proceedings of this meeting be submitted to the editor of the Wasp for publication.

On motion, the meeting then adjourned to meet again on Monday next at 6 o'clock P. M., at the house of Judge Higbee.

F. M. HIGBEE, Pres.

ANDREW CABOON, Sec.

Nauvoo, April 22nd 1842.

PROSPECTUS

OF THE

MACOMB PLAIN DEALER.

IN presenting to the citizens of Illinois the prospectus of a public Journal, intended to be located at Macomb, Macdonough county Ill.—THE PLAIN DEALER will be conducted on liberal principles, and free from all personal bias, having adopted for the basis of its political character the philosophical truths which emanated from Thos. Jefferson, and which have since been acted upon by Andrew Jackson and Martin Van Buren, "of universal equality of right, and sovereignty of the peoples' will." It will advocate the rights and interests of the laboring and producing classes; industry constitutes the only true source of wealth, and oppose aristocracy and exclusive monopolies in all their various forms.

Having witnessed, with deep regret, the disastrous and ruined condition into which many of the States of this Union have fallen, both morally and physically, in all their financial matters, and knowing that the distressing calamities which have thus overtaken them, had their origin in the Banking and Internal Improvement systems of those states, together with the false and delusive credit with which those systems are inseparably connected, it will form one of the leading features of the Plain Dealer to warn the people of Illinois to be on their guard, and not suffer themselves to be again deluded by designing men.

The Plain Dealer will also contain in its columns the general news of the day.

A full and free examination of men and measures, and a fearless expression of our mind upon all matters of State or National policy.

Nothing of an immortal or licentious character shall find a place in the columns of the Plain Dealer.

Miscellaneous, Foreign, and Domestic Intelligence, Literary and Scientific notices, General, State, and National Politics, with Agricultural pursuits and improvements, will receive due attention.

TERMS.

THE PLAIN DEALER will be published weekly on a fine imperial sheet, good type, and every attention bestowed upon it to make it worthy of support, and will be mailed to subscribers at $2.00 per annum, payable in all cases in advance.

LONGSTAFF & WALKER.

Editors and Proprietors.

Macomb, March 8, 1842.

STRAY HORSE.

Strayed from the subscriber, living 12 miles North of Quincy, on the bottom road leading from Quincy to Warsaw, on the 1st day of April, a large grey or flea-bitten grey horse, shod all round but the shoe on the left hind foot was somewhat loose and the hoof considerably cracked, and the hair was worn off the root of his tail in consequence of having the lampers last winter, said horse is about 12 years old and quite thin in flesh. Also—a yearling Colt, dark brown, with a white strip in the face and both hind feet white. Said horse and colt have ran together all winter and were last seen together. The horses main and tail are both white. Also a dark bay horse with a chain around his neck, with a piece of wood attached to it. Letters of information may be addressed to the subscriber at Quincy.

A liberal reward will be paid for the delivery or for information where the subscriber may obtain said horse and colt.

G. G. GALLOWAY.

Quincy, April 9, 1842.

RALSTON WARREN & WHEAT, ATTORNEYS AT LAW,

QUINCY ILLINOIS.

ARE prepared to attend to all applications for discharge under the Bankrupt Law.—Office on Hampshire Street, in the city of Quincy. One member of the firm will be at Carthage and Nauvoo on or about the 14th inst. to remain some three or four days on said business. RALSTON WARREN & WHEAT. Quincy, April 5th 1842. 1-2w.

POETRY.

From the Ohio Star. THE GRAND CONQUEST.

BY MISS ELIZA R. SNOW.

Time, in a tour of near six thousand years,
Has registered things of high note. He saw
The firm of light and darkness broken up;
And when heaven's arch was finished, he beheld
The great stupendous lamp; with thousands more

Of smaller size, lighted, and with a chain
Of double power, fixed and suspended there.
He saw the great immersion of the world,
Washing the disobedient race away,
Which had extended over nature's face
Like clouds, and had eclipsed her loveliness.
He's seen huge empires creeping from the mass
Of non-existence, and assume the right
Of being, and for ever more to be;

Then by a lengthened glance of his stern brow
In terrible convulsions die away.
Nations, awakened by the noble charms
Of virtue, he has seen arise in pomp
And haughty grandure, and unconsciously,
By some soft syren, lull'd to dead repose.
He's seen the tallest, proudest monuments
Of human art, crumble to atom dust,
And scatter on the flying winds of heaven,
By the strange magic of his passing breath.

All this;—and he has not beheld a scene—
He never has recorded an event
So strong, so full of meaning—or so deep
With interest, and high in majesty,
As the great vict'ry of that mighty war,
Which had the fate of millions pending on!
When heaven's strong Champion met a monster, which

Four thousand years of fearful slaughter, failed
To slake his burning thirst for human gore!
He'd eaten kings—demolished cities, and Evacuated bolted citadels—
And slain ambition—blasted beauty—scorn'd Affection's prayer, and mock'd the tears of love;
And fast empaled between his leaden jaws,
He held each victim of his horrid rage—
And even dared insultingly, to face
The royal favorite of the majesty
On high!

The conflict closely wag'd—and Oh!
The noble Champion fell! the monster laugh'd—
Heaven trembled—nature closed her tearless eye
In frantic agony!—But oh! the knight
Had only stooped beneath the lion's jaw,
Better to reach the centre of his heart;
And he arose, unharmed, and bore away
The quivering spirit of his vanquished foe!

Then from their seats cherubic hosts arose,
And they came to hail him; for all heav'n
Had sat in mute solicitude, to wait
The issue of the great momentous scene.

The Son of God came off victorious!
Honors awaited him—and he was borne
By a triumphal escort through the skies,
And seated high upon his Father's throne.
The mighty Gabriel, with his noble train,
Came there to worship him; and bowing down,
Laid off the ensigns of his dignity;
He touched a chord—ten thousand harps awoke.
Hark! Hark!—an echo from the upper heaven—

"Welcome, welcome, King of glory!
Thou hast conquered—thou hast won;
Exulting, we repeat the story
Of the deed which thou hast done—
Welcome to the highest throne.
"Thou art he that stooped to conquer—
Thou hast slain the ghastly foe,
Whose unhallowed rage and rancor Ruled the tide of human woe—
Thou hast laid his spirit low.

"Power and dominion—all on earth, in heaven,
Are thine—and to thy name all praise be given;
We feel a holy pride, as we adore thee,
And spread our crowns and royalties before thee:

"Glory to thee! we will repeat,
And bend with reverence at thy feet,
For every honor is thy due;
We crown thee King and Conqueror too."

Bow down to him ye nations! shout, ye saints
In strains of pure intelligence, to Him
Who spoil'd your spoiler; now that you can look
So fearlessly, upon pale, conquer'd Death.

WINTER.—Some people like winter—other people don't—and why don't they? Readers, we'll tell you why they don't, as briefly as we can. In the first place, generally speaking, every thing is cold: wind and water are cold, shirts are cold before they are aired, and sometimes afterwards; plates are sure to be cold, gravy likewise; your outside is cold, and so is your in, especially if it is empty. Every thing is dark;

the clouds are dark, dress is dark, the mud is remarkably dark, and the daylight very often dark: the nights unusually dark, and in some towns, so very dark that you cannot see the gas light! Every thing is blue: the fog is blue, noses are blue, in short every thing is blue, except the sky, and that is a white brown. Every thing is short; business is short, cash is short, clocks are short, answers very short, except faces; and they are generally long. Every thing is dull: the dogs are dull, cats are dull, streets are duller than dull, the city is dull; debtors are dull, dealers and dealings are dull; those that do and that are done are dull; in short all dull except the newspaper, and that's never dull. Is it reader?—[Exchange paper.]

THE BETRAYER'S DREAM.

BY E. L. BULWER.

For weeks he knew nothing of this earth, he was encompassed with the spectress of a terrible dream. All was confusion, darkness horror—a series and a change of torture!—At one time he was hurried through the heavens in the midst of a fiery star, girt above, below, and around with unextinguishable but unconsuming flames. Wherever he trod, as he wandered through his vast and blazing prison, the molten fire was his footing, and the breadth of fire was his air. Flowers, trees, and hills were in that world as in ours, but wrought from one lurid and intolerable light; and, scattered around, rose gigantic palaces and domes of living flame, like the mansions of the city of Hell. With every moment there passed to and fro shadowy forms on whose countenances was engraven unutterable anguish, but not a shriek, not a groan ran through the red air; for the doomed, who fed and inhabited the flames, were forbidden the consolation of voice. Above there sat fixed and black, a solid and impenetrable cloud—Night frozen into substance! and from the midst there hung a banner of a pale and sickly flame, on which was written "For ever." A river rushed rapidly beside him. He stooped to slake the agony of his thirst—the waves were waves of fire! and as he started from the burning draught, he longed to shriek aloud, and could not! Then he cast his despairing eyes above for mercy, and saw on the livid and motionless banner, "For ever."

"A change came o'er the spirit of his dream."
He was suddenly borne upon the winds and storms to the oceans of eternal winter. He fell stunned and unstruggling upon the ebbless and sluggish waves.— Slowly and heavily they rose over him as he sank, then came the lengthened and suffocating torture of that drowning death
—the impotent and convulsive contest with the closing waters—the gurgie, the choking, the hursting of the pent breath—the flutter of the heart, its agony and its stillness!—He recovered. He was a thousand fathoms beneath the sea, chained in a rock round which the heavy waters rose as a wall. He felt his own flesh rot and decay, perishing from his limbs piece by piece; and he saw the coral banks which it requires a thousand ages to form, rise slowly from their slimy bed, and spread, atom by atom, till they became a shelter for the leviathan; their growth was his only record of eternity; and ever and ever, around and above him, came vast and misshapen things—the wonders of the secret deeps;

and the sea serpent, the huge chimera
of the north, made its resting place by his side, glaring upon him with a livid & deathlike eye, was yet burning as an expiring sun. But over all, in every change, in every moment of that immortality, there was present one pale and motionless countenance, never turning from his own.
The fiends of hell, the monsters of the hidden ocean, had no horror so awful as the human face of the dead whom he had loved!

The word of his sentence had gone forth. Alike through that delirium and its more fearful awakening, through the past, through the future, through the vigils of the joyless day, and the broken dreams of the night, there was a charm upon his soul—a hell within himself, and the curse of his sentence was—never to forget!

Ten days later from England!—The Prince of Whales, it is said, blubbers continually, and sometimes sports.

PROPOSALS

FOR PUBLISHING

THE WASP.

The undersigned will publish a paper entitled
"The Wasp," in the City of Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.

This Periodical will be devoted to miscellaneous subjects, and he trusts that the matter which will be found in its columns, will be subservient
to the cause of humanity, justice & truth. As this is an age of strange events, and of much enquiry, in both the religious and political world, the editor has been influenced by the strong solicitations of many of his old and tried friends, to publish a periodical of this kind, and he hopes, to have his path circumscribed with truth and not error, and thus be enabled to meet the expectation of the high minded patriot, the philosopher, the logician and man of reason. It is not the design of the editor to condescend to the low scurrility that so often characterize partisan editors; but will endeavor to draw around him, as much as possible, the spirit of those pure and sacred principles that give to all, of all sects, parties and denominations, whether religious or political, the right to think, believe, or worship according to the dictates of their own conscience. He will contend for equal rights and equal privileges, and also reserve to himself
the privilege of weighing in a balance the correctness and character of every principle that may pass under his observation.

Jesus said, "doth our law judge any man before it hear him?" and again he said, "every tree is known by its fruits," and since good and bad men are known by their fruit, and others have judged and spoken—so the editor will also judge and speak, and answer them that do speak and have judged without knowledge, testimony, or law, according to their folly, least they should be 'wise in their own conceit.' He will endeavor to benefit his patrons and friends, in general, by putting down every unlawful and persecuting spirit that may show itself in the midst of our free institutions, and he hopes that the citizen and true hearted republican will assist him in this laudable undertaking. He will leave no stone unturned, as far as his ability will admit, to pursue and advocate unwavering-ly those holy and righteous principles of the Constitution, which "warmed the hearts of the patriots of seventy-six, and for the perpetuity
of which, they cheerfully fell martyrs in the battle-field, and will, without respect to party, award to every individual, of whom he may have occasion to speak, the true reward of merit, without prejudice or restraint. He will, also, find place in his columns for scientific and literary subjects: he will notice the march of science here among us, the change of circumstances as well as the times and the seasons,
and contrast the former with our present situation, as a community of people.

In contemplating the many misfortunes and adverse winds through which this people have had to pass, and now beholding them in peace,
fast building up a noble city, and breathing once more a free air, it fills my bosom with no little degree of joy, and my heart with gratitude to my God, that we still are remembered as his covenant people. In witnessing the growth and prosperity of the city for the three last years,
the editor looks forward with feelings of pride
emulating his bosom, and anticipates the day
not far distant, when, in point of population and the magnificence of her edifices, she will be, by far, the rival city of the West, and attain to that high scale of exalted pre-eminence which renders distinguishable the most popular cities in the East.

Under these circumstances, and as the public weal imperiously demands the establishment of a weekly periodicle, devoted (as The Wasp will be) to the dissemination of useful knowledge, of every description—the Arts, Science, Literature, Agriculture, Manufacture, Trade, Commerce, and the general news of the day, the editor cheerfully engages in the commendable enterprise.

It will be the editor's studious care, at all times, to serve up a choice dish of poetry, for the gratification and benefit of those who indulge in the inspiration of the muse.

With a firm reliance upon the good sense and intelligence of the citizens of this and the adjoining counties, and friends abroad, to bear
him out in his undertaking, he has been induced to publish the above named paper; and, believing that it will meet with their cordial approbation and support, he hopes to render an efficient auxiliary in promoting their best interest—the improvement of the mind of the youth
and the instruction of the aged.

The Wasp will be published weekly, upon a small sheet, at first, until success and prosperity will enable us to enlarge our borders. It will be printed at the office of the "Times and Seasons," in the city of Nauvoo.

TERMS.—$1.50, invariably in advance.
Advertisements conspicuously inserted on the customary terms.

Any person procuring ten subscribers and forwarding fifteen dollars, current money, shall have one copy gratis.

All letters addressed to the editor must be post paid, or they will receive no attention.

WM. SMITH.

"Pa, I want a new hat—no, not a hat, but a cap." "You can't have any now; times are too hard." "But ain't them good times come yet, you told about, when you went to cut logs for the cabin on State street, in Erie?"
"Go to bed, you rascal! What do you know about politics?"

A LIST OF LETTERS

REMAINING in the Post Office, at Nauvoo,
April 1st 1842. If said letters are not called for, before the 1st of July next, they will be sent to the General Post Office as dead letters.
N. B. Persons calling for any of these letters,
will please say they have been advertised.

M. I. Angel	2 Samuel Kimball
Alben Allen	Archibald Kerr
Onel M. Allen	C W Lyon
Lewis Abbot	Lucretia Lindsay
H. M. Alexander	Jno Lindsay
J. A. W. Andrews	Samuel Lake
Jno. Alston	Mariah Lawrence
Jno. Anderson	James Lake
J. H. Aldridge	2 Jno Landers
David Able	Thomas Layton
Benj. Brown	David Lewis
Josiah Butterfield	Jno G Luce
Charity Butler	Geo Miller
Thos. Beotman	Charles McGary
C. Baldwin	Edward Melling
Saml. C. Brown	Margaret McLaughlin
Cyrus Boyd	Amos McBride
Geo. Beaman	James McMinds
N. B. Baldwin	Elizabeth Mangle
A. Bonney	L J Murdock
Lewis Boney	Wm Maahard
Rebu Brotherton	Ruben Middleton
Jno. M. Burk	James Moss
Benj. Bent'y	David Monroe
Morgan Badum	Olive Morton
Chas. Barnam	Geo More
Jno. Bailey	Samuel Merrila
A. M. Bonney	Austin Merrila
Jno. Brown	2 Wm Marks
Levi Bracken	Syrena Mezels
Ethen Forrows	Wm Millard
Saml. J. Black	Huldah Nickerson
Chas. Butler	Henry Niewanger
A. Bradford	Almon Newel
Dani. Brewit	Jane Neyman
Enoch Burns	Samuel W A Oliver
Jos. Brown	P W C Osbourn
Hezekiah Brady	Isaac Phippin
Jno. Devin	Jared Porter
Jno. Bezead	Deborah Potter
Nath. Core	Ornill Potter
L ann Corlile	E J Pearsons
Jos Caltron	Nathaniel W Parker
Father Conway	Charles Price
D Corter	Lydia Partridge
Harriet Colton	Wm Pool
Jno Comechael	Geo W Price
A. Cutler	M A Price
Jos W Cummings	2 Jane Pany
Jos Conall	Chester Phillips
Rev T Conway	3 Henry Parker
L Clark	Jno Parker
M Catridge	Jno M Pino
Constables of Nauvoo	Semer Page
Darwin Chase	Charles C Rich
Henry A Cleav'and	Jon W Roberts
Reynolds Calhoun	Thomas Rancliffe
James F Crawford	Hugh Riging
Sarah Downing	Jeremiah Roley
Isaac Decker	Calista Rowley
Hiram Dayton	Catharine Robison
Phillip Dennis	Josiah Richardson
Jul as Dudley	2 Luana Rockwell
Joseph Dolson	2 Westley Rose
Hannah Droilinger	David H Redfield
Asa Davis	Joseph Smith
J O Duke	Wm Smith
William Davis	Samuel H Smith
Chapman Duncan	Albert Smith
Peter Dustin	2 Asa Smith
Joel Drury	Hyrum Smith
George Pike	Geo W Swartout
John Davis	Juliah Stetfar
Mrs R Derby	Edward Stevenson
Horace Evans	Jno Snider
Olivia Evans	Mable Sharn
Sylvester Earl	Almon Shermon
Jacob H Enfried	Jno Shafer
S Emmans	Ransom Shepperd
Edmund Fisher	Catharine Stout
Emily J Flack	Ellis Seofield
Jno S Fulmer	Sylvester B Stodard
Ruben R Foot	Franklin Sawyer
Gideon G Galaway	3 Wm Stringham
Stephen H Goddard	Harrison Severe
Hannah Grinnel	James Standing
Isaac Gardner	Susanah Snivly
Henry Golden	Catharine Sheridan
David M Grant	2 Samuel Suffy Coal
William Green	Wm W Spencer
Mrs V Green	Julia Slaughter
Alphonso Green	Jno Taylor
Truman Gillet	Jhonathan Taylor
Isaac Galland	Burr Tomlinson
Isaac N Goodale	Abigail Tippetts
Edwin Guthrine	Nelson Turner
Mrs G over	Wm Thompson
Hiram Hoyt	Theopulos Tailor
James B Hambleton	Alanson Vanfleet
Stephen Hu chings	Daniel H Wells
Peter Haws	N K Whitney
Roger Hebard	W M Whitesides
John Haven	3 Lyman Whight
Henry Haegland	Benj Worthington
Sylvester Hulet	Benj S Wilber
Jeshaa Holeman	James Worthington
Wm C Huston	Edwin Webb
Wilberson Huit	Eli Weld
Jhonathan H Hale	Jno Winn
Joah Heleer	Phebe M Wheeler
Loran B Hastings	Solomon Wixom
Joseph Halford	Lucian Woodworth
J Hardmar	Charles Warner
Jno S Johnson	Samuel Watterman
Josiah James	Phares Wells
Nathan R Knight	2 Jane Wheaton
Thomas King	Brigham Young
Elizabeth Knight	Joseph Young
Easton Kelsey	Jno Zundel
Samuel Kelly	Samuel Zemer

SIDNEY RIGDON, P. M.

THE WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. III.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, April 30, 1842.

Whole Number III.

THE WASP,

IS EDITED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY

WM. SMITH.

At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,

Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.

TERMS—$1.50 invariably in advance.

From the Ladies' Companion.

THE ONLY DAUGHTER.

BY MRS. EMMA C. EMBURY.

"The thorns which I have reaped, are of the Tree I planted; they have torn me, and I bleed."
BYRON.

It was the sunset of a beautiful autumnal day, and the slant beams shed a golden glow upon the dark foliage of many a giant oak which spread its gnarled roots and broad branches across the velvet lawn of Dalesford; while the diamond paned casements of the fine old mansion glittered in the rays of the departing luminary. It was a scene truly English; the antique house, with its heavy doorways and deep set windows, its peaked roof and clustered chimneys—the park stretching its emerald green turf far around, and dotted with little copses where the antlered deer sported in fearless security—the village in the distance with its neat white cottages and verdant hedgerows—the tall spire of the little church relieved against the clear blue sky, and glittering in the latest beam of day—all combined to form a picture of comfort and quiet beauty rarely seen in other lands. Seated in a deep embrasure of a window which looked out upon this lovely prospect sat the master of the rich domain, and as the soft light touched his long grey locks, it almost seemed like a halo around his venerable head. But the feelings of Mr. Dale were strongly at variance with the tranquility of the scene. His eye dwelt upon the beauty which spread itself before him, but his mind was absorbed in other thoughts, and an expression of deep gloom rested on his fine features which told of recent discontent. He had been sitting with bent brow and folded arms for more than an hour, and the sunset glow had darkened into the grey of twilight when a light touch upon the shoulder aroused him from his reverie.

"You have been long in obeying my summons, Marian," said he, as he turned and beheld his daughter by his side. "You are not wont to be a laggard in your duty to your only parent."

The brow of the girl crimsoned as she replied "I was abroad father, and heard not your summons until this moment."

"Sit down Marian," said Mr. Dale, apparently not listening to her excuse. "I have that to say which requires your serious consideration. Your cousin—"

"What of him, sir?" interrupted Marian with a startled voice.

"Your cousin, Sir Thomas," pursued the father, "has again written to me on the subject of your union. He complains, and certainly with some reason, of the protracted delay to which he has been subjected. Since your childhood he has been your affianced husband, and surely the time has come now when he ought to expect you to act with the discretion befitting a woman."

"Sir Thomas would show his discretion by choosing a lady better suited to his years," said Marian, harshly.

"Tut, tut, girl; a hale, hearty man of 45 is a match for any one; he has borne to press his suit out of deference to your girlish timidity, and now he must be listened to."

"Father," said Marian, firmly, "you have spoken to me of this subject on former occasions, and my answer must be what it has ever been; my hand must be given only in obedience to the dictates of my heart, and if I understand my own feelings it will never be obtained by my cousin."

"Marian, I will not appear to you in the light of a tyrannical parent; listen to my motives for desiring this match and you will scarcely then attempt to oppose your feeble will to a resolution so irrevocable as mine. My grandfather had two sons, and the elder of course inherited the baronetcy, but the estates were unentailed, and on his death bed the old man bequeathed to his younger and favorite child the bulk of his fortune, leaving to the elder little more than a bare subsistence. This unjust distribution of property naturally produced discord and disunion between the brothers which lasted during life, and my father enjoyed his wealth at the cost of fraternal affection. The brothers, playmates in infancy, and bosom friends in youth, now dwelt within bow shot of each other, they met in the field and thoroughfare—they sat within the same sanctuary—kneled at the same altar and yet they never exchanged a word of kindness or even a look of recognition. At length the elder brother died, leaving an only son to inherit his title and poverty. Remorse was awakened in my father's heart when he looked upon the grave of his long estranged brother, he shed the unavailing tears of penitence over the obduracy which had severed those whom nature had united, and when he lay on his death bed, a few years later, he drew a solemn promise from me, who was his only child, that I would repair the injustice which had resulted from my grandfather's partial affection. In obedience to my dying parent, I gave the required pledge, but I blush to confess that I did not fulfil my word. I had then several children and I could not bear the idea of diminishing their heritage, by sharing it with the heir of my uncle; yet this was what my father desired, and what he would himself have done had his life been prolonged. Indeed an unexecuted will to that effect was found among his papers, and therefore I was not left in any doubt as to the course I ought to pursue. But I was governed by selfish interest, and contenting myself with making friendly advances to my cousin, the baronet, who was my junior by some ten or twelve years, I made no attempt to equalize our estates. But a promise given to the dead is never violated with impunity. My boys, my noble and stately boys, were one after another cut down by the stroke of death. The children for whose sake I hoarded my wealth were all consigned to the keeping of the grave, and at last, Marian, you only were left. Your mother too soon followed her little ones, and while standing beside her coffin, I vowed that if you were spared to me, I would make full the ample resolution to my cousin for my long delay in fulfilling my parent's command. Contrary to the expectation of every one you became a healthy and promising child, and as I watched your growth in beauty and in strength my heart again failed me, with whom she had kept up a clandestine correspondence during many months. 'It shrunk from the duty of reducing the heiress of Dalesford, and it was not until she had passed the age of thoughtless childhood that I conceived a plan which enabled me to perform my duty without impoverishing you. Sir Thomas was the first to suggest the idea of a union between the heir of the honors and the heir of the estates of Dalesford. Attracted by your budding beauty, Marian, he offered to keep himself free until you should have attained the age of womanhood, if I would consent to overlook the disparity in years and allow him to consider you his future bride. His proposition removed a great weight from my mind, for it enabled me to accomplish the dearest object of my life, and I gladly consented to such an arrangement. Knowing how often that such an alliance produces disgust in the minds of the parties, we concluded to allow you to remain in ignorance of it until such time as Sir Thomas might have succeeded in winning your regard. Your unfortunate acquaintance with young Wharncliffe, Marian, was a hindrance to our plans because it awakened a foolish and transient attachment, which I trust is now entirely effaced from your recollection. His proposal for your hand, Marian, induced me to disclose to you my intentions respecting Sir Thomas, and I regret that it should have been found necessary to subject your cousin to so long a probation in consequence of your foolish partiality for this stranger. Wharncliffe is a man of mere birth, of fickle and unsteady character, and neither by fortune nor station warrented in his presumption. I cannot therefore but wonder at the strange infatuation which led you to listen for a moment to his suit, although I am willing to give you full credit for the implicit obedience which accorded in my prohibition of all further intercourse. A year has been allowed you to forget this passing folly, and Sir Thomas is now impatient to call you his bride, therefore be prepared to meet him next week on your affianced husband, and as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made I shall have the happiness of seeing you wedded to a man who is deserving of your love and affections."

At this moment, a servant entering with lights, interrupted the conversation, and Mr. Dale discovered his daughter's face bathed in tears, while her whole frame shook with suppressed emotion. Surprised and displeased he bade her retire until she had banished all such traces of agitation from her countenance and remember that his will was now to be obeyed with cheerfulness as well as alacrity. Marian gladly accepted permission to retire, but no sooner had she reached her apartment, than, drying her tears, she drew from her bosom a folded paper and read as follows:

"Meet me to night in the little copse on the right hand of the park gate. I have hovered about for you three days without being able to see you; do not fail me now; I shall wait until the stroke of twelve. The ship which is to bear me for ever from my native land will sail in five days; I come to bid you a last farewell; dearest do not refuse to let me listen once more to the tones of your sweet voice ere I go to return no more."

There was no signature to the note, but Marian well knew the characters of her lover's writing. It was from Wharncliffe—from him whose suit her father had rejected, from him, whom her father had applauded for her forgetting, and in strength my heart again failed me, with whom she had kept up a clandestine correspondence during many months. 'It shrunk from the duty of reducing the heiress of Dalesford, and it was not until she had passed the age of thoughtless childhood that I conceived a plan which enabled me to perform my duty without of splendor with that cold, selfish, heartless profligate to whom my father destined me. 'If I should stay and wed Sir Thomas my father's grey hairs would be brought down to the grave in sorrow, by the sight of my unhappiness. Let me then take my destiny in my own hands: he will then relent when he finds the step irrevocable—he will pardon my disobedience when he finds it has ensured my peace of mind,—any thing—any thing—rather than this hated marriage! And absorbed in such thoughts Marian sat unheeding the flight of time until the deep toned clock struck the eleventh hour, when she started from her reverie, and throwing a cloak around her to conceal her figure, stole softly out of a side door to meet her expected lover.

Marian Dale had been the petted and the spoiled plaything of the whole household of Dalesford from her parents down to the grey headed steward and gossiping nurse who had watched her infancy. Her mother had indulged her to excess, and when she lost that parent, her father transferring to her the affections which he had borne towards the fine fair children, who now lay buried in the family vault in the village church, fancied he was contributing to her happiness by allowing her to follow the impulses of her own inclination in all things. Her character therefore became imbued with wilfulness to a degree totally unsuspected by those who saw only the sunny tempered and happy girl. Gifted with fine mental powers, she had received an education superior to most of her sex, while her extreme beauty and graceful manners served to display to advantage really noble qualities of heart. Mr. Dale was like his ancestors; a man of stern and inflexible purpose. When he had once made a resolution nothing could shake it, and under a severe countenance and the most polished elegance of address he concealed the most determined obstinacy. He loved his daughter, he liked his somewhat elderly nephew; he valued his estate, and he was proud of his family name. He fancied he had fallen upon a plan which would combine all the advantages that he most valued, and perpetuate the name while it repaired the fortunes of the titled branch of his family. It was certainly a well arranged scheme and would have been a perfectly feasible one but for the objections which arose from the mature age of Sir Thomas and the prior attachment of his daughter to another. Still Mr. Dale did not dream of resistance. His will was law and he did not suspect that Marian would venture to cherish an affection which he had interdicted or to refuse her assent to a marriage which he had projected. But Marian possessed too much of her father's spirit to become the passive instrument of his despotism. The unlimited indulgence which had been extended to her in all trifling matters had rendered her incapable of implicit obedience in serious ones. She was so unused to control that it now seemed to her an undue exertion of personal authority to which her proud spirit could not submit. One week after the conversation just narrated Marian was on her way to America, the wife of Albert Wharncliffe. Absorbed in dreams of a first and passionate love, and fascinated by her husband's agreeable pictures of the new world which was now to be their abode, Marian had little time to regret her deserted home. If the image of that desolate mansion and its

of splendor with that cold, selfish, heartless profligate to whom my father destined me. 'If I should stay and wed Sir Thomas my father's grey hairs would be brought down to the grave in sorrow, by the sight of my unhappiness. Let me then take my destiny in my own hands: he will then relent when he finds the step irrevocable—he will pardon my disobedience when he finds it has ensured my peace of mind,—any thing—any thing—rather than this hated marriage! And absorbed in such thoughts Marian sat unheeding the flight of time until the deep toned clock struck the eleventh hour, when she started from her reverie, and throwing a cloak around her to conceal her figure, stole softly out of a side door to meet her expected lover.

Marian Dale had been the petted and the spoiled plaything of the whole household of Dalesford from her parents down to the grey headed steward and gossiping nurse who had watched her infancy. Her mother had indulged her to excess, and when she lost that parent, her father transferring to her the affections which he had borne towards the fine fair children, who now lay buried in the family vault in the village church, fancied he was contributing to her happiness by allowing her to follow the impulses of her own inclination in all things. Her character therefore became imbued with wilfulness to a degree totally unsuspected by those who saw only the sunny tempered and happy girl. Gifted with fine mental powers, she had received an education superior to most of her sex, while her extreme beauty and graceful manners served to display to advantage really noble qualities of heart. Mr. Dale was like his ancestors; a man of stern and inflexible purpose. When he had once made a resolution nothing could shake it, and under a severe countenance and the most polished elegance of address he concealed the most determined obstinacy. He loved his daughter, he liked his somewhat elderly nephew; he valued his estate, and he was proud of his family name. He fancied he had fallen upon a plan which would combine all the advantages that he most valued, and perpetuate the name while it repaired the fortunes of the titled branch of his family. It was certainly a well arranged scheme and would have been a perfectly feasible one but for the objections which arose from the mature age of Sir Thomas and the prior attachment of his daughter to another. Still Mr. Dale did not dream of resistance. His will was law and he did not suspect that Marian would venture to cherish an affection which he had interdicted or to refuse her assent to a marriage which he had projected. But Marian possessed too much of her father's spirit to become the passive instrument of his despotism. The unlimited indulgence which had been extended to her in all trifling matters had rendered her incapable of implicit obedience in serious ones. She was so unused to control that it now seemed to her an undue exertion of personal authority to which her proud spirit could not submit. One week after the conversation just narrated Marian was on her way to America, the wife of Albert Wharncliffe. Absorbed in dreams of a first and passionate love, and fascinated by her husband's agreeable pictures of the new world which was now to be their abode, Marian had little time to regret her deserted home. If the image of that desolate mansion and its

of splendor with that cold, selfish, heartless profligate to whom my father destined me. 'If I should stay and wed Sir Thomas my father's grey hairs would be brought down to the grave in sorrow, by the sight of my unhappiness. Let me then take my destiny in my own hands: he will then relent when he finds the step irrevocable—he will pardon my disobedience when he finds it has ensured my peace of mind,—any thing—any thing—rather than this hated marriage! And absorbed in such thoughts Marian sat unheeding the flight of time until the deep toned clock struck the eleventh hour, when she started from her reverie, and throwing a cloak around her to conceal her figure, stole softly out of a side door to meet her expected lover.

heart stricken master rose before her mental vision, the voice of him for whose sake she had sacrificed all, had power to chase these painful fancies and awakened cheerful anticipations of the future. For a brief interval Marian was happy—perfectly happy notwithstanding her disobedience and her willfulness. But such happiness, the dreams of a feverish excitement—last not long. Immediately upon her arrival in New York Marian addressed a letter to her father, not doubting that the affection which had so long been the measure of her days and years would silence the dictates of anger in his bosom. She wrote not as a supplicant, but as a tender and affectionate child who had been driven to extremity by his cruel determination. Her letter breathed the deepest tenderness, but no remorse, no supplication for forgiveness. She acknowledged her fault but spoke of it as rendered necessary by circumstances, and instead of throwing herself upon her father's mercy, seemed to extend the offer of mutual oblivion of injustice. Three months elapsed ere an answer was received. It was a large packet and Marian with tearful eyes greeted the handwriting of her father; but what were her feelings when she found only her own letter enclosed in a blank envelope. The letter had been opened; her father must have read it, yet it had not softened his obdurate feelings, and Marian knew that she was now an outcast from her father's heart and home. She wept such tears as she had never before shed; even her husband's tenderness was powerless to soothe her remorseful agony, and, for the first time, she was made sensible of the magnitude of her sin by the extent of its punishment.

(CONCLUDED NEXT WEEK.)

WOMAN—AT HOME.

The proper sphere of woman is home. Her great office in the social system is to make that home a happy one to her husband, that his affections may centre there—that he may have no temptation to wander, and may always hasten to return to it. Let her train her children so that they may be the pride of their father, so that he may love to own them, and be not ashamed to show them as the jewels of his country. Let her always stand ready to receive him with complacency after his conflicts with the world, when his brow is knit with care, when his heart has been rudely convulsed by contact with treachery, dishonesty, or abuse, and his passions are striving for mastery; then from her still and quiet retreat, from her communion with the innocent spirits of her nursery, from her closet of prayer, which opens to heaven, let her meet him like a ministering angel, and he will lie at her feet like a lion tamed; he will imbibe from her something of her own spirit, and his spirit will be chastened under such a ministry.

Here lies the great strength of the wife. Here is her high, honorable, and honored sphere of action where men are made, moulded, controlled—not where they contend, and cherish the angry passions. Does she seek for honor? It lies in the honor she renders to her husband, "calling him lord," in her children, educated, and lead to paths of usefulness and heaven; in her domestic arrangements the admiration of all. Does she seek for happiness? Where can she find it but in a peaceful home? The wife was appointed to make a home for man, to form the centre of his affections, and bind them there; to act constantly as oil upon the troubled waters of life. If a man quarrels with me, I let him go home before I press the issue. If he has a home, and honored wife, a family, I am sure to see him in the morning with a subdued spirit, and more ready to render justice. I honor above all the wife who does her office, who administers from the sanctuary of home to the troubled spirits of men, to soothe the sorrows and allay their passions—to subdue them by gentleness and truth, and to send them all out every morning with the law of kindness imprinted on their hearts by a new lesson of love. I lately saw a scene for a painter, exemplifying most clearly the position of the wife. Two men had become violently enraged, and sought each other with deadly weapons. I trembled for the issue. But as they came near, their arms fell powerless, and their voices of anger softened. I pressed through the crowd, and saw a female figure, like the presence angel, between them. She was the wife of the one and the sister of the other. She spake not—but she had power. She led her husband home, and in the morning he went with a brother's heart and sought a reconciliation.

THE WASP.

SATURDAY, APRIL 30, 1842.

WE WERE NOT THE AGGRESSORS.

The Church made a settlement in Caldwell county under the brightest auspices. Having passed through scenes of persecution, distress, misery and deep affliction, in Jackson county—having felt the heavy hand of oppression and the relentless and fell spirit of mobocracy—having been forced from their homes across the waters of the Missouri, with no shelter to shield their heads from the fierce peltings of the pitiless storm—they viewed Caldwell as a place of temporary rest—hailed it as a place of refuge, an abode of comfort, a residence of safety and an asylum of repose; where they might, for a time, shun the turbulence of oppression's tide, and enjoy the blessings of Freedom and the privileges of American Liberty. For a time, all was peace, harmony and contentment—industry prevailed, homes of comfort were created, prosperity shed its enlivening radiance around, and the aspect of comfort, happiness and domestic enjoyment, soon reared its consoling ensign to gladden the heart and cheer the low depression of spirit, that reigned in the bosom of each afflicted saint. A county, embracing a considerable extent of territory, was soon densely populated. Farms began to be opened in all directions, dwellings to spring up as if by magic, and where once the solitude of the forest reigned supreme, and nought was heard but the appalling scream of beasts of rage or fear, or the gentle cooing of the timid dove and merry chant of birds of song, now resounded the pleasing echo of the forester's axe. The rude tones of nature began to recede before the swelling tide of emigration and give way to the more cheering tones of civilization. They settled in peace, purchased lands of the Government, and began to exercise all those political rights so dear to Americans—guaranteed to them by every endearing tie of patriotism, of philanthropy and by the Constitution of our country. They began to exercise the right of their political franchise—found access to the ballot box and the polls, and elected their several necessary officers, both of county and State. The political Zodiac, for a time, was cloudless and serene; but soon, alas, the long smothered tempest, that lowered in the envious breasts of some, broke forth with infuriated rancour, and mobocracy, with its hydra-head, began to sow the seeds of discord and internal strife. This fell and damnable spirit—like some pent up torrent, whose restless tide can no longer flow within the limits of restricted bounds—burst the bands of humanity and patriotism, and a blow was made at the liberty of citizens, which is unparalleled by any thing recorded upon history's page, or traced upon the retentive memory of man. Gallatin, the county seat of the county of Davis, is the disgraced theatre of a transaction, which proved to be nought but the prelude of that bloody contest which resulted in our expulsion from that State.

The time for electing representatives to the Legislature from that county had arrived; the polls were opened, and the Latter-Day Saints as freemen and citizens of America, began to give their votes for the candidate of their choice. The several candidates had electioneered among them, solicited them to visit the polls; and none were more assiduous in their endeavors to procure what they were pleased to call 'Mormon votes,' than was a certain individual by the name of Peniston, the Whig candidate for representative. He had traversed the county from one extremity to another, and exerted all his faculties to secure their votes; but when he found that they were not the ignorant dupes of his hypocritical ambition, his very patriotic and benevolent bosom was fanned into a flame of incontrollable passion and anger; and he began to pour his maledictions upon the heads of those whose votes he had previously solicited. The noise of the rabble soon became boisterous and intense, and men, reeling under the influence of Bacchus, declared the 'Mormons' should not vote. An attempt was made to force them from the polls; a general collision ensued, and the contest became bloody and severe. Clubs, stones, and every weapon within reach was resorted to; but the spirit of patriotism that dwelt in their bosoms, fired their souls with a spirit of emulation; they nerved their arms for the conflict, and bravely met the attack of their assailants.

Every patriot and lover of country must commend the Latter-Day Saints for pursuing this course. Fellow countrymen! can you witness such an attack upon the institutions of your country and say in your hearts it is right and should be tolerated? Allow mobs to rise up with impunity and prevent legal voters from exercising their franchise, what will ultimately become of our republic? Through the medium of the ballot-box we hope to perpetuate the free institutions of our country, correct misrule and check the assiduity of oppression's hand. Then let it be the constant determination of every American citizen to preserve it inviolate that it shall not be contaminated by the pestilential breath of mobocracy!

(SUBJECT CONTINUED.)

NOSE-LOGY.

Just returned from the Promontory of Noses, Thom-ASS C. Sharp, the redoubtable Editor of the "Warsaw Signal," having made some very important discoveries in relation to the bumps on his far-famed proboscis. The length of his snout is said to be in the exact proportion of seven to one compared with his intellectual faculties, having upon its convex surface fourteen well developed bumps, and, upon its concave, Snortitiveness on the "big note." Well, we will take the bumps on the superficies in order.

1st. Anti-Mormonitiveness. This first, and important bump, has been growing out of all proportion for the last year, and now seriously threatens the demolition of his remaining organs. It can be seen just eighteen miles with the naked eye, and four thousand by the help of ordinary glasses, and is reputed to be the most beautiful legal bump the ass possesses, with, perhaps, the single exception of Polecatitiveness, which is very prominent.

2nd. Rooseveltiveness. This organ is located exactly on the point of his proboscis, and is decidedly his leading bump. The faculty, however, has neither object nor aim excepting as a political warner-cock, according to Snooks.

3rd. Greggiveness. The location of this organ is immediately behind Rooseveltiveness, and forcibly reminds us of the way they fatten hogs in Ireland. It will be recollected, however, that corn goes much further in Warsaw than on the Emerald Isle.

4th. Calinitiveness. This is quite an important little organ, in the small potato line of the Anti-Mormon dynasty. Political preferment sticks out about six feet near the north east corner of this bump, but is quite spindling.

5th. Whitneyiveness. This bump has a strong smell in the cow line of trover and conversion, has a crumpled horn, sore head, and white legs,—and the spirit of mobocracy, and the sheriffalty, stick out precisely eight feet, five inches by Gunter's scale.

6th. Harperiveness. This is quite a soft organ, and is of small consequence—it is badly diseased with the big-head, and never will set the world on fire.

7th. Polecativeness. This is a newly discovered organ, recently developed by the sting of the WASP: it has, however, grown exceedingly rapid, having already attained to the length of fourteen feet, eight inches, and a quarter, and exhales the most odoriferous effluvia ever smelled by pure Anti-Mormon noses. It is a very leaky organ, extends to both surfaces, & Snortitiveness has already thrown it to the four cardinal points of the universe. Run, all ye Anti-Mormons, run and snuff the sweet smelling savor.

The seven remaining organs will not be given at this time, but will be held in reserve until after the GREAT MASS ANTI-MORMON JACKASS CONVENTION.

STEAM BOAT SUNK.

The Steam Boat Illinois, on her trip up the Mississippi, struck Mechanic Rock & sunk immediately, in 8 feet water, nearly opposite this place. She had on board 250 soldiers for one of the Western Forts, and a quantity of store goods. It is thought that the boat will prove a total loss; the freight was seriously injured, but it is not known to what extent.

Our apology and the second sermon from the prairie preacher is laid over for want of room; but will receive prompt attention in due time.

COMMUNICATIONS.

THINGS AS THEY ARE IN THE LAST DAYS.

Mr. Editor:—

From a notice in the Warsaw Signal, Tom-ass is about to loose cast: he has determined, it appears, that he will not be classified with the Pole Cat race any longer. His manner of disposing of his cast is after Sir R. Peel's system of corn laws, on the sliding principle, he has not told us to what race of animals he will attach himself: perhaps to a long eared race, that fills a wide chasmin nature; or it may be, that, after the slide, Zoologists will favor us with a new species of animals, in the Zoological histories. Tom-ass may perhaps make another slide, after this, away from Tom altogether, and leave nothing but a-s-s. Should this be the case, I will try to give the public notice of it, that they may always know where to find him.

ZOOLOGIST.

MASONIC NOTICE.

The Anniversary of St. John the Baptist will be celebrated by Nauvoo Lodge, U. D., on the 24th of June, proximo, at the City of Nauvoo. The brethren of Bodley Lodge, No. 1, Quincy, and Columbus Lodge, No. 6, Columbus, and all resident and transient brethren in the vicinity, in good standing, are respectfully invited to participate.—A commemorative address, suitable to the occasion, will be delivered by one of the craft. By order of the W. M.

JOHN C. BENNETT, Secretary.
May 2d, A. L. 5842, A. D. 1842.

Head Quarters, Nauvoo Legion.

City of Nauvoo, Ill., April 28, 1842.

GENERAL ORDERS.

The Lieutenant General directs that a PROGRAMMA Militaire issue from the office of his commanding general, for the 7th of May, proximo, which I now proceed to consummate.

1st. The Adjutants will form the lines of their respective regiments, and the Colonels of the line assume command, at 9 o'clock, A. M.

2nd. The Adjutant General will form the line of the Legion, and the Brigadier Generals assume the command of their respective Cohorts, at half past 9 o'clock, A. M.

3rd. The Major General will assume the command of the Legion at 10 o'clock, A. M.

4th. At a quarter past 10 o'clock, A. M., the Lieutenant General will be escorted to the field, at the review station.

5th. General Review, and Inspection, will follow, accompanied by such evolutions, and exercises as the time will admit of.

6th. At half past 12 o'clock, P. M., the forces will be dismissed, until a quarter before 2 o'clock, P. M.

7th. At 2 o'clock, P. M., the Major General will resume the command, and perform such military movements, and field exercises, as the Lieutenant General may direct.

8th. At 3 o'clock, P. M., the Cohorts will separate, and form the line of battle—the Brigadiers assume their respective commands, and General Law's command will make a descent upon that of General Rich—in order of sham battle.

9th. At half past 3 o'clock, P. M., the Cohorts will resume their position in the line of the Legion; and a sham battle will be fought between the mounted Riflemen under the immediate command of Lieutenant General Smith, and the Invincibles under the immediate command of Major General Bennett.

10th. At half past 4 o'clock, P. M., the forces will be dismissed for the day.

11th. Every officer, musician, and private, will be required to be at their respective posts, at the hours specified, throughout the day, under the most severe penalties of the law.

JOHN C. BENNETT,
Major-General.

An ordinance in relation to stores and groceries.

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, That from and after the passage of this ordinance, no person shall be permitted to keep a store or grocery within the City of Nauvoo, without a license for that purpose, which license shall be granted for the same amount, and under the same regulations, as that for Taverns and ordinaries contemplated in the 2nd Section of the ordinance entitled "An ordinance to regulate Taverns and ordinaries, in the City of Nauvoo;" and any person who shall, without such license, sell, or offer for sale, any goods, wares, merchandise, or groceries, shall, upon conviction thereof, incur a penalty of ten dollars for every month's delay.

Sec. 2. Nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to authorize the violation of "An ordinance in relation to Temperance."

Passage, April 22nd, A. D. 1842.

JOHN C. BENNETT, Mayor.
JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

FREEDOM OF THE CITY.

Resolved by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, That the FREEDOM OF THE CITY be, and the same hereby is, conferred on Gen. James Arlington Bennett, of Arlington House; James Gordon Bennett, Esq., Editor of the New York Herald; and Col. John Wetworth, Editor of the Chicago Democrat; and they are hereby declared free citizens of the City of Nauvoo.

Passage, April 22nd, A. D. 1842.

JOHN C. BENNETT, Mayor.
JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

An ordinance altering the names of certain streets therein named.

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, That the names of certain streets in the City of Nauvoo be, and the same hereby are, changed as follows; to wit: Carlin to Hyde; Bluff to Woodruff; Back to Page; Warsaw to Mulholland; Bennett to Cahoon; Wilcox to Green; Mulholland to Bennett; Lumber to Rich; Water to Hills; Hill to Water; Barlow to Arlington; Green to James; Rich to Gordon; and Wilson to Barlow: and that the square or block north of Bennett and west of Arlington street, be called Park Place.

Passage, April 22nd, A. D. 1842.

JOHN C. BENNETT, Mayor.
JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

An ordinance to amend an ordinance entitled "An ordinance to regulate Taverns and ordinaries, in the City of Nauvoo."

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, That every Tavern or Ordinary Keeper, within the City of Nauvoo, who may neglect to take out a license according to the provisions of the ordinance to which this is an amendment, shall upon conviction thereof, be fined in the sum of twenty dollars for every month so neglected or refused.

Passed, April 22nd, A. D. 1842.

JOHN C. BENNETT, Mayor.
JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

An ordinance fixing the size of brick moulds, in the City of Nauvoo.

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, That from and after the passage of this ordinance, all bricks made in the City of Nauvoo, for sale, shall be made in moulds of the following size and denominations, that is to say: nine inches and one quarter long in the clear, four inches and a half wide in the clear, and two inches and a half deep in the clear; but stock bricks shall be made in moulds, two inches and five-eighths deep in the clear.

Sec. 2. That if any person or persons shall sell, or expose to sale, within the City of Nauvoo, bricks hereafter made in moulds of any other dimensions than those given and described in the first section of this ordinance, arch bricks, cornice bricks, and water table bricks, excepted, or in moulds not tested and stamped as correct, with the letter N, by the Sealers of Weights and Measures, (by which letter all articles passed upon by him shall hereafter be stamped, who shall receive as a compensation therefor, from the owner of such moulds, the sum of twelve and a half cents for each mould for three bricks so stamped, they shall forfeit and pay, upon conviction thereof, from one to twenty dollars for each and every offence as aforesaid, at the discretion of the Mayor, or Municipal Court.

Passed, April 22nd, A. D. 1842.

JOHN C. BENNETT, Mayor.
JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

MILITARY APPOINTMENT.

James Arlington Bennett, of Arlington House, is hereby appointed Inspector General of the Nauvoo Legion, with the rank and title of Major-General: his place to be supplied, when absent, by the Major-General of the Legion.

JOSEPH SMITH, Lieutenant-General.
JOHN C. BENNETT, Major-General.

HONORARY DEGREE.

Ordered by the Chancellor and Regents of the University of the City of Nauvoo, That the honorary degree of L. L. D. be, and the same hereby is, conferred on Gen. James Arlington Bennett, of Arlington House, N. Y.

JOHN C. BENNETT, Chancellor.
WM. LAW, Registrar.

7TH OF MAY DINNER.

General Joseph Smith, and Lady present their compliments to the Officers (and their respective Ladies) of the Consolidated General Staff of the Nauvoo Legion;—that is to say, his personal Staff, Major General Bennett's Staff, including the Band, Brigadier General Law's Staff, and Brigadier General Rich's Staff;—and respectfully solicit their company at a repast Militaire, at his quarters, on the 7th day of May, proximo, at 1 o'clock, P. M.

General Bennett has been ordered to issue a programme of the operations, and field exercises, of the day, which will appear in ample form, and in due season.

April 23th, A. D. 1842.

Mayor's Office, City of Nauvoo, }

To the Officers of Police;

Greeting:—

I have been informed by unquestionable authority that there is a band of marauders (strangers) in our city, prowling our streets by night and by day. Look well to your duty before some serious mischief is done. Watch well their secret paths, and be prepared for the issue.

Fellow-Citizens:—

Secure your property well of nights, least depredations of no small magnitude be committed—committed by strangers and charged upon Mormons—remember I have warned you. Look well, therefore, to your interests, and save your effects from the ruthless hand of the spoiler.

JOHN C. BENNETT, Mayor.

PUBLIC MEETING.

The meeting assembled pursuant to adjournment.

The house being called to order, the committee of arrangements reported that negotiations had been entered into with Mr. A. Mills, to furnish a supper and other necessities, for the convenience of those who might assemble at his house on the 7th of May proximo.

On motion,

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to wait on Gen. J. C. Bennett, and solicit him to deliver an address upon that occasion.

Col. F. M. Higbee, Dr. J. F. Weld, and Capt. D. Chase, were then chosen said committee.

On motion the meeting then adjourned sine die.

F. M. HIGBEE, President.
ANDREW CAHOON, Secretary.

POETRY.

From the Knickerbocker.

The Marriage Vow.

Speak it not lightly—'tis a holy thing.
A bond enduring through long distant years.

When joy o'er thine abode is hovering,
Or when thine eyes is wet with bitterest tears,

Recorded by an angel's pen on high,
And must be questioned in eternity,

Speak it not lightly—though the young and gay
Thronging round thee now with tones of mirth,

Let not the holy promise of to-day
Fade like the clouds that with the moon have birth,

But ever bright and sacred may it be,
Stored in the treasure-cell of memory.

Life may not prove all sunshine—there will come Dark hours for all. O will ye when the night

Of sorrow gathers thickly round your home,
Love as ye did, in time when calm and bright

Seemed the sure path ye trod untouch'd by care,
And deemed the future, like the present, fair?

Eyes that now beam with health may yet grow dim,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow,

I then pricked my breast to make bleed; the blood ran a little, when instead of deviating a whit from her purpose instead of dogging me to spare a life she held most dear—instead of fainting or shrieking, she gently laid hold of my arm, and requested me to walk to the fire place before I stabbed myself, for blood was the worst thing to stain a floor in the world, and her's was newly washed: in an instant I felt as if ten thousand mosquitoes had laid violent hands on my flesh—and my sword fell out of my hands, and I ran home determined to remain till the day of my death an old bachelor.

MARRIED—In this city, on the 27th instant by Elder James Carroll, Mr. Wm. Warren, to Mrs. Catharine Fuller, both of this city.

"Till Hymen brought his love delighted hour.
There dwelt no peace in Eden's rosy bower."

DIED—At Ambrosia, Lee county, Iowa Territory, April 9th 1842, Josiah Richardson, a member of the church of Latter Day Saints, in the 55th year of his age.

Br. Richardson was an Elder of the church, and was one of the many that were driven from the State of Missouri, by the order of the Notorious Boggs, in 1839. His death was occasioned by a cancer on his right thigh. The cancer made its appearance several years before he left Missouri but was not disabled from performing his daily labor. In consequence of the fatigue he had to go through in leaving the State, and in defending his family and brethren against the mobbers of Missouri, his cancer was much inflamed. On his arrival in the State of Illinois he applied to several physicians in hopes of being cured of that painful disease. At length Doc. G. O. Pond, of Columbus, Adams county, undertook the job of cutting out the cancer. He succeeded in taking out about one pound and a quarter of the cancer and warranted a perfect cure. It soon healed up and his leg appeared as sound as ever; but in about six months after the performance it broke out a fresh and much worse than it had ever been before. He was frequently relieved by the laying on of hands; but no permanent cure effected. It continued to grow larger and more painful in spite of medical skill until the time of his death. Although his pain was extreme, for the most part of his time, he bore it with christian fortitude, and resignation to the will of God. At times he expressed great desire to live; exhorted his brethren to more faithfulness and to preach the gospel to those who sit in darkness. I was with him much of the time after his removal to this place, which was only about five weeks previous to his death, and I can truly say I never saw a person endure more pain than he appeared to endure. For a few of the last days of his sickness, his desires and prayer to God was that he might be delivered from this body of sin and death, and died rejoicing that the hour of his desolation had come. On Monday following he was interred at Montrose burying ground (according to his wish to be buried with the Saints.) A. B. CHILD.

DR. J. F. WELD,

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS,

Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years, practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus

J. Salbery, Plymouth.
Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike

L. R. Cliffin, Lahar Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.

Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.
IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.

Elias Smith, Nashville.
PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Page, Pittsburgh.

John Winchester, Philadelphia.
NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
James Curtis, Horners Town.

W. I. Appleby, Reels Town.
Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.
Erastus Snow, Salem.

Feeman Nickerson, Boston.
MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapiet.
OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirtland.
NEW YORK.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.
L. R. Foster, city New York.

POETRY.

From the Ohio Star. TO A STRANGER.

BY MISS E. R. SNOW.

Far, from the land that gave thee birth!
O! canst thou find a spot on earth,
So fondly dear to thee,
As the heart-woven land thou hast left far behind;
In the earliest wreath of young memory entwined,
With the friends of thy childhood that charm'd thou so long,
With the soft melow tones of their juvenile song.
In the trains of affectionate glee?
Thou seest no more that limpid rill,
Which purled beneath thy favorite hill:
Ah! wilt thou love to stray,
In thy reckless now, by a strange streamlet's side?
Wilt thou feel in thy bosom that innocent pride Which stole on thee so oft, when the light of its spell
Gave new charms to the dew-drops which lus-ciously fell
On thy own, thy loved path far away?
Thou'st left behind thy social train:
Will thy fond spirit rest again,
And feel security,
In the bosom of strangers thou ne'er hast tried
By the ebb and the flow of prosperity's tide?
Or will it retreat, on the wings of regret,
To that frequented bower, where so lovingly met
All, by friendship made sacred to thee?

Believe me—here are friends as kind,
As those whom thou hast left behind;—
Green walks, and streams that flow
With a current as clear and a murmur as soft.
As that which has filled thy rich musings so oft:
O! then sever thyself from the chains of the past,
With which thy affections are fettered so fast,
Since the present has gifts to bestow.
But canst thou not, the fairy chase
That binds thee to thy native place—
Rather than feel unblest,
To the friends of thy childhood—thy country—
thy home,
Go, go and be happy—'tis folly to roam:
Return to the shade of thy fair dropping vine,
Where the pulses of nature are wedded to thine;
Go, and lull thy lone spirit to rest.

THE HEIRESS.

A sprightly, rosy-checked, flaxen-haired little girl, used to sit, on the pleasant evenings of June, on the marble steps opposite my lodgings when I lived in Philadelphia, and sing over a tales in a sweet voice, and with an air of delightful simplicity, that charmed me many a time. She was then an orphan child, and commonly reported to be rich. Often and often, I sat after a day of toil and vexation, and listened to her innocent voice, breathing forth the notes of peace and happiness which flowed cheerfully from a light heart, and felt a portion of that tranquility steal over my bosom. Such was Eliza Huntly, when I first knew her.
Seven years had elapsed, during which time I was absent from the city, when, walking along one of the most fashionable squares I saw an elegant female figure step into a carriage, followed by a gentleman and two pretty children.
I did not immediately recognize her face, but my friend, who was by my side, pulled my elbow; do you not remember little Eliza, who used to sing for us, when we lived together in Walnut street? I did remember, it was herself.
She used to be fond, said he, of treating her little circle of friends with romances—and at last she acted out a neat romance herself. She came out into the gay circle of life, under the auspices of her guardian. It was said by some, she was rich—very rich: but the amount of wealth did not appear to be a matter of publicity
—however the current, and as we generally believed, well founded report, was sufficient to draw around her many admirers, and among the number not a few serious courtiers.
She did not wait long, before a young gentleman, on whom she had looked with a somewhat partial eye, because he was the gayest and handsomest of her lovers, emboldened by her partiality, made an offer. Probably she blushed, and her heart fluttered a little, but they were sitting in the moonlight parlor, and as her embarrassment was more than half-concealed, she soon recovered; and as a waggish humor happened to have the ascendant, she put on a serious face, told him she was honored by his preference, but that there was one matter which should be understood before, by giving him a reply, she bound him to his promise. "Perhaps you may think me wealthy: I would not for the world have you labor under a mistake upon that point. I am worth eighteen hundred dollars."

She was proceeding, but the gentleman started as if electrified. "Eighteen hundred dollars!" he repeated in a manner that betrayed the utmost surprise: "yes ma'am," said he awkwardly, "I did understand you were worth a great deal more—but—"
"No sir," she replied, "no excuse or apologies: think about what I have told you—you are embarrassed now: answer me another time," and rising, she bade him good night.
She just escaped a trap—he went next day to her guardian to enquire more particularly into her affairs, and receiving the same answer, he dropped his suit at once.
The next serious proposals followed soon after, and this too came from one who succeeded to a large portion of her esteem, but applying the same crucible to the love he offered her, she found a like result. He, too, left her, and she rejoiced in another fortunate escape.
She sometime after became acquainted with a young gentleman of splendid fortune, in whose approaches she thought she discovered more of the timid diffidence of love, than she had witnessed before. She did not check his hopes, and in process of time, he too made her an offer.
But when she spoke of her fortune, he begged her to be silent. "It is to virtue, worth and beauty," said he, "I pay my court, not to fortune. In you I shall obtain what is worth more than gold. She was most agreeably disappointed. They were married, and the union was solemnized: she made him master of her for one with herself. I am indeed worth eight-teen hundred dollars," said she to him, but I never said how much more—and I hope never to enjoy more pleasure than I feel this moment when I tell you my fortune is one hundred and eighty thousand.
It is actually so, but still her husband often tells her that in her he possesses a far nobler fortune.

PROSPECTUS OF THE

MACOMB PLAIN DEALER.

IN presenting to the citizens of Illinois the prospectus of a public Journal, intended to be located at Macomb, Macdonough county Ill—
The PLAIN DEALER will be conducted on liberal principles, and free from all personal bias, having adopted for the basis of its political character the philosophical truths which emanated from Thos. Jefferson, and which have since been acted upon by Andrew Jackson and Martin Van Buren. "Of universal equality of right, and sovereignty of the people's will." It will advocate the rights and interests of the laboring and producing classes, industry constitutes the only true source of wealth, and oppose aristocracy and exclusive monopolies in all their various forms.

Having witnessed, with deep regret, the disastrous and ruined condition into which many of the States of this Union have fallen, both morally and physically, in all their financial matters, and knowing that the distressing calamities which have thus overtaken them, had their origin in the Banking and Internal Improvement systems of those states, together with the false and delusive credit with which those systems are inseparably connected, it will form one of the leading features of the Plain Dealer to warn the people of Illinois to be on their guard, and not suffer themselves to be a victim of the delusion.

The Plain Dealer will also contain in its columns the general news of the day.

A full and free examination of men and measures, and a fearless expression of our mind upon all matters of State or National policy.

Nothing of an immortal or licentious character shall find a place in the columns of the Plain Dealer.

Miscellaneous, Foreign, and Domestic Intelligence, Literary and Scientific notices, General, State, and National Politics, with Agricultural pursuits and improvements, will receive due attention.

TERMS.

THE PLAIN DEALER will be published weekly on a fine imperial sheet, good type, and every attention bestowed upon it to make it worthy of support, and will be mailed to subscribers at $2 00 per annum, payable in all cases in advance.

LONGSTAFF & WALKER.

Editors and Proprietors.

Macomb, March 8, 1842.

STRAY HORSE.

Strayed from the subscriber, living 12 miles North of Quincy, on the bottom road leading from Quincy to Warsaw, on the 1st day of April, a large grey or flea-bitten grey horse shod all round but the shoe on the left hind foot was somewhat loose and the hoof considerably cracked, and the hair was worn off the root of his tail in consequence of having the lampers last winter, said horse is about 12 years old and quite thin in flesh. Also—a yearling Colt, dark brown, with a white strip in the face and both hind feet white. Said horse and colt have ran together all winter and were last seen together
The horses main and tail are both white. Also a dark bay horse with a chain around his neck with a piece of wood attached to it. Letters of information may be addressed to the subscriber at Quincy.

A liberal reward will be paid for the delivery or for information where the subscriber may obtain said horse and colt.

G. G. GALLOWAY.

Quincy, April 9, 1842.

PROPOSALS

FOR

PUBLISHING

THE WASP.

The undersigned will publish a paper entitled
"The Wasp," in the City of Nauvoo, Hancock
county, Ill.
This Periodical will be devoted to miscellaneous subjects, and he trusts that the matter which will be found in its columns, will be subservient
to the cause of humanity, justice & truth. As this is an age of strange events, and of much enquiry, in both the religious and political world, the
ed. for has been influenced by the strong solicitations of many of his old and tried friends, to publish a periodical of this kind, and he hopes to have his path circumscribed with truth and not error, and thus be enabled to meet the expectation of the high minded patriot, the philosopher, the logician and man of reason. It is not the design of the editor to condescend to the low scurrility that so often characterize partisan editors: but will endeavor to draw around him, as much as possible, the spirit of those pure and sacred principles that give to all, of all sects, parties and denominations, whether religious or political, the right to think, believe, or two ship according to the dictates of their own conscience. He will contend for equal rights
and equal privileges, and also reserve to himself
the privilege of weighing in a balance the correctness and character of every principle that
may pass under his observation.

Jesus said, "doth our law judge any man before it hear him?" and again he said, "every tree is known by its fruits," and since good
and bad men are known by their fruit, and others have judged and spoken—so the editor will also judge and speak, and answer them that do
speak and have judged without knowledge, testimony, or law, according to their folly, least they should be "wise in their own conceit." He will endeavor to benefit his patrons and friends,
in general, by putting down every unlawful and persecuting spirit that may show itself in the midst of our free institutions, and he hopes that the citizen and true hearted republican will assist him in this laudable undertaking. He will leave no stone unturned, as far as his ability
will admit, to pursue and advocate unwavering-ly those holy and righteous principles of the Constitution, which "warned the hearts of the patriots of seventy-six, and for the perpetuity
of which, they cheerfully fell martyrs in the battle-field, and will, without respect to party,
award to every individual, of whom he may
have occasion to speak, the true reward of merit, without prejudice or restraint. He will, also, find place in his columns for scientific and literary subjects: he will notice the march of science here among us, the change of circumstances as well as the times and the seasons,
and contrast the former with our present situation, as a community of people.

In contemplating the many misfortunes and adverse winds through which this people have had to pass, and now beholding them in peace,
fast building up a noble city, and breathing once more a free air, it fills my bosom with no little degree of joy, and my heart with gratitude to my God, that we still are remembered as his covenant people. In witnessing the growth
and prosperity of the city for the three last years,
the editor looks forward with feelings of pride
emulating his bosom, and anticipates the day,
not far distant, when, in point of population and the grandeur of its edifices, she will be, by far, the rival city of the West, and attain to that high scale of exalted pre eminence
which renders distinguishable the most populous cities in the East.

Under these circumstances, and as the public
weal imperiously demands the establishment of a weekly periodical, devoted (as The Wasp will be) to the dissemination of useful knowledge, of every description—the Arts, Science, Literature, Agriculture, Manufacture, Trade, and Commerce, and the general news of the day, the editor cheerfully engages in the commendable
enterprise.

It will be the editor's studious care, at all times, to serve up a choice dish of poetry, for
the gratification and benefit of those who indulge in the inspiration of the muse.

With a firm reliance upon the good sense and
intelligence of the citizens of this and the adjoining counties, and friends abroad, to bear
him out in his undertaking, he has been induced to publish the above named paper: and, believing that it will meet with their cordial approbation and support, he hopes to render it an efficient auxiliary in promoting their best interest—the improvement of the mind of the youth
and the instruction of the aged.

The Wasp will be published weekly, upon a small sheet, at first, until success and prosperity will enable us to enlarge our borders. It will be printed at the office of the "Times and Seasons," in the city of Nauvoo.

TERMS.—$1.50, invariably in advance.
Advertisements conspicuously inserted on the
customary terms.

Any person procuring ten subscribers and forwarding fifteen dollars, current money, shall have one copy gratis.

All letters addressed to the editor must be post paid, or they will receive no attention.

WM. SMITH.

"Honest industry has bro't that man to the scaffold," said a wag as he observed a carpenter upon a staging. Speaking of wags—what is more wagish than a dog's tail when he is pleased?—N. Y. Atlas.

A LIST OF LETTERS

REMAINING in the Post Office, at Nauvoo,
April 1st 1842. If said letters are not called for, before the 1st of July next, they will be sent to the General Post Office as dead letters.
N. B. Persons calling for any of these letters,
will please say they have been advertised.

M. I. Angel	2 Samuel Kimball
Alben A. len	Archibald Kerr
Onel M. Allen	C. W. Lyon
Lewis Abbot	Lucretia Lindsay
H. M. Alexander	Jno Lindsay
J. A. W. Andrews	Samuel Lake
Jno. Alston	Mariah Lawrence
Jno. Anderson	James Lake
J. H. Aldridge	2 Jno Landers
David Able	Thomas Layton
Benj Brown	David Lewis
Josiah Butterfield	Jno G Luce
Charity Butler	Geo Miller
Thos. Beotman	Charles McGary
C. Baldwin	Edward Melling
Saml. C. Brown	Margaret McLaughlin
Cyrus Boyl	Amos McBride
Geo. Beauman	James McMind
N. B. Baldwin	Elizabeth Mangle
A. Bonney	L J Mu dock
Lewis Boney	Wm Maulhard
Rebu Brotherton	Ruben Middleton
Jno. M. Buck	James Moss
Beni. Bentley	David Monroe
M rgan Budlum	Olive Morton
Ch a. E. E. E. E.	Geo More
Jno. Bailey	Sam el Merri's
A. M. Bonney	Austin Merrills
Jno. Brown	2 Wm Marks
Levi Bracken	Syrena Merrels
Ethen Forrows	Win Millard
Saml. J. Black	Hu'ah Nickerson
Chas. Butler	Henry Nisewanger
A. Bradford	Almon Newel
Dani. Brewit	Jane Neyman
Enoch Burns	Samuel W A Oliver
Jos. Brown	P W C Osborn
Hezekiah Bradly	Isaac Phippin
Jno. Bevin	Jared Porter
Jno. Bezead	Deborah Potter
Nath. Core	Ornil Potter
L ann Corille	E J Pearsons
Jon Calt'on	Nathan W Parker
Father Conway	Charles Price
D Corter	Lydia Partridge
Harriet C. lton	Wm Pool
Jno. C. Comechal	Geo W Price
A Cutler	M A Price
Jos W Cummings	2 Jane Pany
Jos Connal	Chester Phillips
R. v T Conway	3 Henry Parker
L Clark	Jno Parker
I M Catridge	Jno M Pino
C. net b es of Nauvoo	Semer Page
Darwin Chase	Charles C Rich
Henry A Cleav'and	Jon W Roberts
Reynolds Calboon	Thomas Rauchliffe
James F. Crawford	Hugh Riging
Sarah Downing	Jeremiah Roley
Isaac Decker	Cath. a Rowley
Hiram Dayton	Cath. r. Kobison
Pat. ip Dennis	Josiah Richardson
Julias Dudley	2 Luana Rockwell
Joseph Dolson	2 Westley Rose
Hannah Dr. ilinger	David H Redfield
Asa Davis	Joseph Smith
J O Duke	Wm Smith
Wl iam Davis	Samuel H Smith
Chapman Duncan	Albert Smith
Peter Dustin	Josh Smith
Joe Drury	Hyum Smith
John Davis	John Stetout
Mrs R Derby	Edward Stevenson
George Evans	Jno Snider
Ozria Evans	Mable Sh-rp
S. vester Earl	Almon Sherman
Jacob H Enfield	Jno Shater
S Emmans	Ransom Shepperd
Edmund Fisher	Catharine Stout
Emily J Flack	Ellis Seo eld
Literature, Manufacture, Trade, Jno S Fulmer	Sylvester B Stodard
Commerce, and the general news of the day, the	Franklin Sawyer
editor cheerfully engages in the commendable	3 Wm String! am enterprise.	Harrison Severe
It will be the editor's studious care, at all	James Standing
times, to serve up a choice dish of poetry, for	Susanah Snivly
the gratification and benefit of those who in-	Catharine Sheridan
dulge in the inspiration of the muse.	2 Samuel Suffy Coal
With a firm reliance upon the good sense and	Wm W Spencer intelligence of the citizens of this and the ad-	Jul a Slaughter
joining counties, and friends abroad, to bear	Jno Taylor
him out in his undertaking, he has been induc-	Jhonathan Taylor
ed to publish the above named paper: and, be-	Burr Tomlinson
lieving that it will meet with their cordial ap-	Abigail Tippets
probation and support, he hopes to render it an	Nelson Turner efficient auxiliary in promoting their best inter-	Wm Th mp on est—the improvement of the mind of the youth	Theopulos Tailor and the instruction of the aged.	Alanson Van'cet
The Wasp will be published weekly, upon a	Daniel H Wells
small sheet, at first, until success and prosperi-	N K Whitney
ty will enable us to enlarge our borders. It will	Wm White ides be printed at the office of the "Times and Sea-	31 yman Wright
sons," in the city of Nauvoo.	Benj Worthington
TERMS.—$1.50, invariably in advance.	Benj S Wilber
Advertisements conspicuously inserted on the	James Worthigton
customary terms.	Edwin Webb
Any person procuring ten subscribers and for-	Eh We'd warding fifteen dollars, current money, shall	Jno Winn
have one copy gratis.	Phoebe M Whe'er
All letters addressed to the editor must be	Solomon Wixom
post paid, or they will receive no attention.	Lucian Woodworth
WM. SMITH.	Charles Warner
"Honest industry has bro't that man to the	Samuel Waterman
scaffold," said a wag as he observed a carpenter	Phares Wells upon a staging. Speaking of wags—what is	2 Jane Whenton more wagish than a dog's tail when he is plea-	Brighan Young
sed?—N. Y. Atlas.	Joseph Young
	Jno Zundel
	Samuel Zomer

SIDNEY RIGDON, P. M.

THE WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. IV.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, May 7, 1842.

Whole Number IV.

THE WASP.

IS EDITED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY
WM. SMITH.
At the corner of Water and Main Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.
TERMS.—$1.50 invariably in advance.

From the Ladies' Companion. THE ONLY DAUGHTER.

BY MRS. EMMA C. EMBURY.

"The thorns which I have reaped, are of the Tree I planted; they have torn me, and I bleed."
BYRON.

(CONCLUDED.)

Albert Wharnccliffe was one of those good tempered, thoughtless beings who are known in society as 'good hearted fellows,' and who are invariably attended by ill success in life. Without high mental gifts or strong moral principles, without prudence and sometimes without integrity, without disinterestedness and real generosity, the 'good-hearted man' is usually a reckless prodigal whose plentiful flow of animal spirits is mistaken for genuine good temper, whose kindness to others is usually the result of an acute and morbid sensitiveness to his own comfort. Such are the men on whom society bestows the unmeaning epithets;—such are the men on whom misfortunes pursue like a shadow—and such an one was Albert Wharnccliffe. His fine person and agreeable address made him a general favorite and he had that kind of good taste in small matters which passed current for talent with some people. He sketched caricatures with great drollery, played gracefully if not scientifically on the flute, was extremely skillful in manufacturing charades, quoted Romeo and Juliet to the extreme delight of young ladies, and recited love verses with marked emphasis if not discretion. He had the art (and it is no despicable one, gentle reader) of displaying all his knowledge in the best possible light, and he was thus enabled to throw into the shade many a wiser and better man. As a skillful disposition of goods in a shop window will tempt many an unwary customer to the purchase of inferior articles of merchandise, so the judicious arrangement of his small ware enabled him to retail them at about double their value.

Marian Dale met him when he first emerged from the seclusion in which she had passed her early years. He was the charm of the somewhat limited circle of society to which she was confined at Dalesford, and it is not surprising to the young and unexperienced girl, he should have seemed the noblest of men. This favorable impression was increased by the suavity of his manners and his devotion to herself; and when this prepossession had grown into a passion, her father's determined rejection of his suit, had awakened all the latent wilfulness of her nature. Probably had she continued to meet him in society, her mature mind would have judged more accurately of his merits, and this early folly might soon have faded like the rainbow tinted dreams which charm the fancy of every romantic girl in early life. But her father's prohibition of his presence, and the restraint in which she was kept during the period of Wharnccliffe's sojourn in the neighborhood, aroused that kind of martyr like pride which we all feel when the shadow of persecution falls upon our path. Marian loved her husband with all the fervor of her ardent nature, but she could not be blind to his errors. The familiar intercourse of wedded life is but little favorable to the delusions of fancy. The really noble qualities of character seem developed in greater perfection when viewed by the light which glows on the domestic hearth, but the minute defects also are apt to stand out in bold relief unless thrown into the shade by virtues veiled by the hand of Love. The vacillating temper and fickleness of purpose which were Wharnccliffe's most serious faults could not escape the penetration of his wife. She saw him wasting day after day in idle projects, consuming their very limited means in luxurious living, and deferring from week to week the search after some regular employment which alone could ensure them future comforts. His sanguine temper had led him to believe that his superior knowledge of business would readily ensure him employment in the mercantile community. But to his great surprise he found that even the head of the bankrupt firm of Wharnccliffe, Higg and Co. was not likely to obtain employment by means of his own braggart recommendations only. Winter came on and he was still unemployed while other means were rapidly diminishing. It became necessary to reduce their expenses. Their costly lodgings at the city hotel were changed for private apartments in a boarding-house, and, when, after the birth of Mrs. Wharnccliffe's eldest child, they ventured to look into their little fund, they found it expedient to remove to still humbler lodgings in a cheaper part of the city.

Mr. Wharnccliffe became moody and discontented and Marian saw with alarm that he resorted to the wine-cup as a stimulus to his sinking spirits. The pride of her nature was subdued by present suffering and painful anticipations. The newly awakened feelings of maternal affection too had softened her whole character, and she resolved again to address her father. But month after month passed away and no answer arrived to cheer the heart of the penitent daughter. At last as a resource from the horrors of actual want, she determined to turn to account the talents which had once been only the adornment of her affluence and station. She sought employment as daily governess, and some kindly disposed persons, who had noticed her regular attendance at church, her lady like manners, and her delicate beauty, readily came forward to favor her views. She obtained engagements with several families, and by exact appropriation of her time was enabled to devote her whole day to her pupils.

What a contrast was this to her former life! How often as she toiled through the wet and dirty streets at early morning, or sat with heated brow and flushed cheek patiently instilling the rudiments of knowledge into the mind of some dull little student, or dragged her weary limbs and still more wearied brain to her humble home at twilight, how often did the old mansion of Dalesford rise before her troubled fancy! She saw the cheerful sitting room, with the bright fire glaring on the rich pictures which graced the walls; she beheld once more the massive old chair in which reclined her grey-haired father; the cumbrous table on which lay the newspapers it had been her evening task to read to him,—her own low seat at the old man's knee,—every thing which had been so familiar, so almost unregarded when she was at home, but which were so dear to her now, seemed to come vividly before her. Yet Marian murmured not at her condition. She loved her husband too well to embitter her life with repinings, and though she felt that an effort of resolution on his part might save her from hardship and privation, she uttered no complaint. At length the sympathy which was awakened in the minds of those who had employed the wife led to some interest in the fate of the husband, and a clerkship, with a very moderate salary was offered to Mr. Wharnccliffe. But the emoluments of this office were not sufficient to support the family without the aid of Mrs. Wharnccliffe's talents and she therefore continued her laborious avocation as daily governess.

Thus passed five years, during which two other children were born to share their parent's poverty. Never until she looked upon her own children had Mrs. Wharnccliffe realized the full extent of her guilt towards her father. However difficult we may be in our childhood, and in later life, to those who give us birth, yet never do we fully understand how much we owe them—never do we feel the full weight of the obligation to honor our parents, until we clasp to our hearts the child of our own bosom, the little being who in awaking maternal affection has redoubled filial love. Again and again did Mrs. Wharnccliffe appeal to her offended father, but her letters were returned unopened and the remorse which was eating into her very heart became more keen with every new impulse which her penitence received. She was destined however to drink still more deeply of the cup of bitterness. Her daily duties towards her young pupils compelled her to entrust the care of her little ones to a domestic, who proved totally unworthy of the charge. The infant received a serious injury from her carelessness, a painful disease of the spine was the result, and for six months Mrs. Wharnccliffe was compelled to witness the sufferings of her cherished babe. The trial was rendered more severe by the necessity which still existed for daily exertion on her part in order to secure the mere comforts of life to her little family. She could sit hour after hour beside her dying child, listening to his faintest cry, watching his every look, smoothing with gentle hand his uneasy pillow, and ministering the thousand offices of affection which afforded so much solace in memory. Her monotonous and weary tasks were still to be performed, her pupils were still to be visited, and with a heart almost bursting she turned from the pale face of her little sufferer, often doubting whether he would still be living to greet her return at evening. At length the child died, and as she bent to impress a last kiss upon his brow ere the little shrunken form was hidden forever beneath the coffin lid, she murmured in the words of the devoted missionary mother on a similar occasion: 'God grant the sacrifice may not be made in vain!' She felt that the child had gone to bear her offering of penitence to her offended Maker whose commandments she had broken when she turned from her father's heart and home.

From that time Mrs. Wharnccliffe altered rapidly. After the lapse of a few days spent in mournful seclusion, she resumed her duties, but her pupils who had learned to love her tenderly, saw with pain the pallid cheek and sunken eye of their young protector. A short cough often interrupted her reading, and she was soon obliged to relinquish the attempt to continue her lessons in vocal music. 'It was only a slight cold,' she said when she was advised to practice the prudence so necessary to our changeful climate and she still persevered through all seasons and even in the most inclement weather to fulfil her daily engagements. But the short dry cough became still more distressing, her breathing was painful and labored, and she was obliged to limit her walks to short distances. By degrees her strength failed; one after another of her pupils were given up and at length the pale face and fragile form of the daily governess was no longer seen in her daily walks. Confinement to the house was speedily followed by a total prostration of strength, which stretched her upon the couch of sickness from whence she was never again to rise. Consumption had long been making its insidious ravages upon her frame and little now was left for the destroyer to accomplish.

Mr. Wharnccliffe had been strangely blind to the gradual change of his wife's health. His patient endurance had rendered him unsuspecting of the extent of her sufferings, and it was not until the fiat had gone forth and the voice of medical science had interpreted the decree, that he was awakened to a sense of the trial which awaited him. Wharnccliffe was fickle and thoughtless, and selfish but he was not hard hearted. He wept like an infant as he watched beside his dying wife and thought of the ruin which his hand had wrought. His heart now told him that the indulgence of his wayward passions had been productive of little happiness to him and certainly of great misery to others. His conscience reproached him with many an act of thoughtless unkindness, many a cold and careless word; and the remembrance of her uncomplaining patience and devoted tenderness was now as a dagger to his bosom. But repentance came too late and the love which might have saved, was now destined to look with 'late remorse' upon his victim!

Death hovered long beside the pillow of the gentle sufferer, ere his dart sped on its final errand. There was little pain in her disease towards the last of her life; excessive weakness and lassitude were its principal symptoms and she lay hour after hour with closed eyes and quiet smile, as if asleep. But at such times her mind was wandering to the scenes of her childhood. The beauties of the natural scenery at Dalesford, the images which were connected with her infancy, the old familiar faces of her father's household were pictured in vivid colors before her failing sight. She would murmur of the rill and the greenwood, of the summer flowers and the joyous birds; then she would fancy herself sitting at her father's knee while his hand smoothed her flowing tresses; sometimes she would seem to be uttering some merry jest with her old nurse or bantering the formal old steward who had loved her so well in her childhood; again melancholy fancies would mingle with her dreams, the remembrance of her dying mother and the mournful array of the stately burial would seem to be blended with more recent recollections, of her lost infant—then she would weep piteously beg the funeral train to wait a little while, only a little while, and bear her with them to a place of rest. There were other periods however; when her intellect was as clear and unclouded as if disease had never touched her frame, and it was then that her wishes were conveyed to her sorrowing husband, and her latest appeal was made to her obdurate father, ere the long suspended stroke at length fell and the purified spirit of her who had been sacrificed by sorrow was released from its earthly tabernacle.

One evening, about six months after the event just recorded, Mr. Dale was seated, absorbed in thought, in the cheerful apartment which we have already described. The light of a blazing fire fell upon the rich carpet, the velvet cushioned chairs and the luxurious decorations of the abode of wealth, while a decanter of fine old port and a half filled glass which stood upon the table sparkled in the cheerful flame like melted rubies. Every thing spoke of affluence and comfort, but the countenance of him who seemed left to the lonely enjoyment of these appliances was moody and melancholy. His locks were thinner and of a more snowy whiteness, his brow was ploughed with deepened furrows, and the lines of his handsome mouth were marked with a firmer and more determined expression, yet there was a degree of sadness in his eye which seemed scarcely in keeping with the stern cold fixedness of his fine features. The old man was evidently the prey to some hidden sorrow, and the frequent sigh which alone broke the stillness of the apartment told a tale of long suppressed regret. It was at this time that a letter was put into his hands. He hesitated a moment—it was unscaled and the direction was in a strange handwriting. A presentiment of coming ill sent a shudder through his frame as he unclosed the paper and read as follows:

"My Father, my dear father!—the voice which now utters that sacred name will be hushed for ever ere your eye rests upon this sacred word; the heart that now pours forth its gushing tenderness will have ceased to beat with life and love ere you can receive this latest record of my oft rejected penitence. Father, I have sinned against heaven and in thy sight,—I have broken the command of promise—I have not honored my father—therefore my days are not long in the land—therefore in my youth am I cut down as a cumber of the ground.—You will forgive me now, dear father, the blessed sounds of pardon cannot pierce the sod which will lie more lightly upon my breast than your curse has done upon my heart—yet you will forgive me. I have repented in bitterness of spirit and now I go down to my early grave mourning over my offence and with none to comfort me. Yet I have one treasure to bequeath—a treasure which poverty and want have made more precious to me: my children!—will you not be a father to them? I ask not your wealth for the heirs of my sorrow, but by the love you bore to the mother who now awaits you in Heaven, I pray you to protect my little ones. Preserve them, my Father from the snares of the world, from the temptations which await the poor and unfriended. I have known hardship and privation—I have shrunk from the winter's cold, and panted beneath the summer's heat for my children's sake, and I have learned how terrible are the dangers which beset the child of poverty and pride. For my husband I ask your forgiveness and forbearance; he will bring you his children to atone for his early error—let them be to you even as I was in the days of my childhood, and if the wilfulness of their mother's nature ever springs up within their innocent bosoms, tell them of their mother's sin, and of her punishment. God bless you my father! it is the last prayer, save one, of your dying MARIAN."

The heart that had refused to melt at the voice of a penitent child, was touched at last. The agony of a contrite spirit was too terrible for human eye to witness, and Mr. Dale lay for hours, like a crushed worm, upon the earth, ere he was sufficiently calm to meet his innocent grandchildren. A vain hope of silencing the voice of conscience, led him to lavish kindness on all whom Marian had loved. Her husband returned to America, where a liberal annuity from Mr. Dale, enabled him to live in his own way, while a few unpleasant reminiscences of former sorrow were allowed to sadden the countenance, or depress the spirits of the thoughtless good-hearted man. A second marriage soon severed the slender ties which bound his heart to the object of his youthful passion, and to the mind of him for whom Marian had sacrificed the happiness of a father, and to whom she had devoted her brief existence. Her memory soon became but as the self traced image of a painful dream. Mr. Dale still lives, to find in the budding virtues of his two grandchildren, some alleviation of his sorrow; but in the little churchyard of Dalesford, arises a slender marble shaft, on which is inscribed the single word 'Marian,' and when the eye turns to that vain memorial of one whose ashes sleep, beyond the Atlantic wave, the remembrance of the obduracy which doomed her to an early tomb, pierces like an arrow to the heart which still bewails an only daughter, while to the gentle children of an erring mother, that monument seems to say that the only commandment which bears with it a promise is one which even in this world is never violated with impunity.

Brooklyn, L. I.

THE WASP.

SATURDAY, MAY 7, 1842.

APOLOGY.

We promised an apology to our readers for having condescended to notice, in our columns, so unprincipled a man as Tom Sharp, the editor of the Warsaw Signal. It is a wonder in the minds of some why we have thus descended upon the matter, and fully understand the relation in which the editor stands toward this community, we deem it necessary to make a few remarks upon the subject. It is well known that there is arrayed against us, in this county, a party styling themselves 'Anti-Mormons,' who are opposed to our dearest and best interests; and it is equally as well known that the Signal is the main vehicle through which they convey all their concocted falsehoods and base vituperations to the world. The editor has become the pliant tool and cat-paw of that faction, and when their ingenuity fails to propagate a superabundant stock of calumny, he engages all his very productive faculties to fill up the vacuum of their defect, and lends all his puny and insignificant efforts at slander and detraction.

Then, when we allude to Sharp, we consider that we are replying to the whole Anti-Mormon rabble—he being no more nor less than the mouth-piece made choice of to speak their sentiments. This, in short, is the station he occupies and the affinity he holds with the Anti-Mormon party. Anti-Mormon indeed! what cause have we ever given the citizens of Hancock, or any portion of them, to array themselves under a banner like this? We have given none, and their hostility to us must have resulted from their repugnance to the principles of religion, or from the very patriotic sentiment they entertain when wishing to wrest from our political franchise. We have never attempted to deprive the citizens of this or any other county from exercising any right belonging to them as Americans, whether that right be political or religious. We have merely acted as freemen of this Republic have the undeniable right to act—have always voted for the candidate of our choice, as we ever will do, while our names are enrolled upon the records of the living. We have not even claimed our rightful proportion of public office; we seek not a place in the political world—we care nothing for these matters, further than our desire to see men at the head of affairs who will be impartial in the administration of justice. Whether an officer be a Latter-Day Saint, Methodist, Baptist, or a member of any other sect or denomination, it matters not to us, so that he is an honest and capable man. We are all members of one common confederacy, pupils of the great political school of the Union, and equally interested in the prosperity of the whole. It is not a principle with us, as a community, to let our religion govern us in matters of politics; but when we are forced into measures, when a party or faction sees fit to oppose us, politically, upon the broad ground of our religious faith, we are not so cowardly as to shrink from the contest. We have never urged upon the people of Hancock the election of candidates merely because they were of our religion—if ever we have nominated or put candidates into the field, or if we shall hereafter do so, it will be from the strong and honest conviction that they will be the choice of the citizens and the best qualified to discharge the duties of office. We claim no further privileges than what the laws and the Constitution of our country grant us; we merely wish to be placed upon a level with other citizens, to enjoy the same privileges and abide the same laws; but these privileges fair would be denied us by some. The very instant that a Latter-Day Saint is heard to express his views upon political matters and manifest a preference for men and measures, the whole motley crew of the Anti-Mormon dynasty, both are thrown into a wonderful fermentation; their very liberal and patriotic minds become singularly panic struck, and the cry of 'Mormon dictation' and 'prophetic proscription,' is heard to reverberate from hill to hill, and from valley to valley, until the whole universe resounds with its monotonous and protracted echo. Their 'mouth-piece' begins to heap his vile calumnies and ungrounded epithets upon us, and every indignity and abuse which his debased and malicious intellect is found competent to originate, is heralded forth to the public, for the purpose of sowing their minds and turning the tide of public sentiment against us. This is, in short, the course that has been pursued, and these the circumstances that have elicited the remarks that we have previously made relative to the editor of the Signal. We hope the editor will be satisfied without any further apology!

Black spirits and white,

Blue spirits and gray,

SECOND PART IN ANSWER TO THE CRY OF THE POLECAT FROM WARSAW.

Ha, Ha, Tomy; you did really come out on us; well that's what we expected. The coat fitted rather close—pinched you a little—now didn't it Tomy? Come tell the truth once and shame the devil: you see the wasp stung the ass and the ass kicked up like thunder; but, as it happened, you see he did not hurt any body but himself; he then felt still worse and began to belch forth his aspersions like a whirlwind and expose his ignorance like a hurricane, & finally the whole scene ended in a general explosion—in a flash of lightning—and the last sound that was heard to reverberate was the braying of the dying ass in Warsaw. Now Tomy we will be plain with you on this important subject and we do not wish you to have any hard feelings towards us in telling you the truth, and if you should not know how you will help yourself, without you call on us again—say next fourth of July—and get some more good fat roasted turkey, and if that does not heal the breach, why, call a convention of your Anti-Mormon friends, and perhaps your feelings, by the aid of good council, might be "done up with a rag." But, however, be this as it may, we must not prolong our story; we only wish to stir up your pure mind by way of remembrance, and administer to you the oil of consolation; and now, let us tell you what your productions remind us of, and the very excellent opinion we have formed of yourself. Certainly, nothing could be more appropriate, in this case, than the fable of the fox and the bell. A fox, who, for a long time, had visited a neighbouring farm and lived upon the choice chickens of the roost, had aroused the indignation of the farmer, who, at length, fixed upon a plan to drive or frighten him away. So he hung a bell in the hen-roost; on the fox's coming again he found that something strange had happened, and thus began to examine and by taking a closer observation he found that it neither bit, moved, or hurt him, consequently he pronounced upon it this doleful sentence: "Fly said the fox, it is a great hollow-headed nothing!" That's it exactly Tomy. Now "don't you thank us for this suggestion!"

Now, we have nothing further to say upon this subject only that we hear the Signal is on its dying bed, badly diseased.

and with the Bank fever, and that the old grannies of the Anti-Mormon fraternity are making their best jumps to deliver and to save the illegitimate brat from an untimely grave. Dear reader, how the thing will terminate we are not prepared to say; the case must be a desperate one, as the editor himself says that nothing short of 2,000 can save his sinking cause. Much depends upon the treatment of this case in its first stages, and the old grannies, that have the case in charge, should assemble a council as soon as possible to adopt measures and prescribe medicines before it is too late; and we greatly fear, although we have all confidence in the attendants physicians that the case will prove an abortion, or like the travel of the mountain, produce nothing but a mouse or a "pole cat." The latter, we presume, will be the result, according to Hunks. Every animal produces its kind unless it should be on the transmigration order. In that case we are surely correct—say from Tom-ass to Polecat, or from Polecat to Tom-ass, as laid down by the notorious Mathias. When the result of all these painful necessities, trials, travels, groanings, and brayings from the low quagmire of iniquity, ceases to send forth their vile vituperated cry, and the sting of the Wasp can no more effectually be felt by a dead Polecat, we will give due notice accordingly, that the Anti-Mormon dynasty may put on the badge of mourning and in dust and ashes lament the loss of their long nosed Jack—Tom-ass C. Sharp!

Again a press of matter forbids the insertion of the 2nd sermon from the prairie preacher; it will not appear until circumstances will admit.

From the Times and Seasons. THE MORMONS—A LEAF FROM JOE SMITH.

We give in this day's paper, a very curious chapter from the "Book of Abraham," which we find published in the last number of a weekly journal, called the "Times and Seasons," conducted by Joseph Smith the great Mormon Prophet, in the city of Nauvoo, Hancock county, Illinois.

The prophet says that it was found in the catacombs of Egypt, but he is mistaken in this idea. The article was discovered, we presume by Joseph Smith, the grandfather, near one of the propylons of Medinet Abu, in the "City of the Sun," in upper Egypt—the same city which Homer says had one hundred gates. Champollion, Young, Rosellini, and various other antiquarians give notices of the magnificent ruins, in red granite, that are strewn over the banks of the Nile. Be all this as it may, the Prophet of Nauvoo has given the chapter, and it is set down as a revelation among the Mormons.

This Joe Smith is undoubtedly one of the greatest characters of the age. He indicates as much talent, originality, and moral courage as Mahomet, Odin, or any of the great spirits that have hitherto produced the revolutions of past ages. In the present infidel, irreligious, ideal, geological, animal-magnetic age of the world, some such singular prophet as Joe Smith is required to preserve the principle of faith, and to plant some new germs of civilization that may come to maturity in a thousand years. While modern philosophy, which believes in nothing but what you can touch, is overspreading the Atlantic States, Joe Smith is creating a spiritual system, combined also with morals and industry, that may change the destiny of the race. Joe believes himself divinely inspired and worker of miracles. He cures the sick of diseases—so it is said—and although Joe is not aware of the fact, we have been informed by a medical man that his influence over nervous disorders, arises from a powerful magnetic influence—that Joe is a magnet in a large way, which he calls a power or spirit from heaven. In other respects Joe is a mighty man of God—possessing large stores of human nature—great shrewdness, and as he has taken the management of the Mormon newspaper organ, the "Times and Seasons" into his hand, we look for many revelations, and some curious ones too, pretty soon.

We certainly want some such prophet to start up, take a big hold of the public mind—and stop the torrent of materialism that is hurrying the world into infidelity, immorality, licentiousness, and crime.—Professor Lyel, Richard Adams Locke, Dr. Brisbane, Master Emmerson, Prophet Brownson, Horace Greeley, and all the materialists of the age, ought to take a leaf of common sense out of Joe's book.

MORE PROPHECY.—Joe Smith, in his last "Times and Seasons," gives us another slice of the "Book of Abraham," embracing a synopsis of his geology and astronomy, illustrated with a curious map of the Mormon Solar System. Joe also gives his readers a bit of his autobiography—quite rich it is, too.

THE MORMON MOVEMENT.—Nearly two hundred more Mormons, very respectable looking saints, arrived at New Orleans recently, on their way to Nauvoo, the headquarters of Joe Smith and the Mormons. The prophet is adding to his religious empire every day—and who can set bounds to it? He is president, priest, and prophet, and whenever he is in a difficulty, he says that he has a direct revelation from heaven, that settles the point at once.—[N. Y. Weekly Herald.]

Mr. JAMES G. BENNETT, is a little too fast about the finding of the records; it will be seen by the following that "Joe Smith," knew what he was doing.

EGYPTIAN ANTIQUITIES.

These Mummies, with seven others, were taken from the Catacombs of Egypt, near where the ancient, and we may say, almost unparalleled city of Thebes once stood, by the celebrated French traveller Antonio Lebolo; at a great expense, under the protection of the French Consul, by consent of Mehemet Ali, the Viceroy of Egypt. It is to be noticed that several hundred Mummies, differently embalmed, were found in the same catacomb, but only the eleven in a state to be removed. The seven have been sold to gentlemen for private museums, and in consequence are kept from the eye of the public.—They have been exhibited in Philadelphia and Baltimore, to crowded audiences; in the latter place, although only engaged for two weeks, the exhibition was prolonged to five weeks, with attraction. Of all the relics of the ancient world that time has left, the Mummy is the most interesting. It is a well known fact, recorded in both sacred and profane history that men were embalmed, which science has attracted the learned for ages. All other antiquities are but the work of man but Mummies present us with the men themselves—they are the personages preserved in human form, for the gaze and attraction of people who are occupying down the stream of time centuries from those—they have certainly been conspicuous actors in those mighty scenes of which the history of Egypt is full. An hundred generations have passed away, and new empires have begun since this flesh was animated—since these eyes were bright, and this tongue was eloquent, and the heart beat within this breast. These strangers illustrious from their antiquity, may have lived in the days of Jacob, Moses, or David, and of course some thousand years have elapsed, since these bodies were animated with the breath of life! History records the fact, that the higher class concealed their knowledge from the lower, in figures and hieroglyphic characters.—A few of those, upon papyrus, used by the Egyptians for writing, will be exhibited with the Mummies.

Having examined with considerable attention and deep interest, a number of Mummies from the catacombs, near Thebes, in Egypt, and now exhibited in the Arcade, we beg leave to recommend them to the observation of the curious inquirer on subjects of a period so long elapsed; probably not less than three thousand year ago. The features of some of these Mummies are in perfect expression.—The papyrus, covered with black or red ink, or paint, in excellent preservation, are very interesting. The undersigned, unsolicited by any person connected by interest with this exhibition, have voluntarily set their names hereunto, for the simple purpose of calling the attention of the public to an interesting collection, not sufficiently known in this city.

JOHN REDMAN COXE, M. D.
RICHARD BARLAN, M. D.
J. PANCOAST, M. D.
WILLIAM P. C. BARTON, M. D.
E. F. RIVINUS, M. D.
SAMUEL G. MORGAN, M. D.

I concur in the above sentiments, concerning the collection of Mummies in the Philadelphia Arcade, and consider them highly deserving the attention of the curious. W. E. HORNER, M. D.

We have in our possession the four mummies referred to. They together with the records, were purchased of a Mr. Chandler who exhibited them in different parts of the Union, and sold them to us in Kirtland Ohio. The above is a copy of the original placards published by Mr. Chandler, whilst they were yet in his possession.

We believe that Mr Bennett is neither a prophet, nor the son of a prophet, or he would have known that wherever, or whenever God had a prophet, and he spoke the word of the Lord, or "got a revelation that has ended the matter"—we perceive that he has a notion of feeling a little funny at our expense, but notwithstanding those peculiar freaks and little witticisms of Mr Bennett, we must say that he acts with more candor and honesty, and is more of a gentleman and philanthropist than most of the editors of the present day; he publishes our own statements to the world in their native simplicity, unguarished, without misrepresentation, coloring or fiction, and leaves it as all honest men will do, for a discerning public to judge of the correctness, or incorrectness of the principles thus laid before them. The very pious and holy editors of the "Baptist Advocate,"—The "New York Evangelist," and the "Christian Advocate and Journal," and many other of the holy order that we might mention, would do well to pattern after the moral honesty and righteousness of Mr Bennett. We say this because we have generally found that those gentlemen of the black cloth are more ready to listen to reports, misrepresentation and falsehood than to matters of fact, and that if they are not at all times the authors of the foul columnies that so frequently disgrace their pages; yet their columns are always open for slander, and falsehood, whenever it suits their purpose.

The would be great Mr. O. Bachelor of New York or elsewhere, has lately published a long tirade about Mormonism in the "Baptist Adocate" without saying a single word about the Mummies. We would merely state, that he would have done well to have published at the same time in account of his ungentlemanly proceeding in a discussion with Elder P. P. Pratt; when one of his brother infidels who was chairman told him that he would not acknowledge so dishonorable a man as one of their fraternity—of a subsequent defeat by Elder Adams of New York, (soon after he had joined the church) and of his late discomfiture by a boy in New Jersey. Surely so mighty a champion as Mr Bachelor, aided with such powerful truths (alias falsehoods,) as those published in the Baptist Advocate, ought to have been able to have vanquished those puerile defendants of Mormonism, and swept so awful a delusion into everlasting oblivion: or is it the case that he is more powerful in writing than oratory? or has the pious editor of the "Baptist Advocate" assisted him to compile his foul slander?—E. TIMES AND SEASONS.

District Court of the United States, } within and for the District of Illinois. }
In the matter of the Petition of Elias Higbee, of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Elias Higbee, of Hancock county, has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April, A. D. 1842.
J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.
Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States, } within and for the District of Illinois. }
In the matter of the petition of Arthur Morrison, of Hancock co., to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Arthur Morrison, of Hancock co., has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April, A. D. 1842.
J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.
Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States, } within and for the District of Illinois. }
In the matter of the Petition of George Morey of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that George Morey of Hancock county, has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.
J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.
Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States, } within and for the District of Illinois. }
In the matter of the Petition of John P. Green of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that John P. Green of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April, A. D. 1842.
J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for the Petitioner.
Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States, } within and for the District of Illinois. }
In the matter of the petition of Joseph Smith, of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Joseph Smith, of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.
J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.
Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States, } within and for the District of Illinois. }
In the matter of the Petition of Sidney Rigdon of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Sidney Rigdon of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.
J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.
Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States, } within and for the District of Illinois. }
In the matter of the Petition of Samuel H. Smith, of Hancock County, to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Samuel H. Smith of Hancock County has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.
J. F. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for the Petitioner.
Attest: James H. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States, } within and for the District of Illinois. }
In the matter of the Petition of Hyrum Smith, of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Hyrum Smith of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April, A. D. 1842.
J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.
Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States, } within and for the District of Illinois. }
In the matter of the Petition of Jared Carter, of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Jared Carter, of Hancock county has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.
J. R. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.
Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States, } within and for the District of Illinois. }
In the matter of the Petition of Henry G. Sherwood of Hancock County to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Henry G. Sherwood of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this district, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.
J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.
Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States, } within and for the District of Illinois. }
In the matter of the Petition of Reynolds Cahoon of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Reynolds Cahoon of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.
J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.
Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States, } within and for the District of Illinois. }
In the matter of the Petition of Vinson Knight, of Hancock county, to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Vinson Knight of Hancock county has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.
J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.
Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

POETRY.

SEVENTY-SIX.

BY WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT.

What heroes from the woodland sprung
When through the fresh-awakened land,
The thrilling cry of freedom rung,
And to the work of warfare strung,
The yeoman's iron hand!

Hills flung the cry to hills around,
And ocean mart replied to mart,
And streams whose springs were yet unfound,
Peal'd far away the startling sound
In the deep forest's heart.

Then marched the brave from rocky steep,
From mountain river swift and cold,
The borders of the stormy deep,
The valves where gathered waters sleep,
Sent up the strong and bold.

As if the very earth again
Grew quick with God's creating breath,
And, from the sods of grove and glen,
Rose ranks of lion-hearted men
To battle and to death.

The wife, whose babe first smiled that day,
The fair fond bride of yester-even,
And aged sire and matron gray,
Saw the loved warriors haste away,
And deepened it sin to grieve.

Already had the strife begun,
Already blood on Concord's plain
Along the springing grass had run,
And blood had flowed at Lexington,
Like brooks of April rain.

The death stain of the verbal sword
Hallowed to freedom all the shore;
In fragments fell the yoke abhorred—
The footsteps of a foreign lord
Profaned the soil no more.

From the Boston Olive Branch.

THE GHOST—A True Story.

There lived some sixty or seventy years ago, in one of the inland towns in Ireland, a gentleman by the name of Hopkins, who was the proprietor of the land on which the town was built; and, as the place was favorably located for business, it increased rapidly in population and wealth. Deriving a revenue from the land commensurate with the prosperity and increase of the inhabitants, the proprietor indulged in all that display of wealth and grandeur, for which the aristocracy of the British Isles have long been remarkable. It is saying but little to say that he kept his carriage and horses, his hunters and his hounds, his livery servants and attendants, his plate in profusion, and every thing else that could contribute to engender pride or gratify his senses. His style of living was equal to his income—he was clothed in fine cloth, and fine linen, and fared sumptuously every day; but like another, whose history is given in Scripture, in a few words—he died. Nor would all his

—prolong his fleeting breath
Nor rescue from the jaws of death
Their supercilious Lord.

Scarcely was the breath out of the body, when his greedy and expectant heirs began to make preparations for his burial. Nor was it necessary to dig a grave, for already was there a vault in the main aisle of the Church prepared to their hands, in which the earthly remains of his progenitors were, from time to time deposited. As soon, therefore, as a coffin could be procured, he was placed in it; nor did they take time to remove the rings from his fingers with which they were decorated, and which, in his life-time, he had so pompously and proudly displayed. Whether it was owing to the circumstance of hurry, the difficulty of removing them after he was dead, or to a desire that some mark of his distinction and wealth should accompany him into the other world, as the American Indian directs that he may be buried with his bow and arrow by his side, I will not undertake to decide. But so it was, he was buried with all the rings on his fingers which he had worn when he was alive.

The Church of which I speak, and in which he was buried, was an old Gothic building, standing at the termination of a short street or alley, say two or three hundred yards in length, which branched off from the main street on which the town was principally built. It was surrounded by a brick wall some six or seven feet high, and was shaded by trees of a great age, and an enormous size. The entrance into the yard was guarded by a huge iron gate, which played upon hinges supported by brick pillars corresponding with the height and weight of the gate. Nor was there from the main street to the Church, a single house in the alley, save the one which was occupied by the parson, who was at this time a cripple, and had been one for years. The entrance into the vault was covered by a flag stone, in which were inserted two iron rings, for the purpose of removing it when ever it became necessary. In this vault were the remains of Mr. Hopkins decently and formally deposited, to await, as the survivors thought, the resurrection of the dead.

It was soon noised abroad that old Hopkins was buried with all his rings on his fingers; and this report coming to the ears of two young men in the town, who were not overbarren with honesty, and who, at this time, were "out of funds," they talked the matter over between themselves, and concluded that they might as well ship Hopkins of his rings, as let them remain on a dead man's finger. Besides, it was holiday-eve, and they had no money wherewith to buy themselves some apples and nuts, and a little drop of whiskey. Now the reader must know, that holiday-eve is a season of great mirth and merriment with the Irish peasantry, and a time too, when according to their legends, ghost and fairies are most apt to be roving this earth abroad. These two young men, whom we shall call Peter and John, having made all necessary preparations, and having furnished themselves with suitable instruments and a lantern, went to the Church, entered the building, removed the flag stone, descended into the vault, and uncovered the coffin, and here, before their greedy eyes, was the treasure they sought. They found it, never, upon examination, that they would be obliged to saw off the fingers, and this being a work that one could do as well as two, it was mutually agreed that Peter should remain and saw off the fingers, while John should go to a neighboring pasture and steal a sheep.

It was Saturday night, and the parson thought it was high time for him to begin to make some preparations for the coming Sabbath; he accordingly called his servant man, whose name was John, and told him to go down to the Church and bring him up the big Bible. John stood mute and motionless for a few moments, thunderstruck as it were, at the orders of his master. But at last, plucking up courage enough to do so, he told his master he could not go; he was afraid.

"Afraid of what?" said the parson.

"Afraid of Hopkins' ghost, sir. You know he was buried yesterday, and to-night is holiday-eve, and if I go for the Bible, he will be sure to catch me."

"Catch you indeed! you foolish fellow," said the parson; "I wonder you have not more sense. You ought to know there is no such thing as a ghost. I only wish I was able to go myself."

The parson's reasoning could not, however, allay the servant's fears, nor could John be prevailed upon to go for the Bible, until his master's threats produced obedience.

John at last started, and, with a snail's pace and a thumping heart, arrived at the Church-gate. This he found open, which greatly increased his fear, for he supposed that all the ghosts belonging to the yard were collected together in a body, and had gone out into the country to frolic and dance, and play, as it was holiday-eve; or else had gone into the vault to chat a while with Hopkins. Finding himself still safe, he ventured to approach the Church-door to peep in, when he saw the light of a candle in the vault, and old Hopkins sitting up, as he thought, eating apples and cracking nuts.

"Poh! you fool!" was the reply. "Is not Hopkins dead? was he not buried yesterday? how then could he be sitting up?"

"Well then," said John, "if it is not he, it is his ghost!"

At this, the parson, with some warmth, "that there is no such thing as a ghost."

But John could not be convinced by all that his master could say; and in order that the parson should be convinced that it was old Hopkins' ghost, he proposed that he would take him on his back and carry him to the Church, that he might see for himself. The parson agreed, and straddling John's back rode off, scolding him severely for his folly, as he went along. At length they arrived at the Church, which they found open, as John had represented it. This somewhat surprised the parson, and excited his fears. He proposed to John to stop, and go no farther; but John said they were not far enough, yet. A few steps more, and John had his rider at the Church-door, and just as they were about to enter, the parson saw the light in the vault.

"Stop, John," said the parson, putting out one foot against the door, bracing himself against it, "we are far enough."

"No we ain't," said John.

"Yes we are," said the parson, upon which a struggle ensued.

Peter, who all along had been quietly and silently engaged in cutting off old Hopkins' fingers, heard the noise above, and supposing it was his comrade John, that was coming with the sheep, cried out, "Is he 'at, John?" upon which, John supposing that it was Hopkins that asked if the parson was fat, replied with an oath, "Fat or lean, see, you shall have him," and throwing his rider down, took to his heels and ran for his life. The parson half-seared to death, and believing that Hopkins' ghost was just about to seize him, jumped up and ran too, and was ever afterwards a firm believer in the doctrine of ghosts.

An old man was remarkable for his lack of knowledge, and his irreligious habits. His sheep had wandered from home: Sunday was to him a leisure day, he devoted it to hunting them. His march conducted him to the Meeting House, just as the congregation was about going in. He entered with them, he sat down with his back to the preacher, and near to his brother-in-law. The text was "I shall smote the Shepherd and the sheep of the flock shall be scattered abroad." In the course of the sermon, much was said about the wandering sheep. At last G. could stand it no longer,—"Ade," said he punching his brother-in-law, "I reckon they are my sheep, if they have bob tails, I'll be darned if they ain't!"

PROSPECTUS

OF THE
MACOMB PLAIN DEALER.

IN presenting to the citizens of Illinois the prospectus of a public Journal, intended to be located at Macomb, Macdonough county Ill.—THE PLAIN DEALER will be conducted on liberal principles, and free from all personal bias, having adopted for the basis of its political character the philosophical truths which emanated from Thos. Jefferson, and which have since been acted upon by Andrew Jackson and Martin Van Buren. "Of universal equality of rights, and sovereignty of the people's will." It will advocate the rights and interests of the laboring and producing classes, industry constitutes the only true source of wealth, and oppose aristocracy and exclusive monopolies in all their various forms.

Having witnessed, with deep regret, the disastrous and ruined condition into which many of the States of this Union have fallen, both morally and physically, in all their financial matters, and knowing that the distressing calamities which have thus overtaken them, had their origin in the Banking and Internal Improvement systems of those states, together with the false and delusive credit with which those systems are inseparably connected, it will form one of the leading features of the Plain Dealer to warn the people of Illinois to be on their guard, and not suffer themselves to be again deluded by designing men.

The Plain Dealer will also contain in its columns the general news of the day.

A full and free examination of men and measures, and a fearless expression of our mind upon all matters of State or National policy.

Nothing of an immortal or licentious character shall find a place in the columns of the Plain Dealer.

Miscellaneous, Foreign, and Domestic Intelligence, Literary and Scientific notices, General, State, and National Politics, with Agricultural pursuits and improvements, will receive due attention.

TERMS.

THE PLAIN DEALER will be published weekly on a fine imperial sheet, good type, and every attention bestowed upon it to make it worthy of support, and will be mailed to subscribers at advance.

LONGSTAFF & WALKER.

Editors and Proprietors.

Macomb, March 8, 1842.

STRAY HORSE.

Strayed from the subscriber, living 12 miles North of Quincy, on the bottom road leading from Quincy to Warsaw, on the 1st day of April, a large grey or flea-bitten grey horse, shod all round but the shoe on the left hind foot was somewhat loose and the hoof considerably cracked, and the hair was worn off of the tail in consequence of having the lampers last winter, said horse is about 12 years old and quite thin in flesh. Also—a yearling Colt, dark brown, with a white strip in the face and both hind feet white. Said horse and colt have ran together all winter and were last seen together. The horses main and tail are both white. Also a dark bay horse with a chain around his neck, with a piece of wood attached to it. Letters of information may be addressed to the subscriber at Quincy.

A liberal reward will be paid for the delivery of information where the subscriber may obtain said horse and colt.

G. G. GALLOWAY.

Quincy, April 9, 1842.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus
J. Salbery, Plymouth.
Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Chiffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Pag, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
Jani's Curtis, Horners Town.
W. L. Appleby, Recless Town.
Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Eustas Snow, Salem.
Feeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapier.

HIO.

John Johnson, Kirt and.

NEW YORK.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.
L. R. Foster, city New York.

PROPOSALS

FOR

PUBLISHING

THE WASP.

The undersigned will publish a paper entitled "The Wasp," in the City of Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.

This Periodical will be devoted to miscellaneous subjects, and he trusts that the matter which will be found in its columns, will be subservient to the cause of humanity, justice & truth. As this is an age of strange events, and of much enquiry, in both the religious and political world, the editor has been influenced by the strong solicitations of many of his old and tried friends, to publish a periodical of this kind, and he hopes to have his path circumscribed with truth and not error, and thus be enabled to meet the expectation of the high minded patriot, the philosopher, the logician and man of reason. It is not the design of the editor to condescend to the low scurrility that so often characterize partisan editors; but will endeavor to draw around him, as much as possible, the spirit of those pure and sacred principles that give to all, its sects, parties and denominations, whether religious or political, the right to think, believe, or worship according to the dictates of their own conscience. He will contend for equal rights and equal privileges, and also reserve to himself the privilege of weighing in a balance the correctness and character of every principle that may pass under his observation.

Jesus said, "doth our law judge any man before, it hear him?" and again he said, "every tree is known by its fruits," and since good and bad men are known by their fruit, and others have judged and spoken—so the editor will also judge and speak, and answer them that do speak and have judged without knowledge, testimony, or law, according to their folly, lest they should be "wise in their own conceit." He will endeavor to benefit his patrons and friends, in general, by putting down every unlawful and persecuting spirit that may show itself in the midst of our free institutions, and he hopes that the citizen and true hearted republican will assist him in this laudable undertaking. He will leave no stone unturned, as far as his ability will admit, to pursue and advocate unwaveringly those holy and righteous principles of the Constitution, which "warmed the hearts of the patriots of seventy-six, and for the perpetuity of which, they cheerfully fell martyrs in the battle-field, and will, without respect to party, award to every individual, of whom he may have occasion to speak, the true reward of merit, without prejudice or restraint. He will, also, find place in his columns for scientific and literary subjects; he will notice the march of science here among us, the change of circumstances as well as the times and the seasons, and contrast the former with our present situation, as a community of people.

In contemplating the many misfortunes and adverse winds through which this people have had to pass, and now beholding them in peace, fast building up a noble city, and breathing once more a free air, it fills my bosom with no little degree of joy, and my heart with gratitude to my God, that we still are remembered as his covenant people. In witnessing the growth and prosperity of the city for the three last years, the editor looks forward with feelings of pride emulating his bosom, and anticipates the day, not far distant, when, in point of population and the magnificence of her edifices, she will be, by far, the rival city of the West, and attain to that high, scale of exalted pre-eminence which renders distinguishable the most populous cities in the East.

Under these circumstances, and as the public weal imperiously demands the establishment of a weekly periodical, devoted (as The Wasp will be) to the dissemination of useful knowledge, of every description—the Arts, Science, Literature, Agriculture, Manufacture, Trade, Commerce, and the general news of the day, the editor cheerfully engages in the commendable enterprise.

It will be the editor's studious care, at all times, to serve up a choice dish of poetry, for the gratification and benefit of those who indulge in the inspiration of the muse.

With a firm reliance upon the good sense and intelligence of the citizens of this and the adjoining counties, and friends abroad, to bear him out in his undertaking, he has been induced to publish the above named paper; and, believing that it will meet with their cordial approbation and support, he hopes to render it an efficient auxiliary in promoting their best interest—the improvement of the mind of the youth and the instruction of the aged.

The Wasp will be published weekly, upon a small sheet, at first, until success and prosperity will enable us to enlarge our borders. It will be printed at the office of the "Times and Seasons," in the city of Nauvoo.

TERMS.—$1.50, invariably in advance.

Advertisements conspicuously inserted on the customary terms.

Any person procuring ten subscribers and forwarding fifteen dollars, current money, shall have one copy gratis.

All letters addressed to the editor must be post paid, or they will receive no attention.

WM. SMITH.

The Bay State Democrat says it is capital punishment, for a school boy to be condemned to sit among the girls.

THE

WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. V.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, May 31, 1842.

Whole Number V.

THE WASP.

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY

WM. SMITH,

At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

TERMS.—$1.50 invariably in advance.

POETRY.

For the Wasp.

DEATH OF AARON.

(A Fragment.)

BY GUSTAVUS HILLS.

'Twas evening, and the lengthening shade of Hor
Eastward had spread o'er Elam's grassy plains:
The camp of God, enshrouded in the gloom.
Had lit their watch fires, and their centres placed.

When the loud trumpet of the herald burst
Its pealing notes upon the busy ears
Of Israel's hosts, now to their several tents
Hastening; and echoed back by sable Hor.
The sound, borne on the evening's gentle breeze, Sailed o'er the wide and tented plain, and in The distance died. The summons understood.
The chiefs of tribes are seen to rally forth.
And bend their footsteps to the sacred court.
Assembled in the sacred pale they wait
The presence of the man of God, who oft,
In the waste howling wilderness, had led
And cheered them on toward a land of rest,
With milk and honey flowing; and who oft,
When dark distress had gathered round them, and
The sword of vengeance from its scabbard leaped Imminent, ready to scathe their rebel souls,
Had boldly stood 'twixt them and threatened death.—

Mortality's days-man with life, and God's Vicegerent 'mong the erring sons of men—
Nor long they wait; with sad and solemn pace
He comes; in his right hand he firmly grasps
The wand mysterious, which by God's command

He once a serpent cast at Pharaoh's feet.
Shook o'er the Egyptian sea, parting its waves,
And smote the rock, and made the waters flow;
Close by his side, and on him gently leaned
His aged brother, clad in robes pontifical,
His beard luxuriant, and his silver locks
Waved in the evening breeze; his first-born son Walked by his side to aid his faltering step.
Oft had they walked, and talked, and counselled off.

Of promised rest, inheritance of Uliss,
While hope with smiles lit up his cheerful lamp.
But now a sadness on their spirits rests Heavily. All hearts with anxious wonder beat:
But more when o'er the tabernacle porch
The Holy Symbol of the Holy One
Rested, and shone mysterious, lighting up
The sacred court, reflecting brightly on
The golden diadem, and blazing on The Urim and the Thummin gems, and in The studded breastplate sparkling, of the great High Priest of God. Each wondering stood, when thus

Moses addressed the assembled chieftain throng.
"Aged associates, who have bravely stood
The labors of this hopeful pilgrimage,
Full well you call to mind the dreadful drought
That threatened death to all our numerous hosts,
And our impatient and irreverent wrath,
When heaven interposed, the rock was smit,
And waters plentiful gushed out to slake
Your thirst, and check your murmurings.
For this our error, heaven has decreed
That, (I ere long,) my aged brother now
Must bid a sad and sorrowful adieu.—
While thus he spoke, an awful gloom had spread Around the mountain's base, the earth did quake,
And thunders muttered, and a distant sound

Like pealing trumpets, filled their souls with dread.
And there were some who once before had heard That trumpet sound, when angry lightnings flashed.
And thunders roared, and Sinai's mountain shook.—
"My brother, we must hence; and Eleazar, thou Must with us to the mount."—The chieftains all Ruch'd forth, embraced the sire, and groaned, and went.—
And now the advancing lamp divine invites,
The trio wave a sorrowful adieu,
And to the mountain take their solitary way—
Now toiling up the steep ascent, and now arrived
Upon the mountain top, a brilliant cloud
Of glory circles them, each bending low

Meekly adores; and now a voice is heard,
"Strip Aaron of his sacerdotal robes,
And upon Eleazar place them: yea
Rise, and obey, for Aaron now must die."—
This done upon his youthful head they place
The Holy Priesthood.—Aaron now entreats,
"Moses, my brother! leave me not in this Mystifying hour—Ah me! is this thy hand?
Thou seemest now so distant!—and a light,
A heavenly brilliancy enwraps me!—Hark!
Heard you those sounds seraphic! Yes I come—Adieu! adieu!"—And now a chant of calm
And heavenly music lingers on their ear,
And dies.—Into their arms the expiring priest
Falls—and upon the consecrated ground
They lay him down, silent in death!

From the Cincinnati Post.

IMPORTANT DOCUMENTS.

Governor King's proclamation.—Letter of the President of the United States.

This morning, the mail brought us the

Providence Evening Chronicle, of the 14th.

The People's Constitution party receive the tidings from Washington with not so much apparent excitement as might be expected. Their leaders held a caucus this morning, and we cannot hear that they resolved upon slackening their efforts a particle in carrying out the election of the ticket which they have nominated.

The Suffrage People in Providence,

are resolved to go ahead, and the country will follow. At last accounts, the Democrats intended to rally on the Suffrage ticket.

By his Excellency SAMUEL WARD

KING, Governor, Captain, General, and Commander-in-Chief of the State of Rhode-Island and Providence Plantations.

A PROCLAMATION.

WHEREAS, I have, this day, received from his Excellency, JOHN TYLER,

President of the United States, a communication touching the political affairs of this State, a copy whereof is hereunto annexed: I do, therefore, issue this my Proclamation, to make known the same to the good people of this State, that they may take heed thereof, and govern themselves accordingly.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, I have caused the seal of said State to be affixed to these present, and have signed the same with my hand. Given at the City of Providence, on the fourteenth day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and forty-two,

and of the Independence of the United States of America the sixty-sixth.

SAMUEL WARD KING.

By his Excellency's command:

HENRY BOWEN, Secretary of State.

To his Excellency,

The Governor of Rhode Island:

Sir.—Your letter dated the 4th inst.

was handed me on Friday by Mr. Whipple, who in company with Mr. Francis, and Mr. Potter, called upon me on Saturday, and placed me, both verbally and by writing, in possession of the prominent facts which have led to the present unhappy condition of things in Rhode Island;—a state of things which every lover of peace and good order must deplore.

I shall not adventure the expression of an opinion upon those questions of domestic policy, which seem to have given rise to the unfortunate controversies betwixt a portion of the citizens and the existing Government of the State. They are questions of Municipal regulation, the adjustment of which belongs exclusively to the people of Rhode Island, and with which this Government can have nothing to do. For the regulation of my conduct, in any interposition which I may be called upon to make, between the Government of the State and any portion of its citizens who may assail it with domestic violence, or may be in actual insurrection against it, I can only look to the Constitution and Laws of the United States, which plainly declare the obligations of the Executive Department, and leave it no alternative as to the course it shall pursue.

By the 4th Section of the 4th Article of the Constitution of the United States it is provided that the United States shall guaranty to every State in the Union a Republican form of Government, and shall protect each of them against invasion;
and to the application of the Legislature or Executive, (when the Legislature cannot be convened) against domestic violence. And by the Act of Congress approved on the 28th February, 1795, it is declared—that in case of an insurrection in any State against the Government thereof, it shall be lawful for the President of the United States, upon application of the Legislature of such State, or of the Executive, (when the Legislature cannot be convened,) to call forth such number of the militia of any other State or States as may be applied for, as he may judge sufficient, to suppress such insurrection.
By the 3d section of the same act, it is provided that whenever it may be necessary in the judgment of the President, to use the military force hereby directed to be called forth, the President shall forthwith by proclamation, command such insurgents to disperse and retire peaceably to their respective abodes within a reasonable time.

By the act of March 2, 1807, it is provided, "that in all cases of insurrection or obstruction to the laws either of the United States or any individual State or Territory, where it is lawful for the President of the United States to call forth the militia for the purpose of suppressing such insurrection or of causing the laws to be duly executed, it shall be lawful for him to employ for the same purpose, such part of the land or naval force of the United States as shall be judged necessary, having first observed all the prerequisites of the law in that respect."
This is the first occasion so far as the government of a State and its people are concerned, on which it has become necessary to consider of the propriety of exercising these high and most important constitutional and legal functions. By a careful consideration of the above recited acts of Congress, your Excellency will not fail to see, that no power is vested in the Executive of the United States to anticipate insurrectionary movements against the Government of Rhode Island, so as to sanction the interposition of the military authority, but that there must be an actual insurrection manifested by lawless assemblage of the people or otherwise to whom a proclamation may be addressed, and who may be required to betake themselves to their respective abodes. I have, however, to assure your Excellency that should the time arrive, and my fervent prayer is that it may never come, when an insurrection shall exist against the Government of Rhode Island, and a requisition shall be made upon the Executive of the United States to furnish that protection which is guaranteed to each State by the Constitution and laws, I shall not be found to shrink from the performance of a duty, which, while it would be the most painful is at the same time the most imperative.

I have also to say that in such a contingency, the Executive could not look into real or supposed defects of the existing government proposed for adoption was better suited to the wants and more in accordance with the wishes of any portion of her citizens. To throw the Executive power of this Government into any such controversy, would be to make the President the armed arbitrator between the people of the different States and their constituted authorities, and might lead to an usurped power, dangerous alike to the stability of the State Government and the liberties of the people.

It will be my duty on the contrary, to respect the requisitions of that government which has been recognized as the existing Government of the State through all times past, until I shall be advised in regular manner, that it has been altered and abolished, and other substituted in its place, by legal and peaceable proceedings, adopted and pursued by the authorities and people of the State. Nor can I readily bring myself to believe that any such contingency will arise, as shall render the interposition of this Government at all necessary. The people of the State of Rhode Island have been too long distinguished for their love of order and of regular government, to rush into revolution in order to obtain a redress of grievances, real or supposed, which a government under which their fathers lived in peace would not in due season redress. No portion of her people will be willing to drench her fair fields with the blood of their own brethren, in order to obtain a redress of grievances which their constituted authorities cannot, for any length of time resist, if properly appealed to by the popular voice. None of them will be willing to set an example, in the bosom of this Union, of such frightful disorder, such needless convulsions of society, such danger to life, liberty and property, and likely to bring so much discredit on the character of popular governments. My reliance on the virtue, intelligence and patriotism of her citizens, is great and abiding, and I will not doubt but that a spirit of conciliation will prevail over rash councils, that all actual grievances will be promptly redressed by the existing Government, and that another bright example will be added to the many already prevailing among the North American Republics, of change without revolution, and a redress of grievances without force or violence.

I tender to your Excellency assurances of my high respect and consideration.

JOHN TYLER.

Washington, April 11th, 1842.

THE WASP.

SATURDAY, MAY 14, 1842.

WE WERE NOT THE AGGRESSORS.

After the election in Davis, the citizens became very much exasperated and enraged at the idea that their attempt to deprive the Latter Day Saints of voting had been so effectually baffled. Public meetings and private caucuses were immediately held in every part of the county to devise some plan to rid it of the 'Mormon' portion of its population. At length, it was resolved that the church should leave by foul means if they would not go by fair. It was in the fall of the year and crops were just ready to be harvested; ten days were allowed them to gather their grain and make preparations for a removal—at the expiration of which time, if they would not comply with the terms proposed, they were threatened with mobs to force them from their homes. In the mean time, a plan was concocted to strip them of their effects, under a pretence of bargain and sale. They proposed either to sell or buy possessions; the proposition, apparently fair, was readily acceded to by us. We agreed to purchase their possessions provided they would leave us in the peaceable possession of our homes. They agreed to do so. A committee was appointed to attend to the purchases; cattle of all description, teams, wagons, &c., &c., were given in exchange. While these exchanges were being effected, they were busily engaged in removing their women and children into the adjoining counties pretending the exchange of residences; but the ultimate result proved that it was for the more effectual accomplishment of their nefarious designs. After these transactions were accomplished, and the church began to entertain hopes that peace and harmony would immediately ensue, the complaint was made and spread with incredible rapidity through the surrounding country, that 'Mormons' had 'rebelled against the laws,' had threatened them with violence; and their families, being in imminent danger of their lives, had thought it advisable to their security to remove where protection could be obtained. They then declared that the 'Mormons' should not have their property, that they were a set of 'dam'd rascals,' and leave the county they must at the peril of their lives. Nor did they offer to replace the property they had received of us; but on the contrary, they utterly refused so to do, and would not agree to any terms of reconciliation whatever. Under these circumstances, what was to be done? Our property was gone; we were threatened with mobs; had been peremptorily commanded to remove from our homes, and many of our families were reduced to a condition of suffering. We appealed to the magistrates of justice; we invoked the aid of a strong arm of legal power; but in vain. We applied to the Governor for protection, but without success; he declared he had no right to interfere, and left us to protect ourselves as best we might. Ah! how woefully was this declaration of neutrality violated by the Executive, when, a short time after,

'The Gov'nor's order to 'EXTERMINATE'

Received the insignia and the seal of State!

Regardless of his former avowal that he would not interfere with the difficulty and aid in restoring peace and a unanimity of feeling, between us and the Davis county people; deaf to the cry of the oppressed, the widow and the orphan; insensible to every feeling of humanity, patriotism, philanthropy and the oath of his gubernatorial office, which bound him by every tie of humanity and benevolence, to see that the laws of the State, over which he held the reins of government, were preserved inviolate and uncontaminated by the hand of mobocratic usurpation and cruelty; the fat, stamp with the seal of his high office, went forth, giving license to the merciless horde of barbarian savages, professing the refinements of civilization; but more cruel, ravenous, and eager in their thirst for blood, than the most heathenish portion of the globe;—shed the blood of innocence, to make desolate the consecrated circle of domestic enjoyment, and force citizens from the quiet shelter of their peaceful abodes, into the rude and dreary wilderness, with nought to shelter them but the over shadowing wing of Jehovah's love and mercy. What magnanimity of soul, what high and lofty principles of uprightness, what ennobling sentiments and refined considerations must have dwelt in the mind of this important functionary at that particular crisis!

Surely they must have sprung from the blessed germ our Fathers planted amid the din of the Revolution, and lit their torch at the glowing flame of patriotism that so effectually burned in his philanthropic bosom! But the purity of his motives are registered upon the annals of eternity, and will fix the sentence of his certain doom!

THE SEVENTH OF MAY.

This was a proud day for Nauvoo. The weather was fair; the Nauvoo Legion performed the evolutions of the day with admirable order which reflects great credit upon the commanding officers. There were present a large number of visitors from abroad—men of intelligence and high standing in society—who expressed their surprise at witnessing the perfect order and unanimity of feeling that pervaded the vast multitude and characterized every movement. No unnecessary noise was heard, no riots or signs of intoxication were to be seen, but all was harmony, quietude and good order. Indeed, we may say that no where else in the western country can the same number of people be collected together upon a like occasion, where the same friendship, peace, quietude and uprightness of conduct will prevail, as was manifested upon this occasion. Surely, our city is the very seat of temperance, where the Washingtonian principles are inculcated in every mind and kept inviolate from principle—not by the obligatory features of the abstinence pledge.

At 1 o'clock P. M., the Legion was dismissed for one hour, during which time the consolidated Staff of the Legion together with several conspicuous strangers who were visiting our city, repaired to a 'great Jubilee' given at the dwelling of General Joseph Smith.

At 7 o'clock P. M., the Legion was again formed and every thing for the remainder part of the day, went on satisfactorily. In a few brief and pertinent remarks, the commanding officers express their satisfaction at the proceedings of the day, when the Legion was dismissed and the citizens retired to their several abodes.

At 5 o'clock in the evening, we repaired to the dwelling of Mr. A. M. L., where we had been invited by that gentleman. A scene of beauty, joy, animation and contentment, was there. A large company of ladies and gentlemen had assembled for the amusement of the evening, joy sparkled in every eye, and satisfaction was visible in every countenance. When the luxuries which had been prepared were spread upon the festive board—which was soon surrounded by forty-two well dressed and beautiful ladies—we felt ourself almost captivated with the scene, and was ready to challenge any other city in the Union to produce its equal. The supper was served up in perfect order by our hostess, and the numberless delicious, well served, well cooked dainties under which her ponderous table groaned, would well have gladdened the heart of the epicure. The party was conducted upon the most genteel, refined and moral principles. No dancing was indulged in, no doors were admittable, and the company retired at an early hour. While these innocent amusements were going on, and we were contemplating the harmony and union that prevailed among these friendly associates, this passage in Byron stole involuntarily upon our mind:

'Bliss are the early hearts and hands
That mingle there in well accorded bands:
It is a sight the careful brow might smooth,
And make age smile and dream itself to youth
And youth forget such hour was passed on earth,
So springs the exulting bosom to that mirth.'

PRECEPT AND PRACTICE.

We have received the first number of a small weekly newspaper entitled The Wasp, published at the office of the Times and Seasons, the Mormon paper at Nauvoo. In the prospectus the editor says:

"It is not the design of the editor to condescend to the low scurrility that so often characterizes partisan editors; but will endeavor to draw around him, as much as possible, the spirit of those pure and sacred principles." &c.

Yet the number before us has in its editorial columns the following paragraph:

"We have a small compliment for Tom Sharp, the editor of the Warsaw Signal, in our next. We shall keep our eye on the Signal of war until its exhausted editor, like any other dirty culprit, hides himself amidst the rubbish of his own corrupt doings—and cries, give me more TURKEY or I die."

Doubtless the editor sees nothing scurrilous in this, though were he to read it of himself in any other paper, his vision might probably be somewhat altered.—Peoria Register.

Why did not the editor of the 'Register and Gazette' quote the whole sentence referring to the subject before us, instead of taking a small scrap with a '&c.' to the end, just enough to answer his own foolish purpose, and prove to all who shall read his paper that he is guilty himself of detraction, amounting to falsehood.

The sentence in our paper is as follows.

"It is not the design of the editor to condescend to the low scurrility that so often characterizes partisan editors; but will endeavor to draw around him, as much as possible, the spirit of those pure and sacred principles that give to all, of all sects, parties and denominations, whether religious or political, the right to think, believe, or worship according to the dictates of their own conscience. He will contend for equal rights and equal privileges, and also reserve to himself the privilege of weighing in a balance the correctness and character of every principle that may pass under his observation."

"Jesus said, 'doth our law judge any man before it hear him?' and again he said, 'every tree is known by its fruits,' and since good and bad men are known by their fruit, and others have judged and spoken—so the editor will also judge and speak, and answer them that do speak, and have judged without knowledge, testimony, or law, according to their folly, lest they should be wise in their own conceit."

Now we ask you Mr. Editor, if there is nothing scurrilous, mean, or contemptible, in the eye of every gentleman and lover of truth, in quoting one half of an idea, and leaving the remainder, for the purpose of conveying a falsehood to the minds of your readers? If you do not we hope you will live long enough to see it, and repent of it: and when you have repented, confess your sin and do so no more. It would have spoiled all your sport to have quoted the whole sentence for you and your readers would have seen, even with half an eye, that although we do not design to condescend to low scurrility, we have reserved to ourself the privilege of weighing all things in the scales of truth and justice, and of answering fools according to their folly, and so we shall continue to do, until the 'Signal,' 'Register and Gazette' shall cease their detraction and falsehood.

"The present number of the WARSAW SIGNAL closes the second volume, and it may possibly, entirely close its publication. We have now had the editorial charge of this paper for a period of eighteen months, during which time our situation has been far from pleasurable. Under any circumstances, the life of an editor is one of toil and perplexity, and every encouragement is needed to enable him to perform with ardor and alacrity the various duties which devolve upon him. In our own case, these encouragements have been wanting—we have labored continually under pecuniary embarrassments—our course has displeased some, and we have brought on our head the vengeance of others. Our path, therefore, has not been strewn with flowers; but we have the proud satisfaction of knowing that our labors have been appreciated by the moderate of both political parties. Doubtless we have committed many errors. Young and inexperienced as we were, it would have been surprising if we had not; but we appeal to God for the purity and honesty of the motives which have dictated our course.

We for the present, must take leave of our patrons—premising that in a few weeks we may again greet them with renewed spirit and energy. Of this however, we are uncertain—as it is yet a matter of doubt whether the paper will receive that encouragement necessary to ensure its continuance."—Warsaw Signal.

The above is the doleful lamentation of the editor of the Warsaw Signal, upon his repenting stool with feelings indescribable, and with groanings which cannot be uttered! He expects to be obliged to discontinue his beloved business. What a pity it is, that a man who has followed publishing falsehood and slander so long for a living, should not be sustained in the good work by his Anti-Mormon friends. Let us give you a word of advice, Tom. Just lay your case before the great 'Mass Convention,' and perhaps something may be done for you. You say you have labored eighteen months, during which time your 'path' has been far from 'pleasurable.' No doubt, Mr.

Tommy, you have felt a great many compunctions of feelings, many a bitter pang of sorrow, brought on by the stings and goadings of a guilty conscience; but would you once try the experiment you would learn that wisdom's ways are ways of pleasantness, just the reverse the path you've trod. You say, encouragement has been wanting. This no doubt, is true. The citizens of this county and of the circumjacent country, have not felt themselves justified in patronizing a paper that advocated so strongly the principles of mobocracy. The editor appeals to God, for the purity and honesty of his course. We would just remind the gentleman that he is calling on strangers; that God knows no such man or work, only as an abomination; and, if we are not mistaken, when he is called to an account, he will hear the sentence. "Depart, ye cursed, for I know you not." He feels highly gratified to think he has pleased the moderate of both parties; that is, as we suppose, by being one day a Whig and the next a Loco Foco; but he has brought down upon his head the indignation of some; was not quite weather-cock enough for all, though he did the best he could. Well, we have no objection to that, for we always thought him a fit tool for every body, and a ready dog for the Antimasonic party, to jump and bark at their word, stubby. Now, as for this "good Lord," and "good Devil" man, it will be a great loss to the Anti-Mormon mobocrat party, and why not try to save him while it is called, "to day." Soon you will have no dog to bark, and no ass to bray for you. Hear it all ye anties, and tremble ye sinners! rush to the rescue of your sinking brother!!

The following is the concluding paragraph of the prospectus for the continuation of the Warsaw Signal:

"As regards the course which the paper will pursue, the subscriber pledges himself, that in place it is continued, he will conduct it free from all party in view, making it strictly an independent journal—believing, as he does, that such only can, under existing circumstances, be sustained, or be of any public utility."

Very hard, Thomas, after having betrayed one party and deserted the other, that you should be compelled to come out and take a bold stand across the fence; it reminds us of the poor fellow, who, when he went to pray, cried "good Lord, good Devil, good Devil, good Lord," and when he was asked why he prayed in such a manner, replied, "O I don't know whose hands I shall fall into next."

Thus Tommy stands across the fence,
Devoid of wisdom, truth or sense;
Crying for help—to whom?—don't know—
I've long abused my best friends so."

Don't be discouraged, Thomas; if the editor is one particle of repentance (as among with you and you will come out and advocate the principles of truth, justice, of equal rights and privileges—leave the fence, set both feet on the ground, stand upright like a man, and fight for the God of Israel—not against Him—you may yet, possibly, get forgiveness at His hands; and he will raise you up, and you will prosper; but if you will not do this, prosper you never can. You have our best wishes, Thomas!

"THE HARP.—This is the title of an able, useful, and independent paper published at Nauvoo, Hancock co., by Wm. Smith Esq. This is the second paper published at the 'Jerusalem' built up of the Mormons. Who can tell what is to be the future grandeur of this rising city!—[Chicago Democrat.]

Colonel Wentworth is a genuine democrat of the old school: bold, noble, ingenious, independent, and unshackled by the cords of aitarianism, he pursues an unwavering, steady course, and sheds a halo of glory around his path. As the champion of equal rights and privileges, he stands foremost in the battle, and as he wields his sword, so does he his pen fearlessly and proudly. We are obliged to Mr. Wentworth for the favorable notice he has taken of our humble enterprise in the publication of the Wasp, (not the 'Harp' as he has it inserted) and we shall be glad, at all times, to fight side by side with him until the flag of universal freedom shall float triumphant throughout the length and breadth of this vast Republic.

"THE WASP." is the title of a neat little paper lately established at Nauvoo, Hancock County Ill. It is devoted to literature and the dissemination of general news, and is edited by Wm Smith. We suppose Mr Smith is neither a prophet or the son of a prophet; but we believe he is a kinsman of the famous "Jo." Success attend his enterprise."—[Columbus Advertiser.]

Thank you, Mr. Ferry: for the above compliment you are entitled to our best wishes for your success, as conductor of the 'Advocate.' Right; we are neither a 'prophet' or the 'son of a prophet'; but as you say we are the 'kinsman' of a Prophet, we hope to render ourself at least profitable in the cause of true Democracy liberty and equal rights. May the clouds of adversity, which so often beset the life of an editor be dissipated from your path by the piercing rays of the genial sun of prosperity, and your able pen continue to be wielded in the cause of humanity, justice and benevolence.

The spirit of President Houston, in entering into war with Mexico, may be best seen by the following extract from a long communication addressed by his Honor to his Excellency, Antonio Lopez De Santa Anna, President of the Republic of Mexico. It speaks rather disparagingly to the accomplishment of the threat of Santa Anna to plant the Mexican flag upon the banks of the Sabine:

"You continue aggression. You will not accord us peace. We will have it. You threaten to conquer Texas—we will war with Mexico. Your pretensions with ours you have referred to the social world and to the God of battles—we refer our cause to the same tribunals. The issue involves the fate of nations—destiny must determine—its course is only known to the tribunal of Heaven. If experience of the past will authorize speculations of the future, the attitude of Mexico is more 'problematical' than that of Texas.

"In the war which will be conducted by Texas against Mexico, our incentives will not be a love of conquest—it will be to disarm tyranny of its power. We will make no war upon Mexicans or their religion—our efforts shall be made in behalf of the liberties of the people, and directed against the authorities of the country, and against your principles Sir. We will exalt the condition of the people to representative freedom—they shall choose their own rulers—they shall possess their property in peace, and it shall not be taken from them to support an armed soldiery for the purposes of oppression.—With these principles we will march across the Rio Grande; and Sir, believe me, ere the banner of Mexico shall triumphantly float on the banks of the Sabine, the Texian Standard of the Lone Star, borne by the Anglo-Saxon race, shall display its bright folds in liberty's triumph on the Isthmus of Darien.

With the most appropriate consideration, I have the honor to present you my salutations, SAM HOUSTON.

We welcome the poetical effusion, "Death of Aaron," to our columns. It is well written, and betrays a poet's skill in every line. We hope friend Hills will continue to enrich our columns with the productions of his fruitful pen.

TO THE WRITERS OF FICTION. A practical production, by Miss F. H. R. Snow, will appear in our next. We cheerfully enter the name of this chaste, amiable, and talented writer, upon our list of contributors. May her favors continue.

FROM THE SANGAMON JOURNAL IMPORTANT INTELLIGENCE FROM EUROPE!

By the Great Western and Britannia steam ships, we have London and Liverpool dates to the 5th April.

There is no longer any doubt that the British forces have received a signal overthrow near Cabool, in Afghanistan—the whole British army, consisting of from 6 to 10,000 men having been entirely destroyed.

Our readers will probably recollect that the country of the Afghans lies in the north part of East Persia, and includes a portion of the Altain chain of mountains—a good part of it, especially in the neighborhood of the Capital, Cabool, being mountainous and subject to the extremes of cold. The climate is healthy on the mountains, while it is pestilential in the plains below. The inhabitants are hardy, ferocious, and belong to the Tartar family. Cabool is said to contain 110,000 inhabitants.

The British government in order to secure the control of the Afghans, in a dispute on the right of succession between two aspirants for the throne, took part with one of them, and by means of their troops, placed him in power.

The main body of the nation were dissatisfied with this measure, and made war upon the reigning prince and his British allies. Such was their success that they forced the British troops into the citadel in Cabool, and a fortified camp within six miles of that city. The enemy pressing upon them, they treated for peace, and while Mr. McNaghten, the British envoy, was engaged in this duty, he was treacherously assassinated by the aspirant to the throne. The British troops being beset by some 40,000 of the enemy, without provisions, and ammunition growing short, left their positions with the design of retreating to the British settlements below. One account says that they left in a body of 10,000, and another, of 6,400 men. Of these statements of their numbers, nothing seems to be known certain: but the lamentable truth is evident that they were attacked, and finally all cut to pieces. Before this was done, however, it is said, that the ladies of the officers were sent back to the care of the enemy.

The London Times thus comments upon these facts:

"And so ends the first act of this most disastrous war. Few of our readers can remember so heavy, none, probably, so terrible, a reverse to English arms. And for all we have to thank ourselves. We might have these proud and independent tribes as friends—we preferred to have them for slaves. We might have allied ourselves with the ruler whom they have chosen—we preferred to set over them a debauched and sanguinary tyrant of our own. We might have compelled our creature to rule them with equity and leniency—we chose to tyrannize over and insult them."

The disasters in Afghanistan have necessarily induced great activity in forwarding troops to India. The reserve companies of the 25th regiment, stationed in Wales, and the service companies of the same regiment, now at the Cape, have been ordered to the East: the 85th augmented to 1,000, has also been ordered to India; the Foot Guards, 56th, 67th, and 70th regiments are to be sent from Canada; and in all, it is stated, 10,000 men are to be forwarded to the East with the least possible delay.

Other news by these arrivals is not very important. The House of Lords appeared determined to pass Mr. Peel's Corn Bill. It was not supposed, however, that it would at all relieve the distresses of the country. Mr. Peel had introduced a bill for a new tax, called the "income tax," which was likely to become a law, although it was strenuously opposed by those who were to be affected by it.

Lord Stanley proposed a resolution to inquire into the state of the West India colonies—with the view of establishing a large emigration from Africa to the West Indies.

The India Mail of February 1st brought intelligence of military disasters, which were quite affecting to the English people. The following comments of the Times embody the news:

"Our contemporaries give a still more disastrous account than we can ourselves yet credit of the fate of our troops at Cabool. Of the assassination of Sir W. McNaghten, in an interview with Akbar Khan, the leader of the insurgents, and by the hand of that Chief, there is, unfortunately no doubt. It is further said, that the remainder of our 6,400 men set out in despair from Cabool, in the desperate hope of fighting their way 20 miles through a country, in itself almost impassable under the attacks of an enemy computed at about 40,000. The last authentic European intelligence announced this intended departure; and the native reports, which are said always to precede, by some days, the arrival of our own despatches, went on to say, that the departure had taken place, with the result to which, probably, the men themselves had made up their minds—their total destruction. To those reports our own correspondent, whose letter our readers will peruse with much interest, refers incredulously, mentioning their circulation, but adding that 'they met with little credit.' Two papers, however, profess to give the intelligence on the authority of a survivor, who saw, with his own eyes, seven of his brother officers fall.

Another letter describes the 44th and Queen's when 'last seen,' as reduced to 150, but struggling through the snow, still in a body. The hopelessness of such effort would seem only less than the hopelessness of remaining where they were, or than that of preserving their lives by any capitulation. The fate of the Envoy, coupled with the bitter demand that they should lay down their arms, leave their women, and so march out, would show them that they had little choice except between dying with or without arms in their hands. They chose, it seems, the latter, a choice becoming British soldiers, whose duty to their country calls upon them, so to fall, if fall they must, or to show their enemies what manner of men they had to deal with, as victims now, as avengers, perhaps, hereafter. Even more melancholly than the fate of our countrymen, however, would be that of the faithful native troops, who would have been involved in their defeat and destruction. The Englishman knows he is sacrificing himself for his country—he is supporting the honor and advancing the power of a name in which he shares; the Sepoy is falling at the bidding of this master in a quarrel in which he has no interest, and from which he and his will, reap no national honor. Yet have these men, certainly, shown themselves not less firmly faithful, even to the last extremity of hopelessness, than our own brave fellows.

We cannot, however, yet believe the account which is put forward. It is too terrible. It seems not an event of the English empire in the 19th century, but a hideous dream, a horrible tale, when we read of 6000 men massacred almost in cold blood, a British Envoy treacherously murdered, and sixteen of our country women (as it is asserted) carried off by an army of savage enemies, with sickening details, which we could scarcely bear to write; feeling as we do, that there are those in England to whom such particulars are not, as to ourselves, mere frightful barbarities, a fearful page of history brought nearer, but piercing appeals to their own personal recollections and affections.

From the Times of Thursday.

The worst can no longer be doubted of the fate of the troops at Cabool. Accounts have been received in town which can be implicitly relied upon, and from which the following is an extract:

"On the 18th of January, Dr. Brydon staggered into Jellalabad wounded and mangled from suffering and fatigue. He relates that our people quitted Cabool under the convention agreed on by Major Pottinger on the 5th inst. The cantonment was immediately occupied by the Afghans, and the English were almost instantly attacked. The march became continued a constant fight.

At the Khoord Cabool Pass, about ten miles from Cabool, the ladies were sent back, under an escort of some of Akbar Khan's people, who promised to protect them.

At Tezeen, General Elphinstone and Col. Shelton were made prisoners. The native troops became disorganized and scattered. At Jagdaluk four hundred of her Majesty's 44th, who had before kept well together, became disorganized, broken and scattered.

ver, who saw, with his own eyes, seven of his brother officers fall.

Another letter describes the 44th and Queen's when 'last seen,' as reduced to 150, but struggling through the snow, still in a body. The hopelessness of such effort would seem only less than the hopelessness of remaining where they were, or than that of preserving their lives by any capitulation. The fate of the Envoy, coupled with the bitter demand that they should lay down their arms, leave their women, and so march out, would show them that they had little choice except between dying with or without arms in their hands. They chose, it seems, the latter, a choice becoming British soldiers, whose duty to their country calls upon them, so to fall, if fall they must, or to show their enemies what manner of men they had to deal with, as victims now, as avengers, perhaps, hereafter. Even more melancholly than the fate of our countrymen, however, would be that of the faithful native troops, who would have been involved in their defeat and destruction. The Englishman knows he is sacrificing himself for his country—he is supporting the honor and advancing the power of a name in which he shares; the Sepoy is falling at the bidding of this master in a quarrel in which he has no interest, and from which he and his will, reap no national honor. Yet have these men, certainly, shown themselves not less firmly faithful, even to the last extremity of hopelessness, than our own brave fellows.

We cannot, however, yet believe the account which is put forward. It is too terrible. It seems not an event of the English empire in the 19th century, but a hideous dream, a horrible tale, when we read of 6000 men massacred almost in cold blood, a British Envoy treacherously murdered, and sixteen of our country women (as it is asserted) carried off by an army of savage enemies, with sickening details, which we could scarcely bear to write; feeling as we do, that there are those in England to whom such particulars are not, as to ourselves, mere frightful barbarities, a fearful page of history brought nearer, but piercing appeals to their own personal recollections and affections.

From the Times of Thursday.

The worst can no longer be doubted of the fate of the troops at Cabool. Accounts have been received in town which can be implicitly relied upon, and from which the following is an extract:

"On the 18th of January, Dr. Brydon staggered into Jellalabad wounded and mangled from suffering and fatigue. He relates that our people quitted Cabool under the convention agreed on by Major Pottinger on the 5th inst. The cantonment was immediately occupied by the Afghans, and the English were almost instantly attacked. The march became continued a constant fight.

At the Khoord Cabool Pass, about ten miles from Cabool, the ladies were sent back, under an escort of some of Akbar Khan's people, who promised to protect them.

At Tezeen, General Elphinstone and Col. Shelton were made prisoners. The native troops became disorganized and scattered. At Jagdaluk four hundred of her Majesty's 44th, who had before kept well together, became disorganized, broken and scattered.

An Ordinance concerning brothels and disorderly characters.

Sec. 184. B. It is ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, that all brothels or houses of ill fame, erected or being in the City of Nauvoo, be and the same hereby are henceforth prohibited and by law declared public nuisances and that the owners or keepers of such houses, be fined in a sum of not less than five hundred nor more than fifty thousand dollars and imprisoned for six months for each offence of one day's continuance of such establishment; and that any person frequenting such establishment, (except on lawful business) shall be fined in the sum of five hundred dollars, and six months imprisonment for each offence; and further, that for every act of adultery, or fornication, which can be proved, the parties shall be imprisoned six months, and fined, each, in the sum of from five hundred to fifty thousand dollars, and that the individual's own acknowledgment shall be considered sufficient evidence in the case.

JOHN C. BENNETT, Mayor.
Approved May 14th 1842.
JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

A RARE CHANCE, AND THE ONLY VACANCY ON THE TEMPLE BLOCK.

The subscriber wishing to close his business in the city, offers for sale his house and lot, a pleasant situation, with a good garden, adjoining the Temple Block on the north side; also, an improvement of a house and lot, pleasantly situated on the bluff a few hundred yards from the Temple.

He will receive as part pay for the above mentioned property a good horse, harness, and carriage, a certain amount in dry goods, or other good property, and the balance in cash, or he will exchange for a suitable lot of land in some adjoining town.

F. G. BISHOP.

Nauvoo, May 4th, 1842.

VALUABLE FARM FOR SALE.

Situated 5 miles south west of Carthage, 12 miles from War-wau, and 16 miles from the city of Nauvoo, containing 900 acres; half timber and the balance farming land, with about 100 acres under fence. A comfortable dwelling house, good stabling and other out buildings, also a thriving young apple orchard, &c. &c.

The said tract may advantageously be divided into two or more smaller farms with never failing water running through each tract.

Price low, and terms accommodative. Apply to J. B. BACKENSTOS.

Carthage Hancock co. Ill. May 6th, 1842.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Amos Davis, of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Amos Davis of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.
J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

In the matter of the Petition of GEORGE BACKSTER, a bankrupt to be discharged from his debts. NOTICE is hereby given to all creditors and others interested of George Backster a bankrupt to appear before the District Court of the United States on the 8th day of July A. D. 1842, at the city of Springfield, in the district of Illinois, and show cause if any they have why the aforesaid George Backster should not receive a final discharge from all his debts, and a certificate thereof be granted to him. Dated at Springfield this 4th day of April A. D. 1842.

Strong & Doremus, solicitors for petitioner.

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Charles Warner, of Hancock co., to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Charles Warner, of Hancock co., has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 2nd day of May, A. D. 1842.
J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Windsor P. Lyon, of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Windsor P. Lyon of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 2nd day of May A. D. 1842.
J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Arthur Morrison, of Hancock co., to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Arthur Morrison, of Hancock co., has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition: all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April, A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of George More of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that George More of Hancock county, has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition: all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April, A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of John P. Green of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that John P. Green of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition: all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April, A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Joseph Smith, of Hancock county, to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Joseph Smith, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition: all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April, A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Sidney Rigdon of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Sidney Rigdon of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition: all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April, A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Vinson Knight, of Hancock county, to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Vinson Knight of Hancock county has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition: all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April, A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

and in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition: all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April, A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Samuel H. Smith of Hancock County, to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Samuel H. Smith of Hancock County has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition: all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April, A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Hyrum Smith of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Hyrum Smith of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition: all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April, A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Jared Carter of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Jared Carter, of Hancock county has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition: all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April, A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Henry G. Sherwood of Hancock County to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Henry G. Sherwood of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this district, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition: all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April, A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Reynolds Cahoon of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Reynolds Cahoon of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition: all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April, A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Elias Higbee, of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Elias Higbee, of Hancock county, has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition: all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April, A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

DR. J. F. WELD,

PHYSICIAN IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.

Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

STRAY HORSE.

Strayed from the subscriber, living 12 miles North of Quincy, on the bottom road leading from Quincy to Warsaw, on the 1st day of April, a large grey or flea bitten grey horse shod all round but the shoe on the left hind foot was somewhat loose and the hoof considerably lacerated, and the hair was worn off the root of his tail in consequence of having the lampers last winter, said horse is about 12 years old and quite thin in flesh. Also a yearling Colt, dark brown, with a white strip in the face and both hind feet white. Said horse and colt have ran together all winter and were last seen together. The horses' man and tail are both white. Also a dark bay horse with a chain around his neck with a piece of wood attached to it. Loss of information may be addressed to the subscriber at Quincy.

A liberal reward will be paid for the delivery of or for information where the subscriber may obtain said horse and colts.

G. G. GALLOWAY.

Quincy, April 9, 1842.

PROSPECTUS

OF THE

MACOMB PLAIN DEALER.

IN presenting to the citizens of Illinois the prospectus of a public Journal intended to be located at Macomb, Macdonough county Ill.—The PLAIN DEALER, will be conducted on liberal principles, and free from all personal bias, having adopted for the basis of its political character the philosophical truths which emanated from the minds of the great sages of antiquity.

It has been acted upon by Andrew Jackson and Martin Van Buren, "of universal equality of rights, and sovereignty of the peoples' will." It will advocate the rights and interests of the laboring and producing classes. Industry constitutes the only true source of wealth, and oppose aristocracy and exclusive monopolies in all their various forms.

Having witnessed, with deep regret, the disastrous and ruined condition into which many of the States of this Union have fallen, both morally and physically, in all their financial matters, and knowing that the distressing calamities which have overtaken them, had their origin in the Banking and Internal Improvement systems of these states, together with the false and delusive credit with which those systems are inseparably connected, it will form one of the leading features of the PLAIN DEALER to warn the people of Illinois to be on their guard, and not suffer themselves to be again deluded by designing men.

The PLAIN DEALER will also contain in its columns the general news of the day.

A full and free examination of men and measures, and a fearless expression of our mind upon all matters of State or National policy.

Nothing of an immoral or licentious character shall find a place in the columns of the PLAIN DEALER.

Miscellaneous, Foreign, and Domestic Intelligence, Literary and Scientific notices, General, State, and National Politics, with Agricultural pursuits and improvements, will receive due attention.

TERMS.

THE PLAIN DEALER will be published weekly on a fine imperial sheet, good type, and every attention bestowed upon it to make it worthy of support, and it will be mailed to subscribers at $2.00 per annum, payable in all cases in advance.

LONGSTAFF & WALKER.

Editors and Proprietors.

Macomb, March, 1842.

We heard a new superstition yesterday—that when a cow bellows in a neighborhood, it signifies a death will soon occur. It is our firm conviction that it signifies there is a call somewhere.

—N. O. Cress.

PROPOSALS FOR PUBLISHING
THE WASP.

The undersigned will publish a paper entitled "The Wasp," in the City of Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.

This Periodical will be devoted to miscellaneous subjects, and he trusts that the matter which will be found in its columns, will be subservient to the cause of humanity, justice & truth. As this is an age of strange events, and of much enquiry, in both the religious and political world, the editor has been influenced by the strong solicitations of many of his old and tried friends, to publish a periodical of this kind, and he hopes to have his path circumscribed with truth and not error, and thus be enabled to meet the expectation of the high minded patriot, the philosopher, the logician and man of reason. It is not the design of the editor to condescend to the low levity that so often characterize party san editors; but will endeavor to draw around him, as much as possible, the spirit of those pure and sacred principles that give to all of all sects, parties and denominations, whether religious or political, the right to think, believe, or worship according to the dictates of their own conscience. He will contend for equal rights and equal privileges, and also reserve to himself the privilege of weighing in a balance the correctness and character of every principle that may pass under his observation.

Jesus said, "doth our law judge any man before it hear him?" and again he said, "every tree is known by its fruits," and since good and bad men are known by their fruit, and others have judged and spoken—so the editor will also judge and speak, and answer them that do speak and have judged without knowledge, testimony, or law, according to their folly, least they should be "wise in their own conceit." He will endeavor to benefit his patrons and friends, in general, by putting down every unlawful and persecuting spirit that may show itself in the midst of our free institutions, and he hopes that the citizen and true hearted republican will assist him in this laudable undertaking. He will leave no stone unturned, as far as his ability will admit, to pursue and advocate unwaveringly those holy and righteous principles of the Constitution, which warmed the hearts of the patriots of seventy-six, and for the perpetuity of which, they cheerfully fell martyrs in the battle-field, and will, without respect to party, award to every individual, of whom he may have occasion to speak, the true reward of merit, without prejudice or restraint. He will, also, find place in his columns for scientific and literary subjects; he will notice the march of science here among us, the change of circumstances as well as the times and the seasons, and contrast the former with our present situation, as a community of people.

In contemplating the many misfortunes and adverse winds through which this people have had to pass, and now beholding them in peace, fast building up a noble city, and breathing once more a free air, it fills my bosom with no little degree of joy and my heart with gratitude to my God, that we still are remembered as his covenant people. In witnessing the growth and prosperity of the city for the three last years, the editor looks forward with feelings of pride emulating his bosom, and anticipates the day, not far distant, when, in point of population and the magnificence of her edifices, she will rival the great cities of the East.

Under these circumstances, and as the public weal imperiously demands the establishment of a weekly periodical, devoted (as The Wasp will be) to the dissemination of useful knowledge, of every description—the Arts, Science, Literature, Agriculture, Manufacture, Trade, Commerce, and the general news of the day, the editor cheerfully engages in the commendable enterprise.

It will be the editor's studious care, at all times, to serve up a choice dish of poetry, for the gratification and benefit of those who indulge in the inspiration of the muse.

With a firm reliance upon the good sense and intelligence of the citizens of this and the adjoining counties, and friends abroad, to bear him out in his undertaking, he has been induced to publish the above named paper; and, believing that it will meet with their cordial approbation and support, he hopes to render it an efficient auxiliary in promoting their best interests—the improvement of the mind of the youth and the instruction of the aged.

The Wasp will be published weekly, upon a small sheet, at first, until success and prosperity will enable us to enlarge our borders. It will be printed at the office of the "Times and Seasons," in the city of Nauvoo.

TERMS.—$1.50, invariably in advance.

Advertisements conspicuously inserted on the customary terms.

Any person procuring ten subscribers and forwarding fifteen dollars, current money, shall have one copy gratis.

All letters addressed to the editor must be post paid, or they will receive no attention.

WM. SMITH.

PLEASANT.—To go home at eleven o'clock at night—to find the door bolted—to creep in through the cellar window—to bark your shins over an old barrel—your wife absconded—a cold room—no wood—and the tooth ache—yes! very!

THE WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. VI.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, May 21, 1842.

Whole Number 6.

THE WASP.

IS EDITED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY

WM. SMITH,

At the corner of Water and Main Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.

TERMS.—$1.50 invariably in advance.

From the Natchez Free Trader.

ROMANTIC STORY.

The Boston Times says "that some one lately attempted to murder a sleeping woman by pouring hot lead into her ear, and that so shocking a circumstance was never heard of before." This is a mistake. A more remarkable instance occurred some years ago, in Virginia. We personally knew all the parties intimately. Col. F*, a gentleman of high respectability, and frequently a representative from his county, died, leaving a wife, some sons, and a very beautiful daughter, about 15 years of age. The widow, finding herself destitute, opened a boarding house at the county seat, and among her boarders was Mr. W., a wealthy merchant, in the meridian of life, and a very fine looking man. This gentleman was the prop and stay of the family, gave employment to the sons, furnished means to educate the daughter in the most fashionable manner, and conceived for her a violent passion. On her return from school, he addressed her, but she resisted alike his appeals and the importunities of her mother and friends. She had indeed, formed an attachment for a very nice young man in the same town, but he was not to be put in competition with the rich merchant in the estimation of the family. The young lady, perhaps, thought the otherwise. Finally, however, after two years of assiduity and delicate gallantry on the part of Mr. W., and the combined tears, entreaties, threats and persecution of the family, the fair girl stood before the altar and became his wife. The next evening a large party was given there, and in the midst of the dance Mr. W., being suddenly attacked with a vertigo and sick headache, was compelled to withdraw. His young wife hung over him in the silent watches of the night, apparently in deep distress, and insisted on giving him a potion. She poured out a wine glass full of laudanum, and he swallowed it without knowing its nature. From some cause it immediately acted as an emetic; but left him stupid and wandering. His senses reeled. One moment he would lay motionless and comatose as if on the borders of the spirit world, and then he would shriek and leap up convulsively, like a strong man in his agony. Mrs. W. denied all admission into the chamber. At length he fell into a gentle slumber. She then stooped for a moment over the smouldering embers—approached the bed, gazed at her sleeping husband, and holding a heated ladle in her hand, calmly prepared to pour a stream of melted lead into his ear. At that instant he moved, and the hissing fluid intended to penetrate to, and scald out, his brain, and thus cause death without a trace, fell upon his cheek. He shouted in excruciating pain, and the revellers, mother, brother, and friends, rushed in. There writhed the still stupid husband, the lead riveted deep into his cheek, and there stood the fiend wife, her formed, and direction given to the current of our thoughts and habits, but the instrument of death in her hand, and an empty vial labelled 'Laudanum' lying on the floor. The fearful realities of the case flashed on every one, and in the confusion of the moment she disappeared, and was hurried forthwith out of the common wealth to a distant State; on searching the room an old French magazine was found containing the death-bed confession of a woman, who had murdered nine husbands by pouring lead into their ears.—The laudanum and the lead, it was ascertained, she had procured from the store of Mr. W. a few days before the marriage, and the ladle used was part of a bridal present. The Grand Jury next morning found a bill against the fugitive, and the Legislature being in session, immediately decreed a final and absolute divorce. What renders this case the more singular is, that Miss T. was proverbial for the blandness of her manner and the universal softness of her temper. She was a blonde. The rose leaf tinted her lily cheeks as a sunbeam glows on snow. Her blue eyes were indescribably sweet, and her golden hair floated like drapery of gossamer, around a form more perfect and voluptuous, than ever Raphael dreamed of or Petrarch sung.—Often have we gazed, as she stood the cynosure of every circle, and wondered if angels could be so fair.

But the sequel of this romance is more singular still. Years rolled by and Mr. W. continued a wretched and solitary man. But the spell of the enchantress was still upon his soul. He closed his stores—sold out his estates—collected his ample means and followed her to her distant abode to make a new offer of his hand! She had just married a man of high standing, aware of all the circumstances, but incapable of resisting her charms. Poor W! Then indeed, did the iron enter his soul. "The deadly arrow quivered in his side." His early love—his fluctuating courtship—his triumph and the tragedy it occasioned—the flight—the birth of his passion, and now its disappointment, final and forever—come rushing over him, like an avalanche, in the tide of bitter memories, and he prayed for death! Whether this prayer was answered we know not. He may yet wander broken-hearted over the earth; but one thing we do know: If he be dead, a more wretched, yet a purer and nobler spirit never winged its flight to Heaven.

MEMORY.

Whatever has once given us pain or pleasure is remembered long, and recurs to often, as we pass down the journey of life to the gray hairs and solitudes of our last years. Love has been to every one the source of both. Every one has treasured away on the sacred pages of memory a thousand little incidents never to be revealed in time, to which as to some fascinating fiction, it returns, whenever a gloomy or an idle, unsocial hour, calls up the musing spirit—and turns the mind upon the past. Life, reviewed through the mist of by-gone years, seems rather a curious wrought fiction or a feverish dream than a stern reality.—We are surrounded by mementos of the affection of friends, but those friends, themselves are gone—we remember the counsels of wisdom, the sage instructions in their manners, by which our minds are than that of their person; that modesty and meekness are the true and lasting ornaments; for she that has these is long qualified as she ought to be for the management of a family, for the education of children, for an affection to her husband, and submitting to a prudent way of living. These only are the charms that render wives amiable, and give them the best title to our respect.

A SLEEPLESS WOMAN.—The Salem Observer states that there is a female in that city suffering from a general muscular contraction and distortion, resembling a universal tetanus, which has lasted from twelve to fifteen years. The patient who suffers it has not slept a wink for ten years past and is subject to occasional fits of extreme agony. Her mind is bright and clear, and she is patient and resigned to her hopeless situation.

THE MIND.

How awfully mysterious is the influence over us of the power which they call 'mind'! It is born, and cherished and nourished from a thousand invisible fountains; and as we increase its flow, its richness, its energy, its depth, so we enrich the vast shores and plains that surround it. The mind neither acknowledges or holds converse with birth, rank, or fortune, and by increasing its richness we increase our own. Beyond the reach of human power, even the most despotic, it can neither be given or taken away by man. Such is that beautiful and wonderful creation—the mind. Formed for the reception and culture of thought, fancy, feeling and imagination, it brings before us gifts of the spirit which makes kings and conquerors in the shadowy land of dreams. It is ours from birth to death, and it is our seraph guide from the dark-end valleys of earth to the sunny hills of eternity.

HOME AFFECTIONS.—How sweet are affections of social kindness? How balmy the influence of that regard which dwells around our fireside!—Distrust and doubt darken not the brightest of its purity—the harpings of interest and jealousy mark not the harmony of that scene.—Parental kindness and filial affection bloom there in all the freshness of an eternal spring. It matters not if the world is cold if the selfishness and injustice of mankind return our warm sympathies barren, if we turn to our dear circle, and ask and receive all that our heart claims. The exchange of kindly affections in confidence and trust, is the purest enjoyment of our nature."

The shortest way to murder character.—Profess your friendship for a man—tell him how much you love him—proclaim how many excellent qualities he possesses, and then, with a very sanctified look, and impressive sigh, express your fear that all is not as it should be. Whisper suspicion, and let conjecture, with giant strength, work out the ruin! He who understands human nature in its deeper workings of damnable cruelty, and selfish artifice, says a certain shrewd writer, will mark the man who steals another under the cloak of pretended affection. The pretence has a lie, adds he, on the face of it. True affection would never whisper a suspicion, save in the ear of the one beloved, and whom that suspicion concerned.—Never trust that man who comes to you whining over his regard for another, while his tongue is a drawn sword to wound and kill—meet him promptly with the charge of his hypocrisy, and he will sink with meanness before you.

WIVES.

Woman should be acquainted that no beauty hath any charms but the inward one of the mind; and that a gracefulness in their manners is much more engaging than that of their person; that modesty and meekness are the true and lasting ornaments; for she that has these is long qualified as she ought to be for the management of a family, for the education of children, for an affection to her husband, and submitting to a prudent way of living. These only are the charms that render wives amiable, and give them the best title to our respect.

A SLEEPLESS WOMAN.—The Salem Observer states that there is a female in that city suffering from a general muscular contraction and distortion, resembling a universal tetanus, which has lasted from twelve to fifteen years. The patient who suffers it has not slept a wink for ten years past and is subject to occasional fits of extreme agony. Her mind is bright and clear, and she is patient and resigned to her hopeless situation.

"Ah, you tarnal Sewke, I loves you, I doz."
"La, Jonathan."
"Wal, you needn't kinde' haul off that way. Come here, Sewke."
"I shan't." (She comes up, though.)
"Oh Sewke, I wish I was that pin."
"La, Jonathan, how you does talk poetix."
"Wal, I knows it; my mother rit varves—"
If, Sewke, if I was only that pin.
"Now Jonathan do tell me what ye mean."
O dear, Sewke, if I was only that pin, I should be so happy, koz you see then I'd rest my head on that fond and lovin' boozum of yours.
"Why Jonathan!"

The Texas squadron sweeps the Gulf like a new broom. They captured one Mexican vessel within eye shot of the harbor and castle of Vera Cruz. The Texian Navy is well maintained without a dollar's expence to Texas.

A man took off his coat to show a terrible wound he had received on his arm. Not being able to find it, said he recollected—'twas brother Bill's arm.

An Irishman cautions the public against harboring or trusting his wife Peggy, on his account, as he is not married to her.

Snuff-takers differ from all the rest of the world, for they turn up their noses at what they most admire.

The following are the estimates of the English army, and their present distribution:

The number of officers, non-commissioned officers, and rank and file which it was proposed to maintain for the service of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, (exclusive of the troops employed in the East Indies,) for the ensuing year, was 95,628. The number employed in the East Indies, and paid by the East India Company, was 26,940; so that the total amount of force for the ensuing year would be 122,568 men. This number was composed of 108,086 rank and file, 5,808 officers, and 8,674 non-commissioned officers. There was therefore, an addition to the force for this year, as compared with last year, of 1,447 men. This increase was accounted for in the following manner: The Royal Canadian Regiment amounted to 1,100 men, the St. Helena corps to 430, and there had also been an augmentation of the 3d West India Regiment, amounting to 230, making a total of 1,760 men in addition to the estimate of last year; but, after deducting about 600 men, which decrease would arise from the working of the depots, as explained in the second page of the votes, the real increase appeared to be about 1,100 men. The pressure on the troops for the last four years had been such, that he thought it necessary that means should be devised for relieving them. There were 50 battalions of infantry abroad, in addition to 28 in New South Wales, in India, and in China. The total number was 103, leaving only 25 at home. It was impossible that the 25 at home could carry on the relief of the 78 abroad, 42 of which were serving in tropical climates. When the revolution in Canada broke out in 1837, there were only 9 battalions, 4,500 men strong, in North America, and now 19 were there, exclusive of two battalions of Guards, and the Royal Canadian Regiment, 1,000 men strong. In India, New South Wales, and China, there were now 28 battalions instead of 25. This was an increase of 14 battalions more than existed four years ago. Looking therefore to the state of affairs, the committee would, doubtless, be of opinion that it was necessary by some expedient to remedy this state of things. He therefore proposed to the Government that six of the depots should be increased to six companies of 100 men each, and that they should be sent abroad to six healthy stations; for instance, to Gibraltar, Bermuda, Halifax, or Quebec, or the Mediterranean, and that there they should take the garrison duty, the same as the service companies.

THE RIGHT OF SEARCH.

The British Government has at length relinquished the long contested right of searching American vessels on the high seas, in time of peace, on any pretence whatever. This announcement is made in a note from Lord Ashburton, Special Minister from England to this Government, to Mr. Stenson, our late Minister to the Court of St. James. "The right of search," says Lord Ashburton in his note, "except when specially conceded by treaty, is a purely belligerent right, and can have no existence on the high seas in time of peace. British cruisers are not instructed to detain American vessels under any pretence whatever; on the contrary, they are ordered to abstain from all interference with them, be they Slavers or otherwise." The English Government, however, contends that where reasonable suspicion exists that the American flag has been abused for the purpose of covering the vessels of other Nations engaged in the Slave Trade, that in such a case she has a right to direct her cruisers, on the coast of Africa, to enter on board any suspicious vessels, for the purpose of ascertaining their true character; and if on examination, it should turn out that they are American vessels, and even engaged in the Slave Trade, the British Government claims no right to interfere. The right of searching suspected vessels carrying the American flag should be conceded by our Government to that of Great Britain.

Our Government has abolished the Slave Trade, and declared it piracy; and surely it will place her in a most inconsistent position should she suffer her flag, no difference by what Nation carried, to protect the piratical trade in human beings. The American flag, if in all cases it is to be the unequivocal evidence of Nationality, will be hoisted on board of every slaver on the high seas, and the Stars and the Stripes will thus be made to screen the most nefarious traffic ever engaged in by man.

THE WIFE.

It needs not guilt to break a husband's heart; the absence of content; the mutterings of spleen, the untidy dress and cheerless home, the forbidden scowl, and deserted hearth; these and other nameless neglects, without a crime among them, have harrowed to the quick the core of many a man, and planted there beyond the reach of cure the gloom of dark despair. Oh! may woman before that sad sight arrives, dwell on the recollections of her youth, and awake and keep alive the promises she then so kindly gave, and though she may be injured, not the injuring one—the forgotten, not the forgetful wife—a happy allusion to that hour of peace and love—a kindly welcome to that comfortable home—a smile of love to banish hostile words—a kiss of peace to pardon all the past, and the hardest heart that ever locked itself within the breast of selfish man will soften to her charms, and bid her live, as she had hoped, her years, in matchless bliss—loved, loving and content—the souther in the sorrowing hour, the source of comfort and the spring of joy.

THE WASP.

SATURDAY, MAY 21, 1842.

WE WERE NOT THE AGGRESSORS.

After our property had been wrested from us and the declaration gone forth that we were forthwith to leave the county, we were anxious as far as possible, to recover what we had lost, and been by treachery and fraud so unexpectedly deprived of. Accordingly, we went peacefully into the settlements to recover our property; but no sooner did we make known our business, than we were insulted, derided and calumniated by every epithet and indignity that their degenerated intellects were able to invent. Some were whipped, tarred, feathered and tortured with every cruelty possible. Daily aggressions were now made upon our homes, our firesides; property was clandestinely taken from us in the silent watches of the night, and at the noon-day hour; our families insulted, our hearths desecrated, and our lives periled. This state of things existing, we were again compelled to petition for assistance. We applied to General Atchison, who immediately came to our assistance with a strong military force. He marched to Gallatin, where his troops were stationed several days. At their appearance in the county the mob immediately dispersed, avowing their intention to be peaceable and orderly. But this determination proved to be remarkably short lived. No sooner had General Atchison returned to Clay and disbanded his troops than plunder, rapine pillage, and the work of devastation was resumed with renewed vigor, and determination. He was again applied to for assistance. At his re-appearance in the county the mob dispersed as before, and again declared their intentions to keep the peace. Gen. Atchison saw their treachery and how futile and vain were his efforts to restore peace; he knew that were he to interfere too strenuously in the affair, that it would plunge the whole state into difficulty, and commotion, and with these considerations he withdrew his troops and left us to defend ourselves against our assailants. Again the mob renewed their aggressions; their force became more formidable and oppressive; daily aggressions were made to their numbers and the work of barbarity commenced with redoubled energy. A certain individual by the name of Gilliam, then a representative from the Platte country in the Legislature, of his State, backed by his whole party, came

Black spirits and white,

Blue spirits and gray.

now made his appearance upon the stage of action. To follow him through all his acts of plunder, barbarity and cruelty, would be a task too arduous and intricate to be undertaken. They are traced indelibly, with an impress that defies the revolutions of time to efface, upon the tablet of many a widowed heart, and upon the memory of many a helpless and unprotected orphan, and it sufficeth us to know that justice, stern and inflexible, will sooner or later overtake him. He was indeed an able competitor for the very amiable, patriotic and pious Methodist priest Bogard, who is another demon from the dark and benighted regions of Hades sent to figure upon the earth in human shape and carry on the work of desolation among the children of men. The midnight slumbers of the saints were repeatedly broken by the hostile and appalling yells of these lawless rabbles, and from the quietude of their peaceful homes, they were forced to fly to arms that they might protect their families from death, their homes from plunder, and their hearths from desecration.

SPRING—POETRY.

Spring, with all her variety of charms and beauties, has enlivened inert nature and aroused the flowers and surrounding vegetation to life and beauty. She brings in her fragrant lap the emblems of peace, enjoyment, happiness, contentment and beauty. The grass springs up invitingly to the grazing herds; the playful lamb disports in security upon the downy plain; the shrill lowings of the ox echo from the grass-clad hills; gentle warblers send their mellow music from the cloud-capt pinnacle of the fragrant mountain—and all nature is replete with the unison of ten thousand commingling voices that pour their mellow music into the ear of the delighted listener, and throws a bright, etherealizing charm over the contemplative sensibilities of the mind. Poetry, we may say, is the production of Spring—it throws over the mind a wild, romantic contemplation—gives zest and animation to the drooping spirit, and expansion to the intellect. It draws out the finest feelings of the secret soul—charms the senses—makes the imagination clear and vivid; and, indeed, there is no qualification requisite for writing poetry that spring does not bestow. Spring! there is poetry in the very word—it is nought but the poetry of nature!

AMISTAD AFRICANS AT SIERRA LEONE.

By the British brig James Hay, Price, master, which arrived this morning in 45 days from Sierra Leone, the committee have received letters from the missionaries as late as Feb. 19th. They arrived out Jan. 15th, 50 days from New York, all well. The particulars of the passage have not come to hand as the first four letters have not arrived. Rev. James Steele writes Jan. 20th, and Feb. 1st, and Rev. William Raymond as late as Feb. 19th. The British authorities and missionaries and inhabitants received the party very kindly. All their stores, tools, books, the printing press, &c., were admitted without duty or even examination.

Difficulties seemed to prevent the Mendians and missionaries from going directly to Mendi. The dangers of war in the interior, and of being captured and sold into slavery, deterred them. There was some danger that it would be difficult if not impracticable for them to plant themselves down in the interior, and that they would be obliged to establish themselves near the coast and work back into the interior. The Mendians want to go as near their own country as possible, where their relations can have easy access to them. They prefer some place in the vicinity of the Gallinas. Mr. Steele had therefore determined on an exploring tour. The Amistad Africans and from 200 to 600 Kossos (Mendi people) whom they found at Sierra Leone were ready to go and settle with the missionaries wherever they should fix themselves. Dr. Ferguson, the Lieut. Governor, said that if the successors to the late governor, Sir John Jay, was not daily expected from England, he would at once appoint a superintendent to go with them. In the meantime he offered to furnish a boat and crew. But the next day, Jan. 30th, Sir George McDonald, the new governor, arrived. He expressed himself very favorably towards the missionaries and those under their charge, and advised Mr. Steele to proceed on his tour, ascertain the disposition of the people, report to him his success, and state the aid he wished from the British Government. Mr. Steele left on Thursday, without any white men in company, (Mr. Dove of the Wesleyan mission being prevented from accompanying him by sickness in his family) Feb. 3d, with Cinque, Bau-na, Wu, Fula-Wa, and Covey. They were to have been accompanied by Mr. Dove. Mr. Raymond had received word that they staid over the Sabbath at York, 20 to 25 miles from Sierra Leone, where there is a Wesleyan Station, and on Monday proceeded on. They had not returned February 19th, when the brig James Hay sailed for New York.

Mr. Raymond writes that they had hired a house for the Mendians, his family, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson, the colored teachers belonging to the mission family, for four dollars a week. It was sufficiently large to hold all the people and their goods. So-ko-ma, one of the Amistad Africans, had agreed to cook for the whole party at two dollars a month, and his clothing. They consumed daily about twenty quarts of rice, and a shilling sterling worth of fish. The clothes have to be carried out of town for washing at some brook, as it is too dusty to dry them in town. Mr. R. was employed, during the absence of Mr. Steele, in putting his chisels, augurs, axes, pitsaw, &c. in order, and in getting blacksmithing done. Mr. R. and her infant daughter had been slightly sick, but Mr. R. says, after a month's residence at Sierra Leone, "I never enjoyed better health than during this stay." Thus far I have felt as great energy both of mind and body, as I felt in my own country, though I cannot endure near as much hardships here as there." Mr. and Mrs. Wilson were well. The Europeans generally at Sierra Leone drink wine, ale, porter and brandy, so freely that there is no wonder they are suddenly taken sick and die. Teme, the youngest of the three Mendian girls, asked Mrs. R. if she might drink palm tree wine, (which is merely the sap of the palm tree, and when pure and fresh has no intoxicating quality) as she had joined a temperance society in America.

Some of the Amistad Africans had been recognized by their countrymen and others at Sierra Leone, viz: Grabbeau, Bar-tu, &c. It is said that the liberated Africans in the colony are from 66 different tribes, and that the Mendians are the most numerous. The Mendians are said to be warlike, and to sell their captives, &c.

The conduct of Cinque and the rest (with the exception of the girls, and some of the men and lads) had not been so good as the missionaries had hoped, particularly in not abstaining from their old licentious habits. Still the missionaries were full of hope, anxiously desirous of securing some retreat where good regulations might be observed. The Mendians were highly pleased in continuing their school instruction.

Several slave ships had been sent in and condemned.—N. Y. Jour. of Com.

MOST IMPORTANT.

The question which now agitates Rhode Island is the most important which has arisen in this country since the Declaration of Independence. It is whether sovereignty resides in the people, or in the Government. It is whether a majority of the people have a right to alter or abolish their form of Government.

The form of government in Rhode Island is derived from the Royal Charter, not having been changed since the Revolution. Under that charter none but freeholders have a right to vote. For years attempts were made to procure the call of a convention through the Legislature, with the view of extending the right of suffrage, and making other changes, but the freeholders were tenacious of their power. At length the people took the matter into their hands, called a convention without the consent of the Legislature and that body formed a constitution which was afterwards ratified by the direct votes of a decided majority of the male population over twenty-one years of age.

The Legislature then took the matter in hand and called a convention which submitted another constitution to the people, or to a portion of them, by whom it was rejected.

This rejection can be considered only at a second ratification of the popular constitution by a majority of the people. Notwithstanding these facts the Governor and Legislature holding under the Royal Charter have passed an act pronouncing the constitution adopted by the people null and void, imposing heavy fines on all who attempt to carry it into effect, and declaring all such attempts treason against the State and punishable as such. The Governor has issued his proclamation forbidding all proceedings under the constitution and has ordered the militia to hold themselves in readiness to march at a half an hour's notice with fixed ammunition.

The principle on which the Royal Government of Rhode Island is acting is precisely that of the crowned heads of Europe. It is that constitutions can rightfully emanate only from the existing government; it is, that the sovereignty rests, not in the people, but in the Government; it is, that neither a majority of the people nor the whole people have a right to alter or abolish their form of government without the permission or authority of their rulers for the time being—rulers who in this country are out the agents of the people!

This doctrine reverses the principles of the Declaration of Independence, and makes the revolution a rebellion and our existing Government a usurpation. To be consistent the Legislature ought to proclaim the President and Congress a set of usurpers and renew their allegiance to the crown of Great Britain.

We do not wonder that the blood of Roger Williams waxes hot at the assertion of such principles.

Pacific as we are in principle and inclination, we should unquestionably enrol ourselves among the traitors were we a citizen of Rhode Island. We should do this, not so much on account of the present question, important as it is, as from a determination never silently or quietly to see such a precedent established in a country where we expect to leave our children.

We are told that the Royal party have appealed to President Tyler to aid them in putting down a majority of the people and the constitution, in the well grounded belief, no doubt that they cannot rely on the militia of the State; a large majority of whom are on the side of the people. The popular party have also, it is said, sent a delegation to Washington to ask or to prevent the interposition of the General Government. The occasion has not arrived when this Government can lawfully interfere, we trust, it never will; but if it should, President Tyler and his Cabinet will have to decide for the occasion whether the principles of the revolution shall still prevail in America, or whether the principles of European Monarchy shall be restored. We shall not anticipate the decision.—U. Dem.

IMPORTANT FROM MEXICO.

Sale of California to England.—By late arrivals at New Orleans, we learn that it is currently reported in Vera Cruz that Santa Anna had negotiated a loan with England for several millions of dollars, and had agreed to deliver the Californian into their hands, until the money should be returned.

An American gentleman, who left the city of Mexico on the 6th inst. heard there of the English loan to Santa Anna's government, but did not understand that the Californians were to be given as a security. He adds that the public mind was in an unsettled state in Mexico—there was thought to be a strong party opposed to Santa Anna, and some people went so far as to anticipate another revolution. Rumor was also afloat that Santa Anna would declare himself Emperor, and seize on the property of the church, should the clergy oppose him.

About 20,000 troops were stationed in the capital; 4,000 at Xalapa, 4,000 at Vera Cruz, and considerable bodies were said to be in the northern departments.

There was no talk of invading Texas. The prisoners were still made to work in chains. Two of them, however, one by the name of Howard, had effected their escape. Mr. Kendall was still in the hospital on the 6th inst. but in good health and good humor.

The government of Mexico has renewed an old decree, requiring all strangers to have a pass about them, which pass is to be presented at the beginning of every year for re-inspection.

A Mexican armed steamer and an armed schooner were lying at Vera Cruz.

A letter from General Bravo, dated at Chilpancingo, March 32, gives an account of the defeat of a band of native Mexicans, or red men, who had taken up arms against the government.

PERSIAN INTEGRITY.

A curious account is given in Malcom's Persia, of Shaikh Mohydeen Abdool Kander. Being induced to undertake a religious life, after the fashion of his country, his mother, taking out eighty deniers, as he says, gave him half, as all his inheritance, the other half being reserved for his brother.

"She made me swear, when she gave it to me, never to tell a lie; and afterwards bade me farewell, exclaiming, 'Go, my son, I give thee to God. We shall not meet again until the day of judgment.' I went on well, till I came near Hamadan, when our kiffiah was plundered by sixty horsemen. One fellow asked me what I had got? 'Forty deniers,' said I, 'are sewed under my garment.' The fellow laughed, thinking, no doubt, I was joking him. 'What have you got?' said another. 'I gave him the same answer.'—When they were dividing the spoil, I was called to an eminence where their chief stood. 'What property have you, my little fellow?' said he. 'I have told your people already,' I replied; 'I have got forty deniers sewed up carefully in my clothes. He desired them to be ripped open, and found my money. 'And how came you,' said he with surprise, 'to declare so openly what has been so carefully hidden?' 'Because,' I replied, 'I will not be false to my mother, to whom I have promised never to conceal the truth.' 'Child,' said the robber, 'hast thou such a sense of thy duty to thy mother at thy years; and am I insensible, at my age, of the duty I owe to my God? Give me thy hand, and ancient boy,' he continued, 'that I may swear repentance upon it.' He did so. His followers were alike struck with this scene. 'You have been our leader in guilt,' said they to their chief; 'be the same in the path of virtue;' and instantly, at his order, they made restitution of their spoil, and vowed repentance on my hand."—Organ.

IRON WAR STEAMERS.—The steamer which is to be built on Mr. Stevens' plan is to be shot and shell proof; the engine and propelling apparatus are to be so placed as that the latter shall be submerged, and the whole engine out of the way of shot from the vessel of an enemy. Her guns to be large and to be adapted to both shot and shell, and her burthen not less than 1500 tons. Mr. Stevens' vessel, says the report which has been made in Congress on this subject, will possess many advantages.—She will scarcely present a vulnerable point to the fire of an enemy, while those constructed on the old method have a large surface exposed. The hull being low, will cause it difficult to hit her; whereas the lofty sides of a seventy-four will make her a fair mark. Being able to approach within point blank shot, she can fire shells and grape shot into the large port holes of her antagonist, with terrible effect. The thickness of her bulwarks (4½ inches) will make a very small opening for the guns necessary, and this is to be effectually protected by a drop curtain of the same material as the sides of the ship; so that in truth her men will be hardly exposed to danger. She will combine all the advantages of a ship and battery, being a kind of floating iron fort, and having no vital points exposed, such as spars, sails, &c. She will be free from accidents then, which oftentimes render a vessel unmanageable. Hollow shot or shells will burst in pieces against the walls of his steamer, which if made of wood they would penetrate, doing as much damage as round shot, and if they exploded much more.

INGENIOUS EXPEDIENT.

In the year 1792, the female part of population at Tulon, in France, declared themselves in a state of insurrection. They were at first laughed at, and their threats treated with contempt; but when they proceeded to acts of violence, it was found necessary to disperse them. Some regiments of troops were ordered out for that purpose; but the hostile manoeuvres of the militia appeared to make no impression on this extraordinary assemblage of Amazons. The municipal authorities were reluctant to have recourse to sanguinary measures in order to quell the insurrection, and various expedients to intimidate the fair rebels, were resorted to in vain. At last the Procurator Syndic devised a method which was attended with complete success. He ordered the fire-engines to be brought out, and filled with water, mixed with a quantum sufficit of soot. When all was ready for the conflict, they were carried in front of the enemy, and the smutty contents of the artillery were vigorously discharged into the thickest of their ranks. The phalanx was broken: the petticoated insurgents speedily vanished from the field of battle, and returned to their homes with drenched and soiled garments and sooty complexions.

BANK OF ILLINOIS.

This institution is diminishing her circulation with more rapidity than we expected. The Amazon, which left here yesterday, had on board $70,000 for the Bank, which, added to $393,000, will swell the specie in her vaults to $463,000; and, Mr. Gatewood, the agent, has just redeemed here $240,000, and the Bank of Missouri has sealed up, and, in effect retired $110,000 in addition, of the notes of the Bank of Illinois, making an aggregate of $350,000, withdrawn, which, with other transactions, reduces the circulation of the Bank to less than $600,000. By the day fixed on for resumption, she will have more than $400,000 in specie, and $200,000 in sight exchange—an amount which will exceed her circulation, and render resumption easy and permanent. This information is derived from the Agent of the Bank—and we think it demonstrates that the conduct of its officers merits the highest commendation.—Mo. Reporter.

POETRY.

From the Richmond Palladium.
TO A FRIEND IN AFFLICTION.

My friend I cannot say to thee,
No longer weep or mourn,
Thou canst not from such sorrow flee,
As has thy bosom torn.

For oh! an arrow sharp and strong,
Is quivering in thy heart,
Thy manly spirit crushed and torn,
Has felt a piercing dart.

She whom thou cherished as thine own,
Who claimed thy fondest love,
Who shed around thy peaceful home,
Joy e'en like those above—

Clothed in a robe of purest white,
She treads the golden street;
Or crowned with Jesus' radiant light,
She worships at his feet.

Transplanted in a heavenly clime,
More lovely she appears
Than when to earth thou called her mine,
When love dispersed all tears.

There in the presence of her God,
Happy she waits for thee;
Her heart can feel no painful throb:
In blest eternity.

Then upwards raise thy tearful eye,
Behold thy dearest L—

In paradise in heaven on high,
She dwells, where Jesus dwells.

'Tho' sorrow wrings thy broken heart,
Methinks I hear thee say,
From her I love, I cheerful part,
God's way is not my way.

Not willingly does he afflict,
His children here below,
For our good part he oft permits,
His hand to crush us low.

Unto his throne I daily go,
And plead his pard'ning love,
I'll lay up treasures not below,
But in my home above.

Richmond, April 12th, 1842.

REFLECTIONS ON THE GRAVE.

The grave! the narrow grave! how silent! yet how eloquent—It damps and seems to press upon the heart with the weight of mortal sorrow and the stern chill of oblivion. How vain, how worthless are all the joys of earth, when standing upon the brink of that which so feelingly reminds us of man's littleness. Yet of his immortality, of time and eternity, before this petty of dust, bends the pride of the strong in heart. The ambition that spurned nations from its feet—the intellect that made its own immortality—the avarice that transmuted blood and tears to gold by its accursed alchemy—the gold consumed on its unholy altar alike the priest and the victim—the lust that melted the Circean cup of pleasure; all, all are as hushed in the presence of this lowly monitor, as the mouldering relics that sleep beneath its bosom. Yet amid the silence and desolation, springs there no flower of hope—child of a brighter sky and a more genial clime? Read we no lesson of virtue, written as with the finger of Truth in the dust of mortality? Yes! religion's bow of promise spans it with the hues of heaven; and while it teaches man the true value of all that is passing away, it points his aspiring though humble spirit, to the future—the glorious, the unchangeable.

A quarry of bird's eye marble has been discovered near Iowa City, that bears a polish equal to the finest Italian. Specimens have been taken to St. Louis, where they have been set in gold for breast-pins.

A writer in Blackwood says the French have no Shakspeare, no Milton, no Spenser, no Burns, no Hogg—consequently no Bacon.

New election of Mayor, and Vice Mayor, of the City of Nauvoo, on the resignation of General Bennett.

On the 17th Instant General John C. Bennett resigned the office of Mayor of the City of Nauvoo, and on the 19th General Joseph Smith, the former Vice Mayor, was duly elected to fill the vacancy—and on the same day General Hyrum Smith was elected Vice Mayor in place of General Joseph Smith elected Mayor.

The following vote of thanks was then unanimously voted to the Ex Mayor, General Bennett, by the City Council: to wit: Resolved by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, that this Council tender a vote of thanks to General John C. Bennett, for his great zeal in having good and wholesome laws adopted for the Government of this city; and for the faithful discharge of his duty while Mayor, of the same. Passed May 19th 1842.

JOSEPH SMITH, Mayor.
JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

Major General's Office, Nauvoo Legion, City of Nauvoo, Ill., May 20th, 1842.

To the citizens of the City of Nauvoo:—
I have this day received an order from General Joseph Smith, Mayor of said city, to detail a regular night watch for the city which I have executed by selecting, and placing on duty, the following named persons; to wit: D. B. Huntington, W. D. Huntington, L. N. Scovill, C. Allen, A. P. Rockwood, N. Rogers, S. Roundy, and J. Arnold, who will hereafter be obeyed, and respected, as such, until further orders.

JOHN C. BENNETT,
Major General.

Mayor's Office, City of Nauvoo, }
May 20th A. D. 1842. }

To the City Watch:—
You are hereby directed to appear at my office, daily, at 6 o'clock, P. M., to receive orders; and at 6 o'clock, A. M., to make reports; until regularly disbanded by the Major General of the Legion, by my order.

JOSEPH SMITH, Mayor.

Wretchedness in London.—Mr. Hartley, in his recently published work on milk, says it is estimated that in London there are 12,000 children undergoing a system of vicious training, to fill the ranks of those who are removed by transportation, imprisonment, violent or natural death—that 30,000 persons live by theft and fraud; 3,000 are regular receivers of stolen goods; 10,000 are beggars about the streets; 15,000 are habitual gin-drinkers; 23,000 are annually found drunk in the streets; and 150,000 have abandoned themselves to systematic debauchery and profligacy.—Organ.

There is among the Chinese the abridgment of an Encyclopedia in four hundred and sixty volumes, while the Encyclopedia itself consists of six thousand volumes!

DR. J. F. WELD,

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS,

Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30; 1842.

District Court of the United States, }
within and for the District of Illinois. }

In the matter of the petition of Arthur Morrison of Hancock co., to be declared a Bankrupt and be discharged from his debts.
Notice is hereby given that Arthur Morrison, of Hancock co., has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April, A. D. 1842.
J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT.
Solicitors for Petitioner.

ATTEST: James F. Owings, Clerk.
STRAYED,
FROM the "Trustee in Trust," President Joseph Smith, a black Cow and Calf, the titheing of Joseph Carleton. Whoever will return said cow, and give information of the same, will add to the funds of the Temple, and a reasonable charge will be paid if wished. May 21, 1842.

POETRY.

For the Wasp.

TO THE WRITERS OF FICTION.

BY MISS ELIZA R. SNOW.

Oh, why indulge the gifted pen
To float through fiction's fairy field—
To chant the deeds of fabled men,
And weave the garland phantoms yield?
Truth, has gay arbors, crowned with love—
Broad fields, where pleasure gambols free;
And deeps, where shrouded spirits move,
And lights of folded mystery.
And there are pearls of dazzling hue
In wisdom's deep, unfathom'd sea—
Fair gems, the path of virtue strew,
Surpassing those of mimicry.
And real life has rich romance
Which fancy's touch cannot enhance;
And sad existence often swells
The tragic scenes, that fiction tells.
Shall the bright sun of reason fade,
And sink in fancy's mystic shade?
Shall bold realities retire
Before imagination's fire?
Or shall a lofty genius bow,
To twine around its noble brow
A garland from inferior soil,
When half the culture—half the toil.
If spent in truth's luxuriant field,
Would rich, unfading laurels yield—
Would reap celestial diadems
Emblazon'd with immortal gems?
Ye favor'd ones, who sit beneath
The glorious gospel's heav'nly sound;
Crave not the pebbles on the heath—
Pluck not the shrubs of barren ground.
Waste not the gift that God has giv'n
To you, on things beneath your care;
But let your genius soar to heav'n,
And bask in beams of glory there.

INDUSTRY AND INTEGRITY.

There is nothing impossible to man which industry and integrity will not accomplish. The poor boy of yesterday, so poor that a dollar was a miracle in his vision, houseless, shoeless and breadless—compelled to wander on foot from village to village, with his bundle on his back, in order to procure labor and the means of subsistence, has become the talented and honorable young man of to-day, by the power of his good right arm, and the potent influence of his pure principles, firmly held and perpetually maintained. When poverty and what the world calls disgrace stared him in the face, he shuddered not, but pressed onward and exulted most in high and great exertion in the midst of accumulating disasters and calamities. Let this young man be cherished for he honors his country and dignifies his race. High blood—what matters it if this courses not his veins—he is a freeman American, and therefore a sovereign and a prince. Wealth—what cares he for that, so long as his heart is pure, and his walk upright—he knows and his country knows that the little finger of an honest and upright young man is worth more than the whole body of an effeminate and dishonest rich man. These are the men who make the country—who bring to it whatever of iron sinew and unflinching spirit it possesses or desires—who are rapidly rendering it the mightiest, as it is already the freest land beneath the circle of the sun.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus
J. Salbery, Plymouth.
Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Chiffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esp. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Page, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
James Curtis, Horners Town.
W. Appleby, Reclless Town.
Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Salem.
Feeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapier.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirtland.
NEW YORK.
Charles Thompson, Batavia.
L. R. Foster, city New York.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Amos Davis, of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Amos Davis of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

In the matter of the Petition of GEORGE BACKSTER, a bankrupt to be discharged from his debts. NOTICE is hereby given to all creditors and others interested of George Backster a bankrupt to appear before the District Court of the United States on the 8th day of July, A. D. 1842, at the city of Springfield, in the district of Illinois, and show cause if any they have why the aforesaid George Backster should not receive a final discharge from all his debts, and a certificate thereof be granted to him. Dated at Springfield this 4th day of April A. D. 1842.

Strong & Doremus, solicitors for petitioner.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Charles Warner, of Hancock co., to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Charles Warner, of Hancock co., has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 2nd day of May, A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Windsor P. Lyon, of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Windsor P. Lyon of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 2nd day of May A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

A RARE CHANCE, AND THE ONLY VACANCY ON THE TEMPLE BLOCK.

The subscriber wishing to close his business in the city, offers for sale his house and lot, (a pleasant situation, with a good garden) adjoining the Temple Block, on the north side; also, an improvement of a house and lot, pleasantly situated on the bluff a few hundred yards from the Temple.

He will receive as part pay for the above mentioned property, a good horse, harness, and carriage, a certain amount in dry goods, or other good property, and the balance in cash; or he will exchange for a suitable location in some adjoining town.

F. G. BISHOP.

Nauvoo, May 6th, 1842.

VALUABLE FARM FOR SALE.

Situated 5 miles south west of Carthage, 12 miles from Warsaw, and 16 miles from the city of Nauvoo, containing 240 acres; half timber, and the balance farming land, with about 100 acres under fence. A comfortable dwelling house, good stable and other out buildings; also a thriving young apple orchard &c. &c.

The said tract may advantageously be divided into two or more smaller farms with never failing stock-water running through each tract.

Price low, and terms accommodating. Apply to
J. B. BACKENSTOS,
Carthage Hancock co. Ill. May 6th, 1842.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of George Morey, of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that George Morey of Hancock county, has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the city of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of John P. Green of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that John P. Green of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the city of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April, A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Joseph Smith, of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Joseph Smith, of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Sidney Rigdon of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Sidney Rigdon of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Vinson Knight, of Hancock county, to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Vinson Knight of Hancock county has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Reynolds Cahoon of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Reynolds Cahoon of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April, A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Samuel H. Smith, of Hancock County, to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Samuel H. Smith of Hancock County has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Hyrum Smith, of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Hyrum Smith of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April, A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Jared Carter, of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Jared Carter, of Hancock county has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Henry G. Sherwood of Hancock County to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Henry G. Sherwood of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this district, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Elias Higbee, of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Elias Higbee, of Hancock county, has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the district Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April, A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. VII.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, May 28, 1842.

Whole Number 7

THE WASP,

EDITED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY

WM. SMITH,

At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.
TERMS.—$1.50 invariably in advance.

POETRY.

For the Wasp.

THE SECTARIAN MILLENNIUM.

BY W. W. PHELPS.

'Tis said about six thousand years,
Of ancient time, have fled,—
Which brings us near the perfect day
When God will raise the dead.

Our spotted priests, the leopard beast,
(Without a prophet blest),
Whose union by division stands,
Now claim this promised rest.

It seems as if their bitter fruit
Was ripe'ning in the flower,
They have a form of godliness,
And yet deny the power.

Lo, there goes by a gracious one,
Upon that rail-road car;—
How rich and grand his clothing is,
To what the prophets were!

With wool and fur, and silk and gold,
And friends reverse from Job's,
He flares along an easy life,
In sacerdotal robes.

There must have been a monstrous change
Since God reveal'd the plan;—
He chang'd the heart, and not the clothes,
To make a better man.

He's been to York, with other priests,
To give the Lord a hint,
That the millennium is near,—
And put the time in print.—

The twenty-fourth of Mathew has
One secret to disclose,
And that is—"of that day and hour"
The Father only knows."

By Daniel's numbers and the like
These black-coats make it plain:—
In eighteen hundred forty three
The Lord will come again.

Could this be so and holy writ,
By God fulfil at once,
What mighty scenes would rush on earth,
In less than twenty months.

The Jews will build Jerusalem,
According to the word;
And every nation muster there
To fight against the lord.

There he will judge and slay his foes;
And Babylon will fall;
And fowls and beasts will have their feast,
On rich men, great and all.

And Israel will be gathered home,
By his Almighty hand;
And with their dead, in flesh and bones,
Be planted in the land.

An awful hail-stone will whirl forth,
And sweep the earth of lies;
The mountains will be tumbled down,
And ev'ry valley rise.

Earthquakes, and blood, and fire, and plague,
And wide-spread war, abound;
The sun and moon refuse to shine;
The earth turn upside down.—

Great God! eight hundred millions, too,
Will die within two years!
For, as it was at Noah's flood,
'Twill be when Christ appears.

But, Father, we rely on what
The prophets promis'd first:
So that before that noted day,
Lest earth and all be curs'd.

Thou'lt send Elijah back with power,
And make our union strong;
And gather thine elect from far,
For wisdom works no wrong.

'Tis true, the earth, and heaven, and all,
As one, shall Christ obey;
Yet satan's lying wonders come,
Before the perfect day.

Therefore, ye wise, beware of what
The gentiles teach for pelf;
For God ne'er order'd them to do
What he will do himself.
November 1841.

THE TRUANT HUSBAND.

"The painful vigil may I never know.
That anxious watcher o'er a wanderer's heart."

It was past midnight and she sat leaning her pale cheek on her hand, counting the dull ticking of a French clock that stood on the marble chimney-piece, and ever and anon lifting her weary eye to its dial to mark the laps of another hour. It was past midnight and yet he returned not!—She arose, and taking up the lamp, whose pale rays alone illuminated the solitary chamber, proceeded with noiseless steps to a small inner apartment. The curtains of his little bed were drawn aside, and the young mother gazed on her sleeping child! What a vivid contrast did that glowing cheek and smiling brow present, as he lay in rosy slumber, to the faded, yet beautiful face that hung over him in tears!—"Will he resemble his father?" was the thought that passed for a moment through her devoted heart, and a sigh was the only answer!

'Tis his well known knock—and the steps of the drowsy porter echoed through the lofty hall, as with a murmur on his lip, he drew the massy bolts and admitted his thoughtless master. "Four o'clock, Willis, is it not?" and he sprang up the staircase—another moment he is in the chamber—in her arms!

No reproaches met the truant husband, none—save those she could not spare him, in her heavy eye, and faded cheek—yet these spoke to his heart.

"Julia, I have been a wandering husband."

"But you are come now, Charles, and all is well."

And all was well, for, from that hour, Charles Danvers became an altered man. Had his wife met him with frowns and sullen tears, he had become a hardened libertine;—but her affectionate caresses, the joy that danced in her sunken eye, the hectic flash that lit up her palid cheek at his approach, were arguments he could not withstand. Married in early life, while he had felt all the ardor, but not the esteem of love; possessed of a splendid fortune, and having hitherto had the command of his own pleasures, Danvers fell into the common error, of newly married men—the dread of being controlled. In vain did his parents, who beheld with sorrow the reproaches and misery he was heaping up for himself, in after life, remonstrate; Charles Danvers turned a deaf ear to advice, and pursued with companions every way unworthy of his society, the path of folly, if not of absolute guilt. The tavern, the club-room, and the race-course, too often left his wife a solitary mourner, or a midnight watcher.

Thus the first three years of their wedded life had passed—to him in fervid and restless pleasure, to her in blighted hope or un murmuring regret. But this night crowned the patient forbearance of the neglected Julia with its just reward, and gave the death blow to folly in the bosom of Danvers. Returning with disgust from the losses of the hazard table, her meekness and long suffering touched him to the soul, the film fell from his eyes, and Vice, in her own hideous deformity, stood unmasked before him.

Ten years have passed since that solitary midnight, when the young matron bent in tears over her sleeping boy. Behold her now? Still in the pride of womanhood, surrounded by their cherub faces, who are listening ere they go to rest to her sweet voice, as it pours forth to the accompaniment of her harp an evening song of joy and melody; while a manly form is bending over the music page to hide the tears of happiness and triumph that spring from a swelling bosom, as he contemplates the interesting group.—Youthful matrons! ye who watch over a wandering an erring heart—when a reproach trembles on your lips towards a truant husband, imitate Julia Danvers, and remember, though hymen has chains, like the sword of Harmodius, they may be covered with flowers; that unkindness and irritability do but harden if not wholly estrange the heart—while on the contrary, patience and gentleness of manner (as water dropping on the flinty rock will in time wear it into softness,) seldom fail to reclaim to happiness and virtue, the Truant Husband.

THE BURIAL OF LITTLE NELL.

BY BOZ.

The following touching description at the interment of a young and beautiful child is from 'Master Humphrey's Clock.'

"Along the crowded path they bore her now pure as the newly fallen snow that covered it—whose day on earth had been as fleeting. Under that porch where she had sat when Heaven in its mercy brought her to that peaceful spot, she passed again and the old church received her in its quiet shade. They carried her to her old nook where she many and many a time sat musing, and laid their burden softly on the pavement. The light streamed on it through the colored window—a window where the boughs of trees were ever rustling in the summer breeze, and where the birds sing sweetly all day long. With every breath of air that stirred among these branches in the sunshine, some trembling, changing light would fall upon her grave. Earth to earth, ashes to ashes, dust to dust. Many a young hand dropped its little wreath, many a stifled sob was heard.—Some—and there not a few—knelt down. All were sincere and truthful in their sorrow. The service done, the mourners stood apart, and the villagers closed around to look into the grave before the pavement stone should be replaced. One called to mind how he had seen her sit on that very spot, and how her book had fallen on her lap, as she was gazing with a pensive face upon the sky. Another told how he had wondered much that one so delicate as she, should be so bold; how she had never feared to enter the church alone at night, but had loved to linger there when all was quiet and even to climb the tower stair with no more light than that of the moon's stealing through the loopholes in the thick old wall. A whisper went about among the oldest there, that she had called to mind how she looked and spoken, and her early death, some thought it might do so indeed. Thus, coming to the grave in little knots, and glancing down and giving place to others, and talking off in whispering groups of three or four, the church was cleared in time of all but the sexton and the mourning friends.—They saw the vault covered and the stone fixed down. Then, when the dusk of evening had come on; and not a sound disturbed the sacred stillness of the place—when the bright moon poured in her light on the tomb and monument, on pillar, wall, and arch, and most of all, (it seemed to them) upon her quiet grave in that calm time when all outward things and inward thoughts teem with assurances of immortality, and worldly hopes and fears are humbled in the dust before them—then, with tranquil and submissive hearts, they turned away and left the child with God. Oh! it is hard to take to heart the lessons that such deaths will teach; but let no man reject it, for it is one that all must learn and is a mighty, universal truth. When death strikes down the innocent and young, for every fragile from which he lets the parting spirit free, a hundred virtues rise in shapes of mercy, charity, and love, to walk the world and bless it. Of every fear that sorrowing mortals shed on such green graves, some good is born, some greater nature comes. In the destroyer's steps there spring up bright creations that defy his power and his dark path becomes a way of light to heaven!"

PRINTERS.—There seems a natural affinity between printing and learning.—Most of the early printers were men of great erudition, and acknowledged abilities; the lights of the age in which they live, and who through the medium of their presses, did much to scatter the darkness of the middle ages in Europe. Erhard, Bodolt, of Augsburg, Uldrick Han, of Rome, Vandelin de Spira, and Aldus Mauritiu, of Venice, Gering, of Paris, Anthony Koburger, of Nuremberg, Ulric Tel, of Cologne, Tarotus, of Milan, Caxton, in England, with many others, were eminent as men of learning; the associates of the great; respected and honored by kings and princes.

The Stephens, Robert and Henry, were two of the most distinguished printers and scholars of the sixteenth century. Their services in the cause of classic literature cannot be overrated; they were giants in learning.

Many instances might be cited corroborative of the fact, that there is an intimate connexion between printing and knowledge, and that printers have frequently been celebrated as authors, and have risen from the manual labor of the press to the most elevated rank in society and letters. Bayle mentions a printer who printed a book from his head, setting up the types as fast as he composed his sentences, without the intervention of a manuscript, or committing his thoughts to paper. Sir William Blackstone, the eminent jurist and commentator on English laws, was brought up to the same art; and George III. King of England, was so pleased with it that he partially learned the trade, and frequently set up types after he had ascended the throne. In the United States, the memory of almost every man who has moved much in society, will furnish him instances in which practical printers have risen to great eminence at the bar, in the halls of legislation, and in the cabinet of the Executive. The art of printing is indeed a noble art, and every little type which the compositor arranges; seems like a ray of knowledge sent out to dissipate ignorance. So by reflex influence, they enlighten his own mind, inspire a thirst for learning, while at the same time they furnish the only living waters which can satisfy his desires.—Savannah Georgian.

"THE DEACON FOR ME!"—Papa, said one of his boys to the deacon, 'I had a funny dream last night.'

"Well, Tommy, what was your funny dream?"

"I dreamed the devil came into your store."

"The devil?"

"Yes, the devil."

"How did he come?"

"He came from a trunk."

the devil came up to the counter and laid the end of his tail on a chair and leaned over towards the barrel where you were stooping to draw it out, and asked if you wasn't a deacon. And I thought you didn't look up but said you was; and then he grinned and shook his tail like a cat that has a rat, and says he to me, 'that 'ere's the deacon for me!' and ran out of the shop laughing so loud that I put my fingers in my ears and woke up.'

The deacon quit the traffic and joined the Washingtonian T. A. Society.

THE WASP.

SATURDAY, MAY 23, 1842.

ASSASSINATION OF EX-GOVERNOR BOGGS OF MISSOURI.—Lilburn W. Boggs, late Governor of Missouri, was assassinated at his residence in Independence, Missouri, by an unknown hand, on the 6th inst. He was sitting in a room, by himself, when some person discharged a pistol loaded with buck-shot, through an adjoining window—three of the shot took effect in his head, one of which penetrated the brain. His son, a boy, hearing the report of the pistol, ran into the room in which his father was seated, and found him in a helpless situation, upon which he gave the alarm. Foot prints were found beneath the window, and the pistol which gave the fatal shot. The Governor was alive on the 7th, but no hopes are entertained of his recovery. A man was suspected, and is probably arrested before this. There are several rumors in circulation in regard to the horrid affair.—One of which throws the crime upon the Mormons—from the fact, we suppose, that Mr. Boggs was governor at the time, and no small degree instrumental in driving them from the State. Smith too, the Mormon Prophet, as we understand, prophesied a year or so ago, his death by violent means. Hence, there is plenty of foundation for rumor. The citizens of Independence had offered a reward of $500 for the murderer.—Quincy Whig.

NAUVOO, Ill. May 22, A. D. 1842.

Mr. Bartlett,

Dear Sir:—In your paper (the Quincy Whig.) of the 21st inst. you have done me manifest injustice in ascribing to me a prediction of the demise of Lilburn W. Boggs, Esq. Ex-Governor of Missouri, by violent hands. Boggs was a candidate for the State Senate, and I presume, fell by the hand of a political opponent, with "his hands and face yet dripping with the blood of murder;" but he died not through my instrumentality. My hands are clean and my heart pure, from the blood of all men. I am tired of the misrepresentation, calumny and detraction, heaped upon me by wicked men; and desire and claim, only those principles guaranteed to all men by the constitution and laws of the United States, and of Illinois. Will you do me the justice to publish this communication and oblige

Yours, respectfully,

JOSEPH SMITH.

The Editor of the Quincy Herald is respectfully solicited to publish General Smith's letter as above.—Ed.

From the Hawk Eye.

MURDER OF GOV. BOGGS.

The Stage Driver brought us the following letter last Friday evening, in advance of the mail. It appears that "Jo Smith" has made several threats against Missouri recently, and a short time since he stated that he was ready to fight Missouri. Every one knows how bitter the Mormons are against the people of Missouri, and this well known hostility has led many to suppose that the attempt to kill Gov. Boggs, must have been the work of a Mormon, although there appears to be no positive proof that this was the case. By our last accounts Boggs was still living, but no hopes were entertained of his recovery. He was sitting at his table, reading a newspaper, when the murderer fired through the window. Three balls entered his head and neck.

KEOKUK, May 14, 1842.

Dear Sir:—Information has reached me by a Mr. Tracy, of the house of E. & A. Tracy, St. Louis, that Lilburn W. Boggs, Ex-Governor of Missouri, was murdered in his house in Jackson county, Mo., on the 9th inst. There is no mistake of the matter whatever. There was a suspicious stranger seen lurking around for several days before the murder was perpetrated.

supposed to be a Mormon. They were in hot pursuit of him when the steamboat that brought the word to St. Louis left. The scoundrel had but two hours the start of his pursuers. I hope to God they will catch him, for I am as well satisfied that he was murdered by Smith's directions, as though I had Smith's confession to that effect.

Boggs, although so strongly accused by these renegades, was one of the most inoffensive men I ever knew. I knew him well and for years, and I did not know with the exception of the Mormons, that he had a personal enemy on earth.

Your friend, &c.

For the Wasp.

Mr Editor:—

Sir: Please insert the following reply to a letter in the Hawk Eye, and oblige a friend:

I am unwilling to see such a voracious bird fly away behind his own shadow. And, in the first place, it is too late in the flight of time, for a malignant Editor to palm upon community the fanciful vituperations of his own brain, written at his own table, as the ostensible communication of Mr. Nobocoy at Keokuk. Till the public has the real name of his correspondent above stated, we shall honor him as the father of it. The funniest part of the letter (written by the Hawk Eye) is, that 'a stranger supposed to be a mormon,' murdered Ex Governor Boggs. Now, why, in common parlance, did not this supposititious friend of Boggs and bluster, (who seems to be satisfied he was murdered by Smith's direction,) suppose that a Mormon caused Noah's flood; a Mormon caused 185,000 Assyrians to be slain by the angel in one night; a Mormon caused the great plague in London; a Mormon Episcopalians, Universalists, Unitarians, Mohamedans, and all other religious sects, caused the death of General Harrison; as well as the assassination of Boggs? The evidence for the former is as strong as for the latter. The fact is, there is no proof that a Mormon was in Missouri with an evil intention when Boggs was shot three hundred miles above St. Louis; and the Hawk Eye had no thought of doing more than injuring and insulting an innocent people, who had never laid a straw in his way, when he wrote the above frothy, slanderous article.

The most wonderful development is, that it appears Jo Smith has made several threats against Missouri. The public can hardly be gulled by such foolish libels, /Boggs is undoubtedly killed, according to report; but who did the noble deed remains to be found out. But, Mr. Hawk Eye, have you or have you not heard, or seen published in a paper printed at Liberty, Missouri, in the latter part of 1838, that Major General Atchison, while marching at the head of the troops, which went to Far West, said the Mormons should have their rights and even handed justice, with other citizens of the State; but was dismounted and displaced from the command of those troops and sent home, and other more pliable Generals put in his place? After he returned home, have you or have you not heard or read, also, that Major General Atchison received a public dinner, at which he made a speech and declared that if Boggs did not make him satisfaction, for recalling him from the command of the troops to Caldwell, he would kill him? Do you or do you not recollect to have read in the Liberty paper of that date, a toast, the substance of which was: 'Major General Atchison: We honor the man who refused to act as Boggs' Butcher?'

Now, Sir, before you make up another brief, and suppose a Mormon murdered Boggs, inquire how this abandoned Ex Governor handled the funds of Missouri, while the State house was building, to his own emolument and the detriment of others, touching several matters of the great men of that mobocratical State, wherein it has been threatened, time and again, that they would be revenged on Boggs. Think pro Nunk.

Respectfully yours,

VORTEX.

We admit the foregoing communication to please our correspondent, not that we have any faith that any one has killed Governor Boggs. The last account we have received is that he is still living and like to live; and if he has been shot at all it was by one of his own negroes.—Ed.

From the Alton Telegraph and Review.

GOV. DUNCAN

"Addressed the people of this county on the 4th inst. at Edwardsville. He was listened to by one of the largest audiences we have ever seen assembled on a similar occasion, since our residence in the State; and the attention and manifest gratification with which he was listened to, furnished the strongest evidence that various positions he assumed met with the cordial co-operation of his hearers.

"Much of his time was taken up in refuting the base and grovelling charges preferred against him by the State Register, of being the founder of both the Internal Improvement and State Bank Systems. And the evidence he furnished, forced from the most prejudiced of his political opponents the reluctant confession, that he had triumphantly vindicated himself, and shown the falsity of the charges.

"His views in regard to the dangerous and alarming powers which were granted to the Mormons, in various charters passed at the last session of our Legislature, and the firm and decided stand he assumed against making them a privileged sect over all other religious denominations and classes of our citizens, met with universal approbation by all who listened to him. Gov. Duncan declared he was for extending to them the same privileges, and none other, that our citizens in common enjoyed under the provisions of the constitution and laws. [This is all the Mormons ask.] But all extraordinary anti-republican and arbitrary powers, which the corruption of a Legislature granted them solely for the purpose of obtaining their political support, [let the Legislature thank Gov. Duncan for that compliment.] he unhesitatingly proclaimed he was for taking from them, [when he gets the power.] The Governor referred to one of the ordinances of their city, which provided that if any person spoke lightly of, or doubted, their religion, upon conviction thereof the offender was liable to a fine of five hundred dollars and six months imprisonment. [Thus reads the ordinance of the city council of Nauvoo, referred to in Gov. Duncan's speech passed March 1, A. D. 1841, as published in the Times and Seasons of March, 1, 1841.]"

An Ordinance in relation to religious societies.

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo. That the Catholics, Presbyterians, Methodists, Baptists, Latter-Day-Saints, Quakers, Episcopalians, Universalists, Unitarians, Mohamedans, and all other religious sects, toleration, and equal privileges in this city, and should any person be guilty of ridiculing, abusing, or otherwise depreciating another, in consequence of his religion, or of disturbing, or interrupting, any religious meeting, within the limits of this city, he shall, on conviction thereof before the Mayor, or Municipal Court, be considered a disturber of the public peace, and fined in any sum not exceeding five hundred dollars, or imprisoned not exceeding six months, or both, at the discretion of said Mayor, or Court.

Sec. 2. It is hereby made the duty of all municipal officers to notice, and report to the Mayor, any breach or violation of this or any other ordinance of this City that may come within their knowledge, or of which they may be advised; and any officer aforesaid is hereby fully authorized to arrest all such violators of rule, law, and order, either with, or without, process.

Sec. 3. This ordinance to take effect and be in force, from and after its passage. Passed, March, 1st. A. D. 1841.

JOHN C. BENNETT, Mayor.

JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

"This disgraceful attempt to form, in a republican government, an established religion by legal enactment, created throughout the audience a great sensation, and opened their eyes to the rapid strides that were being made in their very midst towards an arbitrary and monarchical form of government. [If Gov. Duncan had said that his disgraceful attempt to palm upon his political party, and the good people of Illinois generally, a list of lies of the blackest kind would certainly fail until the faithful, righteous, and eternal prediction had been fulfilled upon his head, that all liars shall have their part in the lake that burns with fire and brimstone; and he utterly fail of the chair of state, there might have been some good reason to believe that a "sensation" of joy was produced in the audience and that their eyes and ears were open to the voice of truth, and that they were ready to hail the downfall of an aspiring demagogue, with those demonstrations of hal-lalujah which became a noble and insulted people.]

"He next referred to a correspondence in the Times and Seasons, published at Nauvoo, between Dr. C. V. Dyer, of Chicago, a distinguished Loco-foco, and Joe Smith and Gen. Bennett, the prophet and the military leader of the Mormons. That correspondence divulges the fact, that the Mormons under the solicitation of Dr. Dyer, [who is an Abolitionist] are prepared to act with them.—And Gen. Bennett evinces his willingness at any moment to march against the Penitentiary in Missouri with his armed force, established under the auspices, [as Joe Smith says,] of Mr. Snyder and Judge Douglass, and release the three Quincy Abolitionists now in confinement there. This correspondence we shall publish at length in a few days, that every man may judge of its alarming tendencies for himself."

[We will save you that trouble. From the Times and Seasons of March 15, 1842, commencing page 723.]

"CORRESPONDENCE.

BETWEEN DR. C. V. DYER AND GEN. J. C.

Chicago, January 3, 1842.

DEAR SIR:—I am not sure that I am not indebted to you for your last letter, not having answered it, as I remember. But as I have been very sick during the long interval of my silence, you will readily excuse any apparent neglect on my part.

I thank you for your paper sent me, the "Times and Seasons," and have got much information from it, and since that, from other sources, in relation to the outrages committed upon the Latter Day Saints by the authorities as well as the people of the State of Missouri; and my blood boiled with indignation to see the whole christian world—and the whole political world, too, look tamely on, and never raise a warning voice—a voice of expostulation, nor even giving the facts in the case! O what outrages will not be allowed or winked at by those in authority, and the people generally, if they happen to be inflicted upon those who bear an unpopular name, espouse an unpopular cause, and are poor and obscure! It seems as if we had again fallen upon the middle ages, when the privileged classes could pour out their sympathies by the hour, at the very circumstantial and minute details of the loss of the life, or any other serious evil that befel one of their own number; but they could write or hear without emotion, and even with satisfaction and joy, the history of the massacre of a thousand defenseless women and children, if they belonged to the common sort of people. Just read, for example, Madame de Sevigne's account in a letter to her daughter, dated "Aux Rochers," 30 Oct., 1675, in the 2nd volume of De Toqueville's Democracy in America.

What, my dear sir, do you think of the treatment which the subject of American slavery receives at the hands of the American press—amongst the people generally, and especially in the halls of Congress? What think you of the sentencing of three men from the Quincy Mission Institute in this State, a short time since, to twelve years confinement in the penitentiary of Missouri, for no crime at all, or only such as God would regard as a virtue? Please look into this matter, and see if you can not join with the benevolent and fearless, and call the attention of the nation or the State, to these outrages of Missouri.

I send you a paper, and mark one of the pieces for your perusal. Read it. I do not know whether you have examined the whole subject of American slavery; but if you have not, I beseech you to do so, and let me hear from you. Is it not sin? Yes. Then is it not right to repent of it? Yes. When? God allows not a moment. Is not repentance and abandonment of sin safe, so long as God commands, and stands ready to look after the consequences? Certainly so.

Well, can any Court, either State or national, rob men of liberty for twelve years, (even against their own State laws,) for acting precisely in accordance with the letter and spirit of the Constitution of the United States, and the precepts of Jesus Christ. Is it to be submitted too tamely, that three men shall be immured in a dungeon for twelve years—torn from their families and friends, and from society and usefulness, for barely teaching a fellow being how to go to a place where he may learn the sciences—have his own wages, and his own person?

Let me hear from you. Have we not a right to sympathise with each other?

I am, very sincerely,

Your friend and ob't serv't.

CHARLES V. DYER.

Gen. JOHN C. BENNETT,
Nauvoo Hancock Co., Illinois.

Nauvoo, Ill., Jan. 20th, A. D. 1842.

DEAR SIR:—

Yours of the 3rd inst., accompanied by the "Genius of Liberty," containing the address of Alvan Stewart, Esq., is before me, and I seize upon this, the first opportunity to reply. You refer me to Madame de Sevigne's letter to her daughter, dated "Aux Rochers," 30th Oct., A. D. 1675, in the 2nd vol. of De Toqueville's Democracy in America; and ask me to examine the subject of American slavery. I have done so: I gave it a full and fair investigation years ago—I swore hands would not be bound, nor my feet fettered, nor my tongue palsied—I am the friend of liberty, UNIVERSAL LIBERTY, both civil and religious. I ever detested servile bondage. I wish to see the shackles fall from the feet of the oppressed, and the chains of slavery broken. I hate the oppressor's grasp, and the tyrant's rod; against them I set my brows like brass, and my face like steel; and my arm is nerved for the conflict. Let the sons of thunder speak, achieve victories before the cannon's mouth, and beard the lion in his den: till then the cry of the oppressed will not be heard: 'till then the wicked will not cease to trouble, nor the weary bondman be at rest.' Great God, has it come to this—that the free citizens of the sovereign State of Illinois can be taken and immured within the walls of a Missouri penitentiary for twelve long years, for such a crime as God would regard as a virtue! simply for pointing bondmen to a state of liberty and law! and no man take it to heart? NEVER NO, NEVER!! NO, NEVER!!! Let the friends of freedom arise and utter their voice, like the voice of ten thousand thunders—let them take every constitutional means to procure a redress of grievances—let there be a concerted effort, and the victory is ours. Let the broad banners of freedom be unfurled, and soon the prison doors will be opened, the captive set at liberty, and the oppressed go free. Missouri will then remember the unoffending Mormons in the days of their captivity and bondage—when murder and rapine were her darling attributes—why, my heart is filled with indignation, and my blood boils within me, when I contemplate the vast injustice and cruelty which Missouri has meted out to that great philanthropist and devout Christian, General Joseph Smith, and his honest and faithful adherents—the Latter Day Saints, or Mormons: but the time has passed, and God will avenge their wrongs in his own good time. Dr. Dyer, put your hand upon your heart, and remember Zion. Just investigate the wrongs which our people have suffered in their unprecedented privations, the confiscation of their property, and the murder of their friends—the persecutions of the Waldenses in former ages were not to be compared to it, and history affords not a parallel. Now let us make a strong, concerted, and vigorous effort, for UNIVERSAL LIBERTY, to every soul of man—civil, religious and political. With high considerations of respect, and esteem, suffer me to subscribe myself—

Yours, Respectfully,

JOHN C. BENNETT.

CHARLES V. DYER, M. D.

P. S. Gen. Smith informs me that there are white slaves in Missouri, (Mormons,) in as abject servitude as the blacks, and we have as yet no means of redress!—God grant that the day of righteous retribution may not be procrastinated.

J. C. B.

Editor's Office, Nauvoo, Ill.,
March 7th, 1842

GENERAL BENNETT;

Respected Brother:—I have just been perusing your correspondence with Doctor Dyer on the subject of American Slavery, and the students of the Quincy Mission Institute, and it makes my blood boil within me to reflect upon the injustice, cruelty, and oppression, of the rulers of the people—when will these things cease to be, and the Constitution and the Laws again bear rule? I fear for my beloved country—mob violence, injustice, and cruelty, appear to be the darling attributes of Missouri, and no man taketh it to heart! O tempora! O mores! What think you should be done?.

Your friend,

JOSEPH SMITH.

Mayor's Office, City of Nauvoo,
Illinois, March 8th, A. D. 1842.)

ESTEEMED FRIEND:—

Yours of the 7th Inst. has been received, and I proceed to reply, without undue emotion, or perturbation. You ask "When will these things cease to be, and the Constitution and the Laws again bear rule?" I reply—once that noble bird of Jove, our grand national emblem, soared aloft, bearing in her proud beak the words "Liberty and Law," and that man that had the termity to ruffle her feathers was made to feel the power of her talons; but the wiley archer came, and with his venom'd arrow dipped in Upas' richest sap, shot the flowing label from the Eagle's bill—it fell inverted, and the bird was sick, and is,—the label soon was trampled in the dust—the eagle bound and caged. The picture is now before you in bold relief. "What think you should be done?" The master spirits of the age must rise and break the cage, restore the label, unbind the bird, and let her tower unfettered in the air—then will the nation have repose, and the present minions of power hide their faces in the dust. Many of Missouri's noble sons detest her acts of cruelty and crime, and gladly would they wipe them from the escutcheon of her fame, and will; yes, they will lend a helping hand—and all must help, for the time is at hand—and if man, rebellious, cowardly, faltering man, will not do the word, the thundering of Sinai will wind up the scene—the blood of the murdered Mormons cries aloud for help, and the restoration of the inheritances of the saints; and God has heard the cry—and if the moral battle must be fought, and the victory won, he who answers by fire will cause sword and flame to do their office, and again make the Constitution and the Laws paramount to every other consideration—and I swear by the Lord God of Israel, that the sword shall not depart from my thigh, nor the buckler from my arm, until the trust is consummated, and the hydra-headed, fiery dragon slain. This done, the proud southron will no longer boast of ill-gotten gain, or wash his hands in the blood of the innocent, or immure the freemen of the prairie State within Missouri's sullied, poisoned, deathly prison walls. Let us always take refuge under the broad folds of the Constitution and the Laws, and fear no danger, for the day of vengeance will assuredly come when the Omnipotent hand of the Great God will effect the restitution of the trophies of the brigand victories of Missouri, and again place the saints on high.

Yours, Respectfully,

JOHN C. BENNETT.

GENERAL JOSEPH SMITH.

"It struck us with a good deal of astonishment that Joe Smith and Gen. Bennett should thus publicly avow their abolition principles in the very face of the proclamation of the prophet as the military leader of the mormons. to all his followers to vote for Mr. Snyder for Governor, WHO IS HIMSELF ONE OF THE LARGEST SLAVE HOLDERS IN THE STATE. To us it displayed an inconsistency irreconcilable with common honesty."

[If you will read the correspondence over again we hope you may get the scales off of your eyes so as to see the truth therein contained, and when you have seen them publish them to the world without any false notes or comments, so that others may know as well as your self, whether Governor or Editor, that neither Gen. Smith or Bennett believe your doctrines of abolitionism, but they do believe in equal rights and privileges, and so do we and ALL THE MORMONS.]

MARK THE CONTRAST.

In 1833, when a lawless mob, in the State of Missouri, had threatened to drive from her borders a portion of her unoffensive citizens, aid was asked of the Governor, but he could do nothing—and the President of the United States was applied to, in an earnest and solemn manner, to suppress the insurrection, and prevent the shedding of blood;—what was the result? Word was given; the saints were driven, and blood was shed.

Again; scenes more appalling than what occurred in 1833, were enacted in 1833, by which ten or fifteen thousand unoffending citizens were expelled or exterminated from the State; yet the general Government was so sleepy, or careless, or heedless, that no help could be obtained; "And if and if," said the lawyer—when little Rhoda began to squabble about power, in 1842, and nothing more than the blood of a cow had been shed, the President of the United States orders to correct little Rhoda, four companies of the U. S. Troops. O tempora! O mores! The world seems only made for Cæsar, and not for Titus, too.

DEATH OF COL. SNYDER.

It becomes our duty, though melancholy so, to announce the death of A. W. SNYDER, the Democratic candidate for the office of Governor of this State. He died at Bellville on Saturday the 14th inst.

Thus has passed away, not only a bright ornament to society, but also, a gentleman who largely shared the growing popularity of many his loss, in common with those who would have gladly elevated him to the highest office in this State. Can his loss be supplied to the Democratic party?

EPITAPH

FOR THOMAS SHARP AND WARSAW SIGNAL.

"If Heaven is pleased when mortals cease to sin,
"If Hell is pleased when sinners enter in;
"If earth is pleased" with one thing there is in't,
"Sure, all were pleased" when Thomas ceased to print."

¶ We recommend to the perusal of our readers, the Hudebrastic poetry on our first page, entitled 'The Sectarian Millennium.' From the satirical pith of these verses, we think the priests of the day, will be apt to exclaim: We can't come it!

¶ The subject of 'we were not the aggressors,' is deferred for a time, in order to bring forth our strong reasons with the facts.

For the Wasp.

Nauvoo, Ill., May 24th A. D. 1842.

Mr. Editor:—

Permit me, through the medium of your paper, to withdraw my name from the approaching canvass for a seat in the House of Representatives of the State of Illinois. Sidney Rigdon and Orson Pratt, are decidedly the men of my choice for that high and important public trust.

Yours, Respectfully,

JOHN C. BENNETT.

HONORARY DEGREE.

Ordered by the Chancellor and Regents of the University of the City of Nauvoo, that the honorary degree of L. L. D. be, and the same hereby is, conferred on JAMES GORDON BENNETT, Esq., Editor of the New-York Herald.
Passed, April 22nd, A. D. 1842.

JOHN C. BENNETT, Chancellor,
WM. LAW, Registrar.

NAUVOO.

Our city appears, in the balmy spring, to flourish as heretofore; and if our Mayor, councillors, and citizens would establish a Market among the rest of their improvements, it would greatly tend to convenience and comfort.
A WELL-WISHER.

PUBLIC MEETING.

According to previous notice, a very large and respectable meeting of the citizens of the city of Nauvoo, convened at the Temple ground on Thursday the 26th day of May, at one o'clock, P. M.

The meeting was called to order by Gen. Bennett on whose motion the assembly was duly organized by the appointment of General Joseph Smith, Chairman, and Colonel James Sloan, Secretary.

The object of the meeting was then stated in a speech of considerable length by Gen. Smith, distinctly avowing his intention not to co-operate or vote with either the Whig or Democratic parties as such.

The meeting then unanimously disapproved of the remarks of the Quincy Whig, in relation to the participation of Gen. Smith in the violent death of Gov. Boggs of Missouri, and unanimously concurred in the opinion that Gen. Smith had never made such a prediction.

Gen. Bennett, at the solicitation of the Chairman, then spoke at length on State and general politics, and nominated Sidney Rigdon, and Orson Pratt, for representatives for the county of Hancock at the approaching August Election, which nominations were unanimously concurred in by the assembly.

George Miller then made a speech recommending the selection of a full Ticket, which was concurred in; and George Miller put in nomination for the State Senate, from Hancock; Hiram Kimball, for County Commissioner; and William Backenstos, for Sheriff: A Committee was then appointed to take the names of the legal voters in the Nauvoo precinct, and report to the next general meeting of the people, on two weeks from this day, at the same time and place.

The meeting then adjourned for two weeks.
JOSEPH SMITH, Chairman.
JAMES SLOAN, Secretary.

LETTER TO MRS. EMMA SMITH.

EDWARDSVILLE, Madison Co.,
Feb. 14, 1842.

Ever dear friend: I seat myself at this time to address a few lines to you, as it is a long time since I have seen you, or one of the saints; I always loved your company, and I have often thought of you when your affectionate husband was in jail. I wish you to inform me how much he suffered? how you fared when he was absent; whether any one administered to your wants or not? do not be offended at me for intruding on your patience, for I feel as though you were my sister, and I have been in this State four years without friends and brethren until last October we moved unto Mr. Rich's farm. There is a church here with eight members, and an elder, but I have never heard him give an exhortation since I came here, and we have Now sister Emma, I would tell you some of my trials and difficulties but what are mine to yours? nothing, no nothing! but great will be your reward and eternal your glory." "If light afflictions work out a great and eternal weight of glory?" what will great ones do! do! I know your mild temper and calm and peaceable disposition: I well recollect your bright eyes, and pleasant countenance. I remember the first visit I ever had with you, but I fear it will be long before I shall have the pleasure of beholding your face again, and of listening to the instructions of your dear husband, the prophet, and of hearing the gracious words of truth and intelligence that flow from his lips; we have nothing to come or gather with the saints with. My husband cares nothing about gathering; he seeks for riches, but not for the glory of God, and the building up of Zion, and therefore he suffers wicked men to deceive, and cheat him. I have such an anxious desire to be with the saints that I can sometimes scarcely contain myself, or keep my mind with my body. If I could only persuade my dear husband to go, I would, if I knew that we should be mobbed the day after we arrived, and must I stay here as long as I live, and never gather with the saints! I wish that you would inform me. I have prayed that the Lord would take some of the desire from me for I have found that it was injuring my constitution.

I have written two letters to father, and two letters to Ama, since we came to Illinois, but have received no answer—I have sent uncle John Smith a letter, but forgot to mention the county, Madison. Brother Rucks will hand this to you, my respects to Pres'ts Hyrum and Joseph; how often I hear his name spoken of with contempt. They say here that Joe Duncan is up for Governor; if he is elected, I say that mobs and destruction await the saints if in his power to accomplish it, unless he is a better man than when I worked for him: I washed and ironed for his family, to the amount of six dollars and seventy-five cents, and because we lived in a wretched old house not one cent would he pay me; he gave me the most abusive language that I ever heard a man utter, without the least provocation, I cannot tell you one tenth-part; but I will tell you a little of the commencement; "did you see Joe when he dug out his gold bible out of the old hollow stump? I should like to have seen him peeping in, pity the devil had not kicked him so far in, that he could not get out again; but they have got him fast up in Jackson, and I am glad of it for he has deluded and robbed plenty of innocent men, and that's what makes you so poor: I suppose you have given him up all you had. Did he ever give you any thing?" he said with a look of contempt. I could bear no longer, I said yes, he gave us a barrel of beef, barrel and all; this so astonished him that he stopped, and I proceeded, but cannot write half of what I said to him in this letter; suffice it to say that I was not at a loss for words; and although they called him governor, governor, he did not appear to me bigger than a skunk, nor of any more importance.

The feelings of my heart I cannot describe when I hear such language about a man that I have never heard teach anything but truth and righteousness, for seven long years; but I cannot hear him now, this is not my happy lot. Pray that the Lord will open the hearts of the brethren in this place to assist the poor to gather. O that some of the elders would come this way, is there not some to spare in the city where you live.

I must now close my letter, give my kind love to mother Smith, tell her I have not forgotten her, and that I sympathise with her in her great loss.

I greatly desire to see one of your Hymn books, but have nothing to send you for one, I recommend Br. Jecks to you, as an honest and upright brother, but tell Br. Jos. to feed him with milk and not with strong meat. Peace be with you and all that are saints, and preserve you from all your enemies; when you hear of a good sermon, think of a sincere friend and sister, in the new and everlasting covenant.
MATILDA R. BAILE

1842
Sir Robert Peel, in his speech on the 11th of March, estimates the income and expenditure of the English treasury for the year beginning the 5th of April, 1843, as follows. It will be remembered that three-fifths of the whole revenue of England is absorbed by the interest of her public debt.

For the year ending the 5th April, I take the customs to be	£22,500,000
Excise,	13,450,000
Stamps,	7,100,000
Taxes,	4,400,000
Post Office,	200,000
Crown Lands,	150,000
Miscellaneous,	250,000
The general result, then, is, that the estimated expenditure for the year ending 5th April, 1843, is	£50,819,000
The estimated income	48,350,000
Leaving a deficiency of	£2,569,000

The great variety and value of the Furs obtained on and near the shores of Lakes Huron and Superior, exceed all belief. The amount annually exported to England is said to exceed four millions of dollars. There are two great sales of American Furs in London every year. Merchants attend these sales from all parts of Europe; and, what is extraordinary, from the United States. Most of the Fur used in the United States is bought in London. The Lynx and the Cross Fox skins, of which there is a great consumption in the United States, are all procured in London.

DR. J. F. WELD,

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.

Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

A RARE CHANCE. AND THE ONLY VACANCY ON THE TEMPLE BLOCK.

The subscriber wishing to close his business in the city, offers for sale his house and lot, (a pleasant situation, with a good garden) adjoining the Temple Block, on the north side; also, an improvement of a house and lot, pleasantly situated on the bluff a few hundred yards from the Temple.

He will receive as part pay for the above mentioned property, a good horse, harness, and carriage, a certain amount in dry goods, or other good property, and the balance in cash; or he will exchange for a suitable location in some adjoining town.

F. G. BISHOP.

Nauvoo, May 9th, 1842.

IN the matter of the Petition of GEORGE BACKSTER, a bankrupt to be discharged from his debts. NOTICE is hereby given to all creditors and others interested of George Backster a bankrupt to appear before the District Court of the United States on the 8th day of July, A. D. 1842, at the city of Springfield, in the district of Illinois, and show cause if any they have why the aforesaid George Backster should not receive a final discharge from all his debts, and a certificate thereof be granted to him. Dated at Springfield this 4th day of April A. D. 1842.

Strong & Doremus, solicitors for petitioner.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus
J. Salbery, Plymouth.
Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Cliffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Page, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Curtis, New Egypt.
James Curtis, Horners Town.
W. I. Appleby, Recless Town.
Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Salem.
Feeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapiet.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirtland.
NEW YORK.
Charles Thompson, Batavia.
L. R. Foster, city New York.

District Court of the United States, } within and for the District of Illinois. }

In the matter of the Petition of Amos Davis, of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Amos Davis of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States, } within and for the District of Illinois. }

In the matter of the petition of Charles Warner, of Hancock co., to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Charles Warner, of Hancock co., has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 2nd day of May, A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States, } within and for the District of Illinois. }

In the matter of the Petition of Windsor P. Lyon, of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Windsor P. Lyon of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 2nd day of May A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States, } within and for the District of Illinois. }

In the matter of the petition of Arthur Morrison of Hancock co., to be declared a Bankrupt and be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that Arthur Morrison, of Hancock co., has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 23th day of April, A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

VALUABLE FARM FOR SALE.

Situated 5 miles south west of Carthage, 12 miles from Warsaw, and 16 miles from the city of Nauvoo, containing 200 acres; half timber, and the balance farming land, with about 100 acres under fence. A comfortable dwelling house, good stable and other out buildings; also a thriving young apple orchard &c. &c.

The said tract may advantageously be divided into two or more smaller farms with never failing stock-water running through each tract.

Price low, and terms accommodating. Apply to
J. B. BACKENSTOS.
Carthage Hancock co. Ill. May 6th, 1842.

STRAYED,

FROM the "Trustee in Trust," President Joseph Smith, a black Cow and calf, the titheing of Joseph Carleton. Whoever will return said cow, and give information of the same, will add to the funds of the Temple, and a reasonable charge will be paid if wished.
May 21, 1842.

District Court of the United States, } within and for the District of Illinois. }

In the matter of the Petition of George Morey of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that George Morey of Hancock county, has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the city of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States, } within and for the District of Illinois. }

In the matter of the Petition of John P. Green of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that John P. Green of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the city of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April, A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States, } within and for the District of Illinois. }

In the matter of the Petition of Joseph Smith, of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Joseph Smith, of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States, } within and for the District of Illinois. }

In the matter of the Petition of Sidney Rigdon of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Sidney Rigdon of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States, } within and for the District of Illinois. }

In the matter of the Petition of Vinson Knight, of Hancock county, to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Vinson Knight of Hancock county has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States, } within and for the District of Illinois. }

In the matter of the Petition of Reynolds Cahoon of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Reynolds Cahoon of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States, } within and for the District of Illinois. }

In the matter of the Petition of Samuel H. Smith, of Hancock County, to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Samuel H. Smith of Hancock County has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States, } within and for the District of Illinois. }

In the matter of the Petition of Hyrum Smith, of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Hyrum Smith of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April, A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States, } within and for the District of Illinois. }

In the matter of the Petition of Jared Carter, of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Jared Carter, of Hancock county has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States, } within and for the District of Illinois. }

In the matter of the Petition of Henry G. Sherwood of Hancock County to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Henry G. Sherwood of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this district, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States, } within and for the District of Illinois. }

In the matter of the Petition of Elias Higbee, of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Elias Higbee, of Hancock county, has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the district Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April, A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

THE WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 8.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, June 4, 1842.

Whole Number 8.

THE WASP.

EDITED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY

WM. SMITH.

At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.
TERMS.—$1.50 invariably in advance.

POETRY.

From the N. Y. Herald.

AN ACROSTIC.

On Mrs. ENMA SMITH, the wife and guardian angel of JOSEPH, the great Mormon Prophet.

The rose that blooms on yonder tree,
Opening to the sun;
Must ever tempt the busy bee,
Returning to its task, like thee;
Since duty must be done.

Eternal wisdom made a man,
Made trees and mountains, too,
Made flowers and fruits and all that can Adorn and beautify his plan,
So perfect and so true.

Man loved to roam among the flowers,
In sprangling dew drops seen—
To cheer his lonely morning hours,
His heart improve, enlarge his powers,
God spread the charming scene.

Unholy thoughts did not arise,
All come from heaven above;
Religion—daughter of the skies—
Descends—with meek and warning eyes,
In search of one to love.

Adam adores the angel bright,
Now standing by his side;
And cries, My Eve, my love—
Now take me as thy wedded right,
God gave thee as my bride.

Eye salutes him with a kiss,
(Long may such love remain,)
Oh! Adam, dear, take this and this—
For in thee centers all my bliss,
'Tis sure a holy flame.

How blest were they within that bower,
Enjoying honey moon!
Green trees, with fruits, and every hour,
Regaled with odors from each flower,
Even in beautiful bloom.

And is it not through woman dear,
That our religion springs?
My soul her virtue must revere;
On her rely, and love her here—
Religion binds her wings!

May light most holy from above,
On woman's path still shine;
Never blest, but as a dove,
Pouring forth her notes of love—
Redeeming love divine.

Oh! may thy influence still inspire,
Prophets and holy men;
Heaven's chosen prophets, who with fire,
Enkindled from above, desire,
To spread the flame again. CINCINNATI.

Arlington House, May 1, 1842.
This is a gem describing eve descending from heaven to Adam, as an angel in the shape of religion.—ED. HERALD.

FORFEITURE.

In all ages and in every clime, the love of flowers has been cherished and cultivated with increasing attention and admiration. They have received the fondest titles that sympathy or affection could offer and in their opening petals and fading beauties, they invite the most pleasing reminiscences and effecting reflections that are associated with life. In the one, we behold the morning of our own existence beautifully exhibited with freshness and dews of youth upon us, while the other invites the reflection that "all flesh is grass, like the grass it withereth, and like the flower it fades, and its goodness passes away." Thus every age finds in them some emblem of its own fleeting being, and every circumstances of life may hail them as counterparts.

In ancient times they were employed to deck the feast and strew upon the bier and grave where affection called the admiring crowd for convivial festival and weeping sorrow laid its loved one to repose. They were spread in paths of triumphant warriors as the emblems of victory and honor—and in gay wreaths adorned the brow beneath which gay and happy hearts beat in the holy response at loves pure rituals.

They bloom alike in the limited territory of the cottager, and in the proud and extended parterres of the wealthy and gay.

A love of flowers has ever been regarded as an index of moral excellence and intellectual refinement. Who that beholds their ostentatious elegance, their gay simplicity and unassuming beauty, ever turned away from them without being impressed with the emptiness of artificial pomp and splendor? Who that witnesses their evanescence will not read effectually the lesson of univorsal frailty and decay! For childhood and youth, the cultivation of the flowers present an imposing enjoyment and an interesting and instructing amusement. In the period of existence, when care does not present its corroding anxieties when the spirits are free and buoyant, and the world smiles fresh and gayly on every hand, when expectations is buoyant in looking through life's vista as upon a bed of flowers; when home and dear associates are binding the soul in a thousand ties as indissoluble as existence;
when every scene and every object is impressing the mind with images which are to dwell like bright spots upon the memory when manhood comes with furrowed brow and silvery hairs—in the morning of being when every action does its full share towards laying the foundation of thought, feeling and principle for life, what employment for leisure hours can be more appropriate, than aiding the floral world in its grand designs of beautifying the earth, and what teachings of wisdom can be more powerfully inculcated than those taught by the simplicity and purity of nature?

To the female sex in every period of life, it offers considerations of and affiding import. From them they may derive rich lessons to aid them in rearing the temple of the mind of those who are to succeed them, a sphere peculiarly their own, and to close with a response to the interrogatory of another, there is no object in nature more beautiful than a young and lovely woman seen in a par-terre of flowers, herself the fairest, adorned with innocence and virtue, administer to the drooping wants of the lily, or watching the expanding beauties of the rose.—New Gen. Farmer.

TO PLANT TREES.

The man who plants a tree, and takes measures to make it flourish, may justly be considered a public benefactor—and we wish that such regulation would be had in every country village, which would cause the forest trees in New England, the elm, the oak, the ash, the maple and the button wood, to be planted in continuous rows, by the side of every highway; which would thus increase our resources for fuel, that are rapidly failing—and be to the traveller
"From storms a shelter, and from heat, a shade."
How many cords may thus be produced in thirty or forty years? Let the curious in statistical resources, calculate the length of the roads, the number of trees and the quantity of wood. Any calculation on this would result in proving the wisdom of such a regulation—and possibility would rejoice at the legacy, and praise the wisdom and disinterestedness of their ancestors.

The time is at hand, when trees may be transplanted with an almost certain prospect of success—and we trust that in every village, public spirited men, women or children, will plant or cause to be planted, some forest trees in front of the dwelling, or by the road side. If all would assist in the generous work, the solid advantages would be great, and the beauty of our country towns wonderfully increased.—Boston Journal.

From the Cincinnati Enquirer.

SPECIE STANDARD.

BANK NOTE LIST.—MAY 16, 1842.
Corrected by CRAWFORD & BURT, Exchange Brokers, 121 Main Street, Cincinnati.

OHIO: Ohio Life and trust on demand, par
Commercial Bank of Cincinnati par
Franklin Bank of Cincinnati par
Lafayette Bank of Cincinnati par
Mechanics' and Traders Bank 6 d.s.
Miami Exporting Company 75 dis
Bank of Cincinnati no sale Exchange Bank of Cincinnati 75 dis of Circleville (new)
" Circleville 5 dis
" Chillicothe 17 dis
" Cleveland 75 dis
" Gallipolis broken
" Geauga 5 dis
" Hamilton 50 dis
" Massillon 5 dis
" Marietta 5 dis
" Mount Pleasant 5 dis
" Norwalk 5 dis
" Sandusky 5 dis
" Steubenville broken
" West Union broken
" Wooster 5 dis
" Xenia 5 dis
" Zanesville, 5 dis

Belmont Bank, St. Clairsville, 5dis
Clinton Bank Columbus 5 dis
Columbiana Bank, New-Lisbon 5dis
Com'l Bk of Lake Erie, Cleve'd 50dis
Com'l Bk Scioto, Portsmouth 5 dis
Dayton Bank, Dayton 5 dis
Farmers' Bank of Canton broken
Farmers & Mec's Bank of Steubenville 5 dis
Franklin Bank Columbus 17dis
German Bank of Wooster broken
Granville Alexandrian Society 75 dis
Ohio Bank, Lancaster 20-dis
Lebanon, Miami bank, Lebanon broken Manhattan Bank, Manhattan, broken
Muskingum Bank, Putnam 5 dis
Urbana Banking Co. Urbana
Washington B'k, Miamisburg 62dis
Western Reserve Bank Warren, 5dis
Small Notes of good Ohio Banks 5 dis

KENTUCKY.—Bank of Louisville 3dis
Bank of Kentucky 3dis
Northern Bank of Kentucky 3 dis
Savings bank of Louisville, Otis.
Arnold and Co's Ch. ks.) no sale INDIANA.—State Bank o. Indiana 5 dis
King & Woodburn's checks
Madison, 50dis

New Albany Insurance Co.
New Albany 25 dis
Charlestown Savings Institu-
65 dis
Indiana Scrip, $5's 45 dis
" " $50's 50 dis

ILLINOIS.—State bank of Illinois 60 dis bank of Illinois, Shawnee-town 12hf dis
bank of Cario 75 dis MICHIGAN.—band of St Clair, (endorsed by J. O. & H. Smith,) 10 dis
Other Michigan banks no sale
PENNSYLVANIA.—U. States
bk 70 dis
Philadelphia city banks 1 prem
Country banks, (generally) 5 a 10d
DELAWARE. par

NEW YORK.—N York city bks 1 prem
New York County banks par
NEW ENGLAND banks par
MARYLAND banks (generally) par
VIRGINIA, Eastern 8 dis
Wheeling 15 dis
SOUTH CAROLINA 8 dis
NORTH CAROLINA 10 dis
ALABAMA 25 dis
TENNESSEE 20 dis
GEORGIA 12 a 15 d
ARKANSAS no sale
LOUISIANA, New Orleans 12hf dis
EXCHANGE, on New York 1hf prem
Philadelphia 1hf prem
Baltimore 1hf prem
United States Treasury Notes 1 prem
Gold 1 a 2 prem

From the Newark Advocate.

EARLY SETTLEMENT OF OHIO.

It is stated in the Newark Gazette of the 27th ult. that a gentleman left Evansville. (La.) on the 4th ult. to go to Mexri-etta to celebrate the day on which the first stick of timber was cut in Ohio. It is further stated, that that gentleman is probably the only survivor of that brave little band, who under Gen. Putnam, on the 7th day of April, 1788, pitched their tents on Campus Martius.

Now, sir, I happen to know, that settlements were made in Ohio, before Gen.
Putnam pitched his tent on Campus Marcius, in 1788. In 1784, there were 53 men, most of whom were tomahawked, and scalped by the Indians. John Tilton was killed at Warren, in Jefferson county; Jacob Keller; Abraham Lamasters; John Lamasters; John M'Coy, with his wife and five children; David Pursley, Nancy Morrison. David Cox and his sister, and Thomas Sweringen, were killed, on the ground where Steubenville now stands. Lawrence Buskirk, Joseph Jones, Daniel Dorman, and a Mr. Dunn,
Isaac Laporte, and two of the Miracles.
All of these persons were killed in Jefferson county.

Three prisoners were taken during all this time, viz: Richard Tilton, now living on Wakatomica; James Johnson, the father of the two brave little children who killed two Indians, on the waters of the Rush Run; and Mr. Littleton.

My wife was the first white woman born in the State of Ohio. She is now 53 years old. My brother Caleb was the first white man.

John Tilton's Station was in existence in 1784. So was John Carpenter's and Keller's. There was also the 'Yankee Station,' at Short Creek, before 1788, at which Kimberly, Shannon, Jeffords lived.

Previous to 1788, the Government sent a request to the settlers in Ohio, to leave the country, so as to keep them and the Indians from quarrelling. The Indians would steal the horses of the whites, which caused a great deal of irritation. This request was not complied with; and the government afterwards sent troops, who burnt our cabins and rails, and cut up our corn. But we went to work immediately, and built new cabins. These were stormy and troublesome times, of which the people of this day can form no conception.

JACOB RILEY.

May 7, 1842.

THE NEW YORK CUSTOM HOUSE FRAUDS.—The report of Mr. Poindexter has been printed, will some member of Congress remember us so far as to send us a copy of it? We have heard so much of the corruptions in that department, that we are anxious to see the evidence on which the charges are predicated. A Washington correspondent of the United States Gazette gives the following synopsis of one of the cases reported.

The Report of the Committee on Public Expenditures, which includes the Report of Mr. Poindexter, on the New York Custom House rogues, was sent to members of the house, at their lodgings, this afternoon. It forms a document of one hundred and ninety-four pages. I have run my eye over about thirty pages, and well might Mr. Stanley say that it contained that which would astonish the people. The development of greater frauds and villainies I never saw in the same number of pages.

The report states that George A. Wasson was the keeper of the Public Store in Nassau street, New York, where goods were stored. That two privileged carts were employed to haul goods from vessels to this store, and that whatever haste there might be, no others were at any time employed. That one of these carts were owned by Wasson and the other supposed to be by some other Custom House officer. That instead of charging the Government thirty one or fifty cents a load as merchants were charged, (according to distance) by other carters, the storekeeper (Wasson) charged so much for each package, so that oftentimes a load would come to four or five dollars. The report says this system of charging will account for the enormous sums paid to George A. Wasson for cartage and labor, without any sufficient voucher to justify it and which amounted, in 1838, '39 and '40, to $94,430.92. It seems that this George A. Wasson, besides this enormous sum paid him for cartage and labor without any voucher, other than a mere general charge, was made a deputy collector, having no duty to perform, at a salary of $1500 a year; that he received large sums of money from Hoyl, the collector, for attending trials on seized goods, at Baltimore, Philadelphia, &c., without being required to specify any item of expenditure on which these advances could be justified; that he abstracted a large amount of goods from the public store, and made use of the Custom House coal for his own use, and employed the time of a large number of laborers in and about his own premises, whose hire was paid by the public, and whose services were constantly required at the public store—This man was found by Mr. Poindexter in office, and he was continued there by Mr. Curtis, till it was discovered by the Commissioners that the laborers and subordinate officers made him a great deal of money within their knowledge implicating him, fearing the consequences which were threatened, of instant removal, if they did so.—N. Y. Herald.

"The love of a virtuous soul dwelling in a fair and perfect body, is the noblest and worthiest action that a man is master of: it exerciseth in due manner that superior talent that God and Nature hath given him; and by choosing a perfecter object than himself to love, it exalteth and refineth those seeds of goodness that are in him; and although he should not find any completely perfect, yet this heroic effect of it would not be frustrated, since it is the nature of love to make the lover believe all possible perfections in the person beloved, and to that idea that he hath framed to himself he raiseth himself up. And when this divine gift, which obligeth the person beloved in the deepest debt that may be, which can be only by returning the like love, then the lover reapeth the fruit of this action, which is perfect joy; and that is the greatest blessing that our nature is capable of, as sorrow is the greatest misery which at the last must necessarily follow those that miss of this joy by erring in the bestowing of this gift, although it may be long before they take notice of it, like the unfortunate and wretched souls whose greatest torment is to be deprived of the divine joy that is the inheritance of them who place their love on a right object."—[Extract from Memoirs of Kenelm Digby.

"I am, in a great scrape," as the native meg agonizingly exclaimed to the grater.

THE WASP.

SATURDAY, JUNE 4, 1842.

THE UNION TICKET.

It will be seen, in another column of this paper, that a union ticket has been nominated for the next election in August. We believe this course an honorable one, and, if those who hold their rights sacred, their honor sacred, and their country's glory sacred, will go to the polls as one man, heart and hand, they will do away the monstrous humbug about nothing, which makes hot heads before election, and cold hearts after it. A little brief authority, or the want of it, too often make men act like owls, apes, and asses. Let every honest patriot remember: 'unity is power,' and as he sings,

Yankee doodle do,
Nobly act so too.

No war in Rhode Island—she's not burst her border;
But took the advices of President Tyler.

From our exchanges we learn that the suffrage party, and the King Charles party, after two or three months preparation of vox et preterea nihil (noise and nothing else) as to which party should rule little Rhode Island, in these troublesome times, have submitted the matter in difference, according to the counsel of President Tyler, to Referees; who are to meet in the city of New York in the course of the present month; at which meeting it is expected that the Secretary of State, Mr. Webster, and the Secretary of War, Mr. Spencer, will be present to aid in this pacific modus operandi. Well, discretion is considered the better part of valor.

The St. Louis Republican has lost its balance and reports the death of Jo Smith, the Mormon Prophet, in a fracas at Nauvoo. The Mormons have been so much accustomed to such 'REPORTS' that all they have to fear, is that their continued multiplication may act upon this generation as miracles, and make some believe that would otherwise remain in statu quo. Gen. Smith was as well to day as he ever was.

In 1834, the New York Daily Advertiser, said Smith was shot in the leg and died of the wound or amputation. This story has never been contradicted, though Jo Smith has been alive ever since, and will continue the Lyon of the age, as long as liars need a troubler.

'Now, Hal, bring me no more reports.'

HARK!

Messrs. Bent & Vrain have just received twelve sacks of Buffalo Tongues, at St. Louis, which will, in all probability, be consigned immediately to Washington City for the use of Congress to prolong the present session.

—And Editor of the Wasp.

DEAR SIR: In every well regulated community, city, or society, there are certain rules, samples of order, business habits, and courses of etiquette, which attract the attention of all honorable visitors, as well as merit the approbation of the virtuous citizen. But you are aware that every point has its opposite; and, therefore, whenever I go into General Smith's store and find a dozen or more loungers, or loafers, or, to use a more familiar phrase, lazy set of fellows, lopping and loling on the counter; or filling up the entrance into the Recorder's Office;—or when I enter the printing office, and behold a swarm of squalling in every hole and corner, and some making pi: and then, to cap the climax, Mr. Editor, discover your editorial sanctum swarming too, I think you must understand nimble practice better than I do, if you do not trot all day without overtaking your business at night.

Perhaps you have a remedy at hand;—but whether you have or not, I believe you will agree with me in saying, that few know how to be idle and innocent. Lazy sinners and lazy saints are very apt to be found in darkness rather than light, because their deeds are evil. Will you, therefore, caution them, lest I 'Put in ev'ry honest man's hand a whip,

To lash the rascals naked through the world,
To be sure and stand out of THE WAY.
Work-place, June 2nd, 1842.

We cheerfully give space to our friend, 'The Way' hoping it may be received with kindness and travelled in with delight by all those for whom it is intended: for our friends frequently say to us, 'we would call and see you occasionally, but when we happen to pass your office, we see so many loungers we are ashamed.'—ED.

A Good One.—At the races at Washington, the proprietor of the course, upon the application of Mr. Stanley and Wise for admission, told them that they might enter upon condition of good behavior; and, he added, that although they claimed the right of doing as they pleased in the capitol, yet on his premises they must conduct themselves with propriety.

The Lower Mohawk Aqueduct, which conveys the Erie Canal across the Mohawk, a few miles from Albany, is said to be the largest in America. It stands on 26 arches, each thirty seven and a half feet span. The entire length is 1140 feet; breadth 40 feet. It was finished on the 20th ult. and cost $315,000.

A young man in Buffalo, the other day, was forced to turn a back somerset on account of the bursting of his pantaloons straps. He was taken before a magistrate, and fined for grand and lofty tumbling, without license.

ILLINOIS LANDS.—Three of the Commissioners appointed by Gov. Carlin, to select the Lands to which we are entitled under the Distribution Act, have arrived in this city. They put up at the Illinois Exchange. Col. Greenup, one of the Commissioners, has politely furnished us with the following statement. It will be seen that there is no desire to interfere with the rights of our settlers. Col. G informs us that no selections will be made in this district until after the Land Sale.

The Governor has appointed nine agents to select the lands granted to this state by the Act of Congress passed on the 4th of September, 1841; to appropriate the proceeds of the sales of the public lands, and to grant pre-emptions, so as to make up the quantity of 500,000 acres.

The following are the names of the gentlemen appointed.

Col. William C. Greenup, of Fayette County,

Dr. Isaac S. Berry,	Alexander,
William Carlin,	Green,
Col. Jacob Judy,	Madison,
Gen. Samuel Whiteside,	do
Gen. Wm. L. D. Ewing,	Montgomery,
Dr. Samuel W. Rogers,	Adams,
Maj. John B. Young,	do
William H. Carlin,	do

The agents are divided into parties of three each, and are engaged in examining the lands in the Danville, Dixon and Chicago districts. Col. Greenup, Doct. Berry and Maj. Young, are now in this city procuring copies from the plats in the Register's Office preparatory to an examination of the lands.

The quantities of land to be selected and located are to consist as follows: 210, 132 85-100 acres estimated by the Commissioner of the General Land Office, as the residue due the State after deducting 289,867 15-100 acres, reserved for the Illinois and Michigan Canal. It appears however, that there has been 471 Sections of Canal lands amounting to 284, 758 68 100 acres selected and patented, and that nine sections remain to be selected to complete the grant for the Canal, in lieu of a like number heretofore selected, but inadvertently sold, estimated at 5,758 15-100 acres, making total of Canal grants 289,867 15 100 acres. Seven sections to complete the quantity of Seminary lands granted by the Act of Congress in 1818. These seven sections were selected some years ago, but the selection was disapproved by the Secretary of the Treasury. The Governor has directed the agents to make a new selection.

No right of pre-emption will be interfered with in such selections.—[Chicago Am.]

A remarkable discussion and vote has taken place in the British Commons, of interest to us. It appears that, when a tax is about to be laid in Great Britain, the practice of the house is not to receive petitions against it. The practice, or rule, was absolute, however; and but few were aware of its existence, till Sir Robert Peel demanded its revival during the discussion upon his new tariff. The whole subject of the right of petition came up as it has in our Congress. Mr. Duncombe said if one petition was put down, another would come. Petition was one of the rights of man which no prescription could put an end to. Mr. D. moved the rule be abolished, and the court stood: ayes, 221; noes, 222—for the ministry, ONE majority.

The opposition, of course, cheered long and loud, for they felt that they had gained a victory. Sir Robert Peel subsequently indicated that he should not hold out against so powerfully a majority. A great many of his own party voted against him, for he has 60 or more majority.—N. Y. Express.

CASE OF THE TIGRIS.

The Salem Gazette publishes the following note from Lord Aberdeen—transmitted by Mr. Everett to the owners of that vessel. It is an acknowledgement and redress of wrong worthy an honorable and magnanimous nation.

'Her Majesty's Government acknowledges that the act of the officer commanding the 'Waterwich' was not justifiable upon any principle of international law, or by any existing treaty between Great Britain and the United States, and that the case is one to which compensation may be justly demanded by the United States Government from the Government of Great Britain. The undersigned has accordingly the honor to request the owners of the 'Tigris' to send a statement, accompanied by documentary evidence, of the damage which they have sustained by the unauthorized act of the British officers; in order that the account, as soon as it shall have been substantiated to the satisfaction of her Majesty's Government, may at once be settled.

(Signed) ABERDEEN.

A Hole in the Law.—At Oxford, in England, one William Scale was indicted for stealing a bee-hive. The hive was found in his possession, but at the trial it was necessary to prove that it was the identical hive of the prosecutor. How to do this was the question. There were marks upon it to which he could swear, and it was brought into Court, wrapped up in a cloth. But the inmates of the hive buzzed forth threats of mischief if the cloth should be removed: and judges, lawyers and jury were in a quandary. One of the counsel moved for a rule upon the bees, enjoining them to good behavior; but the court thought it useless to make a rule which there was no power to enforce. The upshot was that the hive could not be identified, and so the hole in it became a large hole in the law, through which the prisoner slipped into an acquittal.

CLOSING SCENE OF LIFE.—The last words of Mr. Jefferson, who died just half a century after the passage of his immortal Declaration of Independence were, "I resign my soul to God, and my daughter to my country." The dying words of John Adams, the same day were till more characteristic of the man. A few minutes before he died, being roused by the firing of cannon, and told that his neighbors were rejoicing for the 4th of July, he exclaimed "It is a great and glorious day," and expired with the words, "Independence forever," on his lips. President Monroe died on the morning of our National Independence.—When the firing began at midnight, he opened his eyes inquiringly, and when the cause was communicated to him, a cheerful intelligent smile indicated that he understood what the occasion was, although speechless.—

Gen. Harrison's dying words will never be forgotten: "I wish you to understand the true principles of the Government—I wish them carried out—I ask nothing more."

EPISCOPACY AT JERUSALEM.—After all the pomp and parade of the English Government in sending out the new Bishop of Jerusalem in a national vessel, he does not seem likely to succeed very well.—Tahir Pacha has refused to recognize him in any other character, than that of an English traveller, and the Syrian Christians with whom he was to fraternize, it is said, stoned him whilst engaged in a religious exercise.

How much more in accordance with the simplicity and benevolence of the Gospel, would it have been for Dr. Alexander to have gone to Jerusalem as a warm-hearted self-denying Missionary, than in the empty pageantry of "Bishops of Jerusalem!"

A GOOD ONE.—Not long since a man came to our market to dispose of some cattle, which naturally enough, led to the everlasting theme of "hard times."—"Yes," concluded the cattle vender, with an air of peevish positiveness. "Times are hard, and this is a hard world, and in my opinion very few will get out of it alive!"—[Roch. Adv.]

The experiments of steam on our Canal have been so successful, that we understand another boat is building in this city with still greater improvements.—Roch. Adv.

ANOTHER MANOR WAR.—Gov. Seward has issued a proclamation, called forth by disturbances in Schoharie county. The Albany Daily Advertiser says, the seat of this quasi civil war is in the Livingston Manor, and that the causes which have led to the outbreak are akin to those which disturbed the public peace in Albany county, in 1839 and 1840. The Governor offers a reward of seven hundred dollars, to be paid to those who shall be instrumental in bringing to justice the individuals engaged in resisting the civil authorities of Schoharie.

Canal Steamboat.—A curious piece of floating material in the way of a Steam Boat, now runs regularly between this place and Albion. The boiler (6 horse power) is near the bow of the boat. The wheel is in advance of the boiler. The body of the boat is built upon timbers, which stretch along its outer edge. The waves caused by the wheel are thrown between these timbers, and are spent before they reach the stern of the boat. The result is, the sides of the canal are not disturbed, although the boat moves off easily at the rate of five miles the hour. It seems to work very well, and may do.—[Rock. Dem.]

IMPORTANT DECISION.—Chancellor Walworth has decided that the transfer of a bond and mortgage to a third person for $3,000, the payment of which was guaranteed by the seller and another person, in consideration of the sum of $2,600, is usurious and void. It has been heretofore held that the guaranty under such circumstances is usurious, but we believe this is the first time it has been decided that the transfer is usurious and void.

A tremendous tornado swept over Newton, N. J., and its vicinity a few days since. Its track was from three to five hundred yards in width and some five or six miles in length. Fences, out houses, trees, &c., were prostrated before it; no serious danger, so far as is known, was sustained.

The following table shows the comparative currencies of France, England, and the United States:

FRANCE.	ENGLAND.	U. STATES.
Specie 5000,000.	112,000,000	75,000,000
Paper 50,000,000	146,000,000	149,000,000
Total, 550,000,000	258,000,000	149,000,000

In France they have more specie than in both England and the United States; and in that country they have the least complaint about fluctuations and hard times.

Galena, Illinois, had in 1820, only a few log cabins—in 1841, a population of 2200. There were last year 250 steamboat arrivals at that place. The lead shipped from there in 1841 exceeded 30,000,000 lbs., which at the low price at which it sold, gives in that single article a greater amount than the whole exports of any other town in the west of so small a population. The imports, the same year, are estimated at $1,000,000.

INDEPENDENCE.—Dialogue of a Lowell girl with the overseer of a factory:

“Well, Mr. Buck, I am informed that you wish to cut down my wages.”

“Yes, such is my determination.”

“Do you suppose that I would go into that room to work for lower wages than I received before?”

“Why, it's no more than fair and reasonable, considering the hard times.”

“Well, all I have to say, is, that before I'll do it, I'll see you in Tophet, pumping thunder at three cents a clap!”

Canada.—The Lower Canada papers countenance the opinion that the seat of Government for both Provinces will be removed to Toronto—that the Legislature will be called together next August—and that all the political exiles, with two or three exceptions, will be allowed to return to their country by an ample and complete amnesty and oblivion to all past offences and dissensions.

ARTIFICIAL MOONLIGHT.

We can tell how to get up a very pretty imitation of moonlight in a room. It is somewhere stated that a luminous bottle may be prepared, which will give sufficient light in the night to admit of the hour being easily told on the dial of a watch. The process is as follows.

A phial of clear white glass, of a long form, must be chosen, and some fine olive oil heated to ebullition in another vessel; a piece of phosphorus, of the size of a pea must be put into the phial, and the boiling oil carefully poured over it, till the phial is one third filled. The phial must then be carefully corked, and when it is to be used it must be unstopped, to admit the external air, and then closed again. The empty space of the phial will then appear luminous, and will give as much light as a full moon. Each time the light disappears, on removing the stopper it will instantly reappear. In cold weather the bottle must be warmed in the hands before the stopper is removed. A phial prepared in this way may be used every night for six months with success.

HARD TO UNDERSTAND.

Well, my lad, said a traveller, that is rather small corn you are hoeing.

Yes sir, we planted the small sort.

But it looks rather yellow.

Yes sir, we planted yellow corn, said the boy, scratching away at the hard and stony soil.

But I don't believe you will have more than half a crop.

No sir we don't expect to, we planted it on the shares.

The above specimen of cool impudence reminds us of another, which we read in an old almanac.

I say boy, stop that cow.

I han't got no stopple, sir.

Well, head her then.

She's already headed, sir.

Turn her then.

She's right side out already, -ir.

Confound your impertinence, speak to her.

Good morning, Mrs. Cow.

BANK OF ATTICA.—We are authorized to say that the Bank of Attica is discontinued, and all of the notes of said Bank now in circulation will be redeemed either at the Bank of Genesee, at Batavia, or at the Albany Exchange Bank in the City of Albany. The Bank is discontinued from choice and not from necessity.

[Attica Democrat, 4th inst.]

An Arabian having brought a blush to a maiden's cheek by the earnestness of his gaze, said to her: “My looks have planted roses in your cheeks; why forbid me to gather them? The law permits him who sows to reap the harvest.”—What think you of this logic, ladies?

A great tax sale of lands will take place in Michigan early in August, comprising nearly 2,000,000 acres, which will be sold for the dues of 1838, and without redemption.

Gov. Boggs, according to the last accounts from Independence, was still alive, and faint hopes were indulged of his possible recovery.—Quincy Whig.

There is a lady in town, so modest, that she will not let the sun come into her bed room. She says that according to grammar, “sun” is masculine—“as he shines.”

Wise and Stanly had a quarrel while riding from the races the other day. Wise struck Stanly with a cane. A duel is predicted.—Western Reserve Cabinet.

STATE OF THINGS IN ILLINOIS.—Nearly three entire pages of the Sangamo Journal, a paper of the extra mammoth size, are filled with advertisements of applicants for the benefit of the Bankrupt law.

“Bobby, what is steam?” Boiling water. “That's right; compare it.” Positive, boil; comparative, boiler; superlative, burst.

POETRY.

For the Wasp.

MY EARLY HOME.

BY L. O. LITTLEFIELD.

Where dance the lilies in the breeze,
That cools the brow at summer evening;
Where sighs the wind among the trees,
That rustle round my childhood's dwelling;
There does my vision often stray—
I think upon that happy day,
Where oft, in youth, I sported free
And sung the song of youthful glee.

Where gentle torrents freshly glide,
Into the vale's reposing bosom,
Where murmurs low the limpid tide,
Whose chant to inspiration's given;
There does my mem'ry often go,
In gentle whispers, soft and low,
To muse upon that spot of earth,
Which is the Eden of my birth.

Where chants the robbin's evening song,
And 's heard the dove's low mellow cooing;
Where sings the black-bird all day long,
Mid flowers of May that's freshly blooming;
There do I long, again, to tread
The path where oft my feet have stray'd,
To gaze upon the grass-clad hill,
Or listen to the rippling rill.

Where sleep the waters of the lake,
Where oft, with friends, I've gaily sported;
And bent the trunk of many a brake,
O'er which my tiny 'shallop' floated;
There do I long to be with those Who'd hush my bosom to repose—
Whose gen'rous spirits, proud and bold,
Would curb the rancor of the world.

To a Friend at Parting.

Think of me! When?

Just at the gentle twilight hour,
When the dew is falling on tree and flower,
When birds to their quiet nests have gone,
And the summer night comes softly on;
Think of me then.

Think of me! When?

As thou art roving through pleasant glades,
Or lingering mid the deep forest's shades
Gazing on flower and field and tree,
Let the thought turn for a while to me:
Think of me then.

Think of me! When?

As some sweet strain we have loved to hear,
Comes with a pathos deep to thine ear,
Or a soft note over thy senses flung,
Brings back the time when that lay was sung:
Think of me then.

Think of me! When?

At the early hours of the Sabbath morn,
When no rude sounds on the breeze are borne,
When all is balmy and sweet and still,
And the mists are rising from stream and hill:
Think of me then.

Think of me! When?

At that lone hour when on bended knee,
Thou art breathing a prayer to the Deity,
That all whom thou lovest He may defend,
O, ask some boon for thy distant friend:
Think of me then.

ARRIVAL OF THE BRITANIA.

This steamer arrived at Boston on Wednesday morning, bringing dates four days later than received by the Great Western.

The most important news by this arrival is that from the east. The affairs of the English at Cabul, have been extremely disastrous. Great excitement is said to prevail in other parts of India.

At Canton, the Chinese were busy making their defences as effective as possible.

The Emperor is much incensed by the proceedings of the foreigners. Large forces were collecting in the vicinity of Ningpo.

Great destruction of property and life had occurred at Derbe by an inundation.

Murders and other crimes prevail to a great extent in England, and the distress among the working classes, is unabated.

The Secretary of War has issued instructions to the Major General, commanding the army in Florida, to communicate the following directions to Col. Worth: To declare that hostilities against the Indians in Florida have ceased, and that they will not be renewed unless provoked by new aggressions on their part. To take the necessary measures to establish such a line of protection for the settlements as to offer inducements to our citizens to settle in the Territory. To use the means he possesses of communicating with the Indians yet remaining, and inducing them to consult their interests by joining their brethren in the West.

TENDER CONSCIENCES.—Some people have consciences so very tender that they make no use of them whatever.

PUBLIC MEETING.

At a meeting of the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity, Gen. George Miller was unanimously chosen President, and John S. Fullmer, Secretary.

The meeting was addressed by several gentlemen present on the subject for which they were convened, after which the following gentlemen were selected as the choice of the meeting as candidates for the various offices to be filled at the ensuing August election.

Dr. J. F. Charles for the Senate; Mark Aldridge, of Warsaw, and Orson Pratt, of Nauvoo, for Representatives; William Backenstos, for Sheriff; Sidney Rigdon Esq., for School Commissioner; Hiram Kimball, for County Commissioner; and Daniel H. Wells, for Coroner.

It was then unanimously

Resolved, That the several gentlemen who had been nominated, be respectfully solicited to stand as candidates for the same, and were earnestly recommended to the favorable consideration of the inhabitants of the county.

On motion, the meeting adjourned sine die.

GEORGE MILLER, President.

JOHN S. FULLMER, Secretary.

June 1st 1842.

A NEW BRANCH OF VILLANY.—Many of the gold coins in England, are found to have been perforated from the edges nearly the whole breadth with drills and the holes filled up with lead, except the part near the entrance, which are neatly closed with standard gold, so as to conceal the holes.

A cockney of the real bow-bell species, went to hear the Lord Mayor's Chaplain, his text was: “There is nothing new under the sun.” The cockney pulled a brother cit by the sleeve, and whispered to him, “yes, there's a new Lord Mayor every year.”

Nauvoo, June 3rd, A. D. 1842.

To the citizens of the city of Nauvoo—

In obedience to the order of the Mayor I have added A. H. Redfield, H. Clark, S. B. Hicks, E. H. Derby, John A. Forges, G. Goldsmith, Daniel Carn, and John G. Luice, to the City Watch: they will, therefore, be respected and obeyed as such until further orders.

JOHN C. BENNETT, Major General of the Nauvoo Legion.

An Ordinance repealing certain Ordinances respecting Licence in the City of Nauvoo.

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, that the several Laws and Ordinances heretofore enacted, to wit: An Ordinance entitled “An Ordinance in relation to Hawkers, Pedlers, and Public Shows and Exhibitions,” passed Nov. 27th 1842; so much of an ordinance entitled “An Ordinance regulating Auctions in the City of Nauvoo,” passed Feb. 12th 1842, as has not been repealed by an ordinance passed April 9th 1842, entitled “An Ordinance amending an ordinance entitled ‘An Ordinance regulating Auctions in the City of Nauvoo,’ an ordinance entitled ‘An Ordinance to regulate Taverns and Ordinaries in the City of Nauvoo,’ passed April 9th 1842; an ordinance entitled ‘An Ordinance in relation to Stores and Groceries,’ passed April 22nd 1842; and an ordinance entitled ‘An Ordinance to amend an Ordinance’ entitled ‘An Ordinance to regulate Taverns and Ordinaries in the City of Nauvoo,’ passed April 22nd 1842, and every part thereof, be, and the same are hereby repealed.
Passed May 14th 1842.

JOHN C. BENNETT, Mayor.

JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

An Ordinance to amend an Ordinance entitled “An Ordinance to regulate Weights and Measures.”

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, that from and after the passage of this Ordinance, the following sums shall be paid to and received by the Weigher and Sealer of the City of Nauvoo for the duties herein prescribed, that is to say, for rectifying, branding and sealing the following articles, to wit: all scale weights and measures of metal, six and one fourth cents each; all measures of wood, ten cents each; and all scale beams and steelyards, twelve and a half cents each; which sums shall be in full lieu and satisfaction of the sums allowed for the like services, in and by the Ordinance of which this is an amendment, and it shall not be lawful for the Weigher and Sealer to ask, demand, receive, or take any greater sum or sums, or other compensation for such services, under the penalty of five dollars for every offence, and to be recovered and disposed of in like manner as all other small fines and forfeitures of a like nature.

Passed May 14th 1842.

JOHN C. BENNETT, Mayor.

JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

NOTICE.

THE Burying Ground south east of the city has been laid out in family burying lots, a number of which will be offered for sale, at public auction, on the 18th inst., at 10 o'clock A. M., at the office of Gen. Hyram Smith.

Terms one third on the day of sale, one third in six months from sale, and one third in twelve months from sale, with approved security.

By order of the City Council.

WILSON LAW,

Committee to sell.

Nauvoo, June 4th 1842.

STRAYED

From the undersigned, a brown colored cow, (farrow) rather thin in order; any person giving information of said cow, so that she can be obtained, will be reasonably rewarded.

L. O. LITTLEFIELD.

Extraordinary Change.—The Island of Jamaica, formerly exported a large quantity of sugar, now it is imported into that Island. Mr. J., a respectable and enterprising merchant of this city, within four months shipped a large quantity of sugar to Jamaica. The article sold so well, and to so good a profit, that he is preparing to repeat the adventure.—N. Y. American.

Florida a State.—We stop the press to announce the interesting intelligence that we are assured that the Committee appointed by the State Convention have decided to issue immediately writs of election for State Officers! Thus organizing at once a State Government for Florida, under the St. Joseph Constitution.—[Florida Star.]

Ancient American Curiosities.—Eighteen boxes containing statues and blocks of stone, gathered among the ruins in the Peninsula of Yucatan, were brought to New Orleans on board of the schr. Litchfield from Campeachy, on the 21st ult. These are some of the fruits of Stephen's travels.

The Boston Courier says on Sunday night some villain endeavored to set fire to the beautiful cemetery at Mount Auburn.

The amount of American Salt imported by Canada, during the past season, is estimated by a writer in the Toronto Patriot, at 42,000 barrels.

DR. J. F. WELD,

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.

Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

A RARE CHANCE. AND THE ONLY VACANCY ON THE TEMPLE BLOCK

The subscriber wishing to close his business in the city, offers for sale his house and lot, (a pleasant situation, with a good garden) adjoining the Temple Block, on the north side; also, an improvement of a house and lot, pleasantly situated on the bluff a few hundred yards from the Temple.

He will receive as part pay for the above mentioned property, a good horse, harness, and carriage, a certain amount in dry goods, or other good property, and the balance in cash; or he

joining town. F. G. BISHOP.
Nauvoo, May 9th, 1842.

IN the matter of the Petition of GEORGE BACKSTER, a bankrupt to be discharged from his debts. NOTICE is hereby given to all creditors and others interested of George Backster a bankrupt to appear before the District Court of the United States on the 8th day of July, A. D. 1842, at the city of Springfield, in the district of Illinois, and show cause if any they have why the aforesaid George Backster should not receive a final discharge from all his debts, and a certificate thereof be granted to him. Dated at Springfield this 4th day of April, A. D. 1842.

Strong & Doremus, solicitors for petitioner.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus
J. Salabery, Plymouth, " "
Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Cliffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Page, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW-JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
James Curtis, Horners Town.
W. I. Appleby, Rectless Town.
Israel Irwin, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Salem.
Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapeer.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirtland.

NEW YORK.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.
L. R. Foster, city of New York.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Amos Davis, of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Amos Davis of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Charles Warner, of Hancock co., to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Charles Warner, of Hancock co., has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 2nd day of May, A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Windsor P. Lyon, of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Windsor P. Lyon of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 2nd day of May A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Arthur Morrison of Hancock co., to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that Arthur Morrison of Hancock co. has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April, A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

VALUABLE FARM FOR SALE.

Situated 5 miles south west of Carthage, 12 miles from Warsaw, and 16 miles from the city of Nauvoo, containing 200 acres; half timber, and the balance farming land, with about 100 acres under fence. A comfortable dwelling house, good stable and other out buildings; also a thriving young apple orchard &c. &c.

The said tract may advantageously be divided into two or more smaller farms with never failing stock-water running through each tract.

Price low, and terms accommodating. Apply to

J. B. BACKENSTOS.

Carthage Hancock co. Ill. May 6th, 1842.

STRAYED.

FROM the "Trustee in Trust," President Joseph Smith, a black Cow and Calf, the titheing of Joseph Carleton. Whoever will return said cow, and give information of the same, will add to the funds of the Temple, and a reasonable charge will be paid if wished. May 21, 1842.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of George Morey of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that George Morey of Hancock county, has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the city of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of John P. Green of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that John P. Green of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the city of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April, A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Joseph Smith, of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Joseph Smith, of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Sidney Rigdon of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Sidney Rigdon of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Vinson Knight, of Hancock county, to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Vinson Knight of Hancock county has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Reynolds Cahoon of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Reynolds Cahoon of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Samuel H. Smith, of Hancock County, to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Samuel H. Smith of Hancock County has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Hyrum Smith, of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Hyrum Smith of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April, A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Jared Carter, of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Jared Carter, of Hancock county has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Henry G. Sherwood of Hancock County to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Henry G. Sherwood of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this district, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Elias Higbee, of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Elias Higbee, of Hancock county, has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April, A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

THE

WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 9.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, June 11, 1842.

Whole Number 9.

THE WASP,

AS EDITED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY
WM. SMITH,
At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.
TERMS.—$1.50 invariably in advance.

THE SEXES.

The finger of God himself has marked out the line which separates the impulses, the habits, and the character of the two sexes. Man has vigor—woman refinement. Man has the reasoning faculty fully developed—woman the perceptive. Man has the power of abstraction—woman rarely possesses it. Man is the creature of calculation—woman of impulse. Man is capable of deep research; he proceeds cautiously, measuring every distance, and counting every step of his progress—woman bounds along with rapid foot, observing the most prominent objects in her path, and from them draws conclusions, often erroneous, but always ingenious. The intellectual faculties of man are usually concentrated—in woman they are diffused. Men of genius commonly devote themselves to some favorite pursuit—women of genius are remarkable for their versatility. Man has the more correct judgment—woman has the more correct feelings. He has a knowledge of right, which he often forgets—she has a consciousness of it which never forsakes her, even in the midst of crime. Man possesses the stronger passions—woman the stronger affections. Man has boldness—woman fortitude. Man can perform heroic deeds—woman can endure the extreme of suffering. Man has the more physical daring—woman the more moral courage. Man controls others by the force of character—woman influences by the gentleness of hers. In a word, the relative position of the sexes is fixed beyond all change, and their respective duties are well defined. To man has been given the weapons of moral and mental warfare, that he may go out into the world, and do battle with and for his fellows—while on woman is bestowed that skill in moral and mental culture which enables her to improve the field of duty at home.

COPY RIGHT LAW.—As the subject of international Copy Right has been discussed between the American Minister in London and the British Secretary for Foreign affairs, we give below a project for such law as submitted by Lord Palmerston, as the basis of the desired agreement:

1. That from the day of the authors of books first published in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, or any other part of the British dominions, shall have the sole liberty of printing and re-printing such books within the territories of the United States of America, during the term of And such numbers shall have all other privileges, rights, remedies and protection, to which the citizens of the United States are now entitled, in respect to the works first published in the territories of the United States.

2. That from the day of the authors of books first published in the United States, shall have the sole liberty of printing and re-printing such books within the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and every other part of the British dominions, during the term of from the first publication thereof in the United States; and if the author be living at the expiration of said term, then during the remainder of the life of the author, and every such author shall have all privileges, rights, remedies, and protection, to which the subjects of Her Britannic Majesty are now entitled in respect of works first published in the dominions of Her Britannic Majesty.

3. But no person shall be entitled to the benefit of this treaty, in the dominions or territories of either of the high contracting parties, until all the regulations in force in dominions or territories where the same shall be sought to be enforced, in regard to the registration of books first published in a foreign country, and in regard to the delivery of a copy of such book, have been duly observed.

Lord Aberdeen "renounces as he has always done, in the most explicit terms, any right on the part of the British Government to search American vessels in time of peace." "The right of search," he adds, "except when specially conceded by treaty, is a purely belligerent right, and can have no existence on the high seas during peace."

Thus it appears that on this, as an abstract question, the United States cannot pick a quarrel with Great Britain.

Lord Aberdeen says sharply in the course of his letter,—"that with American vessels, whatever be their destination, British cruisers have no pretension in any manner to interfere. Such vessels must be permitted, if engaged in it, to enjoy a monopoly of this unhallowed trade."

The only point of controversy now left are the orders of the British government, copies of which have been communicated to Mr. Everett, to detain and examine American vessels, and if they prove to be any other than American, to capture them. All the particulars of the detention are to be entered upon the Log Book, and forwarded immediately to England.

A LAND OF DARKNESS.—The Hon. Henry A. Wise in one of his recent speeches in Congress, actually boasted that the people of his district would not let a newspaper be established in it; and that they were right. On examining his district according to the late census, we find that of a population of about 53,000 persons, only about 8000 of those over 20 years can either read or write. And this is the Mr. Wise who wants to have the compensation of Members of Congress increased to $16 per day, and to be placed in such respectable standing as to be above the influence of the Jack Cades, alias, common people, or working men. We care nothing for Mr. Wise's sentiments as to party politics, but we have usually considered it inadmissible that any but a most ignorant and benighted community, could elect such a man to the station which he now occupies.—N. Y. American.

"LET ON THE WATER!"—The prisoners who escaped from the Missouri Penitentiary lately, after having been captured, were lodged for safe keeping in the St. Louis jail; when the sheriff called for them, to go back to the penitentiary, he found the door barricaded and the prisoners armed with clubs, determined to resist; after fruitless attempts to make them come to terms, by directing a stream of water upon them through a hole attached to a fire engine, (an infiction which they bore manfully,) they were induced to surrender "by advice of their counsel!"—Pitts. Chron.

DEVIL CHEATED.—The devil is a very extraordinary fellow. Scarcely a thing is done wrong but this unfortunate being has to bear all the blame.

Squire—made a fortune in a country village by selling liquor, consequently he ruined some of his neighbors. After making a fortune, and during a temperance revival, he came to the conclusion not to sell any more liquor, and abandoned the practice altogether, and became an ardent and warm supporter of temperance. One day a sort of a vagabond, who had not yet left off the habits of drinking, accosted the 'squire' and wanted to know why he had given up selling liquor.

'Why it was wrong' said the squire. 'Wrong, ha,' was the reply, 'but who sent you to doing this wrong?'

'The devil, I suppose.'

'The devil, indeed—was he your partner, then?'

'He was in selling liquor.'

'Well, look here, squire, I've just seen him, and he wants you to send him his share of the profits.'

The squire marvelled very quick, and the devil was cheated out of his share of the gains.

The New York Mechanic flourishes largely in the way of a large story. A cat belonging to Mr. Z. Morey, of Wilmington, Me., was seen slyly creeping up an apple tree, in pursuit of a sparrow, which she had nearly approached, when a hawk made an attack from above. The cat leaped at the sparrow, but caught the hawk, and was by him borne more than half a mile to another tree, when the cat releasing her hold, willingly descended and returned home, much gratified with the excursion. We are bound to believe that tale.—N. O. Pic.

ORIGIN OF TEXAS.—We find the following in the Picayune:—"Every body has heard of the phrase 'it takes us,' or 'it makes me,' signifying, in fact, 'I am the boy for a scrimmage!' If we are not mistaken, the phrase originated among the Irish. The way Texas got its name was by the corruption of that phrase. The Texas boys used to exclaim, in spirit of bravado—'It takes us,' and in process of time that degenerated into 'Texas,' and by that name the country has been called ever since.

EXTRAORDINARY.—We heard a preacher say last Sabbath evening, that if all the money that was laid out in unnecessary wearing apparel, in the world was saved, it would send the bible to every heathen, pay preachers to preach to all people, make railroads and other improvements all over the face of the earth, and spread knowledge and refinement to all the nations and people on the face of the globe. Bravo!

RIOT.—A riot occurred on the L. I. Railroad, when the people returned from the great race, during which four cars were destroyed, and the track torn up. One man had his leg broken, by jumping from the cars.

A TALL PROPRIETOR.—Stevens, the traveller mentions in his work on Central America, a planter who owns two hundred thousand head of cattle—one thousand mares and mules—seven large rivers—and three hundred boiling springs. From the top of one of the volcanoes, the owner can light his pipe and see the Pacific and Atlantic oceans at one view!

A LIVING LETTER.—It is related in Herodotus, that Histaeus, the Milesian, being kept prisoner by Darius, and all correspondence cut off, he shaved a man's head, wrote a despatch upon it, and then kept him out of sight till the hair was grown. The living letter was then sent, and the person to whom he was addressed, upon shaving the messenger's head, found the news there inscribed.

RESUMPTION.—The Bank of Cape Fear and the Branch of the State Bank, of this town, resumed the payment of their Bills in specie on Monday. There was scarcely any demand for the precious metals.—Wilmington, N. C. Chronicle.

IRON STEAMER FOR THE LAKES.—The Pittsburgh Daily American states that Messrs. Tomlinson and Stackhouse engine builders of that city have contracted with Government for the building of the iron steamer for the upper lakes, and also for the engine for the same.

ANOTHER PRICE COMING.—Prince Frederick, son of the Archduke Charles, of Austria, is to visit the United States next August, in the frigate Venus.—Prov. Eve. Chron.

COMPLIMENTS.—The most delicate compliment that can be paid to a young lady in any of our German settlements, on Monday morning, is 'geld der visht schleiferich den morgen!' (Guess you're sleepy this morning!)

GEN. JACKSON.—THE $1,000.—The Judiciary Committee of the United States Senate have reported against refunding to the Defender of New Orleans the $1,000 fine imposed on him by Judge Hall.—Pitts. San.

A VETERAN.—Soult, the French Minister is 78 years of age. He has lived under nine, and served under eight different Governments; and 38 years a Marshal.

WHAT NEXT?—A Mr. Hussey, of Auburn New York has invented a machine for reaping grain. It is said to work well. This beats the 'Yankee Geologist.'—Portsmouth Tribune.

That's a fact, 'wooden nutmegs' must knock under.

RECOGNITION AS CONSUL.—The President has recognised George M. Thacker, as Vice-Consul of his Danish Majesty, for the States of Massachusetts, Maine New Hampshire and Rhode Island, to reside at Boston.

COLT.—The case of this man is to be taken to the Supreme Court.

Bunker Hill monument has reached the height of 165 feet. The stones are raised by steam power.

CAUTION.—People having no particular business of their own are cautioned against attending too busily to that of others.

THE WASP.

SATURDAY, JUNE 11, 1842.

THE PROPHET.

The Prophet, Joseph Smith, delivered a powerful discourse, last Sabbath, to an attentive audience of about 8000, in this city. The subject matter was drawn from the 32nd and 33rd chapters of Ezekiel, wherein it was shown that Old Pharaoh was comforted, and greatly rejoiced, that he was honored as a kind of King Devil over those uncircumcised nations, that go down to hell for rejecting the word of the Lord, withstanding his mighty miracles, and fighting the saints:—The whole exhibited as a pattern to this generation, and the nations now rolling in splendor over the globe, if they do not repent, that they shall go down to the pit also, and be rejoiced over, and ruled over by Old Pharaoh, King Devil of mobocrats, miracle rejecters, saint killers, hypocritical priests, and all other fit subjects to fester in their own infamy.—Spring water tastes best right from the fountain.

The Messrs. Law have just raised the frame of a large building, to be occupied, when finished, as a steam flouring and saw mill. This, with the Temple, Nauvoo House and about five hundred for dwellings, now in progress, keeps a goodly number of people in motion. People abroad, when asked what the Mormons are doing, can answer: To work.

FURNACE.

Messrs. Kimball & Robinson are erecting a furnace in this city, which we hope will soon be ready for operation. It is generally needed and will undoubtedly give employment to several hands who cannot be better employed in any other business. All trades must live.

MORMON CREED.

To mind their own business, and let every body else, do likewise. Publish this, ye Editors, who boast of equal rights and privileges.

The Steam-boat Illinois, which was sunk a little below this city, not long since, has been raised, and taken down the river to Keokuk for the purpose of being used as a Wharf boat.

The weather was remarkably cold for the season, on Monday and Tuesday of this week. It is warmer now and a fine prospect for a tolerable season.

We call the attention of our readers to 'The Tattler,' on our fourth page. It is an able production and merits a careful perusal. The Tattler may there find his character admirably portrayed, in an irreverent caricature; and we hope it will be the means of putting to silence that tireless and despicable instrument—the tattler's tongue—which engages all its senseless clack.

To breed disturbances and embitter life.

JO SMITH.

There is a report in circulation, that Jo Smith was murdered in an affray, near the city of Nauvoo. What reliance can be placed upon the rumor, we are not able to say.—[Charleston Courier.]

Any reliance any one chooses. Every man is at liberty to please himself in his belief, if he will be responsible for it. General J. Smith is alive and well, and alive like to be, and there has been no occasion for any such report,—only to supply gab for this wondrous generation.

FREEDOM OF THE CITY.

Resolved by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, That the freedom of the city be and the same is hereby conferred on Col. John Wentworth, Editor of the Chicago Democrat; and he is hereby declared a free citizen of the City of Nauvoo.

Passed, April 22nd, A. D. 1842.

JOHN C. BENNETT, Mayor.
JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.—[Wasp.]

It is with pleasure that we accept 'the freedom' above granted us; and, in reciprocity, we would assure our dearly beloved sisters of the City of Nauvoo that we are a single man of high standing and brilliant prospects and that ere long, we intend to take the liberties above bestowed upon us and make ourself at home with the prettiest, most intelligent and most virtuous among them; and, further, more, we assure our dearly beloved brethren Smith, Bennett, Rigdon and others that soon they shall see 'Saul among the prophets,' for we are bound to visit Nauvoo at the next feast of the tabernacles and address the people in unknown tongues. Se'ah sis ni Melchisedec. Rof rap su resu Paul nus tisiv surl ax Cephus. Nebuchadnezzar molo uriu extri over Dow jr. Mormon 19. Those to whom it is given to understand the above, can rely upon it. The times are portentous and what is done must be done quickly.—Chicago Democrat.

When you come, Colonel, equip yourself in military splendor, dress yourself in robes of ermine, or clothe yourself in the bon ton of the day,—and, do not, according to your promise, forget our Ladies; they know how to appreciate men of valor; judge of men of authority; or measure men of quality; and be assured, that your welcome shall be equal to the man. Once more, in the language of Gilpin, when you make the promised speech,

'May we be there to see.'

And when you speak in tongues, with your oc-con-ee-e-co-gee-co-co-catch-ee-catch-ee-co-dan-go, let us be there to hear.

GOOD LOGIC.

The People's Advocate of Concord, N. H. has the following capital story.—The fact is if we are wise it must be of our own wisdom, not other men's; if we are rich, it must be of our own property, not that of our neighbor's; and if we wish to make a show in the nation, it must be of our own works and not of Great Britain; France, or Russia. But read the story:—

THE CRANBERRY CROP.—A distinguished lawyer of the State of New York, who had spent a winter in Alabama, for the purpose of securing a large amount of debts entrusted to him for collection, was asked why there was so little progress made in payment of the old debts of '36-7, when the productions of the State were so valuable. He said it was true their cotton crop was very large, and the sum total looked immense—so many millions of dollars exported; but then they had cre-ry thing to buy. Said he, I ate horseradish last winter at Mobile, that was brought from Boston. The true secret of prosperity is to multiply the things you have to sell. Look at the following, from the Courier and Enquirer.

The cranberry lands of Massachusetts are clearly among the most valuable lands of the Commonwealth, and it would really seem almost a pity that the State could not be converted into one universal cranberry meadow. The lands in the town of Sherburne, for instance, are said to produce two hundred bushels to the acre.—Now when it is considered that cranberries are worth at least a dollar a bushel, and that one man may gather fifty bushels a day, the productiveness of these lands throw into the shade the cotton cultivation of the South, the wheat crops of the West, or the fish harvests of "Nantucket shoals." We hope our sister State of South Carolina will not bore us much longer with her everlasting philosophy about the "producing States," "the staple States," and all that. Whereabouts in the land of chivalry and other staples do you "produce" like this? And yet we have never heard any threats of nullification from Cape Cod, because the government took forty out of every 100 baskets of cranberries, by way of duties to support the Yankee manufactures, though the government does actually do so—just as much as seizes the forty bales of cotton out of every one hundred raised on the Santee.

Now citizens of Nauvoo, let us as one man, work out our own glory, that others seeing so good an example, may go and do likewise.

MORE.

More land says the farmer; more money says the speculator; more light says the mason; more votes says the politician; more rum says the toper; more beaux says the coquette; more subscribers says the printer; but there are few who say more virtue that we may become better.

For The Wasp.

To the electors of Hancock county:—

I have been induced, in consequence of the political aspect of affairs in the county, to offer myself as a candidate for the State Senate, at the next August election. This announcement I make independently, without any regard to religious prejudices, local feelings, or sectional distinctions, being opposed to every thing of the kind; and believing them injurious; and highly so, to the interests of the county, both civilly and politically. I offer myself, without consulting any convention, or caucuses, and place myself before the electors of this county, free from all obligations arising from preconceived plans, or party schemes of operation; leaving myself free, if elected, to discharge the duties of the high office with reference to the entire interests of the county, and to the well being of every part of it.

I hold, that a representative is bound to act, in all cases, in his true character, as a representative of the people, whom he represents. To act as they would act, if they were there themselves, whatever may be his private judgment, in relation to the interests of his constituents: he has nothing to do with that judgment when he finds it in opposition to the will of his constituents. He is bound in all cases of the kind, to suspend his judgment, and bow with true loyalty to the will of the sovereign people. It is no part of the duty of a representative to correct the errors of the people; but carry the will of the people into law; and to make it the law of the land. If the people err; they will find it out, by letting them feel the weight of their own error, and then they will apply the proper corrective; and not till then. If they 'put a yoke upon their own necks, that they are not able to bear,' it is part of their royal prerogative to take it off.

No man, I conceive, can be the representative of a large district, and the servant of a faction in that district at the same time. He must love one and hate the other, or cleave to one and despise the other. No man can serve two masters at the same time.

There are, at the present, two candidates for the Senate in this county; each man nominated at a convention of the people, held for this purpose. One at Carthage and the other at Nauvoo. At the latter meeting, I took an active part myself; but circumstances have transpired since, which have determined my course, and was the cause of my placing my name before the people, as a candidate, and in so doing I chose to do it independently without conventional, or caucus nominations. I am, as the consequence of my course would necessarily make me, free from all pledges to any portion of the citizens of this district to the exclusion of others, and wish to remain so, leaving the candidates who are before the public to take the course they deem wisdom.

Fellow-citizens, should you honor me with your suffrage, at the election in August next, and I should be the object of your choice, in the Senate chamber, I will be yourselves as nearly as I can. Your interest shall be my interest, and your will the rule of my action. As far as my abilities will admit, I will look closely to the interest of every part of the county, without partiality, or sectional feelings, in the smallest degree. These are the pledges, and the only ones, which I make, or am willing to make.

SIDNEY RIGDON.

For The Wasp.

TO THE CITIZENS OF HANCOCK COUNTY.

Fellow-Citizens:—Perhaps it is known to the most of you, that I am a candidate before you, to represent this county in the house of Representatives of our next Legislature. When I consented to give my name to the Public, as a candidate for the high and responsible office above mentioned, I thought that the embarrassments of our State would call forth all the wisdom and economy of a thinking people, to devise ways and means to save the credit of the State, and at the same time save the people from any heavier taxes than they are now paying.

As I am a farmer among you, and have endeavored to make economy and integrity my study for many years, and feel that the farming interest has been measurably overlooked, and a spirit of wild speculation gone into by our former legislators, which has, and will, embarrass our labouring class of citizens to an alarming extent, and caused thousands to take the benefit of the bankrupt law. My only motive in becoming a candidate, was to lend a helping hand to alleviate our present embarrassments. I will remark here, that I have ever been opposed to the internal improvement system, as it passed our Legislature.—And I spent considerable time and labor to convince my fellow citizens that such a system of improvements would ruin the State, before the bill was passed, in a sister State (Indiana) where I then lived. I have been a citizen of Illinois, now near five years, and find that the same are felt here, that I feared would and has come upon the State of Indiana.

But, fellow-citizens, some time after I had given my name to the Public, and wrote a communication to the citizens of Hancock county, giving some of my political views, and requested any gentleman, who might wish to hear from me on any subject, that I would take pleasure in giving them, through the paper or on the stump, or any other way that I might have an opportunity. I sent the communication to the Editor of the Warsaw Signal, but he gave it no place in his paper. But in a short time, I saw in the Signal an advertisement of an Anti-Mormon Convention to be held at Carthage on the 30th of May. So in coming through Carthage from near Appanoose, on the day of said Convention, I stopped to see what was going on. But to my astonishment, (but much as I expected,) I saw a faction in the Court House claiming the authority of appointing themselves, and that after they had got to Carthage, to form an Anti-Mormon Convention. Some of them said they were chosen by their precincts, others said they would choose themselves, and some precincts were not represented by either self-made delegates, or any others. They first entered into agreement between the Whigs and Democrats, that were there, to divide out the offices to the most thorough going Anti-Mormons of both parties. So before they would run any applicant, in the Convention, for the Senate, they had to come up and denounce the Mormons, (as though they had no right to vote and should be proscribed.) The leaders of the meeting manifested a despotic spirit. For I was told by some of them that they would put down, not only the Mormons, but every one that would not go into the Convention.

Fellow-citizens, I regret to see, in the midst of a civilized people, and in the best Government in the world, where every person has a right to worship Almighty God, as their conscience may dictate to them; and have a right to be a candidate for any office in the Government, and give their own sentiments to the people, and the people have a right to vote for whom they please, and no man has a right to proscribe another because of his vote, or religious opinions. Then, fellow-citizens, as I am now a candidate before you, I am willing to appeal to you to know whether I am correct in my principles, which I hold sacred: I believe we all are a body politic, and that we should know no man as a religious man; but endeavor to know them as honest and capable men whose interest is with the people. So, then, if I should be elected, I will endeavor to represent all of the county and not a portion only. But if I should not be elected, I will cheerfully acquiesce in your choice.

JOHN HARPER.

N. B. I saw a number of good citizens at the Convention, who, I believe, was decoyed in by the designing faction.

J. H.

To the Editor of the Wasp:—

Sir: Believing that you desire the good of all men, and wish to better the case of the living, permit me to call your attention to a kind of animal, which, after all the knowledge of the nineteenth century, can hardly be described, likened, or used for any very great purpose.—The thing I am writing about, seems to hatch out of some hot bed, or potatoe hole, with a few fuzzy ideas of pomposity, that soon makes it appear something like an old blue hen with one little streaked chicken. To call it a shirt on a bean pole for a scare crow, or a walking stick with a brass head for female gentility, or a double bodied spindle to keep the bugs from cucumber vines, would not give any idea at all. No; nothing but the animal itself, is able to convey a suitable description of what it really is. Happy for Nauvoo, I have only seen a few of these wonderful things, which, to be short, the learned call DANIELS.

Should they begin to fork up the habitation of the Saints, it might be well to sprinkle them with skunk-urine, occasionally, for the sake of distinction. Ruffles, ribbands, stays, trinkets, corsets, tights, folly, fashion, rhapsodical bombast, mint julep, catnip tea, and merino potatoes, keep these coquette harps from the society of such as profess to walk and be guided by the light of revelation.

Honesty and truth need no artificial covering.

THE WAY.

To the Editor of the Wasp:—

Sir:—I am informed that there are a few Spies about this city, trying to pry into other's secrets, or hunt occasion against men with whom they have no business. It seems to me, that the Saviour's rule of casting the beam out of their own eye, would be a good one for them to follow, before they can see a mote in their brother's eye. Tell them, they will find themselves, like the viper in the shop,

LICKING FILES!

VERBUM SAT.

WONDERFUL METEOR.

The Westfield, N. Y. Messenger of the 18th April, gives a full account of an extraordinary meteor which passed over that town at about 3 o'clock on the morning of the Monday previous. The noise of its explosion was such as to jar the houses and awaken many of the people. Mr. Horace Palmer, who was on his way from Dunkirk to Westfield states that when about three miles from Dunkirk he was suddenly surrounded by a painful vivid light proceeding from a quantity of jelly like substance which fell on and about him, producing a sulphurous smell, a difficulty of breathing and a severe sensation of heart. As soon as he could so far recover from his astonishment as to look up, he saw the body of a terrific meteor passing above him, and appearing to be about a mile high. Its size appeared to be three or four feet in diameter, and nearly a mile in length. Its dimensions soon varied, becoming at first broader, and then diminishing to one fourth less than its former size, when it apparently separated in pieces and fell to the earth; and immediately after he heard the explosion, which he says was tremendous. When Mr. Palmer arrived at Westfield, his face had the appearance of being severely scorched, and his eyes were much affected, and he did not recover for two or three days. Mr. Palmer is reputed to be a man of integrity and of temperate habits; and his story, though marvelous, is generally believed. The meteor was seen by several other people, who speak of luminous bodies being detached from it. Its progress was attended by a noise similar to that of a train of cars on a rail road. A man who saw it from Salem, represents it to have been of dimensions much larger than described by Mr. Palmer. The report of the explosion was heard also at Buffalo.

N. Y. Mechanic.

Natural Curiosity.—The following incredible account of a remarkable leicle is copied from one of the late English papers:—

"On Sunday, the 6th of January, the inhabitants of Askrigg and its vicinity were led, by curiosity, to visit an leicle, which had formed itself from a small fall of water, at the turn-off, on its course to drive a mill-wheel; the form being a cone with an opening about six feet from its base, sufficient to admit the body of any person into the interior, which was descended into by means of a ladder, its height 23 feet, and its base 7—when, after further examination, another apartment was found, formed behind by means of two grand pillars of solid ice, with a base of three feet and a half; both were proved by admission to hold 20 people. In the afternoon a company of ladies regaled themselves with a bottle of wine. The night being mild, several lights were placed on the inside, where the transparent view struck the eye with such splendid grandeur as it is impossible to describe. At the same time a party of vocal and instrumental performers were placed in one of the apartments, and assembled round with several pieces of sacred music to a very late hour.

"SHOCKING OCCURENCE."

The Sandusky Clarion gives the following "horrid attempt at murder," which lately occurred there.

"Late on Wednesday evening, our citizens in the neighborhood of the corner of Water and Jackson street, were startled from their slumbers by the most fearful shrieks for help, accompanied with appalling cries of murder! Several persons hastily armed with bludgeons hurried instantly to an old out-building in the vicinity, from whence the alarm proceeded. The shrieks fearful increased, now accompanied by the agonizing entreaty 'OH! COME QUICK!!—HE'S EATING ME UP!!' A light was at length procured, and all rushed forward to the scene of action, and, oh horror! what a spectacle presented itself!! The unfortunate victim lay stretched upon the earth, with pallid countenance, teeth chattering, and eye-balls starting from their sockets.—

One side of his face was covered with—slaver! His only companions were found to be a pair of calves, one of which was engaged in sucking his ear, while the other stood calmly by inspecting the operation, wondering, no doubt, which of the twain was most badly "sucked."

Upon inquiry, it appeared that the individual in question—a loafer who had been hanging about the place for some time—had got an extra touch of the "crathur," and had gone into the building in search of lodgings for the night.

TAKEN AT HIS WORD.

"I say strange, it rains," said a merchant the other day to a square built down easter, who was quietly passing his store; "you had better stop in and buy an umbrella—I'll sell you one at half price." Without a word of reply the Yankee walked in, selected one of very superior silk, and enquired the price. "Five dollars, sir, we sell them at—have never sold them for less," was the polite response of the merchant, who in his eagerness for trade, had already forgotten his conditions of sale. Jonathan coolly laying down two dollars and a half, took the umbrella and walked off, leaving the merchant to calculate his profits upon the sale of his goods at half price.

Punctuation.—It was at least a century after the discovery of the art of printing, before any other marks of punctuation than the colon or period were used. About that time a perpendicular stroke, like a parenthesis without its curves, was introduced to designate the pause of a comma. The notes of exclamation and interrogation were not used till the early part of the last century. Law books were formerly printed as law documents are now written, without stops, which rendered it some what difficult to understand the meaning, and hence arose the well known phrase, "the glorious uncertainty of the law."

"Caution to Medlers."—A black snake, which had discovered the nest of a woodpecker, climbed up the tree, and putting his head into the hole swallowed the woodpecker. Alas! when he would have withdrawn, he found his throat so much distended by his supper, that he could not get back, and so he died with his length exposed, dangling from the woodpecker's hole, an admonition to all who passed by, not to go into a scrape until they had contrived how to get out of it.

Custom House Seizure.—The New

York Journal of Commerce states: That three several importations of crushed sugar, shipped from London to that port amounting in value to $50,000, have been seized because the packages contain less than six hundred pounds each. These sugars are all from one manufacturer, sent to N. York merely for the purpose of being reshipped to the Mediterranean, where sugars are admitted at a less duty from the United States than from England. There is no suspicion (adds the Journal) of any design to defraud this government or violate its laws, but on examination, it is found that an old law upon the subject made this provision.

In publishing the foregoing, the Philadelphia U. S. Gazette justly remarks:—"What a pity that there should be any interference with the 'free trade,' which allows England to trade with the ports of the Mediterranean by the way of N. York!! Great Britain finds it of course, much to her advantage to have trade free every where but at home."

Military and Scientific.—We are informed by letters from Illinois that James Arlington Bennet, L. L. D. Counsellor at Law, of Arlington House, Long Island, has been commissioned by Governor Lincoln, of that state, as "Inspector General of the Nauvoo Legion" with the rank and title of "Major General."

General Bennet was an officer in the United States Artillery during the last war with England, and resigned his commission on the coming of peace. Had he remained in the service, he would by this time, most likely, have been a General officer on his pay only, whereas he is now a General Officer who can well afford to keep a pair of war horses, as well as a pair of epaulettes.

The degree of Doctor of Laws has been recently conferred on him by one of the Western Universities, in testimony of his extensive scientific attainments, and we think very meritoriously.—N. Y. Sun.

Why does the present year resemble the year before last? Because the year before last was 1840, and this is eighteen hundred forty two. The N. Y. Arena said this.

Woman's Wit.—One of their own sex says of women:—"Thanks to the education which is given them, they learn to cheat the men whenever they choose; and the greatest fool among them can make a man believe that black is white."

Writing on Papers.—The New York Sun says:—A large number of suits are now pending against persons, for violations of the post office law, in writing on newspapers sent by mail. If even the initials of a person's name are written on the paper, it subjects him to a fine of $5, and $3 62 1-2 costs. If the case is used, and goes to judgment, an expense of $40 accrues. The law is very strict, and leaves no option with the Court.

THE BANKRUPT LAW.

"Sambo, what your opinion ob dat bankrupt law?"

"Tink him first rate, Pompey. I imply for de application miceself."

"Just explain him principles."

"Why you see he now; jest lend me dat half dollar you got for whitewashing."

(Pompey hands him the money, and Sambo deliberately puts it into his pocket.)

"Here, den, now I owes the shoemaker three shillings, and you a half dollar, besides the grocer's bill; now dis half dollar is all the property I got; I divides him according to de debts."

Pompey—"I take dat half dollar back."

Sambo—(with amazement)—"Do you tink dis child green? I'm a bankrupt; you gets your share with the oder creditors."

POTATOE BLACK.—We are informed by an old painter, says the N. Y. American Mechanic, that potatoes being baked moderately at first in a close vessel from which air is excluded, and exposed to increased heat until they are completely charred through, they may be ground in oil, and thus produce a beautiful black, superior in many respects to any other black in use.—[Cin. Post.

LONG FAST.—The Sun states a circumstance of a chicken being confined on board the schooner Thos. H. Benton, which lately arrived at this port, for twenty-seven days, without food. We once saw a cat taken out of a bale of cotton, which had been shipped at New Orleans, and been enclosed for two months, and upon being taken out, laid panting for a few minutes, and then started in pursuit of rats of which there was a plentiful supply in the factory.—[Republican.

A New Line on Lake Erie.—Several of the boats—one or two of them Canadian—now running on Lake Erie, are about forming an independent line, to run between Buffalo and Detroit, touching at Canadian ports.

Too many males.—There are 300,000 more males than females in the United States. A bachelor editor commenting on this fact, says those supernumerary men may as well be shot, seeing they can't get married, and concludes by calling for a gun.

A man is more faithful and true to another person's secret than to his own; a woman, on the contrary, keeps her own secret better than another's.

It is a sad thing when men have neither art enough to speak well, nor judgment enough to hold their tongues: this is the foundation of all impertinence.

By the laws of France, two copies of every journal must be sent, as soon as printed, to the office of the King's Attorney, for inspection.

COMPLIMENT TO AMERICAN SKILL.—The Springfield Post says that Maj. Whistler, the Chief Engineer of the Western Railroad, has been invited by the Emperor of Russia to superintend the construction of a similar public work in that country, offering him a very large remuneration.

"Did you pull my nose in earnest, sir?"

"Certainly I did Sir,"—(giving it another tweak.)

"It's well for you—for I don't allow any body to joke me in that way."

A FACT!—Men have a right to smoke, but not to puff their vapors in the face of other people.—Saugamo Journal.

John M. Niles has been elected U. S. Senator, by the Legislature of Connecticut.

The band, both brass and martial, are warned to appear, at 1 o'clock P. M., on Saturday next, at the Temple; by order of

L. W. HANCOCK,
D. B. HUNTINGTON,
Captains.

June 11, 1842.

COURT MARTIAL OF THE NAUVOO LEGION.

ORDINANCE NO. 2

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the Court Martial of the Nauvoo Legion in general court assembled, That there shall be added to the staff of the Major General two Assistant Adjutant Generals, with the rank of Colonel; and to the staff of each Brigadier General an Adjutant, a Sergeant Major, and a Quarter Master Sergeant, with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel.

Sec. 2. Each company shall consist of not less than thirty-two, nor more than sixty-four, privates; Provided, That companies consisting of less than thirty-two privates may be attached to other companies—and companies consisting of more than sixty-four privates may have the surplus numbers attached to other companies—at the discretion of the general officers of the line.

Sec. 3. There may be two musicians attached to each Company, in addition to the officers, non-commissioned officers, and privates, thereof.

Sec. 4. The companies situated out of the Nauvoo Precinct shall not be compelled to attend the general parades in the City of Nauvoo, excepting the July parade—Provided, That they hold an equal number of parades in their respective precincts; neither shall the officers, and non-commissioned officers, out of said Nauvoo Precinct be compelled to attend courts martial, except the July drill in each year.

Sec. 5. The Companies situated out of the Nauvoo Precinct may hold their courts of assessment of fines, and appeals, within the bounds of their respective companies, on the days fixed upon by Ordinance No. 1—and the said courts shall, in that case, be composed of the Captain as President—the Orderly Sergeant as Secretary—and the Lieutenants as members—and the returns shall be made as in other cases, to the Adjutant General.

Sec. 6. The Major General shall receive the same compensation for inspecting, recording, making returns, and other duties devolving on him, as is now allowed by law to the Brigade Inspectors of the Militia of the State of Illinois: the Surgeon general shall be allowed one dollar for each invalid examined and discharged; and the War Secretary shall be allowed fifty cents for recording each discharge aforesaid.

Sec. 7. No squadron of the 1st Cohort, or Battalion of the 2nd, shall consist of less than two, nor more than four Companies; and no Regiment shall consist of less than two, nor more than four Squadrons or Battalions.

Sec. 8. The ranking officer present at any law-making Court Martial of the Legion, (excepting the Lieutenant General,) shall be the President of said court; and to War Secretary of the Major General, the Secretary; and all laws, or ordinances, passed by the said Court Martial shall be submitted to the Lieutenant General for his approval or disapproval—and in case of his disapproval, the act shall be returned to the succeeding Court Martial with his objections in writing; and if then passed by two-thirds of the court it shall become a law without his signature.

Sec. 9. That all laws, and parts of laws, inconsistent with this ordinance, be and they hereby are repealed.

Passed June 3rd, A. D. 1842.

JOHN C. BENNETT, Major General, and President of the Court Martial.

JAMES SLOAN, War Secretary, and Secretary of the Court Martial.

Approved June 6th 1842.

JOSEPH SMITH, Lieutenant Gen'l.

POETRY.

For the Wasp.

THE TATTTLER.

It has been said by some, that woman's soul
Should never hate.

I know the placid wreath
Of gentleness, is beautiful upon
The female brow: and that the pure, white wand
Of innocence, by woman wielded, has A salutary potency, that is Superior to arbitrary power:

That in her bosom pity's mellow tones
Are more congenial to the sphere which heav'n Design'd for her, than hatred's sterner voice.

I know the worth of female rectitude—
It is the fairest gem upon the crest
Of social life; and I would not presume
To step beyond the sacred halo of Propriety; but yet, one character,
I almost dare to hate. And e'en in this Age of effeminacy; is there who,
Would say—would think that woman should not hate

The Tattler, whose unhallowed business seems
To wake up nonsense and to stir up strife!

But after all, I feel my heart relax,
And pity is preponderating in My breast. I pity every human form
That haplessly is the receptacle
Of that ignoble, most detestable
Of every human trait! Whose head is but A vacuum where thought is totally Proscribed and sent a wanderer abroad?
Where vanity holds undisputed sway
And sits enthron'd o'er pompous nothingness,
Where, if reflection chance to come, she finds
No seat—no resting place—no lamp to shine
Upon her path: but like a traveler
When left in some dark spacious catacomb,
Amid the mould'ring heaps, to stumble o'er Unconscious matter, without path or guide;
Is lost in everlasting hopelessness!

Poor brainless scull! where every idle tale
Without exception, may be introduc'd
And meet a cordial welcome:—not to be Rank'd with the subjects of forgetfulness
And hid with prudent secrecy away;
But to be cloth'd in the imposing garb
Of seeming consequence, and usher'd forth
On the first breeze that is made tremulous
By that untam'd, destructive instrument
Of mischief—that dread bane of social peace
And happiness, the Tattler's busy tongue.

Wretched propensity! and wretched the Possessor of this execrable vice!
Whose soul, if soul is there at all, must be Unto nonentity so near allied,
As to require a microscopic pow'r
To smell it into visibility.

But while the person shares my pity; if I should not hate, I surely may despise
The character, the mean propensity:—
'Tis falsehood's vehicle and slander's tool
To throw dark shadows over innocence,
And magnify misfortune into fault.
It often serpentineally creeps into
The sanctuary of domestic life,
And with the sacred key of confidence,
Draws out the secrets of the drawing room,
And puts them on the winds of heav'n afloat.

I hope I never shall commit a crime
Of such enormous magnitude, as would Draw down on me an unrelenting frown
Of heav'n, that would subject me to endure
The torment of the Tattler's senseless buzz.
I'd rather live in solitude amid
The deep impervious wilds, and listen to
The silent speech of nature; and regale
My spirit with the music of the breeze.

O that an abler pen than mine would paint
This vice in all its innate ugliness,
With its deformities and hatefulness,
And make it look so like its very self;
That thro' disfigurement it may return
Down to the nether shades from whence it came.

THE KING OF THE FRENCH.—It is rumored in some of the foreign Journals that Louis Phil-lippe is seriously ill of the dropsey, a disease from which he cannot hope to recover at his age, being now nearly sixty nine. Should his demise take place soon, look out for trouble in France. He will be succeeded by his son, the Duke of Orleans, a man of respectable talents.
He is about 30 years of age.

Old Deacon M—— was the only storekeeper in a pretty little village "up country," and used to take great pleasure in chateauising the youth who might visit his store. One stormy day—business dull—the Deacon was quietly smoking by the side of a cheerful fire, when a ragged urchin entered, who seemed a fit subject on which the Deacon might exercise his question powers. The Deacon drew a long whiff—then pulled out his pipe, and exhaling a long column of smoke, called the lad to him; and patting him on the shoulders, asked him—

"My son, what's the strongest thing you know of?"

The lad thought a moment, then scratching his bump of communicativeness through a hole in his hat, answered—

"Why, I reckon marm knows, she's ternal strong herself; she can lick ad any time, and she said the butter I got her totter day was the strongest thing she ever seed yet—for that was so strong she could'nt hold it after she got it down."

As the poor hungry beggar views
His tattered, torn and worn-out shoes,
'Alas!' cries he, 'they're full of holes.'
These are the days that try men's soles!"

Saturday Courier.

THE VERY ONE.—A Frenchman, who was exhibiting various sacred relics and other curiosities, produced among other things a sword, which he assured his visitors was 'de sword dat Balaam had wen he would kill the ass.' A spectator remarked that Balaam had no sword, but only wished for one. 'Ver well; dis is de ver one he wish for.'—Ladies' Gazette.

MATRIMONY IN FRANCE.—The European Correspondent of the Madisonian gives the following translation of an advertisement which he copied some time since from the Persian Journal. It will give some idea of French matrimony.

"Madame Saintonge, No. 28, Rue—— is always prepared to accommodate persons who wish to get married. She has now on hand a number of rich young ladies and widows desirous of being established in life. (All letters to be post paid.)

VAN ZANT ACQUITTED.—We learn with surprise, that the Ecclesiastical Court instituted for the trial of Van Zant at Rochester, has acquitted him of the charges preferred against him in that city. This is wrong, or the verdict in the late criminal trial was unjust. His reference has been infamously calumniated, or the robe has suffered a wicked stain!

NOTICE.

THE Burying Ground south east of the city has been laid out in family burying lots, a number of which will be offered for sale, at public auction, on the 18th inst., at 10 o'clock A.
M., at the office of Gen. Hyram Smith.

Terms—one third on the day of sale, one third in six months from sale, and one third in twelve months from sale, with approved security.

By order of the City Council.

WILSON LAW,

Committee to sell.

Nauvoo, June 4th 1842.

STRAYED

From the undersigned, a brown colored cow, (farrow) rather thin in order; any person giving information of said cow, so that she can be obtained, will be reasonably rewarded.

IN the matter of the Petition of GEORGE BACKSTER, a bankrupt to be discharged from his debts. NOTICE is hereby given to all creditors and others interested of George Backster a bankrupt to appear before the District Court of the United States on the 8th day of July, A. D. 1842, at the city of Springfield, in the district of Illinois, and show cause if any they have why the aforesaid George Backster should not receive a final discharge from all his debts, and a certificate thereof be granted to him. Dated at Springfield this 4th day of April
A. D. 1842.

Strong & Doremus, solicitors for petitioner.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus
J. Salebery, Plymouth,
Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Chiffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Page, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
James Curtis, Horner's Town.
W. I. Appleby, Recless Town.
Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Salem.

MICHIGAN.

Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

OHIO.

S. S. Holmes, Lapier.

NEW YORK.

John Johnson, Kirtland.
Charles Thompson, Batavia.
L. R. Foster, city of New York.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Amos Davis,
of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt
and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Amos Davis of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT.

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Charles Warner, of Hancock co., to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Charles Warner, of Hancock co., has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 2nd day of May, A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT.

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Windsor
P. Lyon, of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Windsor P.
Lyon of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts
under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 2nd day of May A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT.

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

DR. J. F. WELD,

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.

Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo &
adjoining country for the liberal patronage
heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

VALUABLE FARM FOR SALE.

Situated 5 miles south west of Carthage, 12 miles from Warsaw, and 10 miles from the city of Nauvoo, containing 200 acres: half timber, and the balance farming land, with about 100 acres under fence. A comfortable dwelling house, good stable and other out buildings; also a thriving young apple orchard &c. &c.

The said tract may advantageously be divided into two or more smaller farms with never failing stock-water running through each tract.

Price low, and terms accommodating. Apply to J. B. BACKENSTOS.

Carthage Hancock co. Ill. May 6th, 1842.

[STRAYED,

FROM the "Trustee in Trust," President Joseph Smith, a black Cow and Calf, the utheing of Joseph Carleton. Whoever will return said cow, and give information of the same, will add to the funds of the Temple, and a reasonable charge will be paid if wished
May 21, 1842.

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES,
WITHIN AND FOR THE DISTRICT OF ILLINOIS.

In the matter of the Petition of Samuel H.
Smith, of Hancock County, to be declared a
Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Samuel H. Smith of Hancock County has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN, & WHEAT.

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES,
WITHIN AND FOR THE DISTRICT OF ILLINOIS.

In the matter of the Petition of Vinson
Knight, of Hancock county, to be declared a
Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Vinson Knight of Hancock county has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and
that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at
the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of
said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Joseph Smith,
of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt
and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Joseph Smith, of
Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that
an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at the District court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of John P.
Green of Hancock county to be declared a
Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that John P. Green of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and
that an order has been duly entered in this

Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at
the District Court room in the city of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show
cause if any they have, why the prayer of said
petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April, A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT.

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES,
WITHIN AND FOR THE DISTRICT OF ILLINOIS.

In the matter of the Petition of George Morey
of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt
and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that George Morey of Hancock county, has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and
that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 6th day of June next, at
the District Court room in the city of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show
cause if any they have, why the prayer of said
Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of April A. D. 1842.

J. H. RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

We have tasted in Boston a delicious portable soup, put up at Nantes, but were not aware that entire joints of meat, poultry, and game could be so kept as to retain their natural flavor through the changes of climate and time. These things, however, as well as fish, green peas, milk and potatoes, are preserved and patented by those indefatigable, gour-mands the English.—ib.

THE WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 10.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, June 18, 1842.

Whole Number 10

THE WASP.

IS EDITED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY
WM. SMITH,
At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.
TERMS.—$1.50 invariably in advance.

For The Wasp.

MR. EDITOR:—

Mr. S. Francis, Editor of the 'Sangamo Journal,' in his 562nd number, has seen proper to attack me, some of my friends, and the Nauvoo Institutions, in so unprovoked and ungentlemanly, a manner as to call for a few passing remarks. The following is the article alluded to; to wit:

"LET HIM THAT READETH, UNDERSTAND!"

"The editor of the State Register, and other Van Buren presses of this State, are endeavoring to create a sympathy in favor of the Mormons, the European Catholics, and the Van Buren office-holders who are associated in politics, by charging some of our candidates with laboring to excite a spirit of persecution against them. We have heard one of Gen. DUNCAN's speeches, and he certainly said nothing about the Mormon or Catholic religion, but did say much, and the public has much to say, about the Van Buren office-holders, forming a coalition with those two churches, which are known (so far as the Mormons and European Catholics are concerned,) under the dictation of their Pope, Priests and Prophet. Mr. Van Buren's instructions to our Charge d'Affaires at Naples, to assure the Pope of Rome, that 'it would afford him pleasure to extend the protection of the government to his (the Pope's) subject in the United States,' must be understood as an acknowledgement that a foreign potentate may, and does now, subjects, in this land, by the Constitution and laws of which, every man is declared free and independent, and by which same constitution every citizen is prohibited from receiving any honorable title from, or holding allegiance to any foreign prince or power: and no man, with true American feelings, can regard the person who would utter so servile a sentiment for the purpose of securing votes in his favor, influenced and controlled by a foreign power, in any other light than as a traitor to his country. The late Acts of the Legislature of New York, passed by a party vote of the Van Burenites, in obedience to the dictation of Bishop Hughes is another evidence of the disposition of this organized office seeking party, to still further secure the votes of the subjects of His Holiness in this country.

The people have much to say, and will say much also, in relation to the CORRUPT BARGAIN between the leaders of the same party in Illinois, and Joe Smith, the Mormon prophet, by which they have formed a league to govern the State. They gave him power, and he is to give them votes. It is for exposing this infamous and dangerous plot, that the editor of the State Register is endeavoring to create a sympathy in favor of the Mormons, by a hypocritical attempt to raise the cry of persecution.

And in order to put the public in full possession of what we consider conclusive evidence of the existence of such a nefarious PLOT AND LEAGUE, we have been at considerable trouble to embody and now present to them various extracts from the Acts which grant odious and dangerous powers to the Mormons, from 'The Times and Seasons,' their newspaper, and from the Journals of the Legislature, which Journals clearly show that it was the leaders of the Van Buren party, who smuggled those Acts through the Legislature:—

The 10th section of the Act incorporating the Nauvoo House Association, is in the following words:—

"And whereas Joseph Smith has furnished said association with ground whereon to erect said House, it is further declared that said Smith and his heirs, shall hold by PERPETUAL SUCCESSION a suit of rooms in the said House, to be set apart and conveyed in due form of law."

See Acts of 1841, page 152.

The only objection the public can have to this provision is the attempt to entail an estate upon the family of this head of the Mormon church; which is a principle odious to freemen, is against the spirit and genius of our government, and if this office seeking party be once fairly established in power through the influence of this coalition, will undoubtedly be followed by its usual accompaniment, of an hereditary title, to be held by him and his heirs in like perpetual succession.

The act incorporating the City of Nauvoo, confers upon the Mormons most extraordinary powers. Section 24 of this act provides for the establishment of a University, conferring upon its officers legislative powers, equal to those possessed by the Legislature itself.

Section 25 of the same act provides for the establishment of a military corps of indefinite size, called "Legion," to the officers of which are granted powers both dangerous and offensive. By it, the commissioned military officers are constituted the "LAW MAKING power," with no restriction whatever, except the constitution of the United States and of this

State,—the force of which may be seen from the entire section as follows.—

"The City Council may organize the inhabitants of said city subject to military duty into a body of independent military men, to be called the 'Nauvoo Legion,' the court martial of which shall be composed of the commissioned officers of said Legion, and constitute the law-making power, with full power and authority, to make, ordain, establish, and execute all such laws and ordinances as may be considered necessary for the benefit, government and regulation of said Legion: Provided, said court martial shall pass no law, or act repugnant to, or inconsistent with the constitution of the United States or of this State. The said legion shall perform the same amount of military duty as is now, or may be hereafter required of the regular militia of the State, and shall be at the disposal of the Mayor, in executing the laws and ordinances of the city corporation, and the laws of the State, and at the disposal of the Governor, for the public defence, and the execution of the laws of the State, or of the United States and shall be entitled to their proportion of the public arms, and provided also, that said Legion shall be exempt from all other military duty."

Under the power conferred by this section the Mormons have created the office of Lieutenant General, and have elected Joe Smith to the same, who has actually been commissioned by the Governor as such officer, which makes him the highest military officer in the United States, and when in the service of the United States, he will command all its armies. Gen. WASHINGTON was appointed Lieutenant General after the revolution, but since his resignation the office has remained vacant in the army of the United States, and thus Joe Smith is believed to be the only officer of that rank now in this country. He is certainly the superior of all the militia officers of Illinois, and in service will rank above them all.

Although some question his right to command Gen. Scott, if called into the service of the United States, yet it is the opinion of experienced military men with whom we have conferred, that there is no doubt upon this point, as no rule is better understood or more clearly settled in our country, than that, when a regular and militia officer are acting together in the United States service, if of the same grade the former takes precedence, but if the militia officer is of superior rank, he is entitled to the command; and thus, as Lieutenant General is higher than Major General and the latter is the highest office in the army of the United States, there can be no doubt, that when in the service of the United States, Lieutenant General Joseph Smith will command her armies.

Thus it will be seen that the "law-making power" given to this extraordinary military corps, composed as it is chiefly of foreigners, is bad enough. But it is no worse than the omission to require of its officers an oath to support the constitution of the United States, and of this State.—The 26th section of the same act exempts these privileged Mormons from working on the public roads, and only requires of them three days work in the year upon the streets of their city, while all other citizens may be compelled to work each year five days upon the roads.

Section 27, of the same act is in the following words:

"The city council shall have power to provide for the punishment of offenders by imprisonment in the county or city jail in all cases; when such offenders shall fail or refuse to pay the fines and forfeitures which may be recovered against them." [See Acts of 1841, page 57.]

Here power is given to the Mormons to imprison, for an indefinite and unlimited period, which may be extended to continue during his life, any person who may be unable or unwilling to pay any fine

they may choose to impose for any breach real or imaginary, of any law or ordinance they may choose to enact. And as an example of the danger our citizens are in from this power, being lodged in their hands, we copy from the Times and Seasons, of October 1st, 1841, the first law passed by this extraordinary corporation under their most extraordinary charter. It is entitled—

"AN Ordinance in relation to religious societies."

"S. c. 1. Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, That the Catholic, Presbyterians, Methodists, Baptist, Latter Day Saints, Quakers, Episcopalians, Universalists, Unitarians, Mahomedans, and all other religious sects and denominations, whatever, shall have free toleration, and equal privileges, in this city and should any person be guilty of ridiculing, abusing, or otherwise depreciating another in consequence of his religion, or of disturbing or interrupting any religious meeting within the limits of this city, he shall on conviction thereof before the Mayor of Municipal Court, be considered a disturber of the public peace, and fined in any sum not exceeding five hundred dollars, or imprisoned not exceeding six months, or both, at the discretion of said Mayor or Court."

"S. c. 2nd. It is hereby made the duty of all municipal officers to notice and report to the Mayor, any breach or violation of this, or any other ordinance of this city that may come within their knowledge, or of which they may be advised, and any officer aforesaid is hereby fully authorized to arrest all such violators of rule law, and order either with or without process."

"S. c. 3rd. This ordinance to take effect, and be in force from and after its passage."

Passed March 1st 1841.

JOHN C. BENNETT, Mayor.

JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

We would enquire, what citizens can be safe in passing through that favored city, if he is liable to a fine of five hundred dollars and imprisonment for six months, (and for life if he cannot pay the fine,) for "ridiculing, abusing, or otherwise depreciating" the Mormon or any other religion, especially when it is made the duty of every officer to notice and report it to the Mayor, who is the final judge in the case? and that, too, without the ordinary process of law, which in every other case, and before every other tribunal in the State is considered indispensable to the protection of the liberty and property of citizens?

Enough, we think has been quoted from these laws, to shew that more power than is safe, proper, or consistent with the liberty and security of our citizens, has been conferred upon this Mormon Church, and thus has been consummated that most to be deprecated and justly odious of all unions, that of Church and State—the Church here being constituted the law-making power in four distinct departments, the civil government, the military, the judiciary and the literary.

Now for the history of the passage of these acts through the Legislature, the how, and the wherefore. These measures were introduced into the Senate by Mr. LITTLE, a whig Senator from Hancock County, who held his seat, (we believe,) by Mormon votes, and, therefore, may have felt bound to present them, whether he voted for them or not.

The first in order, being the bill to incorporate the city of Nauvoo, after being thus introduced, was, a motion of Mr. RICHARDSON, read a second time by its title, and on motion of Mr. LITTLE referred to the committee on the judiciary, [see Senate Journal, Friday, 27th November 1840,] and was on the 5th day of December, 1840, [see Senate Journal, page 45,] reported back by Mr. SNYDER, from the committee on the judiciary, to whom the same had been referred, with an amendment.

The bill ordered to be engrossed and read a third time. No vote on this bill appears to have been recorded in the Senate, and the above is all that we can find in its Journal respecting it.

In the House of Representatives on the 10th of December, on motion of Mr. DODGE, this bill was considered, and on motion of Mr. TURNEY, the rules of the House were dispensed with, and it was read the first and second time by its title, and referred to the committee on the judiciary. [See House Journal, page 100.]

On the 12th day of the same month, Mr. KITCHELL, from the committee on the Judiciary to whom the same had been referred, reported this bill back to the House without amendment, and it was ordered to a third reading—when Mr. OLIVER moved to dispense with the rules of the House, and that the bill be read a third time by its title, which was agreed to, and the bill passed. [See House Journal, page 110.]

This is the short history of the passage of an act incorporating a city, establishing an university, creating an independent military legion, and authorizing the imprisonment of our citizens, all without recording a vote at any stage in either house, and without reading the bill at all, in the House of Representatives. It will be borne in mind, that Mr. LITTLE, though a whig, was elected by the Mormons, and that every other person who took an active part in smuggling this bill through the legislature, was of the organized Van Buren party: neither must it be forgotten that these persons profess to be opposed to all acts of incorporation, and were on all other occasions very strenuous to have a repealing clause in all such acts although no such clause was proposed to this act.

The evidence that a corrupt motive influenced certain leaders to effect the passage of this act, does not stop here. We have the report of a speech made by Mr. Hicks, of Jefferson county, before a considerable audience at the court house, in which is found the following:

“Mr. Hicks, said he had examined the charters granted to the Mormons—that he was opposed to all such incorporations, and was about to oppose these, but was persuaded to let them pass by his democratic friends, who assured him that if they could get these bills through, the Mormons would vote for their candidates at the next election, and as he had deferred on some other occasions from his democratic friends, which had given offence, he was induced to abandon his opposition to these bills and let them pass.”

It will be seen by the following letter from the Mormon Prophet, which we copy from the Times and Seasons of May 6th, 1841, that Judge Douglass, who is notoriously one of the greatest managers of the party, and who has boasted of having introduced the Van Buren Convention system in this State, has had an efficient agency in procuring the passage of these measures; and if he had no hand in making the bargain, the public have a right to call on him to explain how he has ever proved himself friendly to the people, and how and with whom he interested himself to obtain these several charters, holding as he did at the time, the office of Secretary of State; and why did they vote him the freedom of the city?

CITY OF NAUVOO, May 6th, 1841.

To the editors of the Times and Seasons:

Gentlemen—I wish, through the medium of your paper, to make known that on Sunday last I had the honor of receiving a visit from the Hon. Stephen A. Douglass, Justice of the Supreme Court and Judge of the Fifth Judicial Circuit of the State of Illinois, who addressed the assembly and expressed his satisfaction at what he had seen and heard respecting our people, and took that opportunity of returning thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo for conferring upon him the freedom of the city, stating that he was not aware of rendering us any service of sufficient importance to deserve such marked honor. Judge Douglass has ever proved himself friendly to this people, and interested himself to obtain for us our several charters, holding at the time the office of Secretary of State.

I am, very respectfully, yours, &c.

JOSEPH SMITH.

If an honorable or pure motive induced Judge Douglass to use his official influence with the legislature, let him show how, and with whom he used his influence. He certainly cannot plead ignorance of the outrageous provisions of these “great chartered privileges.” But Judge’s connection with, or service to these Mormons, does not stop here, as appears from the following extract from a General order of Lieut. General Joseph Smith, which was occasioned by a controversy between the Nauvoo Legion and the Hancock county militia, in which the Judge takes sides with the Mormons; and as appears from the papers, appointed the Mormon Major General Bennett, Master in Chancery, to protect the Mormons.—This appears to have given great offence to the citizens of that county. The General order referred to is published in the Times and Seasons of May 15, 1841.

NAUVOO LEGION, Head Quarters Nauvoo Legion, City of Nauvoo, Ill., May 4, 1841.

“As will be seen by the following opinion of Judge Douglass of the Supreme Court of the State of Illinois; that when no man stands more deservedly high in the public estimation, as an able and profound jurist, politician and statesman; the officers and privates belonging to the Legion, are exempt from all military duty, not required by the legally constituted authorities thereof: they are therefore expressly inhibited from performing any military service not ordered by the general officers, or directed by the court-martial.”

Here follows the opinion of Judge Douglass, which shows that he prejudged and decided, by volunteering an opinion upon matters of law that were almost certain to come before him for adjudication in his judicial capacity—besides which he appointed the Mormon Major General Bennett, Master in Chancery, in reference to this particular case. Comment upon a course so extraordinary, unprecedented and abhorrent to all who value the purity and independence of the judiciary, is useless, and renders unnecessary any remarks upon the conduct imputed to him by rumor, in relation to his discharging this Joe Smith from arrest by virtue of a State warrant issued upon the requisition of the Governor of Missouri, in which State Joe was indicted for high treason—and similar conduct in granting a new trial to two Mormons, convicted of larceny by a jury, and the entry of a nolle prosequi by the State’s Attorney, another Van Buren disciple.

The general order proceeds—

“If officers act upon the obsolete laws of the little book which have been repealed years since, it will be sweet to the taste but make the law bitter, and should any civil or military officer attempt to enforce the collection of any military fines upon the members of the Legion, excepting when such fines are assessed by the court-martial of the Legion, such persons are directed to apply to the master in Chancery for Hancock county, for an injunction to stay the illegal proceedings.”

JOSEPH SMITH, Lieut. General.
JOHN C. BENNETT, Maj. General.

And he might have added, “Mayor of the City of Nauvoo, Chancellor of the University, master in Chancery for Hancock Circuit, Court and Quarter Master General of Illinois.”

This appointment by Judge Douglass of Major General Bennett as master in Chancery, called forth severe strictures upon Bennett and Douglass, from a press located in a neighboring village, as will be seen from an extract from the ‘Times and Seasons’ of June 15, 1841.

“THE WARSAW SIGNAL.”

“We can hardly find language to express our surprise and disapprobation at the conduct of the editor of the Signal as manifested in that paper of the 9th ult. We had fondly hoped that the sentiments therein expressed would never have dared to be uttered by any individual in this community in which we reside, and we would ask the editor of the Signal what is the cause of his hostility, of this sudden and unexpected exhibition of feeling, this spirit of opposition and animosity? Whose rights have been disturbed? Gen. Bennett has been appointed Master in Chancery, by Judge Douglass, and Gen. Bennett is a Mormon.”

Again, Governor Carlin has not been wanting in his contributions to pamper the pride and gratify the ambition of this warlike people. He has appointed General Bennett his Quarter Master General, by virtue of which office he has possession of all the arms of the State, and has actually taken most of them to the headquarters of the Nauvoo Legion. And what renders the Governor’s servility to this people still more conspicuous and odious, is his having permitted Bennett to continue to hold the office of Quarter Master General of this State, while Major General of the Nauvoo Legion; offices wholly incompatible with each other—and that this was the case is evident from two general orders issued by Bennett, one in each of the before mentioned capacities, and published in the ‘Times and Seasons’ of May 15th, 1841. The heading, signatures and same extracts from one bearing date, 4th May, 1841, have already been given;—the other is as follows:

“State of Illinois, City of Nauvoo, Quarter Master General’s Office, May 15th A. D. 1841.

To the Militia of Illinois, etc., etc.

Signed, JOHN C. BENNETT, Quarter Master General of Illinois.”

In order to exhibit the spirit actuating, and the designs intended by these Mormon allies of the organized Van Buren office-seeking party, we introduce a few extracts from their writings and speeches. The first is from an oration delivered by Sidney Rigdon:

“We take God and all the holy angels to witness this day, that we warn all men in the name of Jesus Christ, to come on us no more forever. The man or set of men who attempt to do it at the expense of their lives. No man shall be at liberty to come into our streets, to threaten us with mobs; for if he does he shall atone for it before he leaves the place; neither shall he be at liberty to vilify and slander any of us, for suffer it we will not; neither will we indulge any man, or set of men, in instituting vexatious law-suits against us, to cheat us of our just rights; if they attempt it, we will go to the aid of our brethren. We this day then proclaim ourselves free, with a purpose and determination that can never be broken; no never; NO NEVER.

In the Book of Covenants, page 191, is found the following:

“Wherefore I say unto you, that I have sent unto you my everlasting covenant, (namely, the Book of Mormon) even that which was from the beginning, and that which I have promised I have so fulfilled, and the nations of the earth shall bow to it: and if not of themselves, they shall come down, for that which is now exalted of itself, shall be laid low by power.”

On page 76:

“Wherefore the voice of the Lord is unto the ends of the earth, that all that will hear, may prepare ye, prepare ye for that which is to come, for the Lord is nigh, and the anger of the Lord is kindled, and his sword is sheathed in Heaven, and it shall fall upon the inhabitants of the earth, that they that will not hear the voice of his servants, neither give heed to the words of the prophets and apostles, shall be cut off from among the people. Wherefore I have called upon the weak things of the world, those who are unlearned and despised, to thrash the nations by the power of my spirit; and their arm shall be my arm, and I will be their shield and their buckler; and I will gird up their loins, and they shall fight manfully for me, and their enemies shall be under their feet; and I will let fall the sword in their behalf, and with the fire of my indignation will I preserve them.”

The following is by Parley P. Pratt, one of the Mormon twelve apostles:

“The Government of the United States has been engaged for upwards of seven years, in gathering the remnant of Joseph (the Indians) to the very place where they will finally build the New Jerusalem, a city of Zion, with the acquisition of the believing Gentiles, who will gather with them from all the nations of the earth, and this gathering is clearly predicted in the Book of Mormon, and the place appointed and the time set for its fulfillment; and except the gentiles repent of all their abominations, and embrace the same covenant, (the Book of Mormon) and come into the same place of gathering, they will soon be destroyed from off the face of the land, as it is written by Isaiah: ‘The nation and kingdom that will not serve thee shall perish.’ And I will state as a prophecy, that there will not be an unbelieving gentile on the face of the continent 50 years hence; and if they are not greatly scourged, and in a great measure overthrown in 5 or 10 years from this day (1838) when the Book of Mormon will have proved itself false.”

William W. Phelps, Post Master in Caldwell county, Mo., makes the following statement on oath in a judicial proceeding:

“Mr. Rigdon arose and made an address to them, in which he spoke of having borne persecutions, and law-suits, and other privations, and did not intend to bear them any longer: that they meant to resist the law, and if a sheriff came after them with writs they would kill him, and if any body opposed them, they would take off their heads. Joseph Smith, Jr., followed Mr. Rigdon, approving his sentiments, and said that was what they intended to do. Mr. Rigdon then commenced making covenants with uplifted hands, one of which was, that if any persons from the surrounding country came into their town, walking, about, no odds who they might be, any one of that meeting should kill him, and throw him aside into the brush. Another covenant was, to conceal all things. These measures were carried unanimously in the form of covenants, with uplifted hands. Mr. Rigdon then observed, that the kingdom of heaven had been opened, and that a man had slipped his foot, and was dragged into the hazel brush, and said he, the man who slips it shall die.”

We conclude the mass of testimony, compiled for the purpose of establishing beyond a reasonable doubt the positions assumed by us, by quoting a proclamation of Lieutenant General Joseph Smith, which is said by some of his Van Buren friends to have been issued by him in consequence of his nomination for Lieutenant Governor in the Van Buren Convention—it being a principle with that party for every person, when fairly initiated, to use his utmost exertions to sustain its measures. But we think the evidence of its being in pursuance of a corrupt bargain, speaks out too plainly to impose such an excuse upon the people. But we give the document from the ‘Times and Seasons,’ in which it was published:

STATE GUBERNATORIAL CONVENTION.
CITY OF NAUVOO, ILLINOIS, DECEMBER 20th, A. D. 1841.

To my friends in Illinois:—

The Gubernatorial Convention of the State of Illinois have nominated COLONEL ADAM W. SNYDER for GOVERNOR and COLONEL JOHN MORE for LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR of the STATE OF ILLINOIS—election to take place in August next. COLONEL MORE, like JUDGE DOUGLASS, and EQ. WARREN was an intimate friend of GENERAL BENNETT, long before that gentleman became a member of our community; and General Bennett informs us that no men were more efficient in assisting him to procure our CHARTERED PRIVILEGES, than were COLONEL SNYDER and COLONEL MORE. They are sterling men, and friends of equal rights—opposed to the oppressor’s grasp, and the tyrant’s rod. With such men at the head of our State Government we have nothing to fear. In the next canvass we shall be influence-ed by no PARTY consideration—and no Carthaginian coalescence or collusion, with our people, will be suffered to affect, or operate against, GENERAL BENNETT OR ANY OTHER OF OUR TRIED FRIENDS ALREADY SEMI-OFFICIALLY IN THE FIELD; so the PUT ZINS; in this country who expect to divide the friends of humanity and equal rights will find themselves mistaken—we care not a fig for WHIG or DEMOCRAT: they are both alike to us; but we shall go for our FRIENDS, OUR TRIED FRIENDS, and the cause of HUMAN LIBERTY, which is the cause of God. We are aware that “DIVIDE AND CONQUER” is the watch-word with many, but with us it cannot be done—we love liberty too well—we have suffered too much to be easily duped—we have no cat’s-paws amongst us. We vote for General Harrison because we loved him—he was a GALLANT OFFICER and a TRIED STATESMAN; but this is no reason why we should always be governed by his FRIENDS—he is now DEAD and a lot of his friends are not ours. We claim the privileges of freemen and shall act accordingly. YOURS is a MASTER SPIRIT, and HIS FRIENDS are OUR FRIENDS—we are willing to cast our banners on the air, and fight by his side in the cause of humanity, and equal rights—the cause of liberty and the law. Snyder, and Moore, are his friends—they are ours. These men are free from the prejudices and superstitutions of the age, and such men we love, and such men will ever receive our support, be their political predilection is what they may.—Snyder, and Moore, are known to be our friends; their friendship is vouched for by those whom we have tried. We will never be justly charged with the sin of ingratitude—they have served us, and we will serve them.

JOSEPH SMITH,
Lieutenant General of the Nauvoo Legion.

To every one who has given in the foregoing a careful perusal, we would put the question—Can any candid man, who is not blinded by the desire or hope of getting an office, doubt for an instant, that the VAN BUREN PARTY—by which we mean those who are striving to live upon the public, and fatten upon its resources, the office holders and seekers—are willing and desirous to connect themselves with any faction, and even willing to sacrifice the dearest rights of their country upon the altar of personal ambition, and private gain, for the purpose of obtaining power, and the emoluments of office? Remember how long they clung to the rail road system and the Canal, even after our credit was prostrated, and our resources exhausted, with no other object in view than to continue their partisans in office by securing the foreign votes. These means having failed, they now seek the same end by forming an union with the Mormons, the Catholic powers of Europe, and the nullifiers of the South,—and thus to form a party of discordant elements, whose only bond of union, and common object is, power and spoils. In view of these facts, has not the time come when the PEOPLE—the honest People—should take the management of the Government into their own hands, and drive from their posts, and confine to their proper sphere, all these office holding, office seeking drones, who have been multiplied in the country for the purpose of ruling it, and have sought to trample upon its liberties that they might riot upon its distresses—and in which unholy designs, they have been for the last twelve years successful?”

The foregoing article shows so little regard for truth, and the reasoning is so palpably fallacious, that I consider it useless to multiply many words on the subject, but, as the object and political designs of the writer are so apparent, and the times so portentous, I cannot refrain from a duty which I owe both to myself, and the public.

1st. The ‘NAUVOO LEGION.’ This military body possesses, in the County of Hancock, the same corporate powers as appertain to the ‘INVINCIBLE DRAGOONS of the 2ND DIVISION of ILLINOIS MILITIA,’ in the counties of White, Edwards, and Wabash, and NO OTHERS WHATEVER. I wrote, and procured, the charters for both corporations—they are both alike. Why does not Mr. Francis attack the Dragoons as well as the Legion? Simply because it would afford him no political capital. They are the two best military bodies in the State, and are dissimilar only in point of numbers. Both charters are perpetual and in both corporations the COURT MARTIAL, composed of the commissioned officers, constitutes the ‘law-making power’ so much dreaded by Mr. Francis. The ‘LOUISVILLE LEGION,’ the ‘LOUISIANA LEGION,’ and the ‘ALBANY BURGESS CORPS,’ are the same kind of corporations, and are to Kentucky,

Attest James F. Owings Clerk.

POETRY.

For the Wasp.

TO MRS. JENNETTA RICHARDS, NOW IN MASSACHUSETTS.

I'll Think of Thee, Dearest!
And I'll Pray For Thee!

I think of thee, love! when the village is still,
And there's nought to be heard but the murmuring rill;

When the dark, silent gloom of the twilight I see,

I think of thee, dearest! and I'll pray for thee.

I think of thee, love! when the light of the morn.
My windows, and curtains, and eyelids adorn:
The world has no pastimes, no pleasures for me
Except I may share them with Heber and thee.

I think of thee, love! when the night shadows sleep,

On the billows that bore us across the great deep:
Like the broad spreading sail, that floats on the sea,

My faith doth encircle both Heber and thee.

I'll think of thee, dearest! while thou art afar.
And liken thy smile to the morning's bright star.
As the coral-shell breathes of its home in the sea.
So my lips with transport oft mention of thee.

I'll think of thee, dearest! at midnight's dark hour,

When lightnings flash bright and the rain torrents pour;

That angels may guard thee, and sweeten thy rest,

I'll pray for thee, dearest! that thou shalt be blest.

I'll think of Jennetta, as time rolls along,
And gladly would cheer her with Zion's sweet song;

When day's, toils and labors and travels are done,
I'll pray for thee, dearest! and thy lovely son.

I'll think of thee, love! when thou bowest the knee,

And Rhoda and Nancy in concert with thee
Are raising their voices in praises and prayers,
I'll join with them, dearest! for thy joy is theirs.

I'll think of thee, love! and my sisters with thee,
For lovely they are, both to thee and to me;
Thou say'st they are 'Willard's sisters indeed,'
I'll pray for the three for this pleasing mead.

I'll pray for thee, dearest! and labor and toil,
To secure to our use some of Zion's rich soil;
Whereon we may build and live long in peace,
When liars and mobbers from earth shall cease.

I'll think of thee, love! and wish thou wert there.
When I sit me down to a bountiful fare,
Without crack and rattle, or any such thing:
I'll pray for thee, dearest! and thank our great King.

I'll think of thee, love! till my work here is done,
Then quickly I'll hie 'tward the orient sun,*
And prove to my, dearest! when her I shall see,
That Willard remembers both Heber and thee.

Then think not, Jennetta forsaken by all,
Or that her dearest Willard on Erie should fall; **
His work is not done, he cannot go yet,
He'll pray for his dearest! he'll live for his pet.

O! be not discouraged, but hope for the best,
When sorrow is ended then comes the Saint's rest!

Whatever sufferings and troubles may be,
They're trifling compared with Christ's sufferings for thee.

I'll pray for thee, love! in sickness or health,
In sorrow's dark vale, or happiness' wealth;
In clouds or in sunshine, whichever it be,
I'll think of thee, dearest! and I'll pray for thee

W. RICHARDS.

|| Written at Warsaw.

† Scotch cake, common in England.

* June 15, 1842. Start next week.

 It was supposed that Elder Richards was burned on the Erie, last summer.

For The Wasp.

"Those who will live Godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution."—St. Paul.

Why should the christian sigh?
Though with cold, averted eye,
The friends of other days,
Who were loudest in his praise;
Are the first to turn aside,
And his faith and hope deride.
Though the scornful word and sneer,
Should fall often on his ear;
Though on his once honored name,

They should pour contempt and shame,
Let him never breath a sigh;
But, with calm and steadfast eye,
Meet the darts against him hurled,
By a vain and wicked world.

Let him never think it strange,
Though his dearest friends should change:
For it is a truth, well known,
That the world will love its own;
But, should any dare to rise,
To claim kindred with the skies;
Should they break the chains of sin,
And a better course begin.
They have nothing to expect
From the world, but cold neglect;
They can never be exempt
From its hatred and contempt.

But, for this, he should not sigh,
When his treasure is on high;
For, the servant need not hope
To escape the bitter cup,
To his Lord and Master given;
Who, tho' Lord of earth and heavens,
For the love he bore our race,
Left his own bright dwelling place,
And his Father's glorious throne,
For transgressors to atone;
He assumed a servant's name
And endured reproach and shame;
And, tho' ever doing good
To the thronging multitude,
He was hated and despised,
And his favors lightly prized;
Was derided, scorned, abused,
And of various crimes accused;
Denied all human aid;
By a chosen friend betrayed;
By his followers denied—
Scorned, rejected, crucified;
And, at last, to crown the whole,
He poured out his righteous soul
As an offering unto God,
Even for those who shed his blood.

And shall those who bear his name
Shrink from suffering and shame!
Shall they hope his crown to wear,
If his cross they do not bear?
Or to reach the saints' abode,
By a smooth and flowery road?
No! the only way to God
Is the path the Savior trod;
And his followers must prepare
In his sufferings to share;
They must bear the ridicule,
Of the scorner and the fool;
Persecution may assail
And all earth's friends may fail;
But they have a friend on high
Who will hear his children's cry
A firm and faithful friend,
Who will love them to the end;

If they steadfastly endure;
If they fight the fight of faith,
Ever faithful unto death;
They will conquer in the strife
And receive a crown of life,
Which the Lord, the righteous Lord,
Has prepared for their reward;
And, as kings and priests to God,
They shall reign in his abode;
When the earth shall be renewed
And their foes are all subdued.

L. S.

CENTRAL AMERICA.—We have the pleasure to announce, says Langley's (N. Y.) Advertiser, upon the authority of a letter recently received from Messrs. Stephens and Caherwood at Guatemala, that these enterprising travellers will return early in the ensuing month. We learn also, from the same source, that their renewed explorations have been attended with singular success; large additions having been made to the interesting relics and remains previously discovered, and which have attracted so universally the public attention. A new work, supplemental to the agreeable volumes already published, will comprise the result of Mr. Ste-phens's observations and the discoveries during his second visit to these antiquities of the New World.—[Bay State Democrat.

MOB LAW.

In Perry county, Georgia, the following daring outrage was committed.— Circumstances and the hardness of the times are leading to the commitment of crimes which were not dreamed of a few years since.

"The times are becoming appalling—really alarming. We have just returned from Sumter Superior Court. Its first day's session was this day week. We took all our plain verdicts, entered up our judgments, attached the notes—put them back in the clerk's office that night.—
Some friends, it was not ascertained who, but some six or eight must have been concerned, entered the Court House, carried off the clerk's desk, in which was contained every paper, docket, record book, &c. pertaining to the office, and consumed the whole by fire. There was nothing saved except the few cases the members of the bar happened to have in their hats and pockets. We lost every case but two, where judgment had been taken. Notes are gone also. No trace left behind.

The next day, being Sheriff sale's day
—and a great deal of property advertised, the court proceeded on with such cases
as the bar had out, until sale hour arrived, when it suspended for the sale—and as soon as the Deputy Sheriff commenced, he was instantly seized by three ruffians and carried off to an adjacent swamp.—
The judge repaired to the court room, made an address to the populace, commanded the principal Sheriff to summon the posse and pursue bring back the deputy, and the men who carried him off.—
The Sheriff lead the way commanding the crowd, of at least 250, to follow and aid him—the crowd went out dispersed over the town and not half a dozen would go. The Sheriff and three or four approached to near the place where the outlaws were and a fellow came out with a double barrelled gun, and told the Sheriff that there were twenty-five or thirty men in the swamp well armed—that he might advance, if he did he would do it at his peril—that fifty millions of armed men could not capture the outlaws.

The Sheriff had no arms and could get none to put into the hands of the friends of the law. "We tremble for the country, for the perpetuity of the government.—
Mobocracy talks abroad in noon day sun, with impunity, and without a blush. God save the country and destroy the spirit of

[Remember the saints in Missouri.--ED.]

LATE FROM FLORIDA.—More Indian Murders.—We have received the St. Augustine News of the 21st inst. from which it appears that several more Indian murders have been committed. A letter from Santafee, (Mineral Spring) under date of the 15th, says that the Indians killed two men named Van Zandt, within six miles of the place; and on that morning, the 15th, they attacked the house of Mr. Moses Cason within four miles of Santafee, and killed his wife and one child.

Another letter from Newmansville states that the house of Mr. Ward, some 3 or ten miles north of that place, was attacked by the Indians in the night. The result not known.

The news says that after this outrage at Santafee, the Indians wended their way south. Their trail had been discovered, and Lieut. Parker proceeded to examine it with six mounted men, when he was fired upon by about twenty-five warriors.

Two of his men were killed and two unhorsed, who were instantly stabbed.—
Lieut. B. and the other three men made good their escape. All the disposable force, about 700 Infantry, had gone in pursuit. News adds, "they are doubtless a band of runaway Creeks under the Chief Octahachee, having with him Tiger

Tail, who have committed these horrid murders in revenge for the surrender of Haleck Tustenuggee.

LATE MOB IN NEW ORLEANS.—We have every confidence that the municipal movement in favor of liquidation yesterday will have the salutary effect of instantly quenching the absurd excitement of yesterday.

It came upon this section of the city abrupt and startling as a tornado, for none here had at all doubted the eventual good and full value of all our small currency now in circulation. The sudden onset of the excited people, thereof, as they rushed up Chartres street, from the lower part of the city, was a thing of most singular and extraordinary effect.

Rompez les Courtiers!"—"Grande bouleversement!"—"A bas les Courtiers!"
—"A bas le change!"—These cries were heard as the brokers' windows were dashed in. Stephen Burgun, of No. 2 Camp street, was shot in the finger while engaged in arresting a rioter.

The following are the names of the prisoners in the Second Municipality prison, arrested at the riot and robbery—J.
Cornu, John Kesbert, C. Chauviere, Auguste Sevier, Thomas Gallart, J. B. Lecleve, Jean Crouse, George Hafelin, Peter Joseph, Alonzo Yucian, Augustin Lion, Manual Munis—in all twelve. Besides these, Jose Trioize was arrested by the First Municipality police, having in his possession some of the stolen silver.—
New Orleans Picayune, May 22.

TRIUMPH OF LAW.

Miami county has the honor of being the first in the state that has, for some years past successfully resisted an organized mob and maintained the supremacy of the law. The gentlemen ruffins who headed a mob that egged a temperance lecturer were arraigned, convicted and punished by fine and imprisonment. The mob rallied with the determination to release the prisoners. The Sheriff did his duty, and well sustained by the citizens and militia of Troy. The court then in session was petitioned for the release of the prisoners. It also stood firm, and the mob, 300 strong was obliged to retire and let the law take its course. One thing is yet lacking to complete the triumph of the law—that is that the leaders of the mob who demand the release of the prisoners, be punished for their attempt to trample on the civil authorities.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph John-on, Ramus
J. Salsbery, Plymouth,
Harow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Chiffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Eq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Pag., Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
Jamow Curtis, Horners Town.
W. I. Appleby, Reckless Town.
Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Sa'em.
Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapiet.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirtland.

NEW YORK.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.
L. R. Foster, city of New York.

THE

WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BYRANT.

Volume I.—No. 11.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, June 25, 1842.

Whole Number 11

THE WASP.

IS EDITED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY
WM. SMITH,At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.
TERMS.—$1.50 invariably in advance.

LATE FROM EUROPE.

ARRIVAL OF THE BRITISH QUEEN.

The steamship British Queen arrived at New York on Friday morning, having left Antwerp on the 4th and Southampton on the 8th May.

She brings 44 passengers—among them, Capt. Eyckholt, Commissioner from the Belgian Government, and Mr. John Angue and son of Philad.

We take the following from the New York papers and from London papers received through the attention of Messrs. Harnden's Express Line:

The Money market is easy, although funds had a downward tendency on the 6th and 7th.

The cotton Market is firm, and no change in prices.

In the House of Lords, Lord Brougham presented a petition from the provisional council of the National Complete Suffrage Union, praying for universal suffrage, annual parliaments, vote by ballot, and that no qualification should be required for members elected to sit in the House of Commons. As the petition was signed by 3 300,000 people, he hoped their lordships would not think he was asking too much when he proposed it should be read at length. The petition was accordingly read.

In the Commons, the income tax bill had been gone through with, in committee, and was ordered to be reported to the House, pretty much as originally presented on the 9th inst.

The condition of children employed in collieries begins already to excite the sympathy of the public. On the 6th, the Bishop of Norwich, on presenting five petitions from Oldham, Chester,

Pendleton near Manchester, Leeds and Lancaster, praying the house to take measures to prevent the employment of females in coal mines, adverted to the horrible statement in the report of the commissioners, with respect to the treatment of women and children in the mines of the North, and the moral degradation and corruption to which those females were exposed.

FRANCE.—The Paris papers of the 5th have reached us by our ordinary express. Their contents are unimportant.

Thursday (the 5th) being the anniversary of Napoleon's death, a funeral service for the repose of his soul was celebrated in all the churches of Paris.

SPAIN.—Our accounts from Madrid are of the 28th ult.

The chamber of Deputies resumed on that day the discussion on the 160 000,000 Loan Bill.

A grand funeral service was celebrated on the 28th, in the church of St. Thomas, for the late Antonia Espartero, brother of the Regent at which Mr. Aston, and other distinguished personages assisted. The Infante Don Francisco de Paula acted as chief mourner.

RUSSIA.—The Emperor of Russia published a ukase on the 2nd ult., modifying the position of the Russian serfs in respect to their lords, which created so much dissatisfaction amongst the nobility, that the Grand Master of the Police at St. Petersburg found it necessary to publish an ordinance on the following day, annulling in reality all that had been commanded by the preceding ukase.

The Subabia Mercury states that letters had been received at Vienna on the 26th ult., announcing that the Emperor of Russia was seriously indisposed.

THE EAST.—The India mail, of which a telegraphic announcement had reached England before the departure of the Acadia, arrived at London on the 4th.

Sir Robert Sale was safe in Jellalabad up to the 4th of last month; he had secured provisions for himself and troops, and was determined to resist to the last. An earthquake on the 19th of February had done great damage to the fortifications and buildings of the town, but the resolution of the General and his troops had not only repaired the damages, but routed a party of Afghans under Akhbar Khan, who endeavored to profit of the occasion, and to attack the British position.

The decision of Lord Ellenborough being now taken to uphold the reputation of the British troops in Afghanistan, one may hope that in a short time the relief of Jellalabad will open the campaign with a brilliant exploit.

Dates from Macao are to the 14th February. The Mandarins at Canton and their Dutch engineers are busy in erecting fortifications along the banks of their river; they have already erected 12 stone or earth batteries along the Macao passage and the Salt Junk river, in which they have placed nearly 400 guns of large calibre.

As the export trade from Canton continued Sir Henry Pottinger has decided while trade is allowed, and the river below Whampoa is left unobstructed, upon not attacking that place again, for, as he declared to some mandarins, who came commissioned, as they said, by their celestial monarch, treat with the British Plenipotentiary. 'I will not now enter into treaty. I will negotiate with the Emperor personally at Peking.'

Reinforcements are now preparing in different places. Four regiments of native Madras Infantry are to join the expedition.

AWFUL DESTRUCTION OF LIFE—TERRIBLE EARTHQUAKE IN THE ISLAND OF ST. DOMINGO.

From Le Patriote of Port au Prince of 11 May.

On Saturday, the 7th inst., at twenty minutes past seven, in the evening, we experienced some severe shocks of an earthquake, which put the whole town in commotion. At mid-day a large meteor was perceived passing to the east. The heat was excessive, and thick clouds hung over the neighboring mountain, going in every direction from the southeast to the northeast. The seamen who were in the roads report that they felt the shock before they saw the houses shake, which would indicate that the shock came from the east. Many persons, however, think they observed that the oscillations came from the north and went south.

There were two very decided shocks—the first was not as long as the second; the latter was the most violent, and lasted about three minutes. All abandoned house which was getting ready for the heir houses, and the streets were filled with the affrighted population. But a little more, and Port au Prince would have been the scene of a disaster similar to that of 1770, a fatal year, which occurred to the minds of every one.

There is scarcely a single brick or stone house which has not suffered damage; they are all more or less damaged. Some, it is said, are scarcely habitable. The facade of the Senate House, on which is sculptured the arms of the Republic, surmounted by the tree of liberty, were detached from the edifice, and broken into pieces by the fall. The interior of the building has also received some damage.

In the night, between Saturday and Sunday, two shocks were again felt, but of persons killed and wounded is not yet known. All the prisoners who were not buried under the ruins of the prison, in the morning of Sunday came another shock: mass at the church was interrupted, and those officiating at it, ran away, and many females fainted.

Monday, at 11 o'clock in the morning, another shock.

The weather during these three days had a lowering, and at times a threatening appearance. Monday evening, a little rain, with excessive heat before and afterwards; night cool. Tuesday, a change of weather, return of the breeze, and appearance of rain.

In the evening, at eight o'clock, the weather was stormy, and every thing seemed to indicate an abundance of rain.

The hopes we entertained yesterday have not been realized. On Wednesday, we were awake at a few minutes before five in the morning by another earthquake.

During these latter days it appears to us as if the earth on which we were walking was constantly quaking.

Saint Marc.—A letter from this town which has been communicated to us, informs us that there, too, the earthquake of Saturday last was felt with the greatest violence; many houses have been so much shaken that they threaten every instant to fall down. On some plantations in the neighborhood of the town, very great damage has been done.

Gonaives, 8th May.—Yesterday afternoon an earthquake was felt in this city, which was so violent that most of the houses in it were thrown down. At the same time, in consequence of the shock, a fire broke out in the apothecary's shop of Mr. Invernezze and consumed in a few moments an entire block. The flames destroyed every thing that came in their way; there was not a drop of water in the town.

All the houses which have not been burnt down have been injured by the earthquakes, and this morning the shocks occur every quarter of an hour. The shops of Madame John Jofferts and M. Dupuy have fallen a prey to the flames. The shops of M. Richard Dauphin and M. Oster, built of stone and brick, have fallen down. Houses and shops are inaccessible, and we write these hurried lines in the street. The whole population has passed the night in the middle of the streets. Of the merchandize which the merchants had been obliged to pile up in the public square, a great part has been stolen. It is impossible at present to estimate the extent of the loss. The church, the prison, the national palace, the treasury, the arsenal, and the whole of the city were getting ready for the colonel commanding this district, are now nothing more than a heap of ruins.

In short no one has escaped the calamity. Now, while we are writing, the sky looks threatening, and we are afraid of more shocks. If unfortunately our fears should be realized, there will be an end of the few houses remaining standing. The first and principle shock lasted about five minutes and was followed during the night by more than twenty others which, though not so violent, were equally fearful.

It is now 8 o'clock in the morning. Not half an hour has passed since we had another violent shock. The number of persons killed and wounded is not yet known. All the prisoners who were not buried under the ruins of the prison, have escaped. God grant that the Capital may not have been afflicted with a similar misfortune;

Cape Haytien, Wednesday, 6 o'clock in the evening.—Most deplorable news is spreading throughout the city. It has been brought by Mr. Obas, son of the general commanding the district of Plaisance. In consequence of the earthquake which was felt here on Saturday evening, Cape Town has entirely disappeared and with it two-thirds of the population. The families which escaped this disaster have taken refuge at La Fosse, where they are without shelter, clothes or provisions.

Such is the news circulating in town, and which unfortunately is probably too true. It is to be hoped, however, it will not be confirmed in its full extent.

It is said that the President of Hayti has given orders to the physicians and officers of health attached to the hospital, to set off this evening and give their assistance to the unfortunate victims of his disaster.

Capt. Morris (of the brig Wm. Nelson, which brings the account) states in addition, that a few hours previous to his departure, a courier arrived with information that at Cape Haytien a fire succeeded the earthquake, destroying the remaining houses, the powder magazine, and the remnant of the inhabitants. St. Nicholas and Port Paix are said to be in ruins, and in fact all the towns on the north side of the island. One inhabitant of the Cape, a Mr. Dupuy, was saved, all the rest being either crushed, or drowned by the sea, which rose and submerged the city. Fearful; fearful, indeed, are the particulars of this awful visitation.

Cape Haytien, known as The Cape or Cape Francois, on the north coast, is the Capital of the Republic, and formerly contained some 900 stone and brick houses, with a population variously estimated, at from 10 to 20,000.

It is situated on a Cape, at the edge of a plain between the sea and the mountains. The plain is exceedingly fertile, and intersected by broad paved roads, lined with lemon and lime trees.

It is in lat. 19 46 N. and lon. 72 16 W.

STRANGE.—A short time since a couple of men, living about three miles from Elizabethtown in this country, went into a spring-house which was situated near a small stream, which was at that time nearly dry. A heavy rain had occurred a short time before, and the water came down suddenly with such violence that it swept them both away, down a descent of something like one hundred feet. One of them, named Samuel Lytle, was so badly injured, that he died in a short time after. The other was not so seriously injured.—Chronicle.

An Excellent Housemaid.—A lady in England having received a letter from a neighboring lady, containing a string of enquiries in regard to a maid who had lately lived with the former, replied as follows:—"Dear Madam: Polly P—is an angel of a housemaid. From the making of a bed down to the threading of a needle, you will find her all that you can wish—AND EVEN A LITTLE MORE."

THE WASP.

SATURDAY, JUNE 25, 1842

The world is all agog for a shot at "Jo Smith."—That is, the newspaper world. Slingshot goes a merrily; whang sounds a cannon; bang twangs a gun; pop snaps a pistol, and wush rises a pop gun. It is quite gratifying to the General to be thus noticed. But, oh! you great whales that are writing for glory and living on trust, do be merciful to the small fish around you: when you shoot, spare as many of the little pan gentry as possible; but keep shooting.—Kill Boggs; smash the bankrupt law; and squib away about the General's assets. But for hell's sake, (no, not hell's, that's wicked,) hypocrites then, don't shoot at those fellows that tarred and feathered Joseph Smith in Hiram, Ohio, in 1832, with impunity: It will hurt the credit of Ohio. Don't fire at the inhabitants of Jackson county Mo., for tarring and feathering Patridge and Allen: it will disturb their sympathies. Hold up! don't point your pieces over the bleaching bones of men, women and children, slain for their religion in bloody Missouri! Oh, no! don't! It will tarnish the honor of the State. While firing your great guns at Gen. Smith, hush about the Court Martial that tried to shoot him without law; keep his prison chains still, but stagger from the grog-shop to the pulpit and swear:—"God dam old Jo Smith!"

From the (Ohio) Cross and Journal.

"SAINTS AND PROPHETS IN TROUBLE.—The Evening Journal publishes a letter dated Springfield, Illinois, which represents the Mormon settlement to be subject to the pains and penalties of hard times, notwithstanding all the extraordinary sanctity of its high priests and elders. The following is an extract from the letter:

"You requested me, when I saw you last, in St. Louis, to inform you by letter directed to Philadelphia, whether Joseph Smith, the Mormon Prophet, had applied for the benefit of the Bankrupt Act. I have now before me the applications of the prophet, Joseph Smith, of Sidney Rigdon, and of Hiram Smith, the two last far-famed teachers of this deluded people. The debt of Smith amounts to about $100,000. I have hastily calculated it just now, and made it amount to $99,325 57. His assets consist in some notes obtained from individuals for various amounts in some trifling household furniture, and lots in Nauvoo. I have looked diligently among the furniture for the golden Bible, but cannot see it named, in fact he has no Bible or book of any description in his inventory. The inventories and schedules of Sidney Rigdon and Hiram Smith are similar to Joseph Smith's, except that Hiram has inventoried some children's Sidney Rigdon had inventoried 1 vol. Gill's body of Divinity, 1 old family Bible, 2 books of Mormon, 1 Hebrew, 2 Greek, and 1 Latin Grammar.—These are teachers—he is the prophet."

The above morcuc, among the many close calculations of this scrutinizing generation, is—what shall we say!—mirabile dictu! But the greatest curiosity in it is, that Smith's assets are as much as they are; even that one bible should have been found in the whole family—having been robbed of every thing by the mobbers of Missouri, and when plundered, then driven from the State. Hush, such nonsense! the writer must be a nincompoop! Talk about assets, and especially the golden Bible, when all the ungodly bible-pagans of New York, Ohio, and elsewhere had given up the search ten years ago. Hunt for assets—after a man has been fleeced of all he has, at least three times! You might as well take an auger and bore a man's eyes out, then hold up a piece of cloth before him, and ask him what color it is! Thou hypocrites!

HONOR BRIGHT.—The St. Louis Republican very graciously publishes the fact, or ordinance, appointing a city watch in Nauvoo, and connects the matter with Boggs' assassination, to induce the belief that Gen. Smith's moves give sanction to the editor's surmise that a moron shot the said Ex-Governor. What a bright idea! The editor ought to have a patent right, so that knaves and liars, instead of inheriting a lake of fire and brimstone; for sometime to come, might act as lying spirits for mobbers, wizzards, nimshies and other dodging night lights.

To the Editor of The Wasp:

Sir: There is no small stir about Lieut. Gen. Joseph Smith. A Sangamo Journal writ-

ter is actually disturbed in his cogitations, and that there is no harm in it; but this failing, he had recourse to a more influential and desperately wicked course; and that was, to persuade them that myself and others of the authorities of the church not only sanctioned, but practiced the same wicked acts; and when asked why I publicly preached so much against it, said that it was because of the prejudice of the public, and that it would cause trouble in my own house. He was well aware of the consequence of such wilful and base falsehoods, if they should come to my knowledge; and consequently endeavored to persuade his dupes to keep it a matter of secrecy, persuading them there would be no harm if they should not make it known. This proceeding on his part, answered the desired end; he accomplished his wicked purposes; he seduced an innocent female by his lying, and subjected her character to public disgrace, should it ever be known.

To hush such tumults of war.
Away with the scavenger that fears to let every man rise on his own merits.

E. PLURIBUS UNUM.

To the Editor of the Wasp:—

Mr. Editor: when I see a man take a good deal of pains to listen to the conversation of a couple of gentlemen privately engaged in their own matters, I guess he is a meddler. If he walks round and peaks closely for the purpose of getting a bone: I guess he lacks good manners: If he seems very earnest to pry into other men's business, won't you tell him he will get stung by some of the yellow jackets, or wasps, for his outrageous impertinence?

Should any one be so fond of finding secrets as to patrol round the doors, and peak at the key-hole or peak into the windows: and if the curtains are drawn, pull them away to see who is engaged in conversation, I say, if there be such men in Nauvoo, tell them they have no manners, breeding, or decency, and the quicker they take passage on a cat fish for tophet, the better. Honest men do not wish to be troubled with

SUCH VERMIN.

TO THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS, AND TO ALL THE HONORABLE PART OF COMMUNITY.

It becomes my duty to lay before the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and the public generally, some important facts relative to the conduct and character of Dr. JOHN C. BENNETT, who has lately been expelled from the aforesaid church; that the honorable part of community may be aware of his proceedings and be ready to treat him and regard him as he ought to be regarded.

It is a matter of notoriety that said Dr. J. C. Bennett, become favorable to the doctrines taught by the elders of the church of Latter Day Saints, and located himself in the city of Nauvoo, about the month of August 1840, and soon after joined the church. Soon after it was known that he had become a member of said church, a communication was received at Nauvoo, from a person of respectable character, and residing in the vicinity where Bennett had lived. This letter cautioned us against him, setting forth that he was a very mean man, and had another wife, and two or three children in McConnelville, Morgan county, Ohio; but knowing that it is no uncommon thing for good men to be evil spoken against, the above letter was kept quiet, but held in reserve.

He had not been long in Nauvoo before he began to keep company with a young lady, one of our citizens; and she being ignorant of his having a wife living, gave way to his addresses, and became confident, from his behavior towards her, that he intended to marry her; and this he gave her to understand he would do. I, seeing the folly of such an acquaintance, persuaded him to desist: and, on account of his continuing his course, finally threatened to expose him if he did not desist. This, to outward appearance, had the desired effect and the acquaintance between them was broken off.

But, like one of the most abominable and depraved beings which could possibly exist, he only broke off his publicly wicked actions, to sink deeper, into iniquity and hypocrisy. When he saw that I would not submit to any such conduct, he went to some of the females in the city, who knew nothing of him but as an honorable man, & began to teach them that promiscuous intercourse between the sexes, was a doctrine believed in by the Latter-Day Saints, and that there was no harm in it; but this failing, he had recourse to a more influential and desperately wicked course; and that was, to persuade them that myself and others of the authorities of the church not only sanctioned, but practiced the same wicked acts; and when asked why I publicly preached so much against it, said that it was because of the prejudice of the public, and that it would cause trouble in my own house. He was well aware of the consequence of such wilful and base falsehoods, if they should come to my knowledge; and consequently endeavored to persuade his dupes to keep it a matter of secrecy, persuading them there would be no harm if they should not make it known. This proceeding on his part, answered the desired end; he accomplished his wicked purposes; he seduced an innocent female by his lying, and subjected her character to public disgrace, should it ever be known.

But his depraved heart would not suffer him to stop here. Not being contented with having disgraced one female, he made the attempt upon others; and, by the same plausible tale, overcame them also; evidently not caring whose character was ruined, so that his wicked, lustful appetites might be gratified.

Sometime about the early part of July 1841, I received a letter from Elder H. Smith and Wm. Law, who were then at Pittsburgh, Penn. This letter was dated June 15th, and contained the particulars of a conversation betwixt them and a respectable gentleman from the neighborhood where Bennett's wife and children resided. He stated to them that it was a fact that Bennett had a wife and children living, and that she had left him because of his ill-treatment towards her. This letter was read to Bennett, which he did not attempt to deny; but candidly acknowledged the fact.

Soon after this information reached our ears, Dr. Bennett made an attempt at suicide, by taking poison; but he being discovered before it had taken effect, and the proper antidotes being administered, he again recovered; but he very much resisted when an attempt was made to save him. The public impression was, that he was so much ashamed of his base and wicked conduct, that he had recourse to the above deed to escape the censures of an indignant community.

It might have been supposed that these circumstances transpiring in the manner they did, would have produced a thorough reformation in his conduct; but, alas! like a being totally destitute of common decency, and without any government over his passions, he was soon busily engaged in the same wicked career, and continued until a knowledge of the same reached my ears. I immediately charged him with it, and he admitted that it was true; but in order to put a stop to all such proceedings for the future, I publicly proclaimed against it, and had those females notified to appear before the proper officers that the whole subject might be investigated and thoroughly exposed.

During the course of investigation, the foregoing facts were proved by credible witnesses, and were sworn and subscribed to before an alderman of the city, on the 15th ult. The documents containing the evidence are now in my possession.

We also ascertained by the above investigation, that others had been led by his conduct to pursue the same adulterous practice, and in order to accomplish their detestable designs made use of the same language insinuated by Bennett, with this difference, that they did not hear me say any thing of the kind, but Bennett was one of the heads of the church, and he had informed them that such was the fact, and they credited his testimony.

The public will perceive the aggravating nature of this case; and will see the propriety of this exposure. Had he only been guilty of adultery, that was sufficient to stamp disgrace upon him because he is a man of better information, and has been held high in the estimation of many. But when it is considered that his mind was so intent upon his cruel, and abominable deeds, and his own reputation not being sufficient to enable him to do it, he must make use of my name in order to effect his purposes, an enlightened public will not be astonished at the course I have pursued.

In order that it may be distinctly understood that he wilfully and knowingly lied, in the above insinuations, I will lay before my readers an affidavit taken before an alderman of the city, after I had charged him with these things:

STATE OF ILLINOIS, }
City of Nauvoo. } Personally appeared before me, Daniel H. Wells, an Alderman of said city of Nauvoo, John C. Bennett, who being duly sworn according to law, deposes and saith: that he never was taught any thing in the least contrary to the strictest principles of the Gospel, or of virtue, or of the laws of God, or man, under any circumstances, or upon any occasion either directly or indirectly, in word or deed, by Joseph Smith; and that he never knew the said Smith to countenance any improper conduct whatever, either in public or private; and that he never did teach to me in private that an illegal illicit intercourse with females was, under any circumstances, justifiable; and that I never knew him so to teach others.

JOHN C. BENNETT.

Sworn to, and subscribed, before me, this 17th day of May, A. D. 1842.

DANIEL H. WELLS,
Alderman.

The following conversation took place in the City Council, and was elicited in consequence of its being reported that the Doctor had stated that I had acted in an indecorous manner, and given countenance to vices practised by the Doctor, and others:

May 19, 1842.
Dr. John C. Bennett, ex-Mayor, was then called upon by the Mayor to state if he knew aught against him; when Mr. Bennett replied: "I know what I am about, and the heads of the Church know what they are about I expect. I have no difficulty with the heads of the church. I publicly avow that any one who has said that I have stated that General Joseph Smith has given me authority to hold illicit intercourse with women is a liar in the face of God, those who have said it are damned liars; they are infernal liars. He never, either in public or private, gave me any such authority or license, and any person who states it is a scoundrel and a liar. I have heard it said that I should become a second Avarad by withdrawing from the church, and that I was at variance with the heads and should use an influence against them because I resigned the office of Mayor; this is false. I have no difficulty with the heads of the church, and I intend to continue with you, and hope the time may come when I may be restored to full confidence, and fellowship, and my former standing in the church; and that my conduct may be such as to warrant my restoration—and should the time ever come that I may have the opportunity to test my faith it will then be known whether I am a traitor or a true man."

Joseph Smith then asked: "Will you please state definitely whether you know any thing against my character either in public or private?"

Gen. Bennett answered: "I do not; in all my intercourse with Gen. Smith, in public and in private, he has been strictly virtuous."

HIRAM KIMBALL, N. B. WHITNEY, BRIGHAM YOUNG, ORSON SPENCER, WILLARD RICHARDS, JOHN TAYLOR,
HEBER C. KIMBALL, JOHN P. GREEN,
W. WOODRUFF, GUST. HILLS,
GEORGE A. SMITH, G. W. HARRIS,
JAMES SLOAN, City Recorder.

May 19th 1842.

"After I had done all in my power to persuade him to amend his conduct, and these facts were fully established, (not only by testimony, but by his own concessions,) he having acknowledged that they were true, and seeing no prospects of any satisfaction from his future life, the hand of fellowship was withdrawn from him as a member of the church, by the officers; but on account of his earnestly requesting that we would not publish him to the world, we concluded not to do so at that time, but would let the matter rest until we saw the effect of what we had already done.

It appears evident, that as soon as he perceived that he could no longer maintain his standing as a member of the church, nor his respectability as a citizen, he came to the conclusion to leave the place; which he has done; and that very abruptly; and had he done so quietly, and not attempted to deceive the people around him, his case would not have excited the indignation of the citizens, so much as his real conduct has done. In order to make his case look plausible, he has reported, "that he had withdrawn from the church because we were not worthy of his society;" thus instead of manifesting a spirit of repentance, he has to the last, proved himself to be unworthy the confidence or regard of any upright person, by lying, to deceive the innocent, and committing adultery in the most abominable and degraded manner.

We are credibly informed that he has consorted with some of our former wicked persons.

ators, the Missourians, and has threatened destruction upon us; but we should naturally suppose, that he would be so much ashamed of himself at the injury he has already done to those who never injured, but befriended him in every possible manner, that he could never dare to lift up his head before an enlightened public, with the design either to misrepresent or persecute; but he that as it may, we neither dread him nor his influence; but this much we believe, that unless he is determined to fill up the measure of his iniquity, and bring sudden destruction upon himself from the hand of the Almighty; he will be silent, and never more attempt to injure those concerning whom he has testified upon oath he knows nothing but that which is good and virtuous.

"Thus I have laid before the Church of Latter Day Saints, and before the public, the character and conduct of a man who has stood high in the estimation of many; but from the foregoing facts it will be seen that he is not entitled to any credit, but rather to be stamped with indignity and disgrace so far as he may be known. What I have stated I am prepared to prove, having all the documents concerning the matter in my possession, but I think that to say further is unnecessary, as the subject is so plain that no one can mistake the true nature of the case.

I remain yours, respectfully,

JOSEPH SMITH.

Nauvoo, June 23, 1842.

The following extracts from letters received by gentlemen in this city from their correspondents in relation to Gen. Bennett, will corroborate with the above statements and testimony:

URBANA, Ill., June 1842.

"As to my knowledge of John C. Bennett, I can safely say that he is unworthy of the confidence of all mankind; in my opinion, he is an infamous rascal, and I am well acquainted with him."

MONTICELLO, Platt Co., Ill., June 3, 1842.

"You inquire of me about John Cook Bennett. . . . That without any creditable way of getting a living, and without any apparent income, he handles more money than any common person.

"That he pretended to have had a commission as Surgeon in the United States army, but had not.

"That he had united with persons unknown, and non-resident in that state, to file money from the unwary, by getting up a plat of a town on a scale of 800 acres, as the capital of Michigan, when it was about to become a state; and thereby procure from thoughtless persons money to locate such a town, and pay in town lots —without any even remote supposable idea of ever locating such a town.

"That he had in like manner attempted to palm himself upon the Legislature of Ohio, by trying to get a charter for a College in that state, but the Legislature detected him, and recorded him on the journals as an impostor, and Mr. Bailhache, editor of the "Ohio State Journal," published it as far as the paper was read."

McCONNELLSVILLE, Morgan Co. O. }
March 2, 1841. }

Dear Sir—By your request I have made inquiries into the history of John Cook Bennett, and am enabled to give you the following facts which may be relied on as correct.

"When a young man his character stood fair, he studied medicine with his uncle, Dr. Samuel P. Hildreth, of Marietta, Washington county, O. It is believed he has a diploma, and also recommendations from some of the principal Physicians of that place; he started out with fair prospects, and married a daughter of Col. Joseph Barker, near Marietta. Bennett and his wife united with the Methodist Church, and he became a local preacher. It was soon manifest that he was a superficial character, always uneasy, and moved from place to place; at different times lived in Barnesville, Maconsvillle, Malta, Wheeling, Va., Colesville, Pennsylvania and Indiana; it is not presumed that less than twenty towns has been his place of residence at different times; he has the vanity to believe he is the smartest man in the nation; and if he cannot at once be placed at the head of the heap, he soon seeks a situation; he is always ready to fall in with whatever is popular; by the use of his recommendations he has been able to push himself into places and situations entirely beyond his abilities; he has been a prominent personage in and about colleges and universities, but has soon vanished; and the next thing his friends hear of him he is off in some other direction; at one time he was a prominent Campbellite preacher.

"During many years his poor, but confiding wife, followed him from place to place, with no suspicion of his unfaithfulness to her; at length, however, he became so bold in his departures, that it was evident to all around that he was a sore offender, and his wife left him under satisfactory evidence of his adulterous connections; nor was this his only fault; he used her bad otherwise. Mrs. Bennett now lives with her father; has two children living, and has buried one or two. Dr. Bennett has three brothers-in-law living in this place, who, if they were disposed, could give all the particulars; but I dislike to urge them; I did apply to one which I thought the most likely, but he seemed reluctant to give it; but referred me to the person who has given me the foregoing; but he not being a connexion, has not been particular in following him in all his peripatations; but is, no doubt correct, so far as given;—it has been Dr. Bennett's wish that his wife should get a bill of divorce, but as yet she has not; nor does my informant know that she contemplates doing so;—in fine, he is an impostor, and unworthy of the confidence of all good men."

Through motives of delicacy, we withhold the names of our informants, and other correspondents; but hold ourselves in readiness, at all times, to substantiate by abundant testimony, all that has been asserted, if required, as the documents are all on hand.

GEORGE MILLER.

NOTICE.

TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN, GREETING.—

Whereas John Cook Bennett, in the organization of the Nauvoo Lodge, under dispensation, palmed himself upon the fraternity as a regular Mason, in good standing; and satisfactory testimony having been produced before said Lodge, that he, said Bennett, was an expelled Mason, we therefore publish, to all the Masonic world, the above facts, that he, the said Bennett, may not again impose himself upon the fraternity of Masons.

All Editors who are friendly to the fraternity of free and accepted ancient York Masons will please insert the above.

GEORGE MILLER.

Master of Nauvoo Lodge,
Under Dispensation.

NOTICE.

It has been suggested, and we are requested by several respectable citizens of this county, to hold a county convention, to conciliate measures and nominate a county ticket for the coming election, and we the citizens of Nauvoo, are not opposed but in favor of this or any other measure, that will promote the principles of equal rights and justice, and that will tend to benefit the inhabitants of the county. Should this be the expression of the county generally, it would be well for the various precincts to appoint delegates immediately for said convention, to meet about the middle of July next. As for parties we are not very tenacious but cannot consistently go for Joseph Duncan.

Thursday the 14th day of July at 10 A. M. has been named, at the court house in Carthage.

Every precinct should send a delegate, and where any is entitled to more than one, let fifty votes be the ratio for each &c.

GENERAL ORDERS.

HEAD QUARTERS. NAUVOO LEGION }
CITY OF NAUVOO, June 24, 1842. }

1st. The several companies of the Legion will form on the usual parade ground on the 4th day of July next, at half past 8 o'clock A. M.

2nd. At nine o'clock the Adjutants will form the lines of their respective regiments and the Colonels take command.

3rd. At half past nine o'clock the Adjutants of cohorts will form the line of their respective Cohorts and the Brigadier Generals take command.

4th. At ten o'clock the Adjutant General will form the line of the Legion, and the ranking Brevet Major General take command.

5th. At half past ten o'clock the Lieut. General will be escorted to the field by the music, the 1st company of the 1st Cohort, and the Invincibles of the 2nd Cohort, and on his arrival at the reviewing station be saluted with a discharge of artillery &c. &c.

6th. At 11 o'clock the General review will commence.

7th. At half past 1 o'clock P. M. the inspection of arms will take place, and be followed by the performance of such maneuvers as may be ordered.

8th. The arms (especially those of the State) will be required to be in the very best order as any neglect on that point can not be overlooked.

9th. The officers, musicians, and privates are expected every man to do his duty.

WILSON LAW,

Brevet Major General.

JOSEPH SMITH, Lieutenant General.

RANGE AND SEVERITY OF THE LATE EARTHQUAKE.—The earthquake which has recently desolated a large portion of St. Domingo, was one of the most severe that has occurred in any part of the world for many years; and perhaps more extensive in the sphere of its operations than any since the earthquake which destroyed Lisbon, in 1755. It appears that on the same day, and very nearly the same hour, the effects of this recent earthquake were felt at various places ranging from Port au Prince to the base of the Rocky Mountains. The greatest explosion from the force of internal pent up fires was felt at Cape Haytien, St. Domingo, on the 7th instant, here they had three successive and violent shocks; and previous to the first of them a shock of the earthquake was felt at Porto Rico, on the morning of the 7th of May, which as far as we have yet learned, was the most easterly point that the effects of it were felt. The internal fires, it seems, then took a north-westerly direction, struggling to escape from their prison house, and broke out at Cape Haytien. It stretched clear across the breadth of St. Domingo and was felt at Port au Prince on the same day and at nearly the same hour. I also traveled on and was felt at Mayaguez at the same time; then to St. Martinville and one or two other places in Louisiana; thence to Van Buren, Arkansas, and clear up to the foot of the Rocky Mountains; where it was also felt on the same day. It thus traveled at least 1500 miles, and perhaps was felt even further. It is a sublime and awful thought; here we have proofs of the existence of a body of internal fires 1500 miles long, and probably as many deep.—N. Y. Herald.

EARTHQUAKE IN GREECE.

Letters from Athens of the 28th ult. state that several violent shocks of an earthquake were felt in various parts of the Peloponnesus; on the 18th, at Sparta, the shocks lasted from 25 to 30 seconds each. The inhabitants ran terrified out of their houses. On the same day, and in the course of the night, four or five other slighter shocks were experienced. Beyond the Eurotas an immense rock fell from Mount Menelos, near the village Drouchas. An old tower, situate in the town of Magoules was thrown to the ground. At Mistra the soil trembled with more violence than at Sparta, and a portion of the Hellenic College and several houses were destroyed. The water of the springs and wells became turbid, and an enormous rock, having detached itself from the summit of old Mount Nistra rolled with terrific noise into the town.

At Calames, the first shock, felt at half past nine o'clock, lasted between 40 and 50 seconds, and there were ten others, from that hour until midnight, at intervals of three quarters of an hour. Most of the houses were damaged, and several in the neighborhood actually gave way. Upwards of 50 dwellings were thrown at Areopolis, and 15 towers crumbled at Etylus. Many persons were buried under the ruins of their houses in the province of Maina. At Androusa several churches fell in. On the 25 ult., at about four o'clock A. M. another shock was felt at Patras, which lasted a minute and a half.

NOTES

DUE the Trustee for labor on the Temple, are left with the Temple Committee for collection. Brethren, remember that your contracts with your God are sacred; the labor is wanted immediately.

W. RICHARDS,

Temple Recorder.

June 25, 1842.

10-11.

P. S. Remember the notes due for property also.

GUARDIAN'S SALE.

IN pursuance of a decree of the Circuit Court of Hancock county made at the May Term thereof A. D. 1842. The subscriber, Guardian of Emma Caroline, & Chauncey G. Robison, infant children and heirs of James Robison deceased, will expose to public sale on the 8th day of August next, in city lots about thirty six acres of land belonging to said wards lying in the county of Hancock, and State of Illinois, being apart of the East half of the West half of Section No. six, township No. six North, of range No. eight West of the fourth principal meridian, said lands will be sold on a credit of six months, sale will take place on the premises near the residence of Daniel H. Wells Esq. between the hours of 9 o'clock A. M. and 6 o'clock P. M. of said day and will be continued between the same hours, from day to day, till said property is all sold.

CHARLOTTE ANN ROBISON,

Guardian.

Nauvoo June 20th 1842.

COMMISSIONERS SALE.

BY order of the Circuit Court of Hancock county will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder on Monday the 8th day of August next the south west quarter of the south west quarter of section number twenty four in township number seven north of the base line of range number six west of the fourth principal meridian situated in the county of Hancock and State of Illinois, said land has an excellent water privilege with a good saw mill with tools and a flowering mill in commencement, a small framed house and various other improvements.

The terms of sale will be twenty five per centum down, the balance payable in six months to be secured by a note with good approved security and a mortgage on the property.

The sale will commence at 10 o'clock A. M.

L. L. WILCOX.

JOEL BRADSHAW.

RIGHT RIGGINS.

Commissioners.

NEW DRUG STORE.

E. B. BATMAN No. 3 Water Street opposite the ferry landing, St. Louis Mo., has just opened a large stock of fresh Drugs, Medicines, Dyestuffs, Paints, Oils, Glassware, &c. which he offers at the lowest cash prices and to which the attention of the city and country trade is respectfully invited.

NOTICE.

A Special meeting of the Stockholders, and friends of the Nauvoo Agricultural and manufacturing Association, will be held at the upper room of J. Smith's Store, on Monday the 27th inst. at 1 o'clock P. M.

Done by order of the board, of Trustees.

Attest: E. ROBINSON Secretary.

NOTICE.

IS hereby given that the partnership heretofore existing under the name of George W. Crouse and Nathaniel Jennings is this day dissolved by mutual consent and all persons indebted to the firm, will call and settle with George W. Crouse without delay, under whose name the business will be continued.

Dated Nauvoo June 11th 1842.

POETRY.

For The Wasp. THE GATHERING OF ZION.

BY E. M. GREENE.

Scattered many a toilsome year,
Pledged in faith to memory dear;
We our gathering still pursue,
And our covenants renew;
Bound by love's unsevered chain,
We all hope to meet again.

Tho' our homes, sunk by decay,
Wicked mobs have torn away;
And our holy, sacred place,
Wickedness has long defaced;
Still on Zion's happy plain,
We all hope to meet again.

Many a time we there did meet;
Many a friend we there did greet:
Now our friends are scattered from
The sacred place they called their home;
Still on Zion's flowery plain
We all hope to meet again.

We'll pass thro' toils for many years,
Till Christ the second time appears;
'When in cold oblivion's shade,'
Proud oppression low is laid;
Then on Zion's peaceful plain
We all hope to meet again.

For the Wasp.

To the Memory of MR. STEPHEN JONES, an old Revolutionary soldier, who died in Quincy,
Illinois.

Thou art gone vet'ran soldier, the tomb has enclosed thee;
Like the full ripened fruit the time was fulfilled;
In honor fulfilled—and thy wearied spirit Sweetly welcomed the hour when the mandate was seal'd.

And grateful we feel that thy last sigh has passed
Amidst thy own people, and the good and humane;

No murderous arm was uplifted o'er thee
To scatter, by peacemeal, thy limbs o'er the plain.

No thongs, were prepared to lash through thy heart strings
And sprinkle this soil with the old soldier's blood—
No—in Illinois yet waves the banner of freedom.
As she still yields a home for the brave and the good.

Here thou didst find an asylum of peace,
When the hand of oppression drove thee from home;

Here, thy grey locks were honored while they held its seat,
And the patriot's tribute yet glows o'er thy tomb.

Friends—citizens! we thank thee in behalf of humanity;
Religion, and Freedom—for the honor thus paid
To our honored departed—whom well we knew worthy
Of respect, while in life—and mem'ry when dead.

The love of his God was his heart's dearest treasure,

His soul was awake to humanity's claim;
And ever most true to the cause of his country,
His bosom e'er glowed with the Patriot's flame.

Part in peace, sacred dust—till the archangel trump

Its most welcome summons shall sound through thy tomb;

And bid thee arise in glory immortal,
To dwell with the blest in their holiest home.

*Two old revolutionary soldiers, met their fate in Missouri under these circumstances; one was literally cut to pieces by an old corn knife, the other was whipped, if not to death nearly so.

SHARP SHOOTING.—'Hallo, stranger, you appear to be travelling.'

'Yes, I always travel when on a journey.'

'I think I have seen you somewhere.'

'Very likely, I have often been there.'

'And pray, what might your name be?'

'It might be Sam Patch; but it isn't.'

'Have you been long in these parts?'

'Never longer than at present—five feet nine.'

'Do you get anything new?'

'Yes, I bought a new whetstone this morning.'

'I thought so; you are the sharpest blade I've seen on this road.'

Latest from Texas.—Advices at New Orleans to the 5th inst. contain Galvaston dates to the 3d. The following items of intelligence are from the Picayune of the 6th:

The Congress of Yucatan was convened on the 17th ult., and granted extraordinary powers to the President, on the 16th, in case of invasion.

The people of Yucatan are determined to continue the war against Mexico at every hazard.

Mr. Lubbock, one of the Santa Fe prisoners who escaped from Mexico, arrived in the San Antonio.

Santa Anna has embodied 35,000 troops, destined for Texas and Yucatan, and purchased two merchant vessels at Vera Cruz, for transports.

The contract of the Mexican government for building two iron war steamers in England, which failed for want of funds, has been renewed, and they are to be completed immediately.

The church has given Santa Anna all property held by them in mort main, amounting, as is estimated, to $15,000,000, to be applied to the prosecution of the war against Texas. He has also made a forced loan of 80,000 doubloons from the priests of Puebla.

General Houston and his cabinet are at Houston. The archives of the government are in Austin, and there, the citizens of that place say, they shall stay.

By many it is thought that the war movements of Gen. Houston are too tardy; yet, from all appearances, he is firmly bent on carrying into execution his designs of invading Mexico.

How the World goes. Nicolas Biddle, who cheated the stockholders of the United States Bank out of near thirty-five millions of dollars, cheated the people who held notes of that bank out of millions more; bought up editors and politicians like cattle in the market, and did more to corrupt the morals of this country than any ten thousand men now living has been released from legal responsibility by a Pennsylvania court.

Amos Kendall, who redeemed the Post Office Department from embarrassment and corruption, compelled every man in its service to do his duty to the country, and refused to pay out moneys to power-contractors, to which he believed they ful had no just claim in law or equity, has been punished by a Washington court in a judgment for eleven thousand dollars although his motives are admitted to have been honest and praiseworthy.—Union Democrat.

"WE WANT A CHANGE."—The following extract of a letter, dated New Orleans, April 23d, 1842, we find in the last Washington Index. Capital times these:

"You will have heard ere this reaches you, of my glorious downfall, like most others engaged in business here. I have been obliged to succumb, after having used every exertion to keep my head up, and am now on the sympathies of the public. I hope, however, to keep a stout heart, and soon be on my legs again. Of the distress here among business men,
no one at a distance can form an idea.
Nearly all are prostrate! The few remaining had better be so too, for they are making nothing, and under heavy expenses."

Within the last seven years, $90,000-000 have gone to England from the United States for iron.

A BLIND PAINTER.

Dr. Piles states that he saw in Italy a blind man, about 50 years of age, full of genious and intelligence, and an excellent draughtsman. He met him in the Giustiniani Palace, modeling in wax a statue of Minerva. This man could, by the touch, discover the forms and proportions of the original. The Duke of Bra-niano, who saw him at work, had some doubts of his being completely blind, and to be certain of it he made the blind man take the picture into a dark cave, but it was a perfect resemblance. It being objected to him that the dukes beard helped him to know him, he offered to take the portrait of one of his daughters, which he drew perfectly like. "I saw," says Dr. Piles, "by this famous blind man, the portrait of the late King of England,
Charles I, and of Pope Urban VII, and in France that of Mrs. Hessulin, perfectly well executed. He found some difficulty in representing the hair, because it was moveable."

HIGHWAY ROBBERY.—The Ohio Statesman gives an account of the robbery of a trunk from the boot of the Cincinnati stage coach, while crossing the bridge out of Columbus, on the 12th inst. As the driver entered the bridge he was detained by a man on horseback, reeling as if drunk. The coach proceeded slowly, until the driver getting impatient, struck the rider's horse and passed on.
When they arrived at Jefferson, the straps of the boot were found cut, and a trunk among the missing. It was found in the morning near the bridge, rifled of its contents, including $117 in gold. The horseman was doubtless an accomplice.
—Morning Chronicle.

WHY DECEIVE THEM?—One hundred and fifty emigrants recently arrived at New Orleans, from Liverpool. They manifest much dissatisfaction with their prospects in this country—are chagrined to find the prospects to wealth held out to them before their emigration, so soon frustrated. Agents, say they, are traversing England and Ireland, representing to the people, that board can be had in this country at one dollar per week, while the laborer receives two dollars per day. Should not these agents be informed that the two dollars per day and roast beef have turned out a mere delusion?

It is said that the Hon. S. L. SOUTH-ARD, President pro tem. of the Senate, has resigned his seat, and Willie P. Man-gum has been elected in his stead.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP. ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus " "
J. Salsbery, Plymouth " "
Har'ow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike " "
L. R. Chiffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Page, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
James Curtis, Horners Town.
W. I. Appleby, Recless Town.
Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Salem.
Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapiet.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirtland.

NEW YORK.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.
L. R. Foster, city of New York.

MEAL, FLOUR, AND PROVISIONS OF EVERY KIND, WANTED ON TITHING.

THE brethren abroad will remember that those who devote the whole of their time to work on the Temple must be fed; they cannot live and work without provisions, and we are growing very scarce; and especially so with regard to MEAL and FLOUR. Those, therefore,
who have the above articles, and intend to consecrate such on their tithing, will please forward them immediately to Nau-
voo. W. RICHARDS, Recorder
for the Temple.

Nauvoo, June 18th 1842. 10-1f.

A COOKING STOVE
IS wanted immediately, on tithing.

DR. J. F. WELD,

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.

Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo &
adjoining country for the liberal patronage
heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent
with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

NOTICE.

THE Burying Ground south east of the city
has been laid out in family burying lots, a number of which will be offered for sale, at public auction, on the 18th inst., at 10 o'clock A.
M., at the office of Gen. Hiram Smith.

Terms one third on the day of sale, one third
in six months from sale, and one third in twelve months from sale, with approved security.

By order of the City Council.

WILSON LAW,

Committee to sell.

Nauvoo, June 4th 1842.

LOOK HERE! LOOK HERE!!

WANTED, at the Nauvoo Foundry, a quantity of Stone coal; any persons wishing to furnish it, will please call on Hiram Kimball, or Geo. W. Robinson, at the Post Office.

Old castings will be taken in exchange for new.
Nauvoo, June 13th 1842. 10-1f.

District Court of the United States, }
within and for the district of Illinois. }
In the matter of the petition of Hiram Kimball, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Hiram Kimball, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that
an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 8th day of July next, at the District Court Room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition
should not be granted.

Dated this 11th day of June, A. D. 1842.

RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States, }
within and for the District of Illinois. }
In the matter of the Petition of Joshua C.
Hobert of Hancock County to be declared a
Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Joshua C. Ho-
bert, of Hancock County has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and
that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 18th day of July next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield
in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have why the prayer of said Petition should
not be granted.

Dated this 18th day of June A. D. 1842.

J. H. SHERMAN Solicitor, for Petitioner.

Attest James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States, }
within and for the District of Illinois. }
In the matter of the Petition of Claiborn Wilson, of Hancock County to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Claiborn Wilson, of Hancock County has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that
an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 18th day of July next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have why the prayer of said Petition
should not be granted.

Dated this 18th day of June A. D. 1842.

J. H. SHERMAN, Solicitor for Petitioner.

Attest James F. Owings Clerk.

THE WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN. BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 12.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, July 2, 1842.

Whole Number 12

THE WASP.

IS EDITED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY
WM. SMITH,
At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.
TERMS—$1.50 invariably in advance.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE.

Burning of the book establishment of Harper and Brothers.

A fire this morning took place in the book store of the Harpers, which is situated at No. 82 on the south side of Cliff street. It was discovered about 4 o'clock in the morning, by one of the firm, who happened to enter the building at that hour, and who found that desks of the office on the first floor had been rifled of their contents, and the bindery, on the fourth loft, set on fire. When discovered, the flames were to far advanced to be arrested, and the greater part of the building with its contents were destroyed.

The stock of Messrs. Harpers was a very large one, consisting of their valuable collection of scientific and literary works, and their printing and binding apparatus. The whole of the fourth and fifth stories, with the presses and founts, were destroyed, and the other portions of the building greatly damaged, either by fire or water. All the reserved numbers of the publications which the Harpers have issued for several years past, are lost. But fortunately, the stereotype plates, the engraved plates, wood cuts, &c. which have been used for those works were preserved in another building. The whole loss will be about $100,000, of which about $40,000 will be insured.

There is no doubt that this fire was the work of an incendiary. One of the windows on the back part of the house was forcibly opened, the mahogany desk of the office broken into, and the money about $15, and loose papers taken out the door of the bindery forced, and the book scattered about the floor. The chisel with which the bolts were separated, was found in the desk. The proprietors of the establishment it is said, have obtained a clue to the discovery of the incendiaries.—N. Y. Eve. Post.

THE INDIAN TRIBES IN ARKANSAS.—The following paragraphs we copy from the Van Buren (Arkansas) Intelligencer, of the 26th ult:

"By credible information we learn that old party excitements are again rising in the Cherokee nation. A convention was lately held in the vicinity of Fort Gibson, composed of the 'old settler' party, whose purpose was an examination into the party's claims, as likewise to discuss the possibility of their security, and to counsel upon the party's position and views. It appears, from our information that the old settler party cannot convene without the interference of others, accompanied by threats. Such interference and threats naturally excite the feelings of the party opposed, and lead not only to angry disputes, but also inflame the passion and desire for strife, so much so that lives are threatened, dangerous quarrels take place, and even lives are taken. We hear that the lives of some of the principal men are threatened, and that they stand in no small danger. Some even dare not start home from the convention; some apprehend assassination in their own homes; while others are forced to flee for safety.

"We have learned that the Cherokee and Choctaws are not represented in the grand council now sitting at the Council ground, consequently, Mr. Phillips, of Missouri, was sadly misinformed for neither Mr. Ross, the main spring, nor any of his countrymen, will be present. We hope, however, that those tribes who are in attendance may do something serviceable to themselves. The Indian agents, chief military officers, and some of our citizens, are in attendance. We shall probably be able to give information of the results of the deliberations next week. We presume it will be found worthy of some attention, if not interesting.

"Wild-cat and Gen. Taylor have had a conference in relation to the former's sojourn upon the Cherokee lands. We have not heard the particulars, but presume Wild-cat has been ordered off."

THE MINES OF MEXICO.

The mines are the grand object which has connected the idea of unbounded wealth and romantic splendor with the name of Mexico.—Gold and silver, by a natural illusion, have always shone in the eyes of mankind with a lustre beyond that of any other metal. Peru, indeed, offers gold in much greater abundance—but Mexico, since the first discovery, has produced more silver than all the rest of the world united. The silver of Mexico is far from rich: it seldom yields more than three or four ounces to the quintal of earth, while that of Saxony yields ten or even fifteen ounces. It is situated, also, very deep in the ground; the quantity, however, is immense, and obtained with comparatively little difficulty. Instead of being, as usual, placed in the heart of dreary and almost inaccessible deserts, the mines occupy the very best situation of the great table plain, are surrounded by brilliant vegetation, and with all the means of comfortable subsistence.—There are 3000 mines in Mexico: most of them, however, are now unproductive, and even ruinous; but adventure has been encouraged to begin and persevere while a particle of their capital remained, by the enormous profits which have, in a few instances, been realized.

The produce of the mines continued increasing until the commencement of the late revolution. From 1750 to 1759 the average appeared to be $16,566,000; from 1771, to 1803, it was $19,638,000, but in the first years of the present century the duties levied implied an amount of $22,000,000; and, allowing for contraband total might probably be $25,000,000. During the dreadful convulsions of the late revolution, the amount was greatly reduced, the water having been allowed in many instances to rush in, the machinery destroyed, and the workmen dispersed.

The annual average produce since the revolution is not more than $12,000,000. The silver coined in the mint of Mexico, which in 1810, amounted to the value of $17,050,000, had fallen in 1825, to $3,651,000.

The mint of Mexico is a prodigious establishment, in which all the processes are carried on with the greatest activity. It is capable of stamping $1,000,000 worth in the hour. So rapid an operation is seldom required, yet there have passed through it probably upward of $2,000,000,000.—Mitchell's World.

The earthquake which was noticed last week as having occurred at Cape Haytien, seems to have been even more destructive, and far more extensive than was at first imagined. It extended over the whole island of Hayti, and most probably over a great portion of the West India Islands. A severe shock of earthquake was felt at the same time in Louisiana,—perhaps the same. The waters in the rivers and lakes were most unaccountably raised to the height of about six feet.

Cape Haytien was completely destroyed. The houses were built mostly of stone, so that their inmates were crushed beneath the ruins. The sea also rose and submerged the town, leaving, so far as heard from, but a solitary person alive.—Mr. Dupy.—Portsmouth Tribune.

ASSASSINATION.—Murder, in its most fiendish forms seems to range through the walks of innocence and refinement, unbanished by law of justice and unsatisfied but with the blood of the fairest and most helpless victims.

Mrs. Mary Hunter, relict of the late Joseph Hunter, near Sparta, Tenn., was shot with a rifle ball through the head by some person unknown. The assassin fired in the dark, on the evening of the 1 of May, through a window.—Portsmouth Tribune.

A New and Important Work.—The first volume of the "Hamilton Papers," compiled from the documents of the illustrious Hamilton, in the possession of his widow, is in press by Messrs. Wiley & Putnam. They are to be edited by Rev. Mr. Hawks, a gentleman qualified by pure taste, and great ability and experience, for the task of editorship. They will furnish a valuable contribution to the Constitutional history of the country.

The Genealogy of Suicide.—Foppery begat a spruce shop boy—a spruce shop boy begat a pair of half boots—a pair of half boots begat a little stick—a little stick and the half boots begat ambition—ambition begat credit—credit begat a shop—a shop begat a horse—a horse begat a chaise—a chaise begat a curricule—a curricule begat expenses—expenses begat a hazzard table—a hazzard table begat losses—losses begat bankruptcy—a bankruptcy begat a jail; a jail begat want and misery; want and misery begat a disregard for life; and a disregard for life begat suicide—SIC TRANSIT GLORIA MUNDI.

Question for the learned.—Why does the hair of a soap-lock and a little pig's tail curl up?

Why are ladies more polite to other men than to their own husbands?

What is there so disagreeable in religion that those who possess it should always wear a wry face and a doleful countenance?

Why do people evince the most friendship to you when they know that you stand in the least want of it?

Why are young people very kind to their rich old invalid uncles?

Why are bad deeds committed by a man in a ragged coat always so disgraceful and abominable?

Why does justice—being blind—always see the gold lace on a culprit's coat?

BETTER THAN NONE.—A poor married woman was telling a staid lady, somewhat on the wrong side of fifty, of some domestic troubles, which she, in great part, attributed to the irregularities of her husband. "Well," said the old maid, "you have brought these troubles on yourself: I told you not to marry him. I was sure he would not make you a good husband." "He is not a good one to be sure, madam," replied the woman, "but he is a power better than none."

Woman.—How valuable are woman's labors as mother, as nurse and teacher! so much so that the two sexes are like the date tree, the male plant produces flowers only, the female fruit. We should remember, too, that Adam was created out of Paradise, and Eve in it, and something earthly therefore, still clings to Adam's race. Even to the heathen mythology, we find that, though the gods often transformed themselves into beasts, the goddesses never did.

"Slaves cannot breathe in England," said the Christian Cowper. Probably not. It would be difficult indeed for slaves to breathe in England, when even FREEMAN have to pay a tax upon the air which they breathe.

Earthquake.—On the 7th of May an earthquake was felt in the city of San Jago de Cuba, by which the cathedral and several other extensive buildings were prostrated. The shocks lasted four minutes.

The Housatonic Railroad company has made an assignment of its effects to the city of Bridgeport. The indebtedness of the concern is about $400,000. The bill-holders will have to suffer badly.

THE SLANDERER.

I hate him for his poisonous breath,
More deadly than the dews of death.
I hate him for his horrid lies—
His peace destroying calumnies.
His words I hate—so arch—so sly—
So void of generosity,
So deep—so empty—yet so full
Of what will social joy annul;
His heart is gall—his tongue is fire;
His soul too base for generous ire.

Another Bank Robbed.—We are informed, says the N. O. Advertiser, that the Branch Bank of Louisiana, at St. Francisville, has been robbed of $80,000, or more. The Cashier it seems allowed persons to overdraw, at least, so goes the story. He has been dismissed, it is said, from the employ of the Branch.

The notes of the Farmers' of Bank Amsterdam (red-back) are no longer re-deemed at their agency in Albany—It

The Lowell Courier says, to supply the Middlesex mills one year with wool, it requires the fleeces of 374,000 sheep.

THE WASP.

SATURDAY, JULY 2, 1842.

We are authorized to announce the name of James D. Blas as the people's Independent Democratic Republican candidate for Representative of Hancock county, in the next Legislature.

July 2, 1842.

It will be seen that the Phrenological chart of Gen. Joseph Smith, is given in this week's Wasp. Others, of the heads of the church, will appear hereafter.

MORMONISM AMONGST US.—By reference to an advertisement in another column, it will be seen that, Mr. Samuel C. Brown, will lecture at Washington Hall to-night and to-morrow night in favor of the Mormon creed. This will be the first we believe that Baltimore has heard of Mormonism from a Mormon minister. No doubt curiosity will secure Mr. B. a large audience from among our citizens. By the way we think this Mr. Brown, is the same Mr. Brown who left Winchester, Va., a few years ago (then a very strict member of the society of Friends) and went to the west where he was converted to Mormonism, humbugged out of a small fortune by Joe Smith and other very good saints and prophets, and then sent back to preach the great doctrine of Morimon Revelation to the poor, deluded Christians in the Old Dominion. The young gentleman was a school-mate of ours, and we confess we were somewhat astonished when we learned that he had become a latter day saint. If we are wrong in our suspicions that the Mr. Brown now amongst us is our old acquaintance from Virginia he will please correct us.—BALTIMORE DAILY WHIG.

We are glad to learn that the citizens of Baltimore, have a chance to hear the fulness of the everlasting gospel: we have yet to learn that any person was ever too good to be saved; or that the truth has ever hurt honest men, who embrace it for the love of it. Let the Baltimoreans seek early, for the pearl of great price.

NEW PROPHET.—The Alton Telegraph and Democratic Review, very fogmatically says that Judge Ford of Wisconsin, is the Mormon candidate for Governor. This is news. The Mormons have neither said, printed or published any such thing word or wisdom, and we have but one clue to find out how the editor came in possession of the information: and that is, instead of lying, he has turned prophet for Joseph Duncan! The way he spues out matter for the lean party, is a caution to suckers; in fact there is one hotting prophet in the city who is against the Mormons, or for Duncan, from one column of the paper to another. Duncan ought to feed him on parched corn and alum curd, lest he run out; or, if this is not advisable, he may be greased with rattle-snake's oil, to stretch his hide, so that he may not burst his boiler.

We neglected to state, last week, that C. A. Warren, Esq. the Agent of Lieutenant General Smith, in this city, was consulted in regard to the nomination of Thomas Ford for Governor and that the nomination was not decided upon until he had given his consent to the measure. This fact will furnish additional, and undeniable proof, that Mr. Ford is the Mormon candidate.—SANGAMO JOURNAL.

How cunning! But as to C. A. Warren Esq's. being an agent of Gen. Smith, or consulting him about the nomination of Thomas Ford for Governor, there is nothing of it. It is not as near the truth as the foot of a ram's horn is to the taste of a cucumber.

The Wayne (N. Y.) Sentinel of June 19, says:

"Snow two inches in depth appeared on Onondaga Hill on Saturday morning last."

Cold weather there!

VOTERS.

Every white male citizen of good moral character, who has resided in this state six months, (say from the first of February last,) will be a legal voter—no odds from whence he came.

NOTICE.

Laura Ann Damon wishes to learn, if possible, what has become of her husband, MARQUIS F. DAMON. He was last heard of in Springfield, Ill., in 1840.

Editors who will give the above an insertion, whereby any information concerning the said Marquis F. Damon may be conveyed to her at Nauvoo, will confer a great favor.

RAIN.

We had an uncommon supply of rain, from showers on Wednesday afternoon and night. Vegetation flourishes finely.

For the Wasp.

TO THE CITIZENS OF HANCOCK CO.

As a people, the church of Jesus Christ of latter-day Saints are found "more sinners against, than sinning."—In political affairs we are ever ready to yield to our fellow citizens of the county, equal participation in the selection of candidates for office—we have been disappointed in our hopes of being met with the same disposition on the part of some of the old citizens of the county—they indeed seem to manifest a spirit of intolerance and exclusion, incompatible with the liberal doctrines of true republicanism. At the late Anti-Mormon convention, a complete set of candidates, pledged to a man to receive no support from, and to field no quarters to, Mormons, are commended to all the citizens of this county for their sagacity! As a portion of said citizens of Hancock we embrace the occasion to decline this ticket for the want of reciprocity in its terms, and honesty and intelligence in the character of some of its candidates.

If the old citizens of the county are still desirous of equal participations with us in the choice of candidates, we are ready to co-operate with them—If independent gentlemen will announce themselves, and possess the requisite qualities, capacity and integrity, they will receive the united support of our people in the county—The time for holding a convention seems to have already gone by—there is time enough for the friends of justice and fair play to elect a ticket, to be announced in the independent manner we have suggested. Let the gentlemen who have the courage to oppose the spirit of dictation which governed the Anti-Mormon convention candidates, show themselves, and we will exercise enough, on the terms proposed in this article, to ensure complete success.

JOSEPH SMITH.

For the Wasp.

MR. EDITOR:—Sir I take the liberty to inform you that a large number of persons in different places have manifested a desire to know the Phrenological development of Joseph Smith's head—I have examined the Prophet's head, and he is perfectly willing to have the Chart published—You will please publish in your paper such portions of it as I have marked showing the development of his much talked of brain, and let the public judge for themselves whether Phrenology proves the reports against him true or false—Time will prove all things, and a word to the wise is sufficient.

Yours Respectfully

A. CRANE.

A PHRENOLOGICAL CHART.

BY A. CRANE, M. D.,

PROFESSOR OF PHRENOLOGY.

PROFESSOR OF PHRENOLOGY.

AMATIVENESS—11, L extreme susceptibility; passionately fond of the company of the other sex.

PHILOPROGENITIVENESS—9 L strong parental affection, great solicitude for their happiness.

INHABITIVENESS—5 F attached to place of long residence; no desire to change residence.

ADHESIVENESS—8 F solicitous for the happiness of friends, and ardent attachments to the other sex.

COMBATIVENESS—8 L indomitable perseverance; great courage; force; ability to overpower.

DESTRUCTIVENESS—6 M ability to control the passions; and is not disposed to extreme measures.

SECRETIVENESS—10 L great propensity and ability to conceal feelings, plans, &c.

ACQUISITIVENESS—9 L strong love of riches; desire to make, and save money.

ALIMENTIVENESS—9 L strong relish for food; keen and severe appetite.

VITATIVENESS—4 M or S indifference to life; views the approach of death without fear.

FEELINGS.

CAUTIOUSNESS—7 F provision against prospective dangers and ills, without hesitation or irresolution.

APPROBATIVENESS—10 L ambition for distinction; sense of character; sensibility to reproach; fear of scandal.

SELF-ESTEEM—10 L high-mindedness, independence, self-confidence, dignity; aspiration for greatness.

CONCENTRATIVENESS—7 F can dwell on a subject without fatigue, and control the imagination.

SENTIMENTS.

BENEVOLENCE—10 L kindness, goodness, tenderness, sympathy.

VENERATION—6 F religion without great awe or enthusiasm; reasonable deference to superior.

FIRMNESS—10 L Stability and decision of character and purpose.

CONSCIENTIOUSNESS—8 L high regard for duty, integrity, moral principle, justice, obligation, truth, &c.

HOPES—10 L cheerfulness; sanguine expectations of success and enjoyment.

MARVELOUSNESS—10 L wonder; credulity, belief in the supernatural.

IMITATION—5 M inferior imitative powers; failure to copy, describe, relate stories, &c.

PREPOSESSION—8 L or F attached to certain notions; not disposed to change them, &c.

IDEALITY—9 L lively imagination; fancy taste; love of poetry, elegance, eloquence, excellence, &c.

PERCEPTIVES.

AFIRMATION—8 F or M desirous to know what others are doing; ready to counsel and give hints of a fault or duty, &c.

CONSTRUCTIVENESS—7 F respectable ingenuity without uncommon skill, tact, or facility in making, &c.

TUNE—5 F or M love of music, without quickness to catch or learn tunes by the ear.

TIME—11 V L or L distinct impressions as to the time when, how long, &c.

LOCALITY—11 V L or L great memory of places and position.

EVENTUALITY—11 V L extraordinary recollection of minute circumstances.

INDIVIDUALITY—10 L great desire to see; power of observation.

FORM—10 F cognizance, and distinct recollection of shapes; countenances, &c.

SIZE—11 V L, L or F ability to judge of proportionate size, &c.

WEIGHT—9 V L, L or F knowledge of gravitation, momentum, etc.

COLOUR—9 F or M moderate skill in judging of colours, comparing and arranging them.

LANGUAGE—6 F freedom of expression, without fluency or verbosity; no great loquacity.

ORDER—9 L love of arrangement; every thing in its particular place.

NUMBER—7 respectable aptness in arithmetical calculations, without extraordinary talent.

REFLECTIVES.

MIRTHFULNESS—10 L wit, fun, mirth; perceptiveness.

CAUSALITY—9 L ability to think and reason clearly, and perceive the relations of cause and effect.

COMPARISON—11 V L extraordinary critical acumen; great power of analysis.

THERE ARE FOUR TEMPERAMENTS.

THE LYMPHATIC, or Phlegmatic, in which the secreting glands are the most active portion of the system, produces both corporeal and mental languor, dullness and inactivity.

THE SANGUINE, in which the arterial portion of the system is most active, gives strong feelings and passions, and more ardor, zeal, and activity, than of strength or power.

THE BILIOUS, in which the muscular portion predominates in activity, produces strength, power, and endurance of body, with great force and energy of mind and character.

THE NERVOUS, in which the brain and nervous system are most active, gives the highest degree of activity, with clearness of perception and of thought, but less endurance. Sharp and prominent organs denote activity; smooth and broad ones, intensity and strength.

EXPLANATION OF THE CHART.

The written figures in the margin opposite the organs, and ranging in a scale from 1 to 12, indicate the various degrees in which the respective organs are developed in the head of the individual examined: thus, 1, 2, indicate that the organ is very small, or almost wholly wanting; 3, 4, means small, or feeble, and inactive; 5, 6, MODERATE, or active only in a subordinate degree; 7, 8, FULL or fair, and a little above par; 9, 10, LARGE; or quite energetic, and having a marked influence upon the character; 11, 12, mean VERY LARGE, or giving a controlling influence, and extreme liability to perversion. The SIZE OF THE BRAIN, COMBINATIONS OF THE FACULTIES, and TEMPERAMENT OF the individual, may be indicated in the same manner as the degrees of the faculties or organs.

The initials V L denote very large; L, large; F, full; M, moderate; S, small; V S, very small.

COMBINATION OF THE FACULTIES.

The fore part of the head is called the frontal portion; and the back, the occipital; the base, or lower part is denominated the basilar region; and the upper portion, the coronal.

Phrenology has ascertained what portion of the brain the mind employs in the exercise of each mental function; and hence, by determining how much larger one part of the brain is than another, it can tell how much an individual exercises certain classes of mental functions more than he does others. The combinations of the organs have, also, great influence upon the mental manifestations. The rule is, that the larger organs control the smaller.

When the occipital portion is larger than the frontal, there will be more of feeling than reason; of passion than intellect; of brutality than humanity; of propelling than directing power; of action than judgment. But when the frontal region is much larger than the occipital, as in the heads of Melancthon, Franklin, Washington, and Clinton, the individual will combine pure morality with great depth and power of intellect; a strong mind with virtuous feelings; and sound, practical sense, with nobleness of conduct.

One having large or very large intellectual organs, combined with moderate or small organs of the propensities, will possess great mental power with a want of impetus; high intellectual and moral qualities, with inefficiency; but with the propensities well developed, and the intellectual faculties very large, will combine great strength of mind with great energy of character, and both directed by the human sentiments, and applied to moral and intellectual objects: Washington, Franklin, Clinton, and La Fayette.

One having very large perceptive faculties, combined with only full reasoning organs, will possess a practical matter-of-fact talent, and an uncommon share of general information; yet lack depth of mind and strength of intellect, and a talent for adapting means to ends.

One having the perceptive organs full or large, with very large reflective faculties, will have a universal talent, and ability both to plan and execute; to attend to general principles and to details; and, with full or large propensities, be capable of employing extraordinary talents to the best advantage, and of rising to eminence: Franklin, Washington, Clinton, Bonaparte.

One having very large reasoning organs, with only moderate or full perceptive faculties, will possess great depth and originality of mind, and profound philosophical acumen; but will think and reason more than observe.

One in whom the basilar region greatly predominates over the coronal, will possess great force of character, and a ready talent for business; but strong passions applied to selfish purposes, with little morality and elevation of character and feeling.

An evenness of the head indicates uniformity of character; and unevenness eccentricities and strong traits.

WOMAN.—Amid the various scenes of this fitful existence, the most delightful one is that which

In the morning of life man looks around for one being in whose faithful and unchanging bosom he may repose his future confidence, and glide onward with, supporting and supported, through all attacks of the world, disease and pain. Our nature is never seen to a more beautiful advantage than when enthralled by such a care; it shows man in his native and ordained dignity of character, and woman in all those blandishments of an ingenious and uncorrupted soil, accompanying and delighting her lord in his summer hours of joy, and sunshine, nor shrinking from him the 'elemental war' and earth's assaults; she then shows 'the tender fierceness of the dove,' and the placid, helpless being of peace is nerved beyond her nature, and inspired by circumstance, with the feeling of Apollo's priestess. In women, confessedly, nature asserts her greater nobility and power; the disposition of men may admit of greater constancy of decision, but it is to the female character alone to embody itself with a feeling almost supernatural—to spurn and rise above all circumstance in the decision—to attempt every thing, and evince, by the daring, the beauty, and the valuation of such effort.

THE RUSSIAN CLERGY.—The Russians themselves allow that their clergy are deplorably ignorant, and in many cases coarse and vicious. This is pretty well borne out by the fact, that they are never admitted into society, unless their presence is requested at some religious ceremony or festival. The anecdote related to Mr. Venables, by a Russian gentleman, will give a good idea of the degradation to which they reduce themselves.

"Passing one day," says that gentleman, "near a large group of peasants, who were assembled in the middle of a village, I asked them what was going forward."

"We are only putting the father (as they call the priest) into the cellar."

"Into a cellar," I replied; "what are you doing that for?"

"O," said they, "he is a sad drunkard, and has been in a state of intoxication all the week; so we always take care every Saturday to place him in a safe place that he may be able to officiate at the church next day, and on Monday he is at liberty to drink again."

"I could not help applauding," says Mr. V., "this very sensible argument, which was related to me with all the gravity in the world."

Such conduct, in the eyes of a Russian gentleman, is only a failing—Notes of a Half Pay in search of Health.

VALUE OF A GOOD TRADE.—A conjuror and a tailor once happened to converse together:

"Alas," cries the tailor, "what an unhappy poor creature am I! If the people should ever take it into their heads to live without clothes, I am undone; I have no other trade to have recourse to."

"Indeed, friend, I pity you sincerely," replied the conjuror; "but, thank Heaven, things are not quite so bad with me, for if one trick should fail, I have a hundred tricks for them yet. However, if at any time you are reduced to beggary, apply to me and I will relieve you."

A famine overspread the land: the tailor made a shift to live, because his customers could not do without clothes; but the poor conjuror, with his hundred tricks, could find none that had money to throw away. It was in vain that he promised to eat fire or to vomit pins; no single creature would relieve him, till he was at last obliged to beg from the very tailor whose calling he had formerly despised.

Monday, June 6.

In Senate, the day was spent upon the appropriation bill. In the House, [Mr. CARY presented the memorial of James C. Patton, a highly respectable citizen of Petersburg, (Va.) praying Congress to assist him in constructing two machines invented by him, one for passing through the air with immense velocity, by which he proposes to reach London or Liverpool from this country in sixty hours; the other machine is so constructed as to generate enough air for respiration, and with which, he thinks, he can pass through water at any depth it will allow, and under ships or vessels of any size, and with such apparatus as he is in possession of, explode or blow up, in 6 or 8 hours, fifteen or twenty ships of the line. Mr. Patton estimates the expense of constructing these machines at $50,000 each.] Referred to committee on Naval Affairs. The house then spent some time in committee of the whole having under consideration amendments to the bill making appropriations for the support of the army and military academy, when the committee rose and reported the bill and amendments to the House. Postponed till to-morrow. The House in committee of the whole, also considered and reported some other bills of no general interest.

URUGUAY. The Madisonian of the 5th instant publishes an official correspondence communicated to the government by Commodore Morris commanding the United States squadron on the Brazil station. The letters relate to an outrage on an American citizen by certain functionaries of the government of Uruguay, and show the means adopted by Com. Morris and the United States consul at Montevideo to obtain prompt redress.

It appears that the individual in question claiming the protection of the American government is a man of color, named George Johnson. He is said to be about 33 years of age, of very decent appearance, and a native of the State of Delaware. He was impressed at San Salvador, and on attempting to escape was subjected to punishment. It appears also that his property was taken from him. A statement of the facts of the case having been made to Com. Morris by the American consul to whom Johnson made complaint, measures were immediately taken to bring the affair before the government of Uruguay. This was done so efficiently that a satisfactory compensation estimated by the sufferer himself was promptly awarded. The government of Uruguay, acting thus honorably in the matter, expressed the desire to preserve the most friendly relations with the United States, not only from the advantages of commercial intercourse, but also from similarity of political institutions, and from a recollection of the early recognition of that country's independence by the United States.

The prompt proceedings of Commodore Morris and our consul, Mr. Hamilton, anticipated the instructions of our government at home in reference to this case. The incident itself, and the successful termination to which the difficulty arising out of it has been brought, may afford a suitable illustration of the important uses which an efficient navy is calculated to perform. We would not intimate that the government of Uruguay, which has exhibited so fair a specimen of justice and friendly feeling would have done otherwise if no naval force had been at hand to back the application of the injured party in the affair—but it is very certain that the presence of Commodore Morris on the coast, with his armed ships, constituted an important item in the negotiation—Baltimore American.

From the Natchez Courier.

ATROCIOUS MURDER AND OUTRAGES.—A manuscript was left in our office yesterday morning, from which we condense the following statement. The passengers on board the steamboat Sunflower, which stopped at Mr. E. P. King's wood-yard were informed that some horrid murder had been committed in that vicinity, and that the citizens were in pursuit of the murderers.

After wooding, they had proceeded but a short distance when they perceived a crowd upon the bank which they rightfully concluded were the pursuers. They stopped, and it appeared that a negro named Joseph, belonging to Mr. Voorhees, on Bayou de Glaize, had been persuaded to run off and join him by a negro runaway from New Orleans, named Enoch. They murdered a Mr. Harrington, and took with them into the woods his wife and a young lady. They called Mr. Harrington out of his house, he unsuspectingly went, a pistol and a gun was presented at him. He was guarded into the house, when the negroes laid their weapons on the bed, and declared their purpose to be to murder him, and abduct the females.

Harrington seized a pistol, aimed it at the breast of Enoch, exploded the cap without discharging the load. Joseph aimed the rifle at Harrington, the young lady clung to Harrington, the rifle went off, killing him and wounding her. His body was thrown into a lake, and the females carried off. The negroes had with them a mulatress named Margaret whose entreaties saved the lives of the poor women, who were inhumanly outraged. They then killed a Mr. Todd and carried off his wife and child.—They also killed another person, name unknown.

The citizens caught Joseph on Sunday, and the girl Margaret. Enoch escaped, though supposed to be wounded by some one or more of the balls fired at him.—Joseph confessed and they determined to burn him alive. He was chained to a tree, the faggots piled around, and in that situation being questioned by Mr. F. Routh, he declared as before that he had no other accomplice than Enoch, and that Enoch made him kill the men who were murdered. His cries were terrific when the fire reached him, and by superhuman exertions, he wrested the staple which confined the chain to the tree. He was then shot, and his body cast back into the fire. The girl is in jail in Vidalia. They are still pursuing the other villain.

Since writing the above, we learn from a gentleman of that neighborhood, that only one female was at, and carried away from Harrington's, his youngest daughter. The statement is substantially correct in other particulars.

Great Fire in Norfolk.—We learn from the Norfolk Beacon, that an alarming fire broke out at about 9 o'clock, on Thursday morning, in an unoccupied house, in Little Water street, next door to the corner of Wood's side's Lane.—That block extending to Broad Water streets, was destroyed—the fire crossed to the opposite of Wood side's Lane, which communicated to the stables of Mr. Wm. S. Locoste, which, with his dwelling, and the block of buildings in Warren's Row, rear of the Exchange, was burnt. Number of houses burnt, 22, all of brick except the one in which the fire originated, and the house adjoining—estimated loss, from 20 to 25,000 dollars.

insurance from fifteen to sixteen thousand dollars.

The lumber yards of Messrs. Ferguson & Mithado, and Mr. Tunis, were in immediate danger during the whole period of the fire, from the burning cinders of the houses on fire. Resolution fire company, from Portsmouth, arrived early at the scene of conflagration; they took position at the corner of Holt's lane, and were principally instrumental in saving the block of buildings east of Mr. T. Eccles' house. A detachment of seamen and marines, with a number of officers of the U. S. ship Pennsylvania, under command of Capt. Gardener, were also there, working manfully at the engines, and guarding the property of the inhabitants, which was, strewn along the streets.

DESTRUCTION OF ONE FIFTH OF THE CITY OF HAMBURG BY FIRE.

The city of Hamburg, the great commercial emporium of Germany, is a heap of ruins. Her merchants were rejoicing at the prospect held out to them by the promised improvements in our commercial tariff; now they are mourning over their richly stored warehouses in ashes, their houses devoured by the flames, and their prospects of increased prosperity scattered to the four winds of heaven.

The fire, which broke out on Wednesday night, the 14th inst. and which there is every reason to believe, was the work of an incendiary, extended to fifty two streets, most of which were reduced to ashes. On a rough calculation, the loss of property was from three to four millions sterling, but it is believed that the total loss will be double that amount. No person can tell how many lives were lost but a great number of persons must have perished. The canals through the city were dry, so that no water could be found. The fire raged from Wednesday night till Saturday morning.

On the latter day, at nine o'clock, the Danish, Hanoverian, and Prussian troops entered the town, and being well supplied with gunpowder, commenced blowing up the houses to arrest the progress of the flames. This was completely effected by Sunday morning. The Senate ordered every person to leave town and nothing could exceed the heart-rending spectacle of thousands of poor people frantic with their losses, and without the means of procuring food or shelter.

The destruction of Hamburg is one of those calamities which will be felt in every part of the commercial world.—Great as may be the credit of the Senate and people of Hamburg with foreign states, a century will elapse before the city can be replaced in all the prosperity destroyed by this conflagration. In the midst of the confusion an incident occurred characteristic of the government and the people. A public notice was every where put up, stating that the vault under the bank, containing the gold and silver bars, were fire proof, and that the bank books were all removed in perfect safety.

The Hamburg Neue Zeitung of the 10th inst. thus sums up the results of the sad catastrophe:—

"Sixty streets, containing from 1500 to 2000 houses, lie smouldering on the ground, and form a fearful but picturesque ruin. Two splendid churches, with steeples exceeding 400 feet in height, another church with its tower, the Rath Haus, where the Senate hold their sittings, the old Exchange, the repository of archives, the building of the Patriotic Society, are all destroyed. Reichspost Amt, nearly all the booksellers, the offices of two newspapers, (the Borsenallee, and the Correspondent,) nearly all the great hotels and inns, (the Old London, the Belvidere, Hotel de Ruisse, St. Petersburg, Street's Hotel, the Crown Prince, the Wild Man, the Bramer Antheus, the Black Elephant,) the principle magazines des modes and repositories of fashion, and nearly all the chief apothecaries, are destroyed. The following are safe:—The cellar where the bullion is deposited at the bank, the Catharinenstrasse der Wandralune, du Reichenstrasse, &c."

The Dead Sea.—It has been recently ascertained by two British royal engineers, who have been engaged in triangulating the country between the Mediterranean and the Dead Sea, that the latter is 1,337 feet below the level of the former. The engineers proceeded from level to level by two different routes, and the results of each differed by merely an insignificant fraction. By the same process it was ascertained that the Lake Gennesaret was eighty-four feet below the level of the Mediterranean. Calculating the valley of the Jordan from the lake to the Dead Sea to be about seventy miles, the average depression of the soil will be equal to eighteen feet per mile, which accounts for the rapidity with which this stream, so celebrated in sacred history, flows.

An Ordinance repealing all Ordinances, Laws, and Resolutions, relative to the changing of the Names of Streets.

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, that all Ordinances, Laws, and Resolutions, that have been passed by the City Council, changing the Names of Streets, be, and the same are hereby repealed.

Sec. 2. That the Names of all Streets in the City of Nauvoo, that were named at the time that the City Plat was drawn out: and as the Plat stands recorded in the Recorder's office, retain their original names.

Sec. 3. That those Streets that have been named since the Plat was recorded, and have not had their Names changed, also retain the Names that were first given to them.

Passed June 22d 1842.

JOSEPH SMITH, Mayor.

JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

YEAST.—Boil one pound of good flour, a quarter of a pound of brown sugar, and a little salt, in two gallons of water for an hour; let it afterwards stand until it becomes milk warm, bottle and cork it close. It will be fit for use in twenty-four hours. One pint of this will make eighteen pounds of bread.

"Jube, did you see that fat lady fall in the mud yesterday?"

"Yes, sir."

"What did you think?"

"I thought she went down like a star in the midst of the ocean."

DIED.—In this city, on the 29th day of March 1842, William Francis, infant son of Moses and Nancy Tracy, of the dropsy on the brain.

—In this city, on the 27th of June, 1842, Wm. Moroni, son of John and Cynthia Ann Eldridge, aged 16 months and 17 days.

MEDICAL NOTICE.

DR. W. B. BRINK.

Respectfully tenders his professional services to the citizens of Nauvoo, and its vicinity, as a botanic practitioner, having adopted the botanic practice from a positive conviction of the truth of its doctrines, and the unrivaled success which attends the practice; and hopes to give general satisfaction and prove the superior efficacy of the botanic treatment to those who may place themselves under his care; also a number of valuable preparations of his own compounding; such as anti-bilious pills peculiarly serviceable in dyspepsia, bilious fever, &c; restorative bitters, pulmonary balsam, cough syrup, rheumatic liniment, neutralizing cordial; this is one of the most valuable preparations known for cholera morbus, cholera infantum, or summer complaints of children, fever, ague and cancers, will be treated upon the principle of no cure no pay and those afflicted with cancers will do well to call and try a remedy which has never failed; and those who are not able to pay will be cured without charge.

Dr. B. is consulted in the most intricate and protracted cases of secret disease that require practical experience to ensure success; every species and form of the disease must yield to his treatment which is in all cases mild and soft, requiring no interruption from business or change of diet, and will treat the disease upon the principle of no cure no pay; office at the store of W. Allen, formerly occupied by Mr. E. D. Wooley.

W. B. BRINK, M. D.
Nauvoo, July 2nd 1842.

"Into a cellar!" I replied; "what are you doing that for?"

"O," said they, "he is a sad drunkard, and has been in a state of intoxication all the week; so we always take care every Saturday to place him in a safe place that he may be able to officiate at the church next day, and on Monday he is at liberty to drink again."

"I could not help applauding," says Mr. V., "this very sensible argument, which was related to me with all the gravity in the world."

Such conduct, in the eyes of a Russian gentleman, is only a failing—Notes of a Half Pay in search of Health.

VALUE OF A GOOD TRADE.—A conjuror and a tailor once happened to converse together:

"Alas!" cries the tailor, "what an unhappy poor creature am I! If the people should ever take it into their heads to live without clothes, I am undone; I have no other trade to have recourse to."

"Indeed, friend, I pity you sincerely," replied the conjuror; "but, thank Heaven, things are not quite so bad with me, for if one trick should fail, I have a hundred tricks for them yet. However, if at any time you are reduced to beggary, apply to me and I will relieve you."

A famine overspread the land: the tailor made a shift to live, because his customers could not do without clothes; but the poor conjuror, with his hundred tricks, could find none that had money to throw away. It was in vain that he promised to eat fire or to vomit pins; no single creature would relieve him, till he was at last obliged to beg from the very tailor whose calling he had formerly despised.

Monday, June 6.

In Senate, the day was spent upon the appropriation bill. In the House, [Mr. Carr presented the memorial of James C. Patton, a highly respectable citizen of Petersburg, (Va.) praying Congress to assist him in constructing two machines invented by him, one for passing through the air with immense velocity, by which he proposes to reach London or Liverpool from this country in six hours; the other machine is so constructed as to generate enough air for respiration, and with which, he thinks, he can pass through water at any depth it will allow, and under ships or vessels of any size, and with such apparatus as he is in possession of, explode or blow up, in 6 or 8 hours, fifteen or twenty ships of the line. Mr. Patton estimates the expense of constructing these machines at $50,000 each.] Referred to committee on Naval Affairs. The house then spent some time in committee of the whole having under consideration amendments to the bill making appropriations for the support of the army and military academy, when the committee rose and reported the bill and amendments to the House. Postponed till to-morrow. The House in committee of the whole, also considered and reported some other bills of no general interest.

URUGUAY. The Madisonian of the 5th instant publishes an official correspondence communicated to the government by Commodore Morris commanding the United States squadron on the Brazil station. The letters relate to an outrage on an American citizen by certain functionaries of the government of Uruguay, and show the means adopted by Com. Morris and the United States consul at Montevideo to obtain prompt redress.

It appears that the individual in question claiming the protection of the American government is a man of color named George Johnson. He is said to be about 33 years of age, of very decent appearance, and a native of the State of Delaware. He was impressed at San Salvador, and on attempting to escape was subjected to punishment. It appears also that his property was taken from him. A statement of the facts of the case having been made to Com. Morris by the American consul to whom Johnson made complaint, measures were immediately taken to bring the affair before the government of Uruguay. This was done so efficiently that a satisfactory compensation estimated by the sufferer himself was promptly awarded. The government of Uruguay, acting thus honorably in the matter, expressed the desire to preserve the most friendly relations with the United States, not only from the advantages of commercial intercourse, but also from similarity of political institutions, and from a recollection of the early recognition of that country's independence by the United States.

The prompt proceedings of Commodore Morris and our consul, Mr. Hamilton, anticipated the instructions of our government at home in reference to this case. The incident itself, and the successful termination to which the difficulty arising out of it has been brought, may afford a suitable illustration of the important uses which an efficient navy is calculated to perform. We would not intimate that the government of Uruguay, which has exhibited so fair a specimen of justice and friendly feeling would have done otherwise if no naval force had been at hand to back the application of the injured party in the affair—but it is very certain that the presence of Commodore Morris on the coast, with his armed ships, constituted an important item in the negotiation—Baltimore American.

From the Natchez Courier.

ATROCIOUS MURDER AND OUTRAGES.—A manuscript was left in our office yesterday morning, from which we condense the following statement. The passengers on board the steamboat Sunflower, which stopped at Mr. E. P. King's wood-yard were informed that some horrid murder had been committed in that vicinity, and that the citizens were in pursuit of the murderers.

After wooding, they had proceeded but a short distance when they perceived a crowd upon the bank which they rightly concluded were the pursuers. They stopped, and it appeared that a negro named Joseph, belonging to Mr. Voorhees, on Bayou de Glaize, had been persuaded to run off and join him by a negro runaway from New Orleans, named Enoch. They murdered a Mr. Harrington, and took with them into the woods his wife and a young lady. They called Mr. Harrington out of his house, he unsuspectingly went, a pistol and a gun was presented at him. He was guarded into the house, when the negroes laid their weapons on the bed, and declared their purpose to be to murder him, and abduct the females.

Harrington seized a pistol, aimed it at the breast of Enoch, exploded the cap without discharging the load. Joseph aimed the rifle at Harrington, the young lady clung to Harrington, the rifle went off, killing him and wounding her. His body was thrown into a lake, and the females carried off. The negroes had with them a mulatress named Margaret whose entreaties saved the lives of the poor women, who were inhumanly outraged. They then killed a Mr. Todd and carried off his wife and child. They also killed another person, name unknown.

The citizens caught Joseph on Sunday, and the girl Margaret. Enoch escaped, though supposed to be wounded by some one or more of the balls fired at him. Joseph confessed and they determined to turn him alive. He was chained to a tree, the faggots piled around, and in that situation being questioned by Mr. F. Kouth, he declared as before that he had no other accomplice than Enoch, and that Enoch made him kill the men who were murdered. His cries were terrific when the fire reached him, and by superhuman exertions, he wrested the staple which confined the chain to the tree. He was then shot, and his body cast back into the fire. The girl is in jail in Vidalia. They are still pursuing the other villain.

Since writing the above, we learn from a gentleman of that neighborhood, that only one female was at, and carried away from Harrington's, his youngest daughter. The statement is substantially correct in other particulars.

Great Fire in Norfolk.—We learn from the Norfolk Beacon, that an alarming fire broke out at about 8 o'clock, on Thursday morning, in an unoccupied house, in Little Water street, next door to the corner of Wood's side's Lane. That block extending to Broad Water streets, was destroyed—the fire crossed to the opposite of Wood side's Lane, which communicated to the stables of Mr. Wm. S. Locoste, which, with his dwelling, and the block of buildings in Warren's Row, rear of the Exchange, was burnt. Number of houses burnt, 22, all of brick except the one in which the fire originated, and the house adjoining—estimated loss, from 20 to 25,000 dollars.

Insurance from fifteen to sixteen thousand dollars.

The lumber yards of Messrs. Ferguson & Milhado, and Mr. Tunis, were in immediate danger during the whole period of the fire, from the burning cinders of the houses on fire. Resolution fire company, from Portsmouth, arrived early at the scene of conflagration; they took position at the corner of Holt's lane, and were principally instrumental in saving the block of buildings east of Mr. T. Eccles' house. A detachment of seamen and marines, with a number of officers of the U. S. ship Pennsylvania, under command of Capt. Gardener, were also there, working manfully at the engines, and guarding the property of the inhabitants, which was strewn along the streets.

DESTRUCTION OF ONE FIFTH OF THE CITY OF HAMBURG BY FIRE.

The city of Hamburg, the great commercial emporium of Germany, is a heap of ruins. Her merchants were rejoicing at the prospect held out to them by the promised improvements in our commercial tariff; now they are mourning over their richly stored warehouses in ashes, their houses devoured by the flames, and their prospects of increased prosperity scattered to the four winds of heaven.

The fire, which broke out on Wednesday night, the 14th inst. and which there is every reason to believe, was the work of an incendiary, extended to fifty two streets, most of which were reduced to ashes. On a rough calculation, the loss of property was from three to four millions sterling, but it is believed that the total loss will be double that amount. No person can tell how many lives were lost but a great number of persons must have perished. The canals through the city were dry, so that no water could be found. The fire raged from Wednesday night till Saturday morning.

On the latter day, at nine o'clock, the Danish, Hanoverian, and Prussian troops entered the town, and being well supplied with gunpowder, commenced blowing up the houses to arrest the progress of the flames. This was completely effected by Sunday morning. The Senate ordered every person to leave town and nothing could exceed the heart-rending spectacle of thousands of poor people frantic with their losses, and without the means of procuring food or shelter.

The destruction of Hamburg is one of those calamities which will be felt in every part of the commercial world.—Great as may be the credit of the Senate and people of Hamburg with foreign states, a century will elapse before the city can be replaced in all the prosperity destroyed by this conflagration. In the midst of the confusion an incident occurred characteristic of the government and the people. A public notice was every where put up, stating that the vault under the bank, containing the gold and silver bars, were fire proof, and that the bank books were all removed in perfect safety.

The Hamburg Neue Zeitung of the 10th inst. thus sums up the results of the sad catastrophe:—

"Sixty streets, containing from 1500 to 2000 houses, lie smouldering on the ground, and form a fearful but picturesque ruin. Two splendid churches, with steeples exceeding 400 feet in height, another church with its tower, the Rath Haus, where the Senate hold their sittings; the old Exchange, the repository of archives, the building of the Patriotic Society, are all destroyed. Reichspost Amt, nearly all the booksellers, the offices of two newspapers, (the Borsenballe, and the Correspondent,) nearly all the great hotels and inns, (the Old London, the Belvidere, Hotel de Ruisse, St. Petersburg, Street's Hotel, the Crown Prince, the Wild Man, the Bramer Antheus, the Black Elephant,) the principal magazines des modes and repositories of fashion, and nearly all the chief apothecaries, are destroyed. The following are safe:—The cellar where the bullion is deposited at the bank, the Catharinenstrasse der Wandralune, du Reichenstrasse, &c."

The Dead Sea.—It has been recently ascertained by two British royal engineers, who have been engaged in triangulating the country between the Mediterranean and the Dead Sea, that the latter is 1,337 feet below the level of the former. The engineers proceeded from level to level by two different routes, and the results of each differed by merely an insignificant fraction. By the same process it was ascertained that the Lake Gennesaret was eighty-four feet below the level of the Mediterranean. Calculating the valley of the Jordan from the lake to the Dead Sea to be about seventy miles, the average depression of the soil will be equal to eighteen feet per mile, which accounts for the rapidity with which this stream, so celebrated in sacred history, flows.

An Ordinance repealing all Ordinances, Laws, and Resolutions, relative to the changing of the Names of Streets.

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, that all Ordinances, Laws, and Resolutions, that have been passed by the City Council, changing the Names of Streets, be, and the same are hereby repealed.

Sec. 2. That the Names of all Streets in the City of Nauvoo, that were named at the time that the City Plat was drawn out: and as the Plat stands recorded in the Recorder's office, retain their original names.

Sec. 3. That those Streets that have been named since the Plat was recorded, and have not had their Names changed, also retain the Names that were first given to them.

Passed June 22d 1842.

JOSEPH SMITH, Mayor.

JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

YEAST.—Boil one pound of good flour, a quarter of a pound of brown sugar, and a little salt, in two gallons of water for an hour; let it afterwards stand until it becomes milk warm, bottle and cork it close. It will be fit for use in twenty-four hours. One pint of this will make eighteen pounds of bread.

"Jabe, did you see that fat lady fall in the mud yesterday?"

"Yes, sir."

"What did you think?"

"I thought she went down like a star in the midst of the ocean."

DIED.—In this city, on the 29th day of March 1842, William Francis, infant son of Moses and Nancy Tracy, of the dropsy on the brain.

—In this city, on the 27th of June, 1842, Wm. Meroni, son of John and Cynthia Ann Eldridge, aged 16 months and 17 days.

MEDICAL NOTICE.

DR. W. B. BRINK.

Respectfully tenders his professional services to the citizens of Nauvoo, and its vicinity, as a botanic practitioner, having adopted the botanic practice from a positive conviction of the truth of its doctrines, and the unrivaled success which attends the practice; and hopes to give general satisfaction and prove the superior efficacy of the botanic treatment to those who may place themselves under his care; also a number of valuable preparations of his own compounding; such as anti-bilious pills peculiarly serviceable in dyspepsia, bilious fever, &c; restorative bitters, pulmonary balsam, cough syrup, rheumatic liniment, neutralizing cordial; this is one of the most valuable preparations known for cholera morbus, cholera infantum, or summer complaints of children, fever, ague and cancers, will be treated upon the principle of no cure no pay and those afflicted with cancers will do well to call and try a remedy which has never failed; and those who are not able to pay will be cured without charge.

Dr. B. is consulted in the most intricate and protracted cases of secret disease that require practical experience to ensure success; every species and form of the disease must yield to his treatment which is in all cases mild and soft, requiring no interruption from business or change of diet, and will treat the disease upon the principle of no cure no pay; office at the store of W. Allen, formerly occupied by Mr. E. D. Wooley.

W. B. BRINK, M. D.

Nauvoo, July 2nd 1842.

12-3m.

POETRY.

For The Wasp. REMEMBER THE POOR.

BY W. W. PHILIPS.

Remember, ye clergy, ye eyes to the world,—
Al ye that pretend you are working for God.
For hundreds a year, in your clerical robes,—
The poor are forgotten at home and abroad.
Remember the poor!

Remember—ye christians, in all christendom,
That boast of your tracts, and the aid you afford,
For churches, and Bibles, and missions afar,
But not for a prophet to honor the Lord:
Remember the poor!

Remember—ye nations and multitudes far,
That worship all manner of gods, in your turn.
That sparkle like fire-flies, or grovel like worms.
The world with its hay, wood, and stubble,
must burn:
Remember the poor!

Remember—ye Mormons, the Latter Day Saints.
That know how your Savior is coming, anon.
To make up his jewels, of purified gold.
From all of the cities of great Babylon:
Remember the poor!

Remember—ye servants, the prophetic horns,
That walk by the Spirit, and go by command.
To gather the guests for the feast of the Lord—
With friends, and with foes, on the sea, or
the land,—
Remember the poor!

SINGULAR CELEBRATION.—Texan Trickery.—
The anniversary of the battle of San Jacinto, (51st of April,) was celebrated in great style by the Texan prisoners confined in the convent of Santiago, City of Mexico. The way they worked it to obtain leave of the commandant of the guard was certainly ingenious. If we were correctly informed. One of the Texans who spoke Spanish went to the officer and told him that it was a great feast day in Texas—the anniversary of the patron saint of the Republic—and desires that he would give the men the liberty of remaining in-doors that afternoon in order to celebrate it. To this the commandant gave his consent, and the men came in from their morning work well supplied with every species of liquor and good things to be found in the rum and cook shops on their route.

Although unwell at the time and unable to participate in the festivities, we have never seen more joy or hilarity upon any occasion. An excellent dinner was provided, speeches, songs and toasts, patriotic and humorous, enlivened the scene. The celebration was decorated with Texan flags, done in chalk and charcoal, and a happier set of fellows never congregated around a festive board. A similar scene under similar circumstances was perhaps never before witnessed —celebrating the greatest and almost only defeat Santa Anna ever sustained, and under his very nose. That night the chains were knocked from our ankles and we obtained our liberty but we can never forget our last day in prison, or the celebration of the battle of San Jacinto.
[N. O. Picayune.]

GREAT FIRE AT STEYER.

A letter from Steyer, a manufacturing town in Austria, with 10,000 inhabitants, gives an account of a dreadful fire at that place. The letter, which was dated the 27th inst., and is published by the Augsburg Gazette, says: "On the 3d, at four in the afternoon, a violent conflagration burst forth in the town of Steyerdorf.
The flames, excited by a high wind, made rapid progress, and by the next morning, at six, not less than 243 houses were reduced to ash s. We are surrounded with ruins: the streets are filled with dead bodies, and women and children are uttering cries of despair. The working classes are the principal sufferers by this catastrophe. Several hundreds are reduced to beggary.

The burning of some of the churches, particularly the Nicolai, was a sublime spectacle.
The Nicolai was about 200 feet high, some centuries old, and of immense strength. The steeple was of wood covered with sheet copper.
We notice that already a meeting has been called in New York to aid the sufferers. A subscription for that purpose had been opened in London and at the last dates nearly £50,000 had been collected and remitted.

✧ The denunciation of the Mormons by the Whig "no party" candidate, Joseph Duncan, is perfectly ridiculous and absurd. It shows that the opinions of his Excellency and the Whigs generally in reference to that sect have "underwent"
some change within the last two years.
In 1840, the Whigs saw but little danger from the growing power of the Mormons
—they were then considered a poor unfortunate, and persecuted set of people, entitled to the commiseration of the patriot and the philanthropist. At that time, the Mormons were regarded as good Whigs, and their votes were considered necessary to secure the State for Harrison and Tyler. Now, because they refuse to vote for the Whig candidate, they are denounced as the veriest outcasts of society, unfit to be tolerated in a civilized community. Verily, the opinions of the Whigs have "underwent" some change.

The Late Explosion.—We have some further particulars of the explosion of the steamboat Douglass. The disaster occurred at midnight. All the passengers in the ladies' cabin were either killed or injured, except a little girl. The boat was racing at the time. Among the killed, were the steward, Mr. Leonard of New Orleans, and a child of Dr. Huffman, of Baltimore, in addition to several persons who were severely injured.

[Philad. Gazette.]

New Counterfeit.—Three dollar notes of the Chautauque Co. Bank, altered to $20's, have made their appearance.—
They may easily be detected by observing that the vignette on the altered notes represents a group of cattle, while the genuine $20's have a heathen divinity, in a recumbent position, on the right, and the figure of a horse on the left of the bills.—Argus.

✧ The Carpet Mills at Lowell, Mass. are stopping, and several heavy manufacturing establishments have stopped already. That's the right way—no reduction of wages, but shut down the gate at once when the business won't pay.

Hail Storm.—A violent hail storm settled upon the town of Stratford on Monday evening last, which for violence has been seldom exceeded. The New Haven Register says: scarcely a house in the town but had more or less damage done to its windows. A gentleman assures us that he picked up more than one hundred of the stones measuring an inch in diameter.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP. ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus
J. Salsbery, Plymouth.
Harow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Chiffin/Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Jas Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Pag, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
Jam s Curtis, Horhers Town.
W. I. Appleby, Recless Town.
Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Salem.
Freeman Nicolson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapier.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirtland.

NEW YORK.

Charles Thomps n, Batavia.
L. R. Foster, city of New York.

TRAVELING AGENTS.

Hiram Kimball.

Wood Destroyed.—About two thousand acres of woodland, on which was a large quantity of wood, which had been cut and piled up ready for market, were burned over in Allestown, N. H., last week.

NOTES.

DUE the Trustee for labor on the Temple, are left with the Temple Committee for collection. Brethren, remember that your contracts with your God are sacred; the labor is wanted immediately.
W. RICHARDS,
Temple Recorder.

June 25, 1842. 10-11.
P. S. Remember the notes due for property also.

GUARDIAN'S SALE.

IN pursuance of a decree of the Circuit Court of Hancock county made at the May Term thereof A. D. 1842. The subscriber, Guardian of Emma Caroline & Chauncey G. Robison, infant children and heirs of James Robison deceased, will expose to public sale on the 8th day of August next, in city lots about thirty six acres of land belonging to said wards lying in the county of Hancock, and State of Illinois, being apart of the East half of the West half of Section No. six, township No. six North, of range No.
eight West of the fourth principal meridian, said lands will be sold on a credit of six months, sale will take place on the premises near the residence of Daniel H.
Wells Esq. between the hours of 9 o'clock A. M. and 6 o'clock P. M. of said day and will be continued between the same hours, from day to day, till said property is all sold.

CHARLOTTE ANN ROBISON,
Guardian.

* Nauvoo June 20th 1842.

COMMISSIONERS SALE.

By order of the Circuit Court of Hancock county will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder on Monday the 8th day of August next the south west quarter of the south west quarter of section number twenty four in township number seven north of the base line of range number six west of the fourth principle meridian situated in the county of Hancock and State of Illinois, said land has an excellent water privilege with a good saw mill with tools and a flowering mill in commencement, a small framed house and various other improvements.

The terms of sale will be twenty five per centum down, the balance payable in six months to be secured by a note with good approved security and a mortgage on the property.

The sale will commence at 10 o'clock
A. M.

L. L. WILCOX,
JOEL BRADSHAW,
RIGHT RIGGINS.

Commissioners.

NEW DRUG STORE.

E. B. BATMAN No. 3 Water Street
opposite the ferry landing, St. Louis Mo.,
has just opened a large stock of fresh
Drugs, Medicines, Dyestuffs, Paints, Oils, Glassware, &c. which he offers at the lowest cash prices and to which the attention of the city and country trade is respectfully invited.

NOTICE.

A Special meeting of the Stockholders, and friends of the Nauvoo Agricultural and manufacturing Association, will be held at the upper room of J. Smith's Store on Monday the 27th inst. at 1 o'clock
P. M.

Done by order of the board, of Trustees.

Attest: E. ROBINSON Secretary.

NOTICE.

IS hereby given that the partnership heretofore existing under the name of George W. Crouse and Nathaniel Jennings is this day dissolved by mutual consent and all persons indebted to the firm, will call and settle with George W.
Crouse without delay, under whose name
the business will be continued.

Dated Nauvoo June 11th 1842.

MEAL, FLOUR,

AND PROVISIONS OF EVERY KIND,
WANTED ON TITHING.

THE brethren abroad will remember that those who devote the whole of their time to work on the Temple must be fed; they cannot live and work without provisions, and we are growing very scarce; and especially so with regard to MEAL and FLOUR. Those, therefore,
who have the above articles, and intend
to consecrate such on their tithing, will please forward them immediately to Nau-
voo. W. RICHARDS, Recorder
for the Temple.

Nauvoo, June 18th 1842. 10-11.

DR. J. F. WELD,

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.
Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo &
adjoining country for the liberal patronage
heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.
Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

NOTICE.

THE Burying Ground south east of the city
has been laid out in family burying lots, a number of which will be offered for sale, at public auction, on the 18th inst., at 10 o'clock A.
M., at the office of Gen Hyram Smith.
Terms one third on the day of sale, one third
in six months from sale, and one third in twelve months from sale, with approved security.

By order of the City Council.

WILSON LAW,
Committee to sell.

Nauvoo, June 4th 1842.

District Court of the United States, }
within and for the district of Illinois. }
In the matter of the petition of Hiram Kimball of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.
No ice is hereby given, that Hiram Kimball, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that
an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 8th day of July next, at the District Court Room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested
may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition
should not be granted.

Dated this 11th day of June, A. D. 1842.
RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.
Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States, }
within and for the District of Illinois. }
In the matter of the Petition of Joshua C.
Hobert of Hancock County to be declared a
Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.
Notice is hereby given, that Joshua C. Ho-
bert, of Hancock County has filed his petition
in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and
that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 18th day of July next, at
the District Court room in the City of Springfield
in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested
may then and there appear and show cause if any they have why the prayer of said Petition should
not be granted.

Dated this 18th day of June A. D. 1842.
J. H. SHERMAN Solicitor, for Petitioner.
Attest James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States, }
within and for the District of Illinois. }
In the matter of the Petition of Claiborn Wilson, of Hancock County to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.
Notice is hereby given, that Claiborn Wilson,
of Hancock County has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that
an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 18th day of July next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested
may then and there appear and show cause if any they have why the prayer of said Petition
should not be granted.

Dated this 18th day of June A. D. 1842.
J. H. SHERMAN, Solicitor for Petitioner.
Attest James F. Owings Clerk.

LOOK HERE! LOOK HERE!!

WANTED, at the Nauvoo Foundry, a quantity of Stone coal; any persons
wishing to furnish it, will please call on Hiram Kimball, or Geo. W. Robinson, at the Post Office.
Old castings will be taken in exchange for new.
Nauvoo, June 13th 1842. 10-11.

POETRY.

For The Wasp. REMEMBER THE POOR.

BY W. W. PHELPS.

Remember, ye clergy, as eyes to the world,—
All ye that pretend you are working for God,
For hundreds a year, in your clerical robes;
The poor are forgotten at home and abroad:
Remember the poor!

Remember—ye christians, in all christendom,
That hoast of your tracts, and the aid you
afford,
For churches, and Bibles, and missions afar,
But not for a prophet to honor the Lord:
Remember the poor!

Remember—ye nations and multitudes far,
That worship all manner of gods, in your turn,
That sparkle like fire-flies, or grovel like worms,
The world with its hay, wood, and stubble,
must burn:
Remember the poor!

Remember—ye Mormons, the Latter Day Saints,
That know how your Savior is coming, anon,
To make up his jewels, of purified gold,
From all of the cities of great Babylon:
Remember the poor!

Remember—ye servants, the prophetic horns,
That walk by the Spirit, and go by command
To gather the guests for the feast of the Lord—
With friends, and with foes, on the sea, or
the land,—
Remember the poor!

SINGULAR CELEBRATION.—Texan Trickery.

The anniversary of the battle of San Jacinto, (51st of April,) was celebrated in great style by the Texan prisoners confined in the convent of Santiago, City of Mexico. The way they worked it to obtain leave of the commandant of the guard was certainly ingenious, if we were correctly informed. One of the Texans who spoke Spanish went to the officer and told him that it was a great feast day in Texas—the anniversary of the patron saint of the Republic—and desires that he would give the men the liberty of remaining in-doors that afternoon in order to celebrate it. To this the commandant gave his consent, and the men came in from their morning work well supplied with every species of liquor and good things to be found in the rum and cook shops on their route.

Although unwell at the time and unable to participate in the festivities, he has never seen more joy or hilarity upon any occasion. An excellent dinner was provided, speeches, songs and toasts, patriotic and humorous, enlivened the scene, the walls were decorated with Texan flags, done in chalk and charcoal, and a happier set of fellows never congregated around a festive board. A similar scene under similar circumstances was perhaps never before witnessed—celebrating the greatest and almost only defeat Santa Anna ever sustained, and under his very nose. That night the chains were knocked from our ankles and we obtained our liberty, but we can never forget our last day in prison, or the celebration of the battle of San Jacinto. [N. O. Picayune.

GREAT FIRE AT STEYER.

A letter from Steyer, a manufacturing town in Austria, with 10,000 inhabitants, gives an account of a dreadful fire at that place. The letter, which was dated the 27th inst., and is published by the Augsburg Gazette, says: "On the 3d, at four in the afternoon, a violent conflagration burst forth in the faubourg of Steverdorf. The flames, excited by a high wind, made rapid progress, and by the next morning, at six, not less than 245 houses were reduced to ashes. We are surrounded with ruins; the streets are filled with dead bodies, and women and children are uttering cries of despair. The working classes are the principal sufferers by this catastrophe. Several hundreds are reduced to beggary.

The burning of some of the churches, particularly the Nicolai, was a sublime spectacle.—The Nicolai was about 240 feet high, some centuries old, and of immense strength. The steeple was of wood covered with sheet copper.—We notice that, already a meeting has been called in New York to aid the sufferers. A subscription for that purpose had been opened in London and at the last dates nearly £50,000 had been collected and remitted.

✶ The denunciation of the Mormons by the Whig "no party" candidate, Joseph Duncan, is perfectly ridiculous and absurd. It shows that the opinions of his Excellency and the Whigs generally in reference to that sect have "underwent" some change within the last two years. In 1840, the Whigs saw but little danger from the growing power of the Mormons—they were then considered a poor unfortunate, and persecuted set of people, entitled to the commiseration of the patriot and the philanthropist. At that time, the Mormons were regarded as good Whigs, and their votes were considered necessary to secure the State for Harrison and Tyler. Now, because they refuse to vote for the Whig candidate, they are denounced as the veriest outcasts of society, unfit to be tolerated in a civilized community. Verily, the opinions of the Whigs have "underwent" some change.

The Late Explosion.—We have some further particulars of the explosion of the steamboat Douglass. The disaster occurred at midnight. All the passengers in the ladies' cabin were either killed or injured, except a little girl. The boat was racing at the time. Among the killed, were the steward, Mr. Leonard of New Orleans, and a child of Dr. Huffman, of Baltimore, in addition to several persons who were severely injured. [Philad. Gazette.

New Counterfeit.—Three dollar notes of the Chautauque Co. Bank, altered to $20's, have made their appearance.—They may easily be detected by observing that the vignette on the altered notes represents a group of cattle, while the genuine $20's have a heathen divinity, in a recumbent position, on the right, and the figure of a horse on the left of the bills.—Argus.

✶ The Carpet Mills at Lowell, Mass. are stopping, and several heavy Manufacturing establishments have stopped already. That's the right way—no reduction of wages, but shut down the gate at once when the business won't pay.

Hail Storm.—A violent hail storm settled upon the town of Stratford on Monday evening last, which for violence has been seldom exceeded. The New Haven Register says: scarcely a house in the town but had more or less damage done to its windows. A gentleman assures us that he picked up more than one hundred of the stones measuring an inch in diameter.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP. ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus
J. Salsbery, Plymouth,
Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
E. R. Chiffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Page, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
James Curtis, Horners Town.
W. I. Appleby, Rectless Town.
Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Salem.
Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapier.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirtland.

NEW YORK.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.
L. R. Foster, city of New York.

TRAVELING AGENTS.

Hiram Kimball.

Wood Destroyed.—About two thousand acres of woodland, on which was a large quantity of wood, which had been cut and piled up ready for market, were burned over in Allestown, N. H., last week.

NOTES

DUE the Trustee for labor on the Temple, are left with the Temple Committee for collection. Brethren, remember that your contracts with your God are sacred; the labor is wanted immediately.

W. RICHARDS,
Temple Recorder.

June 25, 1842.

P. S. Remember the notes due for property also.

GUARDIAN'S SALE.

IN pursuance of a decree of the Circuit Court of Hancock county made at the May Term thereof A. D. 1842. The subscriber, Guardian of Emma Caroline, & Chauncey G. Robison, infant children and heirs of James Robison deceased, will expose to public sale on the 8th day of August next, in city lots about thirty six acres of land belonging to said wards lying in the county of Hancock, and State of Illinois, being apart of the East half of the West half of Section No. six, township No. six North, of range No. eight West of the fourth principal meridian, said lands will be sold on a credit of six months, sale will take place on the premises near the residence of Daniel H. Wells Esq. between the hours of 9 o'clock A. M. and 6 o'clock P. M. of said day and will be continued between the same hours, from day to day, till said property is all sold.

CHARLOTTE ANN ROBISON,
Guardian.
Nauvoo June 20th 1842.

COMMISSIONERS SALE.

BY order of the Circuit Court of Hancock county will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder on Monday the 8th day of August next the south west quarter of the south west quarter of section number twenty four in township number seven north of the base line of range number six west of the fourth principal meridian situated in the county of Hancock and State of Illinois, said land has an excellent water privilege with a good saw mill with tools and a flowering mill in commencement, a small framed house and various other improvements.

The terms of sale will be twenty five per centum down, the balance payable in six months to be secured by a note with good approved security and a mortgage on the property.

The sale will commence at 10 o'clock A. M.

L. L. WILCOX,
JOEL BRADSHAW,
RIGHT RIGGINS.

Commissioners.

NEW DRUG STORE.

E. B. BATMAN No. 3 Water Street opposite the ferry landing, St. Louis Mo., has just opened a large stock of fresh Drugs, Medicines, Dyestuffs, Paints, Oils, Glassware, &c. which he offers at the lowest cash prices and to which the attention of the city and country trade is respectfully invited.

NOTICE.

A Special meeting of the Stockholders, and friends of the Nauvoo Agricultural and manufacturing Association, will be held at the upper room of J. Smith's Store on Monday the 27th inst. at 1 o'clock P. M.

Done by order of the board, of Trustees.

Attest: E. ROBINSON Secretary.

NOTICE.

IS hereby given that the partnership heretofore existing under the name of George W. Crouse and Nathaniel Jennings is this day dissolved by mutual consent and all persons indebted to the firm, will call and settle with George W. Crouse without delay, under whose name the business will be continued.

Dated Nauvoo June 11th 1842.

MEAL, FLOUR, AND PROVISIONS OF EVERY KIND, WANTED ON TITHING.

THE brethren abroad will remember that those who devote the whole of their time to work on the Temple must be fed; they cannot live and work without provisions, and we are growing very scarce; and especially so with regard to MEAL and FLOUR. Those, therefore, who have the above articles, and intend to consecrate such on their tithing, will please forward them immediately to Nauvoo. W. RICHARDS, Recorder for the Temple.

Nauvoo, June 18th 1842. 10-11.

DR. J. F. WELD,

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS,
Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

NOTICE.

THE Burying Ground south east of the city has been laid out in family burying lots, a number of which will be offered for sale, at public auction, on the 18th inst., at 10 o'clock A. M., at the office of Gen. Hyram Smith.

Terms one third on the day of sale, one third in six months from sale, and one third in twelve months from sale, with approved security.

By order of the City Council.

WILSON LAW,
Committee to sell.

Nauvoo, June 4th 1842.

District Court of the United States, }
within and for the district of Illinois. }
In the matter of the petition of Hiram Kimball of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

No ice is hereby given, that Hiram Kimball, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 8th day of July next, at the District Court Room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 11th day of June A. D. 1842.

RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.
Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States, }
within and for the District of Illinois. }
In the matter of the Petition of Joshua C. Hobert of Hancock County to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Joshua C. Hobert, of Hancock County has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 18th day of July next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 18th day of June A. D. 1842.

J. H. SHERMAN Solicitor, for Petitioner.
Attest James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States, }
within and for the District of Illinois. }
In the matter of the Petition of Claiborn Wilson, of Hancock County to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Claiborn Wilson, of Hancock County has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 18th day of July next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 18th day of June A. D. 1842.

J. H. SHERMAN, Solicitor for Petitioner.
Attest James F. Owings Clerk.

LOOK HERE! LOOK HERE!!

WANTED, at the Nauvoo Foundry, a quantity of Stone coal; any persons wishing to furnish it, will please call on Hiram Kimball, or Geo. W. Robinson, at the Post Office. Old castings will be taken in exchange for new. Nauvoo, June 13th 1842. 10-11.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 13.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, July 9, 1842.

Whole Number 13

THE WASP,

IS EDITED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY

WM. SMITH,

At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.

TERMS.—$1.50 invariably in advance.

The following is the Phrenological chart
of Elder Willard Richards—

A PHRENOLOGICAL CHART.

BY A. CRANE, M. D.,

PROFESSOR OF PHRENOLOGY.

PROPENSITIES.

Amativeness—8 F very partial to the opposite sex; generally reciprocated by them.

Philoprogenitiveness—7 F interested in the happiness of children; fond of their company.

Inhabitiveness—6 F attached to place of long residence; no desire to change residence.

Adhesiveness—11 V L passionately and devotedly attached to lovers and friends.

Combativeness—7 F great powers of exertion and sustaining, under opposition and difficulties.

Destructiveness—6 M ability to control the passions; and is not disposed to extreme measures.

Secreciveness—10 L great propensity and ability to conceal feelings, plans, &c.

Acquisitiveness—8 F frugality and industry without much of the miserly, penurious or stingy feeling.

Alimentiveness—9 F a good appetite, but not excessive; partiality for a variety of rich hearty dishes.

Vitativeness—7 L strong desire to exist; contemplates death as the greatest misfortune.

FEELINGS.

Cautiousness—8 L discretion, carefulness, anxiety, apprehension, &c.

Approbativeness—10 L ambition for distinction; sense of character; sensibility to reproach;

fear of scandal.

Self-esteem—10 L high-mindedness; independence, self-confidence, dignity; aspiration for greatness.

Concentrativeness—7 F can dwell on a subject without fatigue, and contrall the imagination.

SENTIMENTS.

Benevolence—9 L kindness, goodness, tenderness, sympathy.

Veneration—7 F religion without great awe or enthusiasm; reasonable deference to superiority.

Firmness—9 L stability and decision of character and purpose.

Conscientiousness—8 L high regard for duty, integrity, moral principle, justice obligation,

truth, &c.

Hope—7 F reasonable hopes, a fine flow of spirits; anticipation of what is to be realized.

Marvellousness—6 F openness to conviction without blind credulity; tolerably good degree of faith.

Imitation—10 F a disposition and respectable ability to imitate, but not to mimic, or to act out.

Prepossession—8 L or F attached to certain notions; not disposed to change them, &c.

Ideality—10 L lively imagination; fancy taste,

love of poetry, elegance, eloquence, excellence,

&c.

PERCEPTIVES.

Admonition—9 F or M desirous to know what others are doing; ready to counsel and give him

of a fault or duty, &c.

Constructiveness—8 L great mechanical ingenuity, talent, and skill.

Tune—8 F or M love of music, without quickness to catch or learn tunes by the ear.

Time—8 F or M indistinct notions of the lapse of time, of ages, dates of events, &c.

Locality—11 V L or L great memory of places and position.

Eventuality—9 L retentive memory of events and particulars.

Individuality—10 L great desire to see; power of observation.

Form—8 F cognizance, and distinct recollection of shapes; countenances, &c.

Size—11 V L, L or F ability to judge of proportionate size, &c.

Weight—6 M S or V S deficient balancing power; failure in equilibrium.

Colour—11 V L or L great power of recollec-ting and comparing colours.

Language—7 F freedom of expression, without fluency or verbosity, no great loquacity.

Order—10 L love of arrangement; every thing

in its particular place.

Number—9 L quickness, facility, and correctness in calculating figures.

REFLECTIVES.

Mirthfulness—10 L wit, fun, mirth; perception and love of the ludicrous.

Causality—11 L ability to think and reason clearly, and perceive the relations of cause and effect.

Comparison—10 L a discrimination; power of illustration; ability to perceive and apply analogies, &c.

THERE ARE FOUR TEMPERAMENTS.

THE LYMPHATIC, or Phlegmatic, in which the secreting glands are the most active portion of the system, produces both corporeal and mental languor, dullness and inactivity.

THE SANGUINE, in which the arterial portion of the system is most active, gives strong feelings and passions, and more ardor, zeal, and activity, than of strength or power.

THE BILIOUS, in which the muscular portion predominates in activity, produces strength, power, and endurance of body, with great force and energy of mind and character.

THE NERVOUS, in which the brain and nervous system are most active, gives the highest degree of activity, with clearness of perception and of thought, but less endurance. Sharp and prominent organs denote activity; smooth and broad ones, intensity and strength.

EXPLANATION OF THE CHART.

The written figures in the margin opposite the organs, and ranging in a scale from 1 to 12, indicate the various degrees in which the respective organs are developed in the head of the individual examined: thus, 1, 2, indicate that the organ is very small, or almost wholly wanting;

3, 4, means small, or feeble, and inactive;

5, 6, moderate, or active only in a subordinate degree; 7, 8, full or fair, and a little above par;

9, 10, large, or quite energetic, and having a marked influence upon the character; 11, 12,

mean very large, or giving a controlling influence, and extreme liability to perversion. The size of the brain, combinations of the faculties, and temperament of the individual, may be indicated in the same manner as the degrees of the faculties or organs.

The initials V L denote very large; L, large;

F, full; M, moderate; S, small; V S, very small.

COMBINATION OF THE FACULTIES.

The fore part of the head is called the frontal portion; and the back, the occipital; the base,

or lower part is denominated the basilar region;

and the upper portion, the coronal.

Phrenology has ascertained what portion of the brain the mind employs in the exercise of each mental function; and hence, by determining how much larger one part of the brain is than another, it can tell how much an individual exercises certain classes of mental functions more than he does others. The combinations of the organs have, also, great influence upon the mental manifestations. The rule is, that the larger organs control the smaller.

When the occipital portion is larger than the frontal, there will be more of feeling than reason; of passion than intellect; of brutality than humanity; of propelling than directing power; of action than judgment. But when the frontal region is much larger than the occipital, as in the heads of Melancthon, Franklin, Washington, and Clinton, the individual will combine pure morality with great depth and power of intellect; a strong mind with vir-tuous feelings; and sound, practical sense, with nobleness of conduct.

One having large or very large intellectual organs, combined with moderate or small organs of the propensities, will possess great mental power with a want of impetus; high intellectual and moral qualities, with inefficiency;

but with the propensities well developed, and the intellectual faculties very large, will combine great strength of mind with great energy of character, and both directed by the human sentiments, and applied to moral and intellectual objects: Washington, Franklin, Clinton, and La Fayette.

One having very large perceptive faculties, combined with only full reasoning organs, will possess a practical matter-of-fact talent, and an uncommon share of general information; yet

lack depth of mind and strength of intellect.

One having the perceptive organs full or large, with very large reflective faculties, will have a universal talent, and ability both to plan and execute; to attend to general principles and to details; and, with full or large propensities, be capable of employing extraordinary talents to the best advantage, and of rising to eminence: Franklin, Washington, Clinton, Bonaparte.

One having very large reasoning organs, with only moderate or full perceptive faculties, will possess great depth and originality of mind, and profound philosophical acumen; but will think and reason more than observe.

One in whom the basilar region greatly predominates over the coronal, will possess great force of character, and a ready talent for business; but strong passions applied to selfish purposes, with little morality and elevation of character and feeling.

An evenness of the head indicates uniformity of character; and unevenness eccentricities and strong traits.

General Joseph Smith, the founder of the

sect called 'The Latter Day Saints of the Church of Jesus Christ,' was born in Clarion, Windsor county, Vermont, in 1805, 23rd of December.

Old Windsor county is now boasting of as many distinguished men in different spheres as any in the Union. This poor farmer's son has built up a denomination of nearly 100,000 people, in Europe, Asia, Africa, and nearly all the islands of the great ocean. Besides, Gen. Smith did not invent his creed himself; but an angel of the Lord delivered it to him on Mount Moriah, N.

Y., on the 22nd of September, 1827.—N. O.

Joseph Smith, whatever people may think, or at St. Domingo.

choose to think of the strangeness or wildness of his creed, cannot be denied the attribute of greatness. In a time of great intelligence, and in a country where the school master is particularly abroad amongst the people, he has reared up a new sect and inoculated two worlds with his doctrines—laid the foundation of one of the most thriving sects this day in the world; and reared a city for their residence; and established laws for their government. This he has done, of their children into the fire, and there in opposition to one of the most determined and let them remain till they were burnt to tyrannous persecutions that any people have ashes. This was done directly after been known to suffer since the persecution of each child was born for the third success-

the Huguenots and Albigenes in the darker ive "year."

ages of government and christianity. The outrages committed on these people by those of the government of Missouri, is a tale of almost unequalled horror, which we may some day refer to.—(Pittsburgh) Sat. Ev. Visitor.

FROM HAYTI.—We are indebted to a commercial house for Port-au-Prince papers to the 26th ult., from which we derive the following particulars.

PORT-AU-PRINCE.—The Chamber of Representatives, on the recommendation of the President of Hayti, has passed a law to exempt the inhabitants of the districts devastated by the recent earthquake, from Taxes. The Senate, at its sitting on the 23d May, concurred.

CAPE HAITIEN.—News had been received at Port-au-Prince from Cape Haitien, by the return of Capt. Faubert, aid de-camp to President Boyer, who sent him on a mission thither.

The disorders that prevailed in this unfortunate city in ruins, of which we have before heard so much complaint, have been consummated

by the pillage, or rather theft of the public treasure, which had been hitherto preserved, it is said, by a guard. Letters announce the conflagration of the rest of the houses overturned, and not before burnt. The first fire consumed only a quarter of the city, and was extinguished by rain.

ST. JAGO.—Letters from this unfortunate city confirm the sad news of the overturning of all the houses built with masonry, and of all the public edifices. About two hundred persons have perished. The earthquake was perceived at the same time as at Cape Haitien.

New shocks, very strong, having continued through the night and the following days, the rest of the population removed a half league from the city. At the first moment of this strong convulsion of the earth, the river Yaque was seen to go up towards its source, and to divide into two parts, leaving a dry passage in its bed; then, to descend with astonishing impetuosity.

The excesses committed here by the prisoners who escaped in consequence of the fall of the prisons, are deplorable—also, by some country people, and by some from the city, who thought they had a right to pillage. But it appears that the authorities have not fulfilled their duty in endeavoring to prevent this disorder.

St. Jago is described as a very flourishing city that had just begun to acquire the prosperity

due to industry.

ST. DOMINGO.—The powerful shock experienced here was preceded by a terrible noise coming from the East. The fine cathedral, which commenced in 1514 and finished in 1540, had resisted every earthquake, especially those of 1684 and 1691. But it was considerably injured

THE WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 13.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, July 9, 1842.

Whole Number 13

THE WASP.

AS EDITED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY

WM. SMITH,

At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.

TERMS.—$1.50 invariably in advance.

The following is the Phrenological chart
of Elder Willard Richards—

A PHRENOLOGICAL CHART.

BY A. CRANE, M. D.,

PROFESSOR OF PHRENOLOGY.

PROPSITIES.

Amativeness—8 F very partial to the opposite sex; generally reciprocated by them.
Philoprogenitiveness—7 F interested in the happiness of children; fond of their company.
Inhabitiveness—6 F attached to place of long residence; no desire to change residence.
Adhesiveness—11 V L passionately and devotedly attached to lovers and friends.
Combative—7 F great powers of exertion and sustaining, under opposition and difficulties.
Destructiveness—6 M ability to control the passions; and is not disposed to extreme measures.
Secretiveness—10 L great propensity and ability to conceal feelings, plans, &c.
Acquisitiveness—8 F frugality and industry, without much of the miserly, penurious or stingy feeling.
Alimentiveness—8 F a good appetite, but not excessive; partiality for a variety of rich hearty dishes.
Vitaliveness—7 L strong desire to exist; contemplates death as the greatest misfortune.

FEELINGS.

Cautiousness—8 L discretion, carefulness, anxiety, apprehension, &c.
Approbativeness—10 L ambition for distinction; sense of character; sensibility to reproach; fear of scandal.
Self-esteem—10 L high-mindedness, independence, self-confidence, dignity; aspiration for greatness.
Concentrativeness—7 F can dwell on a subject without fatigue, and control the imagination.

SENTIMENTS.

Benevolence—9 L kindness, goodness, tenderness, sympathy.
Veneration—7 F religion without great awe or enthusiasm; reasonable deference to superiority.
Firmness—9 L stability and decision of character and purpose.
Conscientiousness—8 L high regard for duty, integrity, moral principle, justice obligation, truth, &c.
Hope—7 F reasonable hopes, a fine flow of spirits; anticipation of what is to be realized.
Marvelousness—6 F openness to conviction without blind credulity; tolerably good degree of faith.

Imitation—10 F a disposition and respectable ability to imitate, but not to mimic, or to act out.

Prepossession—8 L or F attached to certain notions; not disposed to change them, &c.

Ideality—10 L lively imagination; fancy taste, love of poetry, elegance, eloquence, excellence, &c.

PERCEPTIVES.

Admonition—9 F or M desirous to know what others are doing; ready to counsel and give hints of a fault or duty, &c.

Constructiveness—8 L great mechanical ingenuity, talent, and skill.

Tune—8 F or M love of music, without quickness to catch or learn tunes by the ear.

Time—8 F or M indistinct notions of the lapse of time, of ages, dates of events, &c.

Locality—11 V L or L great memory of places and position.

Eventuality—9 L retentive memory of events and particulars.

Individuality—10 L great desire to see; power of observation.

Form—8 F cognizance, and distinct recollection of shapes; countenances, &c.

Size—11 V L, L or F ability to judge of proportionate size, &c.

Weight—6 M S or V S deficient balancing power; failure in equilibrium.

Colour—11 V L or L great power of recollecting and comparing colours.

Language—7 F freedom of expression, without fluency or verbosity, no great loquacity.

Order—10 L love of arrangement; every thing in its particular place.

Number—9 L quickness, facility, and correctness in calculating figures.

REFLECTIVES.

Mirthfulness—10 L wit, fun, mirth; perception and love of the ludicrous.

Causality—11 L ability to think and reason clearly, and perceive the relations of cause and effect.

Comparison—10 L a discrimination; power of illustration; ability to perceive and apply analogies, &c.

THERE ARE FOUR TEMPERAMENTS

THE LYMPHATIC, or Phlegmatic, in which the secreting glands are the most active portion of the system, produces both corporeal and mental languor, dullness and inactivity.

THE SANGUINE, in which the arterial portion of the system is most active, gives strong feelings and passions, and more ardor, zeal, and activity, than of strength or power.

THE BILIOUS, in which the muscular portion of the system is most active, produces strength, power, and endurance of body; with great force and energy of mind and character.

THE NERVOUS, in which the brain and nervous system are most active, gives the highest degree of activity, with clearness of perception and of thought, but less endurance. Sharp and prominent organs denote activity; smooth and broad ones, intensity, and strength.

EXPLANATION OF THE CHART.

The written figures in the margin opposite the organs, and ranging in a scale from 1 to 12, indicate the various degrees in which the respective organs are developed in the head of the individual examined: thus, 1, 2, indicate that the organ is very small, or almost wholly wanting; 3, 4, means small, or feeble, and inactive; 5, 6, moderate, or active only in a subordinate degree; 7, 8, full or fair, and a little above par; 9, 10, large, or quite energetic, and having a marked influence upon the character; 11, 12, mean very large, or giving a controlling influence, and extreme liability to perversion. The size of the brain, combinations of the faculties, and temperament of the individual, may be indicated in the same manner as the degrees of the faculties or organs.

The initials V-L denote very large; L, large; F, full; M, moderate; S, small; V S, very small.

COMBINATION OF THE FACULTIES.

The fore part of the head is called the frontal portion; and the back, the occipital; the base, or lower part is denominated the basilar region; and the upper portion, the coronal.

Phrenology has ascertained what portion of the brain the mind employs in the exercise of each mental function; and hence, by determining how much larger one part of the brain is than another, it can tell how much an individual exercises certain classes of mental functions more than he does others. The combinations of the organs have, also, great influence upon the mental manifestations. The rule is, that the larger organs control the smaller.

When the occipital portion is larger than the frontal, there will be more of feeling than reason; of passion than intellect; of brutality than humanity; of propelling than directing power; of action than judgment. But when the frontal region is much larger than the occipital, as in the heads of Melancthon, Franklin, Washington, and Clinton, the individual will combine pure morality with great depth and power of intellect; a strong mind with virtuous feelings; and sound, practical sense, with nobleness of conduct.

One having large or very large intellectual organs, combined with moderate or small organs of the propensities, will possess great mental power with a want of impetus; high intellectual and moral qualities, with inefficiency; but with the propensities well developed, and the intellectual faculties very large, will combine great strength of mind with great energy of character, and both directed by the human sentiments, and applied to moral and intellectual objects: Washington, Franklin, Clinton, and La Fayette.

One having very large perceptive faculties, combined with only full reasoning organs, will possess a practical matter-of-fact talent, and an uncommon share of general information; yet lack depth of mind and strength of intellect, and a talent for adapting means to ends.

One having the perceptive organs full or large, with very large reflective faculties, will have a universal talent, and ability both to plan and execute; to attend to general principles and to details; and, with full or large propensities, be capable of employing extraordinary talents to the best advantage, and of rising to eminence: Franklin, Washington, Clinton, Bonaparte.

One having very large reasoning organs, with very moderate or full perceptive faculties will possess great depth and originality of mind, and profound philosophical acumen; but will think and reason more than observe.

One in whom the basilar region greatly predominates over the coronal, will possess great force of character, and a ready talent for business; but strong passions applied to selfish purposes, with little morality and elevation of character and feeling.

An evenness of the head indicates uniformity of character; and unevenness eccentricities and strong traits.

General Joseph Smith, the founder of the sect called 'The Latter Day Saints of the Church of Jesus Christ,' was born in Clarion, Windsor county, Vermont, in 1805, 23rd of December. Old Windsor county is now boasting of as many distinguished men in different spheres as any in the Union. This poor farmer's son has built up a denomination of nearly 100,000 people, in Europe, Asia, Africa, and nearly all the islands of the great ocean. Besides, Gen. Smith did not invent his creed himself; but an angel of the Lord delivered it to him on Mount Moriah, N. Y., on the 22nd of September, 1827.—N. O. Pic.

Joseph Smith, whatever people may think, or choose to think of the strangeness or wildness of his creed, cannot be denied the attribute of greatness. In a time of great intelligence, and in a country where the schoolmaster is particularly abroad amongst the people, he has reared up a new sect and inoculated two worlds with his doctrines—laid the foundation of one of the most thriving sects this day in the world; and reared a city for their residence; and established laws for their government. This he has done, in opposition to one of the most determined and tyrannous persecutions that any people have been known to suffer since the persecution of the Huguenots and Albigenses in the darker ages of government and christianity. The outrages committed on these people by those of the government of Missouri, is a tale of almost unequalled horror, which, we may some day refer to.—(Pittsburgh) Sat. Ev. Visitor.

FROM HAYTI.—We are indebted to a commercial house for Port-au-Prince papers to the 26th ult., from which we derive the following particulars.

PORT-AU-PRINCE.—The Chamber of Representatives, on the recommendation of the President of Hayti, has passed a law to exempt the inhabitants of the districts devastated by the recent earthquake, from Taxes. The Senate, at its sitting on the 23d May, concurred.

CAPE HAITIEN.—News had been received at Port-au-Prince from Cape Haitien, by the return of Capt. Faubert, aid de-camp to President Boyer, who sent him on a mission thither. The disorders that prevailed in this unfortunate city in ruins, of which we have before heard so much complaint, have been consummated by the pillage, or rather theft of the public treasure, which had been hitherto preserved, it is said, by a guard. Letters announce the conflagration of the rest of the houses overturned, and not before burnt. The first fire consumed only a quarter of the city, and was extinguished by rain.

ST. JAGO.—Letters from this unfortunate city confirm the sad news of the overturning of all the houses built with masonry, and of all the public edifices. About two hundred persons have perished. The earthquake was perceived at the same time as at Cape Haitien. New shocks, very strong, having continued through the night and the following days, the rest of the population removed a half league from the city. At the first moment of this strong convulsion of the earth, the river Yaque was seen to go up towards its source, and to divide into two parts, leaving a dry passage in its bed; then, to descend with astonishing impetuosity.

The excesses committed here by the prisoners who escaped in consequence of the fall of the prisons, are deplorable—also, by some country people, and by some from the city, who thought they had a right to pillage. But it appears that the authorities have not fulfilled their duty in endeavoring to prevent this disorder. St. Jago is described as a very flourishing city that had just begun to acquire the prosperity due to industry.

ST. DOMINGO.—The powerful shock experienced here was preceded by a terrible noise coming from the East. The fine cathedral, commenced in 1514 and finished in 1540, had resisted every earthquake, especially those of 1684 and 1691. But it was considerably injured by that of the 7th inst. The sea was excessively agitated near the harbor. The injury experienced by the cathedral occasioned the fear of its fall, on which account the vicar-general Portez thought proper to take away the holy sacrament and carry it to the church St. Dominick, and afterward to a barrack constructed in haste.—A repetition of the atrocious piracies of Cape Haitien and St. Jago is expected at St. Domingo.

THE MINES.—The mines on the East of Hayti have recently been explored by an Englishman named Robertson, who is now going to England to solicit the patronage of English capitalists in the work. [Jour. of Com.]

Horrid.—The Mt. Holly (Pa.) Herald states that a man and his wife "were last week detected of having thrown three of their children into the fire, and there let them remain till they were burnt to ashes. This was done directly after each child was born for the third successive "year."

We are authorized to announce Jacob C. Davis as the independent candidate for Senator of Hancock county, at the ensuing August election.

We are authorized to announce Thos. H. Owens as a candidate for Representative, at the ensuing August election.

We are authorized to announce David Greenleaf as a candidate for Representative, at the ensuing election.

We are authorized to announce the name of James D. Bias, as the people's Independent Democratic Republican candidate for Representative of Hancock county, in the next Legislature.

We are authorized to announce Wm. Backenstos as a candidate for Sheriff, at the ensuing election.

The undersigned would respectfully announce himself as a candidate for the office of Sheriff of Hancock county, Ill. He is untrammelled by party feelings and Conventions; he solicits the votes of all parties. If he is elected, he will serve them as citizens and not as partizans in the discharge of his official duties.

G. A. CHITTENDEN.

We are requested to state that John T. Barnett is an independent democratic candidate for County Commissioner, at the ensuing August election.

We are authorized to announce Franklin J. Bartlett, of St. Mary's presinct, as a candidate for School Commissioner at the next August election.

We are authorized to announce Geo. W. Stigall as a candidate for Coroner of Hancock county.

"There's nothing but roguery in villainous man."

SHAK.

The Sangamo Journal, that has had a sail out for every breeze, for the Mormons and against them, run off with the first morsel against Doctor Bennett, as a dog would with a stolen bone to gnaw. But hark ye! the same Jack at Jobbing, now calls upon Bennett, Rigdon and Robinson to come and make an expose of every thing. O lordy! what a clever fellow Mr. Bennett is now: butter and honey. O, do come and mash Mormonism: Poor fool! do you not see your own ears peer up so Jack-A's-a-i-o-a-l-l-y that every body knows how worthless truthless, and contemptible you are, before you bray! Do get Doctor Bennett to write again for you, and you may be Paddyfied to the degree of A. S. S.

"The Mormons are making great headway in the ancient city of Salem: several of their 'Elders' having arrived and commenced business upon a pretty grand scale. They had made about eighty converts up to the last advices. It certainly is a little strange that such palpable blockheads should find, even on the spot where wit has first flourished, a New England town capable of furnishing such a number of fools.—It is almost enough to shake a man's faith in the efficacy of education, to see a community like that of Salem besotted enough in ignorance to listen to vagaries of so transparent an imposture as that of these 'latter day saints'—but there is no such thing as accounting for the sinuosities of human whim.—(N. Y.) Courier and Enquirer.

Truly, 'there is no such thing as accounting for the sinuosities of human whim,' and human depravity. After Col. Webb, of the regular army, has sharked his thousand, five thousand, and fifty thousand dollars from the mother of harlots and her daughters; covered at Duff Green's mahogany stocked pistol; and shipped into the blood of Cilly, to turn moralist is wonderful! and that too against pure and undefiled religion. He would appear nigher his true character, to exclaim like Timour the Tartar, 'I have done one good deed in all my life I've done, I do sincerely repent of it from the very bottom of my soul!'

Webb talk of fools and the efficacy of education! Salem witches! and Mormon block-heads!

Have the Mormons ever injured him? No; and the Latter Day Saints will glorify God in eternity when nothing is known of him but the smoke of his torment, (unless he repents.) Sic transit gloria.—Webb! Webb! Webb! Webb! Webb! Webb!

MORMONISM AND POLITICS.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, being the only people now living on the globe, that profess to be guided by revelation and lead by the will of God, we feel it our duty to lay before the public a few words on the subject for consideration:

Our rules we know, to some seem odd, But blaming us is blaming God.

Extract from the Book of Doctrine and Covenants. [Page 216 (¶ 2) Sec. 85.]

'And now verily I say unto you, concerning the laws of the land, it is my will that my people should observe to do all things whatsoever I command them, and the law of the land, which is constitutional, supporting that principle of freedom, in maintaining rights and privileges belongs to all mankind and is justifiable before me: therefore I the Lord justifyeth you, and your brethren of my church, in befriending that law which is the constitutional law of the land: and as pertaining to law of man, whatsoever is more or less than these, cometh of evil. I the Lord God maketh you free: therefore ye are free in deed: and the law also maketh you free: nevertheless when the wicked rule the people mourn: wherefore honest men and wise men should be sought for, diligently, and good men and wise men, ye should observe to uphold; otherwise whatsoever is less than these, cometh of evil.'

We hope to hear no more of the Mormons' setting themselves up over the Government.—They are the only people that will eventually support the Constitution of our beloved country.

ACCIDENT.—We learn, from pretty good authority, that a sail keelboat, laden with whiskey, beer, &c., which has been trading below and above on the Mississippi, was capsized, in a severe blow, on Thursday last, some miles above this, and the cargo and two persons lost.

Mormonism.—This seems to be the age of wonders, and as such, if indeed wonders shall not increase as they have of late years, in a geometrical ratio, will be esteemed by posterity. One of the distinguished wonders is Mormonism, for it is a matter of wonder that such a sect should have arisen and continued in a condition so flourishing as this appears to be in. Joseph Smith, the founder, is represented to be, and undoubtedly is, an illiterate man; and yet he has succeeded in forming a powerful sect, with numerous branches in Europe; has brought to his camp many persons of wealth and reputed intelligence as well as the weak and ignorant. He has made himself a prophet—the favored of heaven—and given to his followers a bible, which he would have us believe that he owes to inspiration from God the power to write.

We have received from the Prophet—and we acknowledge the honor we feel at this mark of attention from the modern Mahomet—several numbers of the hebdomadal over which he presides, the "Times and Seasons," published in the Mormon city of Nauvoo, in the State of Illinois. The papers are great curiosities, and contain many matters of interest, "from grave to gay, from lively to severe." In one of them, the prophet discourses about the Temple which he quotes Jehovah as having directed to "be built by the tithing of my people." The temple it seems is going up rapidly, but as companies bring the lumber from the "pine country," it is fair to presume that the work is not cedar. A chapter from the book of Abraham, with an engraving of Mormon hieroglyphics, is given, the figures in the cut are explained so far as the prophet is permitted to explain them.

In the present time, Joe Smith is commander of the Nauvoo legion, which is said to number 4000 men; and he officially invites the officers of the legion to a grand military supper, &c. He promulgates an order, conferring the "freedom of the city," and a command in the legion, upon Bennett, editor of the New York Herald. But Joe Smith is great in finance as well as in polemics and the art of war. He regrets that the notes of the Illinois State Bank are held in such bad repute, and he thinks a "restoration of public confidence" would make the notes pass current, which must be considered a very sage conclusion. As a relief to the sufferings of the people, he recommends Congress to "increase the value of gold and silver, and give us an intermediate coin of platinum;" if this is done, "the country will again prosper, and plenty and unparalled prosperity abound." Joe is waggish, that's a dead certainty.

The good people of Nauvoo are not without the more light and agreeable literature, for Mr. Wm. Smith has published several numbers of a literary paper, The Wasp. As its name indicates it is a complete Stingo—very sharp and spicy. We shall venture to say no more of it, however, for the way a poor devil of an editor, who has contrived to give offence to Mr. Smith, is used up, is a caution to his brothers to keep at a respectful distance.

On the whole, we should judge that the Mormon community is in a flourishing condition; and if the doctrine of Smith, universal love, charity, and equality, is practiced upon, we shall not object to the increase of the prophet's spiritual or temporal kingdom.—Repub. Journal.

We are much obliged to you, sir,

Editors of honest mien,

Like scissors very keen,

Ne'er cut themselves, I ween,

No; they cut what's between.

To the Editor of the Wasp:—

SIR: Permit me to drop you the following sketch of what passed under my observation, in what may be called, the 'United City of the West.'

LIFE IN NAUVOO.

Sunday July 3.—Joseph Smith delivered one of his interesting and sublime discourses. The congregation, which listened with almost breathless attention, was very large, numbering probably 8 or 10,000. The subject matter was drawn from the prophecies of Daniel which foretold that the God of heaven would set up a kingdom in the last days, &c. It was so satisfactorily done, that it was a pity that the world of great men, sectarians and all, could not have been present, to take a few lessons of common sense from Jo's mouth, (as Bennett of the Herald would say) that they might come to understanding and save themselves, as well as talk about saving the heathen.

In the afternoon Pres't. Hyrum Smith spoke with great effect and power. The way he used up the unwise elders, who cry tidings! tidings! but can not tell what it is, was truly a warning to men of God!—and when he smelt out the tobacco chewers and whiskey drinkers, it seemed as if the sinners in Zion were afraid!

Monday July 4. The Nauvoo Legion came out in good spirits and fine style. At about 1 o'clock Lieut. Gen. Smith and Staff was received with the usual salutes and honors of military etiquette common on such occasions.

After the troops were reviewed, the weather showing rather an unfavorable appearance, the Legion was dismissed for refreshments.

Between one and two in the afternoon the Legion was again formed, for inspection, after which the display was imposing and grand. The officers at their posts, in uniform, the Lieut. Gen. giving the word of command through a "speaking trumpet," and the agility with which the evolutions were performed, were enough to convince all true patriots of their country, that the Mormons, besides their superior knowledge in religion, were beginning to shine as an Egyptian for the benefit of light, liberty and law. The after part of the day was very fine, and the assemblage large,—perhaps there were from 11 to 12,000. There were three steamboats at our landing in the course of the day; one landed in the forenoon; and two came down from Burlington in the afternoon with a respectable party, who were escorted into the field by a detachment from the Legion and the band.

In the midst of the hilarity of this anniversary of our nation's birth day, a few of the red men of the west, were present to witness the order, regularity, sobriety and union which everywhere, seemed to prevail; for let it be remembered, that little or no swearing, gambling, and with the exception of two cases fined $10-25, no whiskey dealing—was known in our united city.

Of the saints who stand as living lights, For their God, their country and their rights.

Gentlemen present, who had become acquainted with the fact, that the Mormons had been twice plundered of their arms, and obliged to do military duty, when they became citizens of Illinois, or pay their fines, or go to jail for want of means, were agreeably disappointed to observe the fortitude of a band of brethren, who, though smitten by the iron hand of mobocracy, were not conquered no; many of them uniformed al-a-mode; equipped cap-a-pie, and disciplined in the tactics of soldiery, were as good a sample of the left arm of nation's defence, (the navy the right,) as could be produced in the United States, and an honor to any State or nation. In the room of grumbling, it would be well for more of the citizens of the United States to emulate the Mormons and show themselves worthy of the name they ought to bear throughout the world: citizen soldiers. Then they could say in the language of the declaration of Independence, Brother nations, 'ENEMIES IN WAR, IN PEACE FRIENDS.'

The fair, too, shared in the moral splendor of Nauvoo; for some of the highest officers' ladies, in riding costumes, accompanied them before the Legion, and gracefully received and shared the ordinal honors of free men and free woman.—Virtue beautifies and righteousness exalts the human family. Laus Deus. The sound of the cannon brought flesh to the mind, the language of the venerable but departed Adams; written sixty six years ago: that the fourth of July would henceforth be celebrated 'by the ringing of bells, bonfires and the firing of cannon.' Several very appropriate speeches were made before the Legion was dismissed. Gen. Smith's was able and satisfactory; setting forth the conduct, harmony and union of our citizen soldiers, in their true light. A speech from a gentleman in behalf of the attending guests of the day, was responded to by a vote of thanks. All things seemed to indicate good feelings, and brotherly love, which hope may be perpetual. Amor vincet omnia.

Tuesday, July 5—Police reports.

Mayor. Well, Mr. Nokes, you are arraigned for disorderly conduct. Are you guilty or not guilty?

Nokes. Not guilty.

M. Call the witnesses.

N. Stop; what do you call disorderly conduct?

M. Disturbing the peace.

N. Then I'm guilty, I reckon, for I went to grocery and got some whiskey, and after I had drunk it I thought I would take a game of cards; started to buy some candles; fell into the ditch, or mud, and raising up saw a show tent, and started for it—and the next thing I remember, I was tied and under guard.

M. You was drunk, I suppose.

N. 'Spose I was—for I have not got back with the candles yet.

The Mayor remanded him, and he was discharged by paying police costs, which was canceled by his informing against Mr. Suckeroonton, the grocer.

In the interim Mr. Banjo was brought in for selling whiskey from a wagon without license.

Mayor. Mr. Banjo, you are called upon to know why you sell whiskey contrary to the city ordinance.

Banjo. Haint sold any whiskey—sold porter and give away whiskey.

Witness. Saw him pay for mending of a saddle chain in whiskey.

B. Well, haint I a right to pay my debts?

M. Certainly; but not by selling whiskey without license.

W. I gave him a picayune for a pint of whiskey.

B. No; I gave you the whiskey, and sold you the porter for a pic.

W. I know you said so, but I didn't, and the porter was not fit for the horse.

The ordinance was read: no selling or giving away whiskey appeared to be the result.

B. Then I've broke the law.

Fined $ 0.

Mr. Suckeroonton, the grocer, came in, and, having no license, was fined $25.

Wednesday, July 6. Two keel boats, sloop rigged, and laden with provisions and apparatus necessary for the occasion, and manned with fifty brave fellows, started this morning on an expedition to the upper Mississippi, among the Pinerias, where they can join those already there, and erect Mills, saw boards and plank, make shingles, hew timber, and return next spring with rafts for the Temple of God, Nauvoo House, &c., to beautify the city of Nauvoo, according to the prophets, in such case made and provided.

Thursday, July 7. Col. Henderson, the Whig candidate for Lieut. Governor, on the ticket with Joseph Duncan, at a little past 3 o'clock, took the stand near the Temple, and delivered his prospective speech to a respectable and attentive audience: A sketch of which, is,

We are authorized to announce Jacob C. Davis as the independent candidate for Senator of Hancock county, at the ensuing August election.

We are authorized to announce Thos. H. Owens as a candidate for Representative, at the ensuing August election.

We are authorized to announce David Greenleaf as a candidate for Representative, at the ensuing election.

We are authorized to announce the name of James D. Bias, as the people's Independent Democratic Republican candidate for Representative of Hancock county, in the next Legislature.

We are authorized to announce Wm. Backenstos as a candidate for Sheriff, at the ensuing election.

The undersigned would respectfully announce himself as a candidate for the office of Sheriff of Hancock county, Ill. He is untrammelled by party feelings and Conventions; he solicits the votes of all parties. If he is elected, he will serve them as citizens and not as partizans in the discharge of his official duties.

G. A. CHITTENDEN.

We are requested to state that John T. Barnett is an independent democratic candidate for County Commissioner, at the ensuing August election.

We are authorized to announce Franklin J. Bartlett, of St. Mary's presinet, as a candidate for School Commissioner at the next August election.

We are authorized to announce Geo. W. Stigall as a candidate for Coroner of Hancock county.

'There's nothing but roguery in villanous man.'

SHAK.

The Sangamo Journal, that has had a sail out for every breeze, for the Mormons and against them, run off with the first morsel against Doctor Bennett, as a dog would with a stolen bone to gnaw. But hark ye! the same Jack at Jobbing, now calls upon Bennett, Rigdon and Robinson to come and make an expose of every thing. O lordy! what a clever fellow Mr. Bennett is now! Butter and honey! O, do come and mash Mormonism: Poor fool! do you not see your own ears peer up so J-a-c-k-A-s-s-i-c-a-l-l-y that every body knows how worthless, truthless, and contemptible you are, before you bray! Do get Doctor Bennett to write again for you, and you may be Paddyfied to the degree of A. S. S.

'The Mormons are making great headway in the ancient city of Salem; several of their 'Elders' having arrived and commenced business upon a pretty grand scale. They had made about eighty converts up to the last advices. It certainly is a little strange that such palpable blockheads should find, even on the spot where witches first flourished, a New England town capable of furnishing such a number of fools.—It is almost enough to shake a man's faith in the efficacy of education, to see a community like that of Salem besotted enough in ignorance to listen to vagaries of so transparent an imposture as that of these 'latter day saints'—but there is no such thing as accounting for the sinuosities of human whim.—(N. Y.) Courier and Enquirer.

Truly, 'there is no such thing as accounting for the sinuosities of human whim,' and human depravity. After Col. Webb, 'of the regular army,' has sharked his thousand, five thousand, and fifty thousand dollars from the mother of harlots and her daughters; covered at Duff Green's mahogany stocked pistol; and slipped into the blood of Cilly, to turn moralist is wonderful! and that too against pure and undefiled religion. He would appear nigher his true character, to exclaim like Timour the Tartar, 'If one good deed in all my life I've done, I do sincerely repent of it from the very bottom of my soul!'

Webb talk of fools and the efficacy of education! Salem witches! and Mormon block-heads!

Have the Mormons ever injured him? No; and the Latter Day Saints will glorify God in eternity when nothing is known of him but the smoke of his torment, (unless he repents.) Sic transit gloria—Webba! Webba! Webba! Webba! Webba!

MORMONISM AND POLITICS.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, being the only people now living on the globe, that profess to be guided by revelation and lead by the will of God, we feel it our duty to lay before the public a few words on the subject for consideration:

Our rules we know, to some seem odd, But blaming us is blaming God.

Extract from the Book of Doctrine and Covenants. [Page 216. (¶ 2) Sec. 85.]

'And now verily I say unto you, concerning the laws of the land, it is my will that my people should observe to do all things whatsoever I command them, and the law of the land, which is constitutional, supporting that principle of freedom, in maintaining rights and privileges belongs to all mankind and is justifiable before me: therefore I the Lord justifieth you, and your brethren of my church, in befriending that law which is the constitutional law of the land: and as pertaining to law of man, whatsoever is more or less than these, cometh of evil. I the Lord God maketh you free: therefore ye are free in deed: and the law also maketh you free: nevertheless when the wicked rule the people mourn; wherefore honest men and wise men should be sought for, diligently, and good men and wise men, ye should observe to uphold; otherwise whatsoever is less than these, cometh of evil.'

We hope to hear no more of the Mormons setting themselves up over the Government.—They are the only people that will eventually support the Constitution of our beloved country.

ACCIDENT.—We learn, from pretty good authority, that a sail keelboat, laden with whiskey, beer, &c., which has been trading below and above on the Mississippi, was capsized, in a severe blow, on Thursday last, some miles above this, and the cargo and two persons lost.

Mormonism.—This seems to be the age of wonders, and as such, if indeed wonders shall not increase as they have of late years, in a geometrical ratio, will be esteemed by posterity. One of the distinguished wonders is Mormonism, for it is a matter of wonder that such a sect should have arisen and continued in a condition so flourishing as this appears to be in. Joseph Smith, the founder, is represented to be, and undoubtedly is, an illiterate man; and yet he has succeeded in forming a powerful sect, with numerous branches in Europe; has brought to his camp many persons of wealth and reputation, intelligence as well as the weak and ignorant. He has made himself a prophet—the favored of heaven—and given to his followers a bible, which he would have us believe that he owes to inspiration from God the power to write.

We have received from the Prophet—and we acknowledge the honor we feel at this mark of attention from the modern Mahomet—several numbers of the hebdomadal over which he presides, the "Times and Seasons," published in the Mormon city of Nauvoo, in the State of Illinois. The papers are great curiosities, and contain many matters of interest, "from grave to gay, from lively to severe." In one of them, the prophet discourses about the Temple which he quotes Jehovah as having directed to "be built by the tithing of my people." The temple it seems is going up rapidly, but as companies bring the lumber from the "pine country," it is fair to presume that the work is not cedar. A chapter from the book of Abraham, with an engraving of Mormon hieroglyphics, is given; the figures in the cut are explained so far as the prophet is permitted to explain them, "at the present time." Joe Smith is commander of the Nauvoo legion, which is said to number 4000 men, and he officially invites the officers of the legion to a grand military supper, &c. He promulgates an order, conferring the "freedom of the city," and a command in the legion, upon Bennet, editor of the New York Herald. But Joe Smith is great in finance as well as in polemics and the art of war. He regrets that the notes of the Illinois State Bank are held in such bad repute, and he thinks a "restoration of public confidence" would make the notes pass current, which must be considered a very sage conclusion. As a relief to the sufferings of the people, he recommends Congress to "increase the value of gold and silver, and give us an intermediate coin of platinum;" if this is done, "the country will again prosper, and plenty and unparalled prosperity abound." Joe is waggish, that's a dead certainty.

The good people of Nauvoo are not without the more light and agreeable literature, for Mr. Wm. Smith has published several numbers of a literary paper, The Wasp. As its name indicates, it is a complete Stingo—very sharp and spicy. We shall venture to say no more of it, however, for the way a poor devil of an editor, who has contrived to give offence to Mr. Smith, is used up, is a caution to his brothers to keep at a respectful distance.

On the whole, we should judge that the Mormon community is in a flourishing condition; and if the doctrine of Smith, universal love, charity, and equality, is practiced upon, we shall not object to the increase of the prophet's spiritual or temporal kingdom.—Repub. Journal.

We are much obliged to you, sir,
Editors of honest mien,
Like scissors very keen,
Ne'er cut themselves, I ween,
No; they cut what's between.

To the Editor of the Wasp:—

Sir: Permit me to drop you the following sketch of what passed under my observation, in what may be called, the 'United City of the West.'

LIFE IN NAUVOO.

Sunday July 3.—Joseph Smith delivered one of his interesting and sublime discourses. The congregation, which listened with almost breathless attention, was very large, numbering probably 8 or 10,000. The subject matter was drawn from the prophecies of Daniel which foretold that the God of heaven would set up a kingdom in the last days, &c. It was so satisfactorily done, that it was a pity that the world of great men, sectarians and all, could not have been present, to take a few lessons of common sense from Jo's mouth, (as Bennett of the Herald would say) that they might come to understanding and save themselves, as well as talk about saving the heathen.

In the afternoon Pres't. Hyrum Smith spoke with great effect and power. The way he used up the unwise elders, who cry tidings! tidings! but can not tell what it is, was truly a warning to men of God!—and when he smelt out the tobacco chewers and whiskey drinkers, it seemed as if the sinners in Zion were afraid!

Monday July 4. The Nauvoo Legion came out in good spirits and fine style. At about 11 o'clock Lieut. Gen. Smith and Staff was received with the usual salutes and honors of military etiquette, common on such occasions.

After the troops were reviewed, the weather showing rather an unfavorable appearance, the Legion was dismissed for refreshments.

Between one and two in the afternoon the Legion was again formed, for inspection, after which the display was imposing and grand. The officers at their posts, in uniform, the Lieut. Gen. giving the word of command through a "speaking trumpet," and the agility with which the evolutions were performed, were enough to convince all true patriots of their country, that the Mormons, besides their superior knowledge in religion, were beginning to shine as an Aegis for the benefit of light, liberty and law. The after part of the day was very fine, and the assemblage large,—perhaps there were from 11 to 12,000. There were three steamboats at our landing in the course of the day; one landed in the forenoon; and two came down from Burlington in the afternoon with a respectable party, who were escorted into the field by a detachment from the Legion and the band.

In the midst of the hilarity of this anniversary of our nation's birth day, a few of the red men of the West, were present to witness the order, regularity, sobriety and union which every where, seemed to prevail; for let it be remembered, that little or no swearing, gambling, and (with the exception of two cases fined $10-25.) no whiskey dealing—was known in our united city.

Of the saints who stand as living lights,

For their God, their country and their rights.

Gentlemen present, who had become acquainted with the fact, that the Mormons had been twice plundered of their arms, and obliged to do military duty, when they became citizens of Illinois, or pay their fines, or go to jail for want of means, were agreeably disappointed to observe the fortitude of a band of brethren, who, though smitten by the iron hand of mobocracy, were not conquered, no; many of them uniformed al-a-mode; equipped cap-a-pie, and disciplined in the tactics of soldiery, were as good a sample of the left arm of nation's defence, (the navy the right,) as could be produced in the United States, and an honor to any State or nation. In the room of grumbling, it would be well for more of the citizens of the United States to emulate the Mormons and show themselves worthy of the name they ought to bear throughout the world: citizen soldiers. Then they could say in the language of the declaration of Independence, Brother nations, 'ENEMIES IN WAR, IN PEACE FRIENDS.'

The fair, too, shared in the moral splendor of Nauvoo; for some of the highest officers' ladies, in riding costumes, accompanied them before the Legion, and gracefully received and shared the cordial honors of free men and free woman—Virtue beautifies and righteousness exalts the human family. Laus Deus. The sound of the cannon brought fresh to the mind, the language of the venerable but departed Adams; written sixty six years ago: that the fourth of July would henceforth be celebrated 'by the ringing of bells, bonfires and the firing of cannon.' Several very appropriate speeches were made before the Legion was dismissed. Gen. Smith's was able and satisfactory; setting forth the conduct, harmony and union of our citizen soldiers, in their true light. A speech from a gentleman in behalf of the attending guests of the day, was responded to by a vote of thanks. All things seemed to indicate good feelings, and brotherly love, which hope may be perpetual. Amor vincet omnium.

Tuesday, July 5.—Police reports.

Mayor. Well, Mr. Nokes, you are arraigned for disorderly conduct. Are you guilty or not guilty?

Nokes. Not guilty.

M. Call the witnesses.

N. Stop; what do you call disorderly conduct?

M. Disturbing the peace.

N. Then I'm guilty, I reckon, for I went to grocery and got some whiskey, and after I had drunk it I thought I would take a game of cards; started to buy some candles; fell into the ditch, or mud, and raising up saw a show tent, and started for it—and the next thing I remember, I was tied and under guard.

M. You was drunk, I suppose.

N. Spose I was—for I have not got back with the candles yet.

The Mayor reprimanded him, and he was discharged by paying police costs, which was canceled by his informing against Mr. Suckeroonton, the grocer.

In the interim Mr. Banjo was brought in for selling whiskey from a wagon without license.

Mayor. Mr. Banjo, you are called upon to know why you sell whiskey contrary to the city ordinance.

Banjo. Haint sold any whiskey—sold porter and give away whiskey.

Witness. Saw him pay for mending of a trace chain in whiskey.

B. Well hav'n't I a right to pay my debts?

M. Certainly; but not by selling whiskey without license.

W. I gave him a picayune for a pint of whiskey.

B. No; I gave you the whiskey, and sold you the porter for a pic.

W. I know you said so, but I did'n't, and the porter was'n't fit for the hogs.

The ordinance was read: no selling or giving away whiskey appeared to be the result.

B. Then I've broke the law.

Fined $10.

Mr. Suckeroonton, the grocer, came in, and, having no license, was fined $25.

Wednesday, July 6. Two keel boats, sloop rigged, and laden with provisions and apparatus necessary for the occasion, and manned with fifty brave fellows, started this morning on an expedition to the upper Mississippi, among the Pineries, where they can join those already there, and erect Mills, saw boards and plank, make shingles, hew timber, and return next spring with rafts for the Temple of God, Nauvoo House, &c., to beautify the city of Nauvoo, according to the prophets, in such case made and provided.

Thursday, July 7. Col. Henderson, the Whig candidate for Lieut. Governor, on the ticket with Joseph Duncan, at a little past 3 o'clock, took the stand near the Temple, and delivered his prospective speech to a respectable and attentive audience. A sketch of which, is, that he was raised in a school where it was necessary to give an expose of a candidate's political opinions and views: was born in Kentucky, raised in Tennessee, and adopted in Illinois; should divide his discourse into four heads, viz:

1. An amendment of the Constitution;
2. The State debts;
3. A National Bank;
4. A protective Tariff.

1. The amendment of the Constitution was actually necessary to curtail the number of State Representatives which according to the population would be 361: To lessen the Senate term to 2 years; to lessen the term of time and powers of the Supreme Court Judges; to prevent the Legislature from granting divorces; to prevent aliens from voting at elections, and to make them swear allegiance to our Government.

2. To extinguish the State debt of fifteen millions of dollars, without taxation; The State owes the Bank and the Bank owes the State about equal sums; pass a law to make one balance the other: The canal has paid its way and can; and the rail road debt can be liquidated by our share of the public land, which eventually will be 34,240,000 acres, &c.

3. A national Bank to regulate the circulating medium; have have had two specimens; one chartered in 1791, under the sanction of Washington, for 20 years; one under Madison for 20 years, chartered in 1816; During nine years without a national bank, the whole country had been ruined: Twenty nine Legislatures cannot furnish a safe currency, nor will they any more than twenty nine cooks without seeking each other, could furnish Nauvoo with a fourth of July dinner.

4. A protective Tariff to regulate trade, so that we may sell more than we buy; for the balance against the United States during the last 50 years, is about 800,000,000. In General Jackson's term there was a surplus in the Treasury, and it was returned to the States (this happened in the nine years of ruin before mentioned)

The Veto power ought to be destroyed; every man went for his own State; Silas Wright wanted a duty on salt; because York State manufactured the article; Benton did not; Mr. Buchanan wanted a duty on iron for the benefit of Pennsylvania; Mr. Young wants a duty on lead for the benefit of Illinois; the Southwest members on sugar for Louisiana; the Carolinians on cotton so that the Bostonians need not trade in cotton in the Indies.

Could find better men than President Tyler at a log rolling, or corn shucking; prophesied what would be and closed.

Friday July 8. Weather very cool for the season: Thermometer 60°: wind north and chilly: Council met to revise the ordinances and laws of the Nauvoo Legion; Steam-boats, Ohio and Agnes, came up from below; nothing new. Mormon maxims:

To be blessed, work:

To be cursed, shirk.

Saturday, July 9. Fine day: people enquiring—Wasp out! No; but soon will be for I see that old Wasp flibbish his wings at the window, as a signal that a swarm of yellow jackets was about hatching, and like the Lord's hornets for Israel, would go forth stinging and to sting hydrophobic Editors, hypocrites, liars, whoremongers, adulterers, mobocrats, sectarian bigots, idlers, loafers, and foolish men, women and children, wherever they can get a job—

E FLURIE'S UNUM.

From the National Intelligencer.

A TARIFF BILL FOR REVENUE

A Tariff Bill for Revenue was yesterday reported by the indefatigable Committee of Ways and Means of the House of Representatives; and now, if we may speak figuratively of the business of the session, all the irons are in the fire.—We wish that none of them may burn!

We have glanced our eye over the bill, with a view to give the reader a general idea of its character. It proposes to lay duty on goods imported, from abroad, on the chief articles thereof, as follows:

On manufactured wool exceeding 8 cents per pound in value, thirty per centum ad valorem.

On the same article of the value of 8 cents or under per pound, a duty of five per cent, ad valorem.

On all manufactures of wool forty per cent ad valorem, except carpeting, blankets, and some other articles; on which special ad valorem duties are proposed.

On cotton manufactured three cents per pound.

On all manufactures of cotton not otherwise specified, thirty per centum ad valorem.

On all articles of silk according to their character thirty or thirty-five per cent.

On manufactured hemp, forty dollars per ton.

On iron, in bars or bolts, not manufactured by rolling, eighteen dollars per ton; on the same article, made in whole or in part by rolling, thirty dollars per ton.

On lead, in pigs, bars or sheets, 3 cents per pound.

On cut glass, from twenty-five to forty-five cents per pound; on plain, moulded, and pressed glass, from ten to sixteen cents per pound.

On all articles of china or any other earthen ware, thirty per cent ad valorem.

On tanned sole or bend leather, six cents per pound; on calfskins tanned and dressed, three dollars and fifty cents per dozen, &c.

On all bound books in the English language, twenty cents per pound, &c.

On raw sugar, two and a half cents per pound.

On teas, according to their quality, twenty cents, fifteen cents, ten cents, down to the Bohea on which a duty of three cents only is proposed.

On salt, ten cents per bushel.

After going through a long enumeration of specific duties, a duty of twenty per centum ad valorem upon all remaining articles.

An additional duty of ten per cent, on all articles imported in foreign vessels in cases where a specific discrimination is not made in the bill.

All duties hereafter to be paid in cash.

The bill also proposes to repeal the proviso of the Land Distribution Act which suspends the operation of that act in the event of any duty being laid by Congress of a higher rate than twenty per centum ad valorem.

Oregon Territory.—We find the following interesting statement of the prospects of this territory in an exchange paper:

An embryo Republic.—The settlement at the mouth of the Oregon is growing rapidly in importance. The number of inhabitants has been recently much augmented, and it may be expected that in a few years it will flow with a tide, such as has overspread our territory in the valley of the Mississippi and in the space of the quarter of a century filled a wilderness with a numerous and a thriving population. At last accounts, preparations were in progress to organize among the settlers a regular form of government. The next news probably will be the establishment of an infant republic on the shores of the Pacific. Under judicious management, the progress of the settlement cannot fail to be more rapid and prosperous even than was that of the American colonies. The experiment commences under the most favorable auspices. The founders of the commonwealth belong to the Anglo Saxon breed, and are well educated and properly imbued with the spirit of true democracy. They carry with them principles and institutions that have grown into the vigor of maturity under the shelter of the British and American institutions.

All the experience acquired during the alterations, the vicissitudes and the revolutions that marked the struggle for liberty in England and in the United States, passes as heirloom or inheritance to the descendant of the pilgrims on the bank of the Oregon. There are no theories to be discussed or to be tested—and no experiments to be tried, before arranging or setting in motion the machinery of a Republican government. The whole science has been fully ascertained and well established, ready for use and to be put in practice. Other advantages of equal importance, under which the Oregon colony begins its career, might be mentioned. The distance of the spot from the old world renders improbable any interference on the part of the European governments. The soil is fertile, the climate pleasant and salubrious, and the territory sufficiently extensive to accommodate all emigrants, and afford ample room for a Democratic Empire, more spacious than our own United States.—The gift of prophecy, is not necessary to foresee a grand destiny ahead for Oregon and probably a few years will witness its accomplishment.—N. O. Bulletin.

WORMS IN WHEAT.

Editor of the Chicago Democrat.

Sir. It may be interesting to many of your readers, although unpleasant news, to be informed of the awful depredations the worms are now making upon the crops of wheat, corn, oats, &c., but more especially upon the former. For some days past, my business has given me an opportunity of seeing many persons from various parts of the country, and I have full confidence in their statements that the crops in Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, and Illinois are receiving great injury from the worms. Whole fields of wheat are already destroyed, varying from 5 to 100, 150, and 200 acres. It is reported that one farmer on Fox river, near Ottawa, has lost a field of over 300 acres. There is no mistake; they are working great destruction in many places on the Fox river. They are now in some of the fields on Indian Creek, Somonock and Big Rock Creeks. This is truly alarming; and the more so, as we are left entirely in the dark how to account for their strange and sudden appearance, simultaneously, in Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, and Illinois. Whence their origin? Is it from some winged insect depositing eggs on the blades or stalks? From some worm or insect making a deposit upon the ground last season and the peculiar state of the weather being such as to cause them to grow and thus prey upon the crops? In what manner can they be exterminated? It is hoped, among your numerous readers, some will not delay to communicate their views upon so important a subject.

In haste, your obt. serv't.

SILAS LONG.

Jefferson, Big Rock Creek, June 20, 1842.

GOVERNOR DORR ARRESTED, AND READY TO BE DELIVERED.—On Sunday, having discovered the whereabouts of Governor Dorr, of Rhode Island, we proceeded, like a good citizen, to take measures for his arrest, and he may now be said to be in our custody, root and branch.

If Governor King, of Rhode Island, will, therefore, send on his $1,000 in cash, with an authorized agent, we shall deliver to such agent the person of Governor Dorr, exclusive of "that sword." As we always do a cash business, we must have the cash on the nail—because among other reasons, we shall appropriate the whole of the money, so received, in aiding and assisting the people of Rhode Island to procure as fast as possible a Constitution such as every other State in New England possesses, and such as every free American ought to live under. This is no joke—but down right earnest. Governor King will therefore be quick.

ABOUT THE WEATHER.—We continue to hear of the ravages committed by Jack Frost. He has ruined numerous gardens, and spoiled acres and acres of corn. Fortunately, however, he has not touched the wheat and rye. In several sections he was accompanied by snow, which fell in Franconia, N. H. to the depth of four inches.

Georgia Gold Mines.—The Milledgeville Journal states that persons who follow the pursuit of digging for gold in that vicinity, have of late been much stimulated in their labor in consequence of the handsome profits they have in many instances realized. It is said that in the neighborhood of Dahlonega, there are from fifteen hundred to two thousand pennyweights found daily. At one mine, on Battle Branch, there was lately found one lump worth, it is said, one hundred and twenty eight dollars. It is supposed, from present prospects, that there will be at least from $30,000 to $400,000 realized in that section from the pursuit within the present year. The late success in this business is drawing the attention of many others to it.

Slow but Sure.—Topping, the murderer, was sentenced Tuesday by Judge Kent, and will be hung on the 5th of August. The miserable man said that the poor woman he killed was his wife, and had borne him ten children. What human being could live after such an act, whether there was a court of law or not to punish him! In such a case death is happiness. Colt will have to follow.—We do not see how he can escape. Dick Robinson's days are past and gone—Charles F. Mitchell is in Ohio. Why does not Governor Seward send on a requisition for him to the Governor of that State? He is ready enough to apprehend Governor Dorr—why should he neglect his duty in Mitchell's case?

Peculiarity in Orange Trees.—Many of the trees in one garden were a hundred years old, still bearing plentifully a highly prized, thin skinned orange, full of juice and free from pips. The thinness of the rind of a St. Michael's orange, and its freedom from pips, depend on the age of the tree. The young trees when in full vigor, bear fruit with a thick pulpy rind and an abundance of seeds; but, as the vigor of the plant declines, the peel becomes thinner and the seed gradually diminish in number until they disappear altogether. Thus the oranges that we esteem the most are the produce of aged trees, and those which we consider the least palatable come from plants in full vigor.—[A Winter in the Azores.]

The Sultan of Muscat has presented Mr. Pingree, of Salem, a splendid Arabian horse: The steed arrived a short time since at Salem, accompanied by a couple of Arab grooms, who were objects of great attention for a few days, but not being very much delighted with the summer frosts, or perhaps a little fearful of being hanged for a couple of witches, they sailed on Sunday last for Zanzibar, in one of Mr. Pingree's vessels.

3061 passengers have arrived in this city from foreign ports, during the two last days.—Courier & Enquirer.

BENCH & MOULDING PLANES.

WANTED, immediately, a large number of the above Planes on tithing. The brethren who have got such and can spare them would greatly facilitate the building of the Temple by bringing them as soon as possible to the recorder's office, and they shall be entered to their credit on tithing. All kinds of bench planes whether good or indifferent can be made useful at the Temple. The moulding planes should be such as suit the present fashion.

Also all lumber, which would make plane stocks, would be very serviceable.

JOSEPH SMITH, Trustee.

W. CLAYTON, Clerk.
Nauvoo July 8th 1842.

STRAYED.

From the enclosure of the Trustee in Trust, a large red ox, about 8 years old; the tithing of Dr. Lenox M. Knight any person who will secure and return him to the recorder's office shall have our thanks, and will add so much to his own interest in the building of the Temple.

JOSEPH SMITH, Trustee.

W. CLAYTON, Clerk.
Recorder's office July 9th 1842.

NEW GOODS, CHEAP.

W. Holdridge has just opened an assortment of FANCY GOODS; among which are Bonnets, Shoes, and a general variety of silks prints muslin delaines, which he will sell at New York prices, at the store of Wm. Allen south of the Temple.

Nauvoo, July 8, 1842.

that he was raised in a school where it was necessary to give an expose of a candidate's political opinions and views: was born in Kentucky, raised in Tennessee, and adopted in Illinois; should divide his discourse into four heads, viz:

1. An amendment of the Constitution;
2. The State debts;
3. A National Bank;
4. A protective Tariff.

1. The amendment of the Constitution was actually necessary to curtail the number of State Representatives which according to the population would be 261: To lessen the Senate term to 2 years; to lessen the term of time and powers of the Supreme Court Judges; to prevent the Legislature from granting divorces; to prevent aliens from voting at elections, and to make them swear allegiance to our Government.

2. To extinguish the State debt of fifteen millions of dollars, without taxation; The State owes the Bank and the Bank owes the State about equal sums; pass a law to make one balance the other: The canal has paid its way and can; and the rail road debt can be liquidated by our share of the public land, which eventually will be 34,240,000 acres, &c.

3. A national Bank to regulate the circulating medium; have have had two as specimens; one chartered in 1791, under the sanction of Washington, for 20 years; one under Madison for 20 years, chartered in 1816: During nine years without a national bank, the whole country had been ruined: Twenty nine Legislatures cannot furnish a safe currency, nor will they any more than twenty nine cooks without seeking each other, could furnish Nauvoo with a fourth of July dinner.

4. A protective Tariff to regulate trade, so that we may sell more than we buy; for the balance against the United States during the last 50 years, is about 800,000,000. In General Jackson's term there was a surplus in the Treasury, and it was returned to the States (this happened in the nine years of ruin before mentioned.)

The Veto power ought to be destroyed; every man went for his own State; Silas Wright wanted a duty on salt; because York State manufactured the article; Benton did not; Mr. Buchanan wanted a duty on iron for the benefit of Pennsylvania; Mr. Young wants a duty on lead for the benefit of Illinois; the Southwest members on sugar for Louisiana; the Carolinians on cotton so that the Bostonians need not trade ice for cotton in the Indies.

Could find better men than President Tyler at a log rolling, or corn shucking; prophesied what would be and closed.

Friday July 9. Weather very cool for the season: Thermometer 60°; wind north, and chilly; Council met to revise the ordinances and laws of the Nauvoo Legion; Steam-boats, Ohio and Agnes, came up from below; nothing new. Mormon maxims:

To be blessed, work:
To be cursed, shirk.

Saturday, July 9. Fine day; people enquiring—Wasp out? No; but soon will be, for I see that old Wasp fibbish his wings at the window, as a signal that a swarm of yellow jackets was about hatching, and like the Lord's hornets for Israel, would go forth stinging and to sting hydrophobic Editors, hypocrites, liars, whomongers, adulterers, mobocrats, sectarian bigots, idlers, loafers, and foolish men, women and children, wherever they can get a job—

E PLURIBUS UNUM.

From the National Intelligencer.

A TARIFF BILL FOR REVENUE.

A Tariff Bill for Revenue was yesterday reported by the indefatigable Committee of Ways and Means of the House of Representatives; and now, if we may speak figuratively of the business of the session, all the irons are in the fire.—We wish that none of them may burn!

We have glanced our eye over the bill, with a view to give the reader a general idea of its character. It proposes to lay duty on goods imported, from abroad, on the chief articles thereof, as follows:

On manufactured wool exceeding 8 cents per pound in value, thirty per centum ad valorem.

On the same article of the value of 8 cents or under per pound, a duty of five per cent, ad valorem.

On all manufactures of wool forty per cent ad valorem, except carpeting, blankets, and some other articles, on which

special ad valorem duties are proposed.

On cotton manufactured three cents per pound.

On all manufactures of cotton not otherwise specified, thirty per centum ad valorem.

On all articles of silk according to their character thirty or thirty-five per cent.

On manufactured hemp, forty dollars per ton.

On iron, in bars or bolts, not manufactured by rolling, eighteen dollars per ton; on the same article, made in whole or in part by rolling, thirty dollars per ton.

On lead, in pigs, bars or sheets, 3 cents per pound.

On cut glass, from twenty-five to forty-five cents per pound; on plain, moulded, and pressed glass, from ten to sixteen cents per pound.

On all articles of china or any other earthen ware, thirty per cent ad valorem.

On tanned sole or bend leather, six cents per pound; on calfskins tanned and dressed, three dollars and fifty cents per dozen, &c.

On all bound books in the English language, twenty cents per pound, &c.

On raw sugar, two and a half cents per pound.

On teas, according to their quality, twenty cents, fifteen cents, ten cents, down to the Bohea on which a duty of three cents only is proposed.

On salt, ten cents per bushel.

After going through a long enumeration of specific duties, a duty of twenty per centum ad valorem upon all remaining articles.

An additional duty of ten per cent, on all articles imported in foreign vessels in cases where a specific discrimination is not made in the bill.

All duties hereafter to be paid in cash.

The bill also proposes to repeal the proviso of the Land Distribution Act which suspends the operation of that act in the event of any duty being laid by Congress of a higher rate than twenty per centum ad valorem.

Oregon Territory.—We find the following interesting statement of the prospects of this territory in an exchange paper:

An embryo Republic.—The settlement at the mouth of the Oregon is growing rapidly in importance. The number of inhabitants has been recently much augmented by the emigration, which is on the increase, and it may be expected that in a few years it will flow with a tide, such as has overspread our territory in the valley of the Mississippi and in the space of the quarter of a century filled a wilderness with a numerous and a thriving population. At last accounts, preparations were in progress to organize among the settlers a regular form of government. The next news probably will be the establishment of an infant republic on the shores of the Pacific. Under judicious management, the progress of the settlement cannot fail to be more rapid and prosperous even than was that of the American colonies. The experiment commences under the most favorable auspices. The founders of the commonwealth belong to the Anglo Saxon breed, and are well educated and properly imbued with the spirit of true democracy. They carry with them principles and institutions that have grown into the vigor of maturity under the shelter of the British and American institutions.

All the experience acquired during the alterations, the vicissitudes and the revolutions that marked the struggle for liberty in England and in the United States, passes as heirloom or inheritance to the descendant of the pilgrims, on the bank of the Oregon. There are no theories to be discussed or to be tested—and no experiments to be tried, before arranging or setting in motion the machinery of a Republican government. The whole science has been fully ascertained and settled, and its principles illustrated and well established, ready for use and to be put in practice. Other advantages of equal importance, under which the Oregon colony begins its career, might be mentioned. The distance of the spot from the old world renders improbable any interference on the part of the European governments. The soil is fertile, the climate pleasant and salubrious, and the territory sufficiently extensive to accommodate all emigrants, and afford ample room for a Democratic Empire, more spacious than our own United States.—The gift of prophecy, is not necessary to foresee a grand destiny ahead for Oregon and probably a few years will witness its accomplishment.—N. O. Bulletin.

WORMS IN WHEAT.

Editor of the Chicago Democrat.

Sir. It may be interesting to many of your readers, although unpleasant news, to be informed of the awful depredations the worms are now making upon the crops of wheat, corn, oats, &c., but more especially upon the former. For some days past, my business has given me an opportunity of seeing many persons from various parts of the country, and I have full confidence in their statements that the crops in Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, and Illinois are receiving great injury from the worms. Whole fields of wheat are already destroyed, varying from 5 to 100, 150, and 200 acres. It is reported that one farmer on Eox river, near Ottawa, has lost a field of over 300 acres. There is no mistake; they are working great destruction in many places on the Fox river. They are now in some of the fields on Indian Creek, Sommeck and Big Rock Creeks. This is truly alarming; and the more so, as we are left entirely in the dark how to account for their strange and sudden appearance, simultaneously, in Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, and Illinois. Whence their origin? Is it from some winged insect depositing eggs on the blades or stalks? From some worm or insect making a deposit upon the ground last season and the peculiar state of the weather being such as to cause them to grow and thus prey upon the crops? In what manner can they be exterminated? It is hoped, among your numerous readers, some will not delay to communicate their views upon so important a subject.

In haste, your obt. servt.

SILAS LONG.

Jefferson, Big Rock Creek, June 20, 1842.

GOVERNOR DORR.—On Sunday, having discovered the whereabouts of Governor Dorr, of Rhode Island, we proceeded, like a good citizen, to take measures for his arrest, and he may now be said to be in our custody, root and branch.

If Governor King, of Rhode Island, will, therefore, send on his $1,000 in cash, with an authorized agent, we shall deliver to such agent the person of Governor Dorr, exclusive of "that sword."—As we always do a cash business, we must have the cash on the nail—because among other reasons, we shall appropriate the whole of the money, so received, in aiding and assisting the people of Rhode Island to procure as fast as possible a Constitution such as every other State in New England possesses, and such as every free American ought to live under. This is no joke—but downright earnest. Governor King will therefore be quick.—N. Y. Herald.

ABOUT THE WEATHER.—We continue to hear of the ravages committed by Jack Frost. He has ruined numerous gardens, and spoilt acres and acres of corn. Fortunately, however, he has not touched the wheat and rye. In several sections he was accompanied by snow, which fell in Franconia, N. H. to the depth of four inches.—N. Y. Herald.

Georgia Gold Mines.—The Milledgeville Journal states that persons who follow the pursuit of digging for gold in that vicinity, have of late been much stimulated in their labor in consequence of the handsome profits they have in many instances realized. It is said that in the neighborhood of Dahlonega, there are from fifteen hundred to two thousand pennyweights found daily. At one mine, on Battle Branch, there was lately found one lump worth, it is said, one hundred and twenty-eight dollars. It is supposed, from present prospects, that there will be at least from $300,000 to $400,000 realized in that section from the pursuit within the present year. The late success in this business is drawing the attention of many others to it.

Slow but Sure.—Topping, the murderer, was sentenced Tuesday by Judge Kent, and will be hung on the 5th of August. The miserable man said that the poor woman he killed was his wife, and had borne him ten children. What human being could live after such an act, whether there was a court of law or not to punish him! In such a case death is happiness. Colt will have to follow.—We do not see how he can escape. Dick Robinson's days are past and gone—Charles F. Mitchell is in Ohio. Why does not Governor Seward send on a requisition for him to the Governor of that State? He is ready enough to apprehend Governor Dorr—why should he neglect his duty in Mitchell's case?—Herald.

Peculiarity in Orange Trees.—Many of the trees in one garden were a hundred years old, still bearing plentifully a highly prized, thin-skinned orange, full of juice and free from pips. The thinness of the rind of a St. Michael's orange, and its freedom from pips, depend on the age of the tree. The young trees when in full vigor, bear fruit with a thick pulpy rind and an abundance of seeds; but, as the vigor of the plant declines, the peel becomes thinner and the seed gradually diminish in number until they disappear altogether. Thus the oranges that we esteem the most are the produce of aged trees, and those which we consider the least palatable come from plants in full vigor.—[A Winter in the Azores.]

The Sultan of Muscat has presented Mr. Pingree, of Salem, a splendid Arabian horse. The steed arrived a short time since at Salem, accompanied by a couple of Arab grooms, who were objects of great attention for a few days, but not being very much delighted with the summer frosts, or perhaps a little fearful of being hanged for a couple of watches, they sailed on Sunday last for Zanzibar, in one of Mr. Pingree's vessels.

over passengers have arrived in this city from foreign ports, during the two last days.—Courier & Enquirer.

BENCH & MOULDING PLANES.

WANTED, immediately, a large number of the above Planes on tithing. The brethren who have got such and can spare them would greatly facilitate the building of the Temple by bringing them as soon as possible to the recorder's office, and they shall be entered to their credit on tithing. All kinds of bench planes whether good or indifferent can be made useful at the Temple. The moulding planes should be such as suit the present fashion.

Also all lumber, which would make plane stocks, would be very serviceable.

JOSEPH SMITH, Trustee.

W. CLAYTON, Clerk.

Nauvoo July 8th 1842.

STRAYED.

From the enclosure of the Trustee in Trust, a large red ox, about 8 years old; the tithing of Dr. Lenox M. Knight any person who will secure and return him to the recorder's office shall have our thanks, and will add so much to his own interest in the building of the Temple.

JOSEPH SMITH, Trustee.

W. CLAYTON, Clerk.

Recorder's office July 9th 1842.

NEW GOODS, CHEAP.

W. Holdridge has just opened an assortment of FANCY GOODS; among which are Bonnets, Shoes, and a general variety of silks prints, muslin delaines, which he will sell at New York prices, at the store of Wm. Allen south of the Temple.

Nauvoo, July 8, 1842.

A STORM IN THE ALPS.—Facing about, the landscape was completely changed: here, six thousand five hundred feet below us, was spread out the whole valley of Interlaken with all its villages and with its two lakes, that appeared, in their emerald frames, like two immense mirrors in which the Deity might behold himself from the sky. In the distance beyond, towering in sombre masses athwart the firmament, rose Mont Pilate and Mont Righi, placed on either side of Lucerne, like the giants in the Arabian Nights, to guard some mysterious city.

Willer here laid his hand on my shoulder. I turned partly around; and following with my eye the direction of his finger, saw that we were about to witness that which—next to a storm at sea—is the most imposing object in nature: I mean, a storm on the mountains.

The two clouds that were freighted with the coming tempest detached themselves, one from the summit of the Wetter-Horn, and the other from the side of the Yung-frau, and silently advanced like two opposing armies that reserve their fire until they come within point-blank range. Although these black, vapory masses flew toward each other with great rapidity, not a breath of air was stirring; a profound stillness reigned; and all nature seemed to stand mute and motionless, in dread of the approaching shock.

At length a flash of lightning, followed by a detonation that in its swelling and prolonged echoes rang like a peal of the last trumpet, announced that the antagonist clouds had gained the requisite proximity and the combat began. Immediately, the clouds crossed one above the other, exchanging as they passed a tremendous blaze of electric artillery. From all points of the horizon, nebulae of various forms and colors hastened on like regiments eager to take part in the affray, and precipitating themselves into the melee, augmented the dense mass of vapor. Soon, the entire South was on fire, and the portion of the sky occupied by the sun became as vivid as a conflagration. The whole landscape was fantastically illuminated: the Lake of Thun seemed to roll waves of flame; the Lake of Brienz was tinged with green; and the lakes of the four cantons changed from their natural blue to a ghastly white. The wind now increased in violence and rent fragments of the clouds from the main body, which, thus separated from the common centre, wandered in various directions, and, as if by a given signal, precipitated themselves simultaneously to the earth. We next felt a few drops of rain, and then were almost immediately enveloped in vapor. Sauve qui peut was now the order of the day, and we made a hasty retreat to the Inn.

The storm beat about this frail building with ominous fury for a time; but it gradually descended, leaving us in clear, calm sunshine, while the strife of the elements beneath our feet was sustained as fiercely as ever.

[Dumas.]

RHODE ISLAND. Gov. CLEVELAND, of Connecticut, having officially refused to surrender Mr. Dorr upon the requisition of Governor KING, the latter has issued a proclamation offering $1,000 reward for the delivery of the fugitive within the state of Rhode Island in one year.

A meeting was held by the partizans of Dorr, at Woonsocket, in the northern part of Rhode Island, and sundry hostile demonstrations made by forming an encampment, obtaining military stores and beating up for recruits—but at the last dates the whole movement seems to have been abandoned.

In the legislature of Connecticut which is in session, there had been two reports made from the committee to whom the Rhode Island topic had been referred—one sympathizing with the Dorr party, and the other from a minority of the committee, in opposition to revolutionary movements.

[Niles' National Register.]

The North and South.—One cannot but be struck with the difference between the people of these two sections of the same country. In the one we see plainness and simplicity of life united with education, in a country stuck full of schools and colleges, and where every man and woman is said to be taught to read and write, as one of the elements of life itself, and where is supposed to be an almost total absence of what may be termed, personal pride. We are almost induced to think this latter a vice, for, ashamed of nothing because merely of its humbleness, they are afraid of nothing from its novelty—and a new line of trade, or a new line of thinking, finds a ready votary with a people ever bent upon enquiry, and as eager to acquire knowledge as wealth.

On the contrary, those of the South have an aristocracy of blood, as they call it, and opinion also to support; and this pride, so much derided and despised in the North, keeps them aloof from change, whether in the pursuits of ordinary life, or of their opinions, political or religious. This feeling induces them to hold to the opinions of their fathers, whose prowess or skill conquered the lands, and chattels with which it is peopled and worked. The opinions of a new sect therefore, are as readily repulsed as would be a new fashioned plough or time of planting corn.

The Mormons make numerous and ready converts among the schools of New England, whilst they have the first one yet to make South of Mason & Dixon's line. Among the ill taught and illiterate even of North Carolina, so numerous settled in Missouri they could not even live. It is to the credit certainly of the Mormons that their sect originated and has flourished where the greatest degree of intelligence is supposed to prevail.

Commander McKenzie has been detached from the steam frigate Missouri, and ordered to the command of the new brig Somers.

NOTES

DUE the Trustee for labor on the Temple, are left with the Temple Committee for collection. Brethren, remember that your contracts with your God are sacred; the labor is wanted immediately.

W. RICHARDS,

Temple Recorder.

June 23, 1842.

10-1f.

P. S. Remember the notes due for property also.

NEW DRUG STORE.

E. B. BATMAN No. 3 Water Street opposite the ferry landing, St. Louis Mo., has just opened a large stock of fresh Drugs, Medicines, Dyestuffs, Paints, Oils, Glassware, &c. which he offers at the lowest cash prices and to which the attention of the city and country trade is respectfully invited.

NOTICE.

IS hereby given that the partnership hitherto existing under the name of George W. Crouse and Nathaniel Jennings is this day dissolved by mutual consent and all persons indebted to the firm, will call and settle with George W. Crouse without delay, under whose name the business will be continued.

Dated Nauvoo June 11th 1842.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP. ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus
J. Salsbery, Plymouth,
Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Chiffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Page, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
James Curtis, Horners Town.
W. I. Appleby, Recless Town.
Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Salem.
Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapier.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirtland.

NEW YORK.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.
L. R. Foster, city of New York.

TRAVELING AGENTS.

Hiram Kimball.

MEDICAL NOTICE.

DR. W. B. BRINK.

Respectfully tenders his professional services to the citizens of Nauvoo, and its vicinity, as a botanic practitioner, having adopted the botanic practice from a positive conviction of the truth of its doctrines, and the unrivaled success which attends the practice; and hopes to give general satisfaction and prove the superior efficacy of the botanic treatment to those who may place themselves under his care; also a number of valuable preparations of his own compounding; such as anti-bilious pills peculiarly serviceable in dyspepsia, bilious fever, &c; restorative bitters, pulmonary balsam, cough syrup, rhumatic liniment, neutralizing cordial; this is one of the most valuable preparations known for cholery morbus, cholery infantum, or summer complaints of children, fever ague and cancers, will be treated upon the principle of no cure no pay and those afflicted with cancers will do well to call and try a remedy which has never failed; and those who are not able to pay will be cured without charge.

Dr. B. is consulted in the most intricate and protracted cases of secret disease that require practical experience to ensure success; every species and form of the disease must yield to his treatment which is in all cases mild and soft, requiring no interruption from business or change of diet, and will treat the disease upon the principle of no cure no pay; office at the store of W. Allen, formerly occupied by Mr. E. D. Wooley.

W. B. BRINK, M. D.

Nauvoo, July 2nd 1842.

12-3m.

GUARDIAN'S SALE,

IN pursuance of a decree of the Circuit Court of Hancock county made at the May Term thereof A. D. 1842. The subscriber, Guardian of Emma Caroline, & Chauncey G. Robison, infant children and heirs of James Robison deceased, will expose to public sale on the 8th day of August next, in city lots about thirty six acres of land belonging to said wards lying in the county of Hancock, and State of Illinois, being apart of the East half of the West half of Section No. six, township No. six North, of range No. eight West of the fourth principal meridian, said lands will be sold on a credit of six months, sale will take place on the premises near the residence of Daniel H. Wells Esq. between the hours of 9 o'clock A. M. and 6 o'clock P. M. of said day and will be continued between the same hours, from day to day, till said property is all sold.

CHARLOTTE ANN ROBISON,

Guardian.

Nauvoo June 20th 1842.

COMMISSIONERS SALE.

BY order of the Circuit Court of Hancock county will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder on Monday the 8th day of August next the south west quarter of the south west quarter of section number twenty four in township number seven north of the base line of range number six west of the fourth principal meridian situated in the county of Hancock and State of Illinois, said land has an excellent water privilege with a good saw mill with tools and a flowering mill in commencement, a small framed house and various other improvements.

The terms of sale will be twenty five per centum down, the balance payable in six months to be secured by a note with good approved security and a mortgage on the property.

The sale will commence at 10 o'clock A. M.

L. L. WILCOX.
JOEL BRADSHAW.
RIGHT RIGGINS.

Commissioners.

The number of electors in France is 224,700. This gives one elector in every 151 individuals, the total population being estimated at 34,000,000. They had better imitate Rhode Island, and get up a new People's Constitution.

DR. J. F. WELD,

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.

Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

MEAL, FLOUR,

AND PROVISIONS OF EVERY KIND,

WANTED ON TITHING.

THE brethren abroad will remember that those who devote the whole of their time to work on the Temple must be fed; they cannot live and work without provisions, and we are growing very scarce; and especially so with regard to MEAL and FLOUR. Those, therefore, who have the above articles, and intend to consecrate such on their tithing, will please forward them immediately to Nauvoo.

W. RICHARDS, Recorder

for the Temple.

Nauvoo, June 18th 1842.

10-1f.

NOTICE.

THE Burying Ground south east of the city has been laid out in family burying lots, a number of which will be offered for sale, at public auction, on the 18th inst., at 10 o'clock A. M., at the office of Gen. Hiram Smith.

Terms one third on the day of sale, one third in six months from sale, and one third in twelve months from sale, with approved security.

By order of the City Council.

WILSON LAW,

Committee to sell.

Nauvoo, June 4th 1842.

LOOK HERE! LOOK HERE!!

WANTED, at the Nauvoo Foundry, a quantity of Stone coal; any persons wishing to furnish it, will please call on Hiram Kimball, or Geo. W. Robinson, at the Post Office.

Old castings will be taken in exchange for new.

Nauvoo, June 13th 1842.

10-1f.

District Court of the United States, within and for the district of Illinois. In the matter of the petition of Hiram Kimball of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Hiram Kimball, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 8th day of July next, at the District Court Room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 11th day of June, A. D. 1842.

RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois. In the matter of the Petition of Joshua C. Hobert of Hancock County to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Joshua C. Hobert, of Hancock County has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 18th day of July next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 18th day of June A. D. 1842.

J. H. SHERMAN Solicitor, for Petitioner.

Attest James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois. In the matter of the Petition of Claiborn Wilson, of Hancock County to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Claiborn Wilson, of Hancock County has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 18th day of July next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 18th day of June A. D. 1842.

J. H. SHERMAN, Solicitor for Petitioner.

Attest James F. Owings Clerk.

A STORM IN THE ALPS.—Facing about, the landscape was completely changed: here, six thousand five hundred feet below us, was spread out the whole valley of Interlaken with all its villages and with its two lakes, that appeared, in their emerald frames, like two immense mirrors in which the Deity might behold himself from the sky. In the distance beyond, towering in sombre masses athwart the firmament, rose Mont Pilate and Mont Right, placed on either side of Lucerne, like the giants in the Arabian Nights, to guard some mysterious city. Willer here laid his hand on my shoulder. I turned partly around; and following with my eye the direction of his finger, saw that we were about to witness that which—next to a storm at sea—is the most imposing object in nature: I mean, a storm on the mountains.

The two clouds that were freighted with the coming tempest detached themselves, one from the summit of the Wetter-Horn, and the other from the side of the Yung-frau, and silently advanced like two opposing armies that reserve their fire until they come within point-blank range. Although these black, vapory masses flew toward each other with great rapidity, not a breath of air was stirring; a profound stillness reigned; and all nature seemed to stand mute and motionless, in dread of the approaching shock.

At length a flash of lightning, followed by a detonation that in its swelling and prolonged echoes rang like a peal of the last trump, announced that the antagonist clouds had gained the requisite proximity and the combat began. Immediately, the clouds crossed one above the other, exchanging as they passed a tremendous blaze of electric artillery. From all points of the horizon, nebulae of various forms and colors hastened on like regiments eager to take part in the affray, and, precipitating themselves into the melee, augmented the dense mass of vapor. Soon, the entire South was on fire, and the portion of the sky occupied by the sun became as vivid as a conflagration. The whole landscape was fantastically illuminated: the Lake of Thun seemed to roll waves of flame; the Lake of Brienz was tinged with green; and the lakes of the four cantons changed from their natural blue to a ghastly white. The wind now increased in violence and rent fragments of the clouds from the main body, which, thus separated from the common centre, wandered in various directions, and, as if by a given signal, precipitated themselves simultaneously to the earth. We next felt a few drops of rain, and then were almost immediately enveloped in vapor. Sauve qui peut was now the order of the day, and we made a hasty retreat to the Inn.

The storm beat about this frail building with ominous fury for a time; but it gradually descended, leaving us in clear, calm sunshine, while the strife of the elements beneath our feet was sustained as fiercely as ever.

[Dumas.]

RHODE ISLAND. Gov. CLEVELAND, of Connecticut, having officially refused to surrender Mr. Dorr upon the requisition of Governor KING, the latter has issued a proclamation offering $1,000 reward for the delivery of the fugitive within the state of Rhode Island in one year.

A meeting was held by the partisans of Dorr, at Woonsocket, in the northern part of Rhode Island, and sundry hostile demonstrations made by forming an encampment, obtaining military stores and beating up for recruits—but at the last dates the whole movement seems to have been abandoned.

In the legislature of Connecticut which is in session, there had been two reports made from the committee to whom the Rhode Island topic had been referred—one sympathizing with the Dorr party, and the other from a minority of the committee, in opposition to revolutionary movements.

[Niles' National Register.]

The North and South.—One cannot but be struck with the difference between the people of these two sections of the same country. In the one we see plainness and simplicity of life united with education, in a country stuck full of schools and colleges, and where every man and woman is said to be taught to read and write, as one of the elements of life itself, and where is supposed to be an almost total absence of what may be termed, personal pride. We are almost induced to think this latter a vice, for, ashamed of nothing because merely of its humbleness, they are afraid of nothing from its novelty—and a new line of trade, or a new line of thinking, finds a ready votary with a people ever bent upon enquiry, and as eager to acquire knowledge as wealth.

On the contrary, those of the South have an aristocracy of blood, as they call it, and opinion also to support; and this pride, so much derided and despised in the North, keeps them aloof from change, whether in the pursuits of ordinary life, or of their opinions, political or religious. This feeling induces them to hold to the opinions of their fathers, whose prowess or skill conquered the lands and chattels with which it is peopled and worked. The opinions of a new sect therefore, are as readily repulsed as would be a new fashioned plough or time of planting corn.

The Mormons make numerous and ready converts among the schools of New England, whilst they have the first one yet to make South of Mason & Dixon's line. Among the ill taught and illiterate—even of North Carolina, so numerous settled in Missouri they could not even live. It is to the credit certainly of the Mormons that their sect originated and has flourished where the greatest degree of intelligence is supposed to prevail.

Commander McKenzie has been detached from the steam frigate Missouri, and ordered to the command of the new brig Somers.

NOTES

DUE the Trustee for labor on the Temple, are left with the Temple Committee for collection. Brethren, remember that your contracts with your God are sacred; the labor is wanted immediately.

W. RICHARDS,

Temple Recorder.

June 25, 1842.

10-1f.

P. S. Remember the notes due for property also.

NEW DRUG STORE.

E. B. BATMAN No. 3 Water Street opposite the ferry landing, St. Louis Mo., has just opened a large stock of fresh Drugs, Medicines, Dyestuffs, Paints, Oils, Glassware, &c. which he offers at the lowest cash prices and to which the attention of the city and country trade is respectfully invited.

NOTICE.

IS hereby given that the partnership heretofore existing under the name of George W. Crouse and Nathaniel Jennings is this day dissolved by mutual consent and all persons indebted to the firm, will call and settle with George W. Crouse without delay, under whose name the business will be continued.

Dated Nauvoo June 11th 1842.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramona
J. Salsbery, Plymouth.
Har'ow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Chiffin, LaHarpe Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Page, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
James Curtis, Horners Town.
W. I. Appleby, Reelless Town.
Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Salem.
Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapeer.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirtland.
Charles Thompson, Batavia.

L. R. Foster, city of New York.

TRAVELING AGENTS.

Hiram Kimball.

MEDICAL NOTICE.

DR. W. B. BRINK.

Respectfully tenders his professional services to the citizens of Nauvoo, and its vicinity, as a botanic practitioner, having adopted the botanic practice from a positive conviction of the truth of its doctrines, and the unrivaled success which attends the practice; and hopes to give general satisfaction and prove the superior efficacy of the botanic treatment to those who may place themselves under his care; also a number of valuable preparations of his own compounding; such as anti-bilious pills peculiarly serviceable in dyspepsia, bilious fever, &c; restorative bitters, pulmonary balsom, cough syrup, rheumatic liniment, neutralizing cordial; this is one of the most valuable preparations known for cholera morbus, cholera, infantum, or summer complaints of children, fever, ague and cancers, will be treated upon the principle of no cure no pay and those afflicted with cancers will do well to call and try a remedy which has never failed; and those who are not able to pay will be cured without charge.

Dr. B. is consulted in the most intricate and protracted cases of secret disease that require practical experience to ensure success; every species and form of the disease must yield to his treatment which is in all cases mild and soft, requiring no interruption from business or change of diet, and will treat the disease upon the principle of no cure no pay; office at the store of W. Allen, formerly occupied by Mr. E. D. Wooley.

W. B. BRINK, M. D.

Nauvoo, July 2nd 1842.

12-3m.

GUARDIAN'S SALE,

IN pursuance of a decree of the Circuit Court of Hancock county made at the May Term thereof A. D. 1842. The subscriber, Guardian of Emma Caroline, & Chauncey G. Robison, infant children and heirs of James Robison deceased, will expose to public sale on the 8th day of August next, in city lots about thirty six acres of land belonging to said wards lying in the county of Hancock, and State of Illinois, being apart of the East half of the West half of Section No. six, township No. six North, of range No. eight West of the fourth principal meridian, said lands will be sold on a credit of six months, sale will take place on the premises near the residence of Daniel H. Wells Esq. between the hours of 9 o'clock A. M. and 6 o'clock P. M. of said day and will be continued between the same hours, from day to day, till said property is all sold.

CHARLOTTE ANN ROBISON,

Guardian.

Nauvoo June 20th 1842.

COMMISSIONERS SALE.

By order of the Circuit Court of Hancock county will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder on Monday the 8th day of August next the south west quarter of the south west quarter of section number twenty four in township number seven north of the base line of range number six west of the fourth principal meridian situated in the county of Hancock and State of Illinois, said land has an excellent water privilege with a good saw mill with tools and a flowering mill in commencement, a small framed house and various other improvements.

The terms of sale will be twenty five per centum down, the balance payable in six months to be secured by a note with good approved security and a mortgage on the property.

The sale will commence at 10 o'clock A. M.

L. L. WILCOX.

JOEL BRADSHAW.

RIGHT RIGGINS.

Commissioners.

The number of electors in France is 224,700. This gives one elector in every 151 individuals, the total population being estimated at 34,000,000. They had better imitate Rhode Island, and get up a new People's Constitution.

DR. J. F. WELD,

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.

Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

MEAL, FLOUR,

AND PROVISIONS OF EVERY KIND,

WANTED ON TITHING.

THE brethren abroad will remember that those who devote the whole of their time to work on the Temple must be fed; they cannot live and work without provisions, and we are growing very scarce; and especially so with regard to MEAL and FLOUR. Those, therefore, who have the above articles, and intend to consecrate such on their tithing, will please forward them immediately to Nauvoo.

W. RICHARDS, Recorder

for the Temple.

Nauvoo, June 18th 1842.

10-1f.

NOTICE.

THE Burying Ground south east of the city has been laid out in family burying lots a number of which will be offered for sale, at public auction, on the 18th inst., at 10 o'clock A. M., at the office of Gen. Hiram Smith.

Terms one third on the day of sale, one third in six months from sale, and one third in twelve months from sale, with approved security.

By order of the City Council.

WILSON LAW,

Committee to sell.

Nauvoo, June 4th 1842.

LOOK HERE! LOOK HERE!!

WANTED, at the Nauvoo Foundry, a quantity of Stone coal; any persons wishing to furnish it, will please call on Hiram Kimball, or Geo. W. Robinson, at the Post Office.

Old castings will be taken in exchange for new.

Nauvoo, June 13th 1842.

10-1f.

District Court of the United States, within and for the district of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Hiram Kimball of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Hiram Kimball, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 11th day of July next, at the District Court Room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 11th day of June, A. D. 1842.

RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Joshua C. Hobert of Hancock County to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Joshua C. Hobert, of Hancock County has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 18th day of July next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 18th day of June A. D. 1842.

J. H. SHERMAN Solicitor, for Petitioner.

Attest James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Claiborn Wilson, of Hancock County to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Claiborn Wilson, of Hancock County has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 18th day of July next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 18th day of June A. D. 1842.

J. H. SHERMAN, Solicitor for Petitioner.

Attest James F. Owings Clerk.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 14.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, July 16, 1842.

Whole Number 14

THE WASP.

IS EDITED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY

WM. SMITH,

At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

TERMS.—$1.50 invariably in advance.

The following is the Phrenological chart of Elder Brigham Young, the President of the Quorum of the 'Twelve,'—of whom Elder W. Richards, whose chart was given in last week's Wasp, was also a member.

A PHRENOLOGICAL CHART.

BY A. CRANE, M. D.,

PROFESSOR OF PHRENOLOGY.

PROFESSOR OF PHRENOLOGY.

Amativeness—7 F very partial to the opposite sex; generally reciprocated by them.

Philoprogenitiveness—10 L strong parental affection, great solicitude for their happiness.

Inhabitiveness—9 L love of homestead very strong, extremely fond of early reminiscences of birth-place &c.

Adhesiveness—10 L unalterable affection when once fixed; enduring all things for their sakes.

Combateness—7 F great powers of exertion and sustaining, under opposition and difficulties.

Destructiveness—5 M ability to control the passions; and is not disposed to extreme measures.

Secretiveness—7 F proper reserve; prudent expression of feeling, without bluntness or deceitfulness.

Acquisitiveness—5 M freeness to spend money; love of it chiefly for its uses and what it will buy.

Alimentiveness—6 F a good appetite, but not excessive; partiality for a variety of rich hearty dishes.

Vitateness—6 M or S indifference to life, views the approach of death without fear.

FEELINGS.

Cautiousness—7 F provision against prospective dangers and ills, without hesitation or irresolution.

Approbativeness—8 F or M decent regard for popularity, fame, praise, and a good name.

Self-esteem—7 F self-confidence and complacency, without much pride or conceit.

Concentrativeness—8 F can dwell on a subject without fatigue, and control the imagination.

SENTIMENTS.

Benevolence—11 V L an overflowing of kind, humane, and tender feelings.

Veneration—10 L worship of the Supreme Being; reverence.

Firmness—10 L stability and decision of character and purpose.

Conscientiousness—10 L high regard for duty, integrity, moral principle, justice, obligation, truth, &c.

Hope—8 F reasonable hopes, a fine flow of spirits; anticipation of what is to be realized.

Marvellousness—7 F openness to conviction without blind credulity; tolerably good degree of faith.

Imitation—7 F a disposition and respectable ability to imitate, but not to mimic, or to act out.

Prepossession—11 V L strong adherence to preconceived opinions; very strong prejudices, &c.

Ideality—8 F refinement without a sickly delicacy; some love of poetry without a poetic talent.

PRECEPTIVES.

Admonition—5 S or V S indifference about the affairs of others, and not disposed to give advice, &c.

Constructiveness—8 F respectable ingenuity without uncommon skill, tact, or facility in making, &c.

Tune—9 F or M love of music, without quickness to catch or learn tunes by the ear.

Time—8 F or M indistinct notions of the lapse of time, of ages, dates of events, &c.

Locality—11 V L or L great memory of places and positions.

Eventuality—9 L retentive memory of events and particulars.

Individuality—8 F with very large 39 and 40, great observation, with deep thought, &c.

Form—8 F cognizance and distinct recollection of shapes; countenances, &c.

Size—11 V L, L or F ability to judge of proportionate size, &c.

Weight—11 V L, L or F knowledge of gravitation, momentum, etc.

Colour—8 F or M moderate skill in judging of colours, comparing and arranging them.

Language—7 F freedom of expression, without fluency or verbosity; no great loquacity.

Order—8 L love of arrangement; every thing in its particular place.

Number—8 F respectable aptness in arithmetical calculations, without extraordinary talent.

REFLECTIVES.

Mirthfulness—6 F pleasantry and humor, without facetiousness; fair perception of the ludicrous.

Causality—11 V L great power of thought, depth and originality of reason.

Comparison—9 L a discrimination; power of illustration; ability to perceive and apply analogies, &c.

EXPLANATION OF THE CHART.

The written figures in the margin opposite the organs, and ranging in a scale from 1 to 12, indicate the various degrees in which the respective organs are developed in the head of the individual examined: thus, 1, 2, indicate that the organ is very small, or almost wholly wanting;

3, 4, means small, or feeble, and inactive; 5, 6, moderate, or active only in a subordinate degree; 7, 8, full or fair, and a little above par; 9, 10, large, or quite energetic, and having marked influence upon the character; 11, 12, mean very large, or giving a controlling influence, and extreme liability to perversion. The size of the brain, combinations of the faculties, and temperament of the individual, may be indicated in the same manner as the degrees of the faculties or organs.

The initials V L denote very large; L, large; F, full; M, moderate; S, small; V S, very small.

We are authorized to announce G. Chittenden as a candidate for Sheriff of Hancock county.

THE DARK AGE.

We have often said we lived in a dark age; and the following horrible programme of one, where there is plenty of potatoes and lots of bullocks.

Ann Eggle, (aged 18)—"I have heard of Christ performing miracles, but I don't know what sort of things they were. He died by their pouring fire and brimstone down his throat. I think I once did hear that he was nailed to a cross. Three times ten makes 20. There are fourteen months in the year, but I don't know how many weeks there are."

Elizabeth Eggle, (aged 16)—"I can't read at all. Jesus Christ was Adam's son, and they nailed him to a tree; but I don't rightly understand these things."

William Beaver, (aged 16)—"The Lord made the world. He sent Adam and Eve on earth to save sinners. I have heard of the Saviour; he was a good man, but he did not die here. I think Ireland is a town as big as Barnsley."

Bessy Bailey, (aged 15)—"Jesus Christ died for his son to be saved. I don't know who the Apostles were. I don't know what Ireland is whether it is a country or a town."

Horror of the English Collieries.—Commissioners were not long since appointed to investigate the situation of the people employed in the English collieries don't know who Jesus Christ was. (a very numerous class) and their report, never heard of Adam either. I never which has just been made, is filled with been obliged to stop in bed all Sunday to rest myself."

"These extracts, says the report, afford a fair sample of the religious knowledge of the children examined, (and they were taken indiscriminately) and it may be easily inferred that their secular knowledge is no better. Some did not know whether London was in England or Ireland; and others did not know even the name of the country or even the county in which they lived."—Boston Post.

Circular to Registers and Receivers of the United States' Land Office.

General Land Office,
May 4, 1842.

Gentlemen:—Under the construction hitherto given to the provisions of the Act of 14th July, 1832, as applicable to the Acts of 22d June, 1838, and 1st June, 1840, it has been held, that whenever a plat of a township, not in the office at the dates of these acts respectively, should be returned prior to the expiration of either, claimants under those acts were bound to make proof and payment for the land claimed prior to the time limited in these Acts, respectively; but that where such township plat should not be returned until after the expiration of said Acts, such claimants would be entitled to a years time from the filing of the plat in the Register's Office, for the making of such proof and payment: the Act of 14th, July, 1832, being regarded as inoperative, until the time mentioned in the Acts of 1838 and 1840 shall have expired. Under a recent opinion of the Attorney General, the Act of 14th July, 1832, is regarded as a declaration by Congress that a years time, after the removal of all the disabilities therein mentioned, is a reasonable time for the performance of these acts of

thus prevented, and that a claim under the Act of 1838, or that of 1840, may be proven up and paid for at any time within a year after the said disabilities have ceased to exist, unless the lands shall be proclaimed for sale within that year.—You are accordingly advised, that whenever a plat shall have been filed since the 22d June, 1841, or shall hereafter be filed, claimants under the Acts of 1838 and 1840, are entitled to a year's time from the filing of the plat, within which to make their proof and payment, unless the land shall be proclaimed for sale within that year; in which case, such proof and payment must be made prior to the day fixed for the commencement of the said public sale.

The importance of the date when the said Township plats are filed will be readily discovered, and the Register is therefore specially referred to the third paragraph of the circular of 17th July, 1838, and a compliance with the directions therein given most earnestly directed.

I am, gentlemen,
Respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
E. M. HUNTINGTON,
Commissioner.

To the Register of the Land Office and Receiver of Public moneys, Land Office at

Thomas Ell, a colored man, died at Union Village, N. J., on the 1st inst., at the great age of 104 years. On the Sunday preceding his death, he walked eight miles to attend divine worship.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 14.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois: Saturday, July 16, 1842.

Whole Number 14

THE WASP,

IS EDITED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY

WM. SMITH,

At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

TERMS—$1.50 invariably in advance.

The following is the Phrenological chart of Elder Brigham Young, the President of the Quorum of the Twelve,—of whom Elder W. Richards, whose chart was given in last week's Wasp, was also a member.

A PHRENOLOGICAL CHART.

BY A. CRANE, M. D.,

PROFESSOR OF PHRENOLOGY.

PROPENSITIES.

Amativeness—7 F very partial to the opposite sex; generally reciprocated by them.
 Philoprogenitiveness—10 L strong parental affection, great solicitude for their happiness.
 Inhabitativeness—9 L love of homestead very strong, extremely fond of early reminiscences of birth-place &c.
 Adhesiveness—10 L unalterable affection when once fixed; enduring all things for their sakes.
 Combativeness—7 F great powers of exertion and sustaining, under opposition and difficulties.
 Destructiveness—5 M ability to control the passions; and is not disposed to extreme measures.
 Secretiveness—7 F proper reserve; prudent expression of feeling, without bluntness or deceitfulness.
 Acquisitiveness—5 M freeness to spend money; love of it chiefly for its uses and what it will buy.
 Alimentiveness—6 F a good appetite, but not excessive; partiality for a variety of rich hearty dishes.
 Vitativeness—6 M or S indifference to life views the approach of death without fear.

FEELINGS.

Cautiousness—7 F provision against prospective dangers and ills, without hesitation or irresolution.
 Approbativeness—8 F or M decent regard for popularity, fame, praise, and a good name.
 Self-esteem—7 F self-confidence and complacency, without much pride or conceit.
 Concentrativeness—8 F can dwell on a subject without fatigue, and control the imagination.

SENTIMENTS.

Benevolence—11 V L an overflowing of kind, humane, and tender feelings.
 Veneration—10 L worship of the Supreme Being; reverence.
 Firmness—10 L stability and decision of character and purpose.
 Conscientiousness—10 L high regard for duty, integrity, moral principle, justice, obligation, truth, &c.
 Hope—8 F reasonable hopes, a fine flow of spirits; anticipation of what is to be realized.
 Marvellousness—7 F openness to conviction without blind credulity; tolerably good degree of faith.
 Imitation—7 F a disposition and respectable ability to imitate, but not to mimic, or to act out.
 Prepossession—11 V L strong adherence to preconceived opinions; very strong prejudices, &c.
 Ideality—8 F refinement without a sickly delicacy; some love of poetry without a poetic talent.

PRECEPTIVES.

Admonition—5 S or V S indifference about the affairs of others, and not disposed to give advice, &c.

Constructiveness—8 F respectable ingenuity without uncommon skill, tact, or facility in making, &c.

Tune—9 F or M love of music, without quickness to catch or learn tunes by the ear.

Time—8 F or M indistinct notions of the lapse of time, of ages, dates of events, &c.

Locality—11 V L or L great memory of places and positions.

Eventuality—9 L retentive memory of events and particulars.

Individuality—8 F with very large 39 and 40, great observation, with deep thought, &c.

Form—8 F cognizance and distinct recollection of shapes; countenances, &c.

Size—11 V L, L or F ability to judge of proportionate size, &c.

Weight—11 V L, L or F knowledge of gravitation, momentum, etc.

Colour—8 F or M moderate skill in judging of colours, comparing and arranging them.

Language—7 F freedom of expression, without fluency or verbosity; no great loquacity.

Order—8 L love of arrangement; every thing in its particular place.

Number—8 F respectable aptness in arithmetical calculations, without extraordinary talent.

REFLECTIVES.

Mirthfulness—6 F pleasantry and humor, without facetiousness; fair perception of the ludicrous.

Causality—11 V L great power of thought depth and originality of reason.

Comparison—9 L a discrimination; power of illustration; ability to perceive and apply analogies, &c.

EXPLANATION OF THE CHART.

The written figures in the margin opposite the organs, and ranging in a scale from 1 to 12, indicate the various degrees in which the respective organs are developed in the head of the individual examined. Thus, 1, 2, indicate that the organ is very small, or almost wholly wanting; 3, 4, means small, or feeble, and inactive; 5, 6, moderate, or active only in a subordinate degree; 7, 8, full or fair and a little above par; 9, 10, large, or quite energetic, and having a marked influence upon the character; 11, 12, mean very large, or giving a controlling influence, and extreme liability to perversion. The size of the brain, combinations of the faculties, and temperament of the individual, may be indicated in the same manner as the degrees of the faculties or organs.

The initials V L denote very large; L, large; F, full; M, moderate; S, small; V S, very small.

We are authorized to announce G. Chittenden as a candidate for Sheriff of Hancock county.

THE DARK AGE.

We have often said we lived in a dark age; and the following horrible programme of one, among the many cases, now starving our dread-ful good world, and especially that terrible enlightened portion called Great Britain, is laid before our readers as a sample. If Americans do not go under ground to live like beasts, remember there are many places where they do as bad above ground. These, verily, are the last days; the days of vengeance! while men boast of light and knowledge, saving the heathen, and bringing in the millenium; they make Beasts of their own blood relatives at home; we can only say in the language of Shakspeare:

"Be ready Gods, with all your thunderbolts, And dash them to pieces."

Now read the following:—Ed.

Horrors of the English Collieries.—

Commissioners were not long since appointed to investigate the situation of the people employed in the English collieries don't know who Jesus Christ was. (a very numerous class) and their report, never heard of Adam either. I never which has just been made, is filled with heard about them at all. I have often the most heart-rending details. We are been obliged to stop in bed all Sunday to without uncommon skill, tact, or facility in making, &c.

of both sexes are placed in the coal mines at the age of six years; they are obligated to crawl on their hands and knees in the edge of the children examined, (and they

mud; and even at the tender age named, they are worked from eleven to fourteen hours a day. They are excluded from light, and were it not for the passing and repassing of coal carriages, they would be, to use the language of the report, "in solitary confinement of the worst order. In some districts they remain in solitude and darkness during the whole time they are in the pit, and, according to their own account, many of their never see the light of day for weeks together during the greater part of the winter season, excepting on those days in the week when work is not going on, and on Sundays."

Their labor requires the unremitting exertion of all their physical powers. We are told that "in these districts in which females are taken down into the coal mines, both sexes are employed in precisely the same kind of labor, and work for the same number of hours; the girls and boys, and the young men and young women, and even married men and women, with child, commonly work almost naked; and all classes of witnesses bear testimony to the demoralizing influence of the employment of females under ground."

Our readers may readily suppose that where labor is carried on so unremittingly, and under such circumstances, there is no opportunity for mental improvement—that where the bodies of children are not cared for, their minds are totally neglected. On this head the report makes the most painful developments.—The Commissioners examined large numbers of the young people, and criminally, for the purpose of ascertaining the extent of their religious and other knowledge, and the answers which are quoted below afford a fair sample of all that are given in the report:

Elizabeth Day, (a girl of 17)—"I don't go to Sunday school. The truth is, we are confined bad enough on week days, and want to walk about on Sundays. I can't read at all. Jesus Christ was Adam's son, and they nailed him to a tree; but I don't rightly understand these things."

William Beaver, (aged 16)—"The Lord made the world. He sent Adam and Eve on earth to save sinners. I have heard of the Saviour; he was a good man, but he did not die here. I think Ireland is a town as big as Barnsley, of bullocks."

Ann Eggle, (aged 18)—"I have heard of Christ performing miracles, but fore specially referred to the third paragraph of the circular of 17th July, 1838, and a compliance with the directions therein given most earnestly directed.

I am, gentlemen, Respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

E. M. HUNTINGTON,

Commissioner.

To the Register of the Land Office and Receiver of Public moneys,

Land Office at

Thomas Ell, a colored man, died at Union Village, N. J., on the 1st inst., at the great age of 104 years. On the Sunday preceding his death, he walked eight miles to attend divine worship.

These extracts, says the report, afford a fair sample of the religious knowledge easily inferred that their secular knowledge is no better. Some did not know whether London was in England or Ireland; and others did not know even the name of the country or even the county in which they lived."—Boston Post.

Circular to Registers and Receivers of the United States Land Office.

General Land Office.

May 4, 1842.

Gentlemen:—Under the construction hitherto given to the provisions of the Act of 14th July, 1832, as applicable to the Acts of 22d June, 1838, and 1st June, 1840, it has been held, that whenever a plat of a township, not in the office at the dates of these acts respectively, should be returned prior to the expiration of either, claimants under those acts were bound to make proof and payment for the land claimed prior to the time limited in these Acts, respectively; but that where such township plat should not be returned until after the expiration of said Acts, such claimants would be entitled to a years time from the filing of the plat in the Register's Office, for the making of such proof and payment: the Act of 14th July, 1832, being regarded as inoperative, until the time mentioned in the Acts of 1838 and 1840 shall have expired. Under a recent opinion of the Attorney General, the Act of 14th July, 1832, is regarded as a declaration by Congress that a years time, after the removal of all the disabilities therein mentioned, is a reasonable time for the performance of these acts of a claimant, which such obstacles previously prevented, and that a claim under the Act of 1838, or that of 1840, may be proven up and paid for at any time within a year after the said disabilities have ceased to exist, unless the lands shall be proclaimed for sale within that year.—You are accordingly advised, that whenever a plat shall have been filed since the 22d June, 1841, or shall hereafter be filed, claimants under the Acts of 1838 and 1840, are entitled to a year's time from the filing of the plat, within which to make their proof and payment, unless the land shall be proclaimed for sale within that year; in which case, such proof and payment must be made prior to the day fixed for the commencement of the said public sale.

The importance of the date when the said Township plats are filed will be readily discovered, and the Register is therefore specially referred to the third paragraph of the circular of 17th July, 1838, and a compliance with the directions therein given most earnestly directed.

I am, gentlemen,

Respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

E. M. HUNTINGTON,

Commissioner.

To the Register of the Land Office and Receiver of Public moneys,

Land Office at

Thomas Ell, a colored man, died at Union Village, N. J., on the 1st inst., at the great age of 104 years. On the Sunday preceding his death, he walked eight miles to attend divine worship.

These extracts, says the report, afford a fair sample of the religious knowledge easily inferred that their secular knowledge is no better. Some did not know whether London was in England or Ireland; and others did not know even the name of the country or even the county in which they lived."—Boston Post.

Circular to Registers and Receivers of the United States Land Office.

General Land Office.

May 4, 1842.

Gentlemen:—Under the construction hitherto given to the provisions of the Act of 14th July, 1832, as applicable to the Acts of 22d June, 1838, and 1st June, 1840, it has been held, that whenever a plat of a township, not in the office at the dates of these acts respectively, should be returned prior to the expiration of either, claimants under those acts were bound to make proof and payment for the land claimed prior to the time limited in these Acts, respectively; but that where such township plat should not be returned until after the expiration of said Acts, such claimants would be entitled to a years time from the filing of the plat in the Register's Office, for the making of such proof and payment: the Act of 14th July, 1832, being regarded as inoperative, until the time mentioned in the Acts of 1838 and 1840 shall have expired. Under a recent opinion of the Attorney General, the Act of 14th July, 1832, is regarded as a declaration by Congress that a years time, after the removal of all the disabilities therein mentioned, is a reasonable time for the performance of these acts of a claimant, which such obstacles previously prevented, and that a claim under the Act of 1838, or that of 1840, may be proven up and paid for at any time within a year after the said disabilities have ceased to exist, unless the lands shall be proclaimed for sale within that year.—You are accordingly advised, that whenever a plat shall have been filed since the 22d June, 1841, or shall hereafter be filed, claimants under the Acts of 1838 and 1840, are entitled to a year's time from the filing of the plat, within which to make their proof and payment, unless the land shall be proclaimed for sale within that year; in which case, such proof and payment must be made prior to the day fixed for the commencement of the said public sale.

The importance of the date when the said Township plats are filed will be readily discovered, and the Register is therefore specially referred to the third paragraph of the circular of 17th July, 1838, and a compliance with the directions therein given most earnestly directed.

I am, gentlemen,

Respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

E. M. HUNTINGTON,

Commissioner.

To the Register of the Land Office and Receiver of Public moneys,

Land Office at

Thomas Ell, a colored man, died at Union Village, N. J., on the 1st inst., at the great age of 104 years. On the Sunday preceding his death, he walked eight miles to attend divine worship.

We are authorized to announce the name of WILLIAM SMITH as candidate for the senate of this State, at the ensuing election.

Printer.

We are authorized to announce Jacob C. Davis as the independent candidate for Senator of Hancock county, at the ensuing August election.

We are authorized to announce JOHN F. CHARLES as an independent candidate for Senator for Hancock county at the next August election.

We are authorized to announce to the independent voters of Hancock county, that J. B. Backenstos is a Democratic candidate for Representative, at the ensuing August election.

We are authorized to announce Thos. H. Owens as a candidate for Representative, at the ensuing August election.

We are authorized to announce David Greenleaf as a candidate for Representative, at the ensuing election.

To the independent voters of Hancock co.

Gentlemen: I present myself, for your consideration, as a candidate for Representative to the Legislature, at the next August election, and respectfully solicit your suffrages.

M. ALDRICH.

We are authorized to announce the name of James D. Bias, as the people's Independent Democratic Republican candidate for Representative of Hancock county, in the next Legislature.

We are authorized to announce Wm. Backenstos as a candidate for Sheriff, at the ensuing election.

The undersigned would respectfully announce himself as a candidate for the office of Sheriff of Hancock county, Ill. He is untrammelled by party feelings and Conventions; he solicits the votes of all parties. If he is elected, he will serve them as citizens and not as partisans in the discharge of his official duties.

G. A. CHITTENDEN.

We are requested to state that John T. Barnett is an independent democratic candidate for County Commissioner, at the ensuing August election.

We are authorized to announce Franklin J. Bennett, of St. Mary's precinct, as a candidate for School Commissioner at the next August election.

We are authorized to announce Geo. W. Stigall as a candidate for Coroner of Hancock county.

A word on politics. As many persons announce their names as candidates for the ensuing election, in the Wasp, we have thought it advisable to say that we require the pay for insertion in advance.

'SALUTARY.'

Procul, o procul este profani!—VIRGIL.
Well, Illinois has Suckeroons,
And Warsaw, lo, a paper harp!
On which to mow out awful tunes
The Devil keeps one T. C. Sharp;
And music charms he hath forthwith,
To please a hog and give a horse awe,
To saw the bass of Damn Jo Smith,
And slur the nincompoops of Warsaw.

The old Methodist priest, (Mr. Sharp,) after laying a couple of months to bleed, and breathe and beg, has again come out with a little old dish-cloth or black rag, or Signal, as he calls it, which has 'neutralized' nailed on it, as a kind of Good Lord, Good Devil, to recommend the same as an old Negro heaves an old shoe for good luck. This old priest, after having disappointed God, men and women, so long has now the presumptuous audacity to try to hold up that old black flag, till after the August election, just to gratify his natural propensity for lying, slandering and hypocrisy. What a fatherly bestowment, and endowment, the Methodist diocese must have conferred on one of the sons of Maryland, when T. C. Sharp was set apart for the ministry, patens volens, and, then like one of the seven sons of Seera, he began his miracles in Warsaw, to convert the Mormons to — what? to believe that it is right to disinherit, ravish, and murder on account of religion: O you monster! you savage! don't say you are a Republican; don't claim yourself a christian; for you, in your course towards the church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, show yourself to be a Revelator of ruin! a slobberer of slander! and a wretch writhing in your soul, as for wickedness enough to afford you eternal employment where the worm dieth not and the fire is not quenched.

MORE 'SALUTARY.'

The old Methodist priest's son, down in Warsaw, among his long list of lies published on the 9th inst., calls the 'Wasp' a Pole Cat: for the which payment we shall designate him as a Skunk, and his paper as a Funk-bag. A Pole Cat, or Polish Cat, is of the fitchet species and not very offensive; but the skunk, of the weasel kind, loves darkness rather than light because his deeds are evil, and is equipped with a funk bag for the same reason that Sharp is: — to keep decent people at a respectful distance. If he can get any satisfaction by changing Wasp to Pole Cat, go ahead; he will make out about as well as to arr, coax, or cozen Bennett to help him edit the Funk-bag. Poor sinners! Tom Sharp gambling with two parties for power; and Bennett bound to Missouri for repentance! One! jam salis!

T. C. Sharp used to pass off in his own fifth because he was too smutty to be handled; but in this age of improvement the black coated gentleman will find a pair of long-tongs prepared to pinch his monstrous proboscis, when in the way, or hold him up 'to fester in his infamy.'

MOST 'SALUTARY.'

That old gracious Methodist's son, who edits a paper for both parties, has lately had a fit of hog-gan-za, since General Bennett was expelled from the church and Lodge, which he thinks will make the Mormons feel like stuck hogs for a few months to come. May be so; but while you throw out such Prophet inuendoes, of blood and murder, for a whole community, just take the responsibility upon your-elf of sending a person to 'Missouri to fulfill prophecies,' or let the public hiss you out of the great valley of the Mississippi, as a liar, a knave and coward!

Spit knives, will ye!

PROPHECYING.

The Alton Telegraph is prophesying again. It can be seen, at the close of another painful diarrhoea of morbid matter from the Editor of the 2nd of July. Now mark the prophecy. 'But if his life (Duncan's) is spared, the citizens of Illinois will put a veto (Latin, I forbid) upon POLITICAL MORMONISM, that we trust, will effectually drive it from Illinois.'

There is but one kind of Mormonism, thank God, whether it be styled political, evangelical, or theoretical, and the blood of many witnesses has sealed that to be faith in the Lord Jesus Christ; baptism for the remission of sins; the laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost, and endurance to the end to be saved. All this is to be effectually effaced from Illinois if Duncan lives. Religion, then, is no better off in the boasted land of liberty, than in the realms of deserts. The name of God was voted out of France, and the Guillotine ensued: Prophecy on, Saul.

A BONE FOR THE SECTS.

It is a common saying abroad that the Mormons are fools, fanatics, or ignoramuses. Go it credulous; the Mormons have a Prophet, and like all saints before them, if they follow the word of the Lord, they will escape the wrath to come, while you may all wonder and perish; you will find more whipt roosters than merely Dr. West of Boston: 'Tis hard fighting against the apostles of Jesus Christ, and the old Blue Lights of sectarianism will find it so after locking horns a few times more with the Elders of Israel.

NAUVOO AHEAD.

Our good city continues to go ahead notwithstanding the scarcity of money. We observed the other day, the foundation of a large building had been laid for a Pottery. This is noble; we have the materials and workmen, and why not produce as good crockery as England?

A white lead manufactory is in progress, also. Wonder what the old long-faced sectarian priests, who go about preaching, that the Mormons are the common enemies of mankind, will say to these laudable national improvements in Nauvoo? Whistling in company is ungentlemanly, speak out.

A blunt gut splits a knotty log.—SHAK.

As the anti-Mormons are somewhat troubled to find candidates of suitable qualifications for the approaching election, we would recommend them to run Dr. J. H. C. BENNETT, for the Senate. He has just singed his own locks with the blaze of his own glory, and while he is unlocking his Pandoran box for the Sargam Journal, his friends, (if he has any,) ought to give him a little State titty as well as suckle Tom Sharp on asses' milk.

It is with pleasure that we announce the name of Col. J. B. Backenstos, of Carthage, as a candidate for the House of Representatives for Hancock co. Col. B. is a gentleman, free from the prejudices of the age, and will make an able and safe legislator.

PROSPECTS.—We want several hundred subscribers to the Wasp, who can pay cash, flour, meat, or such commodities as industrious mechanics need for consumption. Come on boys—you may, Peenix like, raise the Wasp to a Lion.

The cause of the Latter Day Saints, abroad seems to be gaining. Our news from the Eastern cities shows a determination on both sides to bear and be heard. All right: our Elders go forth, as apostles ever did, to teach, not to be taught: The world just begins to learn the fact better late than never.

HORRID ACCIDENT.

The Steam Boat Edna collapsed both flues of her larboard boiler on Sunday morning, the 3d of July, at the mouth of the Missouri river, by which more than sixty persons, (mostly Germans,) were badly scalded; between forty and fifty of whom have since died.

O YES! O YES!

It will be well for the Latter-Day Saints to recollect that on Monday the 1st day of August next, the election commences: when it is expected that those who have rights will use them according to the constitution—Good men and good deeds.

For the Wasp.

COL. HENDERSON AND GOV. DUNCAN.
Col. Henderson, was in our city last week and delivered what we should call a first rate political speech. He is a man of first rate talent and a gentleman, and goes it with a perfect rush for retrenchment and reform. He spoke in the highest possible terms of Gov. Duncan, and the way he tied up the Locofocos was a caution to sinners.

Gov. Duncan is also a man of the first order. The prejudices of the people where he has travelled, has led him to take a course apparently against the Mormons; but we know Gov. Duncan, and he knows us—there is no misunderstanding between us. The August election is near at hand and that will show who will be Governor. After the election it will all be right with us. Hurrah for the Colonel and Jo.

VERITAS.

LATE FROM NAUVOO.—JOHN C. BENNETT.—The mail yesterday, brought us the Nauvoo papers, the "Times and Seasons," and "The Wasp," of the 1st inst. In both of these papers, Mr. Joseph Smith has quite a long communication, addressed to the members of the Church and the "honorable part of community," exposing the character and conduct of Mr. Johng C. Bennett, while Mayor of the city, commander of the Nauvoo Legion, Master in Chancery for Hancock county, candidate for the legislature, a distinguished leader in the church, &c. &c. By this publication it appears that Bennett has been guilty of seduction, adultery, slander, lying, &c. Bennett it appears, has a wife and two children at McCounelsville, Ohio, from whom he has never been divorced—that he came to Nauvoo, joined the church, and "put on the livery of Heaven to serve the devil in"—that he imposed himself upon the young ladies of that city, as a single man—that he finally accomplished his object in seducing one of their number—and instead of being satisfied with the accomplishment of this sinful wrong, he made attacks upon the virtue of married women, and overcame them also—"evidently not caring whose character was ruined, so that his wicked, lustful appetites might be gratified." His conduct was known to the elders, and he reasoned with and threatened him with excommunication; in consequence of this, he attempted to commit suicide, but was frustrated in the design. It was supposed, that shame and the dread of public exposure, after his recovery from he attempt at suicide, would have produced a thorough reformation in his conduct; but not so; he soon gave a loose rein to his lustful passion, and continued his adulterous practices. During the course of his career of vice and infamy, as Smith states, he sought to teach the credulous females of the church, that 'promiscuous intercourse between the sexes, was a doctrine believed in by the latter day saints; and that there was no harm in it.' To make his triumph over their virtue the more easy, he told the women that the heads of the church, including Smith himself, sanctioned and practiced these vices. In la fi e, the publication of Mr. Smith, exposes one of the most corrupt knaves and hypocrites, the State affords, and in whatever community, Judge Douglass's Master in Chancery, John C. Bennett, makes his appearance in future, he should be marked and known as a monster, dangerous to the good order and social relations existing in society, and unworthy the least countenance or attention of any moral or virtuous man. He is evidently old in sin and iniquity, and his exposure was due to society at large. Bennett left Nauvoo in a sudden and abrupt manner, and there is no knowing where he will next make his appearance. Whether his locofoco friends will sustain him in this strait to which he is brought, remains to be seen.—Quincy Whig.

We certainly are frank to confess our gratitude, to the Quincy Whig for his liberality and apparent humanity. When all men can harmonize and treat vice with contempt or punishment, as it deserves, then we can use the proverb: 'righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people.'

A GREAT AND GLORIOUS ESCAPE FROM BRITISH TYRANNY.

It is with great pleasure that we have to announce the arrival in this city of the first of those poor fellows who, taken in Canada for rebellion, and transported to Van Diemen's Land, has been enabled to make his escape back to this country.

The person we allude to, came into our office on Thursday, with his cheek flushed with health and delight, his eye beaming with pride and pleasure at once more reaching his native land, and his escape from British tyranny.

His name is James Gammell. He is about 28 years of age; was born in New York, brought up in Canada, and during the troubles there, was taken under Col. James Monroe, at Short Hills, Upper Canada, in the summer of 1838. Monroe was hung; Gammell was sentenced to be hung on the 25th of August, 1838, but was reprieved, sent to England with John S. Parker, and twenty-two others, and hence transported to Van Diemen's Land for life, with about seventy more Americans.

Gammell and eleven others were sent out from England, in the ship Canton, to Hobart's Town, on the 22d September, 1839, and reached there January 16th, 1840. They were all sent one hundred miles into the interior to work on the great road leading across the island from Hobart Town to Launceston. Here they worked in irons for two years. After that, Lord John Russell sent out orders to mitigate their condition. They then received each a "ticket of leave," and were allowed to work at their respective trades, on their own account, but still to be kept confined to the interior, and never allowed to go to any seaport on the island.

Gammell, however, was allowed a pass by the magistrate of the district to go to Hobart Town to get a model for a stump machine. And with that he stumped the British authorities; for by the assistance of some American sailors, then at Hobart Town, he made his escape on board of an American whale ship, and

THE WASP.

SATURDAY, JULY 16, 1842.

We are authorized to announce the name of WILLIAM SMITH as candidate for the senate of this State, at the ensuing election.

Printer.

We are authorized to announce Jacob C. Davis as the independent candidate for Senator of Hancock county, at the ensuing August election.

We are authorized to announce JOHN F. CHARLES as an independent candidate for Senator for Hancock county at the next August election.

We are authorized to announce to the independent voters of Hancock county, that J. B. Backenstos is a Democratic candidate for Representative, at the ensuing August election.

We are authorized to announce Thos. H. Owens as a candidate for Representative, at the ensuing August election.

We are authorized to announce David Greenleaf as a candidate for Representative, at the ensuing election.

To the independent voters of Hancock co.

Gentlemen: I present myself, for your consideration, as a candidate for Representative to the Legislature, at the next August election, and respectfully solicit your suffrages.

M. ALDRICH.

We are authorized to announce the name of James D. Bias, as the people's Independent Democratic Republican candidate for Representative of Hancock county, in the next Legislature.

We are authorized to announce Wm. Backenstos as a candidate for Sheriff, at the ensuing election.

The undersigned would respectfully announce himself as a candidate for the office of Sheriff of Hancock county, Ill. He is untrammelled by party feelings and Conventions; he solicits the votes of all parties. If he is elected, he will serve them as citizens and not as partizans in the discharge of his official duties.

G. A. CHITTENDEN.

We are requested to state that John T. Barnett is an independent democratic candidate for County Commissioner, at the ensuing August election.

We are authorized to announce Franklin J. Bartlett, of St. Mary's presinet, as a candidate for School Commissioner at the next August election.

We are authorized to announce Geo. W. Stigall as a candidate for Coroner of Hancock county.

A word on politics. As many persons announce their names as candidates for the ensuing election, in the Wasp, we have thought it advisable to say that we require the pay for insertion in advance.

'SALUTARY.'

Procul, o procul este profani!—VIRGIL.
Well, Illinois has Suckeroons,
And Warsaw, lo, a paper harp!
On which to mux out awful tunes
The Devil keeps one T. C. Sharp;
And music charms he hath forthwith,
To please a hog and give a horse awe,
To saw the bass of Damn Jo Smith,
And slur the nincompoops of Warsaw.

The old Methodist priest, (Mr. Sharp,) after laying a couple of months to bledy and b eath and beg, has again come out with a little eddish-cloth or black rag, or Signal, as he calls it, which has 'neutrality' nailed on it, as a kind of Good Lord, Good Devil, to recommend the same as an old Negro heaves an old shoe for good luck. This old priest, after having di-appointed God, men and women, so long, has now the presumptuous audacity to try to hold up that old black flag, till after the August election, just to gratify his natural propensity for lying, slandering and hypocrisy. What a fatherly bestowment, and endowment, the Methodist diocess must have conferred on one of the sons of Maryland, when T. C. Sharp was set apart for the ministry, volens volens, and, then like one of the seven sons of Seva, he began his miracles in Warsaw, to convert the Mormons to — what? to believe that it is right to disinheret, ravish, and murder on account of religion: O you monster, you savage! don't say you are a Republican, don't claim yourself a christian; for you, in your course towards the church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, show yourself to be a Revelator of ruin! a slobbered of slander! and a wr'ch writhing in your soul, ase for wickedness enough to afford you eternal employment where the worm dieth not and the fire is not quenched.

MORE 'SALUTARY.'

The old Methodist priest's son, down in Warsaw, among his long list of lies published on the 9th inst., cal's the 'Wasp' a Pole Cat: for the which payment we shall designate him as a Skunk, and his paper as a Funk-bag. A Pole Cat, or Polish Cat, is of the fitchet species and not very offensive; but the skunk, of the weasel kind, loves darkness rather than light because his deeds are evil, and is equipped with a funk bag or the same reason that Sharp is:—to keep decent people at a respectful distance. If he can get any satisfaction by changing Wasp to Pole Cat, go ahead; he will make out about as well as to fire, coax, or cozen Bennett to help him edit the Funk-bag. Poor sinners! Tom Sharp gambling with two parties for power; and Bennett bound to Missouri for repentance! Oho! jam satis! T. C. Sharp used to pass off in his own fifth, because he was too smutty to be handled; but in this age of improvement the black coated gentleman will find a pair of long tongs prepared to pinch his monstrous proboscis, when in the way, or hold him up to fester in his infamy.

MOST 'SALUTARY.'

That old gracious Methodist's son, who edits a paper for both parties, has lately had a fit of hog-gan-sa, since General Bennett was expelled from the church and Lodge, which he thinks will make the Mormons feel like stuck hogs for a few months to come. May be so; but while you throw out such Prophet invasions, of blood and murder, for a whole community, just take the responsibility upon yourself of sending a person to Missouri to fulfill prophecies, or let the public hiss you out of the great Valley of the Mississippi, as a liar, a knave and coward! Spit knives, will ye?

PROPHECYING.

The Alton Telegraph is prophesying again. It can be seen, at the close of another painful harlequin of morbid matter from the Editor of the Alton Telegraph, that the citizens of Illinois will put a veto (Latin, I forbid) upon political Mormonism that we trust, will eventually efface it from Illinois.

There is but one kind of Mormonism, thank God, whether it be styled political, evangelical or theoretical, and the blood of many witnesses has sealed that to be faith in the Lord Jesus Christ; baptism for the remission of sins; the laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost, and endurance to the end to be saved. All this is to be effectually effaced from Illinois if Duncan lives. Religion, then, is no better off in the boasted land of liberty, than in the realms of despots. The name of God was voted out of France, and the Guillotine ensued: Prophecy on, Saul.

A FONE FOR THE SECTS.

It is a common saying abroad that the Mormons are fools; fanatics, or ignoramuses. Go! reduletans; the Mormons have a Prophet, and like all saints before them, if they follow the word of the Lord, they will escape the wrath to come, while you may all wonder and perish; you will find more whiptrosters than merely Dr. West of Boston: 'Tis hard fighting against the apostles of Jesus Christ, and the old Blue Lights of sectarianism will find it so after locking horns a few times more with the Elders of Israel.

NAUVOO AHEAD.

Our good city continues to go ahead notwithstanding the scarcity of money. We observed the other day, the foundation of a large building had been laid for a Pottery. This is noble; we have the materials and workmen, and why not produce as good crockery as England?

A white lead manufactory is in progress, also. Wonder what the old long faced sectarian priests, who go about preaching, that the Mormons are the common enemies of mankind, will say to these laudable national improvements in Nauvoo? Whispering in company is ungente manly, speak out.

A blunt glut splits a knotty log.—SHAK.

As the anti-Mormons are somewhat troubled to find candidates of suitable qualifications for the approaching election, we would recommend them to run Dr. JOHN C. BENNETT, for the Senate. He has just singed his own locks with the blaze of his own glory, and while he is unlocking his Pandoran box for the Sangam Journal, his friends, (if he has any,) ought to give him a little State titty as well as suckle him on Sharp on asses' milk.

It is with pleasure that we announce the name of Col. J. B. Backenstos, of Carthage, a candidate for the House of Representative for Hancock co. Col. B. is a gentleman, free from the prejudices of the age, and will make a able and safe legislator.

PROSPERS.—We want several hundred subscribers to the Wasp, who can pay cash, flour, meat, or such commodities as industrious mechanics need for consumption. Come on boys—you may, Pennix like, raise the Wasp to a Lion.

The cause of the Latter Day Saints, abroad seems to be gaining. Our news from the Eastern cities shows a determination on both sides to hear and be heard. All right: our Elders go forth, as apostles ever did, to teach, not to be taught: The world just begins to learn the fact better late than never.

HORRID ACCIDENT.

The Steam Boat Edna collapsed both flues of her larboard boiler on Sunday morning, the 3rd of July, at the mouth of the Missouri river, by which more than sixty persons, (mostly Germans,) were badly scalded; between forty and fifty of whom have since died.

O YES! O YES!

It will be well for the Latter-Day Saints to recollect that on Monday the 1st day of August next, the election commences: when it is expected that those who have rights will use them according to the constitution?—Good men do good deeds.

For the Wasp.

COL. HENDERSON AND GOV. DUNCAN
Col. Henderson, was in our city last week and delivered what we should call a first rate political speech. He is a man of first rate talent and a gentleman, and goes it with a perfect rush for retrenchment and reform. He spoke in the highest possible terms of Gov. Duncan, and the way he used up the Locofocos was a caution to sinners.

Gov. Duncan is also a man of the first order. The prejudices of the people where he has traveled, has led him to take a course of warfare against the Mormons; but we know Gov. Duncan, and he knows us—there is no misunderstanding between us. The August election is near at hand and that will show who will be Governor. After the election it will all be right with us. Hurrah for the Colonel and Jo.

VERITAS.

LATE FROM NAUVOO.—JOHN C. BENNETT.—The mail yesterday, brought us the Nauvoo papers, the "Times and Seasons," and "The Wasp," of the 1st inst. In both of these papers, Mr. Joseph Smith has quite a long communication, addressed to the members of the Church and the "honorable part of community," exposing the character and conduct of Mr. John C. Bennett, while Mayor of the city, commander of the Nauvoo Legion, Master in Chancery for Hancock county, candidate for the legislature, a distinguished leader in the church, &c. &c. By this publication it appears that Bennett has been guilty of seduction, adultery, slander, lying, &c. Bennett it appears, has a wife and two children at McCounselsville, Ohio, from whom he has never been divorced—that he came to Nauvoo, joined the church, and "put on the livery of Heaven to serve the devil in"—that he imposed himself upon the young ladies of that city, as a single man—that he finally accomplished his object in seducing one of their number—and instead of being satisfied with the accomplishment of this foul wrong, he made attacks upon the virtue of married women, and overcame them also—evidently not caring whose character was ruined, so that his wicked, lustful appetites might be gratified." His conduct was known to the elders, and they reasoned with and threatened him with excommunication; in consequence of this, he attempted to commit suicide, but was frustrated in the design. It was supposed, that shame and the dread of public exposure, after his recovery from the attempt at suicide, would have produced a thorough reformation in his conduct; but not so; he soon gave a loose rein to his lustful passion, and continued his adulterous practices. During the course of his career of vice and infamy, as Smith states, he sought to teach the "delicious females of the church, that promiscuous intercourse between the sexes, was a doctrine believed in by the latter day saints; and that there was no harm in it." To make his triumph over their virtue the more easy, he told the women that the heads of the church, including Smith himself, sanctioned and practiced these vices. In fine, the publication of Mr. Smith, exposes one of the most corrupt knaves and hypocrites, the State affords, and in whatever community, Judge Douglass's Master in Chancery, John C. Bennett, makes his appearance in future, he should be marked and known as a monster, dangerous to the good order and social relations existing in a society, and unworthy the least countenance or attention of any moral or virtuous man. He is evidently old in sin and iniquity, and his exposure was due to society at large. Bennett left Nauvoo in a sudden and abrupt manner, and there is no knowing where he will next make his appearance. Whether his locofoco friends will sustain him in this strait to which he is brought, remains to be seen. —Quincy Whig.

We certainly are frank to confess our gratitude to the Quincy Whig for his liberality and apparent humanity. When all men can harmonize and treat vice with contempt or punishment, as it deserves, then we can use the proverb: righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people.

A GREAT AND GLORIOUS ESCAPE FROM BRITISH TYRANNY.

It is with great pleasure that we have to announce the arrival in this city of the first of those poor fellows who, taken in Canada for rebellion, and transported to Van Diemen's Land, has been enabled to make his escape back to this country.

The person we allude to, came into our office on Thursday, with his cheek flushed with health and delight; his eye beaming with pride and pleasure at once more reaching his native land, and his full gratitude to God for his escape from British tyranny.

His name is James Gammell. He is about 28 years of age; was born in New York, brought up in Canada, and during the troubles there, was taken under Col. James Monroe, at Short Hills, Upper Canada, in the summer of 1838. Monroe was hung; Gammell was sentenced to be hung on the 25th of August, 1838, but was reprieved, sent to England with John S. Parker, and twenty-two others, and hence transported to Van Dieman's Land for life, with about seventy more Americans.

Gammell and eleven others were sent out from England, in the ship Canton, to Hobart's Town, on the 22d September, 1839, and reached there January 16th, 1840. They were all sent one hundred miles into the interior to work on the great road leading across the island from Hobart Town to Launceston. Here they worked in irons for two years. After that, Lord John Russell sent out orders to mitigate their condition. They then received each a "ticket of leave," and were allowed to work at their respective trades, on their own account, but still to be kept confined to the interior, and never allowed to go to any seaport on the island.

Gammell, however, was allowed to pass by the magistrate of the district to go to Hobart Town to get a model for a stump machine. And with that he stampeded the British authorities; for by the assistance of some American sailors, then at Hobart Town, he made his escape on board of an American whale ship, and reached this city in fine health and spirits on last Wednesday at high noon, being the first of the American prisoners who has made his escape from Van Dieman's Land.

His numerous hair breadth escapes we give at length hereafter. In the meantime, the poor fellow wishes us to state that the following American prisoners have died there since he went out:—

Peter Williams, of the United States; Alexander McLeod, Genard Van Camp, of Canada; John James M'Miller, do; Mr. Priest, Jefferson county, N. Y.; Mr. Curtis

The following have been sent to work in the coal mines for two years, for trying to make their escape from the island:—Symes W. Miller, Chataque; Joseph Stewart, New York; W. Reynolds, do; Horace Cooley, London, U. C.; Mr. Murry, do; Jacob Paddock, Kingston.

In these coal mines there are 1000 men at work. Gammell says that he left 76 prisoners still there of the patriot party, mostly United States' citizens, and all in bondage, employed by released convicts in various trades. A man named Notage, of Ohio, was killed blasting a rock. Can nothing be done to obtain the release of these poor fellows? Surely—they have suffered enough—N. Y. Herald.

There have been ten Presidents of the U. States. Of these, six have been natives of Virginia. Virginia has supplied two Vice Presidents, Thomas Jefferson and John Tyler—five Secretaries of State, Thomas Jefferson, Edmond Randolph, John Marshall, James Madison, James Monroe—Secretaries of War, James Barbour—Secretary of the Navy, Abel P. Up-hur—Postmaster General, none—Chief Justice, John Marshall—Attorneys General, Edmond Randolph, Charles Lee, and William Wirt.

Two Presidents have come from the Eastern States—the Middle States have had one—the West one—but the South (beyond Virginia) thus far have been neglected.

ONE VILLAIN PUNISHED.—We learn from Saratoga Sentinel, N. Y. that at the last Oyer and Terminer held in that county, a fellow named Ezekiel Little was convicted of biting off his wife's tongue. He accomplished his fiendish purpose by choking her till her tongue protruded from her mouth, when like a wolf, he seized it with his teeth, and bit off about an inch in length. The offence as it came out at the trial, was, that his wife could not believe him to be Jesus Christ the Son of God, and entitled to worship. No wonder. She has strong reasons, however, to believe he was the son of the devil. He was sentenced to the State prison for seven years.—Philadelphia Herald.

A SERMON IN A TREE.—"Observe," said Zoro to the downcast and desponding Viola—"observe, you tree in your neighbor's garden. Look how it grows up, crooked and distorted. Some wind carried the germ from which it sprung in the clefts of the rock. Choked up and walled round by crags and buildings, by nature, and by man, its life has been one struggle for the light; light which makes to this life the necessity and the principle. You see how it is writhed and twisted; how, meeting the barrier, in one spot, it has labored and worked, stem and branches, towards the clear skies at last. What has protected it through each disaster of birth and circumstances? Why are its leaves as green and fair as the vine behind you, which, with all its arms, cannot embrace the open sunshine? My child, because of the very instinct that impelled the struggle, because the labor for the light won to the light at length. So with a gallant heart, through every adverse accident of sorrow and of fate, to turn to the sun, to strive for the haven; that it is that gives knowledge to the strong, and happiness to the weak. Ere we meet again, you will turn sad and heavy eyes to those quiet boughs; and when you hear the birds sing from them, and see the sunshine come aslant from eaves and housetop to be the playfellow of their leaves, learn the lesson that nature teaches you, and strike through darkness to the light." [Bulwer.]

Learning, if rightly applied, makes a young man thinking, attentive, and industrious, confident and wary; an old man cheerful and reserved. 'Tis an ornament of prosperity, a refuge in adversity, an entertainment at all times

ROMANCE OR REALITY.—If you wish to marry a woman who will sit all day with holes in her stockings, and talk to you about what sacrifices she would be willing to make for your comfort and convenience—who will see you toiling and sweating day and night for the support of your family, and never reach forth a finger to assist you, while she addresses you in poetical numbers, and calls you the noblest of beings—whose heart is always bursting with love, while your shirts need washing, and you can never get a meal cooked to your mind—if you would marry such a one, go and marry a romantic maiden who reads Bulwer and sighs to the moon.

"George Washington Napoleon Jackson Hannibal Harrison?"

"Ma'm?"

"Tell Josephine Rosina Cleopatra Matilda Victoria, to bring up the slop-pail."

"Yes, ma'm."

"And don't let me catch you playing with that Jack Jones again. How often have I told you never to play with a boy that had but two names, and particularly such a vulgar name as Jack Jones."

Whew!

That incorrigible rogue, John Smith, has been detected in Rhode Island of robbing a hen-roost. It is not yet known to which army he belongs.

District Court of the United States, within and for the district of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Windsor P. Lyon of Hancock county to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that Windsor P. Lyon of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the first day of October next, at the District Court Room in the city of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July, A. D. 1842.

RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT, Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, clerk. 14-31

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Edward F. Chittenden of Hancock county, to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Edward F. Chittenden of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court Room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July, A. D. 1842.

RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT, Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Talton E. Fox of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Talton E. Fox of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts, under the act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court Room in the city of Springfield, in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July, A. D. 1842.

RALSTON WARREN & WHEAT, Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of William Niswanger of Hancock County to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that William Niswanger of Hancock County has filed his Petition in this court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield, in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July A. D. 1842.

RALSTON WARREN & WHEAT, Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

LIST OF LETTERS. REMAINING in the Post Office at Nanvoo Hancock county Illinois, July 1st 1842, which, if not taken out before the 1st of October next, will be sent to the Post Office department, as dead letters.

N. B. Persons wishing any of the following letters will please say they are advertised, or they may no get them.

H Alexander A Hay

Thos Alister Caroline E Hubbard

Miles Anderson Saml Hamer 2

T O Angel N Higgins

Thos Arthur L S Hallister

Adolphus Allen J Hunter

J K Allen W W Hay

Wm Allen Jacob Hess

George Beebe W Huit

C Baldwin 3 R Hubbard

J G Bently G W Harris

N Boscow 2 H R Hayt

Albert Brown E Heaton

A or B Adams J Hooper

I Barlow Noah Hubbard

S Blackledge A C Hodge

R Brasher Isaac Higbee

J Bullard I H Haskinson

Jos Baily R Hill

John Bair Geo Hubbard

C Biddlecome Peter Haws

Jane Black Mr Hemmick

N Bliss Saml James

E Bass jr Wm Jones

J Bates Hiram Jackson

J Blackhurst Harry Jacobs

H Bradford John S Johnson

C Builer David Jones

P G Boman Ed Johnston

Wm Batson J W Johnston

B Clark J W Jenkins

I Carter Elizabeth Jones

G Coltrin Benj Johnson

S A Carlisle Thos Sher Jackson 2

Thos Clayton Mary Kelsey

J Craghton Esion Kelsey

C Harless R Kinnamon

Wm Campion Westly Knights

H C Connor Margaret Kingston

Jas Carroll Charisley Klepper

Walter Crum Hyram Hoil

John Cams W Luce

W Chapman D B Lamorowx

W B Cornt Mariah Lane

Chas Chapman John Loveless

J B Day Ed Little

Elizabeth Durfee L M Lyman

John Davis Andrew Lytle

Miss E R Davis L Leonard

Seth Palmer Cath Stoker

George Peacock 2 Wealthy Shumway

E Potter Ezra Strond

J E Pettis Jacob Strong

Jesse Pettis Nath Stacher

Adison Pratt R Stephens

Channey Peck Jas Standing

J T Patten Jas Simpson

Jacob Peart Wm Stephen

J H Price M M Samuels

Roby Pouter Joshua Smith

Adaline Pery Warren Smith

Joseph Parker Hyrum Smith 3

Wm Pool Joseph Smith 3

Mary Ann Price Daniel Tyler

Wm Price N Turner

George Price 2 Turza Thatcher

C H Phelps Thos Turnbull

Mary H Palmer 2 Burr Thomlinson

Mary Page Jane Twist

Wm Parsons Johathar Taylor 2

Tharit Pearson Charity Tharp

Arch bald Rite Wm Thompson

R A Russell 2 John Taylor

John Roberts 2 Ira Willson

Thos Richmond Ann Wright

J R Robbins Robert Wright

J E Royce Eliza J Webb 2

Thos Raulclife Pardon Webb

Amelia Rogers Channey Webb

Sarah Riland Benj S Wilber

Sarah Roberts Martha A Webster

N Runnium F G Williams

T Rogers 2 Benj Warrington 2

J L Robinson Cath Willson

Wm Robinson Isa Whitesides

Chas Raymond James Whitehead

W W Reed SS Willcox

W Richards Thos Weakefield

Wm Seely Siles Wilcox

John Stiles J B Walker

E Stout J L or A S Workman

ra Sherman M B Welton

Lyman Stephens L Woodruff

C A Scofield J J Walker

M M Saunders Y Yeomaur

R Shepherd Brigham Young 4

L Stodard D D Yearsley

Wm Sleeper

SIDNEY RIGDON, P. M.

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Charles Warner of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Charles Warner of Hancock county has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts, under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next,

at the District court room in the city of Springfield, in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July A. D. 1842.

reached this city in fine health and spirits on last Wednesday at high noon, being the first of the American prisoners who has made his escape from Van Dieman's Land.

His numerous hair breadth escapes we give at length hereafter. In the mean time, the poor fellow wishes us to state that the following American prisoners have died there since he went out:—

Peter Williams, of the United States, Alexander McLeod, Genard Van Camp, of Canada; John James Miller, do; Mr. Priest, Jefferson county, N. Y.; Mr. Curtis

The following have been sent to work in the coal mines for two years, for trying to make their escape from the island:—

Symes W. Miller, Chataque; Joseph Stewart, New York; W. Reynolds, do; Horace Cooley, London, U. C.; Mr. Murry, do; Jacob Paddock, Kingston.

In these coal mines there are 1000 men at work. Gammell says that he left 76 prisoners still there of the patriot party, mostly United States citizens, and all in bondage, employed by released convicts in various trades. A man named Notage, of Ohio, was killed blasting a rock. Can nothing be done to obtain the release of these poor fellows? Surely—they have suffered enough—N. Y. Herald.

There have been ten Presidents of the U. States. Of these, six have been natives of Virginia. Virginia has supplied two Vice Presidents, Thomas Jefferson and John Tyler—five Secretaries of State, Thomas Jefferson, Edmond Randolph, John Marshall James Madison, James Monroe—Secretaries of the Treasury, none—Secretaries of War, James Barbour—Secretary of the Navy, Abel P. Up-hur—Postmaster General, none—Chief Justice, John Marshall—Attorneys General, Edmond Randolph, Charles Lee, and William Wirt.

Two Presidents have come from the Eastern States—the Middle States have had one—the West one—but the South (beyond Virginia) thus far have been neglected.

ONE VILLAIN PUNISHED.—We learn from Saratoga Sentinel, N. Y. that at the last Oyer and Terminer held in that county, a fellow named Ezekiel Little was convicted of biting off his wife's tongue. He accomplished his fiendish purpose by choking her till her tongue protruded from her mouth, when like a wolf, he seized it with his teeth, and bit off about an inch in length. The offence as it came out at the trial, was, that his wife could not believe him to be Jesus Christ the Son of God, and entitled to worship. No wonder. She has strong reasons, however, to believe he was the son of the devil. He was sentenced to the State prison for seven years.—Philadelphia Herald.

A SERMON IN A TREE.—“Observe,” said Zoro to the downcast and desponding Viola—“observe, you're in your neighbor's garden. Look how it grows up, crooked and distorted. Some wind carried the germ from which it sprung in the clefts of the rock. Choked up and walled round by crags and buildings, by nature, and by man, its life has been one struggle for the light; light which makes to this life the necessity and the principle. You see how it is with-d and twisted; how, meeting the barrier, in one spot, it has labored and worked, stem and branches, towards the clear skies at last. What has protected it through each disaster of birth and circumstances? Why are its leaves as green and fair as the vine behind you, which, with all its arms, cannot embrace the open sunshine? My child, because of the very instinct that impelled the struggle; because the labor for the light won to the light a length. So with a gallant heart, through every adverse accident of sorrow and of fate, turn to the sun, to strive for the heaven; that it is that gives knowledge to the strong, and happiness to the weak. Ere we meet again, you will turn sad and heavy eyes to those quiet boughs; and when you hear the birds sing from them, and see the sunshine come aslant from crag and housetop to be the playfellow of their leaves, learn the lesson that nature teaches you, and strike through darkness to the light.” [Bulwer.]

Learning, if rightly applied, makes a young man thinking, attentive, and industrious, confident and wary; an old man cheerful and reserved; 'Tis an ornament of prosperity, a refuge in adversity, an entertainment at all times

ROMANCE vs. REALITY.—If you wish to marry a woman who will sit all day with holes in her stockings, and talk to you about what sacrifices she would be willing to make for your comfort and convenience—who will see you toiling and sweating day and night for the support of your family, and never reach forth a finger to assist you, while she addresses you in poetical numbers, and calls you the noblest of beings—whose heart is always bursting with love, while your shirts need washing, and you can never get a meal cooked to your mind—if you would marry such a one, go and marry a romantic maiden who reads Bulwer and sighs to the moon.

“George Washington Napoleon Jackson Hannibal Harrison?”

Ma'm?

“Tell Josephine Rosina Cleopatra Matilda Victoria, to bring up the slop-pail.”

“Yes, ma'm.”

“And don't let me catch you playing with that Jack Jones again. How often have I told you never to play with a boy that had but two names, and particularly such a vulgar name as Jack Jones.”

Whew!

That incorrigible rogue, John Smith, has been detected in Rhode Island of robbing a henroost. It is not yet known to which army he belongs.

District Court of the United States, within and for the district of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Windsor P. Lyon of Hancock county to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that Windsor P. Lyon of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a bankrupt and be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the first day of October next, at the District Court Room in the city of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition: all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July, A. D. 1842.

RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT, Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, clerk. 14-31

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Edward F. Chittenden of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Edward F. Chittenden of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court Room in the city of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition: all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July, A. D. 1842.

RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT, Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Talton E. Fox of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Talton E. Fox of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts, under the act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court Room in the city of Springfield, in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition: all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July, A. D. 1842.

RALSTON WARREN & WHEAT, Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of William Niswanger of Hancock County to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that William Niswanger of Hancock County has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court Room in the City of Springfield, in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition: all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July A. D. 1842.

RALSTON WARREN & WHEAT, Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

LIST OF LETTERS, REMAINING in the Post Office at Nauvoo Hancock county Illinois: July 1st 1842, which, if not taken out before the 1st of October next, will be sent to the Post Office department, as dead letters.

N. B. Persons wishing any of the following letters will please say they are advertised, or they may no get them.

A Alexander	A Hay
Thos Alister	Caroline E Hubbard
Miles Anderson	Saml Hamer
T O Angel	N Higgins
Thos Arthur	L S Hallister
Adolphus Allen	J Hunter
J K Allen	W W Hay
Wm Allen	Jacob Hess
George Peebe	W Huit
C Baldwin	3 R Hubbard
J G Bently	G W Harris
N Boscow	2 H B Hayt
Albert Brown	E Heaton
A or B Adams	J Hooper
I Barlow	Noah Hubbard
S Blackledge	A C Hodge
R Brasher	Isaac Hulse
J Bullard	I H Haskinson
Jos Barly	R Hill
John Fair	Geo Hubbard
C Bidd ecome	Peter Haws
Jane Black	Mr Hemmeck
N. Eliss	Saml James
E Pass jr	Wm Jones
I Bates	Hiram Jackson
I Blackhurst	Harry Jacobs
H Bradford	John S Johnson
C Butler	David Jones
P G Boman	Ed Johnston
Wm Batson	J W Johnston
B Clark	JW Jenkins
I Carter	Elizabeth Jones
G Coltrin	Benj Johnson
S A Carlisle	Thos Sher Jackson
Thos Clayton	Mary Kelsey
I Craghton	Easton Kelsey
C Harless	R Kinnamon
Wm Campion	Westly Knights
H C Connor	Margaret, Kington
Jas Carroll	Charisley Klepper
Walter Crun	Hyram Hoil
John Cams	W Luce
W Chapman	D-B Lamorowx
W B Cornt	Mariah Lane
Chas Chapman	John Loveless
I B Day	Ed Lule
Elizabeth Durfee	L M Lyman
John Davis	Andrew Lytle
Miss E R Davis	L Leonard
Miss Elizabeth Davis	S McLenathan
C R Dana	Mary E Lightner
J Dunham	W Lancaster
Ed Dazett	C W Lyon
I O Duke	M Logan
I Durfee	E Landers
Miss R Delkith	Fred Levy
S Emong	2 Wm Mikesell
Ed Nauvoo Paper	S McMurtry
I Emery	Wm McIntire
I Eldridge	Davis McOiney
John Eagle	Harris Murphy
Dwight Evilish	Jessee McCarrrell
J H Enfried	J H Murphy
Dr Emmet	Jes McLalard
I Frost	Pridy Meeks
R Foster	James McMahan
W Fosset	Henry Mower
I S Fulmer	Samuel Merrill
John Foss	J McLellan
C B Fisher	John Middleton
John Field	Thos McKey
I R Fisher	Wm McKay
Jas Flanagan	E P Merium
DM Gammit	H Marhham
no S Gleason	E McNall
CP Garauth	George Morey
Thos Green	H W Miller
Jas Gorden	W Morgan
Jane Glover	Wm Munjar
W S Gould	Joel Miles
Guy Green	Allen Meeks
E M Garfield	Mary Mitchell
E H Groves	George Middagh
Jas Graham	3 Eligah Newman
I Gochevaur	Wm Nesbet
Miss Ann Gardner	Wm Niswanger
P A Goodwin	Newel Night
B D Harris	Mary Omstead
A Hunsoker	Ed Oahy
H Herrinshaw	2 David Osborne
Martin Harris	F Phippen
C Hallett	2 John Price
J Halston	Hannah Price
Chas Hopkins	J E Page

Seth Palmer	Cath Stoker
George Peacock	2 Wealthy Shumway
E Potter	Ezra Strond
I E Pettis	Jacob Strong
Jessee Pettis	Nath Stacher
Adison Pratt	R Stephens
Channey Peck	Jas Standing
I T Patten	Jas Simpson
Jacob Peart	Wm Stephen
J H Price	M M Samuels
Roby Pouter	Joshua Smith
Adaline Pery	Warren Smith
Joseph Parker	Hyrum Smith
Wm Pool	Joseph Smith
Mary Ann Price	Daniel Tyler
Wm Price	N Turner

George Price	2 Turza Thatcher
C H Phelps	Thos Turnbull
Mary H Palmer	2 Burr Thomnison
Mary Page	Jane Twist
Wm Parsons	Johathan Taylor
Tharit Pearson	Charity Tharp
Arch-bald Rite	Wm Thompson
R A Russell	2 John Taylor
John Roberts	2 Ira Willson
Thos Richmond	Ann Wright
I R Robbins	Robert Wright
J E Royce	Eliza J Webb
Thos Raulcliffe	Pardon Webb
Amelia Rogers	Channey Webb
Sarah Riland	Benj S Wilber
Sarah Roberts	Martha A Webster
N Runnian	F G Williams
I Rogers	2 Benj Warrington
J L Robinson	Cath Willson
Wm Robin-on	Ira Whitesides
Chas Raymond	James Whitehead
W W Reed	SS Willcox
W Richards	Thos Weakefield
Wm Seely	Siles Wilcox
John Stiles	J B Walker
E Stout	J L or A S Workman
ra Sherman	M B Welton
Lyman Stephens	L Woodruff
C A Scofield	J J Walker
M M Saunders	Y Yeomaur
R Shepherd	Brigham Young
L Stodard	D D Yearsley
Wm Sleeper

SIDNEY RIGDON, P. M.

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES, WITHIN AND FOR THE DISTRICT OF ILLINOIS.

In the matter of the Petition of Charles Warner of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Charles Warner of Hancock county has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts, under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District court room in the City of Springfield, in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons intersted may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July A. D. 1842.

RALSTON WARREN & WHEAT, Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest James F. Owings Clerk. 14-31.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of John S. Fullmer of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that John S. Fullmer of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court Room in the city of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition: all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July, A. D. 1842.

RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT, Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk. 14-31.

TYRANNY.—A portion of the workingmen of St. Etienne in France, recently formed an association with a common capital, giving the opportunity for the wealthy to subscribe a portion, the object of which was mutual relief in case of distress.

For this they were prosecuted before the Criminal court, and convicted. The founder of the establishment was sentenced to pay a fine of fifty francs and undergo two months imprisonment; three of the principal members were sentenced to pay the same fine each, with out imprisonment.

POETRY.

For The Wasp.

WAR.

What is the token ere evils unbar;
Pestilence, famine; the black list of crime;
Thieves rush for honor, and vagabonds fame Kingdoms for conquest, when plunder's the game!—

WAR.

What is the signal of nations afar;
Murder and treason; the banquet of fools;
Tempest of passions; the bonfire of wrath;
Hero of death, like Goliath of Gath?—

WAR.

What is the 'fire-shower of ruin' afar;
Waste and destruction; the lion of war;
Cup full of fury, from Babylon's whore;
Feast of the Devil to revel in gore?—

WAR.

What is the red-sign of misery's car;
Women bereaved, and children distressed;
Cities in ashes, and virtue forgot;
Curse of all curses,—old Lucifer's blot?—

WAR.

SNOW IN JUNE.

Snow fell all day on the 7th inst., at Bennington, Vt., and ice formed of considerable thickness.

At Concord they were visited with snow and hail storms on the 10th and 11th inst. The snow fell thick and fast for a short time, giving the earth the appearance of winter.

The Buffalo Advertiser of the 11th says:—"There was a severe frost again last night, and scales of ice on the sidewalks this morning."—The Troy Whig of Monday says: "On Saturday night ice of considerable thickness was formed in the vicinity of this city, and much injury sustained by vegetation.—Snow was falling all day at Grafton."

At Boston, on the 11th inst., snow fell. The mountains of Berkshire were covered with snow on the same day.

In Essex county, New York, on the 10th inst., snow covered the ground to the depth of 4 inches.

On the 11th, snow fell for 7 hours at Brunswick, near Troy, New York. In the Catskill mountains, same day, the snow was laying five feet deep in the ravine of the falls.

At Chambersburg, Pa., on the 10th they had a slight sprinkling of snow.—West of that place, on the mountains the snow was quite deep.

The annual production of sugar in different parts of the world, is estimated at about 1,000,000 of tons, by much the greater proportion obtained from the sugar cane. In this country, as is well known, a considerable quantity is obtained from the maple.

An Ordinance in relation to public shows and exhibitions.

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, that any person or persons, who shall at any time hereafter, bring into, and desire to exhibit, within this Corporation, any curiosities of nature or art, not inconsistent with decency, or contrary to good morals, shall previous to the exhibition thereof, procure a license for that purpose from this Corporation, signed by the Mayor, and countersigned by the Recorder, for which he, she, or they shall set the time of obtaining the same, pay a sum not exceeding fifty dollars, at the discretion of the Mayor, with a fee of one dollar to the Recorder, for making out the same, and the said license shall continue in force for one week, and no longer: And such person or persons as aforesaid, who may be found in open violation of this Section, shall forfeit and pay for each and every such offence, a sum not exceeding fifty dollars.

Sec. 2. That all exhibitions inconsistent with decency, or contrary to good morals, are expressly prohibited under the penalty of one hundred dollars for every offence, and said penalties are to be recovered and applied in the same manner, as are penalties of a like nature within this city.

Passed July 5, 1842.

JOSEPH SMITH, Mayor.

JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

An Ordinance in relation to writs of Habeas Corpus.

Sec. 1. Be it, and it is hereby ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, that no citizen of this city, shall be taken out of the city by any writ without the privilege of investigation before the Municipal Court, and the benefit of a writ of habeas corpus, as granted in the seventh Section of the Charter of this city.

Be it understood that this Ordinance is enacted for the protection of the citizens of this city, that they may in all cases have the right of trial in this city, and not be subjected to illegal process by their enemies.

Sec. 3. This Ordinance to take effect and be in force, from and after its passage.

Passed July 5, 1842.

JOSEPH SMITH, Mayor.

JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

An Ordinance, Creating certain further additional City Offices therein named.

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, that in addition to the city officers heretofore elected, there shall be elected by the City Council, one city Coroner, one city Pound-keeper, and one city Auctioneer, whose duties and fees shall hereafter be severally defined by Ordinances.

Sec. 2. That all laws and parts of laws, inconsistent with this Ordinance, be, and they hereby are repealed.

Sec. 3. This ordinance to take effect, and be in force, from and after its passage.

Passed July 5, 1842.

JOSEPH SMITH, Mayor.

JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

NOTES

DUE the Trustee for labor on the Temple, are left with the Temple Committee for collection. Brethren, remember that your contracts with your God are sacred; the labor is wanted immediately.

W. RICHARDS,

Temple Recorder.

June 25, 1842.

10-11.

P. S. Remember the notes due for property also.

BENCH & MOULDING PLANES.

WANTED, immediately, a large number of the above Planes on tithing. The brethren who have got such and can spare them would greatly facilitate the building of the Temple by bringing them as soon as possible to the recorder's office, and they shall be entered to their credit on tithing. All kinds of bench planes whether good or indifferent can be made useful at the Temple. The moulding planes should be such as suit the present fashion.

Also all lumber, which would make plane stocks, would be very serviceable.

JOSEPH SMITH, Trustee.

W. CLAYTON, Clerk.

NOTICE.

IS hereby given that the partnership heretofore existing under the name of

George W. Crouse and Nathaniel Jennings is this day dissolved by mutual consent and all persons indebted to the firm, will call and settle with George W. Crouse without delay, under whose name the business will be continued.

Dated Nauvoo June 11th 1842.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus
J. Salisbury, Plymouth.
Harow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Cliffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Pag, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
Jam s Curtis, Horners Town.
W. I. Appleby, Rectless Town.
Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Sa'em.
Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapier.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirt and.

NEW YORK.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.

L. R. Foster, city of New York.

TRAVELING AGENTS.

Hiram Kimball.

MEDICAL NOTICE.

DR. W. B. BRINK.

Respectfully tenders his professional services to the citizens of Nauvoo, and its vicinity, as a botanic practitioner, having adopted the botanic practice from a positive conviction of the truth of its doctrines, and the unrivaled success which attends the practice; and hopes to give general satisfaction and prove the superior efficacy of the botanic treatment to those who may place themselves under his care; also a number of valuable preparations of his own compounding; such as anti-bilious pills peculiarly serviceable in dyspepsia, bilious fever, &c; restorative bitters, pulmonary balsom, cough syrup, rheumatic liniment, neutralizing cordial; this is one of the most valuable preparations known for cholery morbus, cholery infantum, or summer complaints of children, fever ague and cancers, will be treated upon the principle of no cure no pay and those afflicted with cancers will do well to call and try a remedy which has never failed; and those who are not able to pay will be cured without charge.

Dr. B. is consulted in the most intricate and protracted cases of secret disease that require practical experience to ensure success; every species and form of the disease must yield to his treatment which is in all cases mild and soft, requiring no interruption from business or change of diet, and will treat the disease upon the principle of no cure no pay; office at the store of W. Allen, formerly occupied by Mr. E. D. Wooley.

W. B. BRINK, M. D.

Nauvoo, July 2nd 1842.

GUARDIAN'S SALE.

IN pursuance of a decree of the Circuit Court of Hancock county made at the May Term thereof A. D. 1842. The subscriber, Guardian of Emma Caroline, & Chauncey G. Robison, infant children and heirs of James Robison deceased, will expose to public sale on the 8th day of August next, in city lots about thirty six acres of land belonging to said wards lying in the county of Hancock, and State of Illinois, being a part of the East half of the West half of Section No. six, township No. six North, of range No. eight West of the fourth principal meridian, said lands will be sold on a credit of six months, sale will take place on the premises near the residence of Daniel H. Wells Esq. between the hours of 9 o'clock A. M. and 6 o'clock P. M. of said day and will be continued between the same hours, from day to day, till said property is all sold.

CHARLOTTE ANN ROBISON,

Guardian.

Nauvoo June 20th 1842.

COMMISSIONERS SALE.

BY order of the Circuit Court of Hancock county will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder on Monday the 8th day of August next the south west quarter of the south west quarter of section number twenty four in township number seven north of the base line of range number six west of the fourth principal meridian situated in the county of Hancock and State of Illinois, said land has an excelent water privilege with a good saw mill with tools and a flowering mill in commencement, a small framed house and various other improvements.

The terms of sale will be twenty five per centum down, the balance payable in six months to be secured by a note with good approved security and a mortgage on the property.

The sale will commence at 10 o'clock A. M.

L. L. WILCOX.

JOEL BRADSHAW.

RIGHT RIGGINS.

Commissioners.

Powder Mill Blown Up.—On Tuesday afternoon of last week, Mr. Wetherill's powder mill in Manchester was blown up. One man was in it, and wonderful to add, he escaped with life, though quite seriously injured. The quantity of powder in the mill was not large, yet the explosion was heard and the smoke seen in this city.—Hartford Conr.

DR. J. F. WELD,

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.
Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

MEAL, FLOUR,

AND PROVISIONS OF EVERY KIND,
WANTED ON TITHING.

THE brethren abroad will remember that those who devote the whole of their time to work on the Temple must be fed; they cannot live and work without provisions, and we are growing very scarce; and especially so with regard to MEAL and FLOUR. Those, therefore, who have the above articles, and intend to consecrate such on their tithing, will please forward them immediately to Nauvoo.

W. RICHARDS, Recorder
for the Temple.

Nauvoo, June 18th 1842.

10-11.

LOOK HERE! LOOK HERE!!

WANTED, at the Nauvoo Foundry, a quantity of Stone coal; any persons wishing to furnish it, will please call on Hiram Kimball, or Geo. W. Robinson, at the Post Office. Old castings will be taken in exchange for new.

Nauvoo, June 13th 1842.

10-11.

NEW DRUG STORE.

E. B. BATMAN No. 3 Water Street opposite the ferry landing, St. Louis Mo., has just opened a large stock of fresh Drugs, Medicines, Dyestuffs, Paints, Oils, Glassware, &c. which he offers at the lowest cash prices and to which the attention of the city and country trade is respectfully invited.

District Court of the United States, }
within and for the district of Illinois. }
In the matter of the petition of Hiram Kimball of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Hiram Kimball, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 8th day of July next, at the District Court Room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.
Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States, }
within and for the District of Illinois. }
In the matter of the Petition of Joshua C. Hobert of Hancock County to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Joshua C. Hobert, of Hancock County has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 18th day of July next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 18th day of June A. D. 1842.
J. H. SHERMAN Solicitor, for Petitioner.

Attest James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States, }
within and for the District of Illinois. }
In the matter of the Petition of Claiborn Wilson, of Hancock County to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Claiborn Wilson, of Hancock County has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 18th day of July next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 18th day of June A. D. 1842.
J. H. SHERMAN, Solicitor for Petitioner.

Attest James F. Owings Clerk.

POETRY.

For The Wasp.

BY W. W. PHILLIPS.

What is the token ere evils unbar;
Pestilence, famine; the black list of crime;
Thieves rush for honor, and vagabonds fame
Kingdoms for conquest, when plunder's the game!—

WAR.

What is the signal of nations afar;
Murder and treason; the banquet of fools;
Tempest of passions; the bonfire of wrath;
Hero of death, like Goliath of Gath!—

WAR.

What is the 'fire-shower of ruin' afar;
Waste and destruction; the lion of war;
Cup full of fury, from Babylon's whore;
Feast of the Devil to revel in gore!—

WAR.

What is the red-sign of misery's car;
Women bereaved, and children distressed;
Cities in ashes, and virtue forgot;
Curse of all curses;—old Lucifer's blot!—

WAR.

SNOW IN JUNE.

Snow fell all day on the 7th inst., at Bennington, Vt., and ice formed of considerable thickness.

At Concord they were visited with snow and hail storms on the 10th and 11th inst. The snow fell thick and fast for a short time, giving the earth the appearance of winter.

The Buffalo Advertiser of the 11th says:—"There was a severe frost a gain last night, and scales of ice on the sidewalks this morning."—The Troy Whig of Monday says: "On Saturday night ice of considerable thickness was formed in the vicinity of this city, and much injury sustained by vegetation.—Snow was falling all day at Grafton."

At Boston, on the 11th inst., snow fell. The mountains of Berkshire were covered with snow on the same day.

In Essex county, New York, on the 10th inst., snow covered the ground to the depth of 4 inches.

On the 11th, snow fell for 7 hours at Brunswick, near Troy, New York. In the Catskill mountains, same day, the snow was laying five feet deep in the ravine of the falls.

At Chambersburg, Pa., on the 10th they had a slight sprinkling of snow. West of that place, on the mountains the snow was quite deep.

The annual production of sugar in different parts of the world, is estimated at about 1,000,000 of tons, by much the greater proportion obtained from the sugar cane. In this country, as is well known, a considerable quantity is obtained from the maple.

An Ordinance in relation to public shows and exhibitions.

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, that any person or persons, who shall at any time hereafter, bring into, and desire to exhibit, within this Corporation, any curiosities of nature or art, not inconsistent with decency, or contrary to good morals, shall previously to the exhibition thereof, procure a license for that purpose from this Corporation, signed by the Mayor, and countersigned by the Recorder, for which he, she, or they shall set the time of obtaining the same, pay a sum not exceeding fifty dollars, at the discretion of the Mayor, with a fee of one dollar to the Recorder, for making out the same, and the said license shall continue in force for one week, and no longer: And such person or persons as aforesaid, who may be found in open violation of this Section, shall forfeit and pay for each and every such offence, a sum not exceeding fifty dollars.

Sec. 2. That all exhibitions inconsistent with decency, or contrary to good morals, are expressly prohibited under the penalty of one hundred dollars for every offence, and said penalties are to be recovered and applied in the same manner, as are penalties of a like nature within this city.

Passed July 5, 1842.

JOSEPH SMITH, Mayor.

JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

An Ordinance in relation to writs of Habeas Corpus.

Sec. 1. Be it, and it is hereby ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, that no citizen of this city, shall be taken out of the city by any writ without the privilege of investigation before the Municipal Court, and the benefit of a writ of habeas corpus, as granted in the seventh Section of the Charter of this city.

Be it understood that this Ordinance is enacted for the protection of the citizens of this city, that they may in all cases have the right of trial in this city, and not be subjected to illegal process by their enemies.

Sec. 2. This Ordinance to take effect and be in force, from and after its passage.

Passed July 5, 1842.

JOSEPH SMITH, Mayor.

JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

An Ordinance, Creating certain further additional City Offices therein named.

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, that in addition to the city officers heretofore elected, there shall be elected by the City Council, one city Coroner, one city Pound keeper, and one city Auctioneer, whose duties and fees shall hereafter be severally defined by Ordinances.

Sec. 2. That all laws and parts of laws, inconsistent with this Ordinance, be, and they hereby are repealed.

Sec. 3. This ordinance to take effect, and be in force, from and after its passage.

Passed July 5, 1842.

JOSEPH SMITH, Mayor.

JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

NOTES

DUE the Trustee for labor on the Temple, are left with the Temple Committee for collection. Brethren, remember that your contracts with your God are sacred; the labor is wanted immediately.

W. RICHARDS,

Temple Recorder.

June 25, 1842. 10-11.
P. S. Remember the notes due for property also.

BENCH & MOULING PLANES.

WANTED, immediately, a large number of the above Planes on tithing. The brethren who have got such and can spare them would greatly facilitate the building of the Temple by bringing them as soon as possible to the recorder's office, and they shall be entered to their credit on tithing. All kinds of bench planes whether good or indifferent can be made useful at the Temple. The moulting planes should be such as suit the present fashion.

Also all lumber, which would make plane stocks, would be very serviceable.

JOSEPH SMITH, Trustee.

W. CLAYTON, Clerk.

NOTICE.

Is hereby given that the partnership heretofore existing under the name of George W. Crouse and Nathaniel Jennings is this day dissolved by mutual consent and all persons indebted to the firm, will call and settle with George W. Crouse without delay, under whose name the business will be continued.

Dated Nauvoo June 11th 1842.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Cahage, Hancock co, Ill.
Joseph John-on, Ramus
J. Salsbery, Plymouth.
Harow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Chiffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Mcomb M'Donough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esp. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Pag, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
James Curtis, Horners Town.
W. L. Appleby, Reeces Town.
Israel Ivins, Loms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Salem.
Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapiet.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirtland.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.

L. R. Foster, city of New York.

TRAVELING AGENTS.

Hiram Kimball.

MEDICAL NOTICE.

DR. W. B. BRINK.

Respectfully tenders his professional services to the citizens of Nauvoo, and its vicinity, as a botanic practitioner, having adopted the botanic practice from a positive conviction of the truth of its doctrines, and the unrivaled success which attends the practice; and hopes to give general satisfaction and prove the superior efficacy of the botanic treatment to those who may place themselves under his care; also a number of valuable preparations of his own compound ing; such as anti bilious pills peculiarly serviceable in dyspepsia, bilious fever, &c; restorative bitters, pulmonary balsom, cough syrup, rheumatic liniment, neutralizing cordial; this is one of the most valuable preparations known for cholera morbus, cholera infantum, or summer complaints of children, fever ague and cancers, will be treated upon the principle of no cure no pay and those afflicted with cancers will do well to call and try a remedy which has never failed; and those who are not able to pay will be cured without charge.

Dr. B. is consulted in the most intricate and protracted cases of secret disease that require practical experience to ensure success; every species and form of the disease must yield to his treatment which is in all cases mild and soft, requiring no interruption from business or change of diet, and will treat the disease upon the principle of no cure no pay; office at the store of W. Allen, formerly occupied by Mr. E. D. Woolley.

W. B. BRINK, M. D.

Nauvoo, July 2nd 1842. 12-3m.

GUARDIAN'S SALE.

In pursuance of a decree of the Circuit Court of Hancock county made at the May Term thereof A. D. 1842. The subscriber, Guardian of Emma Caroline, & Chauncey G. Robison, infant children and heirs of James Robison deceased, will expose to public sale on the 8th day of August next, in city lots about thirty six acres of land belonging to said wards lying in the county of Hancock, and State of Illinois, being apart of the East half of the West half of Section No. six, township No. six North, of range No. eight West of the fourth principal meridian, said lands will be sold on a credit of six months.

premises near the residence of Daniel H. Wells Esq. between the hours of 9 o'clock A. M. and 6 o'clock P. M. of said day and will be continued between the same hours, from day to day, till said property is all sold.

CHARLOTTE ANN ROBISON,

Guardian.

Nauvoo June 20th 1842.

COMMISSIONERS SALE.

By order of the Circuit Court of Hancock county will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder on Monday the 8th day of August next the south west quarter of the south west quarter of section number twenty four in township number seven north of the base line of range number six west of the fourth principal meridian situated in the county of Hancock and State of Illinois, said land has an excellent water privilege with a good saw mill with tools and a flowering mill in commencement, a small frame house and various other improvements. The terms of sale will be twenty five per centum down, the balance payable in six months to be secured by a note with good approved security and a mortgage on the property.

The sale will commence at 10 o'clock A. M.

L. L. WILCOX.

JOEL BRADSHAW.

RIGHT RIGGINS.

Commissioners.

Powder Mill Blown Up—On Tuesday afternoon of last week, Mr. Wetherill's powder mill in Manchester was blown up. One man was in it, and wonderful to add, he escaped with life, though quite seriously injured. The quantity of powder in the mill was not large yet the explosion was heard and the smoke seen in this city.—Hartford Conn.

DR. J. F. WELD,

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.

Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business, to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

NEAL FLOUR,

AND PROVISIONS OF EVERY KIND, WANTED ON TITHING.

THE brethren abroad will remember that those who devote the whole of their time to work on the Temple must be fed; they cannot live and work without provisions, and we are growing very scarce; and especially so with regard to NEAL and FLOUR. Those, therefore, who have the above articles, and intend to consecrate such on their tithing, will please forward them immediately to Nauvoo.

W. RICHARDS, Recorder

for the Temple.

Nauvoo, June 18th 1842. 10-11.

LOOK HERE! LOOK HERE!!

WANTED, at the Nauvoo Foundry, a quantity of Stone coal; any persons wishing to furnish it, will please call on Hiram Kimball, or Geo. W. Robinson, at the Post Office. Old castings will be taken in exchange for new.

Nauvoo, June 13th 1842. 10-11.

NEW DRUG STORE.

E. B. BATMAN No. 3 Water Street opposite the ferry landing, St. Louis Mo., has just opened a large stock of fresh Drugs, Medicines, Dyestuffs, Paints, Oils, Glassware, &c. which he offers at the lowest cash prices and to which the attention of the city and country trade is respectfully invited.

District Court of the United States, within and for the district of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Hiram Kimball of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

No ice is hereby given, that Hiram Kimball, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 15th day of July next, at the District Court Room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 15th day of June, A. D. 1842.

RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Joshua C. Robert of Hancock County to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Joshua C. Robert, of Hancock County has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 18th day of July next at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 18th day of June A. D. 1842.

J. H. SHERMAN Solicitor, for Petitioner.

Attest James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Claiborn Wilson, of Hancock County to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Claiborn Wilson, of Hancock County has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 18th day of July next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 18th day of June A. D. 1842.

J. H. SHERMAN, Solicitor for Petitioner.

Attest James F. Owings Clerk.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 15.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, July 23, 1842.

Whole Number 15

THE WASP.

IS EDITED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY BY

WM. SMITH,

At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.

TERMS.—$1.50 invariably in advance.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the district of Illinois }In the matter of the petition of Windsor P.
Lyon of Hancock county to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that Windsor P. Lyon of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a bankrupt and be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the first day of October next, at the District Court Room in the city of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July, A. D. 1842.

RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, clerk. 14-31

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois }In the matter of the petition of Edward F.
Chittenden of Hancock county, to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Edward F. Chittenden of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court Room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July, A. D. 1842.

RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois }In the matter of the Petition of Tulton E.
Fox of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Tulton E. Fox of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts, under the act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court Room in the city of Springfield, in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July, A. D. 1842.

RALSTON WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois }In the matter of the Petition of William Nis-swanger of Hancock County to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that William Niswanger of Hancock County has filed his Petition in this court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield, in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July A. D. 1842.

RALSTON WARREN & WHEAT

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

NEW DRUG STORE.

E. B. BAT AN No. 3 Water Street
opposite the ferry landing, St. Louis Mo.,
has just opened a large stock of fresh
Drugs, Medicines, Dyestuffs, Paints, Oils, Glassware, &c. which he offers at the lowest cash prices and to which the attention of the city and country trade is respectfully invited.

An ordinance regulating the duties and fees of City Auctioneers in the city of Nauvoo.

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, that there shall be one or more city Auctioneers appointed by this council, who shall, after the passage of this act, and within thirty days after his or their appointment, produce and give bond to the Mayor and Council, with two good securities, in the sum of two thousand dollars, for the honest and due performance of all the duties required by law.

Sec. 2. That no person or persons whatsoever, save and except as set forth in the 6th Section of this Ordinance, shall, after the passage of this act, sell or dispose to sale, by way of ven-due, or auction, any property, real or personal, within the City of Nauvoo, except he or they be authorized by the Mayor or City Council, and subject to the same laws that refer to the city auctioneer or auctioneers, and that if any person or persons shall be found selling or disposing of any property, real or personal, within said city, by way of vendue or auction, otherwise than as in manner herein prescribed, such person or persons so offending, and being thereof lawfully convicted, shall forfeit and pay to the corporation, a sum not exceeding twenty five dollars for every lot which he or they shall have so sold, as also the auctioneer's fees and duties, specified in this act, upon any sale or sales which may have been made by such person or persons before the passage of this act, and the other half to the informer.

Sec. 3. That every auctioneer or auctioneers who may be appointed for this city, shall receive all articles which he or they shall be required to sell at auction, giving his or their receipt for the same, if required, and within two days after any sale made, shall deliver a fair account of the same, and pay the amount thereof to the person or persons entitled thereto, deducting therefrom the duties, fees, commissions and charges hereafter allowed, that is to say, to said auctioneer or auctioneers, on the amount of every sale of property of any description, where the amount of sales shall not exceed the sum of fifty dollars, or commission, fee, or sum at the rate of ten per cent where the amount of sales shall exceed fifty dollars, and not exceed one hundred dollars, five per cent on the amount over the first fifty dollars, and where the amount of sales shall be over one hundred dollars, three per cent on the amount so over; and when any auctioneer shall let by auction or vendue, any real property, or ground rent, he shall be entitled to receive for his use a commission or fee on a sum equal to ten years' amount of such rent, and in all cases when any article or articles, or property whatever, shall be actually exposed to sale, which shall not be sold by reason of its not producing the price at which it may be limited, it shall be lawful for the auctioneer, so exposing the same, to demand and receive, on the sum at which such article, articles, or property shall have been struck off, one fourth of the commission or fee which said auctioneer would have been entitled to receive for his use had it been actually sold; and every auctioneer who shall demand or receive any fees or commissions not allowed by law, or greater fees or commissions than are so allowed, shall forfeit four times the amount of fees and commissions so demanded or received, one half to go to the use of the person or persons on whom such demand shall be made, or from whom such fees or commissions shall be received, and the other half to the use of this corporation, Provided that nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent said auctioneer from charging and receiving for his use repayment of expenditures or advances made, and a reasonable compensation for storage, and extra trouble, for services rendered.

Sec. 4. That no auctioneer shall wilfully and knowingly receive goods for sale, of any servant or minor, unless accompanied by a certificate from the owner or owners thereof, nor expose to public sale any real or personal property, without first making out in writing, and signing, and publicly reading the conditions of sale, nor without advertising the property intended for sale, and the time and place of sale in a newspaper, or by posting up notices in three public places in the city; and also giving notice of the same by a crier and the ringing of a bell.

Sec. 5. That no auctioneer of this city shall put up or sell by vendue, or auction, liquors of any kind in less quantities than five gallons, under the penalty of five dollars for every offence.

Sec. 6. That from and after the passage of this act, there shall be levied and paid to this corporation, or duty on the amount of all sales at auction by the city auctioneer or auctioneers at the following rates, that is to say, upon all real estate, public securities, Bank and other incorporated stocks, at the rate of one half of one per cent, upon all watches, jewelry, cutlery, perfumery and stationary, at the rate of five per cent; and other goods, articles, or things, of whatever sort or kind, whether in the raw or manufactured state, at the rate of one per cent, except on sales of any property at auction, made under any order, ordinance, decree, sentence, or judgment of any court of the United States, or of any justice of the peace, or by virtue of any distress for rent, and of which the duties exempted from the duties imposed by this act and may be sold by all public officers legally authorized so to do; Provided that nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to prevent any administrator, executor guardian, or persons by them employed in due course of law from selling by vendue or auction.

Sec. 7. That it shall be incumbent on said city auctioneer or auctioneers to deduct from the proceeds of all sales made by him or them, the duties hereinbefore directed to be levied, and to pay over the same to the treasurer of this corporation, for its use and benefit, once in every three months; and in accounting for such duties, it shall also be incumbent on said city auctioneer or auctioneers to make his or their return under the solemn sanction of an oath or affirmation, and to exhibit to the treasurer aforesaid, whenever required by him, the books of sales of such auctioneer or auctioneers, in order to enable the treasurer to ascertain the correctness of the returns aforesaid; and in case any auctioneer shall fail strictly to perform the duties hereby imposed on him, or to account accurately for, and pay over, as above prescribed, the revenue payable to this corporation on sales at auction by him, or to exhibit his books, as aforesaid, he shall forfeit his office, and be, moreover, liable to a penalty of fifty dollars, and to a further penalty of fifteen dollars for every two days which shall elapse after a default shall be made in the payment of the said duties, or in rendering his returns, or in exhibiting his books, agreeable to this section, until he shall comply with the directions it contains; and all penalties accruing under it shall be for the sole use and benefit of this corporation.

Sec. 8. That in case any person or persons who shall have become the surety or sureties for the faithful performance of the duties of any city auctioneer shall die, remove from the city of Nauvoo, or become insolvent, the Mayor shall and he is hereby authorized and empowered, to demand other satisfactory security or securities for the due performance of such duties; & in case such satisfactory security or securities shall not be given within eight days, the appointment of said auctioneer shall thenceforth become, and is hereby declared to be null and void, to all interests and purposes as if the same had never been granted; and whenever the Mayor shall have been informed that the said auctioneer shall have so failed to comply with the requisitions of the law, the Mayor shall, at the expiration of eight days, give public notice thereof.

Sec. 9. That every city auctioneer within this city shall constantly keep a fair copy of this law in some conspicuous place in his auction room, for the inspection of the public, and if he shall fail so to do, he shall forfeit and pay a penalty not exceeding twenty dollars, at the discretion of the Mayor, Alderman, or Municipal Court, before whom the same may come for trial.

Passed July 12, 1842.

JOSEPH SMITH, Mayor.

JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

PERILOUS POSITION OF ST. PETERS-BURG.—It is melancholy to contemplate the constant danger in which this brilliant capital is placed. If Mr. Loh's picture is not over charged, the occurrence of a strong westerly wind and high water, just at the breaking up of the ice, would at any time suffice to occasion an inundation sufficient to drown the whole population and to convert the entire city with all its sumptuous palaces into a chaotic mass of ruin. The Gulf of Finland runs to a point as it approaches the mouth of the Neva, where the most violent gales are always those from the west, so that the mass of waters, on such occasions, is always forcibly impelled towards the city. The island forming the delta of the Neva, on which St. Petersburg stands, is extremely low and flat, and the highest point in the city is probably not more than twelve or fourteen feet, is therefore, enough to place all St. Petersburg under water, and a rise of thirty feet is enough to drown almost every human being in the place. The poor inhabitants are, therefore, in constant danger of destruction and can never be certain that the whole 600,000 of them may be washed out of their houses like so many drowned rats. To say the truth, the subject ought hardly to be spoken of with affirmation, and to exhibit to the treasurer aforesaid, whenever required by him, the books of sales of such auctioneer or auctioneers, in order only hope of this apparently doomed city, is, that the three circumstances may never occur simultaneously, viz: high water, the breaking up of the ice, and a gale of wind from the west. There are so many points of the compass for the wind to choose among, that it would seem perverse in the extreme to select the west at so critical a moment; nevertheless the wind does not blow often from the west during spring, and the ice floating in the Neva, and the Gulf of Finland is of a bulk amply sufficient to oppose a formidable obstacle to the water in the upper part of the river. Had the ancient sages of Ohkta kept meteorological records, one might perhaps be able to calculate how often in a thousand years, such a flood as we are here supposing might be likely to occur. As it is, the world need not be at all surprised to read in the news papers at one of these days that St. Petersburg, after rising like a bright meteor from the swamps of Finland, has suddenly been extinguished in them like a will-o-the-wisp. May heaven protect the city!—Foreign Quarterly Review.

58

THE WASP.

SATURDAY, JULY 23, 1842.

AUGUST ELECTION.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

FOR GOVERNOR,

THOMAS FORD.

FOR LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR,

JOHN MOORE.

FOR STATE SENATE,

JACOB C. DAVIS.

FOR REPRESENTATIVES,

THOMAS H. OWEN,

WILLIAM SMITH.

FOR SHERIFF,

WILLIAM BACKENSTOS.

FOR SCHOOL COMMISSIONER,

FRANKLIN J. BARTLETT.

FOR COUNTY COMMISSIONER,

JOHN T. BARNETT.

FOR CORONER,

GEORGE W. STIGALL.

BENNETTIANA;

OR,

THE MICROSCOPE WITH DOUBLE DIAMOND LENSES.

The baser the coward the bigger the bluster.

We have read Doctor Bennett's great sin qua non: Russian ukase; and dictatorial egotism. Desperate cases, require desperate doses, and so we will give a little of Bennett as he was, and Bennett as he is.

BENNETT AS HE WAS.

J. C. Bennett is the author of the communications signed 'Joab General in Israel.' Wonder if he was in duress when he made the following?

From the Times and Seasons, September, 1840

Burglary! TREASON!! ARSON!!!

MURDER!!!!

Lt. Col. Smith:—

I feel disposed to address you a few lines in relation to one of the darkest events that ever blackened the history of man in his most savage and barbarous state. The history of the Goths and Vandals, the cruel arabs, or the savage Indians, does not contain a parallel—the heart sickens at the thought, and turns from the contemplation of it with loathing and disgust. In the year of our Lord 1833, it is generally known, (for it came heralded from the Grampian hills of the Saints of light, was written by a celestial messenger on the altar of God and reflected on the heavenly canopy that all the world might see,) L. W. Boggs, Governor of Missouri, and Prince of midnight assassins and cowardly brigands, issued, in the face of high heaven, exterminating order (which was ratified by the Legislature,) against the Mormon people residing within his jurisdiction—directing his general officers, first to drive them from the State; second to intercept their retreat; and third to exterminate them with the weapons of war; but the Mormons threw their banners on the air, and under the proudest motto that ever blazed upon a warrior's shield—Sicut patribus: it Deus nobis; As God was with our fathers, so may he be with us.

Missouri wages war on the entire Mormon church—the church of Latter Day Saints—violates their women; shoots down, and scalps, their innocent, defenceless children; confiscates their property, and throws it to the four winds of heaven—brings them from affluence to beggary in an hour; and orders them all exterminated, murdered, butchered, by an infuriated, savage, fiendish, diabolical, infernal, Missouri mob of ruthless brigands, or driven from the State—and declares them outlaws from the common family of man.

All this in a land of boasted liberty—and simply because the Mormons wish, and are determined, to exercise one of our greatest and most dear and sacred constitutional rights—the liberty of conscience—the inestimable privilege of worshipping the God of heaven in the way that they believe to be pointed out! Should they be given up into the hands of wicked men and devils in order to enable them to celebrate a kind of Auto-da-fe, by burning them to the stake, or butchering them in the shambles, at Jefferson city, to satiate Missouri's inordinate thirst for blood? No. They will not be given up. Missouri has too long bathed her hands in crimson gore, and drank the blood of the innocent; she must now be checked in her wild and mad career—she has passed from the balmy state of her political glory to the sear and yellow leaf—the civilized world now turns from her with horror and ineffable contempt—and, should it become necessary, (which may God avert,) she must be met—Missouri must be met, not only by the Mormon people, but by the States—and all the friends of liberty and equal rights should gird on their armour, and swear by the everlasting God that the sword shall not depart from the thigh, nor the buckler from the arm until the contest is ended.

Missouri has hewn down the innocent and defenceless, it is true, but she is entirely destitute of military knowledge or prowess. The Poet truly describes her citizens when he says—'Their power to hurt, each little creature feels, But aim their horns, and asses lift their heels; but the blood of the slain is crying from the ground for condign vengeance, and should she continue to pursue her present murderous policy, the day of righteous retribution and the avenging of blood will not be procrastinated—for her plains shall be bleached with the bones of the slain, and her rivers flow with blood, before another massacre will be suffered. More anon.

Yours, Respectfully,

JOAB,

General in Israel.

BENNETT AS HE IS.

From the St. Louis Republican.

On the evening of the 29th ultimo, twelve of the Danites, dressed in female apparel, approached my boarding house, (Gen. Robinson's,) in Nauvoo, with their carriage wheels wrapped with blankets, and their horses' feet covered with cloths, to prevent noise, about 10 o'clock, for the purpose of conveying me off and assassinating me, and thus prevent disclosures—but I was so admirably prepared with arms, as were also my friends, that after prowling around the house for some time, they retired.

On Friday, the 1st inst. I went to Carthage; and on the 5th I had a call from Mr. O. P. Rockwell, the result of which is detailed in the following affidavits, to-wit:

STATE OF ILLINOIS,) ss.
HANCOCK COUNTY. }

Personally appeared before me, Samuel Marshall, a Justice of the Peace in and for said county, John C. Bennett, who being duly sworn according to law depose and saith, that on the 5th of July, 1842, at the house of Mr. Hamilton, in Carthage, Mr. O. P. Rockwell came to him and desired a private interview, to which deponent replied that if he (Rockwell) had any thing to say, he could speak it out before the gentlemen present. Rockwell said it was a private matter which interested them only—deponent then went out with him. Rockwell said, "Doctor you do not know your friends,—I am not your enemy—and I do not wish you to make use of my name in your publications;" deponent replied that he recognised Joe Smith and all his friends, as his personal enemies; to which Rockwell replied "I have been informed by Warner and Davis that you said Smith gave me fifty dollars and a wagon for shooting Boggs and I can and will whip any man that will tell such a cursed lie—did you say so or not?" After looking at him for a moment or two deponent said, "I never said so, sir, but I did say, and I now say it to your face, that you left Nauvoo about two months before the attempted assassination of ex-Governor Boggs, of Missouri, and returned the day before the report of his assassination reached there; and that two persons, in Nauvoo, told me that you told them that you had been over the upper part of Missouri, and in Boggs' neighborhood," to which Rockwell replied, "well, I was there; and if I shot Boggs they have got to prove it—I never done an act in my life that I was ashamed of, and I do not fear to go any where that I have ever been, for I have done nothing criminal." Deponent replied "certainly they have got to prove it on you, if you did shoot him: I know nothing of what you did, as I was not there, I only know the circumstances, and from them I draw my own inferences, and the public will theirs—and now, sir, if either you, or Joe Smith, think you can intimidate me by your threats, you are mistaken in your man, and I wish you to understand distinctly that I am opposed to Joe and his holy host—I shall tell the truth fearlessly, and regardless of consequences."—Rockwell replied, "If you say that Joe Smith gave me fifty dollars and a wagon to shoot Boggs, I can whip you, and will do it, in any crowd." Deponent then said—"why are you harping on what I have not said. I have told you what I have said to your face and in the presence of these gentlemen, and you have acknowledged the truth of all I have said, and I shall say it again, and if you wish to fight I am ready for you." The conversation then ceased on that subject. Rockwell told deponent that he had been accused wrongfully of wishing to assassinate him, or of being ordered by Smith to do so; but deponent said—"I believe that Joe ordered you to do it—I know that orders went from him to the Danites for that purpose." Rockwell said that Smith had never given him any such orders, neither was it his intention; and further this deponent saith not.

JOHN C. BENNETT.

Sworn to, and subscribed, this 7th day of July, 1842, before me, at my office in Carthage.

SAMUEL MARSHALL, J. P.

[SEAL]

BENNETT AS HE WAS.

How a man can talk with the 'livery of heaven on to serve the devil in.' Hear him again.

From the Times and Seasons, Oct. 1840.

'Fudge! We repeat, Smith and Rigdon should not be given up. The law requiring the Governor of our State to deliver up fugitives from justice, is a salutary and wise one, and should not in ordinary circumstances be disregarded, but as there are occasions that authorize the citizens of a State to resent a tyrannical and oppressive government, so there are occasions when it is not only the privilege, but the duty of the Governor of the State to refuse to surrender the citizens of his State upon the requisition of the Executive of another,—and this we consider as the case of Smith and Rigdon.'—Quincy Whig.

The foregoing article, from the pen of the editor of the Quincy Whig, reflects great credit on the head and heart of the writer. The sentiments it contains are liberal, noble, just—the offspring of wisdom and understanding. It completely uses up, the Uncircumcised Philistines of Missouri, and places the Mormon people just where they have ever taken shelter—under the broad folds of the Constitution—and I, therefore, commend it to the favorable consideration of all the saints of light. The grievances of this people must be redressed, and my hands shall help to do it—should they have to reach to the highest courts of heaven, dig to the lowest bowels of hell, or encompass the broad expanse of the universe of God, to consummate so desirable a result.

JOAB,

General in Israel.

From the Times and Seasons, June 1, 1841.

'Our worthy Governor is certainly disposed to do us ample justice in every respect, and to exact of us every thing for our future happiness and prosperity. Illinois has certainly done her duty, and her whole duty; and now it comes us to show ourselves upright, honest just—worthy of the favors bestowed by noble, generous, and magnanimous statesmen.'

BENNETT AS HE IS.

Extract from the Sangamo.

'If Governor Reynolds, of Missouri, will make another demand for Joe Smith alone, disconnected with any other person,—(for there are thousands of innocent, unoffending, good and holy people among the Mormons who never ought to suffer, and never shall by my hands, or through my instrumentality—men, women and children who have suffered more than death for the infamous prophet)—and if Governor Carlin will place the writ in my hands, I will deliver him up to justice, or die in the attempt, unless restrained by the constituted civil authority. Thousands and tens of thousands are ready to obey the call, and enforce the laws, and the holy Joe shall tremble at the sight of gathering hosts. Let the watchword pass with the celerity of lightning, and let the citizen soldier be ready.—I will lead you on to victory, and lay the rebels low. The Constitution and the laws shall triumph, and misrule, violence, and oppression wither like a blighted flower. Let not the Executive whom he has vilified and abused, as he has Governor Carlin, both in the private circle and public congregation, fear or neglect to do his duty in this case, and deliver up this noted refugee, charged with the blackest crimes known to the laws, who now boldly stalks abroad in our public ways. If Joe is innocent, let him be acquitted; but if he is guilty, let his life atone for it. I regard him as a foul and polluted murderer, and on the forthcoming of the State writ, Joe shall be delivered up.'

Gov. Carlin must have had a great desire to please the Doctor, eh?

'It is true I had Joe Smith appointed, or elected Lieutenant General, as a mere plaything, knowing that there was no such officer contemplated by the Constitution; but, it answers Joe well enough, as he does not know enough of military matters to tell the difference between a Corporal and a General,—so, Lieutenant General is as good as any other ral to Joe.'

'Now Governor, do your duty,' says the impetuous doctor—which amounts to, as much as to say, Governor, you have never done your duty, but do it now, and I will forgive you, for your power is little nipperkins of milk, compared to my great aquafortis Jars.' An Irishman would tell the story thus: Tommy, bring me the butcher knife and hammer, our puppy has got his head into the big stone pot, and I can't get it out without cutting it off and breaking the pot.

From the following it would seem that Bennett has acted as the herald of holiness:

'Well, sister Pratt,' says Joe, 'as you have refused me, it becomes sin, unless sacrifice is offered;' and turning to me he said, 'General, if you are my friend I wish you to procure a lamb, and have it slain, and sprinkle the door posts and the gate with its blood, and take the kidneys and the entrails and offer them upon an altar of twelve stones that have not been touched with a hammer, as a burnt offering, and it will save me and my priesthood: Will you do it?' I will, I replied. So I procured the lamb from Capt. John T. Barnett, and it was slain by Lieut. Stephen H. Goddard, and I offered the kidneys and entrails in sacrifice for Joe as he desired.'

Never, since Cain, with his peck of potatoes, operated against Abel's Lamb, has flesh and blood, with a sacerdotal Tunic on, officiated with such dignified pomposity as the great Mayor of Nauvoo; Major General of the Nauvoo Legion; Master-in-Chancery; Doctor of Medicine; and Elder in Israel, even John C. Bennett. Auctor purissime impunitatis! This is the first clue we have that Bennett is a Levite—guess, however, he acted as one of the priests of Baal. Bennett says in the Sangamo: 'Now, remember that if I should be missing, Joe Smith, either by himself or his Danite Band, will be the murderer. Illud mihi, then let my blood be avenged.'

To save beating up for volunteers, as the General may have another turn of mind, and slope for Texas, would it not be better to have the Doctor stereotyped, ensured, or even embalmed, if it can be done without duress, and not injure him, or jeopardise his future usefulness: under Gynecocracy; and embryo infanticide. Doctor, murder will out.

Speaking of Jo Smith, in his insanity, or log-matically, in his Bennettiana, he says,

'I now defy him, and all his holy hosts. I dare him to personal violence. There are eyes that see that he knows not of, and ears to hear that he understands not.'

This reminds us of the time when the Doctor undertook to poison himself to death, but some good Samaritan like Mormons, saved his life; though a wag or two fixed a pile of sand, and monument and fingered on it the following epitaph,

'In memory of Major General John C. Bennett, who died at the siege of Phillet, in the defence of the cause of Venus, July 27, 1841.

And his harp:

'Jacob Morris mercy have,
Now I am dead and in my grave;
While on the earth you slandered me;
Now I am dead pray let me be.
If you this tomb stone ever steal,
With me the flames of hell you'll feel;
Bring back my other and my harp;
Cease to increase my misery sharp.'

Bennett says:

'Joe's extensive land frauds in Iowa and Illinois, will soon come to light. I will save his Eastern creditors some hundreds of thousands of dollars, by exposing these frauds in the face of open day.'

This is noble; if the Doctor will save enough to pay what he forgot to pay when he acted as bishop of the Campbellite church, and also that he may be wise enough to hold to a sufficient quantity of the needful to save himself the trouble of filling up spurious Diplomas—whereby he quackifies himself as the chief of quackery, he certainly will do some good.

Now Dr. Bennett has tried to terrify some with his affidavit that Rockwell assassinated Gov. Boggs—insinuating that he went to fulfill prophecies—But we think the Doctor has now taken the burden upon himself—and that too, to fulfill his own prophecies.

BENNETT AS HE WAS.

From the Times and Seasons, Feb. 1, 1842.

I stood on Mount Zion, by the Temple of the Great King, and looked down through the vista of time, and saw people like great waters, for they were many—gathered from all nations under the whole heavens: and I saw mighty chief rains upon noble steeds, and armies of chariots and horsemen, and strong cohorts of footmen, great and terrible, with spears and banners, and the implements of war, forming to the sound of the clarion. And a great shout was heard in the camp of the saints, and a voice, like the sound of a mighty trumpet, saying—Go and pos-sees your inheritances, and avenge the wrongs of your progenitors--and the battle was set in array, and the armies of the saints moved forward, attended by thunder and hail, and fire and storm, conquering and to conquer. And the armies of the aliens tremble at the voice, like Belshazzar at the hand writing on the wall--and the hearts of their great warriors, and valiant men, fainted within them, and they fled like grasshoppers, and were consumed like stubble before the devouring flame. The plains were bleached with the bones of the slain, and the rivers flowed with blood. The fierce anger of the Lord returned not until he had done, nor until he had performed the intents of his heart.]

JOAB,
General in Israel.

Doctor Bennett's abolition principles, were quite warm, as the Times and Seasons of March 15, 1842, will show by reading the correspondence between himself and Charles V. Dyer, M. D., of Chicago.

From the Times and Seasons, March 15, 1842.
"Let the friends of freedom arise and utter their voice, like the voice of ten thousand thunders--let them take every constitutional means to procure a redress of grievances--let there be a concerted effort, and the victory is ours. Let the broad banners of freedom be unfurled, and soon the prison doors will be opened, the captive set at liberty, and the oppressed go free. Missouri will then remember the unoffending Mormons in the days of their captivity and bondage--when murder and rapine were her darling attributes--why, my heart is filled with indignation, and my blood boils within me, when I contemplate the vast injustice and cruelty which Missouri has meted out to that great philanthropist and devout Christian, General Joseph Smith, and his honest and faithful adherents--the Latter Day Saints, or Mormons?"

"Now let us make a strong, concerted and vigorous effort, for UNIVERSAL LIBERTY, to every soul of man--civil, religious, and political. With high considerations of respect, and esteem, suffer me to subscribe myself--

Yours, Respectfully,

JOHN C. BENNETT.

CHARLES V. DYER, M. D."

It will be seen by this that Gen. Smith was a great philanthropist as long as Bennett could practice adultery, fornication, and--we were going to say, (Buggery,) without being exposed. But if the Missourians are willing to harbor an abolitionist as a spy, and let him practice the real amalgamation among the negroes of their State,--huzza for the Doctor; there by hangs a tale.

But we must hold up, for truly we have never witnessed so mortal a case of black vomit: If Missouri; if Illinois, if the world can swallow such gall and wormwood, from the mouth of Dr. Bennett, and not feel qualmish while gaging it down, then verily the Physician can heal himself.

Such egotism; who made Nauvoo? who granted the Charter? who made the Nauvoo Legion? who made Smith Lieutenant General, for a play thing? who commanded Gov. Carlin to approve all these mighty acts?

John C. Bennett, with "all my laurels thick upon me." But alas! the third day came a chilling frost and nipt them, and of all my great titles, honors and consequence, although I veto the practice of being tried by court martial save such an one as I shall dictate, I have found that greatness has its inconveniences, and there is nothing left but me!

To conclude, if the doctor does not find the way of the transgressor hard, then honor has fled, but tell it not in Missouri, publish it not in Ohio, lest the uncircumsised Philistines should strew his ashes to the four winds, that there may not be left a trace of so vile a wretch.

At a meeting of the citizens of the city of Nauvoo held in said city at the meeting ground, July 22d 1842.

Orson Spencer Esq. was called to the chair and Gustavus Hills was appointed clerk.

The meeting was called to order by the chairman who stated the object of the meeting to be to obtain an expression of the public mind in reference to the reports gone abroad, calumniating the character of Pres. Joseph Smith. Gen. Wilson Law then rose and presented the following resolution.

Resolved--That, having heard that John C. Bennett was circulating many base falsehoods respecting a number of the citizens of Nauvoo, and especially against our worthy and respected Mayor, Joseph Smith, we do hereby manifest to the world that so far as we are acquainted with Joseph Smith we know him to be a good, moral, virtuous, peaceable and patriotic man, and a firm supporter of law, justice and equal rights; that he at all times upholds and keeps inviolate the constitution of this State and of the United States.

A vote was then called and the resolution adopted by a large concourse of citizens, numbering somewhere about a thousand men. Two or three, voted in the negative.

Elder Orson Pratt then rose and spoke at some length in explanation of his negative vote. Pres. Joseph Smith spoke in reply--Question, to Elder Pratt--"Have you personally a knowledge of any immoral act in me?" Answer, by Elder O. Pratt--"Personally, I have not." Elder O. Pratt responded at some length. Elder B. Young then spoke in reply, and was followed by Elder's Wm. Law H. C. Kimball and Pres. H. Smith. Several others spoke bearing testimony of the iniquity of those who had calumniated Pres. J. Smith's character.

Meeting adjourned for one hour.
P. M. Meeting assembled pursuant to adjournment and was called to order by the chairman.

A petition was then received from a committee appointed by the city council for the reception, approbation, and signatures of the citizens generally, petitioning the Governor of Illinois for protection in our peaceable rights, which was read approved, and signed by.

ORSON SPENCER ESQ., Chairman.

GUSTAVUS HILLS, Clerk.

As there seems to be some foolish notions that I have been engaged with J. C. Bennett in the difficulties between him and some of the citizens of this place, I merely say in reply to such idle and vain reports that they are without foundation in truth.

SIDNEY RIGDON.

For the Wasp.

TO THE INDEPENDENT VOTERS OF HANCOCK.

FELLOW CITIZENS:

Our names having been announced in the Wasp, as candidates for the House of Representatives, permit us to say to you gentlemen, that we decline the honor of the nominations so kindly tendered us by some of our democratic friends, always willing to serve the cause of equal rights. The democratic ticket being full, Mr. Owen and Mr. Smith being the candidates for the House of Representatives, they are democrats good and true, in their hands the people's rights will be safe. It is to the Democratic Standard we call on our friends to rally.

J. B. BACKENSTOS.

Carthage.

DAVID GREENLIEF.

St. Marys.

For the Wasp.

TO THE PUBLIC.

At two public meetings of the citizens of Nauvoo, I was unanimously nominated a candidate as Representative to the State Legislature; but, as there are many of the old citizens of this county, who have announced themselves as candidates, I cheerfully withdraw, believing, from their long residence in this county, and consequently more extensive acquaintance with the affairs of the same, that this honor (if it may thus be called) should be conferred upon them.

ORSON PRATT.

Nauvoo, July 13, 1842.

AN EXTRA,

With Sundries for Doctor Bennett will be issued in a day or two.

We are authorized to state that Benjamin A. Esq., one of the nominees of the Anti-Mormon Convention, for Coroner, has withdrawn from that Ticket.

We are requested to state that Col. J. E. Backenstos has declined running for a seat in the next Legislature.

During the great storm in Philadelphia on the 1st., water fell to the depth of 51.8 inches in the space of two hours only! The average for the year there, is about 40 inches. So that one eighth of that amount fell in two hours; as much as should fall in forty-five days.

NATIVE COPPER--Whilst we are compelled to import the immense quantities of Copper used in our extensive country, it is believed that there are the richest beds of copper ore on Lake Superior ever discovered in the world. Enterprize and a little skill are only necessary to bring it into market. A few enterprising Yankees have, during the past year, made a commencement of digging the copper, and with great success. There are hundreds of individuals in this city, out of employ, whose information and knowledge of smelting ores might be most successfully employed on the banks of Lake Superior. If two or three men with some capital were to organize com-

LIST of lands and other real estate, situated in the city of Nauvoo and State of Illinois, on which taxes remain due and unpaid for the year A. D. 1841.

Lot.	Block.	Value.	year for amount which tax of tax. is unpaid.	cost
Heirs of Alexander White,	7	4	20	1841 10 6
do	4	5	25	1841 12hf 6
do	7	6	25	1841 12hf 6
do	3	13	25	do 12hf 6
do	4	13	25	do 12hf 6
Hyrum Smith's Addition to Nauvoo,	4	1	20	do 10 6
Nathan Balden,	2	1	20	do 40 6
M. Yeamans	1	1	20	do 10 6
Wm. D. McLain	1	7	35	do 17hf 6
John Lawrence	1	9	30	do 15 6
Lacinda Harris,	3	9	30	do 10 6
Olerk,	4	10	25	do 12hf 6
John Reed,	3	10	35	do 17hf 6
Dunn,	4	8	65	do 32hf 6
D. H. Wells' Addition to Nauvoo,	4	9	90	do 45 6
Samuel James,	3	11	20	do 30 6
Clark, c hf	2	12	15	do 7hf 6
Sidney Roberts,	2	12	20	do 10 6
John Cole, n w 1-4	2	13	40	do 20 6
Thomas Miller, w hf of the c hf	12	3	30	do 15 6
Whitney, shf	21	3	14	do 7 6
Hyrum Kimball's Addition to Nauvoo,	22	3	110	do 55 6
John Gaylord, ne corner	25	6	40	do 20 6
John S. Palmer, do	28	6	45	do 22hf 6
C. W. Porter, p n hf	28	6	125	do 62hf 6
Alfred Randall, p n hf	40	6	25	do 12hf 6
do n hf	40	6	30	do 15 6
L. Barnes, part	42	5	20	do 10 6
Josiah Richardson, n p	43	5	18	do 9 6
Wm. Gardner, part	79	1	40	do 20 6
Allep, s w corner	80	1	50	do 25 6
Milton Slow, n p	82	1	15	do 7hf 6
David Dutton, n hf s hf	83	1	80	do 40 6
James Fossell, p s hf
Winters, s p

Hyrum Kimball's Second Addition to Nauvoo,

John E. Page,	1	5	8	do	4 6
P. P. Pratt,	4	12	8	do	4 6
Margaret Cook,	2	19	40	do	20 6
Samuel Forgess,	3	19	45	do	22hf 6
Susannah Snively,	1	23	25	do	12hf 6
H. Kimball's Third Addition to Nauvoo,
Wm. Whitmarsh,	4	6	50	do	25 6
Davidson Hibbard's Addition to Nauvoo,
Phelps,	4	8	15	do	7hf 6
A. A. Ray,	1	9	45	do	22hf 6
do	2	7	45	do	22hf 6
do	3	9	45	do	22hf 6
do	4	9	45	do	22hf 6
Wm. Jones,	1	10	45	do	22hf 6
J. Gibson,	3	14	25	do	12hf 6

George W. Robinson's Addition to Nauvoo.

Samuel James,	3	11	50	do	25 6
do	1	10	15	do	7hf 6
do	4	10	15	do	7hf 6
Wm. Snow,	2	10	15	do	7hf 6
Francis Holmes, sp	4	9	25	do	25 6
Hughes, sp	3	10	8	do	4 6
John Coal, sp	4	10	10	do	5 6

owns names. description of land. qr. sec. town. range. no. acfs. value. amount tax cost
Wm. Parks, c p s hf n hf w sec n w 36 7 9 7hf 75 37hf 6
Henry Cory, p e hf n w 36 7 9 5 50 25 6
Earl Nourse, w hf e hf s e 25 7 9 40 240 120 6
Joshua Fairfield, p n w 36 7 9 5 50 25 6
Wild, p n hf w hf n e 36 7 9 4 40 20 6

Notice is hereby given that application will be made to the Municipal Court of the City of Nauvoo, held on the first Monday in September next, for judgement against said lands and town lots, for said taxes, interests and costs thereon, and for an order to sell the said lands for the satisfaction thereof.

Notice is also given that on the 8th day of September next, succeeding the said town of the said Municipal Court, all the lands against which judgement shall be pronounced, and for the sale of which such orders shall be made, will be exposed to public sale at the office of Hyrum Smith, in said city, for the amount of said taxes, interest and cost, due thereon.

LEWIS ROBISON, City Collector.

July 21st A. D. 1842.

panies, on shares, and proceed to Lake Superior, they would soon realize advantages which no business at present in New York could equal. We hope this article may be read by some of our enterprising mechanics, and that they will inquire into the truth of what we have stated.--American.

The undersigned would respectfully announce himself as a candidate for the office of Sheriff of Hancock county, Ill. He is untrammelled by party feelings and Conventions; he solicits the votes of all parties. If he is elected, he will serve them as citizens and not as partizans in the discharge of his official duties.

G. A. CHITTENDEN.

We are requested to state that John T. Barnett is an independent democratic candidate for County Commissioner, at the ensuing August election.

We are authorized to announce Franklin J. Bartlett, of St. Mary's presinct, as a candidate for School Commissioner at the next August election.

We are authorized to announce Geo. W. Stigall as a candidate for Coroner of Hancock county.

We are authorized to announce Wm. Backenstos as a candidate for Sheriff, at the ensuing election.

12 59 60

LIST OF LETTERS,
REMAINING In the Post Office at Nauvoo Hancock county Illinois, July 1st 1842, which, if not taken out before the 1st of October next, will be sent to the Post Office department, as dead letters.

N. B. Persons wishing any of the following letters will please say they are advertised, or they may not get them.

H Alexander	A Hay
Thos Alister	Caroline E Hubbard
Miles Anderson	Saml Hamer
T O Angel	N Higgins
Thos Arthur	L S Hallister
Adolphus Allen	J Hunter
J K Allen	W W Hay
Wm Allen	Jacob Hess
George Beebe	W Huit
C Baldwin	R Hubbard
J G Bently	G W Harris
N Boscow	H B Hayt
Albert Brown	E Heaton
A or B Adams	J Hooper
I Barlow	Noah Hubbard
S Blackledge	A C Hodge
R Brasher	Isaac Higbee
J Bullard	I H Haskinson
Jos Baily	R Hill
John Fair	Geo Hubbard
C Biddlecome	Peter Haws
Jane Black	Mr Hemmeck
N. Bliss	Saml James
E Bass jr	Wm Jones
J Bates	Hiram Jackson
J Blackhurst	Harry Jacobs
H Bradford	John S Johnson
C Butler	David Jones
P G Boman	Ed Johnston
Wm Batson	J W Johnston
B Clark	J W Jenkins
J Carter	Elizabeth Jones
G Coltrin	Benj Johnson
S A Carlisle	Thos Sher Jackson
Thos Clayton	Mary Kelsey
J Craghton	Easton Kelsey
C Harless	R Kinnamon
Wm Campion	Westly Knights
H C Connor	Margaret Kington
Jas Carroll	Charisley Klepper
Walter Crum	Hyram Hoil
John Cams	W Luce
W Chapman	D B Lamerowx
W B Corfit	Mariah Lane
Chas Chapman	John Loveless
J B Day	Ed Little
Elizabeth Durfee	L M Lyman
John Davis	Andrew Lytle
Miss E R Davis	L Leonard

C R Dana	Mary E Lightner
J Dunham	W Lancaster
Ed Duzett	C W Lyon
J O Duke	M Logan
J Durfee	E Landers
Miss R Delkith	Fred Levy
S Emong	Wm Mikesell
Ed Nauvoo Paper	S McMurtrey
J Emery	Wm McIntire
J Eldridge	Davis McOlney
John Eagle	Harris Murphy
Dwight Evilish	Jessee McCarrell
J H Enfried	J H Murphy
Mr Emmet	Jas McLalard
R Frost	Pridy Meeks
R R Foster	James McMahan
W Fosset	Henry Mower
J S Fulmer	Samuel Merrill
John Foss	J McLellin
C B Fisher	John Middleton
John Field	Thos Mekey
J R Fisher	Wm McKay
Jas Flanagan	E P Merium
DM Gammit	H Marham
Jno S Gleason	E McNall
C P Garauth	George Morey
Thos Green	H W Miller
Jas Gorden	W Morgan
Jane Glover	Wm Munjar
W S Gould	Joel Miles
Guy Green	Allen Meeks
E M Garfield	Mary Mitchell
E H Groves	George Middagh
Jas Graham	Eligah Newman
I Gochevaur	Wm Nesbet
Miss Ann Gardner	Wm Niswanger
P A Goodwin	Newel Night
B D Harris	Mary Omstead
A Hunsoker	Ed Oahy
H Herrinshaw	David Osborne
Martin Harris	F Phippen
C Hallett	John Price

J Halston	Hannah Price
Chas Hopkins	J E Page
Seth Palmer	Cath Stoker
George Peacock	2 Wealthy Shumway
E Potter	Ezra Strond
J E Pettis	Jacob Strong
Jessee Pettis	Nath Stacher
Adison Pratt	R Stephens
Channey Peck	Jas Standing
J T Patten	Jas Simpson
Jacob Peart	Wm Stephen
J H Price	M M Samuels
Roby Pouter	Joshua Smith
Adaline Pery	Warren Smith
Joseph Parker	Hyrum Smith
Wm Pool	Joseph Smith
Mary Ann Price	Daniel Tyler
Wm Price	N Turner
George Price	2 Turza Thatcher
C H Phelps	Thos Turnbull
Mary H Palmer	2 Burr Thomlinson
Mary Page	Jane Twist
Wm Parsons	Johathar Taylor
Tharit Pearson	Charity Tharp
Archebald Rite	Wm Thompson
R A Russell	2 John Taylor
John Roberts	2 Ira Willson
Thos Richmond	Ann Wright
J R Robbins	Robert Wright
J E Royce	Eliza J Webb
Thos Kauliffe	Pardon Webb
Amelia Rogers	Channey Webb
Sarah Riland	Benj S Wilber
Sarah Roberts	Martha A Webster
N Runion	F G Williams
T Rogers	2 Benj Warrington
J L Robinson	Cath Willson
Wm Robinson	Isa Whitesides
Chas Raymond	James Whitehead
W Reed	S S Wilcox
W Richards	Thos Weakefield
Wm Seely	Siles Wilcox
John Stiles	J B Walker
E Stout	J L or A S Workman
Ira Sherman	M B Welton
Lyman Stephens	L Woodruff
C A Scofield	J J Walker
M M Saunders	Y Yeomaur
R Shepherd	Brigham Young
L Stodard	4 D D Yearsley
Wm Sleeper

SIDNEY RIGDON, P. M.

MEAL, FLOUR,

AND PROVISIONS OF EVERY KIND.
WANTED ON TITHING.

THE brethren abroad will remember their time to work on the Temple must be fed; they cannot live and work without provisions, and we are growing very scarce; and especially so with regard to MEAL and FLOUR. Those, therefore, who have the above articles, and intend to consecrate such on their tithing, will please forward them immediately to Nauvoo. W. RICHARDS, Recorder for the Temple.
Nauvoo, June 18th 1842. 10-11.

NOTES

DUE the Trustee for labor on the Temple, are left with the Temple Committee for collection. Brethren, remember that your contracts with your God are sacred; the labor is wanted immediately. W. RICHARDS, Temple Recorder.
June 25, 1842. 10-11.
P. S. Remember the notes due for property also.

BENCH & MOULDING PLANES.

WANTED, immediately, a large number of the above Planes on tithing. The brethren who have got such and can spare them would greatly facilitate the building of the Temple by bringing them as soon as possible to the recorder's office, and they shall be entered to their credit on tithing. All kinds of bench planes whether good or indifferent can be made useful at the Temple. The moulding planes should be such as suit the present fashion. Also all lumber, which would make plane stocks, would be very serviceable. JOSEPH SMITH, Trustee.
W. CLAYTON, Clerk.

MEDICAL NOTICE.

DR. W. B. BRINK.

Respectfully tenders his professional services to the citizens of Nauvoo, and its vicinity, as a botanic practitioner, having adopted the botanic practice from a positive conviction of the truth of its doctrines, and the unrivaled success which attends the practice; and hopes to give general satisfaction and prove the superior efficacy of the botanic treatment to those who may place themselves under his care; also a number of valuable preparations of his own compounding; such as anti-bilious pills peculiarly serviceable in dyspepsia, bilious fever, &c; restorative bitters, pulmonary balsom, cough syrup, rhumatic liniment, neutralizing cordial; this is one of the most valuable preparations known for cholery morbus, cholery infantum, or summer complaints of children, fever ague and cancers, will be treated upon the principle of no cure no pay and those afflicted with cancers will do well to call and try a remedy which has never failed; and those who are not able to pay will be cured without charge.

Dr. B. is consulted in the most intricate and protracted cases of secret disease that require practical experience to ensure success; every species and form of the disease must yield to his treatment which is in all cases mild and soft, requiring no interruption from business or change of diet, and will treat the disease upon the principle of no cure no pay; office at the store of W. Allen, formerly occupied by Mr. E. D. Wooley.

W. B. BRINK, M. D.

Nauvoo, July 2nd 1842. 12-3m.

GUARDIAN'S SALE.

IN pursuance of a decree of the Circuit Court of Hancock county made at the May Term thereof A. D. 1842. The subscriber, Guardian of Emma Caroline, & Chauncey G. Robison, infant children and heirs of James Robison deceased, will expose to public sale on the 8th day of August next, in city lots about thirty six acres of land belonging to said wards lying in the county of Hancock, and State of Illinois, being apart of the East half of the West half of Section No. six, township No. six North, of range No. eight West of the fourth principal meridian, said lands will be sold on a credit of six months, sale will take place on the premises near the residence of Daniel H. Wells Esq. Between the hours of 9 o'clock A. M. and 6 o'clock P. M. of said day and will be continued between the same hours, from day to day, till said property is all sold.

CHARLOTTE ANN ROBISON,

Guardian.

Nauvoo June 20th 1842.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus
J. Salsbery, Plymouth,
Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Chiffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Page, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
James Curtis, Horners Town.
W. I. Appleby, Reclless Town.
Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Salem.
Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapier.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirtland.

NEW YORK.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.

E. R. Foster, city of New York.

TRAVELING AGENTS.

Hiram Kimball.

DR. J. F. WELD,

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.

Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

COMMISSIONERS SALE.

BY order of the Circuit Court of Hancock county will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder on Monday the 8th day of August next the south west quarter of the south west quarter of section number twenty four in township number seven north of the base line of range number six west of the fourth principal meridian situated in the county of Hancock and State of Illinois, said land has an excelent water privilege with a good saw mill with tools and a flowering mill in commencement, a small framed house and various other improvements.

The terms of sale will be twenty five per centum down, the ballance payable in six months to be secured by a note with good approved security and a mortgage on the property.

The sale will commence at 10 o'clock A. M.

L. L. WILCOX.

JOEL BRADSHAW.

RIGHT RIGGINS.

ommissioners.

NOTICE.

IS hereby given that the partnership heretofore existing under the name of George W. Crouse and Nathaniel Jennings is this day dissolved by mutual consent and all persons indebted to the firm, will call and settle with George W. Crouse without delay, under whose name the business will be continued.
Dated Nauvoo June 11th 1842.

LOOK HERE! LOOK HERE!!

WANTED, at the Nauvoo Foundry, a quantity of Stone coal; any persons wishing to furnish it, will please call on Hiram Kimball, or Geo. W. Robinson, at the Post Office.

Old castings will be taken in exchange for new.
Nauvoo, June 13th 1842. 10-11.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of John S. Fuller of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that John S. Fuller of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court Room in the city of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July, A. D. 1842.]

RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk. 14-31.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Charles Warner of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Charles Warner of Hancock county has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts, under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield, in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons intersted may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July A. D. 1842.

RALSTON WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest James F. Owings Clerk. 14-31.

NAUVOO, ILLINOIS, WEDNESDAY, JULY 27, 1842.

BENNETTIANA;

OR,
THE MICROSCOPE WITH DOUBLE
DIAMOND LENSES.

The baser the coward the bigger the bluster.

We have read Doctor Bennett's great sine qua non: Russian ukase; and dictatorial egotism. Desperate cases, require desperate doses and so we will give a little of Bennett as he was, and Bennett as he is.

BENNETT AS HE WAS.

J. C. Bennett is the author of the communications signed 'Joab General in Israel.' Wonder if he was in duress when he made the following?

From the Times and Seasons, September, 1840.

Burglary! TREASON!! ARSON!!!

MURDER!!!

Lt. Col. Smith--

I feel disposed to address you a few lines in relation to one of the darkest events that ever blackened the history of man in his most savage and barbarous state. The history of the Goths and Vandals, the cruel arabs, or the savage Indians, does not contain a parallel--the heart sickens at the thought, and turns from the contemplation of it with loathing and disgust. In the year of our Lord 1838, it is generally known, (for it came heralded from the Grampian hills of the Saints of light, was written by a celestial messenger on the altar of God and reflected on the heavenly canopy that all the world might see,) L. W. Boggs, Governor of Missouri, and Prince of midnight assassins and cowardly brigands, issued, in the face of high heaven, exterminating order (which was ratified by the Legislature,) against the Mormon people residing within his jurisdiction--directing his general officers, first to drive them from the State; second to 'intercept their retreat;' and third to exterminate them--with the weapons of war; but the Mormons threw their banners on the air, and under the proudest motto that ever blazed upon a warrior's shield--Sicut patribus sit Deus nobis; As God was with our fathers, so may he be with us.

Missouri wages war on the entire Mormon church--the church of Latter Day Saints--violates their women; shoots down, and scalps, their innocent, defenceless, children; confiscates their property, and throws it to the four winds of heaven--brings them from affluence to beggary in an hour; and orders them all exterminated, murdered, butchered, by an infuriated, savage, fiendish, diabolical, infernal, Missouri mob of ruthless brigands, or driven from the State--and declares them outlaws from the common family of man.

All this in a land of boasted liberty--and simply because the Mormons wish, and are determined, to exercise one of our greatest and most dear and sacred constitutional rights--the liberty of conscience--the inestimable privilege of worshipping the God of heaven in the way that they believe to be pointed out! Should they be given up into the hands of wicked men and devils in order to execute them in the kind of Auto-de-fe, by burning them to the stake, or butchering them in the shambles, at Jefferson city, to satiate Missouri's inordinate thirst for blood? No. They will not be given up. Missouri has too long bathed her hands in crimson gore, and drank the blood of the innocent; she must now be checked in her wild and mad career--she has passed from the balmy state of her political glory to the sear and yellow leaf--the civilized world now turns from her with horror and ineffable contempt--and, should it become necessary, (which may God avert,) she must be met--Missouri must be met, not only by the Mormon people, but by the States--and all the friends of liberty and equal rights should gird on their armour, and swear by the everlasting God that the sword shall not depart from the thigh, nor the buckler from the arm until the contest is ended.

Missouri has hewn down the innocent and defenceless, it is true, but she is entirely destitute of military knowledge or prowess. The Poet truly describes her citizens when he says--'Their power to hurt, each little creature feels, Bulls aim their horns, and asses lift their heels;' but the blood of the slain is crying from the ground for condign vengeance, and should she continue to pursue her present murderous policy, the day of righteous retribution and the avenging of blood will not be procrastinated--for her plains shall be bleached with the bones of the slain, and her rivers flow with blood, before another massacre will be suffered. More anon.

Yours, Respectfully,

JOAB,
General in Israel.

BENNETT AS HE IS.

From the St. Louis Bulletin.

On the evening of the 29th ultimo, twelve of the Danites, dressed in female apparel, approached my boarding house, (Gen. Robinson's,) in Nauvoo, with their carriage wheels wrapped with blankets, and their horses' feet covered with cloths, to prevent noise, about 10 o'clock, for the purpose of conveying me off and assassinating me, and thus prevent disclosures--but I was so admirably prepared with arms, as were also my friends, that after prowling around the house for some time, they retired.

On Friday, the 1st inst., I went to Carthage; and on the 5th I had a call from Mr. O. P. Rockwell, the result of which is detailed in the following affidavits, to-wit:

STATE OF ILLINOIS, ss.
HANCOCK COUNTY.

Personally appeared before me, Samuel Marshall, a Justice of the Peace in and for said county, John C. Bennett, who being duly sworn according to law depose and saith, that on the 5th of July, 1842, at the house of Mr. Hamilton, in Carthage, Mr. O. P. Rockwell came to him and desired a private interview, to which deponent replied that if he (Rockwell) had any thing to say, he could speak it out before the gentlemen present. Rockwell said it was a private matter which interested them only--deponent then went out with him. Rockwell said "Doctor you do not know your friends,--I am not your enemy--and I do not wish you to make use of my name in your publications;" deponent replied that he recognised Joe Smith and all his friends, as his personal enemies: to which Rockwell replied "I have been informed by Warner and Davis that you said Smith gave me fifty dollars and a wagon for shooting Boggs and I can and will whip any man that will tell such a cursed lie--did you say so or not?" After looking at him for a moment or two deponent said, "I never said so, sir, but I did say, and I now say it to your face, that you left Nauvoo about two months before the attempted assassination of ex-Governor Boggs, of Missouri, and returned the day before the report of his assassination reached there; and that two persons, in Nauvoo, told me that you told them that you had been over the upper part of Missouri, and in Boggs' neighborhood," to which Rockwell replied, "well, I was there; and if I shot Boggs they have got to prove it--I never done an act in my life that I was ashamed of, and I do not fear to go any where that I have ever been, for I have done nothing criminal."

Deponent replied "certainly they have got to prove it on you, if you did shoot him: I know nothing of what you did, as I was not there, I only know the circumstances, and from them I draw my own inferences, and the public will theirs--and now, sir, if either you, or Joe Smith, think you can intimidate me by your threats, you are mistaken in your man, and I wish you to understand distinctly that I am opposed to Joe and his holy host--I shall tell the truth fearlessly, and regardless of consequences." Rockwell replied "If you saw that Joe Smith gave me fifty dollars and a wagon to shoot Boggs, I can whip you, and will do it, in any crowd." Deponent then said--"why are you harping on what I have not said, I have told you what I have said to your face and in the presence of these gentlemen, and you have acknowledged the truth of all I have said, and I shall say it again, and if you wish to fight I am ready for you." The conversation then ceased on that subject. Rockwell told deponent that he had been accused wrongfully of wishing to assassinate him, or of being ordered by Smith to do so; but deponent said, "I believe that Joe ordered you to do it--I know that orders went from him to the Danites for that purpose." Rockwell said that Smith had never given him any such orders, neither was it his intention; and further this deponent saith not.

JOHN C. BENNETT.

Sworn to, and subscribed, this 7th day of July, 1842, before me, at my office in Carthage.

SAMUEL MARSHALL, J. P.

[SEAL]

BENNETT AS HE WAS.

How a man can talk with the 'livery of heaven on to serve the devil in.' Hear him again.

From the Times and Seasons, Oct. 1840.

'Fudge! We repeat, Smith and Rigdon should not be given up. The law requiring the Governor of our State to deliver up fugitives from justice, is a salutary and wise one, and should not in ordinary circumstances be disregarded, but as there are occasions that authorize the citizens of a State to resent a tyrannical and oppressive government, so there are occasions when it is not only the privilege, but the duty of the Governor of the State to refuse to surrender the citizens of his State upon the requisition of the Executive of another,--and this we consider as the case of Smith and Rigdon.'--Quincy Whig.

'The foregoing article, from the pen of the editor of the Quincy Whig, reflects great credit on the head and heart of the writer. The sentiments it contains are liberal, noble, just--the offspring of wisdom and understanding. It completely uses up the Uncircumcised Philistines of Missouri, and places the Mormon people just where they have ever taken shelter--under the broad folds of the Constitution--and I, therefore, commend it to the favorable consideration of all the saints of light. The grievances of this people must be redressed, and my hands shall help to do it--should they have to reach to the highest courts of heaven, dig to the lowest bowels of hell, or encompass the broad expanse of the universe of God, to consummate so desirable a result.'

JOAB,

General in Israel.

From the Times and Seasons, June 1, 1841.

'Our worthy Governor is certainly disposed to do us ample justice in every respect, and to extend to us every facility for our future happiness and prosperity. Illinois has certainly done her duty, and her whole duty; and now it comes to us to show ourselves upright, honest, just--worthy of the favors bestowed by noble, generous, and magnanimous statesmen.'

BENNETT AS HE IS.

Extract from the Sangamo.

'If Governor Reynolds, of Missouri, will make another demand for Joe Smith alone, disconnected with any other person,--(for there are thousands of innocent, unoffending, good and holy people among the Mormons, who never ought to suffer, and never shall by my hands, or through my instrumentality--men, women and children who have suffered more than death for the infamous prophet)--and if Governor Carlin will place the writ in my hands, I will deliver him up to justice, or die in the attempt, unless restrained by the constituted civil authority. Thousands and tens of thousands are ready to obey the call, and enforce the laws, and the holy Joe shall tremble at the sight of gathering hosts. Let the watchword pass with the celerity of lightning, and let the citizen soldier be ready. I will lead you on to victory, and lay the rebels low. The Constitution and the laws shall triumph; and misrule, violence, and oppression wither like a blighted flower. Let not the Executive whom he has vilified and abused, as he has Governor Carlin, both in the private circle and public congregation, fear or neglect to do his duty in this case, and deliver up this noted refugee, charged with the blackest crimes known to the laws, who now boldly stalks abroad in our public ways. If Joe is innocent, let him be acquitted; but if he is guilty, let his life atone for it. I regard him as a foul and polluted murderer, and on the forthcoming of the State writ, Joe shall be delivered up.'

Gov. Carlin must have had a great desire to please the Doctor, eh?

'It is true I had Joe Smith appointed, or elected Lieutenant General, as a mere plaything, knowing that there was no such officer contemplated by the Constitution; but, it answers Joe well enough, as he does not know enough of military matters to tell the difference between a Corporal and a General,--so, Lieutenant General is as good as any other rank to Joe.'

'Now Governor, do your duty,' says the imperious doctor--which amounts to, as much as to say, Governor, you have never done your duty, but do it now, and I will forgive you, for your power 'is little nipperkins of milk, compared to my great aquafortis Jara.' An Irishman would tell the story thus: Tommy, bring me the butcher knife and hammer, our puppy has got his head into the big stone pot, and I can't get it out without cutting it off and breaking the pot.

From the following it would seem that Bennett has acted as the herald of holiness:

'Well, sister Pratt,' says Joe, 'as you have refused me, it becomes sin, unless sacrifice is offered; and turning to me he said, "General, if you are my friend I wish you to procure a lamb, and have it slain, and sprinkle the door posts and the gate with its blood, and take the kidneys and the entrails and offer them upon an altar of twelve stones that have not been touched with a hammer, as a burnt offering, and it will save me and my priesthood. Will you do it?" I will, I replied. So I procured the lamb from Capt. John T. Barnett, and it was slain by

Lieut. Stephen H. Goddard, and I offered it kidneys and entrails in sacrifice for Joe as desired.'

Never, since Cain, with his peck of potatoes operated against Abel's Lamb, has flesh at blood, with a sacerdotal Tunic on, officiated with such dignified pomposity as the gre Mayor of Nauvoo; Major General of the Nauvoo Legion; Master-in-Chancery; Doctor Medicine; and Elder in Israel, even John C. Bennett. Auctor purissime impuritatis! This is the first clue we have that Bennett is a L vito--guess, however, he acted as one of the priests of Baal. Bennett says in the Sangamo:

'Now, remember that if I should be missi Joe Smith, either by himself for his Danite Ban will be the murderer. Illinoisans, then let m blood be avenged.'

To save beating up for volunteers, as the General may have another turn of mind, and slo or Texas, would it not be better to have the Doctor stereotyped, ensured, or even embalmed if it can be done without duress, and not inju him, or jeopardise his future usefulness; und Gynecocracy; and embryo infanticide. Docto murder will out.

Speaking of Jo Smith, in his insanity, or fo matically, in his Bennettiana, he says,

'I now defy him, and all his holy hosts. dare him to personal violence. There are ey that see that he knows not of, and ears to he that he understands not.'

'This reminds us of the time when the Do tor undertook to poison himself to death, b some good Samaritan like Mormons saved h life; though a wag or two fixed a pile of san and monument and fingered on it the followi epitaph,

'In memory of Major General John C. Be neth, who died at the siege of Philter, in the d fence of the cause of Venus, July 27, 1841.

A Psalm of Joab; when Jacob stole his tom stone and his harp:

'O Jacob Morris mercy have,
Now I am dead and in my grave;
While on the earth you slandered me;
Now I am dead pray let me be.
If you this tomb stone ever steal,
With me the flames of hell you'll feel;
Bring back my other and my harp;
Cease to increase my mis'ry sharp.'

Bennett says:

'Joe's extensive land frauds in Iowa and Il nois, will soon come to light. I will save h Eastern creditors some hundreds of thousan of dollars, by exposing these frauds in the fa of open day.'

This is noble; if the Doctor will save enou to pay what he forgot to pay when he acted bishop of the Campbellite church, and also th he may be wise enough to hold to a suffice quantity of the needful to save himself the trou le of filling up spurious Diplomas--whereby I can save himself the trouble of saving certainly will do some good.

Now Dr. Bennett has tried to terrify soe with his affidavit that Rockwell assassinat Gov. Boggs--insinuating that he went to fulf prophecies--But we think the Doctor has ne taken the burden upon himself--and that to to fulfill his own prophecies.

BENNETT AS HE WAS.

From the Times and Seasons, Feb. 1, 1842.

I stood on Mount Zion, by the Temp of the Great King, and looked dow through the vista of time, and saw peop like great waters, for they were many-gathered from all nations under the who heavens; and I saw mighty chieftai upon noble steeds, and armies of charic and horsemen, and strong cohorts of fo men, great and terrible, with spears a banners, and the implements of w forming to the sound of the clarion. A great shout was heard in the camp the saints, and a voice, like the sound a mighty trumpet, saying--Go and p sess your inheritances, and avenge t wrongs of your progenitors--and the b le was set in array, and the armies the saints moved forward, attended by thunder and hail, and fire and stor conquering and to conquer. And the mies of the aliens tremble at the voi like Belshazzar at the hand writing the wall--and the hearts of their gr warriors, and valiant men, fainted wil them, and they fled like grasshopp and were consumed like stubble bef the devouring flame. The plains w bleached with the bones of the slain, a the rivers flowed with blood. The fir

NAUVOO, ILLINOIS, WEDNESDAY, JULY 27, 1842.

BENNETTIANA;

OR, THE MICROSCOPE WITH DOUBLE DIAMOND LENSES.

The baser the coward the bigger the bluster.

We have read Doctor Bennett's great sine qua non: Russian ukase; and dictatorial egotism. Desperate cases, require desperate doses and so we will give a little of Bennett as he was, and Bennett as he is.

BENNETT AS HE WAS.

J. C. Bennett is the author of the communications signed 'Joab General in Israel.' Wonder if he was in dress when he made the following?

From the Times and Seasons, September, 1840.

Burglary! TREASON!! ARSON!!!

MURDER!!!

Lt. Col. Smith:—

I feel disposed to address you a few lines in relation to one of the darkest events that ever blackened the history of man in his most savage and barbarous state. The history of the Goths and Vandals, the cruel arabs, or the savage Indians, does not contain a parallel—the heart sickens at the thought, and turns from the contemplation of it with loathing and disgust. In the year of our Lord 1833, it is generally known, (for it came heralded from the Grampian hills of the Saints of light, was written by a celestial messenger on the altar of God and reflected on the heavenly canopy that all the world might see,) L. W. Boggs, Governor of Missouri, and Prince of midnight assassins and cowardly brigands, issued, in the face of high heaven, exterminating order (which was ratified by the Legislature,) against the Mormon people residing within his jurisdiction—directing his general officers, first to drive them from the State; second to intercept their retreat; and third to exterminate them with the weapons of war; but the Mormons threw their banners on the air, and under the proudest motto that ever blazed upon a warrior's shield—Sic patribus sit Deus nobis; As God was with our fathers, so may he be with us.

Missouri wages war on the entire Mormon church—the church of Latter Day Saints—violates their women; shoots down, and scalps, their innocent, defenceless, children; confiscates their property, and throws it to the four winds of heaven—bungs them from affluence to beggary in an hour; and orders them all exterminated, murdered, butchered, by an infuriated, savage, fiendish, diabolical infernal, Missouri mob of ruthless brigands, or driven from the State—and declares them outlaws from the common family of man.

All this in a land of boasted liberty—and simply because the Mormons wish, and are determined, to exercise one of our greatest and most dear and sacred constitutional rights—the liberty of conscience—the inestimable privilege of worshipping the God of heaven in the way that they believe to be pointed out! Should they be given up into the hands of wicked men and devils in order to enable them to celebrate a kind of Auto-de-fe, by burning them to the stake, or butchering them in the shambles, at Jefferson city, to satiate Missouri's inordinate thirst for blood? No. They will not be given up. Missouri has too long bathed her hands in crimson gore, and drank the blood of the innocent; she must now be checked in her wild and mad career—she has passed from the balmy state of her political glory to the sear and yellow leaf—the civilized world now turns from her with horror and ineffable contempt—and, should it become necessary, (which may God avert,) she must be met—Missouri must be met, not only by the Mormon people, but by the States—and all the friends of liberty and equal rights should gird on their armour; and swear by the everlasting God that the sword shall not depart from the thigh, nor the buckler from the arm until the blood is ended.

She has hewn down the innocent and the true, but she is entirely destitute of military knowledge or prowess. The following describes her citizens when he says—

Their power to hurt, each little creature feels, But assail their horns, and asses lift their heels; But the blood of the slain is crying from the ground for condign vengeance, and should she continue to pursue her present murderous policy, the day of righteous retribution and the avenging of blood will not be procrastinated—for her plains shall be bleached with the bones of the slain, and her rivers flow with blood, before another massacre will be suffered. More anon.

Yours, Respectfully,

JOAB,
General in Israel.

BENNETT AS HE IS.

From the St. Louis Bulletin.

On the evening of the 29th ultimo, twelve of the Danites, dressed in female apparel, approached my boarding house, (Gen. Robinson's,) in Nauvoo, with their carriage wheels wrapped with blankets, and their horses' feet covered with cloths, to prevent noise, about 10 o'clock, for the purpose of conveying me off and assassinating me, and thus prevent disclosures—but I was so admirably prepared with arms, as were also my friends, that after prowling around the house for some time, they retired.

On Friday, the 1st inst., I went to Carthage; and on the 5th I had a call from Mr. O. P. Rockwell, the result of which is detailed in the following affidavits, to-wit:

STATE OF ILLINOIS, ss.
HAWK COUNTY.

Personally appeared before me, Samuel Marshall, a Justice of the Peace in and for said county, John C. Bennett, who being duly sworn according to law deposited and saith, that on the 5th of July, 1842, at the house of Mr. Hamilton, in Carthage, Mr. O. P. Rockwell came to him and desired a private interview, to which deponent replied that if he (Rockwell) had any thing to say, he could speak it out before the gentlemen present. Rockwell said it was a private matter which interested them only—deponent then went out with him. Rockwell said "Doctor you do not know your friends,—I am not your enemy—and I do not wish you to make use of my name in your publications;" deponent replied that he recognised Joe Smith and all his friends, as his personal enemies: to which Rockwell replied "I have been informed by Warner and Davis that you said Smith gave me fifty dollars and a wagon for shooting Boggs and I can and will whip any man that will tell such a cursed lie—did you say so or not?" After looking at him for a moment or two deponent said, "I never said so, sir, but I did say, and I now say it to your face, that you left Nauvoo about two months before the attempted assassination of ex-Governor Boggs, of Missouri, and returned the day before the report of his assassination reached there; and that two persons, in Nauvoo, told me that you told them that you had been over the upper part of Missouri, and in Boggs' neighborhood," to which Rockwell replied, "well, I was there; and if I shot Boggs they have got to prove it—I never done an act in my life that I was ashamed of, and I do not fear to go any where that I have ever been."

Deponent replied "certainly they have got to prove it on you, if you did shoot him: I know nothing of what you did, as I was not there, I only know the circumstances, and from them I draw my own inferences, and the public will theirs—and now, sir, if either you, or Joe Smith, think you can intimidate me by your threats, you are mistaken in your man, and I wish you to understand distinctly that I am opposed to Joe and his holy host—I shall tell the truth fearlessly, and regardless of consequences."

Rockwell replied, "If you say that Joe Smith gave me fifty dollars and a wagon to shoot Boggs, I can whip you, and will do it, in any crowd." Deponent then said—"why are you harping on what I have not said, I have told you what I have said to your face and in the presence of these gentlemen, and you have acknowledged the truth of all I have said, and I shall say it again, and if you wish to fight I am ready for you." The conversation then ceased on that subject. Rockwell told deponent that he had been accused wrongfully of wishing to assassinate him, or of being ordered by Smith to do so; but deponent said, "I believe that Joe ordered you to do it—I know that orders went from him to the Danites for that purpose." Rockwell said that Smith had never given him any such orders, neither was it his intention; and further this deponent saith not.

JOHN C. BENNETT.

Sworn to, and subscribed, this 7th day of July, 1842, before me, at my office in Carthage.

SAMUEL MARSHALL, J. P.

[SEAL]

BENNETT AS HE WAS.

How a man can talk with the 'livery of heaven on to serve the devil in.' Hear him again.

From the Times and Seasons, Oct. 1840.

'Fudge! We repeat, Smith and Rigdon should not be given up. The law requiring the Governor of our State to deliver up fugitives from justice, is a salutary and wise one, and should not in ordinary circumstances be disregarded, but as there are occasions that authorize the citizens of a State to resent a tyrannical and oppressive government, so there are occasions when it is not only the privilege, but the duty of the Governor of the State to refuse to surrender the citizens of his State upon the requisition of the Executive of another,—and this we consider as the case of Smith and Rigdon.'—Quincy Whig.

The foregoing article, from the pen of the editor of the Quincy Whig, reflects great credit on the head and heart of the writer. The sentiments it contains are liberal, noble, just—the offspring of wisdom and understanding. It completely uses up the Uncircumcised Philistines of Missouri, and places the Mormon people just where they have ever taken shelter—under the broad folds of the Constitution—and I, therefore, commend it to the favorable consideration of all the saints of light. The grievances of this people must be redressed, and my hands shall help to do it—should they have to reach to the highest courts of heaven, dig to the lowest bowels of hell, or encompass the broad expanse of the universe of God, to consummate so desirable a result.

JOAB,

General in Israel.

From the Times and Seasons, June 1, 1841.

'Our worthy Governor is certainly disposed to do us ample justice in every respect, and to extend to us every facility for our future happiness and prosperity. Illinois has certainly done her duty, and her whole duty; and now it comes to us to show ourselves upright, honest, just,—worthy of the favors bestowed by noble, generous, and magnanimous statesmen.'

BENNETT AS HE IS.

Extract from the Sangamo.

'If Governor Reynolds, of Missouri, will make another demand for Joe Smith alone, disconnected with any other person, (for there are thousands of innocent, unoffending, good and holy people among the Mormons who never ought to suffer, and never shall by my hands, or through my instrumentality—men, women and children who have suffered more than death for the infamous prophet)—and if Governor Carlin will place the writ in my hands, I will deliver him up to justice, or die in the attempt, unless restrained by the constituted civil authority. Thousands and tens of thousands are ready to obey the call, and enforce the laws, and the holy Joe shall tremble at the sight of gathering hosts. Let the watchword pass with the celerity of lightning, and let the citizen soldier be ready.—I will lead you on to victory, and lay the rebels low. The Constitution and the laws shall triumph; and misrule, violence, and oppression wither like a blighted flower. Let not the Executive whom he has vilified and abused, as he has Governor Carlin, both in the private circle and public congregation, fear or neglect to do his duty in this case, and deliver up this noted refugee, charged with the blackest crimes known to the laws, who now boldly stalks abroad in our public ways. If Joe is innocent, let him be acquitted; but if he is guilty, let his life atone for it. I regard him as a foul and polluted murderer, and on the forthcoming of the State writ, Joe shall be delivered up.'

Gov. Carlin must have had a great desire to please the Doctor, eh!

'It is true I had Joe Smith appointed, or elected Lieutenant General, as a mere plaything, knowing that there was no such officer contemplated by the Constitution; but, it answers Joe well enough, as he does not know enough of military matters to tell the difference between a Corporal and a General,—so, Lieutenant General is as good as any other ral to Joe.'

'Now Governor, do your duty,' says the imperious doctor—which amounts to, as much as to say, Governor, you have never done your duty, but do it now, and I will forgive you, for your power is little nipperkins of milk, compared to my great aquafortis Jars! An Irishman would tell the story thus: Tommy, bring me the butcher knife and hammer, our puppy has got his head into the big stone pot, and I can't get it out without cutting it off and breaking the pot.

From the following it would seem that Bennett has acted as the herald of holiness:

'Well, sister Pratt,' says Joe, 'as you have refused me, it becomes sin, unless sacrifice is offered; and turning to me he said, "General, if you are my friend I wish you to procure a lamb, and have it slain, and sprinkle the door posts and the gate with its blood, and take the kidneys and the entrails and offer them upon an altar of twelve stones that have not been touched with a hammer, as a burnt offering, and it will save me and my priesthood. Will you do it?" I will, I replied. So I procured the lamb from Capt. John T. Barnett, and it was slain by

Lieut. Stephen H. Goddard, and I offered the kidneys and entrails in sacrifice for Joe as he desired.'

Never, since Cain, with his peck of potatoes, operated against Abel's Lamb, has flesh and blood, with a sacerdotal Tunic on, officiated with such dignified pomposity as the great Mayor of Nauvoo: Major General of the Nauvoo Legion; Master-in-Chancery; Doctor of Medicine; and Elder in Israel, even John C. Bennett. Auctor purissime impuritatis! This is the first clue we have that Bennett is a Le-vite—guess, however, he acted as one of the priests of Baal. Bennett says in the Sangamo:

'Now, remember that if I should be missing, Joe Smith, either by himself or his Danite Band, will be the murderer. Illinoisans, then let my blood be avenged.'

To save beating up for volunteers, as the General may have another turn of mind, and slope or Texas, would it not be better to have the Doctor stereotyped, ensored, or even embalmed, if it can be done without dress, and not injure him, or jeopardise his future usefulness: under Gynecocracy; and embryo infanticide. Doctor, murder will out.

Speaking of Jo Smith, in his insanity, or fog-matically, in his Bennettiana, he says,

'I now defy him, and all his holy hosts. I dare him to personal violence. There are eyes that see that he knows not of, and ears to hear that he understands not.'

'This reminds us of the time when the Doctor undertook to poison himself to death, but some good Samaritan like Mormons saved his life; though a wag or two fixed a pile of sand, and monument and fingered on it the following epitaph,

'In memory of Major General John C. Bennett, who died at the siege of Philter, in the defence of the cause of Venus, July 27, 1841.

A Psalm of Joab, when Jacob stole his tomb-stone and his harp:

'O Jacob Morris mercy have,
Now I am dead and in my grave;
While on the earth you slandered me;
Now I am dead pray let me be.
If you this tomb stone ever steal,
With me the flames of hell you'll feel;
Bring back my other and my harp;
Cease to increase my misery sharp.'

Bennett says:

'Joe's extensive land frauds in Iowa and Illinois, will soon come to light. I will save his Eastern creditors some hundreds of thousands of dollars, by exposing these frauds in the face of open day.'

This is noble; if the Doctor will save enough to pay what he forgot to pay when he acted as bishop of the Campbellite church, and also that he may be wise enough to hold to a sufficient quantity of the necessary to save himself the trouble of filling up spurious Diplomas—whereby he quackifies himself as the chief of quackery, he certainly will do some good.

Now Dr. Bennett has tried to terrify some with his affidavit that Rockwell assassinated Gov. Boggs—insinuating that he went to fulfill prophecies—But we think the Doctor has now taken the burden upon himself—and that too, to fulfill his own prophecies.

BENNETT AS HE WAS.

From the Times and Seasons, Feb. 1, 1842.

I stood on Mount Zion, by the Temple of the Great King, and looked down through the vista of time, and saw people like great waters, for they were many—gathered from all nations under the whole heavens: and I saw mighty chieftains upon noble steeds, and armies of chariots and horsemen, and strong cohorts of footmen, great and terrible, with spears and banners, and the implements of war, forming to the sound of the clarion. And a great shout was heard in the camp of the saints, and a voice, like the sound of a mighty trumpet, saying—Go and possess your inheritances, and avenge the wrongs of your progenitors—and the battle was set in array, and the armies of the saints moved forward, attended by by thunder and hail, and fire and storm, conquering and to conquer. And the armies of the aliens tremble at the voice, like Belshazzar at the hand writing on the wall—and the hearts of their great warriors, and valiant men, fainted within them, and they fled like grasshoppers, and were consumed like stubble before the devouring flame. The plains were bleached with the bones of the slain, and the rivers flowed with blood. The fierce ger of the Lord returned not until he had done, nor until he had performed the intents of his heart.]

JOAB,
General in Israel.

Doctor Bennett's abolition principles, were as warm, as the Times and Seasons of March, 1842, will show by reading the correspondence between himself and Charles V. Dyer, M. D. of Chicago.

on the Times and Seasons, March 15, 1842. "Let the friends of freedom raise and ter their voice, like the voice of ten thousand thunders—let them take every constitutional means to procure a redress of grievances—let there be a concerted effort, and the victory is ours. Let the road banners of freedom be unfurled, and soon the prison doors will be opened, the captive set at liberty, and the oppressor go free. Missouri will then remember the unoffending Mormons in the days of their captivity and bondage—when murder and rapine were her darling attributes—why, my heart is filled with indignation, and my blood boils within me, when contemplate the vast injustice and cruelty which Missouri has meted out to that great philanthropist and devout Christian, General Joseph Smith, and his honest and faithful adherents—the Latter Day Saints, or Mormons."

"Now let us make a strong, concerted, and vigorous effort, for UNIVERSAL LIBERTY, to every soul of man—civil, religious, and political." With high considerations of respect, and esteem, suffer me to subscribe myself—

Yours, Respectfully,
JOHN C. BENNETT.
CHARLES V. DYER, M. D."

It will be seen by this that Gen. Smith was a great philanthropist as long as Bennett could act as a spy, without being exposed. It is if the Missourians are willing to harbor an abolitionist as a spy, and let him practice the same amalgamation among the negroes of their state,—huzza for the Doctor; there by hangs a tale.

But we must hold up, for truly we have never witnessed so mortal a case of black vomit. If Missouri; if Illinois, if the world can swallow such gall and wormwood, from the mouth of Dr. Bennett, and not feel qualmish while gazing upon it, then verily the Physician can heal himself.

Such egotism; who made Nauvoo? who granted the Charter? who made the Nauvoo Legion? who made Smith Lieutenant General, for a day? who commanded Gov. Carlin to approve all these mighty acts?

in C. Bennett, with "all my laurels thick upon me." But alas! the third day came a chilling frost and nipt them, and of all my great honors and consequences, although I veto the practice of being tried by court martial, as such an one as I shall dictate, I have found that greatness has its inconveniences, and there is nothing left but we!

To conclude, if the doctor does not find the way of the transgressor hard, then honor has it, but tell it not in Missouri, publish it not in Ohio, lest the uncircumcised Philistines should strew his ashes to the four winds, that there may not be left a trace of so vile a wretch.

At a meeting of the citizens of the city of Nauvoo held in said city at the meeting ground, on the 22d 1842.

Orson Spencer Esq. was called to the chair and Gustavus Hills was appointed clerk.

The meeting was called to order by the chairman who stated the object of the meeting to be to express an expression of the public mind in reference to the reports gone abroad, calumniating the character of Pres. Joseph Smith. Gen. Wilson Law then rose and presented the following resolution.

Resolved—That, having heard that John C. Bennett was circulating many base falsehoods respecting a number of the citizens of Nauvoo, and especially against our worthy and respected Mayor, Joseph Smith, we do hereby manifest to the world that so far as we are acquainted with Joseph Smith we know him to be a good, moral, virtuous, peaceable and patriotic man, and a firm supporter of law, justice and equal rights; that he at all times upholds and keeps inviolate the constitution of this State and of the United States.

A vote was then called and the resolution adopted by a large concourse of citizens, numbering somewhere about a thousand men. Two or three, voted in the negative.

Elder Orson Pratt then rose and spoke at some length in explanation of his negative vote. Pres. Joseph Smith spoke in reply.

Question to Elder Pratt, "Have you personally a knowledge of any immoral act in me toward the female sex, or in any other way?" Answer, by Elder O. Pratt, "Personally, toward the female sex, I have not."

Elder O. Pratt responded at some length. Elder B. Young then spoke in reply, and was followed by Elders Wm. Law H. C. Kimball and Pres. H. Smith. Several others spoke bearing testimony of the iniquity of those who had calumniated Pres. J. Smith's character.

Meeting adjourned for one hour.

P. M. Meeting assembled pursuant to adjournment and was called to order by the chairman.

A petition was then received from a committee appointed by the city council for the reception, approbation, and signatures of the citizens generally, petitioning the Governor of Illinois for protection in our peaceable rights, which was read approved, and signed by 8,000 persons. ORSON SPENCER ESQ., Chairman. GUSTAVUS HILLS, Clerk.

Note. In the Wasp of Saturday last, a mistake occurred in the minutes of the public meeting held in this city, in inadvertently omitting some qualifying words in the question of Pres. Joseph Smith to Elder O. Pratt, and in his reply. The omission was without design and the proper corrections are made in the Extra.

GUSTAVUS HILLS, Clerk.

MORE DISCLOSURES.

It is not with a view to excite the passions and prejudices of the people, that the following affidavits, are made public, but to disabuse the community, which can not be less than fomented at the perusal of Dr. Bennett's letters and affidavits which have recently shot forth like meteors. Our space is too small to publish the documents referred to, but as there are no lack of presses and men, to give the Doctor a fair hearing, as well as extensive circulation, we shall presume that every body knows his story about the Mormons at Nauvoo, and proceed to rebut, refute, disprove, or expose, as the nature of the case may require.

The Doctor claims among all his et ceteras a little law, but had he reflected once on lex scripta, where he has ten times to gratify his lustful desires, he would exclaim like the old barrister, "John might swallow a cart load of such stuff."

His affidavits are mere wind for effect. Mr. Bennett knows better than to make such foolish quibbles. In fact, until the whole City Council of Nauvoo are impeached, the Doctor must stand before the public as a perjured man.—There let him stand.

Two things are certainly requisite in witnesses,—knowledge and character. By this rule, as the Doctor fails himself, we think some of his testimony, when properly cross examined will appear a little more than plumb. Who is Mrs. Shindle? A harlot. What next? References to others, whose knowledge of facts and weight of character, will find a brief ex necessitate rei.

The doctor's duress, so gravely sworn to, is the climax of his legal sagacity. There is a point at issue in that, which, when the Doctor wakes from his lethargy, will look like a vexed question, with iron eyes, which may refresh his mind with the consolation that sudden and violent moves in public, often bring leisure, repentance in solitude.

As it regards his third letter, concerning fraud, time alone will determine that. Common law, common sense, and common prudence, teach us to try men for crimes that they have committed, not for what they may commit.

What he says of the proceedings of the Lodge is nothing; he is an expelled mason. Mr. Rigdon's name goes with his certificate, and settles the matter on that point, and with his daughter, Elder Marks' name is to the city council's affidavit; and we might add many other things to show the vanity of the man and the enormity of his crimes, but we forbear, though a word or two more may not be amiss. As to the Danite band, which seems like Hamlet's ghost to haunt the Doctor by night and by day, it must be something more than Mormon, for the City Council testifies that they know of no such band. And in justice to the community we ought to say, and strangers who are among us daily bear the same evidence, that nothing of any such league, combination or knot of men, is known in Nauvoo.

The certificates of Elders Rigdon, Marks, and Higbee, and Miss Michael, (the Journal's Mitchell) go to show that Doctor Bennett used the names of persons without their consent. These certificates speak for themselves, and leave the doctor before the public as he is, a debaucher, a spoiler of character and virtue, and a living pestilence, walking in darkness to fester in his own infamy.

There is one affidavit out, that Bennett might easily be put out of the way; and in justice to the community, and the aggravation of the crimes which he has committed, (and to substantiate which, the testimony of respectable persons has been properly authenticated, but which is actually too indelicate for publicity,) we say, and every man who has a wife, or a daughter, or a sister, that he wishes uncontaminated with vice of the slyest but most atrocious men, will say, we will never rest till the law is executed on such a bloody lived Vampire.

AFFIDAVIT OF THE CITY COUNCIL.

We the undersigned, members of the city council of the City of Nauvoo, testify that John C. Bennett was not under duress at the time that he testified before the city council May 19th 1842 concerning Joseph Smith's innocence, virtue, and pure teaching—his statements that he has lately made concerning this matter are false,—there was no excitement at the time, nor was he in anywise threatened, menaced or intimidated, his appearance at the city council was voluntary, he asked the privilege of speaking, which was granted, after speaking for some time on the city affairs, Joseph Smith asked him if he knew any thing that concerned his public or private character, he then delivered those statements contained in the testimony voluntarily, and of his own free will, and went of his own accord as free as any member of the council.

We do further testify that there is no such thing as a Danite Society in this city nor any combination, other than the Masonic Lodge, of which we have any knowledge.

WILSON LAW, GEO. A. SMITH,
JOHN TAYLOR, GEO. W. HARRIS,
W. WOODRUFF, N. K. WHITNEY,
VINSON KNIGHT, BRIGHAM YOUNG,
H. C. KIMBALL, CHARLES C. RICH,
JOHN P. GREEN, ORSON SPENCER,
WILLIAM MARKS.

Subscribed, and sworn to, by the persons whose names appear to the foregoing affidavit, this 20th day of July, A. D. 1842; except N. K. Whitney, who subscribed and affirmed the foregoing the day before me.

DANIEL H. WELLS,
Justice of the Peace, within and for Hancock County, Illinois.

Daniel H. Wells Esq., is an old resident in this place, and is not a Mormon.

AFFIDAVIT OF HYRUM SMITH.

On the seventeenth day of May, 1842, having been made acquainted with some of the conduct of John C. Bennett, which was given in testimony under oath before Alderman G. W. Harris, by several females, who testified that John C. Bennett endeavored to seduce them and accomplished his designs by saying it was right; that it was one of the mysteries of God, which was to be revealed when the people was strong enough in the faith to bear such mysteries—that it was perfectly right to have illicit intercourse with females, providing no one knew it but themselves, vehemently trying them from day to day, to yield to his passions, bringing witnesses of his own clan to testify that their was such revelations and such commandments, and that it was of God; also stating that he would be responsible for their sins, if their was any; and that he would give them medicine to produce abortions, providing they should become pregnant. One of these witnesses, a married woman that he attended upon in his professional capacity, whilst she was sick, stated that he made proposals to her of a similar nature; he told her that he wished her husband was dead, and that if he was dead he would marry her and clear out with her; he also begged her permission to give him medicine to that effect; he did try to give him medicine, but he would not take it—on interrogating her what she thought of such teaching, she replied, she was sick at the time, and had to be lifted in and out of her bed like a child. Many other acts as criminal were reported to me at the time. On becoming acquainted with these facts, I was determined to prosecute him, and bring him to justice.—Some person knowing my determination, having informed him of it, he sent to me Wm. Law and Brigham Young, to request an interview with me and to see if their could not be a reconciliation made. I told them I thought there could not be, his crimes were so heinous; but told them I was willing to see him; he immediately came to see me; he begged on me to forgive him, this once, and not prosecute him and expose him, he said he was guilty, and did acknowledge the crimes that were alleged against him; he seemed to be sorry that he had committed such acts, and wept much, and desired that it might not be made public, for it would ruin him forever; he wished me to wait; but I was determined to bring him to justice, and declined listening to his entreaties; he then wished me to wait until he could have an interview with the masonic fraternity; he also wanted an interview with Br. Joseph; he wished to know of me, if I would forgive him, and desist from my intentions, if he could obtain their forgiveness; and requested the privilege of an interview immediately. I granted him that privilege as I was acting as master pro tem. at that time; he also wished an interview first with Br. Joseph; at that time Brother Joseph was crossing the yard from the house to the store, he immediately came to the store and met Dr. Bennett on the way; he reached out his hand to Br. Joseph and said, will you forgive me, weeping at the time; he said Br. Joseph, I am guilty, I acknowledge it, and I beg of you not to expose me, for it will ruin me; Joseph replied, Doctor! why are you using my name to carry on your helish wickedness? Have I ever taught you that fornication and adultery was right, or polygamy or any such practices? He said you never did. Did I ever teach you any thing that was not virtuous—that was iniquitous, either in public or private? He said you never did. Did you ever know anything unvirtuous or unrighteous in my conduct or actions at any time, either in public or in private? he said, I did not; are you willing to make oath to this before an Alderman of the city? he said I am willing to do so. I then said Dr. go into my office, and write what you can in conscience subscribe your name to, and I will be satisfied—I will, he said, and went into the office, and I went with him and he requested pen ink and paper of Mr. Clayton, who was acting clerk in that office, and was also secretary pro tem. for the Nauvoo Lodge U. D. Wm. Clayton gave him paper, pen and ink, and he stood at the desk and wrote the following article which was published in the 11th No. of the Wasp; sworn to and subscribed before Daniel H. Wells, Alderman, 17th day of May, A. D. 1842; he called in Br. Joseph, and read it to him and asked him if that would do, he said it would, he then swore to it as before mentioned; the article was as follows:

STATE OF ILLINOIS,

City of Nauvoo. } Personally appeared before me, Daniel H. Wells, an Alderman of said city of Nauvoo, John C. Bennett, who being duly sworn according to law, deposeth and saith: that he never was taught any thing in the least contrary to the strictest principles anger of the Lord returned not until he had done, nor until he had performed the intents of his heart.]

JOAB,
General in Israel.

Doctor Bennett's abolition principles, were quite warm, as the Times and Seasons of March 15, 1842, will show by reading the correspondence between himself and Charles V. Dyer, M. D., of Chicago.

From the Times and Seasons, March 15, 1842.

"Let the friends of freedom arise and utter their voice, like the voice of ten thousand thunders—let them take every constitutional means to procure a redress of grievances—let there be a concerted effort, and the victory is ours. Let the broad banners of freedom be unfurled, and soon the prison doors will be opened, the captive set at liberty, and the oppressed go free. Missouri will then remember the unoffending Mormons in the days of their captivity and bondage—when murder and rapine were her darling attributes—why, my heart is filled with indignation, and my blood boils within me, when I contemplate the vast injustice and cruelty which Missouri has meted out to that great philanthropist and devout Christian, General Joseph Smith, and his honest and faithful adherents—the Latter Day Saints, or Mormons."

"Now let us make a strong, concerted, and vigorous effort, for UNIVERSAL LIBERTY, to every soul of man—civil, religious, and political. With high considerations of respect, and esteem, suffer me to subscribe myself—

Yours, Respectfully,
JOHN C. BENNETT.
CHARLES V. DYER, M. D."

It will be seen by this that Gen. Smith was a great philanthropist as long as Bennett could practice adultery, fornication, and—we were going to say, (Buggery,) without being exposed. But if the Missourians are willing to harbor an abolitionist as a spy, and let him practice the real amalgamation among the negroes of their State,—huzza for the Doctor; there by hangs a tale.

But we must hold up, for truly we have never witnessed so mortal a case of black rot: If Missouri; if Illinois, if the world can swallow such gall and wormwood, from the mouth of Dr. Bennett, and not feel qualmish while gazing it down, then verily the Physician can heal himself.

Such egotism; who made Nauvoo? who granted the Charter? who made the Nauvoo Legion? who made Smith Lieutenant General, for a play thing? who commanded Gov. Carlin to approve all these mighty acts?

John C. Bennett, with "all my laurels thick upon me." But alas! the third day came a chilling frost and nipt them, and of all my great titles, honors and consequence, although I veto the practice of being tried by court martial save such an one as I shall dictate, I have found that greatness has its inconveniences, and there is nothing left but me!

To conclude, if the doctor does not find the way of the transgressor hard, then honor has fled, but tell it not in Missouri, publish it not in Ohio, lest the unchristianised Philistines should draw his ashes to the four winds, that there may not be left a trace of so vile a wretch.

At a meeting of the citizens of the city of Nauvoo held in said city at the meeting ground, July 22d 1842.

Orson Spencer Esq. was called to the chair and Gustavus Hills was appointed clerk.

The meeting was called to order by the chairman who stated the object of the meeting to be to obtain an expression of the public mind in reference to the reports gone abroad, calumniating the character of Pres. Joseph Smith. Gen. Wilson Law then rose and presented the following resolution.

Resolved—That, having heard that John C. Bennett was circulating many base falsehoods respecting a number of the citizens of Nauvoo, and especially against our worthy and respected Mayor, Joseph Smith, we do hereby manifest to the world that so far as we are acquainted with Joseph Smith we know him to be a good, moral, virtuous, peaceable and patriotic man, and a firm supporter of law, justice and equal rights; that he at all times upholds and keeps inviolate the constitution of this State and of the United States.

A vote was then called and the resolution adopted by a large concourse of citizens, numbering so near about a thousand men. Two or three, voted in the negative.

Elder Orson Pratt then rose and spoke at some length in explanation of his negative vote. Pres. Joseph Smith spoke in reply—

Question to Elder Pratt, "Have you personally a knowledge of any immoral act in me toward the female sex, or in any other way?" Answer, by Elder O. Pratt, "Personally, toward the female sex, I have not."

Elder O. Pratt responded at some length. Elder B. Young then spoke in reply, and was followed by Elders Wm. Law H. C. Kimball and Pres. H. Smith. Several others spoke bearing testimony of the iniquity of those who had calumniated Pres. J. Smith's character.

Meeting adjourned for one hour.

P. M. Meeting assembled pursuant to adjournment and was called to order by the chairman.

A petition was then received from a committee appointed by the city council for the reception, approbation, and signatures of the citizens generally, petitioning the Governor of Illinois for protection in our peaceable rights, which was read approved, and signed by, 8,00 persons. ORSON SPENCER Esq., Chairman. GUSTAVUS HILLS, Clerk.

Note. In the Wasp of Saturday last, a mistake occurred in the minutes of the public meeting held in this city, in inadvertently omitting some qualifying words in the question of Pres. Joseph Smith to Elder O. Pratt, and in his reply. The omission was without design and the proper corrections are made in the Extra.

GUSTAVUS HILLS, Clerk.

MORE DISCLOSURES.

It is not with a view to excite the passions and prejudices of the people, that the following affidavits, are made public, but to disabuse the community, which can not be less than fomented at the perusal of Dr. Bennett's letters and affidavits which have recently shot forth like meteors. Our space is too small to publish the documents referred to, but as there are no lack of presses and men, to give the Doctor a fair hearing, as well as extensive circulation, we shall presume that every body knows his story about the Mormons at Nauvoo, and proceed to rebut, refute, disprove, or expose, as the nature of the case may require.

The Doctor claims among all his et ceteras a little law, but had he reflected once on lex scripta, where he has ten times to gratify his lustful desires, he would exclaim like the old barrister, "John might swallow a cart load of such stuff without obtaining one particle of truth." His affidavits are mere wind for effect. Mr. Bennett knows better than to make such foolish quips. In fact, until the whole City Council of Nauvoo are impeached, the Doctor must stand before the public as a perjured man. There let him stand.

Two things are certainly requisite in witnesses,—knowledge and character: By this rule, as the Doctor fails himself, we think some of his testimony, when properly cross examined will appear a little more than plumb. Who is Mrs. Shindle? A harlot. What next? References to others, whose knowledge of facts and weight of character, will find a brief—ex necessitate rei.

The doctor's duress, so gravely sworn to, is the climax of his legal sagacity. There is a point at issue in that, which, when the Doctor wakes from his lethargy, will look like a vexed question, with iron eyes, which may refresh his mind with the consolation that sudden and violent moves in public, often bring leisure, repentance in solitude.

As it regards his third letter, concerning fraud, time alone will determine that. Common law, common sense, and common prudence, teach us to try men for crimes that they have committed, not for what they may commit.

What he says of the proceedings of the Lodge is nothing; he is an expelled mason. Mr. Rigdon's name goes with his certificate, and settles the matter on that point, and with his daughter. Elder Marks' name is to the city council's affidavit; and we might add many other things to show the vanity of the man and the enormity of his crimes, but we forbear, though a word or two more may not be amiss. As to the Danite band, which seems like Hamlet's ghost to haunt the Doctor by night and by day, it must be something more than Mormon, for the City Council testifies that they know of no such band. And in justice to the community we ought to say, and strangers who are among us daily bear the same evidence, that nothing of any such league, combination or knot of men, is known in Nauvoo.

The certificates of Elders Rigdon, Marks, and Higbee, and Miss Michael, (the Journal's Mitchell) go to show that Doctor Bennett used the names of persons without their consent. These certificates speak for themselves, and leave the doctor before the public as he is, a debaucher, a spoiler of character and virtue, and a living pestilence, walking in darkness to fester in his own infamy.

There is one affidavit out, that Bennett might easily be put out of the way; and in justice to the community, and the aggravation of the crimes which he has committed, (and to substantiate which, the testimony of respectable persons has been properly authenticated, but which is actually too indelicate for publicity,) we say, and every man who has a wife, or a daughter, or a sister, that he wishes uncontaminated with vice of the vilest but most atrocious men, will say, we will never rest till the law is executed on such a bloody lived Vampire.

AFFIDAVIT OF THE CITY COUNCIL.

We the undersigned, members of the city council of the City of Nauvoo, testify that John C. Bennett was not under duress at the time that he testified before the city council May 19th 1842 concerning Joseph Smith's innocence, virtue, and pure teaching—his statements that he has lately made concerning this matter are false,—there was no excitement at the time, nor was he in anywise threatened, menaced or intimidated, his appearance at the city council was voluntary, he asked the privilege of speaking, which was granted, after speaking for some time on the city affairs, Joseph Smith asked him if he knew anything bad concerning his public or private character, he then delivered those statements contained in the testimony voluntarily, and of his own free will, and went of his own accord as free as any member of the council.

We do further testify that there is no such thing as a Danite Society in this city nor any combination, other than the Masonic Lodge, of which we have any knowledge.

WILSON LAW, GEO. A. SMITH,
JOHN TAYLOR, GEO. W. HARRIS,
W. WOODRUFF, N. K. WHITNEY,
VINSON KNIGHT, BRIGHAM YOUNG,
H. C. KIMBALL, CHARLES C. RICH,
JOHN P. GREEN, ORSON SPENCER,
WILLIAM MARKS.

Subscribed, and sworn to, by the persons whose names appear to the foregoing affidavit, this 20th day of July, A. D. 1842; except N. K. Whitney, who subscribed and affirmed to the foregoing this day, before me.

DANIEL H. WELLS,

Justice of the Peace, within and for Hancock County, Illinois.

Daniel H. Wells Esq., is an old resident in this place, and is not a Mormon.

AFFIDAVIT OF HYRUM SMITH.

On the seventeenth day of May, 1842, having been made acquainted with some of the conduct of John C. Bennett, which was given in testimony under oath before Alderman G. W. Harris, by several females, who testified that John C. Bennett endeavored to seduce them and accomplished his designs by saying it was right; that it was one of the mysteries of God, which was to be revealed when the people was strong enough in the faith to bear such mysteries—that it was perfectly right to have illicit intercourse with females, providing no one knew it but themselves, vehemently trying them from day to day, to yield to his passions, bringing witnesses of his own clan to testify that their was such revelations and such commandments, and that it was of God; also stating that he would be responsible for their sins, if they was any; and that he would give them medicine to produce abortions, providing they should become pregnant. One of these witnesses, a married woman that he attended upon in his professional capacity, whilst she was sick, stated that he made proposals to her of a similar nature; he told her that he wished her husband was dead, and that if he was dead he would marry her and clear out with her; he also begged her permission to give him medicine to that effect; he did try to give him medicine, but he would not take it—on interrogating her what she thought of such teaching, she replied, she was sick at the time, and had to be lifted in and out of her bed like a child. Many other acts as criminal were reported to me at the time. On becoming acquainted with these facts, I was determined to prosecute him, and bring him to justice. Some person knowing my determination, having informed him of it, he sent to me Wm. Law and Brigham Young, to request an interview with me and to see if their could not be a reconciliation made. I told them I thought there could not be, his crimes were so heinous; but told them I was willing to see him; he immediately came to see me; he begged on me to forgive him, this once, and not prosecute him and expose him, he said he was guilty, and did acknowledge the crimes that were alleged against him; he seemed to be sorry that he had committed such acts, and wept much, and desired that it might not be made public, for it would ruin him forever; he wished me to wait; but I was determined to bring him to justice, and declined listening to his entreaties; he then wished me to wait until he could have an interview with the masonic fraternity; he also wanted an interview with Br. Joseph; he wished to know of me, if I would forgive him, and desist from my intentions, if he could obtain their forgiveness; and requested the privilege of an interview immediately. I granted him that privilege as I was acting as master pro tem. at that time; he also wished an interview first with Br. Joseph; at that time Brother Joseph was crossing the yard from the house to the store, he immediately came to the store and met Dr. Bennett on the way; he reached out his hand to Br. Joseph and said, will you forgive me, weeping at the time; he said Br. Joseph, I am guilty, I acknowledge it, and I beg of you not to expose me, for it will ruin me; Joseph replied, Doctor! why are you using my name to carry on your helish wickedness? Have I ever taught you that fornication and adultery was right, or polygamy or any such practices? He said you never did. Did I ever teach you any thing that was not virtuous—that was iniquitous, either in public or private? He said you never did. Did you ever know anything unvirtuous or unrighteous in my conduct or actions at any time, either in public or in private? he said, I did not; are you willing to make oath to this before an Alderman of the city? he said I am willing to do so. Joseph said Dr. go into my office, and write what you can in conscience subscribe your name to, and I will be satisfied—I will, he said, and went into the office, and I went with him and he requested pen ink and paper of Mr. Clayton, who was acting clerk in that office, and was also secretary pro tem. for the Nauvoo Lodge U. D. Wm. Clayton gave him paper, pen and ink, and he stood at the desk and wrote the following article which was published in the 11th No. of the Wasp; sworn to and subscribed before Daniel H. Wells, Alderman, 17th day of May, A. D. 1842; he called in Br. Joseph, and read it to him and asked him if that would do, he said it would, he then swore to it as before mentioned; the article was as follows:

STATE OF ILLINOIS, }
City of Nauvoo. } Personally appeared before me, Daniel H. Wells, an Alderman of said city of Nauvoo, John C. Bennett, who being duly sworn according to law, deposeth and saith: that he never was taught any thing in the least contrary to the strictest principles of the Gospel, or of virtue, or of the law of God, or man, under any occasion either directly or indirectly, in word or deed, by Joseph Smith; and that he never knew the said Smith to countenance any improper conduct whatsoever, either in public or private; and that he never did teach to me in private that an illegal illicit intercourse with females was, under any circumstances, justifiable, and that I never knew him so to teach others.

JOHN C. BENNETT.

Sworn to, and subscribed, before me, this 17th day of May, 1842.

DANIEL H. WELLS,

Alderman.

During all this intercourse, I was present with him, and there was no threats used, nor harshness, every thing was as pacific as could be under existing circumstances. I then immediately convened the masonic lodge, it being about four o'clock P. M. he then came into the lodge and charges of a similar nature were preferred against him. He admitted they were true, in the presence of about sixty in number. He arose and begged the privilege of speaking to the brethren; he acknowledged his wickedness; and begged for the brethren to forgive still longer, and he called God and angels to witness that he never would be guilty of the like crimes again—he would lay his hand on the Bible and swear that he would not be guilty of such crimes. He seemed to be very penitent and wept much; his penitence excited sympathy in the minds of the brethren, and they withdrew the charge for the time being, until he could be heard on other charges which had been preferred against him by members of the Pickaway Lodge, of Ohio, through the communications of the Grand Master, A. Jonas. After this we found him to be an expelled mason, in consequence of his rascally conduct from the Pickaway Lodge, in Ohio; the circumstances and documents were mentioned in the 14th No. of the Wasp, signed by George Miller, Master of Nauvoo Lodge, under dispensation, and reads as follows:

NOTICE.

To all whom it may concern, GREETING.—

Whereas John Cook Bennett, in the organization of the Nauvoo Lodge, under dispensation, palmed himself upon the fraternity as a regular Mason, in good standing; and satisfactory testimony having been produced before said Lodge, that he, said Bennett, was an expelled Mason, we therefore publish to all the Masonic world, the above facts, that he, the said Bennett, may not impose himself upon the fraternity of masons.

All Editors who are friendly to the fraternity of free and accepted ancient York Masons will please insert the above.

GEORGE MILLER,

Master of Nauvoo Lodge,
Under Dispensation.

Still after all this we found him guilty of similar crimes again, and it was found to our satisfaction that he was conspiring against the peace and safety of the citizens of this state—after learning these facts we exposed him to the public; he then immediately left the place abruptly; threatening to drink the hearts blood of many citizens of this place. Previous to this last disclosure, the band of fellowship was withdrawn from him, May 11th, 1842, by the first presidency, six days previous to the time he pretended to withdraw from the church, which you will see published in the Times and Seasons, June 15th, 1842, I was also present at the time when he gave this testimony before the City Council, as printed in the Times and Seasons, July 1st, 1842, on page 841 which reads as follows:

Dr. John C. Bennett, ex-Mayor, was then called upon by the Mayor to state if he knew aught against him; when Mr. Bennett replied: "I know what I am about, and the heads of the church know what they are about I expect. I have no difficulty with the heads of the church. I publicly avow that any one who has said that I have stated that General Joseph Smith has given me authority to hold illicit intercourse with women is a liar in the face of God, those who have said it are damned liars; they are infernal liars. He never, either in public or private, gave me any such authority or license, and any person who states it is a scoundrel and a liar. I have heard it said that I should become a second Avar by withdrawing from the church, and that I was at variance with the heads and should use an influence against them because I resigned the office of Mayor; this is false. I have no difficulty with the heads of the church, and I intend to continue with you, and hope the time may come when I may be restored to full confidence, and fellowship, and my former standing in the church; and that my conduct may be such as to warrant my restoration—and should the time ever come that I may have an opportunity to test my faith it will then be known whether I am a traitor or a true man."

Joseph Smith then asked: "Will you please state definitely whether you know any thing against my character either in public or private?"

Gen. Bennett answered: "I do not; in all my intercourse with Gen. Smith, in public and in private, he has been strictly virtuous."

Aldermen.
N. K. WHITNEY, JOHN TAYLOR,
HIRAM KIMBALL, BRIGHAM YOUNG,
ORSON SPENCER, JOHN P. GREEN,
GUST. HILLS, H. C. KIMBALL,
G. W. HARRIS, W. WOODRUFF,
Councillors.
WILLARD RICHARDS
JAMES SLOAN Recorder.

May 19th 1842.

I know he was not under duress at the time for his testimony was given free and voluntarily, after requesting the privilege of the council to speak (which was granted him) on matters pertaining to the city ordinances, while speaking, or before he took his seat, he was requested by the Mayor of the city, Joseph Smith, to state to the council if he knew aught against him; and he replied according to the above.

I also know that he had no private intercourse with Joseph in the preparation room on the 17th day, as he stated in his letter or printed in the Sangamo Journal, for the lodge was convened on that day, and I had the keys of the doors in my possession from 7 o'clock A. M. until 6 o'clock P. M. and it was when the lodge called off for refreshment during recess, that I had the interview with him, at which time he wrote the affidavit and subscribed it in my presence, and I was with him during the whole time from his first coming to me, until he signed it and until the lodge convened again at 4 o'clock.

HYRUM SMITH.

Sworn to, and subscribed, before me July 23, 1842.

GEO. W. HARRIS,

Alderman of the city of Nauvoo.

AFFIDAVIT OF WM. LAW.

As John C. Bennett has become our open enemy, and is engaged in circulating falsehoods of the blackest character, I deem it duty to make the following statement of facts:

John C. Bennett states in the Sangamo Journal that the withdrawal of the band of fellowship by the First Presidency, and the Twelve, was after he had withdrawn from the church. I presume the notice of our withdrawal was not published till after he withdrew, but that does not prove his statement true, for I hereby testify that I signed the article in question several days before he withdrew. I believe it was on the evening of the 11th day of May, some four or five days afterwards I had some conversation with J. C. Bennett and intimated to him that such a thing was concluded upon, which intimation I presume led him to withdraw immediately. I told him we could not bear with his conduct any longer—that there were many witnesses against him, and that they stated that he gave Joseph Smith as authority for his illicit intercourse with females. J. C. Bennett declared to me before God that Joseph Smith had never taught him such doctrines, and that he never told any one that he (Joseph Smith) had taught any such things, and that any one who said so told base lies; nevertheless, he said he had done wrong, that he would not deny, but he would deny that he had used Joseph Smith's name to accomplish his designs on any one; stating that he had no need of that, for that he could succeed without telling them that Joseph approved such conduct.

These statements he made to me of his own free will, in a private conversation which we had on the subject; there was no compulsion or threats used on my part; we had always been on good terms, and I regretted exceedingly that he had taken such a course. He plead with me to intercede for him, assuring me that he would turn from his iniquity, and never would be guilty of such crimes again.—He said that if he were exposed it would break his mother's heart—that she was old, and if such things reached her ears it would bring her down with sorrow to the grave. I accordingly went to Joseph Smith and plead with him to spare Bennett from public exposure, on account of his mother. On many occasions I heard him acknowledge his guilt, and beg not to be destroyed in the eyes of the public, and that he would never act so again, "So help him God." From such promises, and oaths, I was induced to bear with him longer than I should have done.

On one occasion I heard him state before the city Council that Joseph Smith had never taught him any unrighteous principles, of any kind, and that if any one says that he ever said that Joseph taught such things they are base liars, or words to that effect. This statement he made voluntarily; he came into the council room about an hour after the council opened, and made the statement, not under duress, but of his own free will, as many witnesses can testify.

On a former occasion he came to me and told me that a friend of his was about to be tried by the High Council, for the crime of adultery, and that he feared his name would be brought into question.—He entreated me to go to the council and prevent his name from being brought forward, as, said he, "I am not on trial, and I do not want my mother to hear of these things, for she is a good woman."

I would further state that I do know from the amount of evidence which stands against J. C. Bennett, and from his own acknowledgements, that he is a most corrupt, base, and vile man; and that he has published many base falsehoods since we withdrew the band of fellowship from him.

About the time that John C. Bennett was brought before the Masonic Lodge he came to me and desired that I would go in company with B. Young, to Hyrum Smith, and entreat of him to spare him—that he wished not to be exposed—that he wanted to live as a private citizen, and would cease from all his folly, &c. I advised him to go to Texas, and when he returned, if he would behave well we would reinstate him. He said he had no means to take him to Texas, and still insisted on B. Young and myself to intercede for him.

WM. LAW.

Sworn to and subscribed before me a Justice of the Peace, within and for the county of Hancock, State of Illinois, July 20th 1842.

DANIEL H. WELLS.

STATE OF ILLINOIS.

COUNTY OF HANCOCK. } I hereby certify that on the 17th day of May last John C. Bennett subscribed and swore to the affidavit over my signature of that date, and published in the Wasp, after writing the same in my presence, in the office where I was employed in taking depositions of witnesses. The door of the room was open and free for all or any person to pass or repress. After signing and being qualified to the affidavit aforesaid, he requested to speak with me at the door; I followed him out—he told me some persons had been lying about him and showed me a writing granting him the privilege to withdraw from the church, and remarked that the matter was perfectly understood between him and the heads of the church; and that he had resigned the Mayor's office and should resign the office he held in the Legion, but as there was a court martial to be held in a few days Joseph Smith desired that he would wait until that was over.

I was in the City Council on the 19th day of May last—I there heard him say what has been published concerning the teachings of Joseph Smith, and of his own course. I afterwards met him in company with Col. Francis M. Higbee, he then stated that he was going to be the candidate, (meaning candidate for the Legislature) and Joseph and Hyrum Smith were going in for him; said "you know it will be better for me not to be bothered with Mayor's office, Legion, Mormon, or any thing else." During all this time if he was under duress, or fear, he must have had a good faculty for concealing it, for he was at liberty to go and come when and where he pleased, so far as I am capable of judging. I know that I saw him in different parts of the city, even after he had made these statements, transacting business as usual, and said he was going to complete some business pertaining to the Mayor's office; and I think did attend to work on the streets.

I was always personally friendly with him, after I became acquainted with him. I never heard him say any thing derogatory to the character of Joseph Smith, until after he had been exposed by said Smith, on the public stand in Nauvoo.

DANIEL H. WELLS.

July 22, A. D. 1842.

Sworn to and subscribed before me a Justice of the Peace, in and for the City of Nauvoo, in said county, this 22d day of July, 1842.

GUSTAVUS HILLS, (L. S.)

J. P. & Alderman.

The whole of these affidavits are given by gentlemen of the first respectability of unquestionable character and of known reputation and veracity, and can of course be relied upon and what light do they represent Bennett in, but that of a purged wretch, a useless vagabond and a mean, vasculating, unprincipled villain and a disgrace to human society, and if their testimonies and the testimony of the City Council cannot be relied upon, then indeed are we in a poor case;—corrupt, fallen, and dishonored.—But John C. Bennett is not the man to prove us so; we must have different testimony to his, and that of his partners in crime, to convict us of evil.

As John C. Bennett and the Sangamo Journal have called upon several persons, in this city, to come out and make disclosures, relative to the things about which they have been writing; they have responded to the call, and publish the following

CERTIFICATES.

MR. EDITOR—

Sir, From a perusal of the St. Louis papers, I find from an article signed J. C. Bennett, stating that all who are friends to Mr. Joseph Smith he considers his enemies. As a matter of course then, I must be one, for I am and have been for a long time the personal friend of Joseph Smith; and I will here say that I have never yet seen or known any thing against him that I should change my mind; It is true many reports have been and are put in circulation by his enemies for political or religious effect, that upon investigation are like the dew before the morning sun, vanish away, because there is no real substance in them.

Could Dr. Bennett expect any man acquainted with all the circumstances, and matters of fact which were developed both here and from abroad, respecting his conduct and character, previous to his leaving this place, for one moment to believe—I answer NO! he could not. And all his affidavits, that came from any person entitled to credit, (I say entitled to credit, because some there are who are not entitled to credit, as Dr. Bennett very well knows) are in amount nothing at all, when summed up, and render no person worthy of death or bonds.

F. M. Higbee's knowledge concerning the murder of a prisoner in Missouri, I am authorized to say, by F. M. Higbee that he knows of no such thing—that no prisoner was ever killed in Missouri, to the best of his knowledge. And I also bear the same testimony, that there never was any prisoner killed there, neither were we ever charged with any such thing, according to the best of my recollection.

ELIAS HIGBEE.

July 22, 1842.

This is to certify that I do not know of the murder of any prisoner in Missouri, as above alluded to. F. M. HIGBEE.

July 22, 1842.

As there seems to be some foolish notions that I have been engaged with J. C. Bennett, in the difficulties between him and some of the citizens of this place, I merely say in reply to such idle and vain reports that they are without foundation in truth.

SIDNEY RIGDON.

Nauvoo, July 25, 1842.

Inasmuch as J. C. Bennett has referred the people to me for testimony against Pres. Joseph Smith, I take this opportunity to state before the public that I know nothing derogatory to his character, either as a christian, or a moral man.

Mr. Bennett made use of my name without my knowledge or consent.

PAMELA M. MICHAEL.

Inasmuch as John C. Bennett has called upon me through the Sangamo Journal to come out and confirm the statements which he has made concerning Joseph Smith and others, I take this opportunity of saying to the public, that I know many of his statements to be false, and that I of the Gospel, or of virtue, or of the laws of God, or man, under any occasion either directly or indirectly, in word or deed, by Joseph Smith; and that he never knew the said Smith to countenance any improper conduct whatever, either in public or private; and that he never did teach to me in private that an illegal illicit intercourse with females was, under any circumstances, justifiable, and that I never knew him so to teach others.

JOHN C. BENNETT.

Sworn to, and subscribed, before me, this 17th day of May, 1842.

DANIEL H. WELLS,

Alderman.

During all this intercourse, I was present with him, and there was no threats used, nor harshness, every thing was as pacific as could be under existing circumstances. I then immediately convened the masonic lodge, it being about four o'clock P. M. he then came into the lodge and charges of a similar nature were preferred against him. He admitted they were true, in the presence of about sixty in number. He arose and begged the privilege of speaking to the brethren; he acknowledged his wickedness, and begged for the brethren to forgive still longer, and he called God and angels to witness that he never would be guilty of the like crimes again—he would lay his hand on the Bible and swear that he would not be guilty of such crimes. He seemed to be very penitent and wept much; his penitence excited sympathy in the minds of the brethren, and they withdrew the charge for the time being, until he could be heard on other charges which had been preferred against him by members of the Pickaway Lodge, of Ohio, through the communications of the Grand Master, A. Jonas. After this we found him to be an expelled mason, in consequence of his rascally conduct from the Pickaway Lodge, in Ohio; the circumstances and documents were mentioned in the 11th No. of the Wasp, signed by George Miller, Master of Nauvoo Lodge, under dispensation, and reads as follows:

NOTICE.

To all whom it may concern, GREETING.—

Whereas John Cook Bennett, in the organization of the Nauvoo Lodge, under dispensation, palmed himself upon the fraternity as a regular Mason, in good standing; and satisfactory testimony having been produced before said Lodge, that he, said Bennett, was an expelled Mason, we therefore punish to all the Masonic world, the above facts, that he, the said Bennett, may not impose himself upon the fraternity of Masons.

All Editors who are friendly to the fraternity of free and accepted ancient York Masons will please insert the above.

GEORGE MILLER,

Master of Nauvoo Lodge,
Under Dispensation.

Still after all this we found him guilty of similar crimes again, and it was found to our satisfaction that he was conspiring against the peace and safety of the citizens of this state—after learning these facts we exposed him to the public; he then immediately left the place abruptly; threatening to drink the hearts blood of many citizens of this place. Previous to this last disclosure, the hand of fellowship was withdrawn from him, May 11th, 1842, by the first presidency, six days previous to the time he pretended to withdraw from the church, which you will see published in the Times and Seasons, June 15th, 1842, I was also present at the time when he gave this testimony before the City Council, as printed in the Times and Seasons, July 1st, 1842, on page 841 which reads as follows:

Dr. John C. Bennett, ex-Mayor, was then called upon by the Mayor to state if he knew aught against him; when Mr. Bennett replied: "I know what I am about, and the heads of the church know what they are about I expect. I have no difficulty with the heads of the church. I publicly avow that any one who has said that I have stated that General Joseph Smith has given me authority to hold illicit intercourse with women is a liar in the face of God, those who have said it are damned liars; they are infernal liars. He never, either in public or private, gave me any such authority or license, and any person who states it is a scoundrel and a liar. I have heard it said that I should become a second Avarid by withdrawing from the church, and that I was at variance with the heads and should use an influence against them because I resigned the office of Mayor; this is false. I have no difficulty with the heads of the church, and I intend to continue with you, and hope the time may come when I may be restored to full confidence, and fellowship, and my former standing in the church; and that my conduct may be such as to warrant my restoration—and should the time ever come that I may have an opportunity to test my faith it will then be known whether I am a traitor or a true man."

Joseph Smith then asked: "Will you please state definitely whether you know any thing against my character either in public or private?"

Gen. Bennett answered: "I do not; in all my intercourse with Gen. Smith, in public and in private, he has been strictly virtuous."

Aldermen. WILSON LAW,
N. K. WHITNEY, JOHN TAYLOR,
HIRAM KIMBALL, BRIGHAM YOUNG,
ORSON SPENCER, JOHN P. GREEN,
GUST. HILLS, H. C. KIMBALL,
G. W. HARRIS, W. WOODRUFF,
Councillors. GEO. A. SMITH.
WILLARD RICHARDS

JAMES SLOAN Recorder.

May 19th 1842.

I know he was not under duress at the time for his testimony was given free and voluntarily, after requesting the privilege of the council to speak (which was granted him,) on matters pertaining to the city ordinances, while speaking, or before he took his seat, he was requested by the Mayor of the city, Joseph Smith, to state to the council if he knew aught against him; and he replied according to the above.

I also know that he had no private intercourse with Joseph in the preparation room on the 17th day, as he stated in his letter or printed in the Sangamo Journal, for the lodge was convened on that day, and I had the keys of the doors in my possession from 7 o'clock A. M. until 6 o'clock P. M. and it was when the lodge called off for refreshment during recess, that I had the interview with him, at which time he wrote the affidavit and subscribed it in my presence, and I was with him during the whole time from his first coming to me, until he signed it and until the lodge convened again at 4 o'clock.

HYRUM SMITH.

Sworn to, and subscribed, before me July 23, 1842.

GEO. W. HARRIS,

Alderman of the city of Nauvoo.

AFFIDAVIT OF WM. LAW.

As John C. Bennett has become our open enemy, and is engaged in circulating falsehoods of the blackest character, I deem it duty to make the following statement of facts:

John C. Bennett states in the Sangamo Journal that the withdrawal of the hand of fellowship by the First Presidency, and the Twelve, was after he had withdrawn from the church. I presume the notice of our withdrawal was not published till after he withdrew, but that does not prove his statement true, for I hereby testify that I signed the article in question several days before he withdrew. I believe it was on the evening of the 11th day of May, some four or five days afterwards I had some conversation with J. C. Bennett and intimated to him that such a thing was concluded upon, which intimation I presume led him to withdraw immediately. I told him we could not bear with his conduct any longer—that there were many witnesses against him, and that they stated that he gave Joseph Smith as authority for his illicit intercourse with females. J. C. Bennett declared to me before God that Joseph Smith had never taught him such doctrines, and that he never told any one that he (Joseph Smith) had taught any such things, and that any one who said so told base lies; nevertheless, he said he had done wrong, that he would not deny, but he would deny that he had used Joseph Smith's name to accomplish his designs on any one; stating that he had no need of that, for that he could succeed without telling them that Joseph approved such conduct.

These statements he made to me of his own free will, in a private conversation which we had on the subject; there was no compulsion or threats used on my part; we had always been on good terms, and I regretted exceedingly that he had taken such a course. He pleaded with me to intercede for him, assuring me that he would turn from his iniquity, and never would be guilty of such crimes again.—He said that if he were exposed it would break his mother's heart—that she was old, and if such things reached her ears it would bring her down with sorrow to the grave. I accordingly went to Joseph Smith and plead with him to spare Bennett from public exposure, on account of his mother. On many occasions I heard him acknowledge his guilt, and beg not to be destroyed in the eyes of the public, and that he would never act so again, "So help him God." From such promises, and oaths, I was induced to bear with him longer than I should have done.

On one occasion I heard him state before the city Council that Joseph Smith had never taught him any unrighteous principles, of any kind, and that if any one says that he ever said that Joseph taught such things, they are base liars, or words to that effect. This statement he made voluntarily; he came into the council room about an hour after the council opened, and made the statement, not under duress, but of his own free will, as many witnesses can testify.

On a former occasion he came to me and told me that a friend of his was about to be tried by the High Council, for the crime of adultery, and that he feared his name would be brought into question.—He entreated me to go to the council and prevent his name from being brought forward, as, said he, "I am not on trial, and I do not want my mother to hear of these things, for she is a good woman."

I would further state "that I do know from the amount of evidence which stands against J. C. Bennett, and from his own acknowledgements, that he is a most corrupt, base, and vile man; and that he has published many base falsehoods since we withdrew the hand of fellowship from him."

About the time that John C. Bennett was brought before the Masonic Lodge he came to me and desired that I would go in company with B. Young to Hyrum Smith, and entreat of him to spare him—that he wished not to be exposed—that he wanted to live as a private citizen, and would cease from all his folly, &c. I advised him to go to Texas, and when he returned, if he would behave well we would reinstate him. He said he had no means to take him to Texas, and still insisted on B. Young and myself to intercede for him.

WM. LAW.

Sworn to, and subscribed before me a Justice of the Peace, within and for the county of Hancock, State of Illinois, July 20th 1842.

DANIEL H. WELLS.

STATE OF ILLINOIS,)

COUNTY OF HANCOCK.) I hereby certify that on the 17th day of May last John C. Bennett subscribed and swore to the affidavit over my signature of that date, and published in the Wasp, after writing the same in my presence, in the office where I was employed in taking depositions of witnesses. The door of the room was open and free for all or any person to pass or re-pass. After signing and being qualified to the affidavit aforesaid, he requested to speak with me at the door; I followed him out—he told me some persons had been lying about him and showed me a writing granting him the privilege to withdraw from the church, and remarked that the matter was perfectly understood between him and the heads of the church; and that he had resigned the Mayor's office and should resign the office he held in the Legion, but as there was a court martial to be held in a few days Joseph Smith desired that he would wait until that was over.

I was in the City Council on the 19th day of May last—I there heard him say what has been published concerning the teachings of Joseph Smith, and of his own course. I afterwards met him in company with Col. Francis M. Higbee, he then stated that he was going to be the candidate, (meaning candidate for the Legislature)

and Joseph and Hyrum Smith were going in for him; said "you know it will be better for me not to be bothered with Mayor's office, Legion, Mormon, or any thing else." During all this time if he was under duress or fear, he must have had a good faculty for concealing it, for he was at liberty to go, and come when and where he pleased, so far as I am capable of judging. I know that I saw him in different parts of the city, even after he had made these statements, transacting business as usual, and said he was going to complete some business pertaining to the Mayor's office; and I think did attend to work on the streets.

I was always personally friendly with him, after I became acquainted with him. I never heard him say any thing derogatory to the character of Joseph Smith, until after he had been exposed by said Smith, on the public stand in Nauvoo.

DANIEL H. WELLS.

July 22, A. D. 1842.

Sworn to and subscribed before me a Justice of the Peace, in and for the City of Nauvoo, in said county, this 22d day of July, 1842.

GUSTAVUS HILLS, (L. S.)

J. P. & Alderman.

The whole of these affidavits are given by gentlemen of the first respectability of unquestionable character and of known reputation and veracity, and can of course be relied upon; and what light do they represent Bennett in, but that of a perjured wretch, a useless vagabond and a mean, vascillating, unprincipled villain and a disgrace to human society, and if their testimonies and the testimony of the City Council cannot be relied upon, then indeed are we in a poor case;—corrupt, fallen, and dishonored.—But John C. Bennett is not the man to prove us so; we must have different testimony to his, and that of his partners in crime, to convict us of evil.

As John C. Bennett and the Sangamo Journal have called upon several persons in this city, to come out and make disclosures, relative to the things about which they have been writing; they have responded to the call, and publish the following

CERTIFICATES.

Mr. Editor—

Sir, From a perusal of the St. Louis papers, I find from an article signed J. C. Bennett, stating that all who are friends to Mr. Joseph Smith he considers his enemies. As a matter of course then, I must be one, for I am and have been for a long time the personal friend of Joseph Smith; and I will here say that I have never yet seen or known any thing against him that I should change my mind; It is true many reports have been and are put in circulation by his enemies for political or religious effect, that upon investigation are like the dew before the morning sun, vanish away, because there is no real substance in them.

Could Dr. Bennett expect any man acquainted with all the circumstances, and matters of fact which were developed both here and from abroad, respecting his conduct and character, previous to his leaving this place, for one moment to believe him—I answer NO! he could not. And all his affidavits, that came from any person entitled to credit, (I say entitled to credit, because some there are who are not entitled to credit, as Dr. Bennett very well knows) are in amount nothing at all, when summed up, and render no person worthy of death or bonds.

F. M. Higbee's knowledge concerning the murder of a prisoner in Missouri, I am authorized to say, by F. M. Higbee that he knows of no such thing—that no prisoner was ever killed in Missouri, to the best of his knowledge. And I also bear the same testimony, that there never was any prisoner killed there, neither were we ever charged with any such thing, according to the best of my recollection.

ELIAS HIGBEE.

July 22, 1842.

This is to certify that I do not know of the murder of any prisoner in Missouri, as above alluded to. F. M. HIGBEE.

July 22, 1842.

As there seems to be some foolish notions that I have been engaged with J. C. Bennett, in the difficulties between him and some of the citizens of this place, I merely say in reply to such idle and vain reports that they are without foundation in truth.

SIDNEY RIGDON.

Nauvoo, July 25, 1842.

Inasmuch as J. C. Bennett has referred the people to me for testimony against Pius Joseph Smith, I take this opportunity to state before the public that I know nothing derogatory to his character, either as a Christian, or a moral man.

Mr. Bennett made use of my name without my knowledge or consent.

PAMELA M. MICHAEL.

Inasmuch as John C. Bennett has called upon me through the Sangamo Journal to come out and confirm the statements which he has made concerning Joseph Smith and others, I take this opportunity of saying to the public, that I know many of his statements to be false, and that I believe them all to be the offspring of a base and corrupt heart, and without the least shadow of truth, and further that he has used my name without my permission. I believe him to be a vile and wicked adulterous man, who pays no regard to the principles of truth or righteousness, and is unworthy the confidence of a just community. I would further state that I know of no Order in the Church which admits of a plurality of wives, and do not believe that Joseph Smith ever taught such a doctrine, and further, that my faith in the doctrines of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and in Joseph Smith, is unshaken.

WILLIAM MARKS.

Nauvoo, July 26, 1842.

Mr. Bennett seems to place very much confidence in the veracity integrity and honor of the above individuals, we hope that he will now believe their testimony.

THE SANGAMO JOURNAL.

There is so much self importance in some men, that you cannot make them hear or understand, unless you hail them with a Speaking Trumpet. They seem destitute of the idea that any body but themselves, are entitled to a portion of the globe. The Sangamo Journal says that Mormons ought to be disfranchised, and their charters taken from them. By cutting out and detaching sentences, and disorganising ideas, and disjoining paragraphs, and putting his own construction and interpretations upon them [patriotic Editor makes quite a flourish of trumpets.] As he seems to possess such entire confidence in Doctor Bennett's statements, though the Doctor has been proven guilty of perjury, we feel in duty bound to lay before the public a few extracts from his (Bennett's) pen, for the consideration of the public.

We take it for granted that every one knows the Journal's statement, and proceed with the extracts as follows:

"The foregoing article shows so little regard for truth, and the reasoning is so palpably fallacious, that I consider it useless to multiply many words on this subject, but, as the object and political designs of the writer are so apparent, rent, and the times so portentous, I cannot refrain from a duty which I owe both to myself, and the public.

1st. The 'NAUVOO LEGION.' This military body possesses, in the County of Hancock, the same corporate powers as appertain to the 'INVINCIBLE DRAGOONS OF THE 2ND DIVISION OF ILLINOIS MILITIA,' in the counties of White, Edwards and Wabash, and no others whatever. I wrote, and procured, the charters for both corporations—they are both alike. Why does not Mr. Francis attack the Dragoons as well as the Legion? Simply because it would afford him no political capital. They are the two best military bodies in the State, and are dissimilar only in point of numbers. Both charters are perpetual and in both corporations the COURT MARTIAL, composed of the commissioned officers, constitutes the 'law-making power' so much dreaded by Mr. Francis. The 'LOUISIANA LEGION,' the 'LOUISIANA LEGION,' and the 'ALBANY BURGESS' CORPS,' are the same kind of corporations, and are in Kentucky, Louisiana, and New York, what the 'INVINCIBLE DRAGOONS,' and the 'NAUVOO LEGION,' are to Illinois; and nothing more. They are all effective military forces, incorporated for the purpose of more perfect discipline; and who that loves his country would object to that? None.

The 'law-making power,' of the Nauvoo Legion is, to Mr. Francis, like the Upas tree of death—he is instantly seized with Hydrophobia, and the spirit of the demoniac shows itself in every paragraph. Who ever heard of a corporation without a law making power? No one on earth, and none ever contemplated such an anomaly—it would be like a body devoid of the principle of vivification, inoperative and useless.

The 'CITY OF NAUVOO.' This charter I likewise, wrote, and procured, without any 'CORRUPT BARGAIN,' or nefarious PLOT AND LEAGUE,' as charged by Mr. Francis—neither did 'Joe Smith, the Mormon Prophet,' as he calls him, ever see, or converse with, the leaders of either party on this subject, prior to the granting of the charters now under consideration: and I am bold to say that this city possesses no unusual or extraordinary powers—certainly none which are not possessed in common by Chicago, Springfield, Quincy, or any other city. Have not all cities the use of a county or city jail? Certainly they have and Mr. Francis knows it as well as any other man—for if he is so ignorant as that he certainly deserves expiation. Neither is the Mayor the 'final judge,' as Mr. Francis says, for any person may appeal from the decision of the Mayor or any Alderman to the Municipal Court, and from the Municipal to the Circuit Court of Hancock County, and from the Circuit to the Supreme Court of the State of Illinois. So all is safe yet Mr. Francis. If the City Council of Nauvoo have passed any illegal ordinances, let the party aggrieved apply to the judiciary for redress, and have the ordinances set aside—there would be no difficulty in such a case whatever. Come Mr. Francis, if you are a law abiding man, redress the grievances by due course of law, and there will be no barrier interposed. But this I presume, would not answer your party purposes in the coming election. I repeat it again—NAUVOO POSSESSES NO UNUSUAL POWERS WHATEVER, and I defy the proof to the contrary.

The 'CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS,' or MORMONS. This body is incorporated under the general act, and not by special grant, and possesses no power or privilege but what is common to all other churches in Illinois.

The 'UNIVERSITY OF THE CITY OF NAUVOO.' This corporation is vested with such plenary powers as appertain to any other college or university in Illinois, and such only. Read Mr. Francis, and 'Let him that readeth, understand.'

GENERAL JOSEPH SMITH. As to the election of this gentleman, I alone am responsible. If there is any moral turpitude attached to it, let it be placed upon my head. I organized the military forces of this city, and the circumjacent country, like a ROMAN LEGION—a Legion with Cohorts—and Joseph Smith was duly elected Lieutenant General, which every military man knows is a reviewing, and not a commanding officer. George Washington, as Major General, was a fighting and commanding officer; but as Lieutenant General, he was the chief reviewing officer: so of all others. The peculiar organization of the Nauvoo Legion required that General Smith should be placed in his present situation as the one most appropriate. In relation to his commission there was no option with the Executive—he was bound to issue on the authenticated return of the election: and if General Smith commands all the armies of the United States by rank, (according to Mr. Francis,) so mote it be; the Legion will then take the right of the forces, and Illinois will form No. 1, of the General Grand Encampment.

The 4th section of an act for the organization and government of the Militia of this state,—approved March 2d, 1833, and now in force, reads as follows—

'Sec. 4. That there shall be one Adjutant General, Quarter Master General, and Pay Master General, to be appointed by the Commander in-Chief, to rank respectively as Colonels of Cavalry, etc. etc. So it will be seen that there was not even the 'show' of incompatibility between any two commissions. I would advise Mr. Francis to study military law before he again speaks of the incompatibility of a staff office, with an office in the line. Any military man giving such an opinion should be cashiered for incompetency.

As Quarter Master General of the State of Illinois, I issued orders to the Warden of the Penitentiary, who had the custody of the public arms, directing as equitable a distribution as possible, both of those furnished on my designation and requisition, and that of General Pearce, my predecessor; neither did I at any time order an undue proportion to the Nauvoo Legion, but positively refused to supply the full draft for which they had given bonds to the Executive, on the grounds that other parts of the state had older claims. These claims I ordered to be supplied in order of date, having at the same time a due regard to the limited supply for the General Government. Illinois should have drawn for about eighty thousand troops, (which would have supplied all the demands of the State,) whereas, from official neglect, she has drawn for only about thirty thousand. Let this be regulated by the appropriate departments, military and semi-military, and there will be no lack of public arms—no complaining that a small draft had swallowed them up—and no feeling on this subject. There is an abundant supply of arms for the State if the proper legal steps are taken to procure them; and the public weal requires that every independent company in the State should be furnished with its full quota; and this I hope that Col. Cooley, the successor of Col. Bassett, will consummate.

As a general officer of the line, I have always been a strict disciplinarian, and I always shall be, knowing as I do that no military force can be made respectable or available, either in peace or war, without strict discipline, and due subordination. If it is necessary that a military organization should be kept up at all, it should be effective, well drilled, and always ready for the public service. Such, by indefatigable exertions, is the Nauvoo Legion, the division of my special command as Major General. Illinois should be proud of such a corps; they would do honor in the tented field, and bear upon the warrior's shield—victory, liberty and LAW.

SIDNEY H. LITTLE, Esq. This gentleman was not elected by, or in any way dependent on the Mormons. He was a Senator before the Mormons located in Hancock County, and utterly declined a re-election. It is, then, to say the least of it, ungentlemanly, and cruel, to impugn his motives. He viewed the charters as every other liberal statesman did before their eyes were jaundiced by the rancor and fury of party strife.

I now close this article by stating that the charters under consideration were not passed on any grounds, for the vote was unanimous in the Senate, in their favor, and there were only fifteen dissenting in the House of Representatives: Governor Duncan's friends voting for their passage in both Houses, and in the Council of Revision.

I have done for the present—will Mr. Francis publish?

Yours, Respectfully,

JOHN C. BENNETT.

Nauvoo, Ill., June 14, 1842.

THE SANGAMO JOURNAL, AND BENNETT.

Invasion! Treason! Ruin!!! Conspiracy!!!! Blood!!!! Murder!!!! is booming through the columns of the Sangamo Journal, like "The sound of the tempest when navies are stranded;

"Or roar of the whirlwind when forests are landed."

The Mormons have already possessed themselves of this state, and rule it—and they will soon govern the United States. Ye gods have mercy on us, for there are about thirty thousand of them, and the states must submit; no two ways about it; no alternative, we must all be Mormons or perish, unless we slope for Texas. To arms! to arms! we shall be ruined! overthrown! slung out! our cities and nation will be taken away; we shall be greased and swallowed! gaged down at a single gulph, without time to kick; seventeen millions swept off by thirty thousand! 'Tis coming to pass: "one shall chase a thousand and two put ten thousand to flight." O ye frogs of Egypt—the whole country is overrun, and we have only found it out about a week ago!

Up! up! let us beard the lion in his den, and chain the monster in his cage! O! O! O! come! come! come! Missouri help!

Ye brave of Illinois, draw near;—

Ye Anti-Mormons rush the rear.

'Tis true they have not obtained any privilege but what was granted to them by the Legislature, but we are fearful they will; they have not sent a member to the House of Representatives, or to the Senate, but we are afraid they will. They have broken no law; nor violated the constitution of the State, or of the United States, but we fear they will;—and now, ye salt of Sangamo, Illinois, Missouri and elsewhere, let us kill them before they have a chance. Blow the bugle in the wilderness, sound an alarm in the citils, to arms! to arms!

This won't do Mr. Editor, why not come out and tell the truth; you have heretofore stated that "the Mormons were a good and a virtuous people; that the State would be greatly benefited by the rapid increase of so many and so intelligent a people," now, sir, what has made the change? Have the Mormons become lazy? are they vicious? No! but when you had that "good streak" for the Latter Day Saints, you expected a quid pro quo in votes. Do you think the Mormons any worse than they were in 1840, when you could hardly say enough in their praise? no; but the August election is near, and Gov. Duncan is determined to ride into power on the credit of the Mormons—volens nolens.

Duncan wishes to speculate and make political capital out of the Mormons, and Doctor Bennett is the stock jobber, the singed cat's paw. But glory to the virtue and intelligence of the people, so base and degraded a vagabond cannot escape the merited contempt he deserves. His letters and affidavits, parading along the columns of the Journal, remind one of Bonaparte's campaign to Russia: fragments of the army are seen fleeing in every direction, to escape an 'ocean of flame,' and a Russian winter: poverty, famine, and wretchedness—and so it must be with him. An imposter in masonry; a seducer: a teacher of murder in embryo, and a perjured villain! O wretched man that he is! Who believes him? No body; no; if there be any vain and vile enough to love the treason, they despise the traitor! 'You cannot catch old birds with chaff,' though you may flare up with all the circumstance and gravity of an honest man, yet it is possible that the 'sober second thought of the people' may be efficient enough to teach you 'that the race is not to the swift, nor the battle to the strong,' but a wise man will hear both sides and then judge.

On the 18th of last June, your quondam friend Dr. Bennett, who henceforth may be dubbed the Knight of Phibes, and travel as the Don Quixote of the west, brandished his sword at you with great skill,—but Oh! how loving, and how benevolent! you can now give him the right hand of fellowship, murder and treason not excepted; cover his spotted character with the mantle of charity, and lend him 'a pair of goggles, to cover his blood-shot eyes, that he may go to Missouri for repentance! Oh! Mr. Francis! Mr. Francis! blessed is the peace-maker.

"TALL OAKS FROM LITTLE ACORNS GROW."

Doctor Bennett can tell some truth; he says he had Joseph Smith appointed Lieut. Gen. for a play thing, because he did not know the difference between a Corporal or a General, and so one ral was just as good as another for him.

We think the general will show by his obedience, that he is an apt scholar, and will profit from experience in what he has learnt from the nimble practising Doctor.

There is a little old Paul in Joe,—when he was a child he acted as a child, but now as a man he will act as a man, and teach the Machiavelian Doctor, that pets for play things may turn to prophets with power.

In regard to all these matters, if Bennett alone was concerned we should have considered him altogether beneath our notice, and would have treated his communications with silent contempt; his abominable transactions are too well known in this city for him to obtain any credence whatever; but as there are many political demagogues who have heralded these things forth to the world for political effect in the coming election, we therefore deem it a duty that we owe to ourselves, and to the public, to disabuse the public mind, and state matters of fact as they are in the above disclosures.

If an ordinance had not been passed in this city prohibiting brothels and disorderly houses, and assessing a fine upon the frequenters of such places; perhaps the Doctor and some of his satellites might have considered this to be a paradise yet; and the 'Zion of God;' we noticed that he squirmed very much at its passage, but as he was always so virtuous a man of course it would not do for him to oppose it;—we must confess that we have no fellowship with such unfruitful works of darkness: and it is an opposition to this, and other acts of iniquity, that has brought out their "wonderful disclosures."—In regard to all his witnesses, they are all exploded; but one or two of known ill fame; of course their proceedings or testimony are of no amount against us, nor would it be of any use if in our favor.

The Doctor has called upon many, as is fully proven, without authority, as their affidavits, and testimony demonstrate. As he has failed in this, we would respond to the call of Mr. Bennett, and the Sangamo Journal, for all men to come forward and testify to all that they know; we shrink not from investigation into all our acts, public or private, and are prepared to substantiate truths, and to rebut falsehoods. Delicacy has prevented us from publishing much testimony that has come before us, but if necessity requires, of course it must come out.

And in regard to the proceedings of the Sangamo Journal, we know that the editor of that paper looks upon Bennett as a villain; his own publications show this; and he has condescended to act the hypocrite, and make a political cat's-paw of him, in the present crisis. "Oh shame where is thy blush?"

For the Wasp.

TO THE INDEPENDENT VOTERS OF HANCOCK.

FELLOW CITIZENS:—

Our names having been announced in the Wasp, as candidates for the House of Representatives, permit us to say to you gentlemen, that we decline the honor of the nominations so kindly tendered us by some of our democratic friends, always willing to serve the cause of equal rights. The democratic ticket being full, Mr. Owen and Mr. Smith being the candidates for the House of Representatives, they are democrats good and true, in their hands the people's rights will be safe. It is to the Democratic Standard we call on our friends to rally

J. B. BACKENSTOS.

Carthage.

DAVID GREENLIEF.

St. Marys.

believe them all to be the offspring of a base and corrupt heart, and without the least shadow of truth, and further that he has used my name without my permission. I believe him to be a vile and wicked adulterous man, who pays no regard to the principles of truth or righteousness, and is unworthy the confidence of a just community. I would further state that I know of no Order in the Church which admits of a plurality of wives, and do not believe that Joseph Smith ever taught such a doctrine, and further, that my faith in the doctrines of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and in Joseph Smith, is unshaken.

WILLIAM MARKS.

Nauvoo, July 26, 1842.

Mr. Bennett seems to place very much confidence in the veracity integrity and honor of the above individuals, we hope that he will now believe their testimony.

THE SANGAMO JOURNAL.

There is so much self importance in some men, that you cannot make them hear or understand, unless you hail them with a Speaking Trumpet. They seem destitute of the idea that any body but themselves, are entitled to a portion of the globe. The Sangamo Journal says that Mormons ought to be disfranchised, and their charters taken from them. By cutting out and detaching sentences, and organising ideas, and disjoining paragraphs, and putting his own construction and interpretations upon them patrician Editor makes quite a flourish of trumpets. As he seems to possess such entire confidence in Doctor Bennett's statements, though the Doctor has been proven guilty of perjury, we feel in duty bound to lay before the public a few extracts from his (Bennett's) pen, for the consideration of the public.

We take it for granted that every one knows the Journal's statement, and proceed with the extracts as follows:

"The foregoing article shows so little regard for truth, and the reasoning is so palpably fallacious, that I consider it useless to multiply many words on this subject, but, as the object and political designs of the writer are so apparent, rent, and the times so portentous, I cannot refrain from a duty which I owe both to myself, and the public.

1st. The 'NAUVOO LEGION.' This military body possesses, in the County of Hancock, the same corporate powers as appertain to the 'INVISIBLE DRAGOONS OF THE 2ND DIVISION OF ILLINOIS MILITIA,' in the counties of White, Edwards and Wabash, and no others whatever. I wrote, and procured, the charters for both corporations—they are both alike. Why does not Mr. Francis attack the Dragoons as well as the Legion? Simply because it would afford him no political capital. They are the two best military bodies in the State, and are dissimilar only in point of numbers. Both charters are perpetual and in both corporations the COURT MARTIAL, composed of the commissioned officers, constitutes the 'law-making power,' so much dreaded by Mr. Francis. The 'LOUISIANA LEGION,' and the 'ALBANY BURGESS' CORPS,' are the same kind of corporations, and are to Kentucky, Louisiana, and New York, what the INVISIBLE DRAGOONS are to Illinois; and nothing more. They are all effective military forces, incorporated for the purpose of more perfect discipline; and who that loves his country would object to that? None. No, not one! But the Court Martial, the 'law-making power,' of the Nauvoo Legion is, to Mr. Francis, like the 'Upas tree of death—he is instantly seized with Hydrophobia, and the spirit of the demoniac shows itself in every paragraph. Who ever heard of a corporation without a 'law making power? No one on earth, and none ever contemplated such an anomaly—it would be like a body devoid of the principle of vivification, inoperative and useless.

The 'CITY OF NAUVOO.' This charter I likewise, wrote, and procured, without any 'CORRUPT BARGAIN,' or 'NEFARIOUS PLOT AND LEAGUE,' as charged by Mr. Francis—neither did 'Joe Smith, the Mormon Prophet,' as he calls him, ever see, or converse with, the leaders of either party on this subject, prior to the granting of the charters now under consideration: and I am bold to say that this city possesses no unusual or extraordinary powers—certainly none which are not possessed in common by Chicago, Springfield, Quincy, or any other city. Have not all cities the use of a county or city jail? Certainly they have and Mr. Francis knows it as well as any other man—for if he is so ignorant as that he certainly deserves expiation. Neither is the Mayor the 'final judge,' as Mr. Francis says, for any person may appeal from the decision of the Mayor or any Alderman to the Municipal Court, and from the Municipal to the Circuit Court of Hancock County, and from the Circuit to the Supreme Court of the State of Illinois. So all is safe yet Mr. Francis. If the City Council of Nauvoo have passed any illegal ordinances, let the party aggrieved apply to the judiciary for redress, and have the ordinances set aside—there would be no difficulty in such a case whatever. Come Mr. Francis, if you are a law abiding man, redress the grievances by due course of law, and there will be no barrier interposed. But this I presume, would not answer your party purposes in the coming election. I repeat it again—NAUVOO POSSESSES NO UNUSUAL POWERS WHATEVER, and I defy the proof to the contrary.

The 'CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS,' or Mormons. This body is incorporated under the general act, and not by special grant, and possesses no power or privilege but what is common to all other churches in Illinois.

The 'UNIVERSITY OF THE CITY OF NAUVOO.' This corporation is vested with such plenary powers as appertain to any other college or university in Illinois, and such only. Read Mr. Francis, and 'Let him that readeth, understand.

GENERAL JOSEPH SMITH. As to the election of this gentleman, I alone am responsible. If there is any moral turpitude attached to it, let it be placed upon my head. I organized the military forces of this city; and the circumjacent country, like a Roman Legion—a Legion with Cohorts—and Joseph Smith was duly elected Lieutenant General, which every military man knows is a reviewing, and not a commanding officer. George Washington, as Major General, was a fighting and commanding officer; but as Lieutenant General, he was the chief reviewing officer: so of all others. The peculiar organization of the Nauvoo Legion required that General Smith should be placed in his present situation as the one most appropriate. In relation to his commission there was no option with the Executive—he was bound to issue on the authenticated return of the election; and if General Smith commands all the armies of the United States by rank, (according to Mr. Francis,) so mote it be; the Legion will then take the right of the forces; and Illinois will form No. 1, of the General Grand Encampment.

The 4th section of an act for the organization and government of the Militia of this state, approved March 2d, 1833, and now in force, reads as follows—

'Sec. 4. That there shall be one Adjutant General, Quarter Master General, and Pay Master General, to be appointed by the Commander in-Chief, to rank respectively as Colonels of Cavalry, etc. etc. So it will be seen that there was not even the 'show' of incompatibility between my two commissions. I would advise Mr. Francis to study military law before he again speaks of the incompatibility of a staff office, with an office in the line. Any military man giving such an opinion should be cashiered for incompetency.

As Quarter Master General of the State of Illinois, I issued orders to the Warden of the Penitentiary, who had the custody of the public arms, directing an equitable distribution as possible, both of those furnished on my designation and requisition, and that of General Pearce, my predecessor; neither did I at any time order an undue proportion to the Nauvoo Legion, but positively refused to supply the full draft for which they had given bonds to the Executive, on the grounds that other parts of the state had elder claims. These claims I ordered to be supplied in order of date, having at the same time a due regard to the limited supply for the General Government. Illinois should have drawn for about eighty thousand troops, (which would have supplied all the demands of the State,) whereas, from official neglect, she has drawn for only about thirty thousand. Let this be regulated by the appropriate departments, military and semi-military, and there will be no lack of public arms—no complaining that a small draft had swallowed them up—and no feeling on this subject. There is an abundant supply of arms for the State if the proper legal steps are taken to procure them; and the public weal requires that every independent company in the State should be furnished with its full quota; and this I hope that Col. Cooley, the successor of Col. Bassett, will consummate.

As a general officer of the line, I have always been a strict disciplinarian; and I always shall be, knowing as I do that no military force can be made respectable or available, either in peace or war, without strict discipline, and due subordination. If it is necessary that a military organization should be kept up at all, it should be effective, well drilled, and always ready for the public service. Such, by indefatigable exertions, is the Nauvoo Legion, the division of my special command as Major General. Illinois should be proud of such a corps: they would do honor in the tented field, and bear upon the warrior's shield—victory, liberty and LAW.

SIDNEY H. LITTLE, Esq. This gentleman was not elected by, or in any way dependent on the Mormons. He was a Senator before the Mormons located in Hancock County, and utterly declined a re-election. It is, then, to say the least of it, ungentlemanly, and cruel, to impugn his motives. He viewed the charters as every other liberal statesman did before their eyes were jaundiced by the rancor and fury of party strife.

I now close this article by stating that the charters under consideration were not passed on party grounds, for the vote was unanimous in the Senate, in their favor, and there were only fifteen dissenting in the House of Representatives: Governor Duncan's friends voting for their passage in both Houses, and in the Council of Revision.

I have done for the present—will Mr. Francis publish?

Yours, Respectfully,

JOHN C. BENNETT.

Nauvoo, Ill., June 14, 1842.

THE SANGAMO JOURNAL, AND BENNETT.

Invasion! Treason!! Ruin!!! Conspiracy!!!! Blood!!!! Murder!!!! is booming through the columns of the Sangamo Journal, like

"The sound of the tempest when navies are stranded;

"Or roar of the whirlwind when forests are landed."

The Mormons have already possessed themselves of this state, and rule it—and they will soon govern the United States. Ye gods have mercy on us, for there are about thirty thousand of them, and the states must submit; no two ways about it; no alternative, we must all be Mormons or perish, unless we slope for Texas. To arms! to arms! we shall be ruined! overthrown! slung out! our cities and nation will be taken away; we shall be greased and swallowed! gaged down at a single gulph, without time to kick; seventeen millions swept off by thirty thousand! His coming to pass: "one shall chase a thousand and two put ten thousand to flight." O ye frogs of Egypt—the whole country is overrun, and we have only found it out about a week ago!

Up! up! let us beard the lion in his den, and chain the monster in his cage! O! O! O! come! come! come! Missouri help!

Ye brave of Illinois, draw near;—

Ye Anti-Mormons rush the rear.

'Tis true they have not obtained any privilege but what was granted to them by the Legislature, but we are fearful they will; they have not sent a member to the House of Representatives, or to the Senate, but we are afraid they will. They have broken no law; nor violated the constitution of the State, or of the United States, but we fear they will;—and now, ye salt of Sangamo, Illinois, Missouri and elsewhere, let us kill them before they have a chance. Blow the bugle in the wilderness, sound an alarm in the cities, to arms! to arms!

This wont do Mr. Editor, why not come out and tell the truth, you have stated that "the Mormons were a good and a virtuous people; that the State would be greatly benefited by the rapid increase of so virtuous and intelligent, and enterprising people," now, sir, what has made the change? Have the Mormons become lazy? are they vicious? No! but when you had that "good streak" for the Latter Day Saints, you expected a quid pro quo in votes. Do you think the Mormons any worse than they were in 1840, when you could hardly say enough in their praise? no; but the August election is near, and Gov. Duncan is determined to ride into power on the credit of the Mormons—volens volens.

Duncan wishes to speculate and make political capital out of the Mormons, and Doctor Bennett is the stock jobber, the singed cat's paw. But glory to the virtue and intelligence of the people, so base and degraded a vagabond cannot escape the merited contempt he deserves. His letters and affidavits parading along the columns of the Journal, remind one of Bonaparte's campaign to Russia: fragments of the army are seen fleeing in every direction, to escape an 'ocean of flame,' and a Russian winter: poverty, famine, and wretchedness—and so it must be with him. An imposter in masonry; a seducer; a teacher of murder in embryo, and a perjured villain! O wretched man that he is! Who believes him? No body: no; if there be any vain and vile enough to love the treason, they despise the traitor! 'You cannot catch old birds with chaff,' though you may flare up with all the circumstance and gravity of an honest man, yet it is possible that the 'sober second thought of the people' may be efficient enough to teach you 'that the race is not to the swift, nor the battle to the strong,' but a wise man will hear both sides and then judge.

On the 18th of last June, your quondam friend Dr. Bennett, who henceforth may be dubbed the Knight of Philtres, and travel, as the Don Quixote of the west, brandished his sword at you with great skill,—but Oh! how loving, and how benevolent! you can now give him the right hand of fellowship, murder and treason not excepted; cover his spotted character with the mantle of charity; and lend him a pair of goggles, to cover his blood-shot eyes, that he may go to Missouri for repentance! Oh! Mr. Francis! Mr. Francis! blessed is the peace maker.

"TALL OAKS FROM LITTLE ACORNS GROW."

Doctor Bennett can tell some truth; he says he had Joseph Smith appointed Lieut. Gen. for a play thing, because he did not know the difference between a Corporal or a General, and so one ral was just as good as another for him.

We think the general will show by his obedience, that he is an apt scholar, and will profit from experience in what he has learnt from the noble practicing Doctor.

There is a little old Paul in Joe,—when he was a child he acted as a child, but now as a man he will act as a man, and teach the Machiavelian Doctor, that pets for play things may turn to prophets with power.

In regard to all these matters, if Bennett alone was concerned we should have considered him altogether beneath our notice, and would have treated his communications with silent contempt; his abominable transactions are too well known in this city for him to obtain any credence whatever; but as there are many political demagogues who have heralded these things forth to the world for political effect in the coming election, we therefore deem it a duty that we owe to ourselves, and to the public, to disabuse the public mind, and state matters of fact as they are in the above disclosures.

If an ordinance had not been passed in this city prohibiting lythels and disorderly houses, and assessing a fine upon the frequenters of such places, perhaps the Doctor and some of his satellites might have considered this to be a paradise yet; and the 'Zion of God;' we noticed that he squirmed very much at its passage, but as he was always so virtuous a man of course it would not do for him to oppose it;—we must confess that we have no fellowship with such unfruitful works of darkness: and it is an opposition to this, and other acts of iniquity, that has brought out their "wonderful disclosures." In regard to all his witnesses, they are all exploded; but one or two of known ill fame; of course their proceedings or testimony are of no amount against us, nor would it be of any use if in our favor.

The Doctor has called upon many, as is fully proven, without authority, as their affidavits, and testimony demonstrate. As he has failed in this, we would respond to the call of Mr. Bennett, and the Sangamo Journal, for all men to come forward and testify to all that they know; we shrink not from investigation into all our acts, public or private, and are prepared to substantiate truths, and to rebut falsehoods. Delicacy has prevented us from publishing much testimony that has come before us, but if necessity requires, of course it must come out.

And in regard to the proceedings of the Sangamo Journal, we know that the editor of that paper looks upon Bennett as a villain; his own publications shew this; and he has condescended to act the hypocrite, and make a political cat's-paw of him, in the present crisis. "Oh shame where is thy blush?"

For the Wasp.

TO THE INDEPENDENT VOTERS OF HANCOCK.

FELLOW CITIZENS:—

Our names having been announced in the Wasp, as candidates for the House of Representatives, permit us to say to you gentlemen, that we decline the honor of the nominations so kindly tendered us by some of our democratic friends, always willing to serve the cause of equal rights. The democratic ticket being full, Mr. Owen and Mr. Smith being the candidates for the House of Representatives, they are democrats good and true, in their hands the people's rights will be safe. It is to the Democratic Standard we call on our friends to rally.

J. B. BACKENSTOS.

Carthage.

DAVID GREENLIEF.

St. Marys.

THE WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 16.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, July 30, 1842.

Whole Number 16

THE WASP.

EDITED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY

WM. SMITH,

At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.

TERMS.—$1.50 invariably in advance.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the district of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Windsor P. Lyon of Hancock county to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that Windsor P. Lyon of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a bankrupt and be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the first day of October next, at the District Court Room in the city of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July, A. D. 1842.

RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, clerk. 14-3t.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Edward F. Chittenden of Hancock county, to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Edward F. Chittenden of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court Room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July, A. D. 1842.

RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Talton E. Fox of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Talton E. Fox of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts, under the act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court Room in the city of Springfield, in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July, A. D. 1842.

RALSTON WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of William Niswanger of Hancock County to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that William Niswanger of Hancock County has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield, in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July A. D. 1842.

RALSTON WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

[From the Philadelphia North American.]

OLD AMERICAN STANDARD.—Being desirous on the approach of the glorious Fourth, to taste some of the fresh and early fruits of the Revolution, I have been looking over some volumes of old newspapers. From the Philadelphia Library I obtained a file of English newspapers for 1776. In it I found a very beautiful and highly complimentary description of the American Standard of the struggling colonies. Reading the article to a few friends, I found it to be as new and instructive to them as to myself, and it was determined to publish it. One of the gentlemen said, "I now recollect that the first troop of Philadelphia Cavalry, (which was organized in 1764, and was commanded by a Revolutionary officer, the late Colonel Forrest, and which I afterwards had the honor to command) had a rattlesnake on its standard, with the motto 'Don't tread on me,' after many years' use, and laid aside; but I think I can find it, and as it has such glorious associations, we must look it up and present it to the Philadelphia Museum, since it is probably the only flag of the kind in the country."

These gentlemen as well as many others to whom I have spoken on the subject, had no knowledge that the rattlesnake and its motto had been borne high and victorious in many a hard fought fight in the early stages of the Revolution. I have nowhere met with any account of this standard having been carried on land, but on the ocean, in many a gallant fight, it braved the "battle and the breeze." In some of the English accounts of the rebel flag, we are told that in addition to the rattlesnake, "it had thirteen strokes," nowhere do they mention the colors used in painting the flags.

Yours, &c.

[Extract from the London Chronicle, from Thursday, July 25th, to Saturday, July 27th, 1776.] The American Standard is thus described:—"The colors of the American fleet have a snake with thirteen rattles, the fourteenth budding, described in the attitude of going to strike, with this motto, 'Don't tread on me.' It is a rule in heraldry, that the worthy properties of the animal in the crest borne shall be considered, and the base ones cannot be intended. The ancients accounted a snake or a serpent an emblem of wisdom, and, in certain attitudes, of endless duration. The rattlesnake is properly a representation for America, as this animal is found in no other part of the world. The eye of this creature excels in brightness most of any other animal. She has no eyelids, and is therefore an emblem of vigilance.—She never begins an attack, nor even surrenders; she is therefore an emblem of magnanimity and true courage. When injured, or in danger of being injured, she never wounds till she has given notice to her enemies of their danger. No other of her kind shows so much generosity. When undisturbed and in peace, she does not appear to be furnished with weapons of any kind. They are latent in the roof of the mouth; and even when extended for her defence, appear to those who are not acquainted with her, to be weak and contemptible; yet her wounds, however small, are decisive and fatal.—She is solitary, and associates with her kind only when it is necessary for their preservation. Her poison is at once the necessary means of digesting her food, and certain destruction to her enemies.

The power of fascination attributed to her by a generous construction, resembles America. Those who look steadily on her are delighted, and involuntarily advance towards her, and having once approached, never leave her. She is frequently found with thirteen rattles, and they increase yearly. She is beautiful in youth, and her beauty increases with her age. Her tongue is blue, and forked as the lightning."

A QUIANT SERMON.

Mr. Dodd was a minister who lived many years ago a few miles from Cambridge; and having several times been preaching against drunkenness, some of the Cambridge scholars (conscience, which is sharper than ten thousand witnesses, being their monitor) were very much offended, and thought he made reflections on them. Some little time after, Mr. Dodd was walking towards Cambridge, and met some of the townsmen, who, stopped as soon as they saw him. As soon as he came up, they accosted him with "Your servant, sir!" He replied, "Your servant, gentlemen." They asked him if he had not been preaching very much against drunkenness of late? He answered in the affirmative. They then told him they had a favour to beg of him, and it was that he would preach a sermon to them there, from a text they should choose. He argued that it was an imposition, for a man ought to have some consideration before preaching. They said they would not put up with a denial, and insisted upon his preaching immediately (in a hollow tree which stood by the road side) from the word M.A.L.T. He then began, "Beloved, let me crave your attention. I am a little man—come at a short text—to a thin congregation—in an unworthy pulpit. Beloved, my text is M.A.L. I cannot divide it into sentences, there being none; nor into words, there being but one; I must therefore, of necessity, divide it into letters, which I find in my text to be these four—M.A.L.T.

M—is Moral.

A—is Allegorical.

L—is Literal.

T—is Theological.

"The Moral, is to teach you rusticks good manners: therefore M—my Masters, A—All of you, L—Leave off, T—Tippling.

"The Allegorical is, when one thing is spoken of, and another meant. The thing spoken of is Malt. The thing meant is the spirit of Malt, which you rusticks make, M—your Meat, A—your Apparel, L—your Liberry, and T—your Trust.

"The Literal is, according to the letters, M—Much, A—Ale, L—Little, T—Trust.

"The Theological is, according to the effects it works—in some, M—Murder—in others, A—Adultery—in all, L—Looseness of Life, and in many, T—Treachery.

"I shall conclude the subject, First, by way of Exhortation. M—my Masters, A—All of you, L—Listen, T—To my Text. Second, by way of Caution.—M—my Masters, A—All of you, L—Look for, T—the Truth. Third, by way of communicating the Truth, which is this:—A Drunkard is the annoyance of modesty; the spoil of civility; the destruction of reason; the robber's agent; the alehouse's benefactor; his wife's sorrow; his children's trouble; his own shame; his neighbor's scoff; a walking swill-bowl; the picture of a beast; the monster of a man!"

LATER FROM EUROPE.

ARRIVAL OF THE CALEDONIA.

The steamship Caledonia, Capt. Lott, arrived at Boston on Tuesday morning, bringing dates from London and Liverpool to Saturday June 18th.

Jon Francis, the young man who attempted to shoot the Queen, has been tried and found guilty of treason. When called on to say why sentence of death should not be passed upon him, he made no reply. The judges placed upon their heads the black caps, and the Chief justice, after a brief address, passed upon the prisoner the sentence of the law, that 'you be taken hence to the place from whence you came, and that you be drawn from thence to the place of execution, and there hanged by the neck until you are dead; that your head be then severed from your body, and your body divided into four quarters; to be disposed of as her Majesty may think fit—and may the Lord God Almighty have mercy on your soul!"

The unhappy wretch was greatly affected and fainted in the arms of the jailer.

In the House of Commons, on the 10th, in reply to a question, Sir Robert Peel said that he should advise the ratification of the British treaties with Texas. A few days after, in reply to questions, he declined in the present state of international negotiations, to make any statement concerning the North-Eastern Boundary question.

The election for Ipswich, June 4, resulted in the choice of the Tory candidate, Earl. Desart and Mr. Gladstone by 680 and 673 votes, in opposition to Messrs. Gisborne and Moffatt, who had respectively 543 and 541.

The Queen has issued a Proclamation declaring that gold coin under the established weight shall not be allowed to pass current in any part of her kingdom.—Every sovereign of less weight than five Pennyweights two grains and a half is proscribed. Provisions have been made for the relief of persons holding light coins.

Lord Congleton, formerly Sir Henry Parnell, committed suicide June 8, by hanging himself with a handkerchief. He was 56 years old. He was the author of a number of works on financial reform, banks and currency, railroads, &c.

Dr. Thomas Arnold, head master of Registry and Professor of Modern History in Oxford University, died June 11, of a disease of the heart, aged 52. He was an eminent classical scholar, editor of an edition of Thucydides, and author of an unfinished History of Rome.

Admiral Woolsey died at Manchester on the 8th of June. He was the senior flag officer but two.

The weather in Scot and has been as good as the farmer could desire.

The Band of British North America held its annual meeting on the 7th of June, when it appeared, from the report, that the surplus of the Bank was £15,000, and the paid up capital £690,000.

The whole of Lord Ashburton's homestead, situated at Clapham, and twelve houses in the village, were recently totally destroyed by fire. The income tax bill was had up for its third reading in the House of Lords on the 7th of

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 16.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, July 30, 1842.

Whole Number 16

THE WASP.

IS EDITED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY

WM. SMITH,

At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,

Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.

TERMS.—$1.50 invariably in advance.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the district of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Windsor P. Lyon of Hancock county to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that Windsor P. Lyon of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a bankrupt and be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the first day of October next, at the District Court Room in the city of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July, A. D. 1842.

RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, clerk. 14-31.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Edward F. Chittenden of Hancock county, to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Edward F. Chittenden of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court Room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July, A. D. 1842.

RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of Talton E. Fox of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Talton E. Fox of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts, under the act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court Room in the city of Springfield, in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July, A. D. 1842.

RALSTON WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the Petition of William Niswanger of Hancock County to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that William Niswanger of Hancock County has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield, in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July, A. D. 1842.

RALSTON WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

[From the Philadelphia North American.]

OLD AMERICAN STANDARD.—Being desirous on the approach of the glorious Fourth, to taste some of the fresh and early fruits of the Revolution, I have been looking over some volumes of old newspapers. From the Philadelphia Library I obtained a file of English newspapers for 1776. In it I found a very beautiful and highly complimentary description of the American Standard of the struggling colonies. Reading the article to a few friends, I found it to be as new and instructing to them as to myself, and it was determined to publish it. One of the gentlemen said, "I now recollect that the first troop of Philadelphia Cavalry, (which was organized in 1764, and was commanded by a Revolutionary officer, the late Colonel Forrest, and which I afterwards had the honor to command) had a rattlesnake on its standard, with the motto 'Don't tread on me,' after many years' use, and laid aside; but I think I can find it, and as it has such glorious associations, we must look it up and present it to the Philadelphia Museum, since it is probably the only flag of the kind in the country."

These gentlemen as well as many others to whom I have spoken on the subject, had no knowledge that the rattlesnake and its motto had been borne high and victorious in many a hard fought fight in the early stages of the Revolution. I have nowhere met with any account of this standard having been carried on land, but on the ocean, in many a gallant fight, it braved the "battle and the breeze." In some of the English accounts of the rebel flag, we are told that in addition to the rattlesnake, "it had thirteen strokes;" nowhere do they mention the colors used in painting the flags.

Yours, &c.

[Extract from the London Chronicle, from Thursday, July 25th, to Saturday, July 27th, 1842.] The American Standard is thus described:—"The colors of the American fleet have a snake with thirteen rattles, the fourteenth budding, described in the attitude of going to strike, with this motto, 'Don't tread on me.' It is a rule in heraldry, that the worthy properties of the animal in the crest borne shall be considered, and the base ones cannot be intended. The ancients accounted a snake or a serpent an emblem of wisdom, and, in certain attitudes, of endless duration. The rattlesnake is properly a representation for America, as this animal is found in no other part of the world. The eye of this creature excels in brightness most of any other animal. She has no eyelids, and is therefore an emblem of vigilance.—She never begins an attack, nor even surrenders; she is therefore an emblem of magnanimity and true courage. When injured, or in danger of being injured, she never wounds till she has given notice to her enemies of their danger. No other of her kind shows so much generosity. When undisturbed and in peace, she does not appear to be furnished with weapons of any kind. They are latent in the roof of the mouth; and even when extended for her defence, appear to those who are not acquainted with her, to be weak and contemptible; yet her wounds, however small, are decisive and fatal.—She is solitary, and associates with her kind only when it is necessary for their preservation. Her poison is at once the necessary means of digesting her food, and certain destruction to her enemies.

The power of fascination attributed to her by a generous construction, resembles America. Those who look steadily on her are delighted, and involuntarily advance towards her, and having once approached, never leave her. She is frequently found with thirteen rattles, and they increase yearly. She is beautiful in youth, and her beauty increases with her age. Her tongue is blue, and forked as the lightning."

A QUAIN SERMON.

Mr. Dodd was a minister who lived many years ago a few miles from Cambridge; and having several times been preaching against drunkenness, some of the Cambridge scholars (conscience, which is sharper than ten thousand wittnesses, being their mentor) were very much offended, and thought he made reflections on them. Some little time after, Mr. Dodd was walking towards Cambridge, and met some of the townsmen, who, stopped as soon as they saw him. As soon as he came up, they accosted him with "Your servant, sir!" He replied, "Your servant, gentlemen." They asked him if he had not been preaching very much against drunkenness of late? He answered in the affirmative. They then told him they had a favour to beg of him, and it was that he would preach a sermon to them there, from a text they should choose. He argued that it was an imposition, for a man ought to have some consideration before preaching. They said they would not put up with a denial, and insisted upon his preaching immediately (in a hollow tree which stood by the road side) from the word M.A.L.T. He then began, "Beloved, let me crave your attention. I am a little man—come at a short notice—to preach a short sermon—from a short text—to a thin congregation—in an unworthy pulpit. Beloved, my text is Malt. I cannot divide it into sentences, there being none; nor into words, there being but one; I must therefore, of necessity, divide it into letters, which I find in my text to be these four—M.A.L.T.

M—is Moral.

A—is Allegorical.

L—is Literal.

T—is Theological.

"The Moral, is to teach you rusticks good manners: therefore M—my Masters, A—All of you, L—Leave off, T—Tipping."

"The Allegorical is, when one thing is spoken of, and another meant. The thing spoken of is Malt. The thing meant is the spirit of Malt, which you rusticks make, M—your Meat, A—your Apparel, L—your Liberty, and T—your Trust."

"The Literal is, according to the letters, M—Much, A—Ale, L—Little, T—Trust."

"The Theological is, according to the effects it works—in some, M—Murder—in others, A—Adultery—in all, L—Looseness of Life, and in many, T—Treachery."

"I shall conclude the subject. First, by way of Exhortation. M—my Masters, A—All of you, L—Listen, T—To my Text. Second, by way of Caution—M—my Masters, A—All of you, L—Look for, T—the Truth. Third, by way of communicating the Truth, which is this:—A Drunkard is the annoyance of modesty; the spoil of civility; the destruction of reason; the robber's agent; the alehouse's benefactor; his wife's sorrow; his children's trouble; his own shame; his neighbor's scoff; a walking swill-bowl; the picture of a beast; the monster of a man!"

LATER FROM EUROPE.

ARRIVAL OF THE CALEDONIA.

The steamship Caledonia, Capt. Lott, arrived at Boston on Tuesday morning, bringing dates from London and Liverpool to Saturday June 18th.

Jon Francis, the young man who attempted to shoot the Queen, has been tried and found guilty of treason. When called on to say why sentence of death should not be passed upon him, he made no reply. The judges placed upon their heads the black caps, and the Chief justice, after a brief address, passed upon the prisoner the sentence of the law, that 'you be taken hence to the place from whence you came, and that you be drawn from thence to the place of execution, and there hanged by the neck until you are dead; that your head be then severed from your body, and your body divided into four quarters, to be disposed of as her Majesty may think fit—and may the Lord God Almighty have mercy on your soul!"

The unhappy wretch was greatly affected and fainted in the arms of the jailer.

In the House of Commons, on the 10th, in reply to a question, Sir Robert Peel said that he should advise the ratification of the British treaties with Texas. A few days after, in reply to questions, he declined in the present state of international negotiations, to make any statement concerning the North-Eastern Boundary question.

The election for Ipswich, June 4, resulted in the choice of the Tory members Earl. Desart and Mr. Gladstone by 680 and 673 votes, in opposition to Messrs. Gibson and Moffat, who had respectively 543 and 541.

The Queen has issued a Proclamation declaring that gold coin under the established weight shall not be allowed to pass current in any part of her kingdom.—Every sovereign of less weight than five Pennyweights two grains and a half is proscribed. Provisions have been made for the relief of persons holding light coins.

Lord Congleton, formerly Sir Henry Parnell, committed suicide June 8, by hanging himself with a handkerchief. He was 56 years old. He was the author of a number of works on financial reform, banks and currency, railroads, &c.

Dr. Thomas Arnold, head Master of Registry and Professor of Modern History in Oxford University, died June 11, of a disease of the heart, aged 52. He was an eminent classical scholar, editor of an edition of Thucydides, and author of an unfinished History of Rome.

Admiral Woolsey died at Manchester on the 3th of June. He was the senior flag officer but two.

The weather in Scot'land has been as good as the farmer could desire?

The Band of British North America held its annual meeting on the 7th of June, when it appeared, from the report that the surplus of the Bank was £15,000, and the paid up capital £200,000.

The whole of Lord Ashburton's homestead, situated at Clapham, and twelve houses in the village, were recently totally destroyed by fire.

The income tax bill was had up for its third reading in the House of Lords on the 11th of June. The Marquis of Lansdowne offered an amendment, denying the necessity of the tax, and declaring that the deficiency in revenue might be made up by a reduction of the duties on corn, timber and sugar. Lord Brougham declared his increasing conviction that the principle advanced by Lord Lansdowne was correct, and farther denounced the income tax as a weapon that should never be placed in the hands of government as a permanent source of revenue. Lord Melbourne a so supported the amendment, which, however, was rejected, 112 to 52.

In the house of Commons Sir Robert Peel announced that the Government had abandoned its intention of legislating further on the state of the Church in Scotland.

In the House of Lords on the 16th the Earl of Radnor inquired whether Government intended to do any thing for the relief of the prevalent and increasing distress. The Duke said there were measures under consideration to give relief to the manufacturing interests, and through them to the whole population. The Government did not intend to adopt any other measures.

In the Commons Sir J. Easthope's motion for leave to bring in a bill to abolish church rates was negatived, 80 to 162.

A new measure of emancipation has been introduced in the House of Commons. The purpose is to free thousands of women and children, now subjected in the mines and collieries to a servitude infinitely more rigorous, wretched and demoralizing, than ever was known in the West India islands, or in those Southern States, whose condition is so strongly denounced by the ultra philanthropists of this country. The bill, proposed by Lord Ashley on the 7th inst., met with the assent of the House, and received the cordial concurrence also of the nation. It provides that females shall be totally excluded from employment in the mines and collieries, and also all boys under thirteen years of age; that none but males above twenty-one years of age shall be admitted as engineers; and that the apprenticeship system shall not only be totally abolished, but all existing apprenticeships canceled.

THE WASP.

THURSDAY AUGUST 4, 1842.

THE ELECTION.

So far as heard from, in Hancock county the Democratic Ticket is about 900 ahead.

We regret that the poetical communication of Miss Eliza R. Snow, was received too late for an insertion in this week's paper.

WEATHER.

For the space of a few weeks we have had dry, warm weather, and then, on Friday the 20th, copious showers, which were really refreshing. The only remarkable observation in all this is, the great change from hot to cold; in 24 hours the thermometer fell 34°—from 92° to 58°. These hot snaps and cold chills are not so comfortable for health.

LUMBER.

Several rafts of pine boards, plank, scantling and shingles, from the pines in the upper Mississippi, have found a market in Nauvoo this season. We like this, because it will eventually level the price of lumber to other commodities. One big raft for the Temple and Nauvoo House, is just in; it covers but little less than an acre of surface, and contains 100,000 sawed lumber, and 16,000 cubic, or 192,000 square feet bowen timber.

Much is said latterly against the use of Calomel as medicine. The real science of medicine, like the sun under a thick cloud, is shrouded in a set of unintelligible terms, and many grope and die. We will not say that he that gives Calomel murders, nor he that takes it commits suicide, but we will say, if God and the Governor are willing, that he that uses the least medicine, lives longest, in nine cases out of ten.

THE ECHO.

Major General John C. Bennett, of the Nauvoo Legion, Master in Chancery for Hancock County; Chancellor of the University of Nauvoo; M. D. P. P. A. V. &c. &c. according to latest intelligence had gone to * * * * *

From the St. Louis Gazette.
"We perceive by a letter to the editor of the Bulletin, that Gen. Bennett, the great seceder, is about to visit the east for the purpose of publishing a "History of the Saints." As he does not state to what part of the east

he is going, we suppose he intends visiting Jerusalem, as that is the most likely place to obtain information concerning these "Saints." What a precious set of saints they are from his showing up. He says:

"The letter from Miss Brotherton, details a case of black-hearted villainy precisely similar to those of Mrs. Sarah M. Pratt, wife of Prof. Orson Pratt, and Miss Nancy Rigdon, daughter of Sidney Rigdon, as noticed in the Sangamo Journal, and hundreds of others that might be named—it speaks for itself."

We think it does. Oh, the villains, and a hundred others, only think of it. A great deal of money has been made by the sale of documents and papers, pretending to give accounts of the Latter Day Saints. Now unless Gen. B. can give some information to the proper authorities, whereby the deeds of these men can be exposed, we are entirely opposed to the publication of any books on this subject. Our country is flooded with enough of such humbugs. We want no more of them. You can scarcely pass an auction stand or pedler's case without seeing in staring colors—"Awful Disclosures," &c. Now we say again, if they have been guilty of any crimes, and Gen. B. must have been privy to the facts, he can bring them to justice by turning State's evidence."

The Gazette is entitled to our thanks for his liberality and patriotic course towards Dr. Bennett, and the Mormons. If editors generally would act thus legally and wise, such catch pennies as Bennett, Harris, and about ninety-nine others, would find their common level in their own infamy.

G. W. ROBINSON

Having noticed in the Quincy Whig of last week an article written by G. W. Robinson of this place stating that he does not consider himself any longer a member of this church, that the church will not allow him to withdraw; and that certain scandalous attacks have been made against him by the saints; for what he knows not, except it is to make a scape goat of him to carry away their sins—the sins of whom he has not said. We would briefly reply to his remarks.

In the first place we would state that we have no such law or statute prohibiting persons withdrawing from the church; but believe that all men are free and can do as they please, so Mr. Robinson will learn that he is in no bondage in this respect. In regard to the scandalous attacks that have been made against him and others we would state that if telling the truth is scandal we are verily guilty.

Mr. Robinson is not so ignorant of these things as he would represent, and if he would have been content to have let the exposure rest where his delinquencies were practiced, we should not have let the matter go farther, but as he has made a parade before the public and thrown out certain innuendoes, pertaining to the people in this place, we publish the following:—

I, CARLOS GRANGER, Do hereby Certify, that in the Spring of 1840, I bought a quantity of land of Geo. W. Robinson, and paid him at sundry times Four hundred and Eleven Dollars leaving a residue of $39 unpaid. Having ascertained that said Robinson had sold the same tract of land to sundry persons, and received payment therefor, I tendered him the money remaining due to said Robinson, and demanded a Deed according to the stipulations of the Bond. He refused to take the $39 and comply with the Bond. He has also cut and pillaged a large quantity of timber on the land since he sold it. In fine I believe him to be a dishonest man. I further state that I am not a Mormon, nor ever have been, but am friendly to them.

CARLOS GRANGER.

CERTIFICATE OF HORACE S. ELDRIDGE.

Having been called upon to state circumstances connected with a contract between Geo. W. Robinson and myself, I now submit such facts as occur to my mind. Somewhere about the month of November, 1839, Geo. W. Robinson came to my house, in the vicinity of Indianapolis, in the State of Indiana; I told him I designed moving to Nauvoo—was desirous to be near the City—enjoy their privileges of meetings, as well as the comforts of country life. He informed me that he could suit me in a place. A bargain was struck and I paid him over $300 in hand, and was to have possession of the place on my arrival in Nauvoo, and upon my arrival ascertained that he had previously sold the same premises to Mr. Granger, and partly received the pay. Consequently my money was gone, and I had no place, and this was not all, the title bond that he made and gave me was esteemed defective, I was therefore left to do the best I could under the circumstances, either to enter into a suit at law or take-up with such terms as he might prescribe. And by my importunities and the influence of my friends, I effected a settlement as I thought greatly to the prejudice of my interest.

HORACE S. ELDRIDGE.

In regard to his being a scape goat to carry the sins of others, we think that he will do pretty well if he is able to carry his own sins without fainting. We neither want Bennett to sacrifice a lamb, nor do we want a goat to carry our sins into the wilderness, we are ready to atone for our own sins and to answer for our own transgressions. We further hope that all other goats that are in our midst will pack up their sins and walk, but if when they get away they should try to persuade the public that they are somebody's else sins and not their own that they are packing, we may give the public information relative to the matter.

The Editor of the Quincy Whig will confer a favor by copying the foregoing.

DO YOU HEAR THAT?

Out of the way, as Cesar said, for we are now ready to walk through the State Sap Sucker of the Sangamo Journal, like a potion of quicksilver. We shall devote a special portion of time to his dishonor—Earl Francis filthy Sangamo Journal, Esq. If a chemical operation will have any effect upon such a corrupt hearted nasty scavenger, we will boil him out in water and ashes, until he will look like a stuffed pig for roasting.

He shall receive full pay for the ungodly calumnies, and cart loads of abuse he has so gratuitously heaped upon the church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. They have never injured him, while he has strove with all his might, to create an excitement large enough, and hot enough, and hellish enough, to exterminate them from ——— fill the blank to suit yourself, coward, dastard, shirtfull of mud and frogspawn.

Your sins and speculations stick up so much like a hog's bristles, that you cannot hide your natural propensities for baseness. While Doctor Bennett seemed honest, and by great exertion was screened from exposure, you could peep through your eyebrows and seek an occasion to dip your Tartarian pen in the venom of the damned for a sly dash—but the moment Bennett uncaps his big cylinder of wretchedness and ruin, and vomits his bile into your lap, what a disinterested patriot! what a pattern saint! what a noble companion! Well, be it so; for, were we to sweep the globe with a whisk broom, or rake the other place with a fine tooth comb, we could not find two fitter aids to stand, sit, or run on the right and left of the Devil. Par nobile fratrum.

It may be well enough hereafter to establish a new order of knighthood and heraldry for the benefit of Bennett and Francis, whose coat of arms shall be a pumpkin, with Bennett's head coming out of one end and Francis's at the other; labelled:—(for Bennett,) no more sin—(for Francis,) no duties on molasses. Two fools met.

LOOK YONDER!

In the great days of persecuting the Mormons in Missouri, the New England devotees of sectarian prejudices could wink at all those horrid scenes of barbarity, with a significant nod of good enough for them:—Wonder what kind of a grace they will display in a civil and religious point of view, at the plunderings, insults to women, and imprisonment of men in Rhode Island, for attempting to enjoy the right of free suffrage!

A dog may bark when an old horse paces, But children should not tear each other's faces.

Queen Victoria has an edict out to have her baby's birth day celebrated over the face of the globe, by firing cannon at every British fortification. What a scattered noise for this little Duke of Cornwall! Would it not be better for the Queen to have a cannon cast large enough to shake the whole globe at a shot, and let the world know that Victoria Guelph had brought forth a little half Dutch boy, just as other women do! O!

A LEAF OUT OF A NEW CATECHISM.—Who was the first man? My Daddy. Who made Nauvoo?

J. C. Bennett, "with all my blushing honors thick upon me," but a strong east wind blew away my consequence, and I am left like a man on a Jack ass, to escape to the wilderness of sin, where there will be nothing left but the shadow of me!

A GOLD IRON WEDGE REWARD.

Ran away from the State of Illinois, one John C. Bennett, late Major General of the Nauvoo Legion; Mayor of the City of Nauvoo; Master in Chancery; Medicine Doctor; expelled Master Mason; a graduate in debauchery and perjury, et Pio, Phil, Art, Ven, and more recently a journeyman liar, slanderer and "discloser" for the Jack Ass of the Sangamo Journal. The said Sangamo Jack Ass having bargained with, or hired the said journeyman liar for a little state pap, or a few dollars out of the great heap, he is daily plundering from poor bankrupts, by knocking them down with the devils tail, whereby these penniless and unfortunate citizens have to strain themselves, or their friends to pay him two, five, or seven, or ten dollars, before they can publish their intention to live: Or else the said Jack Ass agreed to allow the said journeyman liar a "price" equal to what he disclosed, and according to the amount of the speculation between the said party and Jo Jumble, who was red hot at flattering Miss Illinois to become his sweet heart for four year: she had been handsome and would be again, were it not for a parcel of hungry adopted children who had lugged her so much that her breasts looked like two old rennet bags, hung on the side of a peeled white oak stump:—But notwithstanding all these things, it is supposed that the box, in which the said journeyman liar keep his secrets, sprung a leak, whereby it seemed more than probable that the said journeyman liar was some how or other, engaged in the assassination of ex-Governor Boggs, and being subject to periodical fits of rhapsodical locomotion, he has in an evil hour decampibussed for a more congenial spot for new adventures. He was last heard of in St. Louis, and it is rumored that he has gone to the east to write a history of his life, but as he will find a great disideradum in materials, and through the earnest solicitation of his friends, whose pockets are full of documents sticking up and filed "more disclosures," we have made this public advertisement.

June. The Marquis of Lansdowne offered an amendment, denying the necessity of the tax, and declaring that the deficiency in revenue might be made up, by a reduction of the duties on corn, timber and sugar. Lord Brougham declared his increasing conviction that the principle advanced by Lord Lansdowne was correct, and farther denounced the income tax as a weapon that should never be placed in the hands of government as a permanent source of revenue. Lord Melbourne so supported the amendment, which, however, was rejected, 112 to 52.

In the house of Commons Sir Robert Peel announced that the Government had abandoned its intention of legislating further on the state of the Church in Scotland.

In the House of Lords on the 16th the Earl of Radnor inquired whether Government intended to do any thing for the relief of the prevalent and increasing distress. The Duke said there were measures under consideration to give relief to the manufacturing interests, and through them to the whole population. The Government did not intend to adopt any other measures.

In the Commons Sir J. Easthope's motion for leave to bring in a bill to abolish church rates was negatived, 80 to 162.

A new measure of emancipation has been introduced in the House of Commons. The purpose is to free thousands of women and children, now subjected in the mines and collieries to a servitude infinitely more rigorous, wretched and demoralizing, than ever was known in the West India islands, or in those Southern States, whose condition is so strongly denounced by the ultra-philanthropists of this country. The bill, proposed by Lord Ashley on the 7th inst., met with the assent of the House, and received the cordial concurrence also of the nation. It provides that females shall be totally excluded from employment in the mines and collieries, and also all boys under thirteen years of age; that none but males above twenty-one years of age shall be admitted as engineers; and that the apprenticeship system shall not only be totally abolished, but all existing apprenticeships canceled.

THE WASP.

THURSDAY AUGUST 4, 1842.

THE ELECTION.

So far as heard from, in Hancock county the Democratic Ticket is about 900 ahead.

We regret that the poetical communication of Miss Eliza R. Snow, was received too late for an insertion in this week's paper.

WEATHER.

For the space of a few weeks we have had dry, warm weather, and then, on Friday the 29th, copious showers, which were really refreshing. The only remarkable observation in 24 hours the thermometer fell 34°—from 92° to 58°. These hot snaps and cold chills are not so comfortable for health.

LUMBER.

Several rafts of pine boards, plank, scantling and shingles, from the pineries on the upper Mississippi, have found a market in Nauvoo this season. We like this, because it will eventually level the price of lumber to other commodities. Our big raft for the Temple and Nauvoo House, is just in; it covers but little less than an acre of surface, and contains 100,000 sawed lumber, and 16,000 cubic, or 192,000 square feet hewn timber.

Much is said latterly against the use of Calomel as medicine. The real science of medicine, like the sun under a thick cloud, is shrouded in a set of unentelligible terms, and many grope and die. We will not say that he that gives Calomel murders, nor he that takes it commits suicide, but we will say, if God and the Governor are willing, that he that uses the last medicine, lives longest, in nine cases out of ten.

THE ECHO.

Major General John C. Bennett, of the Nauvoo Legion, Master in Chancery for Hancock County; Chancellor of the University of Nauvoo; M. D. P. A. V. &c. &c. according to latest intelligence had gone to

From the St. Louis Gazette.

"We perceive by a letter to the editor of the Bulletin, that Gen. Bennett, the great seceder, is about to visit the east for the purpose of publishing a "History of the Saints." As he does not state to what part of the east

he is going, we suppose he intends visiting Jerusalem, as that is the most likely place to obtain information concerning these "Saints." What a precious set of saints they are from his showing up. He says:

"The letter from Miss Brotherton, details a case of black-hearted villainy precisely similar to those of Mrs. Sarah M. Pratt, wife of Prof. Orson Pratt, and Miss Nancy Rigdon, daughter of Sidney Rigdon, as noticed in the Sangamo Journal, and hundreds of others that might be named—it speaks for itself."

We think it does. Oh, the villains! and a hundred others, only think of it. A great deal of money has been made by the sale of documents and papers, pretending to give accounts of the Latter Day Saints. Now unless Gen. B. can give some information to the proper authorities, whereby the deeds of these men can be exposed, we are entirely opposed to the publication of any books on this subject. Our country is flooded with enough of such humbugs. We want no more of them. You can scarcely pass an auction stand or pedler's case without seeing in staring colors—"Awful Disclosures," &c. Now we say again, if they have been guilty of any crimes, and Gen. B. must have been privy to the facts, he can bring them to justice by turning State's evidence."

The Gazette is entitled to our thanks for his liberality and patriotic course towards Dr. Bennett, and the Mormons. If editors generally would act thus legally and wisely, such catch pennies as Bennett, Harris, and about ninety-nine others, would find their common level in their own infamy.

G. W. ROBINSON

Having noticed in the Quincy Whig of last week an article written by G. W. Robinson of this place stating that he does not consider himself any longer a member of this church, that the church will not allow him to withdraw; and that certain scandalous attacks have been made against him by the saints; for what he knows not, except it is to make a scape goat of him to carry away their sins—the sins of whom he has not said. We would briefly reply to his remarks.

In the first place we would state that we have no such law or statute prohibiting persons withdrawing from the church; but believe that all men are free and can do as they please, so Mr. Robinson will learn that he is in no bondage in this respect. In regard to the scandalous attacks that have been made against him and others we would state that if telling the truth is scandal we are verily guilty.

Mr. Robinson is not so ignorant of these things as he would represent, and if he would have been content to have let the exposure rest where his delinquencies were practiced, we should not have let the matter gone farther, but as he has made a parade before the public and thrown out certain innuendoes, pertaining to the people in this place, we publish the following:—

I, CARLOS GRANGER, Do hereby Certify, that in the Spring of 1840, I bought a quantity of land of Geo. W. Robinson, and paid him at sundry times Four hundred and Eleven Dollars leaving a residue of $39 unpaid. Having ascertained that said Robinson had sold the same tract of land to sundry persons, and received payment therefor, I tendered him the money remaining due to said Robinson, and demanded a Deed according to the stipulations of the Bond. He refused to take the $39 and comply with the Bond. He has also cut and pillaged a large quantity of timber on the land since he sold it. In fine I believe him to be a dishonest man I further state that I am not a Mormon, nor ever have been, but am friendly to them.

CARLOS GRANGER.

CERTIFICATE OF HORACE S. ELDRIDGE.

Having been called upon to state circumstances connected with a contract between Geo. W. Robinson and myself, I now submit such facts as occur to my mind. Somewhere about the month of November, 1839, Geo. W. Robinson came to my house, in the vicinity of Indianapolis, in the State of Indiana; I told him I designed moving to Nauvoo—was desirous to be near the City—enjoy their privileges of meetings, as well as the comforts of country life. He informed me that he could suit me in a place. A bargain was struck and I paid him over $300 in hand, and was to have possession of the place on my arrival in Nauvoo, and upon my arrival ascertained that he had previously sold the same premises to Mr. Granger, and partly received the pay. Consequently my money was gone, and I had no place, and this was not all, the title bond that he made and gave me was esteemed defective, I was therefore left to do the best I could under the circumstances, either to enter into a suit at law or take up with such terms as he might prescribe. And by my importunities and the influence of my friends, I effected a settlement as I thought greatly to the prejudice of my interest.

HORACE S. ELDRIDGE.

In regard to his being a scape goat to carry the sins of others, we think that he will do pretty well if he is able to carry his own sins without flinching. We neither want Bennett to sacrifice a lamb, nor do we want a goat to carry our sins into the wilderness, we are ready to atone for our own sins and to answer for our own transgressions. We further hope that all other goats that are in our midst will pack up their sins and walk, but if when they get away they should try to persuade the public that they are somebody's else sins and not their own that they are packing, we may give the public information relative to the matter.

The Editor of the Quincy Whig will confer a favor by copying the foregoing.

DO YOU HEAR THAT?

Out of the way, as Cesar said, for we are now ready to walk through the State Sap Sucker of the Sangamo Journal, like a potion of quicksilver. We shall devote a special portion of time to his dis-honor—Earl Francis filthy Sangamo Journal, Esq. If a chemical operation will have any effect upon such a corrupt hearted nasty scavenger, we will boil him out in water and ashes, until he will look like a stuffed pig for roasting.

He shall receive full pay for the ungodly calumnies, and cart loads of abuse he has so gratuitously heaped upon the church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. They have never injured him, while he has strove with all his might, to create an excitement large enough, and hot enough, and hellish enough, to exterminate them from ——— fill the blank to suit yourself, coward, dastard, shirtfull of mud and frogspawn.

Your sins and speculations stick up so much like a hog's bristles, that you cannot hide your natural propensities for baseness. While Doctor Bennett seemed honest, and by great exertion was screened from exposure, you could peep through your eyebrows and seek an occasion to dip your Tartarian pen in the venom of the damned for a sty dash—but the moment Bennett uncaps his big cylinder of wretchedness and ruin, and vomits his bile into your lap, what a disinterested patriot! what a pattern saint! what a noble companion! Well, be it so; for, were we to sweep the globe with a whisk broom, or rake the other place with a fine tooth comb, we could not find two fitter aids to stand, sit, or run on the right and left of the Devil. Par nobile fratrum.

It may be well enough hereafter to establish a new order of knighthood and heraldry for the benefit of Bennett and Francis, whose coat of arms shall be a pumpkin, with Bennett's head coming out of one end and Francis's at the other; labelled:—(for Bennett,) no more sin—(for Francis,) no duties on molasses. Two foot met.

LOOK YONDER!

In the great days of persecuting the Mormons in Missouri, the New England devotees of sectarian prejudices could wink at all those horrid scenes of barbarity, with a significant nod of good enough for them:—Wonder what kind of a grace they will display in a civil and religious point of view, at the plunderings, insults to women, and imprisonment of men in Rhode Island, for attempting to enjoy the right of free suffrage!

A dog may bark when an old horse paces, But children should not tear each other's faces.

Queen Victoria has an edict out to have her baby's birth day celebrated over the face of the globe, by firing cannon at every British fortification. What a cottoned notice for this little Duke of Cornwall! Would it not be better for the Queen to have a cannon cast large enough to shake the whole globe at a shot, and let the world know that Victoria Guelph had brought forth a little half Dutch boy, just as other women do! O!

A LEAF OUT OF A NEW CATECHISM.—Who was the first man? My Daddy. Who made Nauvoo?

J. C. Bennett, "with all my blushing honors thick upon me," but a strong east wind blew away my consequence, and I am left like a man on a Jack ass, to escape to the wilderness of sin, where there will be nothing left but the shadow of me!

A GOLD IRON WEDGE REWARD.

Ran away from the State of Illinois, one John C. Bennett, late Major General of the Nauvoo Legion; Mayor of the City of Nauvoo; Master in Chancery; Medicine Doctor; expelled Master Mason; a graduate in debauchery and perjury, et Pro, Phil, Art, Ven, and more recently a journeyman liar, slanderer and "discloser" for the Jack Ass of the Sangamo Journal. The said Sangamo Jack Ass having bargained with, or hired the said journeyman liar for a little state pap, or a few dollars out of the great heap, he is daily plundering from poor bankrupts, by knocking them down with the devil's tail, whereby these penniless and unfortunate citizens have to strain themselves, or their friends to pay him two, five, or seven, or ten dollars, before they can publish their intention to live: Or else the said Jack Ass agreed to allow the said journeyman liar a "price" equal to what he disclosed, and according to the amount of the speculation between the said party and Jo Jumble, who was red hot at flattering Miss Illinois to become his sweet heart for four year: she had been handsome and would be again, were it not for a parcel of hungry adopted children who had lugged her so much that her breasts looked like two old rennet bags, hung on the side of a peeled white oak stump:—But notwithstanding all these things, it is supposed that the box, in which the said journeyman liar keep his secrets, sprung a leak, whereby it seemed more than probable that the said journeyman liar was some how or other, engaged in the assassination of ex-Governor Boggs," and being subject to periodical fits of rhapsodical locomotion, he has in an evil hour decampibused for a more congenial spot for new adventures. He was last heard of in St. Louis, and it is rumored that he has gone to the east to write a history of his life, but as he will find a great disideradum in materials, and through the earnest solicitation of his friends, whose pockets are full of documents sticking up and filed "more disclosures," we have made this public advertisement.

As the Sangamo Jack Ass, or perhaps we should more politely say, the state sap sucker, has a great influence in family as well as state affairs, Bennetts friends solicit his co-operation in getting the disclosures to the said runaway Bennett, or else getting the said Bennett to the disclosures, for the above reward, and thereby help fill a niche in his bust, and smooth a knob on the man, which the poets have forgotten to sing, and the prophets did not foretell. Eds. please copy.

COWITCH.

BENNETT.

The following from the Missouri Reporter, shows Bennett's decline in the western market. It is reported that Greenbush N. Y. has to be smutted with his dust among other unfortunate places.

"THE MORMONS.—We understand that General Bennett, formerly of the Nauvoo Legion, is now in this city, with the intention of making such disclosures as will show what part Jo Smith, the Mormon Prophet, took in the recent attempt to assassinate ex-Governor Boggs, of this State. Gen. Bennett, Sidney Rigdon, and Gen. Robinson have lately quarrelled with Jo Smith, and have since publicly charged him with the perpetration of the grossest frauds and crimes. If the Mormon Prophet has really been guilty of the offences now imputed to him, we sincerely trust that he will meet with condign punishment. We must confess, however, that we place no great confidence in the statements of Bennett, Rigdon & Co. They have been active and prominent men at Nauvoo, and must have been aware of any villanies which may have been practised by the Prophet for a number of years. They have remained silent during all that period, and suffered their leader to impose upon his deluded followers without making known to them how grossly they were deceived. If Bennett had appeared before the public under more favorable circumstances, we might have been induced to give some credit to his pretended disclosures. He has been ruled out of the Church of the Saints, and stripped of his power and office, and it may be that he is now endeavoring to glut his revenge upon the Prophet.

From the Norwalk (Ct.) Gazette, we take the following elegant extracts of letters to the Editor:

"It is an acknowledge fact here among our best citizens, that there is not a worse clan than this same Mormon clan. Lying, profane swearing, intemperance (for Joe himself is a drunkard) stealing, are among the characteristics of Joe Smith and Sidney Rigdon's Latter Day Saints.

It is true they preach up their morality, honesty and temperance; talk of their black list, on which they publish the names of Mormon villains—refer you to their book of covenants for their excellent precepts, and pretend to be the salt of the earth and the salvation of the world, while perhaps they have an eye on a valuable horse or some other fine piece of property, and if they cannot convince you that that horse belongs to the prophet, perhaps, like the Dutchman's pigs, he may come up missing. This is no fiction.

For many miles around Nauvoo, (for I have traveled the country over,) fine horses, oxen, cows, wearing apparel from the wash and bedding, have not only been missing, but been recovered from these saints of the last days; but if they succeed in getting into Nauvoo with their plunder before their arrest, the chase may as well be given up first as last, for no trace of property can be found.

Joe and his friend Rigdon, recently rode out of Nauvoo into the country, and Joe returned solitary and alone. The Mormons inquired eagerly—Where is Sidney? The prophet informed them, that as they were journeying, it came to pass that two angels met them and took Sidney up to heaven, and that on a certain day he would return again to the promised city. The time came and Sid-came also, and brought with him the manuscript book of Abraham of old.

I am informed that Joe asserts that the same angels that accompanied Rigdon to heaven, will soon call for him, giving him only time to translate the book of Abraham before he goes. He has called on his followers for seven thousand dollars before the angel calls for him.

The villain that thus slanders any portion of community, will lie, steal and murder; and the editor who is base enough to publish such awful calumny and fuel for persecution, is a more contemptible knave, coward and pestiferous assassin, than the writer. No disguise! all here, Nauvoo and the Mormons! Rigdon and Smith, law, gospel, courts, Judges, Governor and State! No claw off this time! stick to your lies, and we will rest upon the truth! Sink away towards hell, and we will rise up towards heaven! Blessed is the peace-maker; but offences will come, and we unto him by whom they come!

What land is that where clocks are made?

And lying is a common trade?

Where priests with blue laws, slick as grease,

All shear the flocks, and keep the fleece?

That's old Connecticut.

* * Owing to a disappointment of paper we were unable to issue the Wasp on Saturday last. The extra, however, supplies the place and serves all further apology. The date on our first page should be Thursday Aug. 4, 1842.

Short stories and long friends;

For little lacks, and great ends.

For the Wasp.

In looking over the Sangamo Journal of July 22d, 1842, I find an extract from a piece of mine published some time ago, in the Times and Seasons, calling on the people to search the public dockets, that they might learn the amount of crime committed by the Mormons. J. C. Bennett comes out and gives extracts from the dockets of Hancock, Adams, and McDonough counties, setting forth seven arrests of what he calls Mormons, three of whom were committed, according to his statement.

I would just say to the public that some of those rated in Dr. Bennett's extract, never were Mormons, their names are not on the Church Record, and as to the others I believe they were all cut off from the church long ago, you will see the names of some of them published in the Times and Seasons of Dec. 15th 1840. Does the very pious Doctor think that he can make the world believe that we are responsible for the acts of wicked men like himself whom we have cut off from our society, if so, we are accountable for all the Doctor's doings, his perjuries, his lyings, his fornications, his adulteries and (if reports are true) his murders of many infants. We will have a black catalogue of crimes to answer for, if we have to shoulder all J. C. Bennett's wickedness from lead after we cut him off from the Church—folly! folly! The Doctor thought he had fired a tremendous gun, but it is only a flash in the pan, like all his big doings.

W. LAW.

For the Wasp.

Inasmuch as the Sangamo Journal has called upon me to come out and make an expose against Joseph Smith; this is to certify that I know nothing derogatory to the character of Joseph Smith, neither in a religious or a moral point of view; and that Doctor Bennett and the Journal used my name without my knowledge or consent; and further that I believe Doctor Bennett to be a bad man and unworthy of public confidence.

HENRY MARKS.

Nauvoo, July 28, 1842.

MOBOCRACY.—We received information from Warrenton on yesterday of an outrage committed on two men, travelling on foot, on the river road, near the town of Marthasville, in Warren county Mo. We give the particulars as detailed to us. The persons above named were travelling, as they said, for the purpose of employment, and stopped to recruit their vigor, when eight or nine men calling themselves regulators, came upon them, and from some suspicious circumstances suspecting them of being enemies to the good order of society, and fearing their intention was to commit some outrage, they were taken to the woods, and there tied hand and foot, to a tree, and their backs lacerated severely. One of the men is now under the care of a doctor; the other is missing, and is supposed to be dead, or spirited away. One of the regulators, so called, has been arrested and recognized by the sufferer; and will undergo a judicial investigation. We omit any comment, at present, as the above particulars were detailed by the sufferer, and are ex parte. There has been a great excitement in Warren county ever since Dr. Jones was assassinated, and we fear it will end in bad consequences.

We understand that the man under the Doctor looks to be an intelligent, decent man, and if it turns out that they were innocent, it will put a stop to any further proceedings of this kind in that vicinity, as there are probably honorable men concerned. When they find they have inflicted punishment on an innocent man their feelings will recoil, and they will be content, in future, to await the slow but more certain justice of the law.—[St. Charles Advertiser.

RIOTS IN IRELAND.—At Ennis, on the 8th, a mob consisting of some thousands of persons, attacked the corn store and mill of the Messrs. Bannatyne, of Ennis, for the purpose of taking provision out of them.

A letter from Galway, dated June 14th, says: "Nothing can exceed the dreadful excitement here at present, in consequence of the high price of provisions. During the whole of yesterday the town was perambulated by large bodies of fishermen, laborers, women and boys.

There was scarcely a store in the town in which potatoes were thought to be kept, that was not broken open. The military and police were called out to check the people, but were obliged by overwhelming numbers to retreat to their respective barracks.

Steamboat Explosion upon the St.

Lawrence, and dreadful loss of life.—The high pressure steamer Shamrock, while running between Montreal and Kingston, U. C., 9th inst., when between Lachine and Pointe Claire, burst her boiler, her bows were blown out, and she went down headforemost. There were one hundred and twenty persons on board at the time, forty-five were taken up unhurt, by barges in tow of the steamer; eighteen wounded were taken up and conveyed to the Montreal hospital, one of whom died during the amputation of his legs, and fifty-four remained unaccounted for. The passengers were English, Irish, and Scotch emigrants, were of a superior order, and had much money with them. The English were supposed to be the greatest sufferers, as they were mostly in the fore part of the boat.

The captain was the last person to leave the wreck, and saved the life of a passenger as he came ashore. The stern floated the next day, when the cabin was burst open, and the corpse of a female drawn out.—Courier.

PENILESS.—The N. Y. Express says—Up to the 17th of May it was ascertained that 10,000 emigrants had not one shilling each left on his arrival. But as a set off to this, we may mention that a widow woman with three children arrived in one of the ships, and had $10,000 about her person.

An editor is like a caterpillar—he is always busy—always cater-ing for the public. Corporal Streeter didn't say this.—[Pic.

We will alter that. Why is an editor like a caterpillar? Because he caters for his columns.

An Ordinance, to amend an Ordinance entitled an Ordinance organizing the Nauvoo Legion, passed Feb. 3d, 1841.

Sec. 1. Be it, and it is hereby ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, That the Lieutenant General of the Nauvoo Legion shall not be required to act as the president of any Court Martial, or of the Legion; also, that he may add to his staff a Chief Chaplain, with the rank of Colonel.

Sec. 2. That officers may be elected without being nominated by the court Martial, and that all vacancies shall be filled by lawful elections, and not by granting Brevet commissions.

Sec. 3. That the General officers may appoint such officers in their respective staffs as may be in conformity with the rules and regulations of the United States Army.

Sec. 4. That so much of the 3d section of the Ordinance, organizing the Nauvoo Legion, approved Feb. 3d, 1841, as authorizes the Major General to act as the Secretary of the Court Martial and Legion, and Adjutant, and Inspector General, is hereby repealed.

Sec. 5. This Ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage, notwithstanding any thing to the contrary heretofore enacted.

Passed July 12, 1842.

JOSEPH SMITH, Mayor.

JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

An Ordinance entitled "An Ordinance, in relation to writs of Habeas Corpus."

Sec. 1. Be it, and it is hereby ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, That no Citizen of this City shall be taken out of the City, by any writ, without the privilege of investigation before the Municipal Court, and the benefit of a writ of Habeas Corpus, as granted in the sixteenth section of the charter of this City.

Be it understood that this ordinance is enacted for the protection of the citizens of this City, that they may in all cases have the right of trial in this City, and not be subjected to illegal process by their enemies.

Sec. 2. This ordinance to take effect, and be in force from and after its passage.—Passed July 5, 1842.

JOSEPH SMITH, Mayor.

JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

An ordinance authorizing the publication of additional laws and ordinances.

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, That all laws and ordinances passed by the City Council, until the laws are printed, be inserted in the book that is now being printed, all ordinances to the contrary notwithstanding.—Passed July 12, 1842.

JOSEPH SMITH, Mayor.

JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

Head Quarters, Nauvoo Legion, }

City of Nauvoo, Aug. 2, 1842. }

The officers of the Nauvoo Legion are hereby ordered to assemble at the Office of Gen. H. Smith, on Saturday the 13th inst., at 10 o'clock A. M., for the purpose of hearing and considering the report of the committee of revision of the laws of the Legion, and electing a Major General to fill the vacancy occasioned by the cashiering of John C. Bennett. By order of

JOSEPH SMITH,

Lieut. General.

WILSON LAW, Brevet Major General.

DRUGS, MEDICINES, &C.

THE subscriber has opened a Drug Store in Nauvoo, and intends keeping a full assortment of every thing in that line,—Paints, Oils, Varnish, Brushes, Turpentine, Linseed, Spermin, Olive, and Castor Oil; white Lead, red and black Lead, Vermilion, French Ultramarine, Chrome Green and yellow, venecian red, spanish brown, lampblack, ivory black, whiting, chalk, yellow ochre, dye stuffs, indigo, cochineal, annatto, madder, coppers, alum, oil vitriol, blue vitriol, logwood, brazilwood, &c., &c.; stationary, plain and ruled cap and letter paper, ink, wafers, quills, sand, &c.; window glass of all sizes, salacra us, putty, spices glass ware, perfumery, soaps, snuff, rosin, matches, blacking, every thing in the medicine line, all the patent medicines; all of which will be sold low for cash; Van Studdiford's ague and fever pills, also his medicated lozenges, and cough, worm, and cathartic lozenges, are constantly on hand. Store on water street above Davis' Hot I.

A. T. TERRELL.

July 23, 1842.

AGUE AND FEVER.

Gleim's tonic mixture and Dr. Renals' pills; two certain cures for that inveterate pest, the chills and fever,—for sale by.

July 23, 1842.

A. T. TERRELL.

BEESWAX.

The highest price in cash will be paid for Beeswax, by (16 m 3) A. T. TERRELL.

District Court of the United States, } within and for the District of Illinois. }

In the matter of the petition of Aaron B. Sturges of Hancock county, to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Aaron B. Sturges of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the first day of October next at the District Court room in the city of Springfield in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have why the prayer of the said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 23rd of June a. d. 1842.

TRUMBULL & BASSETT, Solicitors for pet.

Attest: James F. Owings, clerk. no 15-2w.

As the Sangamo Jack Ass, or perhaps we should more politely say, the state sap sucker, has a great influence in family as well as state affairs, Bennetts friends solicit his co-operation in getting the disclosures to the said runaway Bennett, or else getting the said Bennett to the disclosures, for the above reward, and thereby help fill a niche in his bust, and smooth a knob on the man, which the poets have forgotten to sing, and the prophets did not foretell. Eds. please copy.

COWITCH.

BENNETT.

The following from the Missouri Reporter, shows Bennett's decline in the western market. It is reported that Greenbush N. Y. has to be smutted with his dust among other unfortunate places.

"THE MORMONS.—We understand that General Bennett, formerly of the Nauvoo Legion, is now in this city, with the intention of making such disclosures as will show what part Jo Smith, the Mormon Prophet, took in the recent attempt to assassinate ex-Governor Boggs, of this State. Gen. Bennett, Sidney Rigdon, and Gen. Robinson have lately quarreled with Jo Smith, and have since publicly charged him with the perpetration of the grossest frauds and crimes. If the Mormon Prophet has really been guilty of the offences now imputed to him, we sincerely trust that he will meet with condign punishment. We must confess, however, that we place no great confidence in the statements of Bennett, Rigdon & Co. They have been active and prominent men at Nauvoo, and must have been aware of any villanies which may have been practised by the Prophet for a number of years. They have remained silent during all that period, and suffered their leader to impose upon his deluded followers without making known to them how grossly they were deceived. If Bennett had appeared before the public under more favorable circumstances, we might have been induced to give some credit to his pretended disclosures. He has been ruled out of the Church of the Saints, and stripped of his power and office, and it may be that he is now endeavoring to glut his revenge upon the Prophet.

From the Norwalk (Ct.) Gazette, we take the following elegant extracts of letters to the Editor:

"It is an acknowledged fact here among our best citizens, that there is not a worse clan than this same Mormon clan. Lying, profane swearing, intemperance (for Joe himself is a drunkard) & dealing, are among the characteristics of Joe Smith and Sidney Rigdon's Latter Day Saints.

It is true they preach up their morality, honesty and temperance; talk of their black list, on which they publish the names of Mormon villains—refer you to their book of covenants for their excellent precepts, and pretend to be the salt of the earth and the salvation of the world, while perhaps they have an eye on a valuable horse or some other fine piece of property, and if they cannot convince you that, that horse belongs to the prophet, perhaps, like the Dutchman's pigs, he may come up missing. This is no fiction.

For many miles around Nauvoo, (for I have traveled the country over,) fine horses, oxen, cows, wearing apparel from the wash and bedding, have not only been missing, but been recovered from these saints of the last days; but if they succeed in getting into Nauvoo with their plunder before their arrest, the chase may as well be given up first as last, for no trace of property can be found.

Joe and his friend Rigdon, recently rode out of Nauvoo into the country, and Joe returned solitary and alone. The Mormons inquired eagerly—Where is Sidney? The prophet informed them, that as they were journeying, it came to pass that two angels met them and took Sidney up to heaven, and that on a certain day he would return again to the promised city. The time came and Sid, came also, and brought with him the manuscript book of Abraham of old.

I am informed that Joe asserts that the same angels that accompanied Rigdon to heaven, will soon call for him, giving him only time to translate the book of Abraham before he goes. He has called on his followers for seven thousand dollars before the angel calls for him.

The villain that thus slanders any portion of community, will lie, steal and murder; and the editor who is base enough to publish such awful calumny and fuel for persecution, is a more contemptible knave, coward and pestilential assassin, than the writer. No disguise! all here, Nauvoo and the Mormons! Rigdon and Smith, law, gospel, courts, Judges, Governor and State! No claw off this time! stick to your lies, and we will rest upon the truth! Sink away towards hell, and we will rise up towards heaven! Blessed is the peace-maker; but offences will come, and we unto him by whom they come!

What land is that where clocks are made?
And lying is a common trade?
Where priests with blue laws, slick as grease,
All shear the flocks, and keep the fleece?
That's old Connecticut.

"* Owing to a disappointment of paper we were unable to issue the Wasp on Saturday last. The extra, however, supplies the place and serves all further apology. The date on our first page should be Thursday Aug. 4, 1842.

Short stories and long friends;
For little lacks, and great ends.

For the Wasp.

In looking over the Sangamo Journal of July 22d, 1842, I find an extract from a piece of mine published some time ago, in the Times and Seasons, calling on the people to search the public dockets, that they might learn the amount of crime committed by the Mormons. J. C. Bennett comes out and gives extracts from the dockets of Hancock, Adams, and McDonough counties, setting forth seven arrests of what he calls Mormons, three of whom were committed, according to his statement.

I would just say to the public that some of those rated in Dr. Bennett's extract, never were Mormons, their names are not on the Church Record, and as to the others I believe they were all cut off from the church long ago, you will see the names of some of them published in the Times and Seasons of Dec. 15th 1840. Does the very pious Doctor think that he can make the world believe that we are responsible for the acts of wicked men like himself whom we have cut off from our society, if so, we are accountable for all the Doctor's doings, his perjuries, his lyings, his falsehoods, his calumnies and (in reports are true) his murders of many infants. We will have a black catalogue of crimes to answer for, if we have to shoulder all J. C. Bennett's wickedness from lead after we cut him off from the Church—folly! folly! The Doctor thought he had fired a tremendous gun, but it is only a flash in the pan, like all his big doings.

W. LAW.

For the Wasp.

Inasmuch as the Sangamo Journal has called upon me to come out and make an expose against Joseph Smith: this is to certify that I know nothing derogatory to the character of Joseph Smith, neither in a religious or a moral point of view; and that Doctor Bennett and the Journal used my name without my knowledge or consent; and further that I believe Doctor Bennett to be a bad man and unworthy of public confidence.

HENRY MARES.

Nauvoo, July 28, 1842.

MOBILITY.—We received information from Warrenton on yesterday of an outrage committed on two men, travelling on foot, on the river road, near the town of Marthasville, in Warren county Mo. We give the particulars as detailed to us. The persons above named were travelling, as they said, for the purpose of employment, and stopped to recruit their vigor, when eight or nine men calling themselves regulators, came upon them, and from some suspicious circumstances suspecting them of being enemies to the good order of society, and fearing their intention was to commit some outrage, they were taken to the woods, and there tied hand and foot, to a tree, and their backs lacerated severely. One of the men is now under the care of a doctor; the other is missing, and is supposed to be dead, or spirited away. One of the regulators, so called, has been arrested and recognized by the sufferer; and will undergo a judicial investigation. We omit any comment, at present, as the above particulars were detailed by the sufferer, and are ex parte. There has been a great excitement in Warren county ever since Dr. Jones was assassinated, and we fear it will end in bad consequences.

We understand that the man under the Doctor looks to be an intelligent, decent man, and it turns out that they were innocent, it will put a stop to any further proceedings of this kind in that vicinity, as there are probably honorable men concerned. When they find they have inflicted punishment on an innocent man their feelings will recoil, and they will be content, in future to await the slow but more certain justice of the law.—[St. Charles Advertiser.

RIOTS IN IRELAND.—At Ennis, on the 8th, a mob consisting of some thousands of persons, attacked the corn store and mill of the Messrs. Bannatyne, of Ennis, for the purpose of taking provision out of them.

A letter from Galway, dated June 14th, says: "Nothing can exceed the dreadful excitement here at present, in consequence of the high price of provisions. During the whole of yesterday the town was perambulated by large bodies of fishermen, laborers, women and boys.

There was scarcely a store in the town in which potatoes were thought to be kept, that was not broken open. The military and police were called out to check the people, but were obliged by overwhelming numbers to retreat to their respective barracks.

Steamboat Explosion upon the St. Lawrence, and dreadful loss of life.—

The high pressure steamer Shamrock, while running between Montreal and Kingston, U. C., 9th inst., when between Lachine and Pointe Claire, burst her boiler, her bows were blown out, and she went down headforemost. There were one hundred and twenty persons on board at the time, forty-five were taken up unhurt, by barges in tow of the steamer; eighteen wounded were taken up and conveyed to the Montreal hospital, one of whom died during the amputation of his legs, and fifty-four remained unaccounted for. The passengers were English, Irish, and Scotch emigrants, were of a superior order, and had much money with them. The English were supposed to be the greatest sufferers, as they were mostly in the fore part of the boat.

The captain was the last person to leave the wreck, and saved the life of a passenger as he swam a shore. The stern floated the next day, when the cabin was hauled up, and the body of a female drawn out.—Courier.

PENILESS.—The N. Y. Express says—Up to the 17th of May it was ascertained that 10,000 emigrants had not one shilling each left on his arrival. But as a set off to this, we may mention that a widow woman with three children arrived in one of the ships, and had $10,000 about her person.

An editor is like a caterpillar—he is always busy—always cater-ing for the public. Corporal Streeter didn't say this.—[Pic.

We will alter that. Why is an editor like a caterpillar? Because he caters for his columns.

An Ordinance, to amend an Ordinance entitled an Ordinance organizing the Nauvoo Legion, passed Feb. 3d, 1841.

Sec. 1. Be it, and it is hereby ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, That the Lieutenant General of the Nauvoo Legion shall not be required to act as the president of any Court Martial, or of the Legion; also, that he may add to his staff a Chief Chaplain, with the rank of Colonel.

Sec. 2. That officers may be elected without being nominated by the court Martial, and that all vacancies shall be filled by lawful elections, and not by granting Brevet commissions.

Sec. 3. That the General officers may appoint such officers in their respective staffs as may be in conformity with the rules and regulations of the United States Army.

Sec. 4. That so much of the 3d section of the Ordinance organizing the Nauvoo Legion, approved Feb. 3d, 1841, as authorizes the Major General to act as the Secretary of the Court Martial and Legion, and Adjutant, and Inspector General, is hereby repealed.

Sec. 5. This Ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage, notwithstanding any thing to the contrary heretofore enacted.

Passed July 12, 1842.

JOSEPH SMITH, Mayor.

JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

An Ordinance entitled "An Ordinance, in relation to writs of Habeas Corpus."

Sec. 1. Be it, and it is hereby ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, That no Citizen of this City shall be taken out of the City, by any writ, without the privilege of investigation before the Municipal Court, and the benefit of a writ of Habeas Corpus, as granted in the seventeenth section of the charter of this City.

Be it understood that this ordinance is enacted for the protection of the citizens of this City, that they may in all cases have the right of trial in this City, and not be subjected to illegal process by their enemies.

Sec. 2. This ordinance to take effect, and be in force from and after its passage.—Passed July 5, 1842.

JOSEPH SMITH, Mayor.

JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

An ordinance authorizing the publication of additional laws and ordinances.

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, That all laws and ordinances passed by the City Council, until the laws are printed, be inserted in the book that is now being printed, all ordinances to the contrary notwithstanding.—Passed July 12, 1842.

JOSEPH SMITH, Mayor.

JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

Head Quarters, Nauvoo Legion, }
City of Nauvoo, Aug. 2, 1842. }

The officers of the Nauvoo Legion are hereby ordered to assemble at the Office of Gen. H. Smith, on Saturday the 13th inst., at 10 o'clock A. M., for the purpose of hearing and considering the report of the committee of revision of the laws of the Legion, and electing a Major General to fill the vacancy occasioned by the cashiering of John C. Bennett. By order of

JOSEPH SMITH,

Lieut. General.

WILSON LAW, Brevet Major General.

DRUGS, MEDICINES, &C.

THE subscriber has opened a Drug Store in Nauvoo, and intends keeping a full assortment of every thing in that line.—Paints, Oils, Varnish, Brushes, Turpentine, Linseed, Spermaceti, and Castor Oil; white Lead, red and black Lead, Vermillion, Prussian Blue, Lytharge, Chrome green and yellow, venecian red, chalk, yellow ochre, dye stuffs, indigo, cochineal, annatto, madder, copperas, alum, oil vitriol, blue vitriol, logwood, brazilwood, &c.; stationary, plain and ruled cap and letter paper, ink, wafers, quills, sand, &c.; window-glass of all sizes, saleratus, putty, spices, glass ware, perfumery, soaps, snuff, resin, matches, blacking, every thing in the medicine line, all the patent medicines; all of which will be sold low for cash; Van Studdiford's ague and fever pills, also his medicated lozenges, and cough, worm, and carthartic lozenges, are constantly on hand. Store on water street above Davis' Hotel.

A. T. TERRELL.

July, 23, 1842.

AGUE AND FEVER.

Gleim's tonic mixture and Dr. Renals' pills: two certain cures for that inveterate pest, the chills and fever.—for sale by,

July 23, 1842.

A. T. TERRELL.

BEESWAX.

The highest price in cash will be paid for Beeswax, by (16 m 3) A. T. TERRELL.

District Court of the United States, }
within and for the District of Illinois. }

In the matter of the petition of Aaron B. Sturges of Hancock county, to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Aaron B. Sturges of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the first day of October next at the District Court room in the city of Springfield in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have why the prayer of the said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 23rd of June a. d. 1842

TRUMBULL & BASSETT, Solicitors for pet.
Attest: James F. Owings, clerk no 15-2w.

696
LIST OF LETTERS,
REMAINING In the Post Office at Nauvoo Hancock county Illinois, July 1st 1842, which, if not taken out before the 1st of October next, will be sent to the Post Office department, as dead letters.

N. B. Persons wishing any of the following letters will please say they are advertised, or they may not get them.

H Alexander	A Hay
Thos Alister	Caroline E Hubbard
Miles Anderson	Saml Hamer 2
T O Angel	N Higgins
Thos Arthur	L S Hallister
Adolphus Allen	J Hunter
J K Allen	W W Hay
Wm Allen	Jacob Hess
George Beebe	W Hunt
C Baldwin	3 R Hubbard
J G Bently	G W Harris
N Boscow	2 H B Hayt
Albert Brown	E Heaton
A or B Adams	J Hooper
I Barlow	Noah Hubbard
S Blackledge	A C Hodge
R Brasher	Isaac Higbee
J Bullard	I H Haskinson
Jos Baily	R Hill
John Fair	Geo Hubbard
C Biddlecome	Peter Haws
Jane Black	Mr Hemmeck
N. Bliss	Saml James
E Bass jr	Wm Jones
J Bates	Hiram Jackson
J Blackhurst	Harry Jacobs
H Bradford	John S Johnson
C Butler	David Jones
P G Boman	Ed Johnston
Wm Batson	J W Johnston
B Clark	J W Jenkins
J Carter	Elizabeth Jones
G Coltrin	Benj Johnson
S A Carlisle	Thos Sher Jackson 2
Thos Clayton	mary Kelsey
J Craghton	Easton Kelsey
C Harless	R Kinnamon
Wm Campion	Westly Knights
H C Connor	Margaret Kington
Jas Carroll	Charisley Klepper
Walter Crun	Hynam Hoil
John Cams	W Luce
W Chapman	D B Lamorowx
W B Corfit	Mariah Lane
Chas Chapman	John Loveless
J B Day	Ed Little
Elizabeth Durfee	L M Lyman
John Davis	Andrew Lytle
E B Davis	T Leonard
Miss Elizabeth Davis	S McLenathan
C R Dana	Mary E Lightner
J Dunham	W Lancaster
Ed Duzett	C W Lyon
J O Duke	m Logan
J Durfee	E Landers
Miss R Delkith	Fred Levy
S Emong	2 Wm Mikesell
Ed Nauvoo Paper	S McMurtry
J Emery	Wm Mmlntire
J Eldridge	Davis McOlney
John Eagle	Harris Murphy
Dwight Evlish	Jessee McCarrell
J H Enfried	J H Murphy
Mr Emmet	Jas McLalard
R Frost	Pridy Meeks
R B Foster	James McMahan
W Fosset	Henry Mower 2
J S Fulmer	Samuel Merrill
John Foss	J McLellin
C B Fisher	John Middleton
John Field	Thos Mckey
J R Fisher	Wm McKay
Jas Flanagan	E p Merium
DM Gammit	H marham
Jno S Gleason	E McNall 2
CP Garamth	George Morey
Thos Green	H W Miller
Jas Gordon	W Morgan
Jane Glover	Wm munjar
W S Gould	Joel Niles
Guy Green	Allen Meeks
E m Garfield	Mary Mitchell
E H Groves	George Middagh
Jas Graham	3 Eligah Newman 2
I Cochevaur	Wm Nesbet
Miss Ann Gardner	Wm Newanger
P A Goodwin	Newel Night
B D Harris	mary Onstead
A Hunsoker	Ed Oahy
H Herrinshaw	2 David Osborne
martin Harris	F Phippen
C Hallett	2 John Price

J Halston	Hannah Price
Chas Hopkins	J E Page
Seth Palmer	Cath Stoker
George Peacock 2	Wealthy Shumway
E Potter	Ezra Strond
J E Pettis	Jacob Strong
Jessee Pettis	Nath Stacher
Adison Pratt	R Stephens
Channey Peck	Jas Standing
J T Patten	Jas Simpson
Jacob Peart	Wm Stephen
J H Price	M M Samuels
Roby Pouter	Joshua Smith
Adaline Pery	Warren Smith
Joseph Parker	Hyrum Smith 3
Wm Pool	Joseph Smith 3
Mary Ann Price	Daniel Tyler
Wm Price	N Turner
George Price 2	Turza Thatcher
C H Phelps	Thos Turnbull
Mary H Palmer 2	Burr Thomlinson
Mary Page	Jane Twist
Wm Parsons	Jothan Taylor 2
Tharit Pearson	Charity Tharp
Archebald Rite	Wm Thompson
R A Russell	2 John Taylor
John Roberts	2 Ira Willson
Thos Richmond	Ann Wright
J R Robbins	Robert Wright
J E Royce	Eliza J Webb 2
Thos Raucliffe	Pardon Webb
Amelia Rogers	Channey Webb
Sarah Riland	Benj S Wilber
Sarah Roberts	Martha A Webster
N Runniun	F G Williams
T Rogers	2 Benj Warrington 2
J L Robinson	Cath Willson
Wm Robinson	Isa Whitesides
Chas Raymond	James Whitehead
W W Reed	SS Willcox
W Richards	Thos Weakefield
Wm Seely	Siles Willcox
John Stiles	J B Walker
E Stout	J L or A S Workman
Ira Sherman	M B Welton
Lyman Stephens	L Woodruff
C A Scofield	J J Walker
M M Saunders	Y Yeomaur
R Shepherd	Brigham Young 4
L Stodard	D D Yearley
Wm Sleeper

SIDNEY RIGDON, P. M.

MEAL, FLOUR,

AND PROVISIONS OF EVERY KIND,
WANTED ON TITHING.

THE brethren abroad will remember that those who devote the whole of their time to work on the Temple must be fed; they cannot live and work without provisions, and we are growing very scarce; and especially so with regard to MEAL and FLOUR. Those, therefore, who have the above articles, and intend to consecrate such on their tithing, will please forward them immediately to Nauvoo. W. RICHARDS, Recorder for the Temple.

Nauvoo, June 18th 1842. 10-tf.

NOTES

DUE the Trustee for labor on the Temple, are left with the Temple Committee for collection. Brethren, remember that your contracts with your God are sacred; the labor is wanted immediately. W. RICHARDS, Temple Recorder.

June 25, 1842. 10-tf.

P. S. Remember the notes due for property also.

BENCH & MOULDING PLANES.

WANTED, immediately, a large number of the above Planes on tithing. The brethren who have got such and can spare them would greatly facilitate the building of the Temple by bringing them as soon as possible to the recorder's office, and they shall be entered to their credit on tithing. All kinds of bench planes whether good or indifferent can be made useful at the Temple. The moulding planes should be such as suit the present fashion. Also all lumber, which would make plane stocks, would be very serviceable. JOSEPH SMITH, Trustee.

W. CLAYTON, Clerk.

MEDICAL NOTICE.

DR. W. B. BRINK.

Respectfully tenders his professional services to the citizens of Nauvoo, and its vicinity, as a botanic practitioner, having adopted the botanic practice from a positive conviction of the truth of its doctrines, and the unrivaled success which attends the practice; and hopes to give general satisfaction and prove the superior efficacy of the botanic treatment to those who may place themselves under his care; also a number of valuable preparations of his own compounding; such as anti-bilious pills peculiarly serviceable in dyspepsia, bilious fever, &c; restorative bitters, pulmonary balsom, cough syrup, rheumatic liniment, neutralizing cordial; this is one of the most valuable preparations known for cholery morbus, cholery infantum, or summer complaints of children, fever, ague and cancers, will be treated upon the principle of no cure no pay and those afflicted with cancers will do well to call and try a remedy which has never failed; and those who are not able to pay will be cured without charge.

Dr. B. is consulted in the most intricate and protracted cases of secret disease that require practical experience to ensure success; every species and form of the disease must yield to his treatment which is in all cases mild and soft, requiring no interruption from business or change of diet, and will treat the disease upon the principle of no cure no pay; office at the store of W. Allen, formerly occupied by Mr. E. D. Wooley.

W. B. BRINK, M. D.

Nauvoo, July 2nd 1842. 12-3m.

GUARDIAN'S SALE.

IN pursuance of a decree of the Circuit Court of Hancock county made at the May Term thereof A. D. 1842. The subscriber, Guardian of Emma Caroline, & Chauncey G. Robison, infant children and heirs of James Robison deceased, will expose to public sale on the 8th day of August next, in city lots about thirty six acres of land belonging to said wards lying in the county of Hancock, and State of Illinois, being apart of the East half of the West half of Section No. six, township No. six North, of range No. eight West of the fourth principal meridian, said lands will be sold on a credit of six months, and will take place on the premises near the residence of Daniel H. Wells Esq. between the hours of 9 o'clock A. M. and 6 o'clock P. M. of said day and will be continued between the same hours, from day to day, till said property is all sold.

CHARLOTTE ANN ROBISON, Guardian.

Nauvoo June 20th 1842.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus
J. Salsbery, Plymouth,
Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Chiffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Page, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
James Curtis, Horners Town.
W. I. Appleby, Reecless Town.
Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Salem.
Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapiar.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirtland.
NEW YORK.
Charles Thompson, Batavia.
L. R. Foster, city of New York.

TRAVELING AGENTS.

Hiram Kimball.

DR. J. F. WELD,

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.

Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

COMMISSIONERS SALE.

BY order of the Circuit Court of Hancock county will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder on Monday the 8th day of August next the south west quarter of the south west quarter of section number twenty four in township number seven north of the base line of range number six west of the fourth principle meridian situated in the county of Hancock and State of Illinois, said land has an excellent water privilege with a good saw mill with tools and a flowering mill in commencement, a small framed house and various other improvements.

The terms of sale will be twenty five per centum down, the balance payable in six months to be secured by a note with good approved security and a mortgage on the property.

The sale will commence at 10 o'clock A. M.

L. L. WILCOX.
JOEL BRADSHAW.
RIGHT RIGGINS.
ommissioners.

NOTICE.

IS hereby given that the partnership heretofore existing under the name of George W. Crouse and Nathaniel Jennings is this day dissolved by mutual consent and all persons indebted to the firm, will call and settle with George W. Crouse without delay, under whose name the business will be continued.

Dated Nauvoo June 11th 1842.

LOOK HERE! LOOK HERE!!

WANTED, at the Nauvoo Foundry, a quantity of Stone coal; any persons wishing to furnish it, will please call on Hiram Kimball, or Geo. W. Robinson, at the Post Office.

Old castings will be taken in exchange for new. Nauvoo, June 13th 1842. 10-tf.

District Court of the United States, }
WITHIN AND FOR THE DISTRICT OF ILLINOIS. }

In the matter of the petition of John S. Fullmer of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that John S. Fullmer of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court Room in the city of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July, A. D. 1842.]

RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk. 14-3t

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES, }
WITHIN AND FOR THE DISTRICT OF ILLINOIS. }

In the matter of the Petition of Charles Warner of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Charles Warner of Hancock county has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts, under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield, in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons intersted may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July A. D. 1842.

RALSTON WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest James F. Owings Clerk. 14-3t

LIST OF LETTERS,

REMAINING in the Post Office at Nauvoo, Hancock county Illinois, July 1st 1842, which, if not taken out before the 1st of October next, will be sent to the Post Office department, as directed by law.

N. B. Persons wishing any of the following letters will please say they are advertised, or they may not get them.

H Alexander	A Hay
Thos Alister	Caroline E Hubbard
Miles Anderson	Saml Hamer
T O Angel	N Higgins
Thos Arthur	L S Hallister
Adolphus Allen	J Hunter
J K Allen	W W Hay
Wm Allen	Jacob Hess
George Beebe	W Hunt
C B Brown	3 R Hubbard
J G Bently	G W Harris
N Bostow	2 H B Hayt
Albert Brown	E Heaton
A or B Adams	J Hooper
I Barlow	Noah Hubbard
St George	A C Hodge
R B B	Isaac Hodge
J Ballard	I H Haskinon
Jos Baily	R Hill
John Blair	Geo Hubbard
C Bidd come	Peter Haws
Jane Black	Mr Hemmeek
N. Bliss	Saml James
E Lass Jr	Wm Jones
J Bates	Hiram Jackson
J Blackhurst	Harry Jacobs
H Bradford	John S Johnson
C Butler	David Jones
P G Boman	Ed Johnston
Wm Batson	J W Johnston
B Clark	J W Jenkins
J Carter	Elizabeth Jones
G Coltrin	Benj Johnson
S A Carlisle	Thos Sher Jackson
Thos Clayton	mary Kelsey
J Craghton	Easton Kelsey
C Harless	R Kinnamon
Wm Campion	Westly Knights
H C Connor	Margaret Kington
Jas Carroll	Charisley Klepper
Walter Crun	Hyrarn Hoil
John Camis	W Luce
W Chapman	D B Lamorowx
W B Corfit	Mariah Lane
Chas Chapman	John Loveless
J B Day	Ed Little
Elizabeth Durfee	L M Lyman
John Davis	Andrew Lytle
Miss E. R Davis	L Leonard
Miss Elizabeth Davis	S McLenathan
C R Dana	Mary E Lightner
J Dugan	W Lancaster
Ed Puzett	C W Lyon
J O Duke	m Logan
J Durfee	E Landers
Miss R Delkith	Fred Levy
S Emong	2 Wm Mikesell
Ed Nauvoo Iaper	S McMurtry
J Emery	Wm McIntire
J Eldridge	Davis McOlney
John Eagle	Harris Murphy
Dwight Evilish	Jessee McCarrell
J H Enfried	J H Murphy
Mr Emmet	Jas McLalard
R Frost	Pridy Meeks
R R Foster	James McMahan
W Fosset	Henry Mower
J S Fulmer	Samuel Merrill
John Foss	J McLellan
C B Fisher	John Middleton
John Field	Thos McKey
J R Fisher	Wm McKay
Jas Flanagan	E P Merium
DM Gammit	H Marhham
Jno S Gleason	E McNall
C P Garauth	George Morey
Thos Green	H W Miller
Jas Gorden	W Morgan
Jane Glover	Wm munjar
W S Gould	Joel Miles
Guy Green	Allen Meeks
E m Garfield	Mary Mitchell
H H Groves	George Middagh
Jas Graham	3 Eligh ewman
I Gochevaur	Wm Nesbet
Miss Ann Gardner	Wm Niswanger
P A Goodwin	Newel Night
B D Harris	mary Onstead
A Hunsoker	Ed Oaby
H H Hinchman	2 David Oaboma
marion Harris	F Phippen
C Hallett	2 John Price

J Halston	Hannah Price
Chas Hopkins	J E Page
Seth Palmer	Cath Stoker
George Peacock	2 Wealthy Shumway
E Potter	Ezra Strond
J E Pettis	Jacob Strong
Jessee Pottis	Nath Stacher
Adison Pratt	R Stephens
Channey Peck	Jas Standing
J T Patten	Jas Simpson
Jacob Peart	Wm Stephen
J H Price	M M Samuels
Roby Pouter	Joshua Smith
Adaline Pery	Warren Smith
Joseph Parker	Hyrum Smith
Wm Pool	Joseph Smith
Mary Ann Price	Daniel Tyler
W Price	N Turner
George Price	2 Turza Thatcher
C H Phelps	Thos Turnbull
Mary H Palmer	2 Burr Thomlinson
Mary Page	Jane Twist
Wm Parsons	Johithar Taylor
Tharit Pearson	Charity Tharp
Archibald Rite	Wm Thompson
R A Russell	2 John Taylor
John Roberts	2 Ira Willson
Thos Richmond	Ann Wright
J R Robbins	Robert Wright
J E Royce	Eliza J Webb
Thos Rauliffe	2 Pardon Webb
Amelia Rogers	Channey Webb
Sarah Riland	Benj S Wilber
Sarah Roberts	Martha A Webster
N Rannion	F G Williams
T Rogers	2 Benj Warrington
J L Robinson	Cath Willson
Wm Robinson	Isa Whitesides
Chas Raymond	James Whitehead
W W Reed	S S Willcox
W Richards	Thos Weakefield
Wm Seely	Siles Wilcox
John Stiles	J B Walker
E Stout	J L or A S Workman
Ira Sherman	M B Welton
Lyman Stephens	L Woodruff
C A Scofield	J J Walker
M M Saunders	Y Yeomaur
R Shepherd	Brigham Young
L Stodard	4 D D Yearsley
Wm Sleeper

SIDNEY RIGDON, P. M.

MEAL, FLOUR,

AND PROVISIONS OF EVERY KIND.

WANTED ON TITHING.

THE brethren abroad will remember that those who devote the whole of their time to work on the Temple must be fed; they cannot live and work without provisions, and we are growing very scarce; and especially so with regard to MEAL and FLOUR. Those, therefore, who have the above articles, and intend to consecrate such on their tithing, will please forward them immediately to Nauvoo.

W. RICHARDS, Recorder for the Temple.

Nauvoo, June 18th 1842. 10-11.

NOTES

DUE the Trustee for labor on the Temple, are left with the Temple Committee for collection. Brethren, remember that your contracts with your God are sacred; the labor is wanted immediately.

W. RICHARDS, Temple Recorder.

June 25, 1842. 10-11.

P. S. Remember the notes due for property also.

BENCH & MOULDING PLANES.

WANTED, immediately, a large number of the above Planes on tithing. The brethren who have got such and can spare them would greatly facilitate the building of the Temple by bringing them as soon as possible to the recorder's office, and they shall be entered to their credit on tithing. All kinds of bench planes whether good or indifferent can be made useful at the Temple. The moulding planes should be such as suit the present fashion.

Also all lumber, which would make plane stocks, would be very serviceable.

JOSEPH SMITH, Trustee.

W. CLAYTON, Clerk.

MEDICAL NOTICE.

DR. W. B. BRINK.

Respectfully tenders his professional services to the citizens of Nauvoo, and its vicinity, as a botanic practitioner, having adopted the botanic practice from a positive conviction of the truth of its doctrines, and the unrivaled success which attends the practice; and hopes to give general satisfaction and prove the superior efficacy of the botanic treatment to those who may place themselves under his care; also a number of valuable preparations of his own compounding; such as anti-bilious pills peculiarly serviceable in dyspepsia, bilious fever, &c; restorative bitters, pulmonary balsom, cough syrup, rheumatic ointment, neutralizing cordial; this is one of the most valuable preparations known for cholery morbus, cholery infantum, or summer complaints of children, fever ague and cancers, will be treated upon the principle of no cure no pay and those afflicted with cancers will do well to call and try a remedy which has never failed; and those who are not able to pay will be cured without charge.

Dr. B. is consulted in the most intricate and protracted cases of secret disease that require practical experience to ensure success; every species and form of the disease must yield to his treatment which is in all cases mild and soft, requiring no interruption from business or change of diet, and will treat the disease upon the principle of no cure no pay; office at the store of W. Alen, formerly occupied by Mr. E. D. Wooley.

W. B. BRINK, M. D.

Nauvoo, July 2nd 1842. 12-3m.

GUARDIAN'S SALE.

In pursuance of a decree of the Circuit Court of Hancock county made at the May Term thereof A. D. 1842. The subscriber, Guardian of Emma Caroline, & Chauncey G. Robison, infant children and heirs of James Robison deceased, will expose to public sale on the 8th day of August next, in city lots about thirty six acres of land belonging to said wards lying in the county of Hancock, and State of Illinois, being apart of the East half of the West half of Section No. six, township No. six North, of range No. eight West of the fourth principal meridian, said lands will be sold on a credit of six months, sale will take place on the premises near the residence of Daniel H. Wells Esq. between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 6 o'clock P. M. of said day and will be continued between the same hours, from day to day, till said property is all sold.

CHARLOTTE ANN ROBISON, Guardian.

Nauvoo June 20th 1842.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus
J. Salsbery, Plymouth,
Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Chiffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Page, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
Jam s Curtis, Horners Town.
W. A. Appleby, Reclless Town.
Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Salem.
Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapiet.
OHIO.
John Johnson, Kirtland.

NEW YORK.
Charles Thompson, Batavia.
L. R. Foster, City of New York.

TRAVELING AGENTS.

Hiram Kimball.

DR. J. F. WELD,

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.

Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

COMMISSIONERS SALE.

BY order of the Circuit Court of Hancock county will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder on Monday the 8th day of August next the south west quarter of the south west quarter of section number twenty four in township number seven north of the base line of range number six west of the fourth principle meridian situated in the county of Hancock and State of Illinois, said land has an excelent water privilege with a good saw mill with tools and a flowering mill in commencement, a small framed house and various other improvements.

The terms of sale will be twenty five per centum down, the ballance payable in six months to be secured by a note with good approved security and a mortgage on the property.

The sale will commence at 10 o'clock A. M.

L. L. WILCOX.

JOEL BRADSHAW.

RIGHT RIGGINS.

ommissioners.

NOTICE.

Is hereby given that the partnership heretofore existing under the name of George W. Crouse and Nathaniel Jennings is this day dissolved by mutual consent and all persons indebted to the firm, will call and settle with George W. Crouse without delay, under whose name the business will be continued.

Dated Nauvoo June 11th 1842.

LOOK HERE! LOOK HERE!!

WANTED, at the Nauvoo Foundry, a quantity of Stone coal; any persons wishing to furnish it, will please call on Hiram Kimball, or Geo. W. Robinson, at the Post Office.

Old castings will be taken in exchange for new. Nauvoo, June 13th 1842. 10-11.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois. In the matter of the petition of John S. Fullmer of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that John S. Fullmer of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court Room in the city of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July, A. D. 1842.]

RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk. 14-31.

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES, WITHIN AND FOR THE DISTRICT OF ILLINOIS.

In the matter of the Petition of Charles Warner of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Charles Warner of Hancock county has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts, under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield, in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons intersted may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July A. D. 1842.

RALSTON WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest James F. Owings Clerk. 14-31

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 17.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, August 13, 1842.

Whole Number 17

THE WASP.

EDITED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY

WM. SMITH.

At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.
TERMS—$1.50 invariably in advance.

POETRY.

For the Wasp.

THE BRIDE'S AVOWAL.

Inscribed to Miss L. for her bridal morning.

BY MISS E. R. SNOW.

Dearest, the hour approaches,
Our destinies to twine
In one eternal wreath of fate,
As holy beings join.
May God approve our union—
May angels come to bless;
And may our bridal wreath be gem'd
With endless happiness.

My bosom's best affections
I never could resign,
Until thy goodness drew them forth,
And now my heart is thine.
Confiding in thy guardian care,
I cheerfully forego
All else of happiness to share
With thee, in weal or woe.

The world has smil'd upon me—
I scorn its flattery,
For nought, but thy approving look,
Is happiness to me.
I would not sell thy confidence,
For all the pearls that strew
The ocean's bed or all the gems
That sparkle in Peru.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN GEYSERS.

Extract from an unpublished work, entitled
"LIFE IN THE ROCKY MOUNTAINS."

I had heard in the summer of 1833, while at rendezvous, that remarkable boiling springs had been discovered on the sources of the Madison, by a party of trappers, in their spring hunt; of which the accounts they gave, were so very astonishing, that I determined to examine them myself, before recording their description, though I had the united testimony of more than twenty men on the subject, who all declared they saw them, and that they really were as extensive and remarkable as they had been described. Having now an opportunity of paying them a visit, and as another or a better might not soon occur, I parted with the company after supper, and taking with me two Pen-d'orelles, (who were induced to make the excursion with me, by the promise of an extra present,) set out at a round pace, the night being clear and comfortable. We proceeded over the plain about twenty miles, and halted until day-light, on a fine spring, flowing into Cammas Creek. Refreshed by a few hour's sleep, we started again after a hasty breakfast, and entered a very extensive forest, called the Pine Woods: (a continued succession of low mountains or hills, entirely covered by a dense growth of this species of timber;) which we passed through, and reached the vicinity of the springs about dark, having seen several small lakes or ponds on the sources of the Madison, and rode about forty miles; which was a hard day's ride, taking into consideration the rough irregularity of the country through which we had travelled.

We regaled ourselves with a cup of coffee, the materials for making which, we had brought with us, and immediately

after supper, lay down to rest, sleepy and much fatigued. The continual roaring of the springs, however, (which was distinctly heard,) for some time prevented my going to sleep, and excited an impatient curiosity to examine them, which I was obliged to defer the gratification of, until morning, and filled my slumbers with visions of waterspouts, cataracts, fountains, jets d'eau of immense dimensions, etc. etc.

When I arose in the morning, clouds of vapour seemed like a dense fog to overhang the springs, from which frequent reports or explosions of different loudness, constantly assailed our ears. I immediately proceeded to inspect them, and might have exclaimed with the Queen of Sheba, when their full reality of dimensions and novelty burst upon my view, "the half was not told me."

From the surface of a rocky plain or table, burst forth columns of water, of various dimensions, projected high in the air, accompanied by loud explosions, and sulphurous vapours, which were highly disagreeable to the smell. The rock from which these springs burst forth, was calcareous, and probably extends some distance from them, beneath the soil. The largest of these wonderful fountains, projects a column of boiling water several feet in diameter, to the height of more than one hundred and fifty feet, in my opinion; but the party of Alvarez, who discovered it, persist in declaring that it could not be less than four times that distance in height—accompanied with a tremendous noise. These explosions and discharges occur at intervals of about two hours. After having witnessed three of them, I ventured near enough to put my hand into the water of its basin, but withdrew it instantly, for the heat of the water in this immense chaldron, was altogether too great for my comfort; and the agitation of the water, the disagreeable effluvia continually exuding, and the hollow unearthly rumbling under the rock on which I stood, so ill accorded with my notions of personal safety, that I retreated back precipitately, to a respectful distance. The Indians, who were with me, were quite appalled, and could not by any means be induced to approach them. They seemed astonished at my presumption, in advancing up to the large one, and when I safely returned, congratulated me on my narrow escape. They believed them to be supernatural, and supposed them to be the production of the Evil Spirit. One of them remarked that hell, of which he had heard from the whites, must be in that vicinity. The diameter of the basin into which the waters of the largest jet principally fall, and from the centre of which, through a hole in the rock of about nine or ten feet in diameter, the water spouts up as above related, may be about thirty feet. There are many other smaller fountains, that did not throw their waters up so high, but occurred at shorter intervals. In some instances, the volumes were projected obliquely upwards, and fell into the neighboring fountains, or on the rock or prairie. But their ascent was generally perpendicular, falling in and about their own basins or apertures. These wonderful productions of nature, are situated near the centre of a small valley, surrounded by pine-crowned hills, through which a small fork of the Madison flows.

From several trappers who had recently returned from the Yellow Stone, I received an account of boiling springs, that differ from those seen on Salt river, only in magnitude, being on a vastly larger scale; some of their canoes are from twenty to thirty feet high, and forty to fifty paces in circumference. Those which have ceased to emit boiling, vapour, &c., of which there were several, are full of shelving cavities, even some fathoms in extent, which give them, inside, an appearance of honey-comb. The ground for several acres extent in vicinity of the springs is evidently hollow, and constantly exhales a hot steam or vapour of disagreeable odour, and a character entirely to prevent vegetation. They are situated in the valley at the head of that river, near the lake, which constitutes its source.

A short distance from these springs, near the margin of the lake, there is one quite different from any yet described. It is of a circular form, several feet in diameter, clear, cold and pure; the bottom appears visible to the eye and seems seven or eight feet below the surface of the earth or water, yet it has been sounded with a lodge pole fifteen feet in length, without meeting any resistance. What is most singular with respect to this fountain, is the fact that at regular intervals of about two minutes, a body or column of water bursts up to the height of eight feet, with an explosion as loud as the report of a musket, and then falls back into it; for a few seconds the water is roiley, but it speedily settles, and becomes transparent as before the effluxion. A slight tremulous motion of the water and a low rumbling sound from the caverns beneath, precede each explosion. This spring was believed to be connected with the lake by some subterranean passage, but the cause of its periodical eruptions or discharges, is entirely unknown. I have never before heard of a cold spring, whose waters exhibit the phenomena of periodical explosive propulsion, in form of a jet. The geysers of Iceland, and the various other European springs, the waters of which are projected upwards, with violence and uniformity, as well as those seen on the head waters of the Madison, are invariably hot.

SCANDAL.

Now let it work—mischief thou art a fool,
Take what course thou wilt.

The substance of the following is no fiction. In a neighboring village whose inhabitants like the good people of Athens, were much given to "either telling or hearing some good thing," lives squire P., a facetious, good sort of a body whose jokes are even yet a matter of village record, and have been retold through various editions from folio down to duodecimo.

Aunt Lizzy was Deacon Snipe's wife's sister—a maiden of about fifty—she went to all the meetings, kept regular account of every birth, death and marriage, doctored the babies—showed the young married ladies how to make soap, and when they had had luck made every child in the house sit cross legged until the bad luck changed. In fine she was a village factotum—spent her time in going from house to house, grinding out a grist of slander to each, as occasion required, but always concluded with the "way of the transgressor is hard," poor Mrs. A. or B. (as the case might be) pity her from the bottom of my heart, or some soothing reflection, Aunt Lizzy was always very fond of asking strangers and others, without regard to time or place, the state of their minds, &c. These questions were generally followed by a string of scandal which was calculated to destroy the peace and happiness of her best friends; but she, like other narrators of this kind considered such intellectual murder as either establishing her own reputation, or as the best mode of entertaining the village, and thereby render her society agreeable.

One warm summer's afternoon, as the Squire was sitting near the door smoking his pipe—Aunt Lizzy was passing by with great speed, ruminating on the news of the day, when the Squire suddenly brought her to, as the sailors say, by "what's your hurry, Aunt Lizzy, walk in." The old lady, who never wanted a second invitation, went into the office, when the following dialogue soon commenced:

"Well Squire P., I've been thinking this forenoon what a useful man you might be, if you'd only leave off your light conversation, as the good book says, and become a serious man, you might become an ornament to both church and state, as our minister says."

"Why now you see, Aunt Lizzy, a cheerful countenance I consider as the best index of a grateful heart, and you know what the Bible says on that: 'when ye fast, be ye not like the hypocrites, of a sad countenance; but anoint thy head and wash thy face; (Aunt Lizzy began to feel for her pocket handkerchief, for she was a taker of snuff,) that you appear not unto me to fast.'

"Now, there Squire, that's just what I told you—see how you have the Scripture at your tongue's end; what a useful man you might be in our church, if you'd only be a doer as well as a hearer of the good word."

"As to that, Aunt Lizzy, I don't see that your professors as you call them, are a whit better than I am in private life. I respect a sincere profession as much as any man, but I know enough of one that she is no better than she should be."

At these innuendoes, Aunt Lizzy's little black eyes began to twinkle, she sat down beside the Squire in order to speak in a lower tone, spread her handkerchief over her lap, and began to tap the cover of her snuff box in true style, and all things being in readiness for a regular siege of 'scandalum magnatum,' she commenced her fire.

The Squire finding curiosity was putting on his boots, had no occasion to add spurs to its heels, for the lady had one in her head that was worth two of them. Accordingly he had no peace until he had consented to explain what he meant by the expression 'in private,' this was a dear word with Aunt Lizzy.

"Now, aunt Lizzy, will you take a Bible oath that you'll never communicate what I am about to tell you to a living being, that you will keep it while you live as the most inviolable secret."

"Yes, Squire, I declare I won't never tell any body nothing about it as long as I breathe the breath of life; and I'll take a bible oath of it; there sartin as I live before you or any other magistrate in the whole country."

"Well then you know when I went to Boston a year ago."

"Yes, I Squire and know who went with you too—Susan B. and Dolly T. and her sister Prudence."

"Never mind who went with me, Aunt Lizzy, there was a whole lot of passengers—but—but—"

"None of your buts, Squire: out with it, if folks will act so—a trollop."

"But Aunt Lizzy, I'm afraid you'll bring me into the scrape."

"I've told you over and over again that nobody shall know nothing about it and your wife knows I ain't leaky."

"My wife? I would not have her know what I was going to say for the

THE

WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 17.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, August 13, 1842.

Whole Number 17

THE WASP.

EDITED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY

WM. SMITH,

At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.

TERMS.—$1.50 invariably in advance.

POETRY.

For the Wasp.

THE BRIDE'S AVOWAL.

Inscribed to Miss L. for her bridal morning.

BY MISS E. R. SNOW.

Dearest, the hour approaches,
Our destinies to twine
In one eternal wreath of fate,
As holy beings join.
May God approve our union—
May angels come to bless;
And may our bridal wreath be gem'd
With endless happiness.

My bosom's best affections
I never could resign,
Until thy goodness drew them forth,
And now my heart is thine.
Confiding in thy guardian care,
I cheerfully forego
All else of happiness to share
With thee, in weal or woe.

The world has smil'd upon me—
I scorn its flattery,
For nought but thy approving look,
Is happiness to me.
I would not sell thy confidence,
For all the pearls that strew
The ocean's bed or all the gems
That sparkle in Peru.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN GEYSERS.

Extract from an unpublished work, entitled
"LIFE IN THE ROCKY MOUNTAINS."

I had heard in the summer of 1833, while at rendezvous, that remarkable boiling springs had been discovered on the sources of the Madison, by a party of trappers, in their spring hunt; of which the accounts they gave, were so very astonishing, that I determined to examine them myself, before recording their description, though I had the united testimony of more than twenty men on the subject, who all declared they saw them, and that they really were as extensive and remarkable as they had been described. Having now an opportunity of paying them a visit, and as another or a better might not soon occur, I parted with the company after supper, and taking with me two Pen-d'orielles, (who were induced to make the excursion with me, by the promise of an extra present,) set out at a round pace, the night being clear and comfortable. We proceeded over the plain about twenty miles, and halted until day-light, on a fine spring, flowing into Cammas Creek. Refreshed by a few hours' sleep, we started again after a hasty breakfast, and entered a very extensive forest, called the Pine Woods: (a continued succession of low mountains or hills, entirely covered by a dense growth of this species of timber;) which we passed through, and reached the vicinity of the springs about dark, having seen several small lakes or ponds on the sources of the Madison, and rode about forty miles; which was a hard day's ride, taking into consideration the rough irregularity of the country through which we had travelled.

We regaled ourselves with a cup of coffee, the materials for making which, we had brought with us, and immediately

after supper, lay down to rest, sleepy and much fatigued. The continual roaring of the springs, however, (which was distinctly heard,) for some time prevented my going to sleep, and excited an impatient curiosity to examine them, which I was obliged to defer the gratification of, until morning, and filled my slumbers with visions of waterspouts, cataracts, fountains, jets d'eau of immense dimensions, etc. etc.

When I arose in the morning, clouds of vapour seemed like a dense fog to overhang the springs, from which frequent reports or explosions of different loudness, constantly assailed our ears. I immediately proceeded to inspect them, and might have exclaimed with the Queen of Sheba, when their full reality of dimensions and novelty burst upon my view, "the half was not told me."

From the surface of a rocky plain or table, burst forth columns of water, of various dimensions, projected high in the air, accompanied by loud explosions, and sulphurous vapours, which were highly disagreeable to the smell. The rock from which these springs burst forth, was calcareous, and probably extends some distance from them, beneath the soil.—The largest of these wonderful fountains, projects a column of boiling water several feet in diameter, to the height of more than one hundred and fifty feet, in my opinion; but the party of Alvarez, who discovered it, persist in declaring that it could not be less than four times that distance in height—accompanied with a tremendous noise. These explosions and discharges occur at intervals of about two hours. After having witnessed three of them, I ventured near enough to put my hand into the water of its basin, but withdrew it instantly, for the heat of the water in this immense chaldron, was altogether too great for my comfort, and the agitation of the water, the disagreeable effluvia continually exuding, and the hollow unearthly rumbling under the rock on which I stood, so ill accorded with my notions of personal safety, that I retreated back precipitately, to a respectful distance. The Indians, who were with me, were quite appalled, and could not by any means be induced to approach them. They seemed astonished at my presumption, in advancing up to the large one, and when I safely returned, congratulated me on my "narrow escape." They believed them to be supernatural, and supposed them to be the production of the Evil Spirit. One of them remarked that hell, of which he had heard from the whites, must be in that vicinity. The diameter of the basin into which the waters of the largest jet principally fall, and from the centre of which, through a hole in the rock of about nine or ten feet in diameter, the water spouts up as above related, may be about thirty feet. There are many other smaller fountains, that did not throw their waters up so high, but occurred at shorter intervals. In some instances, the volumes were projected obliquely upwards, and fell into the neighboring fountains, or on the rock or prairie. But their ascent was generally perpendicular, falling in and about their own basins or apertures. These wonderful productions of nature, are situated near the centre of a small valley, surrounded by pine-crowned hills, through which a small fork of the Madison flows.

From several trappers who had recently returned from the Yellow Stone, I received an account of boiling springs, that differ from those seen on Salt river only in magnitude, being on a vastly larger scale; some of their canoes are from twenty to thirty feet high, and forty to fifty paces in circumference. Those which have ceased to emit boiling, vapour, &c., of which there were several, are full of shelving cavities, even some fathoms in extent, which give them, inside, an appearance of honey-comb.—The ground for several acres extent in vicinity of the springs is evidently hollow, and constantly exhales a hot steam or vapour of disagreeable odour, and a character entirely to prevent vegetation.—They are situated in the valley at the head of that river, near the lake, which constitutes its source.

A short distance from these springs, near the margin of the lake, there is one quite different from any yet described.—It is of a circular form, several feet in diameter, clear, cold and pure; the bottom appears visible to the eye and seems seven or eight feet below the surface of the earth or water, yet it has been sounded with a lodge pole fifteen feet in length, without meeting any resistance. What is most singular with respect to this fountain, is the fact that at regular intervals of about two minutes, a body or column of water bursts up to the height of eight feet, with an explosion as loud as the report of a musket, and then falls back into it; for a few seconds the water is roiley, but it speedily settles, and becomes transparent as before the effluxion. A slight tremulous motion of the water and a low rumbling sound from the caverns beneath, precede each explosion. This spring was believed to be connected with the lake by some subterranean passage, but the cause of its periodical eruptions or discharges, is entirely unknown. I have never before heard of a cold spring, whose waters exhibit the phenomena of periodical explosive propulsion, in form of a jet. The geysers of Iceland, and the various other European springs, the waters of which are projected upwards, with violence and uniformity, as well as those seen on the head waters of the Madison, are invariably hot.

SCANDAL.

'Now let it work—mischief thou art a fool,
Take what course thou wilt.

The substance of the following is no fiction. In a neighboring village whose inhabitants like the good people of Athens, were much given to 'either telling or hearing some good thing,' lives squire P., a facetious, good sort of a body whose jokes are even yet a matter of village record, and have been retold through various editions from folio down to duodecimo.

Aunt Lizzy was Deacon Snipe's wife's sister—a maiden of about fifty—she went to all the meetings, kept regular account of every birth, death and marriage, doctored the babies—showed the young married ladies how to make soap, and when they had bad luck made every child in the house sit cross-legged until the bad luck changed. In fine she was a village factotum—spent her time in going from house to house, grinding out a grist of slander to each, as occasion required, but always concluded with the 'way of the transgressor is hard,' poor Mrs. A. or B. (as the case might be) I pity her from the bottom of my heart, or some soothing reflection, Aunt Lizzy was always very fond of asking strangers and others, without regard to time or place, 'the state of their minds,' &c. These questions were generally followed by a string of scandal which was calculated to destroy the peace and happiness of her best friends; but she,

like other narrators of this kind considered such intellectual murder as either establishing her own reputation, or as the best mode of entertaining the village, and thereby render her society agreeable.

One warm summer's afternoon, as the Squire was sitting near the door smoking his pipe.—Aunt Lizzy was passing by with great speed, ruminating on the news of the day, when the Squire suddenly brought her to, as the sailors say, by 'what's your hurry, Aunt Lizzy, walk in.' The old lady, who never wanted a second invitation, went into the office, when the following dialogue soon commenced:

'Well Squire P., I've been thinking this forenoon what a useful man you might be, if you'd only leave off your light conversation, as the good book says, and become a serious man, you might become an ornament to both church and state, as our minister says.'

'Why now you see, Aunt Lizzy, a cheerful countenance I consider as the best index of a grateful heart, and you know what the Bible says on that: 'when ye fast, be ye not like the hypocrites, of a sad countenance; but anoint thy head and wash thy face, (Aunt Lizzy began to feel for her pocket handkerchief, for she was a taker of snuff,) that you appear not unto me to fast.'

'Now, there Squire, that's just what I told you—see how you have the Scripture at your tongue's end; what a useful man you might be in our church, if you'd only be a doer as well as a hearer of the good word.'

'As to that, Aunt Lizzy, I don't see that your professors as you call them, are a whit better than I am in private life. I respect a sincere profession as much as any man, but I know enough of one that she is no better than she should be.'

At these innuendoes, Aunt Lizzy's little black eyes began to twinkle, she sat down beside the Squire in order to speak in a lower tone, spread her handkerchief over her lap, and began to tap the cover of her snuff box in true style, and all things being in readiness for a regular siege of 'scandalum magnatum,' she commenced her fire.

The Squire finding curiosity was putting on his boots, had no occasion to add spurs to its heels, for the lady had one in her head that was worth two of them.—Accordingly he had no peace until he had consented to explain what he meant by the expression 'in private,' this was a dear word with Aunt Lizzy.

'Now, aunt Lizzy, will you take a Bible oath that you'll never communicate what I am about to tell you to a living being, that you will keep it while you live as the most inviolable secret.'

'Yes, Squire, I declare I won't never tell any body nothing about it as long as I breathe the breath of life; and I'll take a bible oath of it; there sartin as I live before you or any other magistrate in the whole country.'

'Well then you know when I went to Boston a year ago.'

'Yes, I Squire and know who went with you too—Susan B. and Dolly T. and her sister Prudence.'

'Never mind who went with me, Aunt Lizzy, there was a whole lot of passengers—but—but—'

'None of your buts, Squire: out with it, if folks will act so—a trollop.'

'But Aunt Lizzy, I'm afraid you'll bring me into the scrape.'

'I've told you over and over again that nobody shall know nothing about it and your wife knows I ain't leaky.'

'My wife! I would not have her know what I was going to say for the world—why Aunt Lizzy, if she should know it—

‘Well, don’t be afraid, Squire—once for all I’ll take an oath that no living critter shall never as long as I live, know a lip on’t.’

‘Well, then, if you must know it—I slept with one of the likeliest of our young church members half the way up.’

Aunt Lizzy drew in a long breath—shut up her snuff box and put it into her pocket muttering to herself—

‘One of the likeliest of the church members; I thought it was Susan B. Likeliest! this comes of being flattered—a trollop.—Well one thing I know: the way of the transgressor is hard—but I hope you’ll never tell nobody on’t, Squire, for sartin as the world if such a thing should be known, our church would be scattered abroad like sheep without a shepherd.’

In a few minutes Aunt Lizzy took her departure, giving the Squire another caution and a sly wink, as she said good by, let me alone for a secret.

It was not many days before Squire P. received a very polite note from parson G. requesting him to attend a meeting of the church in the south conference room, in order to settle some difficulties with one of the church members who in order to clear up her character requested Squire P. to be present.

The parson, who was a very good man, knew the frailty of some of the week sisters, as Aunt Lizzy called them and as he was a particular friend of Squire P.’s, requested him to say nothing of it to his wife, but the Squire took the hint, and telling his wife there was a parish meeting requested her to be ready by two o’clock and he would call for her.

Accordingly the hour of meeting came and the whole village flocked to the room; all eyes were alternately on the Squire and Susan B. Mrs. P. started, and Susan looked as though she had been crying a fortnight. The parson with softened tone and delicate manner as possible; stated the story about Susan B., which he observed was in every body’s mouth and which he did not believe a word of; and Squire P. being called on to stand as witness, after painting in lively colors the evils of slander, with which their village had become infested, and particularly the church called on Aunt Lizzy in the presence of the whole meeting and before the church to come out to make acknowledgment for violating a bible oath!

Aunt Lizzy’s excuse was, that she only told Deacon S.’s wife on’t; and she took an oath that she would never tell nobody else on’t—Deacon S.’s wife had it appears, sworn Rodgers to his sisters but it went through the whole church, and thence through the whole village.

The Squire then acknowledged before the whole meeting that he had, as he told Aunt Lizzy, slept with a church member half way up to Boston, and that he believed her to be the likeliest of their members inasmuch as she never would hear nor retail slander. All eyes were alternately on Susan B. and Squire P.’s wife. Aunt Lizzy enjoyed a diabolical triumph, which the Squire no sooner perceived than he finished by declaring that the member to whom he alluded was his own lawful wife.

Aunt Lizzy drew in her hand under a huge bonnet, as a turtle does under his shell and marched away into one corner of the room, like a dog that had been killing sheep. The Squire, as usual, burst into a fit of laughter, from which his wife, Susan B., and even the parson could not refrain from joining—and parson G. afterwards acknowledged that Squire P. had given a death blow to scandal in the village which all his preaching could not have done.

¶ We perceive by the New York papers that Elder Adams and Dr. West are now discussing the subject of Mormonism in New York. In our opinion Adams has the best of the argument, and will use up West as effectually as he did in Boston. We shall publish a report of it in our columns next week.—Dollar Weekly Bostonian.

THE WASP.

SATURDAY AUGUST 13, 1842.

THE ARREST.

On Monday last, Gen. Joseph Smith was arrested upon a requisition of Gov. Carlin, as the officers stated, in accordance with a process from Gov. Reynolds of Missouri, upon the affidavit of Ex-Governor Boggs, complaining of the said Smith as ‘being an accessory before the fact, to an assault with an intent to kill, made by one O. P. Rockwell on Lilburn W. Boggs,’ on the night of the sixth of May A. D. 1842. Mr. Rockwell was arrested at the same time as principal. There was no evasion of the officers, tho’ the Municipal court issued a writ of habeas corpus according to the constitution of the State, article 3, and section 13. This writ demanded the bodies of Messrs. Smith and Rockwell to be brought before the aforesaid Court, but these officers refused to do so, and finally without complying, they left them in care of the Marshal, without the original writ by which they were arrested, and by which only they could be retained, and returned back to Gov. Carlin for further instruction,—and Messrs. Smith and Rockwell went about their business. Some two or three days after the aforesaid officers returned, but Messrs. Smith and Rockwell were absent.

As to Mr. Rockwell it is said he can prove that he was in Nauvoo the day after the aforesaid assault on Ex-Governor Boggs, is said to have been committed in Independence Mo., a distance of at least 300 miles.

As to Mr. Smith, we have yet to learn by what rule of right he was arrested to be transported to Missouri for a trial of the kind stated. ‘An accessory to an assault with an intent to kill,’ does not come under the purview of the fugitive act, when the person charged has not been out of Illinois &c.. An accessory before the fact, to manslaughter is somewhat of an anomaly. The isolated affidavit of Ex-Governor Boggs is no more than any other man’s, and while the Constitution says ‘that no person shall be liable to be transported out of the State, for an offence committed within the same,’ we say in the language of the Quincy Whig, on a similar occasion, ‘Funes, they ought not to be given up.’ The whole seems to be another Missouri farce. In fact, implied power, and constructive guilt, as a dernier resort, may answer the purpose of despotic governments, but are beneath the dignity of the sons of liberty, and would be a blot off our juridical escutcheon. Does any one believe Joseph Smith guilty of Boggs’s charge? No!

KEEP DOING SO.

The Democratic party, certainly, will not forget the gratitude they owe to some of the most prominent Whigs:—one good turn deserves another—and so long as the Sangamo Journal is ‘spread out as net upon Tabor,’ and Francis used as a stool pigeon, by such cute fowlers as Joseph Duncan and others, the game is ours.—Really, we have had to put on a long face, in order to keep the State Sap Sucker knocking away on his dry limb, for effect:—or, tickling some of Duncan’s fiery friends, to alarm the virtuous of the country, to save the State,—and they have shook the bush, but we have caught the bird.

Oh! my cake is all dough—
Cries the ‘flutter wheel’ Jo!

Wrens may perch where eagles dare not prey.
SHAK.

Davis, of the Alton Telegraph, has become so vexed, because the people have elected the right man for Governor, that it is supposed he intends studying out a patent auger, six feet pod, whereby he can bore a hole, horizontally from Alton, under ground, to Nauvoo, and blow up the Mormons, and effectually efface mormonism from Illinois, to fulfill his prophecy. Old Mississippi will burst into your ‘auger hole,’ and spoil your powder, just as your passions break through your judgment and drown your reason. Fools make feasts and wise men eat them. Heigh ho! for big augers!

INSTALLATION.

We attended the installation of Rising Sun Lodge of Ancient York Masons, at Montrose, Iowa Territory, on Saturday, the 6th inst. The deputy Grand Master of Illinois, Gen. Adams, installed the officers in presence of the Nauvoo Lodge, and a respectable assemblage of citizens, comprising gentlemen and ladies,—all of whom listened with attention to the ceremonies, rules, instruction, and cautions of the fraternity. Truly can it be said: Look well to the West!

United we run:
Defeated we fell.

It affords some consolation to honest men, to know that Duncan and his prophet, Davis, of the Alton Telegraph, are busily engaged in altering their old revelations. Duncan looks some like a raven on a monument, wishing for some new carcase to prey upon: while Davis sits upon an old log a little back of Alton, reading:—If I am elected you shall be appointed Secretary of State. Oh!—Ah!—but!—and a cuckoo sings:

Don’t number your dolphins before they are catch’d

Nor reckon your chickens before they are hatch-ed;

Your ‘flutter wheel’ leader is on his last legs;—
So you may go fishing, or hunting for eggs.

These two Bramins of the valley of live bones, have undoubtedly adopted the same order of knighthood of Bennett and Francis: with the additional motto:

Under the pumpkin
For Davis and Duncan,

and two fools parted!

ACCIDENT.—On Wednesday, the 3rd of Aug., as Mr Hoyt was exhibiting a very splendid cap locked rifle, near this city, without being cocked, as he brought it horizontally upon his arm, it accidentally went off and the ball passed through the neck of Silas Tyson, aged 14 years, son of John Tyson, late of St. Laurence co. N. Y. The ball cut off the jugular vein in his neck, and he died in less than two minutes, without a struggle or a groan.

The assassin who shot at the Queen of England, not long since, and was sentenced to death, has been reprieved. Another assassination has been attempted upon the Queen, but was so trivial, that little notice will, we think, be taken of it.

By the last arrival, we learn that the said Queen of England, is in preparation for the extension of crown heir line. Truly the Queen is young and spry.

All the old indictments in the State of Missouri, against Joseph Smith and others, have been dismissed, says the Illinois Republican. If they act as wise in the Boggs affair, they will show their virtue and patriotism.

UU. K. I. I.

The election has resulted so favorably to the cause of Democracy, that a good natured chap writes, in short hand: UU. K. I. I. meaning, UUe Kum it in Illenoy—we come it in Illinois.

THE BOUNDARY QUESTION—THE NEGOTIATIONS IN RELATION THERETO.

It is understood that the negotiations between the agents of this government and those of Great Britain, are about drawing to a close. The final proposition for the settlement of the boundary question has been made, and a decision is anticipated in the course of the present week. The terms under consideration are of such a character as to render the result extremely doubtful. Hopes are still entertained that the matter may be satisfactorily arranged, but these hopes are dashed with very serious apprehensions.

The prevailing opinion seems to be that no settlement will now take place, and that arbitration will no doubt, and that arbitration will no doubt be resorted to again. There can be no danger of a rupture with Great Britain on this point of difference, although a fruitless attempt to adjust it will exasperate the difficulties and produce some irritation on both sides.

Injustice has been done to Mr. Preble, one of the Maine commissioners, by some of the papers. The agency of this gentleman in procuring the non-concurrence of this government in the award of the King of the Netherlands—a more desirable arrangement, by the way, than we shall be able to effect—led to the belief that he might resist an adjustment; but it is said, and from good authority, that Mr. Preble has been as anxious to conclude a treaty as any of his associates, and that he has labored with as much earnestness as any of them in accomplishing a result so much to be desired.

In the meantime we are informed, from official sources, that nothing can be done, until the special messenger, Major Cook, sent out by Lord Ashburton, on the 1st of July returns with further instructions for his lordship.

In connection with this matter, the Augusta Age is of opinion, in respect to the North-Eastern Boundary, that ‘no agreement can be consummated, upon the terms and conditions expressed by the Legislature of Maine, during their late Extra Session, and which terms and conditions are the only one Maine can honorably accept.’ On the other hand, the New Brunswicker, published at St. John, announces the return to that Province, of the Hon. Charles Simmons, one of the Commissioners relative to the Northern Boundary, and adds that his associates would return in a few days. It further says, that had not commissioners been sent to represent New Brunswick, ‘a sad blow might have been given to the interests of the Province.’

From all these facts, we come to the conclusion that a satisfactory settlement of this vexed question is very problematical.—[N. Y. Herald.]

GREAT FRESHET IN VIRGINIA.

The Richmond papers bring accounts of a great rise of the waters of the James River.

The Compiler states that losses amounting to a million of dollars are already heard of, and adds:

We are afraid a melancholy account will have to be rendered of the destruction to the crops by the freshet. In Powhatan, we understand $4000 worth of wheat in stacks have been swept away by the flood. In all the plantations bordering on James River there must be more or less injury sustained.

The Richmond Whig of Monday says:—

‘The Lynchburg Mail due Saturday, arrived last evening. It brought neither letters nor papers, but we learn from the driver, generally, that the destruction from the upper end of Puckingham to Lynchburg, and South to Dan River, is as great as in any former period.’

All the crops on the tributaries of the Appomattox and the James are swept—as are also the bridges, mill dams, &c.—The Canal near Lynchburg is a wreck. Never was so great a fall of water in so short a time (some 10 hours) known.

A letter from Goochland says:—

‘At the best, the loss will be immense. I have not the statistics to estimate it, but others calculate the loss of wheat alone, between Richmond and Lynchburg, at 300,000 bushels. Taking this immediate neighborhood as the index, it cannot well be less.’

THE MORMON EXPLOSION.—Impartial people who have read the recent Mormon exposures, generally say that Joe Smith the Prophet, comes out the best man of the two. General Bennett, by his own showing, is believed to be no better than he should be. This Bennett is a native of Ohio, and his family was originally from England or Ireland. We (the Bennett of the Herald) belong to the Scottish race of the Bennetts, who are decidedly the most superior class in creation—the real Mormon branch of Bennetts. This race are generally calm, cool, determined, energetic, steady, cautious, moral, philosophical, enthusiastic, eschewing all vanities of the flesh, and successful either in religion, politics, newspapers, commerce, or philosophy.—[N. Y. Herald.]

A most righteous decision.—Chief Justice Story, of Boston, in an opinion delivered on Saturday last, declared that combinations of workmen to ‘raise or fix the standard of their wages’ is not an indictable offence. The decision was given in the case of the journeyman boot makers, who had been indicted for conspiracy.

world—why Aunt Lizzy, if she should know it—

‘Well, don’t be afraid, Squire—once for all I’ll take an oath that no living critter shall never as long as I live, know a lisp on’t.’

‘Well, then, if you must know it—I slept with one of the likeliest of our young church members half the way up.’

Aunt Lizzy drew in a long breath—shut up her shuff box and put it into her pocket muttering to herself—

‘One of the likeliest of the church members; I thought it was Susan B. Likeliest! this comes of being flattered—a trollop.—Well one thing I know: the way of the transgressor is hard—but I hope you’ll never tell nobody on’t, Squire, for sartin as the world if such a thing should be known, our church would be scattered abroad like sheep without a shepherd.’

In a few minutes Aunt Lizzy took her departure, giving the Squire another caution and a sly wink, as she said good by, let me alone for a secret.

It was not many days before Squire P. received a very polite note from parson G. requesting him to attend a meeting of the church in the south conference room, in order to settle some difficulties with one of the church members who in order to clear up her character requested Squire P. to be present.

The parson, who was a very good man, knew the frailty of some of the week sisters, as Aunt Lizzy called them and as he was a particular friend of Squire P.’s, requested him to say nothing of it to his wife, but the Squire took the hint, and telling his wife there was a parish meeting requested her to be ready by two o’clock and he would call for her.

Accordingly the hour of meeting came and the whole village flocked to the room; all eyes were alternately on the Squire and Susan B. Mrs. P. started, and Susan looked as though she had been crying a fortnight. The parson with softened tone and delicate manner as possible; stated the story about Susan B., which he observed was in every body’s mouth and which he did not believe a word of; and Squire P. being called on to stand as witness, after painting in lively colors the evils of slander, with which their village had become infested, and particularly the church called on Aunt Lizzy in the presence of the whole meeting and before the church to come out to make acknowledgment for violating a bible oath!

Aunt Lizzy’s excuse was, that she only told Deacon S.’s wife on’t; and she took an oath that she would never tell nobody else on’t—Deacon S.’s wife had it appears, sworn Rodgers to his sisters but it went through the whole church, and thence through the whole village.

The Squire then acknowledged before the whole meeting that he had, as he told Aunt Lizzy, slept with a church member half way up to Boston, and that he believed her to be the likeliest of their members inasmuch as she never would hear nor retail slander. All eyes were alternately on Susan B. and Squire P.’s wife. Aunt Lizzy enjoyed a diabolical triumph, which the Squire no sooner perceived than he finished by declaring that the member to whom he alluded was his own lawful wife.

Aunt Lizzy drew in her hand under a huge bonnet, as a turtle does under his shell and marched away into one corner of the room, like a dog that had been killing sheep. The Squire, as usual, burst into a fit of laughter, from which his wife, Susan B., and even the parson could not refrain from joining—and parson G. afterwards acknowledged that Squire P. had given a death blow to scandal in the village which all his preaching could not have done.

☞ We perceive by the New York papers that Elder Adams and Dr. West are now discussing the subject of Mormonism in New York. In our opinion Adams has the best of the argument, and will use up West as effectually as he did in Boston. We shall publish a report of it in our columns next week.—Dollar Weekly Bostonian.

THE WASP.

SATURDAY AUGUST 13, 1842.

THE ARREST.

On Monday last, Gen. Joseph Smith was arrested upon requisition of Gov. Carlin, as the officers stated, in accordance with a process from Gov. Reynolds of Missouri, upon the affidavit of Ex-Governor Boggs, complaining of the said Smith as ‘being an accessory before the fact, to an assault with an intent to kill, made by one O. P. Rockwell on Lilburn W. Boggs,’ on the night of the sixth of May A. D. 1842. Mr. Rockwell was arrested at the same time as principal. There was no evasion of the officers, tho’ the Municipal court issued a writ of habeas corpus according to the constitution of the State, article 8, and section 13. This writ demanded the bodies of Messrs. Smith and Rockwell to be brought before the aforesaid Court, but these officers refused to do so, and finally without complying, they left them in care of the Marshal, without the original writ by which they were arrested, and by which only they could be retained, and returned back to Gov. Carlin for further instruction,—and Messrs. Smith and Rockwell went about their business. Some two or three days after the aforesaid officers returned, but Messrs. Smith and Rockwell were absent.

As to Mr. Rockwell it is said he ‘can prove that he was in Nauvoo the day after the aforesaid assault on Ex-Governor Boggs, is said to have been committed in Independence Mo., a distance of at least 300 miles.

As to Mr. Smith, we have yet to learn by what rule of right he was arrested to be transported to Missouri for a trial of the kind stated. ‘An accessory to an assault with an intent to kill,’ does not come under the purview of the fugitive act, when the person charged has not been out of Illinois &c., An accessory before the fact, to manslaughter is somewhat of an anomaly. The isolated affidavit of Ex-Governor Boggs is no more than any other man’s, and while the Constitution says ‘that no person shall be liable to be transported out of the State, for an offence committed within the same,’ we say in the language of the Quincy Whig, on a similar occasion, ‘Fugue, they ought not to be given up.’ The who’s seems to be another Missouri farce. In fact, implied power, and constructive guilt, as a dernier resort, may answer the purpose of despotic governments, but are beneath the dignity of the sons of liberty, and would be a blot on our juridical escutcheon. Does any one believe Joseph Smith guilty of Boggs’ charge? No!

KEEP DOING SO.

The Democratic party, certainly, will not forget the gratitude they owe to some of the most prominent things.—one good turn deserves another—and so long as the Sangamo Journal is ‘spread out as net upon Tabor,’ and Francis used as a stool pigeon, by such cute fowls as Joseph Duncan and others, the game is ours.—Really, we have had to put on a long face, in order to keep the State Sap Sucker knocking away on his dry limb, for effect:—or, tickling some of Duncan’s fiery friends, to alarm the virtuous of the country, to save the State,—and they have shook the bush, but we have caught the bird.

Oh! my cake is all dough—
Cries the ‘flutter wheel’ Jo!

Wrens may perch where eagles dare not prey.
SHAK.

Davis, of the Alton Telegraph, has become so rered, because the people have elected the right man for Governor, that it is supposed he intends studying out a patent auger, six feet pod, whereby he can bore a hole, horizontally from Alton, under ground, to Nauvoo, and blow up the Mormons, and effectually efface mormonism from Illinois, to fulfill his prophecy. Old Mississippi will burst into your ‘auger hole,’ and spoil your powder, just as your passions break through your judgment and drown your reason. Fools make feasts and wise men eat them. Heigh ho! for big augers!

INSTALLATION.

We attended the installation of Rising Sun Lodge of Ancient York Masons, at Montrose, Iowa Territory, on Saturday, the 6th inst. The deputy Grand Master of Illinois, Gen. Adams, installed the officers in presence of the Nauvoo Lodge, and a respectable assemblage of citizens, comprising gentlemen and ladies,—all of whom listened with attention to the ceremonies, rules, instruction, and cautions of the fraternity. Truly can it be said: Look well to the West.

United we run:
Defeated we fell.

It affords some consolation to honest men, to know that Duncan and his prophet, Davis, of the Alton Telegraph, are busily engaged in altering their old revelations. Duncan looks some like a raven on a monument, wishing for some new carcass to prey upon; while Davis sits upon an old log a little back of Alton, reading.—If I am elected you shall be appointed Secretary of State. Oh!—Ah!—but!—and a cuckoo sings:

Don’t number your dolphins before they are catch’d

Nor reckon your chickens before they are hatch’d;

Your ‘flutter wheel’ leader is on his last legs;—
So you may go fishing, or hunting for eggs.

These two Bramins of the valley, of live bones, have undoubtedly adopted the same order of knighthood of Bennett and Francis: with the additional motto:

Under the pumpkin
For Davis and Duncan,

and two fools parted!

ACCIDENT.—On Wednesday, the 3rd of Aug., as Mr Hoyt was exhibiting a very splendid cap locked rifle, near this city, without being cocked, as he brought it horizontally upon his arm, it accidentally went off and the ball passed through the neck of Silas Tyson, aged 14 years, son of John Tyson, late of St. Laurence co. N. Y. The ball cut off the jugular vein in his neck, and he died in less than two minutes, without a struggle or a groan.

The assassin who shot at the Queen of England, not long since, and was sentenced to death, has been reprieved. Another assassination has been attempted upon the Queen, but was so trivial, that little notice will, we think, be taken of it.

By the last arrival, we learn that the said Queen of England, is in preparation for the extension of crown heir line. Truly the Queen is young and spry.

All the old indictments in the State of Missouri, against Joseph Smith and others, have been ‘dismissed,’ says the Jeffersonian Republican. If they act as wise in the Boggs affair, they will show their virtue and patriotism.

UU. K. I. I.

The election has resulted so favorably to the cause of Democracy, that a good natured chap writes, in short hand: UU. K. I. I. meaning, UUe Kum it in Illenoy—we come it in Illinois.

THE BOUNDARY QUESTION—THE NEGOTIATIONS IN RELATION THERETO.

It is understood that the negotiations between the agents of this government and those of Great Britain, are about drawing to a close. The final proposition for the settlement of the boundary question has been made, and a decision is anticipated in the course of the present week. The terms under consideration are of such a character as to render the result extremely doubtful. Hopes are still entertained that the matter may be satisfactorily arranged, but these hopes are dashed with very serious apprehensions.

The prevailing opinion seems to be that no settlement will now take place, and that arbitration will no doubt, and that arbitration will no doubt be resorted to again. There can be no danger of a rupture with Great Britain on this point of difference, although a fruitless attempt to adjust it will exasperate the difficulties and produce some irritation on both sides.

Injustice has been done to Mr. Preble, one of the Maine commissioners, by some of the papers. The agency of this gentleman in procuring the non-concurrence of this government in the award of the King of the Netherlands—a more desirable arrangement, by the way, than we shall be able to effect—led to the belief that he might resist an adjustment; but it is said, and from good authority, that Mr. Preble has been as anxious to conclude a treaty as any of his associates, and that he has labored with as much earnestness as any of them in accomplishing a result so much to be desired.

In the meantime we are informed, from official sources, that nothing can be done, until the special messenger, Major Cook, sent out by Lord Ashburton, on the 1st of July returns with further instructions for his lordship.

In connection with this matter, the Augusta Age is of opinion, in respect to the North Eastern Boundary, that ‘no agreement can be consummated, upon the terms and conditions expressed by the Legislature of Maine, during their late Extra Session, and which terms and conditions are the only one Maine can honorably accept.’ On the other hand, the New Brunswicker, published at St. John, announces the return to that Province, of the Hon. Charles Simmons, one of the Commissioners relative to the Northern Boundary, and adds that his associates would return in a few days. It further says, that had not commissioners been sent to represent New Brunswick, ‘a sad blow might have been given to the interests of the Province.’

From all these facts, we come to the conclusion that a satisfactory settlement of this vexed question is very problematical.—[N. Y. Herald.]

GREAT FRESHET IN VIRGINIA.

The Richmond papers bring accounts of a great rise of the waters of the James River.

The Compiler states that losses amounting to a million of dollars are already heard of, and adds:

We are afraid a melancholy account will have to be rendered of the destruction to the crops by the freshet. In Powhatan, we understand $4000 worth of wheat in stacks have been swept away by the flood. In all the plantations boarding on James River there must be more or less injury sustained.

The Richmond Whig of Monday says:—

‘The Lynchburg Mail due Saturday, arrived last evening. It brought neither letters nor papers, but we learn from the driver, generally, that the destruction from the upper end of Buckingham to Lynchburg, and South to Dan River, is as great as our worst fears portend.—All the crops on the tributaries of the Appomattox and the James are swept—as are also the bridges, mill dams, &c.—The Canal near Lynchburg is a wreck. Never was so great a fall of water in so short a time (some 10 hours) known.

A letter from Goochland says:—

‘At the best, the loss will be immense. I have not the statistics to estimate it, but others calculate the loss of wheat alone, between Richmond and Lynchburg, at 300,000 bushels. Taking this immediate neighborhood as the index, it cannot well be less.

THE MORMON EXPLOSION.—Impartial people who have read the recent Mormon exposures, generally say that Joe Smith the Prophet, comes out the best man of the two. General Bennett, by his own showing, is believed to be no better than he should be. This Bennett is a native of Ohio, and his family was originally from England or Ireland. We (the Bennett of the Herald) belong to the Scottish race of the Bennetts, who are decidedly the most superior class in creation—the real Mormon branch of Bennetts. This race are generally calm, cool, determined, energetic, steady, cautious, moral, philosophical, enthusiastic, eschewing all vanities of the flesh, and successful either in religion, politics, newspapers, commerce, or philosophy.—[N. Y. Herald.]

A most righteous decision.—Chief Justice Story, of Boston in an opinion delivered on Saturday last, declared that combinations of workmen to raise or fix the standard of their wages, is not an indictable offence. The decision was given in the case of the journeyman boot makers, who had been indicted for conspiracy.

HUMBERG.—Elder Adams, the great High Priest of the popular delusion of Mormonism, who has been holding forth for several weeks past at Boylston Hall, to a promiscuous crowd of men, women and children, of the most promiscuous and motley character, performed on Sunday last in the presence of his congregation, what was called a Miracle. This was done by laying hands on a woman afflicted with the lumbago, and commanding, in the most solemn and impressive manner that the disease should go out from her, and that he "should be clean." What effect this blasphemous and disgusting operation had upon the deluded woman we cannot tell, and it will undoubtedly be a difficult thing for the woman herself to calculate the amount of benefit derived from the speculation. —Boston Mail.

We think that the greatest "miracle" is that the old fool is not tarred and feathered, and ridden on a rail. —Dollar Weekly.

JOE SMITH.—Gen. Bennett has published his "exposition" in the Saugamon Journal. He walks into the Prophet in fine style, and makes him out as pretty a specimen of rascality as ever was got up. The Commercial says—

He charges the great Mormon leader especially with the grossest licentiousness, to which "hundreds of single and married females" have fallen victims, and which was not restrained from assailing even the daughter of Sidney Rigdon, but unsuccessfully: and he promises still further revelations of the most atrocious character.

We have no doubt but Smith is stupendous rascal—and as for Bennett there is no lack of character in setting him down as only not quite so bad. His discoveries of Smith's iniquities cannot have been sudden, and nosctur a sociis may doubtless be applied to him with no injustice.

If the biographer of an imposter is obnoxious to the "nosctur a sociis," what says the Colonel of the author of the "Life of Matthias the Prophet."

A murder of a wife by her husband was committed at Mobile on the 11th ult. The wretch was an Italian named Alexander Casselin, and had lately removed from New Orleans and opened a soda-water shop. He had married his wife a few weeks before, and it was observed by the neighbors that they frequently quarrelled and once she had applied to have him bound over to keep the peace. On the 11th she was observed by persons opposite to run out upon the gallery, and he to follow her and push her back, and immediately close and bolt the windows. Various circumstances occurred during the day to excite suspicion, and in the evening, she not having been seen by any one since morning, some gentlemen determined to enter the house, and to their horror they found upon the floor, in a back room, the body of the unfortunate woman. There were several deep cuts on her head and face, and a rope was tied around her neck.

When he left the house about 12 o'clock, he placed a card upon the door, with the words "gone in the country for a few days."

The body no doubt lay locked in the room from early morning. The murderer escaped either by the way of Stocton or New Orleans.

AN EXPERIMENT.—I once knew a boy who was employed by his father to remove all the loose, small stones which, from the peculiar nature of the ground, had accumulated in the road before the house. He was to take them up and throw them over into the pasture across the way. He soon got tired of picking them up one by one, and sat down on the bank to try to devise some better means of accomplishing his work: he at length conceived and adopted the following plan. He set in the pasture a narrow board for a target, or, as boys would call it, a mark: and then collecting all the boys in the neighborhood, he proposed to them an amusement, which boys are always ready for—firing at a mark. I need not say that the stores of ammunition in the street were soon exhausted, the boys working for their leader when they supposed they were only finding amusement for themselves. Here now is experimenting on the mind; the production of useful effort with rapidity and ease, by the intervention of proper instrumentality; the conversion, by means of a little knowledge of human nature, of what would otherwise have been dull and fatiguing labor, into a mere animating sport, giving pleasure to twenty instead of tedious labor to one. —[Abbott's Teacher.

MOBBERY.—They came pretty near having a mob in Cincinnati the other day. The Microscope tells the story thus.

There has been almost a mob at another of our churches. Some two hundred armed themselves with guns, swords and pistols, and repaired to the church the other evening, after hearing that it was the intention of a certain class to pull the building down on the night in question? No violence was committed, but quite a commotion has been darkly visible for a number of days. We advise all to keep as cool as they possibly can, and instead of fighting about a church, go to their closets and pray God to make them all better men; but, especially their enemies. This fuss originated in the color of a flag hung out on the church in question.

MORE RIOTS IN CANADA.

The Montreal papers of Saturday bring us accounts from St. Catharines, stating that that village has for the last week been kept in a state of the greatest alarm and excitement in consequence of the outrageous proceedings of two parties of Irish Labourers employed on the public works in that neighbourhood. To such a height have they arrived that the presence of a body of military has been deemed necessary, and when the accounts furnished by the journalist were closed, it was apprehended that a further combat which could but result in the most serious consequences, was on the point of taking place.

The origin of the disturbances is said to be an old feud existing between the Corkonians as they are called, and the Connaught and Far Downmen; but the immediate cause is to be traced to the late riot on the St. Lawrence Canal, from which the former have been driven by their more numerous antagonist countrymen—the Connaughts.

PROGRESS OF FANATICISM.—The Mormons are about holding a great Camp Meeting in Essex County, New Jersey, and public discussions, attended by thousands, have recently been held in Boston, Pittsburgh, and various other prominent points. The spread of this sect is almost beyond belief.

Parson Miller, the End-of-the-World preacher, is creating a great sensation in different parts of the country. At Albany one of his disciples is nightly attracting crowds to the church in Grand Street, while the Apostle himself is holding forth in Northampton. Truly we live in an age of wonders—and, what with Mesmerism, Millerism, Transcendentalism, Foarierism, and Tylerism, the present bids fair to be ranked amongst the most conspicuous eras in the history of the world! When James Gordon Bennett is Doctor of Laws, and M. Y. Beach has turned moralist, it is time for honest men to take notice of these things is not yet. —Dollar Weekly

The Mormon business "looms large" The quarrel between Joe Smith and General Bennett is, it seems incurable. We find the following letter from the General in the Burlington (I. T.) Hawk Eye:

Nauvoo, Ill. June 27, 1842.

Mr Edwards:—In your paper of the 23d you allude to the "trouble among the Mormons," and express a desire or hope that "the Schism is incurable," and I assure you it is really so. The holy Joe fears the consequences of my disclosures, and has threatened to take my life, and has ordered some of his Danite band to effect the murder clandestinely—but he shall be exposed. If he murders me others will avenge my blood, and expose him: if I live I will do it to the entire satisfaction of all. Just suspend your judgment for a few days until you see my exposure in the "Saugamon Journal" of next week, or the week following, over my name.

In haste, yours respectfully

JOHN C. BENNETT

Go it General! Send us a copy of your exposure.

THE NEVERSINK SINKING.—We saw it stated in the papers that the high lands of Jersey known as the Neversink, were really sinking. We scarcely thought it probable that such a levelling operation was in progress. But yesterday, a friend who has been spending some time in that part of Jersey, called and assured us that the report was correct.

A large quantity of the upland (say two hundred acres,) had settled perpendicularly, so that there is a precipice of ten or fifteen feet round the sunken portion. Standing on the firm land one looks down upon the tops of stunted cedars, that had settled with the earth, while the roots of trees, growing in the quiet ground, at the edge of the precipice, are denuded and stretch out into the air as if about to form a set of lower branches.

ed. and stretch out into the air as if about to form a set of lower branches.

The Florida Murders still continue. On the 7th ult. a party of about 40 Indians came upon the plantations of Captain Robinson, near the Sandy Fork of the Suwanee river. Capt. Robinson's three sons and a hired man were ploughing and were shot dead. Capt. R. fled towards the house, but found another party of Indians in the yard. His wife and daughter were butchered and consumed with the house. He rallied the neighbors but too late. This is the fifth or sixth massacre within a year in the same neighborhood by the same band.

FORD AND MOORE

are reported elected by majorities of over 5,000! Particulars next week.

Large Crop.—Mr. Jessee Cunningham, owing a farm, in Midlin township in this county, states to us as follows: That he last fall bought four bushels of yellow bearded wheat which he sowed about the 17th or 18th of September, in fallow hill ground which had been eight years in clover pasture, and was well manured. From this sowing he cut last week and has safely gathered into his barn two hundred and sixty dozen of full bound sheaves, cut with a sickle. The product it is calculated will be one bushel of wheat to 16 or 18 sheaves, or at 17 sheaves, making one hundred and eighty four bushels as the yield of the four bushels of seed sown. We want Illinois, Michigan and all out north, to put this in their pocket, to balance anything they have of rich or rare production.

Mr. Hudson, of New York, in his speech on the Tariff, in the House of Representatives last week, stated among other things the fact that Massachusetts furnishes a "home market for $42,000,000 of American produce, coming into it from every one of the remaining twenty-five States of the Union.—[Republican.

Depression of Business.—The cotton, woollen, and carpet factories in different portions of New England are daily stopping and discharging their hands. In almost every factory that is kept at work, part of the machinery is stopped. There is now standing still in Maine 10 sets of Machinery; New-Hampshire, 15; Vermont, 11; Massachusetts, 185; Rhode Island, 27; Connecticut, 67; total 315.—These consume, when running, very nearly 31,500 lbs. of wool a day, or 9,765,000 lbs. per annum.

The number of sets of machinery in the other manufacturing States, out of New England, which are now useless, according to the same ratio, is as follows: In New York, 215 sets; New Jersey, 12; Pennsylvania 42; Delaware, 7; Ohio, 15; Kentucky and Tennessee, 12—total, 310; which consume 9,300,000 lbs. of wool. This amount, with that named above, is 19,065,000 lbs. which is half the whole products of the country.

The English in India.—The Duke of Wellington, in giving an account of one of his expeditions in India, in 1800 uses the following language:—

"I have taken and destroyed Doodiah's baggage and guns, and driven into the Mulpurbah, where they were drowned, about five thousand people; I stormed Doummull on the 26th of July. My troops are in high health and spirits, their pockets full of money, the produce of plunder."

The recent destruction of five thousand Englishmen in Afghanistan, proves, that although retribution may be delayed, it is nevertheless certain.

DEPLORABLE CASUALTY.—On Sunday week, in the harbor of St. Johns, N. B., a small boat containing eighteen emigrants, was run down by a steam ferry boat, and five of the number perished.—Their names were, Mrs. Coleman, of the city of Cork; Ellen Hurley, aged about 70, of Kennagh, county of Cork; Mr. Morgan, of Tipperary, and his wife; and James Shay, aged about 19, of the county of Kerry.

Governor Reynolds, of Missouri, recently pardoned a woman under sentence of stealing, because there had been no place provided for female convicts in the prison.

An Ordinance regulating the mode of proceeding in Cases of Habeas Corpus, before the Municipal Court.

Sec. 1. Be it Ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, that in all cases, where any Person or Persons, shall at any time hereafter, be arrested, or under arrest, in this City, under any Writ or Process, and shall be brought before the Municipal Court of this City, by virtue of a Writ of Habeas Corpus, the Court shall in every such Case have power and authority and are hereby required to examine into the Origin, Validity and Legality of the Writ or Process, under which such arrest was made; and if it shall appear to the Court upon sufficient testimony that, said Writ or Process was illegal, or not legally issued, or did not proceed from proper authority, then the Court shall discharge the Prisoner from under said Arrest, but if it shall appear to the Court, that said Writ or Process had issued from proper authority, and was a legal Process, the Court shall then proceed and fully hear the merits of the Case, upon which such Arrest was made, upon such evidence as may be produced and sworn before said court, and shall have power to adjourn the hearing, and also issue process from time to time in their discretion, in order to procure the attendance of Witnesses, so that a fair and impartial trial and decision may be obtained in every such case.

Sec. 2. And be it further Ordained, that if upon investigation it shall be proven before the Municipal Court, that the Writ or Process has been issued, either through private pique, malicious intent, religious or other persecution, falsehood, or misrepresentation, contrary to the Constitution of this State or of the United States the said Writ or Process shall be quashed, and considered of no force or effect, and the Prisoner or Prisoners shall be released and discharged therefrom.

Sec. 3. And be it also further ordained, that in the Absence, Sickness, Debility, or other circumstances disqualifying, or preventing the Mayor from officiating in his office, as Chief Justice of the Municipal Court, the Aldermen present shall appoint one from amongst them, to act as Chief Justice, or president pro tempore.

Sec. 4. This Ordinance to take effect, and be in force, from and after its passage.

HYRUM SMITH.

Vice Mayor & President pro Tempore.

Passed August, 8th, 1842.

JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

WINDOW SASH.

WE, carpenters, builders, &c., of the city of Nauvoo, recommend H. Hammond's patent upper and improved lower window sash springs, as a very superior article:

W. Weeks, principal carpenter of Temple,
L. Woodworth, do do Nauv. H's,
R. Hadlock, J. W. Coolidge,
L. Tulle, M. Ramney,
H. Riding.

All windows should be made narrow, high and with parting beads.

For the proper ventilation of a room, it is absolutely necessary to lower the upper sash.

These springs are warranted not to loose their elasticity or break, have points for preserving the notches in the sash, directions for selecting the appropriate sizes and properly putting them into windows.

For sale, wholesale and retail, at several of the hardware stores in St. Louis, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, &c. See a window with these springs in operation at Mr. Mills' Masonic Hall.

Nauvoo, Aug. 13, 1842.

17-ly.

NOTICE.

WHEREAS my wife Casander J. Whiting eloped my bed and board about one year ago, without any just cause or provocation, and has not returned; this is, therefore, to forbid all persons, trusting her on my account, as I shall pay no debts of her contracting.

NATHANIEL WHITING.

Nauvoo, Aug. 10, 1842.

47-3w.

NOTICE.

The Stock Holders, of the Nauvoo Agricultural and Manufacturing Association, are hereby notified, that a meeting for the election of Trustees, will be held at Gen. Hyrum Smith's office, on the first Monday in September next, at 4 o'clock P. M.

E. ROBINSON Secretary.

Nauvoo, August 13, 1842,

HUMANITY.—Elder Adams, the great High Priest of the popular delusion of Mormonism, who has been holding forth for several weeks past at Boylston Hall, to a promiscuous crowd of men, women and children, of the most promiscuous and motley character, performed on Sunday last in the presence of his congregation, what was called a Miracle. This was done by laying hands on a woman afflicted with the lumbago, and commanding, in the most solemn and impressive manner that the disease should go out from her, and that he "should be clean." What effect this blasphemous and disgusting operation had upon the deluded woman we cannot tell, and it will undoubtedly be a difficult thing for the woman herself to calculate the amount of benefit derived from the speculation.—Boston Mail.

We think that the greatest "miracle" is that the old fool is not tarred and feathered, and ridden on a rail.—Dollar Weekly.

JOE SMITH.—Gen. Bennett has published his "exposition" in the Sangamon Journal. He walks into the Prophet in fine style, and makes him out as pretty a specimen of rascality as ever was got up. The Commercial says—

He charges the great Mormon leader especially with the grossest licentiousness, to which "hundreds of single and married females" have fallen victims, and which was not restrained from assailing even the daughter of Sidney Rigdon, but unsuccessfully; and he promises still further revelations of the most atrocious character.

We have no doubt but Smith is stupendous rascal—and as for Bennett there is no lack of character in setting him down as only not quite so bad. His discoveries of Smith's iniquities cannot have been sudden, and nosceur a sociis may doubtless be applied to him with no injustice.

If the biographer of an imposter is obnoxious to the "nosceur a sociis," what says the Colonel of the author of the "Life of Mathias the Prophet."

A murder of a wife by her husband was committed at Mobile on the 11th ult. The wretch was an Italian named Alexander Casselin, and had lately removed from New Orleans and opened a soda-water shop. He had married his wife a few weeks before, and it was observed by the neighbors that they frequently quarrelled and once she had applied to have him bound over to keep the peace. On the 11th she was observed by persons opposite to run out upon the gallery, and he to follow her and push her back, and immediately close and bolt the windows. Various circumstances occurred during the day to excite suspicion, and in the evening, she not having been seen by any one since morning, some gentlemen determined to enter the house, and to their horror they found upon the floor, in a back room, the body of the unfortunate woman. There were several deep cuts on her head and face, and a rope was tied around her neck.

When he left the house about 12 o'clock, he placed a card upon the door, with the words "gone in the country for a few days."

The body no doubt lay locked in the room from early morning. The murderer escaped either by the way of Stocton or New Orleans.

AN EXPERIMENT.—I once knew a boy who was employed by his father to remove all the loose, small stones which, from the peculiar nature of the ground, had accumulated in the road before the house. He was to take them up and throw them over into the pasture across the way. He soon got tired of picking them up one by one, and sat down on the bank to try to devise some better means of accomplishing his work; he at length conceived and adopted the following plan. He set in the pasture a narrow board for a target, or, as boys would call it, a mark; and then collecting all the boys in the neighborhood, he proposed to them an amusement, which boys are always ready for—firing at a mark. I need not say that the stores of ammunition in the street were soon exhausted, the boys working for their leader when they supposed they were only finding amusement for themselves. Here now is experimenting on the mind; the production of useful effort with rapidity and ease, by the interposition of proper instrumentality; the conversion, by means of a little knowledge of human nature, of what would otherwise have been dull and fatiguing labor, into a mere animating sport, giving pleasure to twenty instead of tedious labor to one.—[Abbott's Teacher.]

MOB.—They came pretty near having a mob in Cincinnati the other day. The Microscope tells the story thus.

There has been almost a mob at another of our churches. Some two hundred armed themselves with guns, swords and pistols, and repaired to the church the other evening, after hearing that it was the intention of a certain class to pull the building down on the night in question? No violence was committed, but quite a commotion has been darkly visible for a number of days. We advise all to keep as cool as they possibly can, and instead of fighting about a church, go to their closets and pray God to make them all better men; but, especially their enemies. This fuss originated in the color of a flag hung out on the church in question.

MORE RIOTS IN CANADA.

The Montreal papers of Saturday bring us accounts from St. Catharines, stating that that village has for the last week been kept in a state of the greatest alarm and excitement in consequence of the outrageous proceedings of two parties of Irish Labourers employed on the public works in that neighbourhood. To such a height have they arrived that the presence of a body of military has been deemed necessary, and when the accounts furnished by the journalist were closed, it was apprehended that a further combat which could but result in the most serious consequences, was on the point of taking place.

The origin of the disturbances is said to be an old feud existing between the Corkonians as they are called, and the Connaught and Far Downmen; but the immediate cause is to be traced to the late riot on the St. Lawrence Canal, from which the former have been driven by their more numerous antagonist countrymen—the Connaughts.

PROGRESS OF FANATICISM.—The Mormons are about holding a great Camp Meeting in Essex County, New Jersey, and public discussions, attended by thousands, have recently been held in Boston, Pittsburgh, and various other prominent points. The spread of this sect is almost beyond belief.

Parson Miller, the End-of-the-World preacher, is creating a great sensation in different parts of the country. At Albany one of his disciples is nightly attracting crowds to the church in Grand Street, while the Apostle himself is holding forth in Northampton. Truly we live in an age of wonders—and, what with Mesmerism, Millerism, Transcendentalism, Fourierism, and Tylerism, the present bids fair to be ranked amongst the most conspicuous eras in the history of the world! When James Gordon Bennett is Doctor of Laws, and M. Y. Beach has turned moralist, it is time for honest men to take to their prayers—for verily, "For verily the end of these things is not yet."—Dollar Weekly.

The Mormon business "looms large." The quarrel between Joe Smith and General Bennett is, it seems incurable. We find the following letter from the General in the Burlington (I. T.) Hawk Eye:

Nauvoo, Ill. June 27, 1842.

Mr Edwards:—In your paper of the 23d you allude to the "trouble among the Mormons," and express a desire or hope that "the Schism is incurable," and I assure you it is really so. The holy Joe fears the consequences of my disclosures, and has threatened to take my life, and has ordered some of his Danite band to effect the murder clandestinely—but he shall be exposed. If he murders me others will avenge my blood, and expose him: if I live I will do it to the entire satisfaction of all. Just suspend your judgment for a few days until you see my expose in the "Sangamo Journal" of next week, or the week following, over my name.

In haste, yours respectfully

JOHN C. BENNETT

Go it General! Send us a copy of your expose.

THE NEVERSINK SINKING.—We saw it stated in the papers that the high lands of Jersey known as the Neversink, were really sinking. We scarcely thought it probable that such a levelling operation was in progress. But yesterday, a friend who has been spending some time in that part of Jersey, called and assured us that the report was correct.

A large quantity of the upland (say two hundred acres) had settled perpendicularly, so that there is a precipice of ten or fifteen feet round the sunken portion. Standing on the firm land one looks down upon the tops of stunted cedars, that had settled with the earth, while the roots of trees, growing in the quiet ground, at the edge of the precipice, are denuded, and stretch out into the air as if about to form a set of lower branches.

ed, and stretch out into the air as if about to form a set of lower branches.

The Florida Murders still continue. On the 7th ult. a party of about 40 Indians came upon the plantations of Captain Robinson, near the Sandy Fork of the Suwanee river. Capt. Robinson's three sons and a hired man were ploughing and were shot dead. Capt. R. fled towards the house, but found another party of Indians in the yard. His wife and daughter were butchered and consumed with the house. He rallied the neighbors but too late. This is the fifth or sixth massacre within a year in the same neighborhood by the same band.

FORD AND MOORE

are reported elected by majorities of over 5,000! Particulars next week.

Large Crop.—Mr. Jesse Cunnigham, owing a farm in Mifflin township in this county, states to us as follows: That he last fall bought four bushels of yellow bearded wheat which he sowed about the 17th or 18th of September, in fallow hill ground which had been eight years in clover pasture, and was well manured. From this sowing he cut last week and has safely gathered into his barn two hundred and sixty dozen of full bound sheaves, cut with a sickle. The product it is calculated will be one bushel of wheat to 16 or 18 sheaves, or at 17 sheaves, making one hundred and eighty four bushels as the yield of the four bushels of seed sown. We want Illinois, Michigan and all out north, to put this in their pocket, to balance anything they have of rich or rare production.

Mr. Hudson, of New York, in his speech on the Tariff, in the House of Representatives last week, stated among other things the fact that Massachusetts furnishes a home market for $42,000,000 of American produce, coming into it from every one of the remaining twenty-five States of the Union.—[Republican.]

Depression of Business.—The cotton, woollen, and carpet factories in different portions of New England are daily stopping and discharging their hands. In almost every factory that is kept at work, part of the machinery is stopped. There is now standing still in Maine 10 sets of Machinery; New Hampshire, 15; Vermont, 11; Massachusetts, 185; Rhode Island, 27; Connecticut, 67; total 315.—These consume, when running, very nearly 31,500 lbs. of wool a day, or 9,765,000 lbs. per annum.

The number of sets of machinery in the other manufacturing States, out of New England, which are now useless, according to the same ratio, is as follows: In New York, 215 sets; New Jersey, 12; Pennsylvania 42; Delaware, 7; Ohio, 15; Kentucky and Tennessee, 12—total, 310; which consume 9,300,000 lbs. of wool. This amount, with that named above, is 19,065,000 lbs. which is half the whole products of the country.

The English in India.—The Duke of Wellington, in giving an account of one of his expeditions in India, in 1800 uses the following language:—

"I have taken and destroyed Doodiah's baggage and guns, and driven into the Mulpurbah, where they were drowned, about five thousand people; I stormed Doummull on the 26th of July. My troops are in high health and spirits, their pockets full of money, the produce of plunder."

The recent destruction of five thousand Englishmen in Afghanistan, proves, that although retribution may be delayed, it is nevertheless certain.

DEPLORABLE CASUALTY.—On Sunday week, in the harbor of St. Johns, N. B., a small boat containing eighteen emigrants, was run down by a steam ferry boat, and five of the number perished.—Their names were, Mrs. Coleman, of the city of Cork; Ellen Hurley, aged about 19, of Kennagh, county of Cork; Mr. Morgan, of Tipperary, and his wife; and James Shay, aged about 19, of the county of Kerry.

Governor Reynolds, of Missouri, recently pardoned a woman under sentence of stealing, because there had been no place provided for female convicts in the prison.

An Ordinance regulating the mode of proceeding in Cases of Habeas Corpus, before the Municipal Court.

Sec. 1. Be it Ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, that in all cases, where any Person or Persons, shall at any time hereafter, be arrested, or under arrest, in this City, under any Writ or Process, and shall be brought before the Municipal Court of this City, by virtue of a Writ of Habeas Corpus, the Court shall in every such Case have power and authority and are hereby required to examine into the Origin, Validity and Legality of the Writ or Process, under which such arrest was made, and if it shall appear to the Court upon sufficient testimony that said Writ or Process was illegal, or not legally issued, or did not proceed from proper authority, then the Court shall discharge the Prisoner from under said Arrest, but if it shall appear to the Court, that said Writ or Process had issued from proper authority, and was a legal Process, the Court shall then proceed and fully hear the merits of the Case, upon which such Arrest was made, upon such evidence as may be produced and sworn before said court, and shall have power to adjourn the hearing, and also issue process from time to time in their discretion, in order to procure the attendance of Witnesses, so that a fair and impartial trial and decision may be obtained in every such case.

Sec. 2. And be it further Ordained, that if upon investigation it shall be proven before the Municipal Court, that the Writ or Process has been issued, either through private pique, malicious intent, religious or other persecution, falsehood, or misrepresentation, contrary to the Constitution of this State or of the United States the said Writ or Process shall be quashed, and considered of no force or effect, and the Prisoner or Prisoners shall be released and discharged therefrom.

Sec. 3. And be it also further ordained, that in the Absence, Sickness, Debility, or other circumstances disqualifying, or preventing the Mayor from officiating in his office, as Chief Justice of the Municipal Court, the Aldermen present shall appoint one from amongst them, to act as Chief Justice, or president pro tempore.

Sec. 4. This Ordinance to take effect, and be in force, from and after its passage.

HYRUM SMITH.

Vice Mayor & President pro Tempore.

Passed August 8th, 1842.

JAMES CLARK, Recorder.

WINDOW SASH.

WE, carpenters, builders, &c., of the city of Nauvoo, recommend H. Hammond's patent upper and improved lower window sash springs, as a very superior article:

W. Weeks, principal carpenter of Temple, L. Woodworth, do do Nauv. H's, R. Hadlock, J. W. Coolidge, L. Tulle, M. Ramney, H. Riding.

All windows should be made narrow, high and with parting beads.

For the proper ventilation of a room, it is absolutely necessary to lower the upper sash.

These springs are warranted not to loose their elasticity or break, have points for preserving the notches in the sash, directions for selecting the appropriate sizes and properly putting them into windows.

For sale, wholesale and retail, at several of the hardware stores in St. Louis, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, &c. See a window with these springs in operation at Mr. Mills' Masonic Hall.

Nauvoo, Aug. 13, 1842.

17-ly.

NOTICE.

WHEREAS my wife Casander J. Whiting eloped my bed and board about one year ago, without any just cause or provocation, and has not returned; this is, therefore, to forbid all persons trusting her on my account, as I shall pay no debts of her contracting.

NATHANIEL WHITING.

Nauvoo, Aug. 10, 1842.

47-3w.

NOTICE.

The Stock Holders, of the Nauvoo Agricultural and Manufacturing Association, are hereby notified, that a meeting for the election of Trustees, will be held at Gen. Hyrum Smith's office, on the first Monday in September next, at 4 o'clock P. M.

E. ROBINSON Secretary.

Nauvoo, August 13, 1842.

POETRY.

For the Wasp.
WISDOM.

BY MISS E. R. SNOW.

Richer than the pearls which ocean
Treasures in its ample bed,
Is each, cherish'd, sweet emotion,
Wisdom gently deigns to shed.

Wisdom has no false attraction—
Pure and spotless is her soul—
When she stimulates to action,
Here, is no usurp'd control.

Onward, Time! thy chariot hasten—
Let the scenes of life awake;
When their keen corrosives chasten
Then, I'll smile for Wisdom's sake.

Welcome Age! I'll hail our union
As a point replete with gain,
If thro' thee, a full communion
I, with wisdom shall obtain.

Bind thy wreath about my temples—
Place thy signet on my brow—
On my cheek, thy furrow dimples
Plant, where blood is coursing now.

If she loves the hoary headed,
Let me be what Wisdom loves;
Let my nature all be wedded
To whatever she approves.

By her heav'nly precepts guided—
With her counsel for my shield,
All my efforts undivided
Shall, for Truth the falchion wield.

For the Wasp.

THE WESTERN WORLD.

BY W. W. PHELPS.

Oh the western world—Oh the western world—
What a goodly, pleasant land is there!
Like a comely Queen, in her robes of green,
It shines the fairest of the fair.

Oh its prairies seem—Oh its prairies seem—
Like the sea when the light wind blows;
And its buffalo, in a phalanx go,
As they run from their Indian foes.

Oh its Indian tribes—Oh its Indian tribes—
Like the stars in the upper deep,
Are a roaming round, where the game is found—
And because they'd rather hunt than reap.

Oh its thousand hills—Oh its thousand hills—
With the Rocky Mountains towering high;
Have their noble game, and their ancient fame,
And the princely old Missouri sigh.

Oh its zephyrs bland—Oh its zephyrs bland—
With its mystic, paradisaic powers,
Like a spirit throng—they career along
And sweetly kiss the pretty flowers.

Oh the western world—Oh the western world—
May its hardy pioneers find rest,
Where the setting sun, at the Oregon,
Sparkles on the border of 'Far West.'

A CURIOSITY.—Most of our readers have heard of a tree, or plant, which blossoms but once in a hundred years; whence it is called the "Century Plant." We are informed that a plant of this kind, was transplanted into the garden of the Patron, at Albany, seventy five years ago, where it has stood ever since, but without any indication of blossoming, until the present season. Its age, when transplanted, is unknown but is supposed to have been twenty-five years, or more. A flower stem has lately shot up from the plant to the height of six or eight feet, and the roof of the green house, in which it stands, has been removed to accommodate it, as they are sometimes known to shoot up twenty or thirty feet. It is now confidently expected to be in full bloom in a few days. It excites much curiosity, as well it might, and will probably be visited by many of those who take an interest in the botanical wonders of Nature.—American Mechanic.

District Court of the United States, }
within and for the District of Illinois. }
In the matter of the petition of Aaron B. Sturges of Hancock county, to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Aaron B. Sturges of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the first day of October next at the District Court room in the city of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 23rd of June, A. D. 1842.

TRUMBULL & BARNETT, Solicitors for pet.
Attest: James F. Owings, clerk. no 15-2w.

DR. J. F. WELD,

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS,
Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.
Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

DRUGS, MEDICINES, &C.

THE subscriber has opened a Drug Store in Nauvoo, and intends keeping a full assortment of every thing in that line.—Paints, Oils, Varnish, Brushes, Turpentine, Linseed, Sperma, Olive, and Castor Oil; white Lead, red and black Lead, Vermillion, Prussian Blue, Lytharge, Chrome green and yellow, venecian red, spanish brown, lampblack, ivory black, whiting, chalk, yellow ochre, dye stuffs, indigo, cochineal, annatto, madder, copperas, alum, oil vitriol, blue vitriol, logwood, brazilwood, &c. &c.; stationary, plain and ruled cap and letter paper, ink, wafers, quills, sand, &c.; window-glass of all sizes, salacatus, putty, spices, glass ware, perfumery, soaps, snuff, rosin, matches, blacking, every thing in the medicine line, all the patent medicines; all of which will be sold low for cash; Van Studdiford's ague and fever pills, also his medicated lozenges, and cough, worm, and cathartic lozenges, are constantly on hand.
Store on water street above Davis' Hotel.

A. T. TERRELL.

July, 23, 1842.

AGUE AND FEVER.

Gleim's tonic mixture and Dr. Renals' pills; two certain cures for that inveterate pest, the chills and fever.—for sale by,
July 23, 1842.

A. T. TERRELL.

BEESWAX.

The highest price in cash will be paid for Beeswax, by (16 m 3) A. T. TERRELL.

MEAL, FLOUR,

AND PROVISIONS OF EVERY KIND,
WANTED ON TITHING.

THE brethren abroad will remember that those who devote the whole of their time to work on the Temple must be fed; they cannot live and work without provisions, and we are growing very scarce; and especially so with regard to MEAL and FLOUR. Those, therefore, who have the above articles, and intend to consecrate such on their tithing, will please forward them immediately to Nauvoo.

W. RICHARDS, Recorder
for the Temple.

Nauvoo, June 18th 1842. 10-1f.

NOTES

DUE the Trustee for labor on the Temple, are left with the Temple Committee for collection. Brethren, remember that your contracts with your God are sacred; the labor is wanted immediately.

W. RICHARDS,

Temple Recorder.

June 25, 1842.

P. S. Remember the notes due for property also.

BENCH & MOULDING PLANES.

WANTED, immediately, a large number of the above Planes on tithing. The brethren who have got such and can spare them would greatly facilitate the building of the Temple by bringing them as soon as possible to the recorder's office, and they shall be entered to their credit on tithing. All kinds of bench planes whether good or indifferent can be made useful at the Temple. The moulding planes should be such as suit the present fashion.

Also all lumber, which would make plane stocks, would be very serviceable.

JOSEPH SMITH, Trustee.

W. CLAYTON, Clerk.

NOTICE.

IS hereby given that the partnership heretofore existing under the name of George W. Crouse and Nathaniel Jennings is this day dissolved by mutual consent and all persons indebted to the firm, will call and settle with George W. Crouse without delay, under whose name the business will be continued.

Dated Nauvoo June 11th 1842.

MEDICAL NOTICE.

DR. W. B. BRINK.

Respectfully tenders his professional services to the citizens of Nauvoo, and its vicinity, as a botanic practitioner, having adopted the botanic practice from a positive conviction of the truth of its doctrines, and the unrivaled success which attends the practice; and hopes to give general satisfaction and prove the superior efficacy of the botanic treatment to those who may place themselves under his care; also a number of valuable preparations of his own compounding; such as anti-bilious pills peculiarly serviceable in dyspepsia, bilious fever, &c; restorative bitters, pulmonary balsom, cough syrup, rhumatic liniment, neutralizing cordial; this is one of the most valuable preparations known for cholery morbus, cholery infantum, or summer complaints of children, fever ague and cancers, will be treated upon the principle of no cure no pay and those afflicted with cancers will do well to call and try a remedy which has never failed; and those who are not able to pay will be cured without charge.

Dr. B. is consulted in the most intricate and protracted cases of secret disease that require practical experience to ensure success; every species and form of the disease must yield to his treatment which is in all cases mild and soft, requiring no interruption from business or change of diet, and will treat the disease upon the principle of no cure no pay; office at the store of W. Allen, formerly occupied by Mr. E. D. Woolley.

W. B. BRINK, M. D.

Nauvoo, July 2nd 1842. 12-3m.

District Court of the United States, }
within and for the district of Illinois. }

In the matter of the petition of Windsor P. Lyon of Hancock county to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that Windsor P. Lyon of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a bankrupt and be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the first day of October next, at the District Court Room in the city of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July, A. D. 1842.

RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, clerk. 14-3f.

LOOK HERE! LOOK HERE!!

WANTED, at the Nauvoo Foundry, a quantity of Stone coal; any persons wishing to furnish it, will please call on Hiram Kimball, or Geo. W. Robinson, at the Post Office.

Old castings will be taken in exchange for new.
Nauvoo, June 13th 1842. 10-1f.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus
J. Salsbery, Plymouth.
Harow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Chiffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Pag, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burts, New Egypt.
Jam's Curtis, Horners Town.
W. L. Appleby, Reclless Town.
Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Salem.
Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapeer.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirtland.

NEW YORK.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.
L. R. Foster, city of New York.

TRAVELING AGENTS.

Hiram Kimball.

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES, }
WITHIN AND FOR THE DISTRICT OF ILLINOIS. }

In the matter of the Petition of Charles Warner of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Charles Warner of Hancock county has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts, under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield, in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons intersted may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July A. D. 1842.

RALSTON WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest James F. Owings Clerk. 14-3f.

District Court of the United States, }
within and for the District of Illinois. }

In the matter of the petition of John S. Fullmer of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that John S. Fullmer of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court Room in the city of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July, A. D. 1842.

RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk. 14-3f.

District Court of the United States, }
within and for the District of Illinois. }

In the matter of the Petition of William Niswanger of Hancock County to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that William Niswanger of Hancock County has filed his Petition in this court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield, in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July, A. D. 1842.

RALSON WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States, }
within and for the District of Illinois. }

In the matter of the Petition of Taltan E. Fox of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Taltan E. Fox of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts, under the act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court Room in the city of Springfield, in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July, A. D. 1842.

RALSTON WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States, }
within and for the District of Illinois. }

In the matter of the petition of Edward F. Chittenden of Hancock county, to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Edward F. Chittenden of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court Room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July, A. D. 1842.

RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

POETRY.

For the Wasp.

WISDOM.

BY MISS E. R. SNOW.

Richer than the pearls which ocean
Treasures in its ample bed,
Is each cherish'd, sweet emotion,
Wisdom gently deigns to shed.
Wisdom has no false attraction—
Pure and spotless is her soul—
When she stimulates to action,
Here, is no usurp'd control.

Onward, Time! thy chariot hasten—
Let the scenes of life awake;
When their keen corrosives chasten
Then, I'll smile for Wisdom's sake.

Welcome Age! I'll hail our union
As a point replete with gain,
If thro' thee, a full communion
I, with wisdom shall obtain.

Bind thy wreath about my temples—
Place thy signet on my brow—
On my cheek, thy furrow dimples
Plant, where blood is coursing now.

If she loves the hoary headed,
Let me be what Wisdom loves;
Let my nature all be wedded
To whatever she approves.

By her heav'nly precepts guided—
With her counsel for my shield,
All my efforts undivided
Shall, for Truth the falchion wield.

For the Wasp.

THE WESTERN WORLD.

BY W. W. PHELPS.

Oh the western world—Oh the western world—
What a goodly, pleasant land is there!
Like a comely Queen, in her robes of green,
It shines the fairest of the fair.

Oh its prairies seem—Oh its prairies seem—
Like the sea when the light wind blows;
And its buffalo, in a phalanx go,
As they run from their Indian foes.

Oh its Indian tribes—Oh its Indian tribes—
Like the stars in the upper deep,
Are a roaming round, where the game is found—
And because they'd rather hunt than reap.

Oh its thousand hills—Oh its thousand hills—
With the Rocky Mountains towering high;
Have their noble game, and their ancient fame,
And the princely old Missouri nigh.

Oh its zephyrs bland—Oh its zephyrs bland—
With its mystic, paradisaean powers,
Like a spirit throng—they career along
And sweetly kiss the pretty flowers.

Oh the western world—Oh the western world—
May its hardy pioneers find rest,
Where the setting sun, at the Oregon,
Sparkles on the border of 'Far West.'

A Curiosity.—Most of our readers have heard of a tree, or plant, which blossoms but once in a hundred years; whence it is called the 'Century Plant.' We are informed that a plant of this kind, was transplanted into the garden of the Patron, at Albany, seventy five years ago, where it has stood ever since, but without any indication of blossoming, until the present season. Its age, when transplanted, is unknown, but is supposed to have been twenty-five years, or more. A flower stem has lately shot up from the plant to the height of six or eight feet, and the roof of the green house, in which it stands, has been removed to accommodate it, as they are sometimes known to shoot up twenty or thirty feet. It is now confidently expected to be in full bloom in a few days. It excites much curiosity, as well it might, and will probably be visited by many of those who take an interest in the botanical wonders of Nature. American Mechanic.

District Court of the United States, }
within and for the District of Illinois. }
In the matter of the petition of Aaron B. Sturges of Hancock county, to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.
Notice is hereby given, that Aaron B. Sturges of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court room in the city of Springfield in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.
Dated this 23rd of June a. d. 1842.
TRUMBULL & BASSETT, Solicitors for pet.
Attest: James F. Owings, clerk. 15-2w

DR. J. F. WELD,

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.

Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.
Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

DRUGS, MEDICINES, &C.

THE subscriber has opened a Drug Store in Nauvoo, and intends keeping a full assortment of every thing in that line.—Paints, Oils, Varnish, Brushes, Turpentine, Linseed, Sperm, Olive, and Castor Oil; white Lead, red and black Lead, Vermillion, Prussian Blue, Litharge, Chrome green and yellow, venecian red, spanish brown, lampblack, ivory black, whiting, chalk, yellow ochre, dye stuffs, indigo, cochineal, annatto, madder, copperas, alum, oil vitriol, blue viriol, logwood, brazilwood, &c. &c.; stationary, plain and ruled cap and letter paper, ink, wafers, quills, sand, &c.; window-glass of all sizes, salicratus, putty, spices, glass ware, perfumery, soaps, snuff, rosin, matches, blacking, every thing in the medicine line, all the patent medicines; all of which will be sold low for cash; Van Studdiford's ague and fever pills, also his medicated lozenges, and cough, worm, and cathartic lozenges, are constantly on hand.
Store on water street above Davis' Hotel.
A. T. TERRELL.

July 23, 1842.

AGUE AND FEVER.

Gleim's tonic mixture and Dr. Renals' pills: two certain cures for that inveterate pest, the chills and fever.—for sale by,
July 23, 1842. A. T. TERRELL.

BEEWAX.

The highest price in cash will be paid for Beeswax, by (16 m 3) A. T. TERRELL.

MEAL, FLOUR,

AND PROVISIONS OF EVERY KIND,
WANTED ON TITHING.

THE brethren abroad will remember that those who devote the whole of their time to work on the Temple must be fed; they cannot live and work without provisions, and we are growing very scarce; and especially so with regard to MEAL and FLOUR. Those, therefore, who have the above articles, and intend to consecrate such on their tithing, will please forward them immediately to Nauvoo.
W. RICHARDS, Recorder
for the Temple.

Nauvoo, June 18th 1842. 10-1f.

NOTES

DUE the Trustee for labor on the Temple, are left with the Temple Committee for collection. Brethren, remember that your contracts with your God are sacred; the labor is wanted immediately.
W. RICHARDS,
Temple Recorder.

June 25, 1842. 10-1f.

P. S. Remember the notes due for property also.

BENCH & MOULDING PLANES.

WANTED, immediately, a large number of the above Planes on tithing. The brethren who have got such and can spare them would greatly facilitate the building of the Temple by bringing them as soon as possible to the recorder's office, and they shall be entered to their credit on tithing. All kinds of bench planes whether good or indifferent can be made useful at the Temple. The moulding planes should be such as suit the present fashion.

Also all lumber, which would make plane stocks, would be very serviceable.

JOSEPH SMITH, Trustee.

W. CLAYTON, Clerk.

NOTICE.

IS hereby given that the partnership heretofore existing under the name of George W. Crouse and Nathaniel Jennings is this day dissolved by mutual consent and all persons indebted to the firm, will call and settle with George W. Crouse without delay, under whose name the business will be continued.
Dated Nauvoo June 11th 1842.

MEDICAL NOTICE.

DR. W. B. BRINK.

Respectfully tenders his professional services to the citizens of Nauvoo, and its vicinity, as a botanic practitioner, having adopted the botanic practice from a positive conviction of the truth of its doctrines, and the unrivaled success which attends the practice; and hopes to give general satisfaction and prove the superior efficacy of the botanic treatment to those who may place themselves under his care; also a number of valuable preparations of his own compounding; such as anti-bilious pills peculiarly serviceable in dyspepsia, bilious fever, &c; restorative bitters, pulmonary balsom, cough syrup, rhumatic liniment, neutralizing cordial; this is one of the most valuable preparations known for cholery morbus, cholery, infantum, or summer complaints of children, fever ague and cancers, will be treated upon the principle of no cure no pay and those afflicted with cancers will do well to call and try a remedy which has never failed; and those who are not able to pay will be cured without charge.

Dr. B. is consulted in the most intricate and protracted cases of secret disease that require practical experience to ensure success; every species and form of the disease must yield to his treatment which is in all cases mild and soft, requiring no interruption from business or change of diet, and will treat the disease upon the principle of no cure no pay; office at the store of W. Alen, formerly occupied by Mr. E. D. Wooley.

W. B. BRINK, M. D.

Nauvoo, July 2nd 1842. 12-3m.

District Court of the United States, }
within and for the district of Illinois. }

In the matter of the petition of Windsor P. Lyon of Hancock county to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that Windsor P. Lyon of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a bankrupt and be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court Room in the city of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July, A. D. 1842.

RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.
Attest: James F. Owings, clerk. 14-3f.

LOOK HERE! LOOK HERE!!

W quantity of Stone coal; any persons wishing to furnish it, will please call on Hiram Kimball, or Geo. W. Robinson, at the Post Office.
Old castings will be taken in exchange for new.
Nauvoo, June 13th 1842. 10-1f.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS.

J. R. Backenator, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus
J. Salabery, Plymouth,
Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Chiffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Page, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
James Curtis, Horners Town.
W. I. Appleby, Redless Town.
Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Salem.
Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapier.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirtland.

NEW YORK.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.
L. R. Foster, city of New York.

TRAVELING AGENTS.

Hiram Kimball.

District Court of the United States, }
within and for the District of Illinois. }

In the matter of the Petition of Charles Warner of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Charles Warner of Hancock county has filed his Petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts, under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield, in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July A. D. 1842.

RALSTON WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest James F. Owings Clerk. 14-3f

District Court of the United States, }
within and for the District of Illinois. }

In the matter of the petition of John S. Fullmer of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that John S. Fullmer of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court Room in the city of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July, A. D. 1842.]

RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.
Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk. 14-3f.

District Court of the United States, }
within and for the District of Illinois. }

In the matter of the Petition of William Niswanger of Hancock County to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that William Niswanger of Hancock County has filed his Petition in this court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court room in the City of Springfield, in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said Petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July A. D. 1842.

RALSON WARREN & WHEAT
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings Clerk.

District Court of the United States, }
within and for the District of Illinois. }

In the matter of the Petition of Taltion E. Fox of Hancock county to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Taltion E. Fox of Hancock county has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts, under the act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court Room in the city of Springfield, in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July, A. D. 1842.

RALSTON WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

District Court of the United States, }
within and for the District of Illinois. }

In the matter of the petition of Edward F. Chittenden of Hancock county, to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Edward F. Chittenden of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress, in such case made and provided: and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court Room in the City of Springfield in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of July, A. D. 1842.

RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

THE

WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 18

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, August 20, 1842.

Whole Number 18.

THE WASP,

EDITED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY

WM. SMITH,

At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.

Terms.—$1.50 invariably in advance.

THE CRUCIFIXION.

Imitated from the Italian of Crescimbeni.

I asked the Heavens;—'What foe to God hath done
this unexampled deed;—The Heavens exclaim,'Was man;—and we in horror snatched the sun
From such a spectacle of guilt and shame.'

I asked the Sea;—the sea in fury boiled,

And answered with his voice of storms—"Twas Man,

My waves in panic at his crime recoiled,

Disclosed the abyss, and from the centre ran.'

I asked the Earth;—the Earth replied aghast,

'Twas man;—and such strange pangs my bosom
rent;—

That still I groan and shudder at the past.'—

To Man, gay smiling thoughtless man, I went,
And asked him next:—He turned a scornful eye,

Took his proud head, and deigned me no reply.

JAMES MONTGOMERY.

We make the following selection because it shows how much the public mind is troubled in looking for what must shortly come to pass.—The Mormons will have the consolation that some people have thought of what they preach, whether they prepare for the great day or not.

From the New York Luminary.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES.

It is evident that our Saviour did intend to point out to his disciples certain infallible "signs of his coming, and of the end of the world;" first, because he did not reprove them for enquiring what these signs should be; and second, because he proceeded to give a narration ofevents that should take place just previous to the "coming of the Son of Man in the clouds of heaven." In order to prove to them that these signs were the infallible prediction of his second personal and glorious appearing, he adds a parable of the fig-tree, saying, "Behold the fig-tree and all the trees; when they now shoot forth, ye see and know of your own selves, that summer is now nigh at hand.
So likewise ye, when ye see these things come to pass, know ye." What? that the destruction of Jerusalem is nigh at hand? No, but that the kingdom of God is nigh at hand.From this we ought to be satisfied, that every true child of God, will "know perfectly" of the near approach of that day, for what person, that has the use of their eyes, has ever been deceived in the season of the year, when the buds "shoot forth?"In almost all ages of the world there have been found persons base enough, without a scripture foundation, to fix upon "times" and periods, months, and days, for the "end of the world." These "false prophets" have had their day, and with their predictions, have been consigned to oblivion: But notwithstanding this,
the world has never been left without
"true prophets," or else the name of
"false prophets" would be superfluous:
The children of Christ's kingdom are now discovering, most clearly in the "signs of the times," and fulfillment of prophecy, that the "Son of Man" is about to appear. "Of that day and hour" they pretend not to know, for who can tell to a day, or an hour, of the commencementof summer, by the "shooting forth" of the branches?Saying nothing of the "Signs in the sun, moon and stars" which have all, undoubtedly, been fulfilled, mark the fulfillment of the Saviour's prediction of the "distress of nations with perplexity,"
"men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth," nearly all are ready to acknowledge that the present is a time of general distress, and perplexity of nations. But we may be told these things predict nothing extraordinary, for there has been such times before. We answer, No, never since the foundation of the world. The eyes of the whole world are not only fixed upon the hostile attitudes which England and France are assuming, but the entire nations of the earth are being shaken. While the borders of the Chinese Empire are bathed in blood, famine, pestilence and human misery in ten thousand forms is raging among her two hundred and fifty millions of inhabitants; and the dark-skinned Tartars is far from being a contented spectator of these scenes.On the South of Asia the Hindoo, within a brief period has humbled the pride, and tarnished the boasted glory of Britain's arms. Active preparations on the part of the latter to win back her lost honor, has waked up the ire of both nations. The Ottoman Empire, that grew and prospered when the combined Christian powers used their efforts to check the march of Ma-homedanism, has fallen, even when Christian powers combined to stay her up. The haughty Turk, exasperated with the loss of territory in one direction, is pushing his victories among the peaceful inhabitants of Persia, and the last vestiges of the seven churches of Asia are likely to be swept away by their cruel power.Russia with her multiplied millions of serfs, headed by a reckless Autocrat, may justly be compared to a huge volcano, liable to burst forth at any moment, and lay her tremendous empire in ruin. Africa continues, as she has been for ages, convulsed with internal wars, and the blood of her human sacrifice is crying to heaven for vengeance upon the oppressor, whose cupidity has generated these wars. The allied powers that have been wont to bind the fetters of aristocracy upon nations, have now hardly power to hold themselves together. The relations of our own country with foreign powers are far from being the most flattering. But laying aside foreign relations, our internal policy is made up of materials opposite to each other as fire and water. Aristocracy and Republicanism—Liberty and slavery; when these principles come in contact, there must be an explosion. These two principles have been increasing like two mighty balls, until there is scarcely room for them to move without a collision, which must inevitably swallow up one in the other. We have neither time nor room in this place to point you to the beclouded state of the moral and political atmosphere in Texas, Mexico, and South America. When have we ever seen so forcible an illustration of the prediction, "men's hearts failing them for fear, &c.?" Man's confidence in his fellow man seems to be almost entirely gone. A few years since our business men commanded the confidence of the capitalists of Europe. Our business men became bankrupt, and then our states were entrusted with foreign funds; but the time has now arrived when States, Nations and Empires become insolvent in a day.
Men of capital will not invest their funds even upon what a little time since would have been considered the best of security. Those that have the most of this world's goods seem to be in the most trouble. We speak now of circumstances that are transpiring before our eyes in this city. An eminent lawyer, who is well ac-quainted with the extensive business operations in the lower part of the city, told us the other day that at the rate things were now moving in Wall street, he did not believe it would be possible, at the end of a year from this for any man to raise three per cent upon his real estate in this city.He remarked, that it seemed to him that the Almighty was about proving to the people that property was good for nothing. There are hundreds among us who have never, until now, known what it was to want for the comforts of life, that are obliged to beg for their bread; and what is most mysterious, there never has been a time within our recollection, when provisions were so plenty, and so cheap. It is hard times indeed, yet we hear no cursing about hard times, as we used to hear. 'Men's hearts are failing with fear.' They believe some great event is about to take place. They believe, whether they will speak out or not, that 'the coming of the Lord draweth nigh.' Brethren, more than one thousand of the servants of God are engaged in sounding the 'midnight cry,' which circumstance has never before been known in the history of our world. Daniel's vision and prophecy that was to be 'sealed up until the time of the end' is now unsealed, and 'the wise' are beginning to 'understand.' Let your lamps be trimmed and burning, and fall not asleep in times like these.TAMING HORSES.—A successful mode of training the wildest horses by breathing into their nostrils, has been tested by numerous experiments in England. Mr. Catlin, in his manners and customs of the North American Indians, says he has often tried the experiment so successful on buffalo calves, in concurrence with the custom of the country, that they would follow at the heels of his horse as closely and affectionately as if accompanying their dams.—
The Indians tame the wild horses in the same manner, after having caught them with the lasso. Mr. Ellis, of Windsor, England, chanced to read the above facts. He determined to try the experiment. He did so upon a yearling colt, particularly unmanageable, and so successfully as to astonish the owner and grooms who had tried in vain to subdue it. Mr. Ellis is of opinion that this is the secret of the celebrated Irish horse tamers, who displayed wonderful powers in this way. They pretend to whisper to the animal, and played with his head, and then probably breathed into his nostrils. This is a valuable discovery if true, and may be the means of preventing a great many accidents. It is at any rate worth trying, and we therefore make it public for the benefit of those interested.ORIGIN OF THE NAME INDIAN.—The name Indian, was erroneously applied to the original man of America by its first discoverers. The attempt to arrive at the East Indies by sailing west, caused the discovery of the islands and continent of America. When they were at first discovered, Columbus, and many after him, supposed that they had arrived at the eastern shore of the continent of India, and hence the people they found there were called Indians. The error was not discovered until the name had so obtained, that it could not well be changed. It is true, that it matters but little to us by what name the indigenes of a country are known, and especially those of America, in as far as the name is seldom used among us but in application to the aboriginal Americans. But with the people of Europe it was not so unimportant.
Situated between the two countries, India and America, the same name for the inhabitants of both must, at first, have produced considerable inconvenience, if not confusion; because, in speaking of the Indian, no one would know whether an American or a Zealander was meant unless by the context of the discourse. There-fore in a historical point of view, the error is, at least, as much to be deplored as that the name of the continent itself should have been derived from Americus instead of Columbus.—[American Pioneer.WIND AND HAIL STORM.—This city and vicinity was visited last evening with a most severe storm of wind and hail, which we learn has done much damage. The rain at first fell in torrents. This was succeeded by a shower of hailstones which lasted some ten or fifteen minutes, many as large as walnuts and breaking many windows in different houses. In the country we learn that great damage has been done to the crops—the corn in many places beat down and fields of it totally destroyed, and the blades in others stripped from the stalks; the same remark will apply to the oats, and in many fields to the wheat and rye, which had not been cut.
We hope however to learn that the sweep of this storm has not been very wide. We learn that it was most severe along the road leading East from 4th Street and that towards East Liberty the storm was lighter.—[Pitts. American.QUARRYING STONES.—Another remarkable example of the contributions of science to the arts of life is derived from the properties of heat, as applied in the East to quarrying blocks of stone when the object is to excavate huge blocks from the surrounding mass. A groove is cut some two inches in depth in the required direction.
This done, the groove is filled with fuel, which is kept lighted until the rock is highly heated.
The rock then is of course expanded with the action of the heat; the fuel is then swept away, and cold water immediately poured into the groove. The sudden contraction causes the rock instantly to split off. The same principle is daily exhibited on our tables. If a heated glass be suddenly filled with cold water, it immediately breaks in pieces. In this way blocks 80 feet long and 6 thick are easily taken off with no other labor than that of chiseling out the groove.A similar example of the application of science to the economy of power is exhibited in France in the quarrying of mill stones. They are required, as you are well aware, to be circular and flat—cylinders with a very small altitude compared with the diameter and the stone from which they are made is exceedingly hard. The mode of quarrying them is this. A very high, circular column of stone is wrought out of the requisite diameter. To slice off portions of this, such as are required, by the common stone saw, would be a work of immense labor. Quite a different agent is employed. At regular successive distances, grooves are cut around the column, into which are driven wooden wedges at evening. The dew which falls during the night being absorbed by the wood, causes it to expand with a power so irresistible, that all the stones are found properly cracked off in the morning.
—[Dr. Lardner.MIRACULOUS PRESERVATION OF LIFE.—A woman named Greene, was hanged, having been condemned for felony, as related by Dr. Platt.
The body was delivered over for an anatomical lecture to a doctor of physic; he bled her, put her to bed to a warm woman, and, with spirits and other means, restored her to life. He was induced to make this experiment, as the time of her suspension was only about half an hour.—
What was most remarkable and distinguished the hand of Providence in her recovery, was,
that subsequently she was proved to be innocent of the crime for which she suffered. Some young scholars joined in subscription for her portion, and married her to a man by whom she had several children. Her life was thus extended for fifteen years.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 18

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, August 20, 1842.

Whole Number 18.

THE WASP.

EDITED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY

WM. SMITH,

At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.

TERMS.—$1.50 invariably in advance.

THE CRUCIFIXION.

Imitated from the Italian of Crescimbini.

I asked the Heavens;—What foe to God hath done

This unexampled deed;—The Heavens e' claim,
'Twas man;—and we in horror snatched the sun
From such a spectacle of guilt and shame.I asked the Sea;—the sea in fury boiled,
And answered with his voice of storms—"Twas
Man,My waves in panic at his crime recoiled, Disclosed the abyss, and from the centre ran.I asked the Earth;—the Earth replied aghast,
'Twas man;—and such strange pangs my bosom
rent,—That still I groan and shudder at the past.—
To Man, gay smiling thoughtless man, I went,
And asked him next:—He turned a scornful eye,
Shook his proud head, and deigned me no reply.

JAMES MONTGOMERY.

We make the following selection because it shows how much the public mind is troubled in looking for what must shortly come to pass.—The Mormons will have the consolation that some people have thought of what they preach, whether they prepare for the great day or not.

From the New York Luminary.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES.

It is evident that our Saviour did intend to point out to his disciples certain infallible "signs of his coming, and of the end of the world," first, because he did not reprove them for enquiring what these signs should be; and second, because he proceeded to give a narration of events that should take place just previous to the "coming of the Son of Man in the clouds of heaven." In order to prove to them that these signs were the infallible prediction of his second personal and glorious appearing, he adds a parable of the fig-tree, saying, "Behold the fig-tree and all the trees; when they now shoot forth, ye see and know of your own selves, that summer is now nigh at hand. So likewise ye, when ye see these things come to pass, know ye." What? that the destruction of Jerusalem is nigh at hand? No, but that the kingdom of God is nigh at hand.

From this we ought to be satisfied, that every true child of God, will "know perfectly" of the near approach of that day, for what person, that has the use of their eyes, has ever been deceived in the season of the year, when the buds "shoot forth?"

In almost all ages of the world there have been found persons base enough, without a scripture foundation, to fix upon "times" and periods, months, and days, for the "end of the world." These "false prophets" have had their day, and with their predictions, have been consigned to oblivion: But notwithstanding this, the world has never been left without "true prophets," or else the name of "false prophets" would be superfluous: The children of Christ's kingdom are now discovering, most clearly in the "signs of the times," and fulfillment of prophecy, that the "Son of Man" is about to appear. "Of that day and hour" they pretend not to know, for who can tell to a day, or an hour, of the commencement of summer, by the "shooting forth" of the branches?

Saying nothing of the "Signs in the sun, moon and stars" which have all, undoubtedly, been fulfilled, mark the fulfillment of the Saviour's prediction of the "distress of nations with perplexity," "men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth," nearly all are ready to acknowledge that the present is a time of general distress, and perplexity of nations. But we may be told these things predict nothing extraordinary, for there has been such times before. We answer, No, never since the foundation of the world. The eyes of the whole world are not only fixed upon the hostile attitudes which England and France are assuming, but the entire nations of the earth are being shaken. While the borders of the Chinese Empire are bathed in blood, famine, pestilence and human misery in ten thousand forms is raging among her two hundred and fifty millions of inhabitants; and the dark-skinned Tartars is far from being a contented spectator of these scenes.

On the South of Asia the Hindoo, within a brief period has humbled the pride, and tarnished the boasted glory of Britain's arms. Active preparations on the part of the latter to win back her lost honor, has waked up the ire of both nations. The Ottoman Empire, that grew and prospered when the combined Christian powers used their efforts to check the march of Mahomedanism, has fallen, even when Christian powers combined to stay her up. The haughty Turk, exasperated with the loss of territory in one direction, is pushing his victories among the peaceful inhabitants of Persia, and the last vestiges of the seven churches of Asia are likely to be swept away by their cruel power.

Russia with her multiplied millions of serfs, headed by a reckless Autocrat, may justly be compared to a huge volcano, liable to burst forth at any moment, and lay her tremendous empire in ruin. Africa continues, as she has been for ages, convulsed with internal wars, and the blood of her human sacrifice is crying to heaven for vengeance upon the oppressor, whose cupidity has generated these wars. The allied powers that have been wont to bind the fetters of aristocracy upon nations, have now hardly power to hold themselves together. The relations of our own country with foreign powers are far from being the most flattering. But laying aside foreign relations, our internal policy is made up of materials opposite to each other as fire and water. Aristocracy and Republicanism—Liberty and slavery; when these principles come in contact, there must be an explosion. These two principles have been increasing like two mighty balls, until there is scarcely room for them to move without a collision, which must inevitably swallow up one in the other. We have neither time nor room in this place to point you to the beclouded state of the moral and political atmosphere in Texas, Mexico, and South America. When have we ever seen so forcible an illustration of the prediction, "men's hearts failing them for fear, &c." Man's confidence in his fellow man seems to be almost entirely gone. A few years since our business men commanded the confidence of the capitalists of Europe. Our business men became bankrupt, and then our states were entrusted with foreign funds; but the time has now arrived when States, Nations and Empires become insolvent in a day. Men of capital will not invest their funds even upon what a little time since would have been considered the best of security. Those that have the most of this world's goods seem to be in the most trouble. We speak now of circumstances that are transpiring before our eyes in this city. An eminent lawyer, who is well acquainted with the extensive business operations in the lower part of the city, told us the other day that at the rate things were now moving in Wall street, he did not believe it would be possible, at the end of a year from this for any man to raise three per cent upon his real estate in this city.

He remarked, that it seemed to him that the Almighty was about proving to the people that property was good for nothing. There are hundreds among us who have never, until now, known what it was to want for the comforts of life, that are obliged to beg for their bread; and what is most mysterious, there never has been a time within our recollection, when provisions were so plenty, and so cheap. It is hard times indeed, yet we hear no cursing about hard times, as we used to hear. "Men's hearts are failing with fear." They believe some great event is about to take place. They believe, whether they will speak out or not, that "the coming of the Lord draweth nigh." Brethren, more than one thousand of the servants of God are engaged in sounding the "midnight cry," which circumstance has never before been known in the history of our world. Daniel's vision and prophecy that was to be "sealed up until the time of the end" is now unsealed, and "the wise" are beginning to "understand." Let your lamps be trimmed and burning, and fall not asleep in times like these.

TAMING HORSES.—A successful mode of training the wildest horses by breathing into their nostrils, has been tested by numerous experiments in England. Mr. Catlin, in his manners and customs of the North American Indians, says he has often tried the experiment so successful on buffalo calves, in concurrence with the custom of the country, that they would follow at the heels of his horse as closely and affectionately as if accompanying their dams.

The Indians tame the wild horses in the same manner, after having caught them with the lassos. Mr. Ellis, of Windsor, England, chanced to read the above facts. He determined to try the experiment. He did so upon a yearling colt, particularly unmanageable, and so successfully as to astonish the owner and grooms who had tried in vain to subdue it. Mr. Ellis is of opinion that this is the secret of the celebrated Irish horse tamers, who displayed wonderful powers in this way. They pretend to whisper to the animal, and played with his head, and then probably breathed into his nostrils. This is a valuable discovery if true, and may be the means of preventing a great many accidents. It is at any rate worth trying, and we therefore make it public for the benefit of those interested.

ORIGIN OF THE NAME INDIAN.—The name Indian, was erroneously applied to the original man of America by its first discoverers. The attempt to arrive at the East Indies by sailing west, caused the discovery of the islands and continent of America. When they were at first discovered, Columbus, and many after him, supposed that they had arrived at the eastern shore of the continent of India, and hence the people they found there were called Indians. The error was not discovered until the name had so obtained, that it could not well be changed. It is true, that it matters but little to us by what name the indigenes of a country are known, and especially those of America, in as far as the name is seldom used among us but in application to the aboriginal Americans. But with the people of Europe it was not so unimportant. Situated between the two countries, India and America, the same name for the inhabitants of both must, at first, have produced considerable inconvenience, if not confusion; because, in speaking of the Indian, no one would know whether an American or a Zealander was meant unless by the context of the discourse. Therefore in a historical point of view, the error is, at least, as much to be deplored as that the name of the continent itself should have been derived from Americus instead of Columbus.—[American Pioneer.

WIND AND HAIL STORM.—This city and vicinity was visited last evening with a most severe storm of wind and hail, which we learn has done much damage. The rain at first fell in torrents. This was succeeded by a shower of hailstones which lasted some ten or fifteen minutes, many as large as walnuts and breaking many windows in different houses. In the country we learn that great damage has been done to the crops—the corn in many places beat down and fields of it totally destroyed, and the blades in others stripped from the stocks; the same remark will apply to the oats, and in many fields to the wheat and rye, which had not been cut. We hope however to learn that the sweep of this storm has not been very wide. We learn that it was most severe along the road leading East from 4th Street and that towards East Liberty the storm was lighter.—[Pitts. American.

QUARRYING STONES.—Another remarkable example of the contributions of science to the arts of life is derived from the properties of heat, as applied in the East to quarrying blocks of stone when the object is to excavate huge blocks from the surrounding mass. A groove is cut some two inches in depth in the required direction. This done, the groove is filled with fuel, which is kept lighted until the rock is highly heated. The rock then is of course expanded with the action of the heat; the fuel is then swept away, and cold water immediately poured into the groove. The sudden contraction causes the rock instantly to split off. The same principle is daily exercised on our doors. If a heated glass be suddenly filled with cold water, it immediately breaks in pieces. In this way blocks 30 feet long and 6 thick are easily taken off with no other labor than that of chiseling out the groove.

A similar example of the application of science to the economy of power is exhibited in France in the quarrying of mill stones. They are required, as you are well aware, to be circular and flat—cylinders with a very small altitude compared with the diameter and the stone from which they are made is exceedingly hard. The mode of quarrying them is this. A very high, circular column of stone is wrought out of the requisite diameter. To slice off portions of this, such as are required, by the common stone saw, would be a work of immense labor. Quite a different agent is employed. At regular successive distances, grooves are cut around the column, into which are driven wooden wedges at evening. The dew which falls during the night being absorbed by the wood, causes it to expand with a power so irresistible, that all the stones are found properly cracked off in the morning.—[Dr. Lardner.

MIRACULOUS PRESERVATION OF LIFE.—A woman named Greene, was hanged, having been condemned for felony, as related by Dr. Platt. The body was delivered over for an anatomical lecture to a doctor of physic; he bled her, put her to bed to a warm woman, and, with spirits and other means, restored her to life. He was induced to make this experiment, as the time of her suspension was only about half an hour.—What was most remarkable and distinguished the hand of Providence in her recovery, was, that subsequently she was proved to be innocent of the crime for which she suffered. Some young scholars joined in subscription for her portion, and married her to a man by whom she had several children. Her life was thus extended for fifteen years.

THE WASP.

SATURDAY AUGUST 20, 1842.

Sharp, of the Signal, is slandering and black-guarding the candidates elected in Hancock county, especially Wm. Smith. The blow is aimed at the whole State. Such an outrageous insult upon the character of the leading men of the State councils, is to be deprecated, and regretted—as it shows a contempt for the sovereign voice of the people. In old times, however, when Cain's offering was rejected, murder was the result.

We admit the communication of our friends, Tom Nokes & Co., merely because the persons satirized and castigated, richly deserve it. Those editors who have been so liberal in their abuse upon so large a portion of the citizens of Illinois, can find no fault when they receive prompt pay. Old Tom Nokes & Co., years past, were great at lampooning vice—

'Putting in every man's hand a whip
To lash the rascals naked thro' the world.'
Gravity, sound sense, and reason, have less effect on a portion of the present generation, than faith, hope and charity upon the prince of darkness. Vanity, folly and wickedness have taken the place of virtue, wisdom and righteousness—and if the people do not now mourn—God knows they soon will, when 'he will laugh at their calamity, and mock when their fear cometh.'

Some of our friends want our opinion as to the course of certain editors who make it their business to vilify and abuse the character of General Joseph Smith and the Church of Latter Day Saints. We have to say that we shall pay little attention to their contemptible trash and enveloped libels. Through inadvertency two or three short vilifications from Boston and New York papers appeared in the last week's Wasp, without comment. In future, we intend to let the rascals and their morbid matter, go to perdition where all ungodliness and iniquity must sooner or later be consigned with its authors.

The following lines were found curiously written on a pane of glass at an Inn in an English village, in 1774.
•Hail, happy Britain, Freedom's best retreat;
Great is thy power, thy wealth, thy glory great—
But wealth and power have no immortal day,
For all things ripen only to decay;
And when that time arrives, the lot of all—
When Britain's glory, power and wealth shall fall:
Then shall thy sons by fate's unchang'd decree,
In other worlds, another Britain see,—
And what thou art America shall be!
Quite prophetic. And now let us remark, with the spirit of prophecy in him: To cultivate which, confidence in his Maker and humanity, are necessary—but little of these important requisites, can be discerned in the rising generation. The bump of self-consequence, goes a head of the knowledge of God.

BEAUTY AND BALDERDASH.

The Editor of the Quincy Whig publishes the wine of the wrath of Bennett's fornication as beauty, but remarks that the Extra Wasp of July 27, which contains the affidavits, certificates, &c., of some of the most respectable citizens of Nauvoo, is 'balderdash.' Thou great false marble! WHERE?

TOBACCO.

A short song for tobacco chewers:

'We three Brothers be
In one cause;
Bill puffs,
Tom snuffs,
And I chaws.'

'Man was created upright, but he has sought out many inventions!' Aye, and foolish ones too.

BY THE LIFE OF PHARAOH.—Wonderful doings in New England; and terrible things by the sea side. The suffrage presses are all silenced in Rhode Island, and the Kings Party examining and re-committing to prison, such persons as they find most obnoxious, with impunity! Surely we have fallen upon evil times, or else evil times have fallen upon us—brother against brother in that little state. It seems from appearance that all that resist Gov. King and his advisers, must come to it by the life of Pharaoh. Hard times for the poor! The state continues under martial law.

The result of the election in Illinois, has exceeded the most sanguine expectations of the friends of Democracy. Indiana is said to be right this year. There is certainly a wonderful change in the politics of the whole country. Ford's majority, it is supposed will be between 8 and 10,000, with a majority in joint ballot of both houses of between 80 and 90.

ILLINOIS ELECTION.

	Ford.	Dun.
Adams	1402	1577
Alexander	424	299
Bond	42	492
Boone	257	249
Bureau	269	337
Brown	125	000
Carroll	89	80
Clinton	470	262
Calhoun	171	292
Cass	321	348
Clay	336	218
Crawford	353	389
Coles	685	1012
Clark	579	563
Cook	1329	625
Champaign	121	145
Christian	196	187
De Witt	316	293
De Kalb	214	146
Du Page	132	000
Edgar	741	679
Edwards	122	271
Effingham	293	56
Franklin	522	96
Fulton	1193	1011
Fayette	611	388
Gallatin	1160	441
Greene	320	000
Grundy	100	000
Henderson	229	247
Hamilton	555	145
Hancock	1748	711
Hardin	131	154
Henry	86	162
Iroquois	175	154
Jackson	337	210
Jefferson	708	222
Jo Daviess	680	1079
Jersey	415	531
Johnson	340	109
Jasper	174	93
Knox	593	519
Kane	225	000
Kendall	25	000
Lawrence	597	676
LaSalle	1128	438
Livingston	78	85
Logan	166	260
Lake	267	281
Lee	230	241
Mason	181	169
Monroe	636	298
Morgan	1162	1375
M'Donough	487	506
Madison	965	1604
Montgomery	520	311
Macoupin	758	649
Macon	308	185
Menard	233	352
Marshall	278	168
M'Lean	424	509
Mercer	228	284
Monroe	583	192
M'Henry	64	000
Ogle	278	478
Putnam	187	170
Perry	331	174
Piatt	000	000
Pike	1024	1149
Peoria	950	767
Pope	268	291
Rock Island	224	426
Randolph	552	595
Richland	201	242
Sangamon	1217	1588
Stark	187	152
Scott	313	348
Schuyler	576	555
St. Clair	1576	779
Shelby	773	288
Stephenson	261	260
Tazewell	651	1181
Union	636	78
Vermilion	455	968
Whiteside	236	375
Will	756	465
Wayne	447	199
Washington	513	205
White	639	770
Warren	383	455
Wabash	275	426
Williamson	532	115
Winnebago	414	548
Woodford	287	160

GIVE YOUR REASONS.

What is the reason that a certain portion of the most self-conceited part of community, are more ready to hear and believe, and promulgate lies, foolish tales and injurious reports against the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, than to know the truth?

What is the reason that the 'guides' of the people, are so afraid of Revelation, or more scripture, or as many say,—more Bible? Can any one render an account of any body that was too good to be saved? Or was there ever any Revelations from Satan that passed as the word of the Lord?

Can any reason be given that a man, men, or society, should be slandered as dishonest, or guilty of any crime till proven so by due course of law?

The answers to the above are expected according to James 1:5.

HEALTH, PEACE AND WEATHER.

The health and the good order and quietude which has generally prevailed among the various climated inhabitants of our city, are still our blessed portions of the allotments of life. The weather, though cool, is mild—and bids fair for a continuation of health.

PLENTIFUL CROPS.

In another column is given a sketch of our country's plentiful crops. Wheat, in this section of country, can be bought for 25 cents per bushel, though we suppose 37 1-2 cents may be considered the going price. Corn, from appearance, will be cheaper than ever. Verily the times foretold by Edress are coming to pass as the forerunner of calamity, distress and famine; one extreme follows another: He that hath ears to hear let him hear: He that hath eyes to see let him see; and he that hath wisdom to understand let him understand, for the time of the end is now nigh at hand, even at the doors.

The water is now so low over the Rapids, that very few light draught Boats can pass. If the members of Congress would allow as much money for improving the Mississippi rapids, as they do for continuing long sessions, the navigation would have been clear long ago. Surely the old adage applies well to the American Congress: All talk and no cider.

For the Wasp.

FOR SALE.

MR. EDITOR:—

The result of the late election in this State, has made some 'awful disclosures' for the curious. The turn the thing has taken, as the pilot says when his helm takes a sheer, is a grinder on calculations, and a tornado on political chances. Any quantity of hypothecated stock can now be had at fifty per cent below par, at the stands and shaving shops of Jobbing Jacks, with thousands of apparatus for making laws, offices, insurances and banks, repealing charters, making hog-holes, script for annuities in reversion, changes on time, and places expected, gratis. Barren Francis in his Buffalo robe, near the Blue Lick of Sangamo, has a large lot, which, were it not for the Bankrupt law, would have to come to the hammer. It is now equal to Bennett's one stringed instrument, called a 'lead harp' for solemnity. The poor fellow sits on a gopher hill in sight of his air castle, singing:
Oh where, tell me where did my consequence go?
Tid-e-re-I-tid-e-re-I, and tid-e-re-id-e-re-I-de-o!

Near the Bluff of Alton, is supposed to be such a motley jag of freight as is rarely, if ever, so completely nonplussed, by the great, little, mean, upper, over, narrow handed cupidity, of such nondescript animals as Davis, whose trunks, avenues, stock holes, and lumber boxes, hang over like loads of hay, with commissions for 1843, Mormonism expunged from Illinois; bills reported; laws on file; Governor's business under consideration; and partisans rewarded;—while he has took possession, probably, of an old quill-wheel and commenced winding out poetry:

'When I was a leetle boy,
And fond of pelf,
All the bread and cheese I got,
I laid upon the shelf:
But the rats and the mice,
Soon each took a slice:
Then I grew a bigger boy,
And bought me a fife,
And went down to town
To get me a wife—
But my wife was so fat
And I full of marrow—
I tried to bring her home
Upon a wheelbarrow:—
The wheelbarrow broke
And my wife catthed a fall—
The Devil take the luck—
Wife, wheelbarrow and all!'

On the bank of the river, not far from Warsaw, is another sorrowful sight—the horrible remains of a misspent life, with a split stick on his nose to prevent his exhaling the nausae of his own carcase, in deep solicitude to manufacture a corresponding rhyme for

O there goes a skunk.

Wonderful works in the land of Democracy, and terrible things by the Mississippi—
In a valley not far, is the Battle Axe made,
With dirt on the handle, and rust on the blade.

Again we have the Sucker, filled with suckers from him who wanted to be the chief among thousands; SULTITUDE SWEETENED—a lone candidate exterminating molasses through a quill from a hoghead. DISINTERESTED FRIENDSHIP! the next chieftain holding his head under a leaking whisky barrel to save the liquor.

A large lot of others, which came in for a share of 'loaves and fishes,' stand among a hungry swarm of great green flies, offering, through necessity, to sell to the highest bidder such old rare commodities as Burr's and John Henry's letters on Treason; Hartford Convention Notes; South Carolina Rebellion; Mormonism in all ages, from Noah's flood, through Nebuchadnezzar's dream, down to Boggs' assassination, embracing a complete assortment of tools for wind work and wo-work: to which is added an appendix of female paraphernalia for sympathetic purposes:—the whole sanctioned by the black gowmsmen of holy writ, and holy fire: walk up gentlemen, and buy, for all these things and many more, are on hand and for sale, because God rules the stars, and jugglers and hypocrites have failed to out rule him, and make the current run upwards. 'Don't carry that cracked pitcher to the well again'—sell it with the rest of the trumpery,—going—gone!

TOM NOKES & CO.

From the Rochester Daily Adv. Extra, July 27.
FIRE AND LOSS OF LIFE.

In a hurried note, this morning, we announced the destruction of a building in the northern part of this city known as 'Dublin Castle,' and that a child perished in the flames. We have since learned that it was a boy, son of James Halladen, aged two years. There were several females severely injured escaping from the flames—one with a broken arm, another with a fractured leg, and the third with her back severely injured if not broken. There were but few men at home, being mostly absent in the country harvesting; some that were there, sustained more or less injury. A man moved there the evening previous, who had 60 sovereigns and a gold watch, all of which he lost—himself escaping by leaping from a window, at the expense of a severe contusion of the head. A woman escaped by jumping from a window in the upper story.

This building, though not the subject of any legendary tale, has long been noted for the amount of human life it sheltered. It belonged to Mayor De Graff, of Schenectady—was 200 feet long and 40 wide; and in '36 was the residence of over 40 families. At the time of its destruction, there were 23 families resident in it, with an aggregate of one hundred and twenty children, ranging from infancy to twelve years of age! What a sight, to witness such an array of helpless beings, roused from their slumbers at the sight of flames, and in their preservation—the building in flames, while half of the number were in the upper story—the confusion rendering exit doubly difficult! And to this the fact that a large portion of the children were afflicted with the measles—that all, some two hundred in number, old and young, were forced naked as it were into the street,—and a scene of distress never equalled in this region will readily be conceived.

This event appeals strongly to the sympathy of the community; and we are happy to state that the Mayor and other city authorities went promptly to the relief of the sufferers.

ANOTHER FIRE!—Broke out in a stable, in the rear of the United States Hotel, which threatened, for a time, to take a wide range, owing to the dryness of every thing combustible, and the fresh north-western breeze, which about that time sprung up. Happily the fire was arrested before it had progressed far, burning a small barn, two small wood dwellings, and damaging more or less three or four others. Including all destroyed and injured, the loss could hardly have been less than $2000.

Emigration West.—The emigration to the Territories of Wisconsin and Iowa this season is large. A paper in that country says, that in Milwaukee, the emigrants have to lodge in the streets; in Racine every tavern is crowded; in Southport the taverns are full; there is scarcely a room to let, and one house has we believe thirty families in the chambers.

Dreadful.—An old man (80 years of age) was knocked in the river, by the locomotive, from the Mohawk bridge, near Utica, N. Y., a few days since, and drowned.

IMPORTANT FROM TEXAS FIGHT WITH THE MEXICANS.

The steam ship New York, Capt. Wright, arrived at New Orleans on the 20th.

The most interesting item of news is the skirmish between the Texian volunteers in the west and the Mexicans. The following is the account from the Civilian:

From the West—Attack on the camp at Lipantitlan.—The following is the official account of Gen. Davis of the attack of the troops under his command. Unfortunately it occurred before the arrival of the volunteers who last left this city:

Head Quarters, Texian Volunteers, Camp Lipantitlan, July 7, 1842.

Hon. Geo. W. Hockley,
Secretary of War and Marine.

Sir—On last evening I received certain intelligence that we should be attacked in a short time by a large Mexican force.

The position which I occupied being an unfavorable one for a small force to contend against a large one, I removed my encampment some few hundred yards to a strong position.

This morning, about daylight, the enemy, seven hundred strong, entered our old encampment, and in a few minutes attacked us in our new position, which they kept up for about twenty minutes, and then made a hasty retreat. Three Mexicans were left dead on the field, and from their trails, many were dragged off; their killed and wounded could not have been less than thirty men. I am happy to inform you that we had not a man either killed or wounded. My whole force, including Captain Cameron's company of mounted gunmen, did not exceed two hundred; the Mexican force, as I learn from a wounded prisoner, consisted of two hundred regular troops and five hundred Rancheros, the whole under the command of Gen. Canales. The expedition was fitted out for the express purpose of attacking the post. They had one field piece, a four pounder.

Congress still continues in session.—The principal questions which have occupied the attention of the body since its meeting, are the Mexican invasion and the replenishment of the treasury. The Civilian of the latest date says:—

The bill to make the President Commander in person of an army to be raised for the invasion of Mexico; giving him authority to draft one-third of the militia for the purpose, and authorizing him to hypothesize (the right to sell was stricken out) the public lands for the purpose of raising means, passed the House of Representatives on the 11th inst, by a vote of 20 to 14.

We understand that the Senate is opposed to some of the features of this bill, but that it will be adopted as it stands by that body, before they will allow the whole measure to fail.

The question in the House on the adoption of the two most important features of the bill stood as follows:—

1st. The provision to authorize the President to take command of the army in person—27 to 7; majority 20.

2d. Authorizing the President to sell or hypothesize any portion of the public domain, or any other unappropriated revenue of the republic, was carried by 29 to 3; or 26 majority.

The Brazos Farmer mentions the receipt of an open bowl of cotton on the 25th of June, and adds that the crop promises well in that vicinity.

Public debt of the five powers.—The Boston Daily Advertiser, gives the following view of the progress made by the principal nations of Europe, in paying off the public debt since the last peace:

"There are five governments unusually denominated the Great Powers, all of which have, been since the peace, successfully engaged in reducing the enormous debts contracted by them during the long war which preceded. Great Britain, which is burdened with the greatest debt, has reduced that burden fifty millions sterling since the peace, and what is more, has by charges of investment with the consent of the public creditors, reduced the amount of annual interest five millions. The public debt of Russia, according to the latest authentic accounts, was reduced to $1,500,000,000. The state of the finances of the Austrian empire is not very satisfactorily known, but according to the best information, the debt has been reduced since the peace more than 100,000,000 of American dollars. The debt of Prussia, which amounted in 1820, to 206,603,000 rix dollars, had been reduced on the 1st of January, 1832, to 163,626,000, and it has been undergoing a regular reduction since, and probably does not now much exceed $100,000,000. The funded debt of France has been greatly increased since the peace, by the assumption of obligations to foreign countries, and the payment of a thousand millions of francs to her own subjects who were robbed of their property in the revolution, but the amount of debt was in process of rapid reduction, until a period subsequent to the liquidation of our debt. It has recently been increased from extraordinary causes, but not to an amount equal to the previous reduction."

Flag of the United States.—The flag of the United States was first designated by Congress, in a resolution, passed June 14, 1777. According to that resolution it was to consist of thirteen horizontal stripes, alternate red and white; and the union was to be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation.

By an act of January 13, 1794, the stripes and stars were both to be fifteen in number, to take effect from the first of May, 1795. This addition of two stars and two stripes to the flag was owing to the admission of Vermont and Kentucky into the Union, the former on the 4th of March, 1791—the latter on the 1st of June, 1792.

By another act of Congress in 1812, (we believe) it was provided that on, and after the following fourth of July, the flag of the United States should consist of thirteen horizontal stripes, and the Union be composed of twenty stars. The same act also provided, that on the admission of every new State into the Union, one star should be added to the flag—which addition should take effect on the fourth of July then next succeeding such admission. Of course the present flag of the United States consists of thirteen stripes and twenty-six stars. By this regulation the stripes represent the number of States by whose valor and resources American Independence was achieved—while the additional stars mark the increase of the States since the adoption of the present Constitution.—Boston Jour.

QUITE A GHOST STORY.—The Concord Statesman publishes a singular story, related by two persons under oath, of a confession recently made by a person named Samuel Mann, of Benton, N. H., while on his death bed of having aided, 40 years ago, in the commission of murder. The two persons who relate the story were watching with the deceased on the night of his death, and the most remarkable part of their story is, that before the confession, a strange man suddenly appeared in the chamber, standing between them and the bed, the room being lightened up at once with "an unearthly crimson colored light," and looking at the sick man. The sick man was dreadfully frightened and agitated, made the confession above mentioned, describing the place, but not the names of either parties, and immediately died. The stranger disappeared, and the witnesses were dreadfully frightened. In consequence of this story an old rumor has been received of the murder of a carpenter named Hodgdon, by a man named Noyes, who is since deceased, to which murder it is conjectured that Mann was accessory.

The Fish Shower.—Prof. Olmstead of Yale College, New Haven, has furnished the Palladium with a notice of the severe thunder shower which took place in that city on Wednesday evening, from which we extract his account of the fall of fish.

For a distance of forty rods or more, small blue fish were scattered over the ground, varying in length from one to six inches. The boys collected them in considerable numbers, and several of them are now in my possession. They are said by those well acquainted with the species to be such as are known to abound in the waters just west of the city, which communicate, by West River, with the Sound. The belief is that they were deposited by the storm, and the well known fact that similar occurrences have been witnessed in other hail storms, and are on record, favors this idea; nor when it is well known that such heavier bodies are raised in the atmosphere, even houses and large ships, is there any thing incredible in the supposition that these fish were raised from the streams west of the city and deposited in the course of the storm.

Novel Navigation.—The N. Y. Aurora relates, that there lately arrived at the port of Marseilles a bold and ingenious sailor, who has constructed a boat formed to fit his own body, when laid at full length, in which he traverses the sea with a swiftness and security rivaling that of fishes. His head and his arms appear from without, and with the latter holding a pair of oars, he impels himself along. Provisions are stowed in recesses of the boat, and thus he made voyages from Toulon to Nice and Leghorn, coming to Marseilles by the Island of Hyeres. On being examined when on shore, the wonderful vessel was found to be a most perfect piece of mechanism. Having been deprived of his left leg, M. Malbec has converted its wooden substitute into a mast, upon which he occasionally raises a sail suited for his large barque, and which he can trim with ease, according to the wind and the course he wishes to steer.

Meeting House Burned.—We learn from the Dunbury Times, that on Wednesday night, the 20th ult., the ancient edifice occupied by the Congregationalists of Bethel, as a place of public worship, was entirely consumed by fire, together with a barn nearly adjoining, belonging to Mr. David Lyon. The fire originated in the barn, and communicated from thence to the steeple of the meeting house. Both buildings were reduced to ashes in about two hours from the time the fire was first discovered, and although but 3 miles distant from this village, the circumstances was not known here until the following morning.

We understand that with the exception of a few books, nothing was saved from the house; the Sunday School Library was destroyed. The barn contained nothing of any value but a carriage. [Gaz.]

GORED TO DEATH.—We have frequently to record injuries received from infuriated bulls.—The Bradford, Pa., Porter, records a lamentable case of Death from the same cause. Mr. Alonzo B. Holcomb, a farmer, of Leroy Township, was the owner of a valuable bull, which he kept chained, to a stake in a field on his farm. On Friday, of last week, Mr. Holcomb, as is supposed, undertook to remove the stake to another part of the field, when he was attacked by the bull and gored to death. So furious was the assaults of the animal, that the man was literally torn piecemeal; not an article of clothing was found upon his person, except the wristband of his shirt.

Arrival Extraordinary.—J. Warren Fabens, Esq., of Salem, has just brought from Cayenne, an animal, no specimen of which it is believed has ever been seen before in the United States. He bears in Cayenne the name of the CAPAID, or RIVER HOG. This specimen is not fully grown—he now weighs nearly one hundred pounds, and it is supposed will attain nearly three times that weight. He is a queer sort of a fellow, with a rabbit-shaped head, short, upright ears, a body covered with brown bristly hair, his four-toed feet webbed, and the toes armed with very decent claws. He lives quiet comfortable on corn or vegetables, and is a quiet, and good natured beast, altogether in favor of the cold water system, as his amphibious nature keeps him near half his time in that element. He is well worthy the attention of naturalists as a rare curiosity.

The Thunder Storm on Sunday the 24th, was quite extensive. The Pequod House, in Weyland, seventeen miles from Boston, was struck by lightning on that day. No one was seriously injured. Eight rooms in the house were literally torn in pieces. The house being full of people at the time, to attend the funeral of Mr. James Willis a pilot of Boston, a great many of the individuals were knocked down by the shock. One lady was much injured. In Boston considerable damage was done to the trees on the common and the flag staff was broken off. A military company encamped there, were also astonished by the sudden striking of their tents, which were leveled with the ground and their contents scattered over the commons. In Baltimore the lightning struck in several places, and three or four persons were seriously though not fatally injured.—Palladium.

POETRY.

To President Joseph Smith; and his lady, Presidentess Emma Smith.

BY MISS E. R. SNOW.

Since by chance, the 'key bump,' has been added to you
With its proper enlargement of brain:
Let me hope all the thunderbolts malice may strew,
Will excite in your bosom, no pain.

But I think if an angel were station'd in air,
For a season, just over our heads,
With a view of things passing; his optics would stare
To behold the vague scenery that spreads.

He'd be apt to conclude, from the medley of things;
We've got into a jumble of late—
A deep intricate puzzle, a tangle of strings,
That no possible scheme can make straight.

Tell me, what will it be, and O, where will it end?
Say, if you have permission to tell;
Is there any fixed point unto which prospects tend?
Does a focus belong to pell-mell?

From the midst of confusion can harmony flow?
Or can peace from distraction come forth?

From out of corruption, integrity grow?
Or can vice unto virtue give birth?

Will the righteous come forth with their garments unstained?
With their hearts unpoluted with sin?
O, yes; Zion, thy honor will still be sustained,
And the glory of God usher'd in.

MARRIED.—In this city, on the 14th inst, by the Rev. Mr. Moore, Mr. GEORGE WOODARD formerly of Cream Ridge, N. J., to Miss TAMSON DOWNING of this city.

BOOKS OF MORMON, &c.

JUST published and for sale, Books of Mormon, and Hymn Books, together with some other publications in defence of the faith of the saints.
Nauvoo, Aug. 20, 1842.

NOTICE.

MR. J. M. MONROE would respectfully inform the citizens of Nauvoo, that, by the advice and concurrence of the Twelve, he intends to commence a school in the school-house on the bluff, near Parley St., on Monday next, Aug. 22, 1842.

The common studies will be the principal objects of instruction; but, if necessary, the higher mathematics, philosophy, chemistry, Greek, Latin, French, Spanish, &c., &c., will also be taught.

The price will be very low—suitable to the times and according to the studies pursued.

All who desire to have their children instructed well and cheaply, are invited to send their children on Monday next, or call on the teacher at the school-house in any of the school-houses.
Aug. 20, 1842. no18-1w.

W. H. RALSTON,

ATTORNEY & COUNSELLOR AT LAW, Carthage, Hancock county, Ill., will practice in the Hancock Circuit court, and also in the Supreme Circuit and District Courts of this State.
Carthage, Aug. 18, 1842. 18-3m.

THE CROPS.

NEW-YORK.—The prospect in Saratoga county, says the Baiston Gaz., for our Farmers, is quite flattering. The English grain looks well, and the corn crop has gained 25 per cent, within a few weeks. The crops, says the Skeneateles (Onondaga Co.) Dem., of Wheat, Barley, Oats, Corn, and Potatoes look as beautiful as we recollect having seen them for a long time, and the alarm caused by the appearance of rust we think must cease now that we have such splendid summer weather.

In this section the crops of all kinds, says the Onondaga Standard, we believe, promise well. Corn, which was backward, is coming rapidly forward.—Wheat is nearly ripe, and generally free from rust.

The Rye, Corn, Oat, and Grass Crops, says the Washington Co. Post, are much more promising than they have been for many years past, with the exception of the corn crop, which, in many places, has sustained considerable injury from the worms and other destructive insects; however, this crop on an average looks remarkably well. We saw many fields of wheat of unusually large growth.

Never before was there such a uniformly good crop of wheat through the Genesee valley, says the Roch. Eve. Post, and indeed through all Western New-York. The berry is generally plump—and what little rust there is, is almost wholly confined to a slight red rust which is seen occasionally on some of the leaves (but not on the berry) of the wheat. The quantity of land covered with wheat of this fine character is greater than ever before bore a wheat crop in this famous wheat-growing region.

Nor is this all, says the Roch. Eve. Post, the yield of nearly all other products is, or promises to be, equally remarkable. The crop of hay is extraordinary good. Barley, oats and potatoes, never looked better—and corn is flourishing vigorously under the present hot weather.

OHIO.—The farmers of the Scioto Valley, says the Circleville (O.) Herald, have just gathered in the most rich and bountiful annual reward that has ever crowned their labors.

Our farmers have commenced their wheat harvest, says the Mansfield (O.) Jeffersonian, which is thought to be more abundant in this county than it has been for many years previous, and more beautiful fields have never been seen free from rust, blight, or mildew, having made their appearance.

INDIANA.—The farmers of this county are generally through with their harvesting, says the Richmond (la.) Pallad, the crop is more than an average one in quality, and the amount about double that of any previous year.

The harvest of wheat, says the Greensburg (la.) Sent. and rye has been unfavorable in this section. The rust has almost destroyed the wheat crops in some parts; and we learn that almost all the elds of grain have been more or less injured.

MICHIGAN.—The recent rains, says the etroit Adv. have removed the apprehension felt for the Wheat crop in Michigan, and the surplus this season will probably be over 3,000,000 bushels.

TENNESSEE.—Corn and Cotton are both very promising in this region of country, says the Columbia (Tenn.) Observer.

ALABAMA.—It is gratifying, says the usc. (Ala.) Mon. to hear from all quarters of Alabama that the present is the finest crop, thus far, both of Cotton and Corn, that has been seen for many years.

MISSISSIPPI.—Corn may now be engaged for 30 cents per bushel, says the Abbeon (Miss.) Adv. and it even supposes that before the crops are gathered it may be bought for less.

MARYLAND.—On the Eastern shore, says the Baltimore Sun, where prospects have been gloomy, quite an average crop of Wheat, if not more, has been harvested.

It is said that more wheat has been made this year than has been gathered in any one year for the last twenty. The Corn, too, looks generally very well.

Revolutionary soldiers.—Thirteen old soldiers of the revolution were present and took a part in the celebration on the 4th instant, at Utica. Twelve of them rode in the procession. The youngest of the twelve is seventy-two, and the oldest ninety-two years of age, and their aggregate ages is nine hundred and seventy-six—about the same as that of old Mr. Methuselah. The thirteenth was a Mr. Harvey, of Frankfort, who is one hundred and seven years of age. After the procession had separated they assembled in the Museum, and here, says the Democrat, they met old Mr. Harvey, who talked with, and evidently looked upon some of them as "boys"—for he himself has a son aged eighty-two.

Remnant of revolutionary heroes.—The N. York Express, says: "We are informed there were but three of the band of Cincinnati that met together on the 4th, viz: Major Popham, aged ninety; Gen. Van Cortland, aged eighty, and their orderly sergeant, aged eighty-seven. What reflections crowd upon the mind, when we look back even ten years ago, when some two hundred mingled together on the anniversary of our national independence. They are gone, we trust, to a brighter and a better world."

A HINT TO BLACKSMITHS.—The cutting of bars of iron, or pipes, with the chisel, is a laborious and tardy process. By the following mode the same end is attained more speedily, easily, and neatly: Bring the iron to a white heat, and then, fixing it in a vice, apply the common saw, which, without being turned, in the edge, or injured in any respect, will divide it as easily as if it were a carrot.

A violent disease is destroying the milk cows and other horned cattle about Liverpool; inflammation commences in the throat and spreads through the animal affected. From this cause and others, beef is higher than ever in that market, and if the disease becomes general, neither the tariff or any thing else will keep down the price of butcher's meat. —[St. Louis Gazette.]

A gentleman named Elijah Brown, merchant of New York, lately from the west on his way to Boston, a passenger in the afternoon train of cars on the Boston and Worcester Railroad on Monday, had his pocket book, containing $6,200, cut from his pocket, supposed between Westburn and Boston. The money consisted of New York City, Massachusetts, and Connecticut bank bills, of the denomination of $100, $50, $20, $10 and $5. He did not discover his loss until arriving at the hotel at which he put up. —[St. Louis Gazette.]

We learn from the Detroit Free Press, that $7,165 of State scrip was burned at the proper office last week. There is now less than $160,000 outstanding on this paper. —[St. Louis Gazette.]

WINDOW SASH.

WE, carpenters, builders, &c., of the city of Nauvoo, recommend H. Hammond's patent upper and improved lower window sash springs, as a very superior article:

W. Weeks, principal carpenter of Temple,
L. Woodworth, do do Nauv. H's,
R. Hadlock, J. W. Coolidge,
L. Tulle, M. Ramsey,
H. Riding.

All windows should be made narrow, high and with parting beads.

For the proper ventilation of a room, it is absolutely necessary to lower the upper sash.

These springs are warranted not to loose their elasticity or break, have points for preserving the notches in the sash, directions for selecting the appropriate sizes and properly putting them into windows.

For sale, wholesale and retail, at several of the hardware stores in St. Louis, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, &c. See a window with these springs in operation at Mr. Mills' Masonic Hall.

Nauvoo, Aug. 13, 1842. 17-ly.

NOTICE.

WHEREAS my wife Casander J. Whiting eloped my bed and board about one year ago, without any just cause or provocation, and has not returned; this is, therefore, to forbid all persons trusting her on my account, as I shall pay no debts of her contracting.

NATHANIEL WHITING.
Nauvoo, Aug. 10, 1842. 47-3w.

MEAL, FLOUR,

AND PROVISIONS OF EVERY KIND,
WANTED ON TITHING.

THE brethren abroad will remember that those who devote the whole of their time to work on the Temple must be fed; they cannot live and work without provisions, and we are growing very scarce; and especially so with regard to MEAL and FLOUR. Those, therefore, who have the above articles, and intend to consecrate such on their tithing, will please forward them immediately to Nauvoo. W. RICHARDS, Recorder for the Temple.

Nauvoo, June 18th 1842. 10-1f.

NOTES

DUE the Trustees for labor on the Temple, are left with the Temple Committee for collection. Brethren, remember that your contracts with your God are sacred; the labor is wanted immediately. W. RICHARDS, Temple Recorder.

June 25, 1842. 10-1f.

P. S. Remember the notes due for property also.

BENCH & MOULDING PLANES.

WANTED, immediately, a large number of the above Planes on tithing. The brethren who have got such and can spare them would greatly facilitate the building of the Temple by bringing them as soon as possible to the recorder's office, and they shall be entered to their credit on tithing. All kinds of bench planes whether good or indifferent can be made useful at the Temple. The moulding planes should be such as suit the present fashion. Also all lumber, which would make plane stocks, would be very serviceable. JOSEPH SMITH, Trustee.

W. CLAYTON, Clerk.

LOOK HERE! LOOK HERE!!

WANTED, at the Nauvoo Foundry, a quantity of Stone coal; any persons wishing to furnish it, will please call on Hiram Kimball, or Geo. W. Robinson, at the Post Office.

Old castings will be taken in exchange for new. Nauvoo, June 13th 1842. 10-1f.

NOTICE.

The Stock Holders of the Nauvoo Agricultural and Manufacturing Association, are hereby notified, that a meeting for the election of Trustees, will be held at Gen. Hyrum Smith's office, on the first Monday in September next, at 4 o'clock P. M.

E. ROBINSON Secretary.

Nauvoo, August 13, 1842.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus
J. Salsbery, Plymouth,
Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Chiffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Page, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
James Curtis, Horners Town.
W. I. Appleby, Reclless Town.
Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Salem.
Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapier.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirtland.

NEW YORK.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.
L. R. Foster, city of New York.

TRAVELING AGENTS.

Hiram Kimball.

DR. J. F. WELD,

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.

Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

DRUGS, MEDICINES, &c.

THE subscriber has opened a Drug Store in Nauvoo, and intends keeping a full assortment of every thing in that line.—Paints, Oils, Varnish, Brushes, Turpentine, Linseed, Spermaceti, and Castor Oil; white Lead, red and black Lead, Vermillion, Prussian Blue, Litharge, Chrome green and yellow, venecian red, spanish brown, lampblack, ivory black, whiting, chalk, yellow ochre, dye stuffs, indigo, cochineal, annatto, madder, copperas, alum, oil vitriol, blue vitriol, logwood, brazilwood, &c., &c.; stationary, plain and ruled cap and letter paper, ink, wafers, quills, sand, &c.; window-glass of all sizes, salazatus, putty, epices, glass ware, perfumery, soaps, stoff, rosin, matches, blacking, every thing in the medicine line, all the patent medicines; all of which will be sold low for cash; Van Studdiford's ague and fever pills, also his medicated lozenges, and cough, worm, and cathartic lozenges, are constantly on hand. Store on water street above Davis' Hotel.

A. T. TERRELL.

July, 23, 1842.

AGUE AND FEVER.

Gleim's tonic mixture and Dr. Renals' pills; two certain cures for that inveterate pest, the chills and fever.—for sale by,

July 23, 1842.

A. T. TERRELL.

BEE-SWAX.

The highest price in cash will be paid for Beeswax, by (16 m 3) A. T. TERRELL.

MEDICAL NOTICE.

DR. W. B. BRINK.

RESPECTFULLY tenders his professional services to the citizens of Nauvoo, and its vicinity, as a botanic practitioner, having adopted the botanic practice from a positive conviction of the truth of its doctrines, and the unrivaled success which attends the practice; and hopes to give general satisfaction and prove the superior efficacy of the botanic treatment to those who may place themselves under his care; also a number of valuable preparations of his own compounding; such as anti-bilious pills peculiarly serviceable in dyspepsia, bilious fever, cholera morbus, cholera infantum, or summer complaints of children, fever ague and cancers, will be treated upon the principle of no cure no pay and those afflicted with cancers will do well to call and try a remedy which has never failed; and those who are not able to pay will be cured without charge.

Dr. B. is consulted in the most intricate and protracted cases of secret disease that require practical experience to ensure success; every species and form of the disease must yield to his treatment which is in all cases mild and soft, requiring no interruption from business or change of diet, and will treat the disease upon the principle of no cure no pay; office at the store of W. Allen, formerly occupied by Mr. E. D. Wooley.

W. B. BRINK, M. D.

Nauvoo, July 2nd 1842. 12-3m.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Aaron B. Sturges of Hancock county, to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Aaron B. Sturges of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a Bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress, in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the first day of October next at the District Court room in the city of Springfield in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have why the prayer of the said Petition should not be granted.

Dated this 23rd of June a. d. 1842.

TRUMBULL & BASSETT, Solicitors for petitioner: James F. Owings, clerk. no 15-2 w

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 19

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, August 27, 1842.

Whole Number 19.

THE WASP.

EDITED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY

WM. SMITH,

At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

TERMS.—$1.50 invariably in advance.

BLOODY RIOT IN CINCINNATI.—We copy the following from the Cincinnati Message, of the 9th inst.

Our city was last evening the scene of another disgraceful mob. Yesterday, the German company, commanded by Lieut. Michael Heckle, were on parade, when the boys, as is usual, were following close upon them. During the day, Lieut. Heckle struck several of the boys with his sword, not injuring them seriously, but with sufficient force to cause the blood to flow pretty freely from the heads of two or three of them. At this the crowd of boys became much enraged, and after the company had been dismissed, and retired to the Sans Souci House, the boys, in large numbers, collected there, and commenced throwing stones and missiles at the house, and tauntingly threatened to demolish the house and the company.

Several of the soldiers at this time rushed upon the boys and were beating them with their fists, when Mr. Jones Constable, happening to pass, commanded the peace. He had no sooner uttered the words, than Lieut. Heckle, the proprietor of the Sans Souci House, rushed upon him with his sword, cutting a piece out of his right wrist, and horribly bruising and mangling his hand. This caused great excitement among the men who had, by this time, assembled in large numbers, and there was a general rush to the scene. Several others were severely injured; among them was a German, who received a stab in the neck, just below the ear. His wound is supposed to be mortal. The crowd around the house had by this time greatly increased, and were fired upon by three or four of the Germans, from the second story windows.

The house to secure the rioters, when the Lieutenant recommended his company to 'form a line,' buckle on their rapiers, and not surrender while one remained alive to defend the house. The crowd now commenced throwing stones and clubs at the house, the windows of which were all broken in a few minutes, and several of the inmates considerably injured; fifteen or sixteen of the German company, among whom was Lieut. Heckle, were now arrested and taken into custody by the police—they will be examined before the Mayor this morning.

Mr. Jones, we understand, suffered severely during the night from the wounds in his hands, and has entirely lost the use of his right arm.

The Cincinnati Message of the next day says: Heckle and his associates were yesterday taken before the Mayor, for examination, great excitement prevailed, and several affrays occurred between the Americans and Germans, which materially retarded the progress of the investigations. The prisoners were held to bail in sums of from $100 to $1,000, to re-appear to day, when the examination will be resumed.

DISTRESS IN KENTUCKY.—Some of the Kentucky papers are filled with accounts of distressing sacrifices of personal property. The Frankfort Yeoman says: 'Among others, we give the following, as being mere specimens. In this country, at a constable's sale, we have been informed, about 1000 lbs. of tobacco, one stack of oats, one stack of fodder, and 4 sheep, sold for one dollar and six cents, on three months credit. One wagon, worth $100, three horses and gear for same, sold for $30, on three months credit.' Extract of a letter from Henry county:

'Pleasureville, July, 12, 1842.

'We have new evidence of the distress and sacrifices every day going on through this country. On yesterday there was a constable's sale in this neighborhood, and there were sold some 3 or 400 pounds of tobacco at 6 1/4 cents per hundred lbs. Also, a very good farm horse for five dollars.

'A great deal of excitement prevailed during the sale, and it came very near being an Irish Wedding, as dirks, and knives, and cooper's instruments were flourished about considerably, as well as many threats and abuses passed to the bidders.'

THE REIGN OF HORROR IN RHODE ISLAND.—The wicked deeds that are now being done in the above named State, by the merciless set who hold the government as a vested right of property, are truly shocking to contemplate. They are repugnant to the spirit of the age, and disgraceful to the Union.

We yesterday morning saw several working men from Rhode Island who belong to the Suffrage party. They are fine looking men, and their manners and intelligence are such as command respect. We are proud of their American sentiments and truly American courage. The accounts which these expatriated men give of affairs in Rhode Island under martial law and the 'Algerine law' are horrible.

The prisons are crowded. Cells of eight feet square beneath the surface of the earth, are tenanted by sixteen prisoners to each cell. There is a small aperture for air and light in the doors of each of these dungeons. The only parallel we know of in history to this, is that of the celebrated black hole of Calcutta. About six hundred persons are thus incarcerated.

The property of these captives has been seized on as confiscated, and furniture and necessities have been taken from families in their way. And where wives or mothers tried to retain any money, the savings of economy, they have been forcibly prevented, and the money taken from them. The Chartist Government seeks in this way, by seizures and confiscations, to indemnify itself for the cost of putting down the Suffrage party.

Freedom of speech is death in Rhode Island for it is terror struck. Freedom of the press is annihilated by a political supervision. The editor who writes for the truth and the right, is put in prison, and his press is put under the charge of one of the Chartists dynasty. Every means are taken to prevent any of the dark deeds now being done, from being made known in any of the adjacent States. In short, there is no press in Rhode Island that dares to promulgate the truth as regards the Government.

Sentences, not trials, are rapidly progressing. Carter has been sentenced to eleven years confinement in the State Prison. Every word or deed against the Government is treason, working confiscation of property and imprisonment of person. Numerous individuals have been sentenced to long terms of imprisonment, and their persons treated with indignity.

The Government of Rhode Island is truly Whig, for there is no prerogative of the executive department, nor voice of the people, to restrict the Oligarchy. 'Order reigns in Rhode Island'—the order of pains, penalties, forfeitures, and punishments.—N. Y. Plebian.

GREAT MOB IN PHILADELPHIA—A CHURCH, HALL AND HOUSES BURNED.

The most serious riot ever disgraced Philadelphia broke out in that city on the 1st instant, and had not terminated at our latest accounts. The origin of this riot, grew out of a disturbance between the colored people and the whites, on the occasion of a temperance procession by the former, who chose this day, being the anniversary of the Abolition of Slavery in the British West Indies, to have their celebration. The city was in a perfect commotion from Monday till Wednesday, night and day. The United States Ga-zett of the 3d, has the following additional particulars:

Yesterday morning there were arrangements for a procession by the colored people attached to an association called the Moyamensing Temperance Society.

In Shippen, between Fifth and Sixth streets, a disturbance arose, how caused we could not ascertain, but understood that it was the result of some interference with the procession by boys or lads. This led to further violence, and a disturbance was caused, which called for the interference of the police. Several arrests were made, and the violators of the peace were conveyed to the Mayor's office. The Mayor proceeded at once to increase his establishment, by swearing in a large number of policemen, and sending them, with proper badges, to the place of disturbance. Meantime, the rioters were assaulting the houses of the blacks in the vicinity of Lombard street, between Fifth and Eighth, where are numerous small alleys and courts, and in which a vast number of blacks reside. Their windows were beaten in, doors knocked to pieces, and other injuries committed.

About half past 4 o'clock, one or two blacks rushed from a small house in a place called Bradford alley, a court extending west from Seventh street, parallel with, and north of St. Mary's street, and discharged a gun at a crowd of boys. One was so severely injured that it was stated that he was dead. Another we saw with his leg considerably injured.

The act brought a considerable number of persons together, and a rush was made upon the house into which the blacks retreated. One, charged with being concerned in the act, was seized and dragged out, and a violent blow given him which cut open his head. Colonel McCahen seized hold of the wretched man, and with aid of one or two other persons, bore him off from his assailants.

Another of the number was, we understand, beaten so that his recovery is doubtful.

The third fled into the upper room of the house, where he was beset by a number of men, who broke open the windows and split down one or two doors. The black attempted to escape by the roof, but no sooner did he show his head above the scuttle, than he was pelted with brickbats. Meantime, several persons attempted to save him from the vengeance of the persons who were pursuing him as hotly. Fortunately, Mr. Harman Yerkes, one of the City Police, arrived, and though informed that the man was armed, proceeded into the chamber and took him.

In bringing him into the court, a man struck him with a large piece of board, and others attempted a rescue. Yerkes held on to the man, and ordered that his assailant should be arrested. Another person took the other side of the man, and they proceeded towards Seventh street. Here the crowd was perfectly dense, and seemed determined to take vengeance on the black. Yerkes pushed forward though certainly suffering very much, as he could scarcely fail of receiving a portion of the blows intended for the prisoner; and his able assistant must also have shared in the evils.

They crossed Washington Square; but the mob headed them at the northeast gate, and beat the black most awfully. Thousands and thousands were assembled. How many were participant with crimes, we could not tell. Assistance was procured and the man was taken to the police office; but so shockingly beaten, we should think that he could scarcely survive. The state of excitement is fearful in the lower part of the city. But the acts of violence to which we have referred, are all that we had heard of at 5 o'clock, P. M.

The names of those arrested and committed up to six o'clock last evening, are Jacob Keyser, held to $2000 bail for a further hearing, and committed for want of it. Edward Kerrick, $2,000 bail, committed. Samuel Montgomery, Samuel Luskey, and Joseph Hamilton, each $1,000 bail; committed; Francis P. Henry, Edward Stewart, and Eliza Stewart, committed. Henry Johnson, $2,500 bail, and John Johnson, $4,000 bail; both committed.

About 6 o'clock, a colored boy and man, the first named Henry Van Bruncle, and the latter, Anthony Harvey, were brought in. They were the negroes mentioned above, taken in Bradford's alley. A brass pistol, with a barrel from six to eight inches long, was found in the possession of the boy. It was heavily loaded and cap'd.

One colored man, called George, was brought to the police office with a terrible swelling on the forehead, and his head fractured above the forehead, so much so as to endanger his life. He was likewise severely beaten on the body.

Another negro, named Fullman, was brought into the police office with his eyes horribly cut from a blow which he had received in the melee.

Both this man and the one named George received their injuries while endeavoring to protect some of their comrades.

At a quarter past six o'clock, an attack was made upon two houses on Lombard between 7th and 8th streets. In one there were no inmates, but the windows and furniture were destroyed. In the other there were several persons, old and young, who were driven out and unmercifully beaten by those in front. The active participants in both cases obtained entrance by the rear.

Great numbers of colored people crowded the ferry boats during the latter part of the day, seeking safety on the other side of the Delaware.

After the above was written the work of destruction was commenced. At a late hour last evening we understand that upwards of twenty rioters had been arrested and brought before the Mayor.

We know not how to express our feelings at this outrage—this destruction of life—this waste of property—this outrage upon the city's property.

We trust, that as some of the rioters can be identified, the utmost severity of the law will be administered to all.

FIRES.—Since the commencement of the riots in the morning, there had been large numbers of persons standing in front of a new and handsome, though internally, unfinished building, on Lombard below 7th street, called 'Smith's Beneficial Hall.'

It is understood that this building was erected at the cost of a wealthy negro man, residing on Lombard between 8th and 9th streets, and in the lumber business; but the impression was that it had been erected for the purposes of Abolition associations, and therefore it was doomed to destruction.

At about a quarter before nine o'clock,

n alarm of fire was given on the spot, but no fire was perceptible to those around the building. The flames, shortly, however, made their appearance in the rear of the building, and in a short time the whole mass was completely enveloped in flames.

We have never seen—and our experience reaches to many years back—so great destruction in so little time. Shortly after the falling in of the roof, the eastern side wall came down crushing completely a two storied brick building at its side. Then the front wall fell into the street to the depth of the two stories.

While this building was burning, an attack was made upon the gates of a meeting house on St. Mary below Seventh street. The mob obtained entrance; but in this case, as in the other, no incendiarism was perceptible. The flame at first faintly glimmered on the peak of the roof, and the general impression was that the fire had originated from flakes falling from the building burning to the northward.

On neither of these buildings did the firemen throw any water; but their effort and success in saving the surrounding tenements were as great as is usually the case.

HALF PAST TWELVE O'CLOCK.—We have just left the scene—all is quiet.

The Philadelphia correspondent of the Baltimore American, writing at 4 o'clock, P. M., of the 2d inst., says:

I regret to state that about noon to-day another disturbance commenced on the Schuylkill, which has continued to increase to such an extent that the first brigade of volunteers have been ordered out, are now under arms. The rioters almost all of them men, and are very numerous, and the aspect of affairs is far more threatening than yesterday. The number of rioters is between 800 and 900 persons. At a special meeting of the City Council to-day, the sum of $5000 was placed at the disposition of the Mayor to quell the disturbance. We fear great additional troubles to-night.

The Editor of the United States Gazette, remarking upon the proceedings of the day and night of the 1st, says:

Our reporters have, we believe, gathered up what particulars they could of the most disgraceful riot in our city yesterday. We saw a portion of the misdoings, to which reference is made in the report, and we certainly never saw men so ferocious as were those who beset the whites after the fire. And the increase of the constabulary force seemed only to add fuel to the flames. And so bold did the mob become, that the Mayor himself, while heading his police, was violent by assault.

We have reason to believe that all which was in the power of the Mayor was effected. The places of assault were so numerous and distant from each other, that it broke up the police force, and the arrest of a white man, or the rescue of a black, drew so many upon the officer that large aid was required to enable the constables to convey a person to the police office; and in many instances, rescues of the whites were made.

The loss of property is considerable, and serious apprehensions were entertained for the safety of several of the churches belonging to the blacks, and also for a hall nearly completed in Lombard street.

There is no language too severe for censure upon those who have disgraced our community, and no punishment too severe for those who have committed the violence to which we have referred.

It is computed by Dr. Caspar, that there are on the earth 960,000,000 human beings, and that the average deaths are 29,000,000 annually, 80,000 daily, nearly 3,700 hourly, and fifty-five every minute.

The annual income of the present Bishop of London is £11,000.

THE WASP.

SATURDAY AUGUST 27, 1842.

RECENT ATTEMPT TO ARREST THE PROPHET.

Most of our readers are doubtless aware that a recent attempt has been made by the Executive of this state to arrest Joe Smith, and O. P. Rockwell in obedience to the requisition of the Governor of Missouri. The charges upon which this requisition was founded, are those preferred by General Bennett, viz. that Smith was accessory & Rockwell principal in the recent attempt on the life of Governor Boggs.

The warrant was not placed in the hands of the officer until the latter part of last week; but whether there was any political maneuvering, as is rumored, whereby the warrant was shifted off until the election we cannot say.

The officer charged with the arrest passed through this place on last Saturday accompanied by three or four men.—They gave out that they were in search of runaway negroes; and in leaving the town took such a circuitous route as to prevent any suspicions of their real destination or design. On Monday they without difficulty arrested Smith and Rockwell, but the prisoners were immediately brought before the municipal court of Nauvoo, on habeas corpus and discharged. The officers however insisted that the Municipal Court had no power in that case to grant the writ, and that the ordinance under which it was granted was of no effect. Smith on the other hand insisted that the writ should be returned to the Governor with the endorsement, that they had been discharged by the City Court, refusing to go with the officer unless this were done; and pledging himself to be forthcoming if the Governor should again send for him. The officer seeing no hope of being able to take Smith, against his will, returned to Quincy; but the Governor immediately despatched him back to Nauvoo, with instructions to take Smith at all hazards. In the mean time Judge Ralston had been sent for by Smith; who arrived at Nauvoo previous to the return of the officer. If rumor is correct he advised Smith to secrete himself, as his case was a desperate one.—Accordingly when the warrant arrived again in the city, Smith and Rockwell were among the missing. Thus ends the chapter.

Our citizens were in hopes that the scamp would be taken or else make open resistance;—a termination of the affair could be less satisfactory than the one which has taken place. If he had resisted, we should have had the sport of driving him and his worthy clan out of the State en masse, but as it is we are mortified that there is not efficacy in the law to bring such a scamp to justice. We hope that our Executive will spare no effort hereafter to bring about this consummation so devoutly to be wished.—Warsaw Signal.

REMARKS.

We are generally prepared to meet almost any thing in the way of persecution and abuse, but must say for once, that we are forced to read and to give to our readers the above touch, as a finishing stroke of moral depravity, that exceeds all we have ever seen. It is doubtful whether there can be found on record, from the days of Adam down to the notorious nineteenth century, so candid a confession of a wicked man's heart. If we take the meaning of the editor, "our citizens were in hopes," that is, all the inhabitants of the State of Illinois, about a half a million we suppose, wishing, or wanted, or expected the Mormons to resist the law of the land as an excuse, for us to have destroyed or expelled them, sans souci, from the State.

Ye wise, and virtuous, ye Baptists, Methodists, Presbyterians, yes, all ye professing christians of Illinois; Judges Generals, and officers from the highest to the lowest, in the state, and the rest of ye editors, too, listen, and give heed to the voice of your leader, your compatriot, your brother American: aye, pay attention this once if never again! IF HE (Joseph Smith) HAD RESISTED, WE SHOULD HAVE HAD THE SPORT OF DRIVING HIM AND HIS WORTHY CLAN OUT OF THE STATE en masse. Shades and spirits of the Revolution! is this one of the legacies of liberty? Is this one of the watchman to conduct an American press, and give tone to public opinion? If so the silence of his brother christians will manifest it; the silence of public functionaries will acknowledge it; and the silence of the press will sanction it,—and the church of Jesus Christ of Later Day Saints, will be left to the mercy of God AND GOD ONLY! Aye! while Rhode Island is destroying her own offspring like voracious swine, while mobs are shedding blood and burning meeting houses in Philadelphia, and rioters are taking vengeance on national birth rights in Cincinnati and calamity follows calamity in all the world, Thomas C. Sharp as an aid to Ex-Gov. Boggs who stands at the head of mobocracy and extermination, in these United States, and John C. Bennett, the pimp and file leader of such mean harlots as Martha H. Brotherton and her predecessors from old Jezebel, whom the dogs eat, may flourish with impunity! O virtue! once the white robe of millions of freemen! how art thou laid aside to make sport for the black coats who drive innocent men, women and children from one state to another! O liberty! once the boasted asylum of the oppressed!—Where are the charms that sages have seen in thy face? Where is thy pledge for all nations to come and set under their own vine and fig tree, where there should be none to molest or make afraid?

Tell it not in Gath, publish it not in the streets of 'Askalon!' lest the nations of the earth should triumph and say—Take down your Eagle—blot out E pluribus unum for you drive out and plunder men, women, and children en masse for Sport!

There is no get off to this token of anarchy from the public's friend and companion in arms—brother T C Sharp, murder and treason not excepted: he speaks and represents the whole state, because he positively asserts that our citizens were in hopes that the scamp would be taken or else make open resistance." And MORTIFIED for want of sufficient efficacy in the law to bring the scamp to justice! What mortification of a corrupt heart! who does not know that every man is honest in the eye of the law, until he is proved otherwise. We have no disposition to be merry on the sins of man, but the whole article breathes so much of meanness or mobocracy, that we must say that reason, sense, moral, honesty and virtue, must have passed round Warsaw like the officers in search of runaway negroes, to avoid suspicion, or come in contact with such an arch enemy. As to the habeas corpus discharge—that is false. No action was had on the writ.

It becomes our duty to state, that Thos. Gregg, the printer of the Signal, dissents from driving men, women, and children from the state en masse for Sport, and is rebuked by the murderous hearted editor as having lost a limb because of his "sensitiveness for the law and order." When Gregg's heart fails—what will humane people think. Great God! how long will the honest, if there be any, halt between two opinions? how long will the sons of our fathers, who for the support of the cause of freedom, pledged to each other their lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honors—we say how long will they feed an asp in their garden to bite their heels, from his holes in the dark—Or try to tame a vampyre to fan the flame with his wings, and make Sport of murder and treason? If there is virtue in the people, let them show it, if not, let the judgments, that swept the antediluvians, that swallowed the Egyptians; that stopped the breath of 185,000 Assyrians; or that walked in cholera, not long since, swiftly come and leave a wide waste where liberty and virtue once were!

GREAT NEWS FROM THE MORMONS! BATTLE NO. ONE!!

The State fool Francis of the Sangamo Journal issued a Bulletin week before last, something like the following:

BULLETIN NO. 1.

Journal Office, Springfield,
Aug. 9, 6 1-2 o'clock P. M.

The following slip from one of the officers in Quincy shows that war has begun according to the "disclosures" of Bennett.

Quincy, A. M. — 8, —

The Steamboat Rosier of the Rocky Mountains, is just in from Warsaw, and reports an awful battle between the Mormons and Grubites or Anti-mormons. Thirty Grubites were slain the first fire. The noise of something exceeded the noise of the blasting of rocks. The horror at Nauvoo cannot be told. Steamboats will leave Warsaw every hour, and Tom Sharp will send the most horrible. God knows what next! The Gov. has just left on the wonderful Steamer, for the scene of terror, with 300 invincibles armed cap a pie for the tug. By to-morrow the whole State militia may be needed, but what can all of them do against 900 well disciplined Mormons of the Legion? for we have just heard that every twenty Mormons have forty legs! and cripples are not included in the service.—The Gov. will fix his line of boats on spring cables to effect a safe retreat in case of the worst.

The State fool closed by saying, be ye also ready—every man—who knows what a day may bring forth—night is the time for spooks. Upon which capten Baker called out the Springfield "continglements of war" at 8 1-4 o'clock that night to be in readiness at the great State midnight call; lit up their bonfires and kept the music lifeing—all Springfield was in a curious fix at the strange flurry: Baker stood marking time, at the head of his company with such invincible war heat in a soft spot that he marched himself down to his hips in mud, which his great heat BAKED into a pair of earthen boots.

Just in time to save further trouble a gentleman arrived from Quincy and said nothing of the kind had happened. It was a hoax. One of Tim Tickle's country come its,—and all engaged in it had dirtied their clothes for nothing. All you could hear was WHO MADE YOUR BOOTS?

Truly the gullibility of this generation is greater than a barn door, and thousands go in thereat.

BENNETT'S LETTERS.—We have read the fifth and sixth letters of Dr. Bennett, and can only say like the old adage: a fool's bolt is soon shot. The fifth letter is made up of the cogitations of disappointed ambition. That want of candour, virtue, meekness, charity, and temperance, which has hitherto destroyed the Doctor's prospects, wherever he has tarried for the time being, and left his writings an aching void in the estimation of honest men, runs through this letter like the chill fever and leaves it a pale faced sample of western debility. The sixth letter is what purports to be a copy of a letter from Joseph Smith to Miss Nancy F. don, without date, name or proof, and if it had these, is, upon the whole, more moral than Bennett ever was or will be of himself,—but we hope the community are not yet quite so far from a common course of Justice and propriety as to take Bennett's word for the truth or fallacy of the curious thing. Joseph Smith is not the author.—The fact is, candid people begin to see what Bennett's stuff, with his help meets of harlots' affidavits, bolstered up with bombast and promises of more disclosures, amounts to! It gives Bennett a living and tattlers tales. It puts us in mind of a boy, who, when the snow fell in the fall, took up a pewter quart basin full, and setting on a hot fire, exclaimed, I will soon melt me a hoghead of water; but upon turning round, saw, to his surprise, his basin melted, and his snow evaporated! So the Doctor, (last heard of in the State of New York.) will soon find that the same fire that melted his discourses will melt him, and leave a continual pain to his soul, sharper than the sting of a serpent's tooth!

MORE PROPHECY.

A Mr. French, a Calvinistic Baptist, of New Hampshire, has predicted that on the 15th of next February, the Saints will be caught up into the air, while the wicked are to be destroyed—and also, that on the 3rd day of the following April Christ will make his appearance in this world to reign with his people. Mr. F. states he is positive about the fulfillment of this prophecy. Verily, this out-Millers Miller.—When will delusion cease? When will men live and act as if endowed with common sense and let alone prophesying the destruction of our globe? This unrighteous course has a deleterious influence on the minds of the weak and uninformed, and fills them with painful forebodings and fearful apprehensions. A wise man, and one who is actuated by the precepts of Christianity, will labor to make men happier and better, and do all in his power to remove superstition, bigotry and fear. We would wish that more of the spirit of true religion could prevail, and that men every where, instead of laboring for popularity, or for money, and to answer their ends, destroy the little peace and happiness which quiet neighbors enjoy, would love truth and benevolence, and practice according to the dictates of mercy and wisdom.

We give publicity to the foregoing for the purpose of exposing the marvelousness of this generation, in preparing themselves to reject whatever has been, or may come of truth to convince the world of what will shortly come to pass before the second coming of Jesus Christ to reign on the earth one thousand years!

HALLUCINATION.—The Signs of the Times publishes the following statement of a "respected brother," in reference to the sign of the Son of Man in the heavens; which, together with the very indignant remark of the editor, faintly illustrates the injurious tendency of the doctrines taught by Miller. The editor does "not dispute the reality of these things."

Sign of the Son of Man.—We give the following article by request. We do not dispute the reality of these things to the respected brother who saw them; but we wish to predicate our faith only upon the word of God. This will be fulfilled.—

"In the year eighteen hundred and thirty-eight, about the middle of June, I saw the sign of a man in the heavens, with a large book in his hand; and the word of the Lord came unto me, saying, that it is the sign of the Son of Man, that is to appear in heaven. After that I saw a figure 5, in the heavens; and thus saith the Lord, that figure was caused to be there to let you know that in five years, or sometime within five years, it would not be more than five years, at the longest, before the Second Coming of the Saviour."

In some sections, we understand that the farmers, deluded by these whims, are selling their farms at half price.—N. Y. Even.

The Yankee millennium flourishes finely. Christ said that no one knew of that day and hour save the Father only: Gulability and Speculation, Religion and Riots: Ephraim is joined to his idols, let him alone!

CANDOR.

THE MORMONS.—As we have not published any of the testimony adduced by Bennett, in proof of his charges against Joe Smith, we shall not publish any of the counter testimony adduced by Smith. It is but just to add, however, that Smith has produced a number of affidavits in contradiction of the charges made by Bennett, and certainly makes out quite as strong a case against Bennett as Bennett makes against him. Moreover, this should be stated, in fairness to all parties —that spirit and temper of Smith's defence is evidently better than that of Bennett's attack on him;—and if, finally, that should be the turning point in the controversy, Bennett must stand condemned, and Smith acquitted.—St. Gazette.

Among all our exchanges we have not seen a more honorable comment upon the controversy of Mormon rights. Truly we can say.—

"A wit's a feather, and a chief's a rod, But an honest man's the noblest work of God."

ENTERPRIZE.

The buildings presses, &c. of the N. Y. Herald has cost the editor about $64,500, and is man'd out in the following bill of particulars, to wit:—

Personnel of the Herald Establishment.

- 1 Owner, editor, proprietor, prophet, head man, head saint, head savior, or head devil, just as you please, (J. G. Bennett.)
- 9 Reporters, writers, or editors.
- 25 Printers, compositors, &c.
- 12 Pressmen, boys, &c.
- 8 Clerks, boys, &c.
- 20 Correspondents in all parts of the world.
- 20 Newsmen or carriers in the city of New York.
- 60 Newsboys of all ages in the city.
- 30 Agents throughout the principal towns of America and Europe.
- 80 Newsboys employed by agents.

265 Persons connected with the establishment.

PROSPERITY OF NAUVOO.

We are happy to see so much enterprise and industry manifested by the citizens of Nauvoo; our mills, manufactories, public houses, &c., heretofore mentioned in this paper, are in a great state of forwardness,—and will soon be completed.

Notwithstanding all the vague stories put afloat by our enemies to injure us in public estimation, yet our sober industrious citizens maintain the "even tenor of their way" in all the laudable occupations that embellish life, and we hope they will so continue, while wicked men enjoy their wages among kindred spirits. Since the absence of Gen. Smith we perceive no variation in business:—There are more General Smith's than one.

By an ordinance recently passed, it is made the duty of the city sexton to report the number of deaths in this city weekly, with the names, age, and disease. In accordance with which we have received the following:

Report of deaths for the week, ending on Friday evening, Aug. 26.

Geo. F. Merriman, aged 10 years, contusion of the brain.

David N. Crenshaw, aged 7 years and 6 months, ague and fever.

Mary E. McIntire, aged 10 months, black canker.

Saben Thayre, aged 45 years, fever.

Charles Shumway, 1 year and 3 months, fever.

Larkin Davis, aged 15 years and 10 months, drowned.

Total 6 for the week.

WM. HUNTINGTON, JR.,
City Sexton.

RISE OF THE MISSISSIPPI.—Notwithstanding the dry weather for some time back, we notice that the Mississippi has risen more than a foot, and is still upon the gain.

THREE TO TEN.—It is a fact worthy of the consideration and admiration of all honest men, that the Latter Day Saints have made more and greater improvements in Nauvoo and vicinity, in three years, than any other place in the United States, of the same size, has in TEN. Well may the New York Herald say.—Go it Jo.

ATTENTION LEGION.—The officers of the Nauvoo Legion are hereby ordered to take particular notice of Ordinance No. 3, as issued in the Wasp of this day, (as the fall parades are at hand,) and govern yourselves accordingly. And captains of companies are required to make out a return of the men and arms in their respective companies, and to make a report thereof in due form to the inspector of their respective Brigade, immediately after company parade.

WILSON LAW, Maj. Gen. of the Nauvoo Legion.

Aug. 24, 1842.

COURT-MARTIAL OF THE NAUVOO LEGION.

OR. IN. AR. NO. 2.

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the Court Martial of the Nauvoo Legion in general Court assembled, that the discipline drill, rules, regulations, and uniforms of the United States Army, so far as applicable, be and they hereby are adopted for the Legion; provided, that each company may adopt its own uniform for the noncommissioned officers and privates belonging to it, and that all questions of practicability be referred to a committee of five to be appointed by the Court Martial, and that their decision shall be final; provided, however, that an appeal may be had to the General Court Martial.

Sec. 2. The Legion shall parade in the following manner in each year, to wit: Each company in the Legion shall hold a company parade on the second Saturday; each Battalion, a Battalion parade on the third Saturday; and each Cohort, a Cohort parade on the fourth Saturday in April. A court of assessment of fines shall be held on the first Saturday, a Court of Appeals on the second Saturday, and a general Court Martial on the third Saturday in May; a company parade shall be held on the second Saturday; a Regiment parade on the third Saturday; a Legion parade on the fourth Saturday in September; and that the Band be required to parade upon each of the Regimental and Cohort parades; a Court of Assessment to be held on the first Saturday; a Court of Appeals on the second Saturday, and a General Court Martial on the third Saturday in October; an officer drill to be on the day preceding the Cohort parade, and an officer drill upon the day preceding the Legion parade, and any noncommissioned officer, musician, or private, who shall neglect or refuse to appear on said days, shall be fined in the sum of one dollar for each Company or Battalion parade, and two dollars for each Cohort or Legion parade; and the commissioned officers neglecting or refusing to appear in their appropriate places on parade shall be fined in the following sums, to wit: the Lieutenant General, and the Major General, thirty dollars; Brevet Major Generals, and Brigadier Generals, twenty five dollars; Colonels, fifteen dollars; Lieutenant Colonels, and Majors, ten dollars; Captains, six dollars; Lieutenants, four dollars; and every commissioned officer, non commissioned officer, musician or private, who shall neglect or refuse to uniform himself in full, after the lapse of eight months from the passage of this act, shall be fined in the same sums, in addition, for each day of parade,—every commissioned officer, non-commissioned officers, or musicians, who shall neglect or refuse to attend officer drills, shall be fined in half the sums aforesaid,—and any commissioned officer who shall neglect or refuse to attend their appropriate Courts Martial shall be fined in one half the sums aforesaid—and any commissioned officer neglecting, or refusing, to discharge any duty devolving upon him, shall, in addition, be cashiered and disgraced, by a general Court Martial, detailed by the Major General by order of the Lieutenant General: Provided, always, that all members of the corporation, who are unable to attend parades or Court Martial, on account of sickness in their families, or any other reasonable excuse, satisfactory to the Court Martial, shall, for the time being, be exempted from all such fines.—And further, it shall be the duty of the commanding officer of each parade day, to give at least two weeks previous public notice of said parade.

Sec. 3. Each Regimental Court of Assessment of fines shall be composed of the Major as president, the Adjutant as secretary, and the Captains of companies as members; and the Court of Appeals shall be composed of the Colonel as president, the Adjutant as secretary, and the Lieutenant Colonel and Major as members, and each Legion Court of Assessment of fines shall be composed of the ranking Brigadier General as president, the War Secretary as secretary, and the commanders of Cohorts, the drill officer, the Adjutant General, and the Chief Musician as members. The Court of Appeals shall be composed of the Major General as president, the War Secretary, as secretary, and the Brigadier Generals as members.

Sec. 4. Every non-commissioned officer and private who shall appear upon parade without the proper arms, and equipage, as adopted by their respective companies shall be fined in a sum of twenty five cents, and every commissioned officer fifty cents.

Sec. 5. The presiding officer of each board shall cause the secretary to keep a record of the proceedings of the Court of Assessments of fines in a book to be kept for that purpose, and make out therefrom a certified list of the names of the persons fined, with the name of the officer to each name, with a list it shall be the duty of the presiding officer to issue and furnish to the constable appointed to collect such fines, the following warrant to be endorsed at any time when it may be necessary, which shall be his authority for collecting and paying over the same, to wit:

STATE OF ILLINOIS, }
Hancock county, } ss.
To _____ Constable of the county
Greeting:

In the name of the people of the State of Illinois, you are hereby required and commanded to collect from each person named in the foregoing list, the several sums of money set opposite their names and within ninety days after receiving this warrant, to pay over to the paymaster of the Legion the amount so collected, and take his receipt for the same; and if any one or more of the said persons shall neglect or refuse to pay the same, you are hereby forthwith commanded to levy on the personal goods and chattels of each delinquent, and make sale thereof according to the law regulating the collection of debts of a similar amount by execution in this State. Given under my hand, this _____ day of _____ A. D. 1842.

of the _____ and president of the Court.

And any constable collecting any fines under the provisions of this act, who shall neglect or refuse to pay over the amount so collected, as required in the foregoing warrant, after deducting twenty per cent, which shall be his fees for collection. It shall be the duty of the paymaster of the Legion to proceed against such constable or his securities, before any justice of the peace of said county: and the said constable and his securities shall only be exonerated from the payment of the amount of such fines, by showing to the satisfaction of such Justice, that there was no property whereon to levy, of which such fine or fines could be made, or that the collection had been suspended by order of the presiding officer of the Court of Appeals, and if, in the opinion of said presiding officer or another board of officers, any constable has neglected his duty, it shall be the duty of such presiding officer or Board to withdraw the warrant from such constable, and appoint another or others, as the case may require.

Sec. 6. The Paymaster of the Legion shall, within twenty days after the passage of this act, give a bond with sufficient security to the City Council of the city of Nauvoo, for a sum of two thousand dollars, for the due performance of the duties of Paymaster.

Sec. 7. There shall not be any monies drawn out of the Treasury of the Nauvoo Legion, unless it be drawn upon the certificate of the Major General, approved by the Lieutenant General.

Sec. 8. No private shall be permitted to leave the company to which he belongs, without the permission of his captain, unless in case of promotion, by commission and no captain shall give such permission unless his company shall consist of more than sixty-four rank and file, and each member over that number may claim a discharge from his Captain, by producing evidence that he has attached himself to another company, and that recruiting orders shall not be issued unless by the Major General, with the approbation of the Lieutenant General, who is hereby authorized so to do, in their discretion.

Sec. 9. The Major General may issue bills of credit to the amount of five hundred dollars, to be signed by the Lieutenant General, and the Major General, and countersigned by the War Secretary, and redeemable out of such monies as may be in the hands of the Paymaster, or Treasurer of the Legion.

Sec. 10. That officers may be elected without being nominated by the Court Martial, and that all vacancies shall be filled by lawful elections, and not by granting brevet commissions.

Sec. 11. That all laws or parts of laws contrary to the provisions in this Ordinance contained or specified, be, and the same are hereby repealed.

Sec. 12. This Ordinance to take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved Aug. 13, 1842.
JOSEPH SMITH, Lieut. Gen.
of the Nauvoo Legion, of Ill. Militia.
WILSON LAW, Maj. Gen. and President of the Court Martial.
JAMES SLOAN, War Sec. and Sec. of the Court Martial

TWO FARMS TO RENT.

FOR rent, two farms adjoining each other containing each about one hundred acres of land under cultivation, and situated on Bear Creek, near Knolton's. They will be rented on reasonable terms, and immediate possession given. The Stock on the farms and all necessary farming utensils will either be sold or let to the renter if desired.

ROBERT JOHNSTON.
Apply to John E. Johnston, Warsaw.
Aug. 27, 1842. nol9-3w.

POETRY.

For the Wasp. THE OLD MAN'S HOPE.

Imitation of Wordsworth.

This head of mine is silver'd now,
The mist of years has dimm'd mine eyes,
Life's cares have furrow'd o'er my brow—
Hope foil'd on earth points to the skies.

When thou wert young my faithful Tray,
Thy playful tricks oft cheer'd my mind,
But age's cheerless wintry day
Has left our pleasures all behind.

And here alone I'm left with thee,
My little children all are dead,
Who fill'd our cottage with their glee;
God bless my little Jem and Ned!

And Mary—ay, and Jessie too,
Their graves o'er yonder make a row,
Their early deaths I'll never rue,
God took them to himself I know.

God help me!—and their mother's heart,
With pent-up grief was like to break;
She said, "my Edward we must part,
I'll leave this world for their sake:—

"I'll lie down with my little dears,
And God shall dry my weeping eyes,
My soul shall mingle with the spheres,
And join my cherubs in the skies.

"And then we'll wait till father comes,
And then we'll ever be at rest;
We'll live with God in those bright homes,
Edward his mansions are the best."

She died, I laid her by their side—
Down by her own two lovely pair,
I care not now what may betide,
If in God's house I meet them there.

My heart pants much to be away,
My wearied soul would fain have rest;
Lord hasten on the happy day
When I shall once again be blest.

180.

For the Wasp.

Respectfully, to President Smith, in his absence.

YOUR PORTRAIT.

BY MISS F. R. SNOW.

Sir, you've left us 'your portrait' that product of art—

A small specimen neatly design'd—
But 'tis only a picture, for where is the heart?
And O, where that rich jewel, the mind?

It is only a picture! for where is the speech,
That most noble conductor of thought
With which thou art gifted the nations to teach,
And by which we desire to be taught?

Sir, we look at 'your portrait' and see it enclos'd
In its frame like a prisoner bound,
And regret its original, thus is expos'd
To the malice of men that surround!

O, how strange, in this boasted, republican land,
Where all claim to be happy and free;
That a prophet of God is forbidden to stand,
And is forced like a culprit to flee!

'Tis a sad 'restitution'! but all things must come—
It was thus with the prophets of old:
But when you are absent, and driv'n from your home
Here's 'your portrait,' your friends may behold.

Nauvoo, August 20, 1842.

IMPORTANT TO NATURALISTS.—MERMAID CAUGHT.—The Philadelphia Ledger relates the following:—The present age exceeds all others in the extent and variety of its discoveries, and the confirmation and establishment of facts in science and nature which have always been questioned. The greatest discovery yet made has still to be announced, and it is left for us to make the fact public. We have seen a Mermaid! Start not and curl your lips with scorn—though concerning a fish, it is not a fish story. We have seen the tangible evidence exhibited to our senses, of the existence of that monster hitherto deemed fabulous by all the learned, though religiously believed by every salt water naturalist that ever crossed the Gulf Stream. A mermaid we have seen, not in the alluring garb and seductive form represented in the picture books, with an eagle's face, which the Naiad beauty herself enamored of, is delightfully gazing at in a looking glass made by some submarine mechanic, probably her lover; the mermaid we saw has none of these attractions, but is an ugly little monster as was ever seen, resembling more, in appearance about the upper part of the body, a mummified monkey than an angelic fish. Still the monster is one of the greatest curiosities of the day. It was caught near the Fejee Islands, and taken to Pernambuco, where it was purchased by an English gentleman, named Griffin, who is making a collection of rare and curious things for the British museum, or some other cabinet of curiosities. This animal, fish, flesh, or whatever it may be, is about three feet long, and the lower part of its body is a perfectly formed fish, but from the breast upwards this character is lost, and it then approaches the human form—or rather that of the monkey. It has a pair of perfectly formed breasts, arms and hands, the latter resembling the human hand more than a monkey's, with white nails on the finger ends. The head is also larger than the monkey's head, though shaped somewhat like it; the top is bald, but the sides are covered with hair, which extends down even upon the neck, like the well trained ringlets of some fair damsel. The cheeks, eyes and lips bear a semblance to humanity, except the chin which is deficient. The animal is now in charge of a gentleman at Jones' Hotel, who was about to leave for New York yesterday afternoon. It is worthy of the naturalists of this city, though the owner has refused to exhibit it publicly.

Now, the question arises, is not this the mermaid so much talked of, and whose existence there is ample testimony to establish, though so generally doubted. Accounts of them state that one was fished up in England, in 1187, and kept six months alive, and finally escaped by plunging into the sea. One was caught in the mud, in the dykes of Holland, in 1430, after a tempest. Seven mermen and mermaids were caught together in one net, in 1560, at the Is and of Ceylon. Notwithstanding all this testimony, the existence of the creature was still doubted, and might have been doubted to the end of creation, if fortune had not thrown the Fejee beauty into the hands of the present proprietor, where all may satisfy themselves of its reality.

IMPORTANT ARREST.—The Buffalo Journal of the 29th ult., says—'A young man, named Horace Pagaud, first clerk in the auditor's office, Mississippi, was arrested in this city yesterday, by sheriff Broon, on charge of forging a large amount, (between $70,000 and $100,000,) in State warrants. Pagaud was traced to St. Louis, and from thence to this city, by Mr. R. M. James, and brought before Recorder Stow for examination, which resulted in a full commitment until such time as a requisition can be obtained of the Governor for his removal to Mississippi. The accused is some twenty-two years of age, and has relatives of standing in St. Louis.'—[St. Louis Republican.

REVOLUTIONARY TROOPS.—The following table exhibits the number of continental troops and militia furnished by the several States in nine years, from 1775 to 1783, inclusive:

	Continental.	Militia.	Total.
New Hampshire	17,496	2,693	19,589
Massachusetts	68,007	16,155	84,162
Rhode Is and	5,908	4,285	10,192
Connecticut	31,039	7,782	41,821
New York	17,341	3,314	20,655
Pennsylvania	25,608	7,357	32,865
New Jersey	10,736	6,055	16,791
Delaware	2,319	376	4,695
Maryland	12,012	4,127	17,039
Virginia	26,668	5,620	32,288
North Carolina	7,263		7,263
South Carolina	6,417		6,417
Georgia	2,679		2,679

SOUTH CAROLINA.—The Rice in this neighborhood, says the Georgetown (S. C.) Observer, where proper labor has been bestowed in keeping down the grass, promises something more than an average crop. The harvest will be two or three weeks earlier than usual.

Orange Riot at St. John's, N. B.—There was a terrible Orange riot at St. Johns on the 12th inst. One thousand persons were engaged therein. No lives lost.

Ennui.—Pliny Warren, of New York, full of ennui and without philosophy of any kind, committed suicide at Newport last Sunday. He regretted that the world was selfish, and so quit it.

MEAL, FLOUR,

AND PROVISIONS OF EVERY KIND.
WANTED ON TITHING.

THE brethren abroad will remember that those who devote the whole of their time to work on the Temple must be fed; they cannot live and work without provisions, and we are growing very scarce; and especially so with regard to MEAL and FLOUR. Those, therefore, who have the above articles, and intend to consecrate such on their tithing, will please forward them immediately to Nauvoo. W. RICHARDS, Recorder for the Temple.

Nauvoo, June 18th 1842. 10-1f.

NOTICE.

WHEREAS my wife Casander J. Whiting eloped my bed and board about one year ago, without any just cause or provocation, and has not returned; this is, therefore, to forbid all persons trusting her on my account, as I shall pay no debt of her contracting.

NATHANIEL WHITING.

Nauvoo, Aug. 10, 1842. 47-3w.

WINDOW SASH.

WE, carpenters, builders, &c., of the city of Nauvoo, recommend H. Hammond's patent upper and improved lower window sash springs, as a very superior article:

W. Weeks, principal carpenter of Temple,
L. Woodworth, do do Nauv. H's,
R. Hadlock, J. W. Coolidge,
L. Tulle, M. Ramney,
H. Riding.

All windows should be made narrow, high and with parting beads.

For the proper ventilation of a room, it is absolutely necessary to lower the upper sash.

These springs are warranted not to loose their elasticity or break, have points for preserving the notches in the sash, directions for selecting the appropriate sizes and properly putting them into windows.

For sale, wholesale and retail, at several of the hardware stores in St. Louis, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, &c. See a window with these springs in operation at Mr. Mills' Masonic Hall.

Nauvoo, Aug. 13, 1842. 17-1y.

NOTES.

DUE the Trustee for labor on the Temple, are left with the Temple Committee for collection. Brethren, remember that your contracts with your God are sacred; the labor is wanted immediately.

W. RICHARDS,
Temple Recorder.

June 25, 1842. 10-1f.
P. S. Remember the notes due for property also.

LOOK HERE! LOOK HERE!!

WANTED, at the Nauvoo Foundry, a quantity of Stone coal; any persons wishing to furnish it, will please call on Hiram Kimball, or Geo. W. Robinson, at the Post Office.

Nauvoo, June 13th 1842. 10-1f.

NOTICE.

The Stock Holders, of the Nauvoo Agricultural and Manufacturing Association, are hereby notified, that a meeting for the election of Trustees, will be held at Gen. Hyrum Smith's office, on the first Monday in September next, at 4 o'clock P. M.

E. ROBINSON Secretary.

Nauvoo, August 13, 1842,

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus
J. Salsbery, Plymouth,
Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Cliffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nauvoo.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Page, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
James Curtis, Horners Town.
W. I. Appleby, Reelless Town.
Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Salem.
Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapiar.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirtland.

NEW YORK.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.
L. R. Foster, city of New York.

TRAVELING AGENTS.

Hiram Kimball.

DR. J. F. WELD,

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.
Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

DRUGS, MEDICINES, &c.

THE subscriber has opened a Drug Store in Nauvoo and intends keeping a full assortment of every thing in that line.—Paints, Oils, Varnish, Brushes, Turpentine, Linseed, Sperm, Olive, and Castor Oil; white Lead, red and black Lead, Vermillion, Prussian Blue, Lytharge, Chrome green and yellow, venecian red, spanish brown, lampblack, ivory black, whiting, chalk, yellow ochre, dye stuffs, indigo, cochineal, annatto, madder, copperas, alum, oil vitriol, blue vitriol, logwood, brazilwood, &c., &c.; stationary, plain and ruled cap and letter paper, ink, wafers, quills, sand, &c.; window-glass of all sizes, salicatus, putty, spices, glass ware, perfumery, soaps, anuli, rosin, matches, blacking, every thing in the medicine line, all the patent medicines; all of which will be sold low for cash; Van Studdiford's ague and fever pills, also his medicated lozenges, and cough, worm, and cathartic lozenges, are constantly on hand. Store on water street above Davis' Hotel.

A. T. TERRELL.

July 23, 1842.

AGUE AND FEVER.

Gleim's tonic mixture and Dr. Renals' pills; two certain cures for that inveterate pest, the chills and fever,—for sale by.

July 23, 1842.

A. T. TERRELL.

BEESWAX.

The highest price in cash will be paid for Beeswax, by (16 m 3) A. T. TERRELL.

MEDICAL NOTICE.

DR. W. B. BRINK.

Respectfully tenders his professional services to the citizens of Nauvoo, and its vicinity, as a botanic practitioner, having adopted the botanic practice from a positive conviction of the truth of its doctrines, and the unrivaled success which attends the practice; and hopes to give general satisfaction and prove the superior efficacy of the botanic treatment to those who may place themselves under his care; also a number of valuable preparations of his own compounding; such as anti-bilious pills peculiarly serviceable in dyspepsia, bilious fever, &c; restorative bitters, pulmonary balsom, cough syrup, rheumatic liniment, neutralizing cordial; this is one of the most valuable preparations known for cholery morbus, cholery infantum, or summer complaints of children, fever ague and cancers, will be treated.

principle of no cure no pay and those afflicted with cancers will do well to call and try a remedy which has never failed; and those who are not able to pay will be cured without charge.

Dr. B. is consulted in the most intricate and protracted cases of secret disease that require practical experience to ensure success; every species and form of the disease must yield to his treatment which is in all cases mild and soft, requiring no interruption from business or change of diet, and will treat the disease upon the principle of no cure no pay; office at the store of W. Alen, formerly occupied by Mr. E. D. Wooley.

W. B. BRINK, M. D.

Nauvoo, July 2nd 1842. 12-3m.

BENCH & MOULDING PLANES.

WANTED, immediately, a large number of the above Planes on tithing. The brethren who have got such and can spare them would greatly facilitate the building of the Temple by bringing them as soon as possible to the recorder's office, and they shall be entered to their credit on tithing. All kinds of bench planes whether good or indifferent can be made useful at the Temple. The moulding planes should be such as suit the present fashion.

Also all lumber, which would make plane stocks, would be very serviceable.

JOSEPH SMITH, Trustee.

W. CLAYTON, Clerk.

W. H. RALSTON,

ATTORNEY & COUNSELLOR AT LAW, Carthage, Hancock county, Ill., will practice in the Hancock Circuit court, and also in the Supreme Circuit and District Courts of this State. Carthage, Aug. 18, 1842. 18-3m.

THE

WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 20

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, September 3, 1842.

Whole Number 20.

THE WASP.

EDITED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY

WM. SMITH,

At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,

Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.

TERMS—$1.50 invariably in advance.

THE JEW OF HAMAH.

Once upon a time there lived in Hamah a certain Turk called Mustapha, who, having accumulated some wealth by carrying on a trade in goat's hair, determined to make a pilgrimage to Mecca. His family consisted of his wife and two slaves; and as the lady insisted on not being left behind, the good man resolved to sell off his stock of goat's hair, to take all his household with him, and to shut up his house till his return. The only difficulty that presented itself was what to do with his money. He did not like to run the risk of being robbed of it in his journey through the desert, he did not like to leave it in an empty house, and there were not any of his friends to whom he wished to trust the secret of his wealth. After much deliberation he placed it in separate parcels at the bottom of five large earthen jars, which he then filled up with butter, and on his departure sent them to the house of one of his neighbours, a Jew named Mousa, to keep till his return, telling him that it was a stock which he had laid in for winter consumption. The Jew however, from the weight of the jars and other circumstances, suspected that they contained something more valuable; and as soon as Mustapha was fairly on his way to Damascus to join the caravan, he ventured to open them; when finding his expectations realized, he took out the gold and filled them up again with butter so carefully, that nobody could tell that they had been disturbed. The poor Turk, on his return from the pilgrimage, soon found out the trick that his neighbour had practised upon him; but as the jars were exactly in the same apparent state as when he left them, and as there was no evidence as to their contents, it was plain that no legal process could give him any redress. He therefore set about to devise some other way of punishing the Jew, & of recovering if possible his property; and in the meantime he did not communicate his loss to any one but his wife, and enjoined on her the strictest secrecy. After long consideration a plot suggested itself. In one of his visits to the neighbouring town of Homs, where he was in the habit of going to sell his goat's hair to the manufacturers of the mashlaks for which that place is famous, he fell in with a troop of gipsies, who had with them an ape of extraordinary sagacity. He prevailed on them to sell him this animal; and conveying it privately to his house in Hamah, shut it up in a room to which no one but himself had access. He then went to the bazaar and bought one of the dark scanty robes and the small caps or kalpaks, with a speckled handkerchief tied closely round it which is the prescribed costume of the Jews throughout the Turkish empire. This dress he took care invariably to put on whenever he went to visit his ape; and as he always carried him his meals, and indeed never allowed any other person to see him, the animal in the course of a few weeks became extremely attached to him, jumping on his neck and hugging and caressing him as soon as he entered the room. About this time, as he was walking along the streets one day, he met a lad, the son of the Jew Mousa and having enticed him into his house by the promise of some figs, he shut him up a close prisoner, in a detached apartment in his garden, at such a distance from the street, and from the other houses in the town, that the boy could not discover to any one the place of his confinement. The Jew after several days' search, not being able to gain any tidings of him, concluded that he had either been drowned, or had fallen into the hands of some wandering Bedouins; and as he was his only child, fell into a state of the greatest despair; till at length he heard by accident, that just about the time that the boy was missing, he had been seen walking in company with Hadgi Mustapha. The truth instantly flashed on his mind, and he recognized in the loss of his son some stratagem which the Turk had planned in revenge for the affair of the butter jars. He immediately summoned him before the cadi, accused him of having the boy in his possession, and insisted on his immediately restoring him. Mustapha at first strenuously denied the fact; but when one of the witnesses positively declared that he saw the boy go into his house, and when the cadi was about to pronounce his decree, that he should bring him into court dead or alive.—'Yah illah el Allah!' he exclaimed, 'there is no God but Allah, and his power is infinite; he can work miracles when it seemeth good in his sight. It is true effendi,' continued he, addressing himself to the cadi, 'that I saw the Jew Mousa's son passing by my house; and for the sake of the old friendship subsisting between his father and myself, I invited him to come in and eat some figs which I had just been gathering. The boy, however, repaid my hospitality with rudeness and abuse; nay, he even blasphemed the name of our holy prophet; but scarcely had the words passed his lips when, to my surprise and terror, he was suddenly changed into a monkey. In that form I will produce him, and as a proof that what I tell you is true, you will see that he will immediately recognize his father.' At this instant a servant who was waiting on the outside let loose the ape into the divan, who seeing that the Jew was the only person present in the dress to which he was accustomed, mistook him for his master, jumped upon him, and clung round his neck with all the expressions of fondness which the child might have been supposed to exhibit on being restored to his parent. Nothing more was wanted to convince the audience of the truth of Mustapha's story; 'A miracle, a real miracle!' they cried out, great is Allah, and Mahomet is his prophet; and the Jew was ordered to take the monkey and retire from the court. A compromise was now his only resource; and accordingly as soon as it was dark, and he could go unobserved, he repaired to Mustapha's house, and offered, if he would liberate his son, to restore all the money he had taken from the butter jars. The Turk having attained his object, consented to release his prisoner; but in order to keep up his own credit, he stipulated that the child should be removed privately, and that the father with his whole family, should immediately quit the place. The popular belief in the miracle thus remained unshaken; and so great was the dispute into which the Jews fell in consequence of this adventure, that they all departed one after the other, and none have ever since been known to reside in Hamah.

THE COLLIERY QUESTION.—As we anticipated, no attempt was made in the House of Lords, on Thursday evening, to negative the principle of Lord Ashley's bill, but the Earl of Devon felt constrained to enter into farther negotiation with the representatives of the coal-masters, and of course farther terms of capitulation were exacted from him.

By the first compromise they extorted one-half of the time of children between the age of ten and thirteen; and by the second the other half has, in like manner, been surrendered to them. The bill, as it stands for consideration now, is limited to the following main provisions: that, after stated periods, the labor of females and children under ten years of age shall cease to be employed in coal mines, and that children shall not be apprenticed in them for a longer term than eight years.

The coal masters have thus, in a great measure, achieved the principal object for which they contended in their 'circular.' The bone in dispute throughout was the five years intervening between infancy and boyhood—between 8 years of age and 13. Lord Ashley and his supporters were most anxious that this interval should be reserved for the children, as the one during which it was most important to allow their physical organization to be matured by rest, and their intellectual faculties to be developed by instruction. The coalmasters, on the other hand, were equally anxious that it should be appropriated to their service, as the one during which the children are most indispensable to the profitable working of their mines. Mammon, for the time, has outmanœuvred humanity; and for this, we must candidly say, humanity has much to thank the unintelligible course pursued by the Government.—[London Morning Herald.]

Oregon Territory.—Our Government is turning its attention seriously to the occupation of the Oregon Territory.—As a preparatory step to an expedition has been recently sent out to explore the country between the navigable waters of the Missouri and Oregon rivers. The company consists of surveyors and engineers, and scientific men, well supplied with all the instruments and appliances necessary to effect a correct topographical survey, and is escorted by a sufficient number of troops to afford protection from the savage tribes that wander through the great Western wilderness. The main object of the expedition is to select the most eligible route for the location of a chain of forts, connecting the white settlements on the Missouri and the Columbia rivers. The establishment of military posts along the route will tend very much to facilitate the march of emigration in the direction of the Pacific Ocean. At present, the journey across the Rocky Mountains is attended with innumerable dangers, enough to deter any but the hardiest adventurers from encountering the risk. No single individual dare make the attempt. Even large caravans, well guarded and protected by strong military escorts, are in constant jeopardy from the attacks of the Indians, whose hunting grounds are traversed by the company of travelers.

If, however, the intention of Government is carried into effect, comparative security will have been acquired against many of the dangers that now render the journey to the Pacific full of hazard to the pioneer. Whenever this desirable object is attained, it may be expected that the tide of emigration will set in strong and wide for the shores of the Pacific.—The Far West will then no longer be limited by the range of the Rocky Mountains, but its boundaries be pushed onward till they meet the waters of the distant ocean. The prospect in that remote region are sufficiently flattering to induce crowds to try the experiment of seeking their fortunes in a new country. Notwithstanding existing obstacles, extensive settlements are formed on the Columbia, and before many years it may be expected that the colonists will be strong enough to organize a Government of their own, and established another Republic west of the Rocky Mountains.

[N. O. Bulletin.]

GREAT MORTALITY.—During the first six months of the present year, the mortality has been great in several towns bordering upon both sides of Connecticut river in New Hampshire and Vermont.—Up to the month of May there had been within a few miles of Haverhill Corner about one hundred deaths, principally children. The disorder most fatal has been a malignant putrid sore throat.—Gradually has it extended to adults, and the disorder is in almost all cases fatal when it falls from the throat to the stomach and lungs. The towns of Bath and Lyman, situated on the New Hampshire side of the river, directly above Haverhill, have encountered a mortality to an extent equal almost to the destruction by the cholera in 1832 in some of our cities. Lyman has a population of 1500, and Bath 1600 souls. The number of deaths from the first of February to this time (short of six months) has been sixty in Bath, making at the rate of one death per year in every fourteen inhabitants. Six persons are said to have died in Bath.

[Concord (N. H.) Visitor.]

POISONING—AWFUL.—The Paris correspondent of the National Intelligencer gives the following fearful account of murders by poisoning in France:

The Viscount de Cormenin recently submitted to the Academy of Moral and Political Sciences, a memoir on Poisoning with Arsenic, and the means of arresting the fearful increase of that crime—l'effrayante progression. It appears by his authenticated statistics, that from 1830 to 1840, three hundred and thirty-five cases were tried in France, which implicated four hundred and fourteen persons, and that two hundred cases more were ascertained, but not brought into court. The proportion of Paris is not much less than that of the Provinces.—In Corsica only one case of conviction is registered for the ten years. There the poignard does the work of the passions. In France, of the 414 arraigned for poisoning, 187 were women—73 wives for the murder of their husbands, and 16 husbands for that of their wives; 8 parricides; 12 infanticides; 87 of the cases were caused by adultery and concubinage; 80 by domestic dissensions of other origin; 116 by coveting of property.

THE WASP.

SATURDAY SEPTEMBER 3, 1842.

FOR A WHILE—upon tolerable good authority, we learn that James Gordon Bennett, of the N. Y. Herald, is about to publish an Anti-mormon look. (Is the hunter?) for John Cook Bennett, of the awful discourses. This, as we printers say, is fat for sofs, and all right—'for a that.' But the union of the Scotch daisy and the Irish Johnny jump up! Och me honey—if it doe n't look like Patrick McBurns O'Rafferty's hunt for sport. With an old gun heavy loaded he proceeded into the meadow, and beheld, at a short distance, upon a dry limb, a red headed wood pecker, whose head, as Pat said 'was all a cloder of black' a knocking on that dry limb—and sure I'd pepper ye, continued he, as he brought up the old gun, shut both eyes, and fired away;—and after the smoke disappeared—Pat seeing nothing upon the limb ran to the root of the tree, and beholding a large green mealow frog, seized him and said—'Och me honey, ye're not so party a hard as ye was store I shot all the feathers off o' ye?'

RIGHTED SIZES EXALTED A NATION.—The Wasp has labored by a string of satire to vindicate the cause of suffering innocence; and wherever truth could be found, or truth could be used, that and that only was our motto. Some may suppose that this paper is for light reading;—this is not the case; but when soft words and mild means, fail to penetrate the Crocodile scales of this wicked and adu terous generation, it then becomes our duty to pierce with a stinger long enough and sharp enough, to bring the greedy, sporting, volatile, fragile, and ungodly multitude to a sense of feeling; that they may reflect and learn and know, that the Latter Day Saints, in common with other men, have a country and rights to enjoy—and that when they are denied a portion of country, or refused the free exercise of their rights, they have the privilege guaranteed by the constitution to seek for relief; knowing then that 'Congress,' in the express words of the Constitution, 'shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of grievances,' and that 'the powers not delegated to the United States by the constitution, nor prohibited by it to the states, are reserved to the states respectively, or to the people,' we are free.

The saints mean to be faithful friends and fearless foes: trusting in God for the justice of their cause, not wishing to offend the chariest ear; nor willing to be trampled upon with impunity, in the manner but firm in the thing, striving to excell in virtue, order and religion. Then if we are persecuted, let it be asked, for which of our good deeds do we suffer?

*The following precious morsel is a copy of a notice, verbatim et literatim, whis was posted up at the corners of the streets in Tennessee a short time ago, by one of the deluded followers of Joe Smith, of Mormon notoriety. Of his chi rography, which had much the appearance of 'pot-hooks and trammels,' we cannot give a specimen, but preserve the form of the notice as near as possible;

Notice July 1842
their will be a meeting this Evening by a Latterday saint or mormon from boston in the Courthouse he will show what th human soul is all air requested to-atende
all the from any Expens

The above appears in the N. Y. Dollar Weekly, and is, we believe, the first time we have been charged with such a silly ruse. Some gamblers are, however, so fond of gambling, that they will risk the chance, no odds whether the game is played on the tables of the living or the coffins of the dead. The Dollar Weekly, in Miller's time of the end, comes in after all the clean beasts, among the creeping things into the Ark; Sins, and Creeping things—Kiddie's Mormonism and the Mormons; N. Y. Evangelist; Dollar Weekly; Sunderland's Mormonism; Exp'd; Hove's Mormonism Unveiled; Booth's letters; Prof. Turner's Mormonism in all ages; some small insects, with the Sar-gamo Journal and Bennett's Letter, and his pimps, attaches, and Brotherton-like halves, for a tail.—Oh gracious dad, what a long tail our puss has got!

THE DAY STAR.—The sectarian Millennium progresses rapidly. A new paper under the title

'The Day Star,' has just made its appearance in Utica N. Y. This is the age of wonders. Almost any thing but truth will take the first fire. To show, as the student would say—multum in parvo, we copy the following:

1843.

Books and pamphlets on the 2nd coming of Christ; consisting of Miller's lectures, Miller's Life and Views, Spaulding on the 2nd Coming of Christ, Miller's exposition of 24th Matthew, Fleming's Midnight Cry, Litch's Address to the Clergy, Fitch on the Glory of God in the Earth, Present Crisis, Letter to every body, with other publications on this engrossing and intensely interesting subject, to be had at J. Patten's Utica.

Daniel's numbers are the foundation of this mighty move for the Lord. At some future time we will endeavor to show from these numbers, without the aid of magic, that they have no more allusion to 1843, than Moses had to Cat-skill Mountains. We are not afraid to risk a word on this—wait, patient reader, till 1844, and if the Millennium has begun then there is a new Redeemer!

DOG DAYS.—We hope dog days and that old coat which gave the neighbor such an itching for lying, will go out of fashion this week. For hot weather, and foolish lies, trouble light headed editors too bad. Such an itching for mbbing and blood—one paper is sorry the report of a battle between the Mormons and militia, turns out to be untrue; and another is mortified because the Mormons won't resist the authority. Blat away poor calves—and rest assured that the Saint will never rise as a mob, or resist legal authority—nor will Joseph Smith go to Missouri to be murdered!

The present generation is very much given to cheating, and when we perceive a lie or two, especially about the Mormons, we are not disappointed, though we sometimes think, that very few ever take the pains to remember the words of Jesus Christ, on this very point, in Matthew, 12 chapter, and 36 and 37 verses. A lie frequently goes a journey of a thousand miles, and part way back, before truth discovers the villany, and then, like Lord Byron's rogue in Don Juan, he escapes detection by hiding—under a petticoat! O generation of vipers, who warned you to flee from the wrath to come!

ANOTHER HOLD IN THE GOVERNMENT.—To prevent the majority of the Ohio Legislature from passing the new distribution bill, thirteen senators and twenty eight members of the House, all of the Whig party, have resigned their seats leaving both houses without constitutional majorities to do business; and thereby paralyzing the power of the State in the next election for members of Congress. 'There is more treason in this Government, than you and I ever dreamed of.' This is a new rule in the Government, showing the very foundation of all we hold dear, is sand. Rhode Island is mad; Missouri corrupt, and Ohio struck with mortification, and why? because the head is sick and the heart faint: Congress has the mumps!

WARSAW MELODIES;

OR,

OUR CITIZENS WERE IN HOPE:—FROM TOM SHARP'S QUILL-WHEEL RHAPSODIES OF 'SPORT' OUT OF MURDER AND TRASON.

SOLILLOQUY NO. 1.

Our people were in hopes—
So sly the scamp to nab—
Or make them all resist—O hum!
That we might have excuse—
Nauvoo by war to grab—
Higbo says Tom.

That we might murder Jo
And all we deadly hate
And, like Missouri, have the 'sport,'
(A mob's militia, mum.)
And 'drive them from the State en masse'—says Tom.

I've wrote this little sketch,
(Though awful 'tis to tell,
But Shakspeare murder out'll come.)
That men may know me, too,
When I am dead—in hell!
A dis poor Tom!

Four verses have been put to as many principal acts of Congress, the present session, by John Tyler. Surely the people as well as Congress, have found out that John Tyler is President of the United States; commander in chief of the Army; Admiral of the Navy—and independent of the militia.

ILLINOIS ELECTION.

	Ford	Don.
Adams	1421	1577
Alexander	424	299
Bond	423	899
Boone	257	249
Bureau	259	337
Brown	125	020
Carroll	69	80
Clinton	470	262
Calhoun	171	292
Cass	321	343
Clay	140	218
Crawford	253	359
Coles	685	1012
Clark	579	563
Cook	1328	625
Champaign	121	145
Christian	196	187
De Witt	316	291
De Kalb	214	146
Du Page	432	000
Edgar	741	619
Edwards	122	271
Elgin	293	56
Franklin	522	96
Fulton	1193	191
Fayette	611	328
Gallatin	1100	441
Greene	320	600
Grundy	109	000
Henderson	229	227
Hamilton	555	145
Hancock	1748	711
Hardin	131	154
Henry	46	162
Iroquois	175	154
Jackson	317	210
Jefferson	703	222
Jo Daviess	480	1079
Jersey	415	531
Johnson	440	109
Jasper	174	95
Knox	593	519
Kane	225	457
Kendall	25	268
Lawrence	597	676
LaSalle	1123	438
Livingston	78	85
Logan	106	260
Lake	167	281
Le	130	231
Mason	181	160
Monroe	636	128
Morgan	1162	1375
Monroe	487	566
Madison	965	1604
Montgomery	520	311
Macoupin	768	619
Macon	308	115
Menard	233	352
Marshall	271	168
M Lenn	424	519
Mercer	226	284
Marion	583	192
M Henry	64	000
Ogle	278	478
Putnam	187	170
Perry	331	174
Piatt	39	49
Pike	1034	1149
Peoria	550	767
Pope	263	391
Rock Island	224	426
Randolph	552	515
Richland	201	242
Sangamon	1217	1586
Stars	187	152
Scott	313	348
Schuyler	576	555
St. Clair	1776	729
Sneydy	773	288
Stephenson	261	260
Tazewell	651	1181
Union	636	78
Vermilion	455	963
Whiteside	236	275
Will	756	465
Wayne	447	199
Washington	513	205
White	639	770
Warren	383	455
Wabash	275	426
Williamson	532	115
Winnebago	414	548
Woodford	287	160

a minority, needs to be reminded that God belongs to that party, and that He is in Himself an Infinite Majority."

No wonder the prophets declared that "calamity should cover the mocker." God a majority! This generation is not satisfied with slander in this world, but have commenced sprinkling their venom towards heaven. Oh vain fools!

DISTRESS IN ENGLAND.

That our readers may be enabled to form some idea of the distress in England. We copy the following extract of a speech made to the House of Lords, by Lord Rossie, as publish in English papers.—The noble Lord says:—

"Before he sat down he would advert to other particulars showing this distress, and he begged leave to caution her Majesty's Government against being led away by any notion that distress of a most aggravating character did not exist. For his own part, he believed that there was a deep under current flowing, which would ultimately, if nothing were done to relieve the distress, prove most injurious, most detrimental to the best interest of the country. In Manchester there was a population of 191,403 souls. For the year 1836, the sum of £25,069 was raised by the poor rate; but in 1841 the amount was vastly increased, for the rate was £38,933. He found, also, from a report which he had in his hand, that of that population of 161,403 souls no fewer than 2,000 persons were without beds.— Besides this, it was shown from calculation that 9,100 persons had only 1s 2d each, per week to subsist upon—to procure food and clothing. The number of persons admitted to the dispensaries of the town was, in 1836, 54,000; in 1841, so many as 169,000 were received into them; showing an increase of 200 per cent. In sickness, the consequence of bad and scanty food. A few years back the average number annually of persons received into the prisons was 549; last year it amounted to 722, showing an increase of crime also, as well as want and sickness. There were 5,492 untenanted houses in the town, and 981 unemployed mills. The value of the mills alone amounted to £87,094.

Bolton contained a population of 50,000, and 50 mills capable of giving employment to 8,124 persons. Of the mills, 30 were now idle, and 5,061 of the hands out of employment, or working short time. All trades were at a stand still, or nearly so. In foundation and millwrights, machine makers, carpenters, brick setters, were depressed and without employment; and, consequently, tailors, shoemakers, and such trade man as depended on the prosperity of the manufacturing artisan. The average loss per week to each trade was about £3 40, and some of them lost as much as £320,000 a year, which was nearly £1,000 a day. What could charitable collections do towards relieving those who suffered from this loss of trade? The distress occasioned was not sudden, but had been coming on gradually. And what were the prospects of the winter when even the spring trade brought no revival? We ought to be prepared for the awful distress, which must inevitable take place in the winter. The poor laws were of little avail, and how were we to provide for the subsistence of the awful increase of the poor? Here was a statement which claimed not only the deepest consideration of their lordships, but their deepest commiseration.

REPORT OF DEATHS.

For the week ending September 2, 1842.
Emily Packer, aged 1 year and 11 months; black cancer.
Newman Blodgett, aged 1 year and 27 days; measles.
Teancum Dickson, aged 1 year, 11 months, and two days; fever.
Mary Birkenhead, aged 35 years; quick consumption.
A. A. Atwood, aged 21 years; typhus fever.
A. T. Terrell, aged 25 years; fever.
Betsey E. Duzett, aged 62 years; bloody flux.
Liben C. Wilson, aged 2 years 3 months and 22 days; black cancer.
John Scholes, aged 2 years, 4 months and 16 days; whooping cough.
Total, 9.
W. D. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton.

THAT'S WICKED.

The abolition convention of Cazenovia, N. Y. passed the following resolution: "Resolved, That he who refrains from joining the Liberty Party, because it is

WEATHER.—The weather during the past week has been excessively warm. The thermometer ranging as high as 93° in the shade, so hot our ideas melt like wax.

For the Wasp.

Mr. Editor:—

I have noticed, of late, in some of the public prints, articles to the following import:—that I had renounced 'Mormonism,' left Nauvoo, &c.

That the public mind may be rightly informed upon these matters, I hereby certify, that I have not been absent from Nauvoo during twenty-four hours, at any one time, since I returned from my English mission, which was upwards of one year ago. Neither have I renounced the church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, but believe that its doctrine, which has been extensively published both in America and Europe, is pure and according to the scriptures of eternal truth, and merits the candid investigation of all lovers of righteousness. There is something in truth that recommends itself to the consciences of all noble-minded, good men. They see its beauty—its wisdom—its power, and its glory, and, in line, there is something in it which seems to whisper that 'God is there.' Therefore, it is to be hoped that that indelicacy of feeling which is so characteristic of the American public, may yet inspire thousands to investigate our principles, which cannot but result in the full conviction of their truth.

The lustre of truth cannot be dimmed by the shadows of error and falsehood. Neither will the petty difficulties existing among its votaries weaken its influence or destroy its power. Its course is onward to accomplish the purposes of its great Author in relation to the happiness and salvation of the human family.

Nauvoo, Sept. 2nd 1842.

OREON PRATT.

Nauvoo, Aug. 27th, 1842.

Editor of the Wasp.

Dear Sir: I am fully authorized by my daughter, Nancy, to say to the public through the medium of your paper, that the letter which has appeared in the Sangamo Journal, making part of General Bennett's letters to said paper, purporting to have been written by Mr. Joseph Smith to her, was unauthorized by her, and that she never said to Gen. Bennett or any other person, that said letter was written by said Mr. Smith, nor in his hand writing, but by another person, and in another person's hand writing. She further wishes me to say, that she never at any time authorized Gen. Bennett to use her name in the public papers, as he has done, which has been greatly to the wounding of her feelings, and she considers the obtruding of her name before the public in the manner in which it has been done, to say the least of it, is a flagrant violation of the rules of gallantry, and cannot avoid to insult her feelings, which she wishes the public to know. I would further state that Mr. Smith denied to me the authorship of that letter.

SIDNEY RIGDON.

P. S. I wish the Sangamo Journal and all papers that have copied Bennett's letters to copy this also, as an act of justice to Miss Rigdon. S. R.

N. T. CE.

Marquis F. Damon, left his home in Ray co. Mo., April 23, 1840, and since that time his friends have not seen or heard from him. He was going to Springfield Illinois, to remain two or three months, and then return directly home.

Mr. Damon was originally from the vicinity of Boston Mass., where Mrs. Fanny Wenn, a sister of his now resides. She may be able to give me good news of him or confirm my worst fears. His long absence has been the cause of much anxiety, lest he may have died by some lingering disease, or been the victim of a dreadful calamity.

If his relatives see this, it is hoped that they will write me, at this place, and if any who know him or his present situation or what his lot may have been, will give me intelligence, it will be most gratefully received.

Papers will please insert the above and by so doing, much oblige a bereaved widow.

LALRA ANN DAMON.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. Aug. 10th 1842.

Trouble among the Indians.—It is generally known here, says the Eastern Sentinel, that our Passimogoddy Indians are divided into two political parties, between whom a good deal of acrimonious feeling exists. One party acknowledges as its head 'Governor John Francis,' and professes allegiance to the State of Maine, the other party denies Francis' authority, and acknowledges as its head, Neptune, and on a former occasion swore fidelity to the Governor of New Brunswick. Between these two parties a pitched battle was fought on the glorious fourth, in which Francis' party got well drubbed. A week or two afterwards, they sent up the river, and mustered some more belonging to the party, and took the opportunity, when the Governor and most of his men were off hunting porpoises, to cut down the flag staff and burn it. The trouble is not yet over.

Pictures.—At a meeting of the Royal Geographical Society in London recently, the chairman stated some interesting facts on a subject which would probably soon be brought before the notice of the society. It was, that a gentleman employed by government, had, in ascending the river Juba, in Africa, from East to West, fallen in with a considerable tract of country inhabited by a curious race of pigmies, not exceeding four feet in height, with very curious views of religion and government, and exactly resembling the type of Herodotus, which singularly confirmed some opinions on the subject recently brought before the notice of the Aborigines' Protection Society.

Wood, the Confectioner.—This person, whose tragic history is so well known, sailed for England in the British Queen on Sunday. He was accompanied by his wife and youngest son.

The paragraph from the Express should have been headed Wood, the Murderer. It will be remembered that the 'tragic history' alluded to, is the history of the murder of his own daughter, because she married against his consent, and he could no longer make money by her services as an attendant on his shop.

Selection and Rape.—We find the following in the Albany Microscope of Saturday:—

The Police office was crowded on Wednesday morning with the usual audience, made up of the rag-tag and red flannel bob-tail of the suburbs of creation. Suddenly the bar was cleared of all but those who had business within it, and a fine appearing, but pale and anxious looking girl was called upon the witness's stand. She made a complaint of K—v H—n, of Troy, a young man of wealth, and 'respectable connexions,' of course, for taking advantage of her situation, she being a fatherless, motherless and friendless girl, who, from her early age upon the stage of life, to pick her way among its dark and winding by-paths alone and unaided, and basely, fiendishly whispering in her ears the honeyed words that fall like oil from the tongue of the seducer, burn like the fires of hell in the soul, and forcing from her all that makes life worth preserving.

He seduced her in the house of his brother in New York, in whose family she lived in the capacity of a nurse or seamstress, and having accomplished her ruin, immediately left that city for Troy, thinking himself safe, and beyond the reach of the consequences of his damning villany.

But even the orphan and friendless are not wholly helpless. She was taken alarmingly ill, and in this state revealed to her physician and the female members of the watch's family, her condition.—Her sister, a resident of Troy, was written to, and by her advice the poor girl went to that city, her former home, and soon after entered a complaint in this city against her destroyer, and arraigned him on the charge of rape.

Her testimony was clear and conclusive, and the fact that he used force and accomplished his foul and wicked purpose fully established. As the act was committed in New York, nothing more could be done here than to take the deposition of the girl, and hold the young man to bail to appear before a criminal tribunal in New York.

He was held to bail in the sum of one thousand dollars.

Heaven grant that justice will deal with him according to his deserts.

ATTENTION FIRST CORPS.—The officers of the 1st Corps of Nauvoo Legion, are hereby notified that an election will be held at the office of Gen. Ft. Smith on Thursday the 15th inst. at 10 o'clock, A. M. for the purpose of electing a brigadier General for said Corps.

WILSON CLAW.

Major General.

Nauvoo, Sept. 1st, 1842.

A lady was robbed of a gold watch, in Philadelphia, on Monday, on her way to a jeweler's, in Market street, where she intended to leave it for repairs. It had stopped, and she wanted it to go.—It went.—N. Y. Aurora.

But not on tick.

Bunker Hill Monument finished.—The cap stone of the Bunker Hill Monument was laid on the 23d of July, which completes this magnificent work that was commenced seventeen years ago. This stone was laid in the presence of the Directors of the Monument Association, and a number of citizens. As the clock struck six a signal gun was fired by the Charlestown artillery, and the steam power for raising the stone was immediately applied. One of the superintendents went up on the stone which bore also the American flag. In sixteen minutes the stone reached the top of the Monument, and was laid in cement, when a national salute announced that the Monument was finished. The corner stone of this Monument was laid on the 17th of June, 1825, the anniversary of the battle, in presence of Lafayette, at the time of his last visit to this country, and a large number of revolutionary soldiers, with a great concourse of citizens.—Ex. pip.

STEAMERS. The last London papers contain a description of the great iron steamship 'Great Britain,' intended to trade between Bristol and New York. Her length is 325 feet, width across the beam 51 feet, depth 33 feet, burden, 3,600 tons register, 1,000 horse power, 6 masts with excellent sleeping accommodation for 560 passengers. 380 persons can dine in the principal saloon. She will carry 1,000 tons of coal, and have a crew of 130 men. She is fitted with Smith's Archimedean screw, upon which some further improvements have been made by the company.

FRENCH Steamers.—The New York Journal of Commerce says, 'The arrival of the French war steamer "Le Gomer" in our waters is an interesting occurrence.' But the errand on which she comes is yet more interesting, and has more national importance in it. The eight commissioners she brought are now at Washington, endeavouring to induce our government to make arrangements for an international commerce on a grander scale than has hitherto been contemplated. France has built or is building, sixty steamers, which will be employed to augment her force in war, and to carry on a rapid commercial intercourse in peace. All her navy yards, as at Rochefort, Brest, Cherbourg, and Toulon, are now busy with the preparations for this marine. The places which are to be visited by this commerce are numerous and distant from each other; probably the same that Le Gomer, in her pioneering errand, is now passing to. Le Gomer will remain at New York about a month, and will then go to New Orleans, Martinique, Havana, and even to twenty-eight different stopping places. Her stops at these places will generally be short in proportion to their importance, or the business the commissioners may have to perform at each of them. Her regular armament is 30 guns, whereas now she carries only 10, each 30 pounders. She has but 138 men on board now, whereas her full complement is 240. Her Paixhans and the rest of her cannon were disembarked at Rochefort.'

MARRIED.—On the 23rd inst. by the Rev. Rodolphus Weston, Mr. Charles Mann to Miss Eliza A. Stigall of Carthage Hancock county Ill.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT ILLINOIS,
August 15th, 1842.

WE the undersigned officers of the State, being of opinion that there will be a great loss by receiving the bills of the State Bank of Illinois and branches in payment of the revenue of the State and of the different counties in the State for the year 1842, and in payment of college, school and seminary debts and interest, do hereby prohibit the reception of said bills for the purposes aforesaid after the 12th day of September next until otherwise provided by law.

Given under our hands the day and year above written.

TH S CARLIN Gov.

JAS. SHIELDS Auditor.

MILTON CARPENTER Treas.

All the publishers of newspapers in this State are requested to publish the above notice for three successive weeks and send their bills for the same to the Auditor's office.

JAS SHIELDS, Auditor.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of William Carter of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that William Carter of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of the said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 19th day of Aug. A. D. 1842.

RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for Petitioner.

J. F. Owings, Clerk. no20 2w.

GROCERIES.

STARNES & SPRINGER inform the customers and the merchants generally of Nauvoo, that they have a large assortment of Groceries on hand which they offer very cheap. Any orders sent to them will be punctually attended to, and goods put at the lowest price. No. 4 Water St., St. Louis, Sept 3, 1842. no20 3m.

NEIBAUER, SURGEON DENTIST.

IN returning his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo, Hancock county in general, for their patronage since his arrival in this place, and solicits a continuance of their favor. Every branch of surgical dentistry, skillfully and carefully performed. Reference can be given if required. Teeth inserted at $2 a tooth; charges strictly moderate; all manner of produce taken; also wood, labour on the temple; cash not refused.

HURRAH FOR THE NAUVOO MATCH MANUFACTORY.

This article is superior to any that has been offered in the eastern or western market. Store keepers will find them preferable to any they have had; they can be had at the house of Mr. Neibaur, S. D.

Nauvoo, Aug. 31, 1842.

no20 3w.

NOTICE.

THE undersigned have recently commenced the leather manufaturing business in all its various branches; also the shoe and glove making business. We wish the citizens and vicinity to give us their patronage, as we offer to the public to tan on skins both upper and sole leather; also morocco and deer skins dressed in the neatest manner, and fur dressing. We will also pay the highest prices for all kinds of hides and skins; tan works near Carley St. about one mile east of the river.

R. R. BENTLEY & J. FIELD.

Nauvoo, Sept. 3, 1842.

no20 3a.

NOTICE.

BEFF, in my care, in the Month of April last off the Steam Boat A-py, one trunk, with a label directed to Miss Elizabeth Stouard, Montrose, Iowa; the owner is requested to prove property, pay charges and take the same away, or it will be sold to pay said charges. An advertisement of said trunk is in the store of Mr. Peck, at this time.

S. H. BURTIS.

Montrose, Sept. 2, 1842.

no20 4c.

A Lamp.—We have recently examined the newly constructed lamp for burning lard, invented and patented by Mr. F. H. Southworth. It emits a clear and brilliant flame equal to the best sperm oil, and will, we think, prove the great saving of expense in producing light and come into universal use. Lard of any description can be used in this lamp and will be a saving over and above the ordinary price of oil, of seventy-five per cent, at least. It requires no more care or attention than any other lamp. The wick ignites readily, and they are furnished at very moderate prices: recommendations sufficient to commend them to the attention of every housekeeper. They are for sale at Mr. William Brown's Drug store, 418 Washington street, who is ready at all times to give any further information respecting them that may be required.

NEW POST OFFICE LAW.

A Bill is now before Congress, which should it become a law, will very materially change the present law regulating Post-Offices and Postage. A correspondent of the New York Express says the bill will probably pass both houses, if the adjournment of Congress does not cut off its consideration.

The Bill proposes that the rates of postage be conformed to federal currency—the postage on a single letter for a distance not exceeding 30 miles to be five cents—every letter conveyed over thirty miles and not exceeding 150 miles, shall pay ten cents—over 150 miles, and not exceeding 300 miles, 15 cents—over 300 miles, and not exceeding 500 miles twenty cents; over 500 miles twenty-five cents.

Another important provision in the Bill, is the regulation of newspaper postage. All newspapers are to be subjected to letter postage except those sent directly from the office of the publisher. The size of newspapers is also limited. All newspapers exceeding a size, are subjected to an extra postage of one cent for every five square inches, beyond the specified limitation. Several other important regulations in the conveyance of letters are proposed in the bill.

A MAJESTIC FLOWER.—In a late number of the Petersburg Statesman, we find a description of a flower tree which is found in the interior of Ceylon and may be considered as a wonderful curiosity, excelling in beauty and grandeur all other plants in the vegetable kingdom.—The body of the tree is sixty feet high and straight as a ship's mast, without limb or leaf: but supporting at the top an immense tuft of leaves, each of which is ten or twelve feet long. The stalks of these leaves clasp the body of the tree and incline outward, the long leaves bending over in a graceful curve. This vast crown of evergreens is of itself very grand, but when the tree is about fifty years old, there rises from its centre a cone several feet in height, which gradually enlarges, until at length it bursts with a loud explosion, and a vast, brilliant, golden colored flower, twelve feet in diameter, appears over the elevated tuft of leaves as a gorgeous diadem on the head of this queen of the forest. The tree never blooms but once, and does not long survive this grand display of magnificence.

ARRESTED.—Joseph Boyle, charged with the murder of Rufus Sewall, at Shreveport on the evening of the 5th of June, has been arrested. He was taken near the Texan line. The 500 dollars offered for his apprehension has been paid over.

The Picayune from which the above is taken says further that, on the night of the 20th, three men broke open the jail and shot Boyle's brains out. They then took refuge in a house whither they were pursued by a mob. The leader among the three on attempting to escape was shot—the other two capitulated and were thrown into prison. This is the way Law is administered in that region.

A person well paid—taking the cash. The income of the Archbishop of Canterbury, is stated to be £41,000 a year, which makes £789 9s. 2d. per week, £112 6s. 6d. per day, and £4 13s. 6d. per hour, reckoning 24 hours to the day. (This is at the rate of about one hundred dollars for every three hours of breath the Archbishop draws. What a charge for working his own lungs, and living! If we deduct for his sleeping eight hours—for his eating four hours—(and this is very little, for a high feeding Englishman usually sits four hours at his dinner table)—for exercise and recreation, four hours—it would take our parson the remainder of his twenty-four hours to receive and count his cash, without leaving him a minute to say his prayers. Archbishops, however, manage money and divine matters for the most part by deputy, and in this way gain time for many little secular employments, which we have not taken into our estimate of occupations which cost the people so dear. —[Globe.]

CURIOUS CLOCK.—The most curious thing in the cathedral of Lubec is a clock of singular construction and very high antiquity. It is calculated to answer astronomical purposes, representing the place of the sun and the moon in the ecliptic, the moon's age, a perpetual almanac, and many other contrivances. The clock, as an inscription sets forth, was placed in the church upon Candlemas-day, in 1405. Over the face of it, appears an image of the Saviour, and on either side of the image are folding doors, so constructed as to fly open every day, when the clock strikes twelve. At this hour, a set of figures representing the twelve apostles, come from the door on the left hand of the image, and pass by, in review before it, each figure making its obeisance, by bowing as it passes that of the Saviour, and afterwards entering the doors on the right hand. When the procession terminates, the doors close. —[Clarks Travels in Scandinavia.]

A TERRIFIC SCENE.—A correspondent of the Lancaster Intelligencer states that he was present at a Camp Meeting in the lower end of York co., on Sunday, the 24th ultimo, and that between 11 and 12 o'clock in the evening there was a thunder storm, which, for rain and lightning, and loud thunder, he says he never heard equalled. The lightning struck into the camp, and killed three horses dead on the spot, besides stunning a number of the persons present on the occasion. The scene he describes is one of the most terrific and awful; the shrieks of the women, the neighing of the horses, and the successive peals of thunder, preceded by the most vivid sheets of lightning, made the whole spectacle one of great and awful sublimity. No person was hurt.

FROM TEXAS.—Galveston dates to the 27th ult. have been received at New Orleans. Congress adjourned on the 23d. An act was passed authorising offensive war against Mexico; but it was voted by President Houston on the ground that the Republic had not means to carry on such a war and that Congress had no authority under the Constitution for such a measure. It is said, however, that the Veto is merely a ruse to deceive the Mexicans; for active preparations are still going on, the squadron has been sent to sea, and Congress has made ample appropriations for its outfit and support. A bill authorising the President to sell or mortgage 400,000 acres of the Cherokee lands, will tend to raise the credit of Texas. A bill to regulate the collection of duties, and to receive specie or its equivalent in exchange bills, is of great importance.

TWO FARMS TO RENT.

FOR rent, two farms adjoining each other containing each about one hundred acres of land under cultivation, and situated on Bear Creek, near Knolton's. They will be rented on reasonable terms, and immediate possession given. The Stock on the farms and all necessary farming utensils will either be sold or let to the renter if desired.

ROBERT JOHNSTON.

Apply to John E. Johnston, Warsaw.
Aug. 27, 1842. no19-3w.

MEAL, FLOUR,

AND PROVISIONS OF EVERY KIND,
WANTED ON TITHING.

THE brethren abroad will remember that those who devote the whole of their time to work on the Temple must be fed; they cannot live and work without provisions, and we are growing very scarce; and especially so with regard to MEAL and FLOUR. Those, therefore, who have the above articles, and intend to consecrate such on their tithing, will please forward them immediately to Nauvoo.

W. RICHARDS, Recorder
for the Temple.

Nauvoo, June 18th 1842. 10-1f.

NOTICE.

WHEREAS my wife Casander J. Whiting eloped my bed and board about one year ago, without any just cause or provocation, and has not returned; this is, therefore, to forbid all persons trusting her or my account, as I shall pay no debts of her contracting.

NATHANIEL WHITING.

Nauvoo, Aug. 10, 1842. 47-3w.

WINDOW SASH.

WE, carpenters, builders, &c., of the city of Nauvoo, recommend H. Hammond's patent upper and improved lower window sash springs, as a very superior article.

W. Weeks, principal carpenter of Temple,
L. Woodworth, do do Nauv. H's,
R. Hadlock, J. W. Coolidge,
L. Tulle, M. Rainey,
H. Riding.

All windows should be made narrow, high and with parting beads.

For the proper ventilation of a room, it is absolutely necessary to lower the upper sash.

These springs are warranted not to loose their elasticity or break, have points for preserving the notches in the sash, directions for selecting the appropriate sizes and properly putting them into windows.

For sale, wholesale and retail, at several of the hardware stores in St. Louis, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, &c. See a window with these springs in operation at Mr. Mills' Masonic Hall.

Nauvoo, Aug. 13, 1842. 17-ly.

NOTES

DUE the Trustee for labor on the Temple, are left with the Temple Committee for collection. Brethren, remember that your contracts with your God are sacred; the labor is wanted immediately.

W. RICHARDS,
Temple Recorder.

June 25, 1842. 10-1f.

P. S. Remember the notes due for property also.

LOOK HERE! LOOK HERE!!

WANTED, at the Nauvoo Foundry, a quantity of Stone corl; any persons wishing to furnish it, will please call on Hiram Kimball, or Geo. W. Robinson, at the Post Office.

Old castings will be taken in exchange for new.
Nauvoo, June 13th 1842. 10-1f.

NOTICE.

The Stock Holders, of the Nauvoo Agricultural and Manufacturing Association, are hereby notified, that a meeting for the election of Trustees, will be held at Gen. Hyrum Smith's office, on the first Monday in September next, at 4 o'clock P. M.

E. ROBINSON Secretary.
Nauvoo, August 13, 1842,

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus
J. Salsbery, Plymouth.
Harow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Chiffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Pag, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
James Curtis, Horners Town.
W. I. Appleby, Recless Town.
Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Salem.
Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapier.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirt and.

NEW YORK.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.
L. R. Foster, city of New York.

TRAVELING AGENTS.
Hiram Kimball.

DR. J. F. WEL D.

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.
Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

DRUGS, MEDICINES, &c.

THE subscriber has opened a Drug Store in Nauvoo, and intends keeping a full assortment of every thing in that line.—Paints, Oils, Varnish, Brushes, Turpentine, Linseed, Sperm, Olive, and Castor Oil; white Lead, red and black Lead, Vermillion, Prussian Blue, Litharge, Chrome green and yellow, venecian red, spanish brown, lampblack, ivory black, whitening, chalk, yellow ochre, dye stuffs, indigo, cochineal, annatto, madder, copperas, alum, oil vitriol, blue vitriol, logwood, brazilwood, &c., &c.; stationary, plain and ruled cap and letter paper, ink, wafers, quills, sand, &c.; window-glass of all sizes, salicratus, putty, spices, glass ware, perfumery, soaps, stuf, rosin, matches, blacking, every thing in the medicine line, all the patent medicines; all of which will be sold low for cash; Van Suddiford's ague and fever pills, also his medicated lozenges, and cough, worm, and carbaritic lozenges, are constantly on hand.

Store on water street above Davis' Hotel.

A. T. TERRELL.

July 23, 1842.

AGUE AND FEVER.

Gleim's tonic mixture and Dr. Renals' pills; two certain cures for that inveterate pest, the chills and fever.—for sale by.

July 23, 1842.

A. T. TERRELL.

BEE-SWAX.

The highest price in cash will be paid for Beeswax, by (16 m 3) A. T. TERRELL

MEDICAL NOTICE.

DR. W. B. BRINK.

Respectfully tenders his professional services to the citizens of Nauvoo, and its vicinity, as a botanic practitioner, having adopted the botanic practice from a positive conviction of the truth of its doctrines, and the unrivaled success which attends the practice; and hopes to give general satisfaction and prove the superior efficacy of the botanic treatment to those who may place themselves under his care; also a number of valuable preparations of his own compounding; such as anti-bilious pills peculiarly serviceable in dyspepsia, bilious fever, &c; restorative bitters, pulmonary balsom, cough syrup, rheumatic liniment, neutralizing cordial; this is one of the most valuable preparations known for cholery morbus, cholery infantum, or summer complaints of children, fever ague and cancers, will be treated upon the principle of no cure no pay and those afflicted with cancers will do well to call and try a remedy which has never failed; and those who are not able to pay will be cured without charge.

Dr. B. is consulted in the most intricate and protracted cases of secret disease that require practical experience to ensure success; every species and form of the disease must yield to his treatment which is in all cases mild and soft, requiring no interruption from business or change of diet, and will treat the disease upon the principle of no cure no pay; office at the store of W. Alen, formerly occupied by Mr. E. D. Wooley.

W. B. BRINK, M. D.

Nauvoo, July 2nd 1842. 12-3m.

BENCH & MOULDING PLANES.

WANTED, immediately, a large number of the above Planes on tithing. The brethren who have got such and can spare them would greatly facilitate the building of the Temple by bringing them as soon as possible to the recorder's office, and they shall be entered to their credit on tithing. All kinds of bench planes whether good or indifferent can be made useful at the Temple. The moulding planes should be such as suit the present fashion.

Also all lumber, which would make plane stocks, would be very serviceable.

JOSEPH SMITH, Trustee.

W. CLAYTON, Clerk.

W. H. RALSTON,

ATTORNEY & COUNSELLOR AT LAW, Carthage, Hancock county, Ill., will practice in the Hancock Circuit court, and also in the Supreme Circuit and District Courts of this State.
Carthage, Aug. 18, 1842. 18-3m

THE

WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 21

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, September 10, 1842.

Whole Number 21.

THE WASP.

EDITED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY

W. M. SMITH,

At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

TERMS—$1.50 invariably in advance.

For the Wasp.

TO WHO NEEDS CONSOLATION.

O can a generous spirit brook,
With feelings of content;
To see an age, distrustful look
On thee, with dark intent!

I feel thy woes—my bosom shares,
Thy spirit's agony:—
How can I love a heart that dares Suspect thy purity?

I'll smile on all, that smile on thee
As angels do above—
All who in pure sincerity
Will love thee, I will love.

Believe me, thou hast noble friends
Who feel and share thy grief;
And many a fervent prayer ascends
To heav'n, for thy relief.

E.

CHASM IN THE PRAIRIES.

The last number of Kendall's interesting sketches of incidents connected with his Santa Fe Expedition is as follows:

The morning of the 3d September broke bright and cloudless, the sun rising from out the prairie in all his majesty. Singular as it may appear, nearly every shower we had come in the night from the time we left Austin until we reached the Mexican settlements. Again we spent a couple of hours drying our blankets, then saddled up and pursued our journey, and still in a northwest direction.

We had scarcely gone six miles before we suddenly came upon an immense rent or chasm in the earth, far exceeding in depth the one we had so much difficulty in crossing the day before. No one was aware of its existence until we were immediately upon its brink, when a spectacle, exceeding in grandeur any thing we had previously witnessed, came suddenly in view. No a tree or bush, no outline whatever marked its position or course, and we were all lost in amazement and wonder as one by one we left the double-file ranks and rode up to the verge of the yawning abyss.

In depth it could not have been less than eight hundred or a thousand feet, from three to five hundred yards in width, and at the point where we first struck it the sides were nearly perpendicular. A sickly sensation of dizziness was felt by all as we looked down, as it were, into the very depths of the earth. Below an occasional spot of green relieved the eye, and a small stream of water, rising to the view then sinking beneath some huge rock, was bubbling and foaming along. Immense walls, columns in some places that appeared to be arches were seen standing, worn by the water undoubtedly, and so perfect in form that we could with difficulty be brought to believe that the hand of a man was not upon them. The rains of centuries, falling upon an immense prairie, had here found a reservoir, and their workings upon the different veins of earth and stone had formed these strange and fanciful shapes.

Before reaching the chasm we had crossed numerous large trails leading a little more to the west than we were at once convinced that they all centred at a common crossing close by. In this conjecture we were not disappointed, for a trot of half an hour brought us into a large road, the thoroughfare along which millions of Indians, buffalo, and mustangs had travelled for years. Perilous as the descent looked we well knew there was no other near. The lead mule was again started ahead, the steadier and older horses were next driven over the sides, while the more saittish and untractable brought up the rear. Once in the narrow path which led circuitously down the deep descent there was no turning back, and our maddened animals finally reached the bottom in safety. Several large stones were loosed from their fastenings by our men during the frightful descent. They would leap, dash and thunder down the precipitous sides and strike against the bottom far below us with a terrific crash.

We found a running stream at the bottom, and on the opposite side a romantic dell covered with short grass and a few scattering cotton woods. A large body of Indians had encamped on this very spot but a few days previous, the wilted limbs of the trees and other 'signs' showing that they had made it a resting place. We, too, halted a couple of hours, to give our horses an opportunity to graze and rest themselves. The trail which led up on the opposite side was discovered a short distance above us, to the south, winding up the steep and ragged sides of the precipice.

As we journeyed along this dell a' were struck with admiration at the strange and fanciful figures made by the washing of the waters during the rainy season. In some places a perfect wall, formed of reddish clay, were seen standing, and were they any where else it would be impossible to believe that other than the hand of man had formed them. The vein of which these walls were composed, were of even thickness, very hard, and ran perpendicularly; and when the softer sand which had surrounded them were washed away the veins still remained standing upright, in some places one hundred feet high and three or four hundred in length.

Columns, too, were there, and such was their architectural order, and so much of chaste grandeur was there about them that we were lost in wonder and admiration. In other places the breastworks of forts would be plainly visible, then again the frowning turrets of some castle or one of our time. Cumulous pillars of some mighty pile raised to religion or royalty were scattered about, regularity was strangely mixed up with ruin and disorder, and Nature had done it all. Niagara has been considered one of her wildest freaks; but Niagara sinks into insignificance when compared with the wild grandeur of this awful chasm. Imagination carried us back to Thebes, to Palmyra, and to ancient Athens, and we could not help thinking that we were now among their ruins.

Our passage out of this place was effected with the greatest difficulty. We were obliged to carry our rifles, holsters and saddle-bags in our hands, and in clambering up a steep pitch, one of the horses, striking his shoulder against a projecting rock, was precipitated some fifteen or twenty feet directly upon his back. All thought he must be killed by the fall; but singularly enough he rose immediately, shook himself and a second effort in climbing proved more successful—the animal had not received the slightest apparent injury!

By the middle of the afternoon we were all safely across, after spending five or six hours completely shut out from the world. Again we found ourselves upon the level prairie, and on looking back, after proceeding some hundred yards, not a sign of the immense chasm was visible. The waste we were then upon was at least two hundred and fifty miles in width, and the two chasms I have mentioned were the reservoirs and at the same time the conductors of the heavy quantity of rain which falls upon it during the wet season to the running streams. The prairie is undoubtedly the largest in the world, and the chasms are in perfect keeping with the size of the prairie.

At sundown we halted by the side of a water hole and encamped for the night. By this time many of the men were entirely out of provisions, while those who still had a little beef left had saved it by stinging themselves on the previous days. The worst of our sufferings had now commenced.

THE LEFT EYE.

A rich old man who had resided at the extreme of the camp, quite apart from the rest, had three daughters, the youngest of whom, named Kookju, was much distinguished for her beauty, also for her extraordinary wisdom.

One morning, as he was about driving his cattle for sale to the Chan's market place, he asked his daughters to tell him what presents they wished him to bring to them on his return. The two eldest asked him for trinkets; but the handsome and wise Kookju said that she wanted no present, but that she had a request to make which it would be difficult and even dangerous for him to execute. Upon which, the father, who loved her more than the two others, swore that he would do her wish, though it were at the price of his life. 'If it be so,' replied Kookju, 'do as follows: Sell all your cattle except the short tailed ox, and ask no other price for it except the Chan's left eye.' The old man was startled; however, remembering his oath, and confiding in his daughter's wisdom, he resolved to do as she bade him.

After having sold his cattle, and being asked for the price of the short tailed ox, he said that he would sell it for nothing else than the Chan's left eye. The report of this singular and daring request soon reached the ear of the Chan's courtiers.

At first, admonished him not to use such an offensive speech against the Sovereign; but when they found that he persevered in this strange demand, they bound him and carried him as a madman before the Chan. The old man threw himself at the Prince's feet, and confessed that his demand had been made at the request of his daughter, of whose motives he was perfectly ignorant; and the Chan suspecting that some secret must be hidden under this extraordinary request, dismissed the old man, under the condition that he would bring him that daughter who had made it.

Kookju appeared, and the Chan asked—'Why didst thou instruct thy father to demand my left eye?'

'Because I expected, my Prince, that after so strange a request, curiosity would urge thee to send for me.'

'And wherefore dost thou desire to see me?'

'I wish to tell thee a truth important to thyself and thy people.'

'Name it!'

'Prince,' replied Kookju, 'when two persons appear before thee in a cause, the wealthy and noble generally stand on the right hand, while the poor generally stand on the left. I have heard in my solitude that thou most frequently favor the rich and noble. This is the reason why I persuaded my father to ask for thy left eye; it being of no use to thee, since thou never seest the poor and unprotected.'

The Chan incensed and surprised at the daring of this maiden, commanded his court to try her. The court was opened, and the President, who was the eldest Lama, proposed that they should try whether her strange proceedings was the effect of malice or wisdom.

The first step was to send to Kookju a log of wood, cut even on all sides, ordering her to find out which was the root and which was the top. Kookju threw it into the water, and soon found the answer, on seeing the root sinking, while the top rose to the surface.

After which they sent her two snakes, to determine which was a male and which was a female. The wise woman laid them on cotton, and on seeing that one coiled itself in a ring, while the other crept away, she judged that the latter was a male and the former a female.

From these trials the Court was convinced that Kookju had not offended the Chan from motives of malice, but at the inspiration of wisdom granted her from above. But not so the Chan; his vanity was hurt; and he resolved to puzzle her with questions in order to prove that she was not wise. He therefore ordered her before him, and asked—

'On sending a number of maidens into the wood to gather apples, which of them will bring home the most?'

'She,' replied Kookju, 'who, instead of climbing up the trees, remains below, and picks up those which have fallen off from maturity or the shaking of the branches.'

The Chan then led her to a fen, and asked her which would be the readiest way to get over it; and Kookju said, 'To cross it would be fatherest; going round would be the nearest.'

The Chan felt vexed at the readiness and propriety of her replies; and, after having reflected for some time, he again inquired—

'Which is the safest means of becoming known to many?'

'By assisting many that are unknown.'

'Which is the surest means of always leading a virtuous life?'

'To begin every morning with a good resolution, and conclude every evening with a good action.'

'Who is truly wise?'

'He who does not believe himself so.'

'Which are the requisites of a good wife?'

'She should be beautiful as a pea hen, gentle as a lamb, prudent as a mouse, just as a faithful mirror, pure as the scale of a fish; she must mourn for her deceased husband like a she camel, and live in her widowhood like a bird which has lost its wings.'

The Chan was astonished at the wisdom of the fair Kookju; yet enraged at her having reproached him with injuries, he still wished to destroy her.

After a few days he thought he had found the means for attaining his object. He sent for her, and asked her to determine the true worth of all his treasures; after which he promised to absolve her from malice in questioning his justice, and to admit that she was intended as a wise woman even to warn him.

The maiden consented, yet under the condition that the Chan would promise her implicit obedience to her commands for four days. She requested that he would eat no food during that time. On the last day she placed a dish of meat before him, and said, 'Confess, oh Chan, that all thy treasures are not worth as much as this joint of meat.' The Chan was so struck with the truth of her remark, that he confessed the truth of it acknowledged her as wise; married her to his son, and permitted her constantly to remind him to use his Left Eye.

SECOND ATTEMPT.

The second attempt, made last week to arrest Joseph Smith, shows how much force, and how the matter had dropped for the present, as some of the news papers stated, after the first attempt failed. After a trial that has been done and said by the State of Missouri, the matter begins to assume all the signs of the old Jackson county mob regular, as follows:

"We, the undersigned, citizens of Jackson county, believing that an important crisis is at hand, as regards our civil society, in consequence of a pretended religious sect of people, that have settled and are still settling in our county, styling themselves Mormons; and intending as we do to rid our society, peacefully if we can, forcibly if we must; and believing as we do, that the arm of the civil law does not afford us a guarantee, or at least a sufficient one, against the evils which are now inflicted upon us, and seem to be increasing by the said religious sect; deem it expedient and of the highest importance, to form ourselves into a company for the better and easier accomplishment of our purpose; a purpose which we deem it almost superfluous to say, is justified as well by the law of nature as by the law of self-preservation."

Boggs was Lieut. Governor, and lived at the time, in Jackson county, and when the text came, Col. Pitcher swore that Boggs gave him orders to take away the Mormon's arms and drive them from the county.

This second attempt to make assurance doubly sure, had a requisition from the Governor of the Territory of Iowa, and we suppose Ex Governor, or Senator Boggs, we should say, must have sworn that Joseph Smith had fled from justice in Missouri to Iowa. O tempora! O mores! Degenerate and corrupt must be the heart, which, after murdering innocent women and children, shooting a man down with his own gun, and cutting him to pieces with a corn cutter, under an order of extermination;—and three years after, take the advantage of swearing from State to State, to murder more. Could Boggs transport Joseph Smith to Missouri, how many more would have to fall under the same juggernaut?

REFUTATION.

We ask, as a favor and an act of courtesy and justice, that all papers which have published the account that the Mormons were laying in ammunition to resist the law, &c., will refute it by stating that nothing of the kind happened in Nauvoo—no ammunition, save a small quantity of blasting powder, has been purchased.—there is not probably enough in the city to kill the game in one cornfield,—no law has been resisted, nor will be, though several suspicious 'officers' have been lurking round and several offences committed, nobody knows who by. No Joseph Smith has been taken to Missouri to be murdered; no troops have been sent here to 'take him dead or alive,' as one of the Governor's officers boasted he would do; no Nauvoo Legion has been called out, nor will be, except by order of the Governor or President. No whispering in company. Come out, gentlemen, and refute your lies and then the world will know your love for the truth. Honor bright! The Mormon motto is, mind your own business—you can't catch a weazel asleep.

Dr. Bennett, the late Mormon General and Mayor of the holy city of Nauvoo, in disclosing the revelations of the prophet Smith, winds up one of his chapters with the following precious morceau:

"If Jo Smith is not destined for the devil, all I can say is that the duties of a devil have not been clearly understood."

And if Jo is destined for the devil, wonder where Bennett is destined for—the citizens of Larnesville in Boone county, and those also of McClellanville, Morgan county, among whom this Bennett has lived, will certify that he is a bad man as he charges Jo Smith with being—in holiness as well as moral depravity of every character.—[Larnesville Aurora.]

This comes to the point and shows off the 'armor bearer' of his satanic majesty, directly from home! Well be it said that James Gordon Bennett, of the New York Herald, has undertaken to swallow a raw hog trotter whole—for a groat—just as much as his father sold his king for.

"NAUVOO."—This famous Island, which has for ages done so much to enlighten the world, was thrown into a blaze last week by an irruption of Anti-Slavery, Anti-Sabbath, Anti-Church, Anti-Prison, and non-resistance martyrs, headed by Garrison in person. They called a meeting at the Athenaeum, but they were astonished to find that it was a place where stones and brick-bats were constantly coming in at the windows, and so the meeting broke up in confusion. Next day they applied for the Friends' meeting house, but were answered no. They then sent around the city to call a meeting at the Town Hall; but the select men hearing the crier, shut up his mouth, and the Hall too.—Finding no rest in any public place, Garrison cooped his company up in a cooper's shop, and there demonstrated his great doctrines. The whole artillery of rotten eggs, and such like things, was entirely exhausted during the 'three days.' Certainly the principles of the devotees could not have been put to a severer test, than by such a reception in such a place. They bore the persecution patiently, and so did what they could to dishonor their assailants; but Garrison has sunk too low to be raised again, even by persecuting mobs.—[Journal of Com.]

We copy the above to show how exalted the Presbyter and David Hale and Gerard Hallowell's hearts have become to the laws. Instead of that virtue and dignity which gave our country a character at home and abroad, once, we now find an account of three days' mob can be gashed over, or 'daubed with rotten eggs'—and passed as common news: Alas for our country! No preference is made of virtue over vice.

RHODE ISLAND.—We learn from the Providence Chronicle of the 22nd inst., that Governor Hubbard, of New Hampshire, has refused to give up Mr. Dorr, upon the requisition of Gov. King, for a warrant to arrest Thomas W. Dorr, now in the State of New Hampshire. Gov. Hubbard respectfully, but firmly and decidedly, declined to obey the requisition, and stated to Gov. Arnold that he would forward, by mail, his reasons for so declining, addressed to 'Samuel W. King, acting Governor of Rhode Island.' We understand that Gov. Arnold was well treated by the authorities of New Hampshire, though he was in respectful language told that he did not represent the legal Governor of Rhode Island. There is, of course, much anxiety to see Gov. Hubbard's letter justifying his course.

The above, from one of our exchanges, shows that some Governors can feel the oppression of Executive authority and evade it, whether Mormonism or stretch of power is at the bottom.—Go it, fellow freemen. A bridle for an ass, a rod for a fool's back, and the earth for the meek.

OLDEN TIME.—In looking over an old history of New England, we find on turning to the appendix, an abridgement of the laws and ordinances of olden time. We make a few extracts, for the curiosity of our readers.

Apparel. All persons not worth two hundred pounds, wearing gold or silver lace, or buttons, or bone lace, above two shillings a yard, or silk hoods, or scarfs, may be presented by the grand jury, and shall pay ten shillings for every offence.

Children. All parents to teach their children to read, and all masters to acquaint their families with the capital laws, on penalty of twenty shillings, and to catechise them once a week. It is death for any child, above 16 years of age, to strike or curse his parents, unless provoked by extreme correction, or in their own defence.

One of our exchange papers gives the above, and we copy it because the same ordinances are actually needed in almost every town in our country. Pride and poverty, and impudence, and ignorance, have cut a wide swath through the meadows of freedom, and disgrace and disappointment have to rake after—ex necessitate rei.

Sharp's brethren of the Quincey Whig—wishing to drive from the State, for sport, the Mormons en masse, to obtain a satanic name like Missouri, for mobocracy, murder and plunder, are referred to a sheet of affidavits for the character of their detestable paramour, Miss Brotherton. Her virtue, or their honor, like the sailor's marlinspike, is not lost when we know where it is.—While the vessel was running at the rate of ten knots an hour, it fell overboard, and we cut a notch on the railing, to mark the place where it fell over.

WEATHER, SHOWERS AND HEALTH.—Warm weather, plentiful showers, and a common measure of health, have been our lot and portion the past week. It is a good thing that the Lord blesses us whether the people do or not.

The papers say an author in St. Louis, is preparing a Farce, to be performed at the St. Louis Theatre, with the title of 'Mormonism.'

Suppose the said author should so write a tragedy, with the title 'Burning a Negro alive in 1835.'

From the Boston Transcript. AN ARREST AT PROVIDENCE.

The Providence Journal of this morning states that a man named Timothy Haskins, of Kaene N. H. was yesterday arrested, charged with attempting to incite insurrection. He was first noticed in Woonsocket, where, from several circumstances, he excited suspicion, and whence he was followed to Providence, and arrested while he was in a carriage. He was brought before Edward H. Hazard, Esq. and on complaint, a warrant was issued, charging him with an attempt to excite insurrection in the State, and with being the bearer of a communication from Thomas W. Dorr, to certain persons intended to excite rebellion. He said that he came from New Hampshire, and was the bearer of a letter from Thos. W. Dorr to William Simons, editor of the Herald, and another from Welcome B. Sayles to his brother. He said that he had no other business here than the delivery of these letters.

His baggage had been left at the railroad depot, and was sent for, fearing that it might be carried away in the cars.—When it was brought in, he said that the trunk and coat were his, but declined to say whether the carpet bag was or was not his. He declined to answer any questions, until he had advised with Counsel. Gen. Carpenter was sent for, and appeared for the prisoner. Mr. Simon's sent for the letter which he had received from Dorr, and read it to the Magistrate, in another room. It was quite a long document. It is reported that this communication states his determination to persevere in his attempts to establish his constitution, but that he should rely upon a democratic Congress to aid him. The examination had not been concluded at 11 o'clock last night.

Upon reading the above, we could not refrain from a remark, just as the United States has arrived to the age of maturity, her children have rushed into the vigor of vengeance, and the laurel which cost a many noble patriot's life, are now exchanging for weeds that, ere long, will choke the government. The end is nigh.

Report of deaths, for the week ending on Friday the 9th inst.

Fanny M. Huntington, aged 4 years; dropsey on the brain.

Rodolphus E. Knight, 11 months; quick consumption.

Enoch Stephenson, aged 4 years; fit of apoplexy.

Edward Thompson, 76 years; fever.

Warren Horr, 17 years, consumption.

Mary Ann Hendrixson, aged 24 years; consumption.

Marthy C. Durby, aged 1 year; canker.

Total 7.

W. D. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton.

COMMUNICATED.

There will be a celebration of the Plymouth Washingtonian Temperance Society, held in a grove near Plymouth, on the 30th inst., and 1st of October, commencing at 2 o'clock P. M., of the 30th. The public are respectfully requested to attend on that occasion, as it is expected that a number of speakers will be in attendance from a distance, together with the Rushville Band of music.

Plymouth, Sept. 6th 1842.

ATTENTION.

The officers, non-commissioned officers, and Band of the Nauvoo Legion, are hereby ordered to appear at the usual place of parade, at nine o'clock A. M. on Friday the 23 inst., uniformed, armed, and equipped as the law directs. The commanders of Regiments are hereby ordered to make return of the non-commissioned officers of their respective Regiments, to the War Secretary, before the hour for Parade. The chief musician is also ordered to make a return of the members of the Band and Martial Music, to the War Secretary, before said hour for parade.

A. P. ROCKWOOD,

Brev. Major Genl. and Drill Officer.

JAMES SLOAN, War Sec of the Nauv. Legion.
Nauvoo, Ill. Sept. 9th 1842.

CURIOUS APPEARANCE OF THE EARTH.—Clayton recently made a successful ascension in a balloon from Columbus. Among the remarks in his journal of the aerial trip, we were struck by the following:

From the questions that I am frequently asked, an idea seems to exist with many that aeronauts lose sight of the earth when at great heights. This is a mistake: they never do, except when clouds intervene or night appears.—On the contrary, the earth is always like an immense concave map, painted different colors, which designate not the different township or counties, as the coloring of maps generally do, but the various products of the soil. That the earth, which in reality is convex, should appear to the aeronaut to be concave, may at first seem strange to many, but a moment's reflection will render it clear. His horizon is frequently upwards of a hundred miles from him. Draw a right-angle triangle, and make the base line fifty or sixty times as long as the perpendicular, hypotenuse and base will then be nearly in the same line. The horizon appears to the aeronaut to be on a perfect level with the ear of the balloon; but the part of the earth directly underneath him seems at a great distance from him; consequently the whole surface of his scene must appear concave.

CAPTAIN AND CREW MURDERED.—The brig Harriet, Champion, at this port from the Coast of Africa, reports that on the 26th April the schooner Mary Carver, Farwell, of Plymouth, Me., was captured by the natives of Barbero, and the captain, mate and crew murdered in consequence of a dispute between the natives and the captain. We have been informed by the mate of the Harriet, that one of the seamen attempted to escape by going aloft, but was brought down and his brains knocked out with a handspike. After the capture of the schooner, they informed the captain of their intention to kill him; when he implored them in vain to spare his life; they tied a large stone around his neck, conveyed him some distance from the shore, and then threw him into the sea. The captain has a wife and two children in some part of Massachusetts.—[Baltimore Republican.]

A STORY OF CRIME AND WOE.

Six years ago a wealthy and influential widower of forty-five named MR. McC—, of Chelsea, Vt., hired an amiable and beautiful girl of eighteen named Mary T—to assume the care of his children and household. A few months after, they were seen to ride away together, and in the next Woodstock paper appeared an announcement that they had been married at that place, by an Episcopal clergyman. They returned as man and wife, and have so lived until a short time since, when Mr. McC—dismissed the unfortunate woman from his house, alleging that they had never been married. Whether she had been utterly deceived by a sham marriage, or had consented to a decoit in order to save herself from inevitable shame, cannot now be ascertained.

The poor victim, driven in disgrace from the house in which she had so long been regarded as a virtuous wife, and thus rendered an outcast from society, dared not return to her relatives; she went elsewhere and procured employment; but the finger of scorn was pointed at her, and in whatever company she found herself alone—fallen, loathed and shunned. She could not endure this; and returned at length by night to the house of her destroyer and begged piteously for shelter and protection, declaring that she had wandered long without food and was starving. At length the door was opened to her, from a dread of attracting the attention of the neighborhood. She was fed and lodged away, with strict orders never to show herself there again. She left; but where could she go? All day she wandered in the woods and ledges adjacent; and in the night, faint and shivering, she crept back to the only place where she could justly claim protection, and cried for a home. She was repelled; but the noise aroused neighbors, who insisted that she should be allowed a shelter. It was agreed that she might stay that night, but should leave in the morning, a neighbor agreeing to take her to her nearest relatives. "I will go if alive," was the only promise that could be extorted from her. She went to her room and the next morning was found in it—dead! Deserted, loathed, despairing, without a friend or a hope in the world, the wretched victim had committed suicide!

Armed Occupation of Florida.—The act providing for this undertaking having become a law, we annex a synopsis of its provisions.

Sec. I. Any head of a family or single man 18 years of age, capable of bearing arms, who has made, or within a year from the passage of the act, shall make an actual settlement in Florida south of the line dividing townships 9 and 10 S. and east of the base line, shall be entitled to one quarter section of land on these conditions—1st, of taking a permit from the land office describing his location; 2d, five years residence; 3d, the erection of a house fit for the habitation of man, and the clearing, enclosing and cultivating five acres of land, and an actual residence thereon for four years; and 4th, that upon proof of compliance with these conditions, a patent shall issue to him for the lands.

Sec. II. Provides a mode of settling controversies where two persons or more have made the same location.

Sec. III. No right of location under this act, within two miles of any military post, established and garrisoned at the period of settlement.

Sec. IV. forbids and annuls all transactions of every sort for the transfer, sale or gift of such lands, and all liens thereon, before the issuing of the patent.

Sec. V. assures to the widow or heir-at-law of any settler dying before five years, or before his patent is obtained, the benefit of such settlement.

Sec. VI. In case the sixteenth section be settled before actual survey, the School Commissioners shall select other lands in lieu of the sixteenth.

Sec. VII. Not exceeding 200,000 acres to be taken up under this act.

Sec. VIII. The President of the United States may, at any time, on giving six months' notice, suspend all further settlement under this act.

Sec. IX. The Commissioner of the General Land Office, before the 1st of February, 1844, to report to Congress the name of every settler under this act.

LATE FROM ENGLAND. ARRIVAL OF THE BRITANNA.

Yesterday morning at 4 o'clock the steamer Britannia, of the Cunard line, arrived in Boston harbor.

The news from England in regard to the crops is more favorable than any that has been received for some months past.

The news from France indicates beyond a doubt that the Duke de Nemours, second son of the King, will be created Regent.

The arrival in London of an accredited agent from the United States Government for the purpose of contracting a loan of twelve millions of dollars, is not liked; and it is confidentially asserted in well informed quarters, that he will wholly fail in the object of his mission.

In the neighborhood of Birmingham, Staffordshire, and other parts of the manufacturing districts there have been some rather serious outbreaks which have required the greatest energy and exertion on the part of the magistracy to suppress. The latest accounts, however, inform us that the rioters were coming to terms.

RUSSIA.—The Russian army, General Grabbe have been defeated by the Circassians, with a loss to the former of 1500 men and 25 officers. The Russian Artillery was, however, saved.

TURKEY.—Complications and embarrassments of various kinds menace the Porte on every side. War with Persia is reported to have been declared or to be upon the eve of declaration; and it will be remarked that Russia, not Great Britain, has been appealed to as a mediator by both parties. Taking advantage of the supposed hostile intentions of England and other powers, the Bulgarian and Greek Servian agitators, stimulated by foreign emissaries, have raised the standard of revolt in the vicinity of Nissa, and similar outbreaks are expected in Thessaly.

The Indian mail brings news from Bombay of June 18, from China seven days later than the last.

Lord Ellenborough had written an order for the forces to evacuate Jellalabad which had been construed into a determination to abandon the country beyond the Indus.

Gen. Pollock had remained inactive. In consequence Futeh Jung had surrendered the Bala Hissar at Cabul to Akbar Khan, who had risen in his demand.

Gen. English's force reached Candahar on the 9th May, and had relieved Kelatty Ghilzie.

Great Storm and Overflow of the Tide at Baltimore.—On the 24th instant this city was visited by a severe easterly storm of wind and rain, which commenced in the morning, and continued with but little intermission throughout the day and evening, and on Thursday it again rained heavily. The tide assisted by a south-east wind came in rapidly and overflowed the wharves near Pratt street. Jones' Falls overflowed in several places. Swan street, generally known as the Horse Market, was, at one time covered with water all the way to Market space, the average depth of which could not have been less than three feet. There was more or less loss on Light street and Pratt. Calvert and Cheapside, on Commerce and Patterson streets also on Smith's, Dugan's and O'Donnell's wharves, and on Market space. The estimated loss of property is half a million of dollars.

In several parts of the country the storm raged violently, and fences, corn, trees, &c. were uprooted and prostrated in many places.

None of the shipping at the wharves received any damage, measures being taken to keep them from riding upon the wharves or chafing against the piles.

There can be no doubt that the storm was most severely felt in the Bay and off the Capes; and we shall, we hope, too speedily receive accounts of severity.

Revelling Intemperance.—A sailor in Philadelphia, about fifty-two years of age, named William Gordon, made a complaint before Alderman Griscom on Monday last, against John Murch, captain of the schooner Caroline, at that port from Porto Rico, of a series of brutal acts perpetrated by Murch and the mate of the Caroline on the person of Gordon. It appeared that Gordon was a hand on board of the schooner, and had sailed in her for nine years, but never before with this captain. On one occasion during the last voyage the captain and mate beat him in the most cruel manner, until he was insensible. At another time the captain cut his cloths from him with a knife, stripped him, put a mustard plaster on him, and made him lay on the deck, in the hot sun, until the plaster had drawn. The next day he was swung up to the yard arm by a rope round his wrist and another round his neck, and while in this position they fired at him twice with a gun. A father hearing of this case took place before Alderman Griscom yesterday morning, when the captain was ordered to find the sum of $2,500 to take his trial at the U. S. Circuit Court. The mate has left the city for North Carolina. A requisition will be sent on to the Governor of that State for his apprehension, in order that he may be brought to justice.

Loss of the Ship BRITANNA.—Capt. Cook, late of the ship Britannia, has arrived at New York from foundland, by way of Halifax and Boston. He states that this vessel is a total loss; that during a thick fog she struck on a ledge of rocks off Cape Race, (N. Y.) when shortly after, by the exertions of the crew and passengers, they succeeded in getting the ship in deep water, and every effort was made to set the ship towards the shore, but she was so badly injured that they were forced to abandon her, and soon after they left her she went down. The Britannia was owned by John H. Howland & Son, of New York, and had a cargo, principally of salt. The passengers were over two hundred in number, and were all taken off by the fishing smacks that went to her assistance, and landed in safety. A number of them had succeeded in getting employment, and others were about to take passage for New York. The B. is insured in New York for $20,000; the cargo is also fully insured. Part of the Passengers' baggage was lost in the vessel.

A Military Execution.—The five prisoners were arranged in a line with their faces to the sea, and backs to their armed companions, who then retired some thirty paces. "They are going to shoot the men!" I said. My companion exclaimed that such must be impossible—five soldiers brought forward to execute the same number of people! In another moment my surmise had been verified: a volley was discharged, but only one of the men fell. I cannot dwell upon the scene; it was the most barbarous ever my lot to witness. The muskets were loaded and reloaded several times, and full ten minutes elapsed before an end was put to the sufferings of the victims; whilst the matter was coolly regarded by a number of spectators who had collected behind the neighboring wall.—[Irish paper.

FINE TIME FOR THE GIRLS.—The following is an extract from an act of the Scottish Parliament, passed in the reign of Queen Margaret, about the year 1288.

"It is statut and ordanit that during the rene of her maist blisssit Magestie, ilk maiden layde of baith highe and lowe estate shall hae liberty to bespeak ye man she likes, albeit gif he refuses to tak hir to be his wif, he shall be muleit in ye sume of ane hundreth pundis or less, as his estat-moi be, except and always gif he can make it appear that he is betroithit to one ither woman, that then he shall be free."

A riot took place at a German dance house, on Fell's Point, Baltimore, on Saturday night last, when the police officers, in discharging their duty as conservators of the peace in attempting to quell the riot, were strongly resisted by the inmates. Finally, however, by calling a reinforcement of officers, the aggressors were captured and bound over to keep the peace.

The Paper Trade in the United States.—According to the estimates recently made at a convention of paper makers, the machinery and paper mill property at the present time in the United States, are valued at $16,000,000; the paper manufactured amounts to $15,000,000 per annum; the raw stock collected, to about $6,000,000 per annum, and the amount of stock consumed, is estimated at about one hundred and seventy-five million pounds.

Rich Gold Mine.—We last week saw some of the most beautiful and valuable specimens of Gold that we have seen taken from the ground. They were from a mine lately discovered on the land of Valentine Derr, on Stanley's creek, in Lincoln county. One piece weighed 49 penny-weights and 6 grains, and six other pieces averaged from 2 to 5 penny-weights, pure gold when found. This mine has now been worked about six months, and seems only to increase in value.—May, it continue long to do so.—[Mecklenburg (N. C.) Jeffersonian.

Another Riot.—On Tuesday morning, Philadelphia was the scene of another riot, though not of a serious nature. It occurred among a number of the laborers and workmen employed on the culvert in Kensington. The difficulty grew out of a refusal by some, to work, on the ground of non-payment, who subsequently returned to their work on certain conditions, when the resistance of others to the resumption of their labors, provoked an affray, in which several of the parties were more or less hurt.

FROM BRAZIL.—Rio de Janeiro paper to the 22d of June inclusive, received at the Exchange reading room, announce the approaching suppression of the insurrection in the province of St. Paul. The Imperial troops, under General Barao de Caxias, has pushed the insurgents from Itu and Porto Feliz, the latter abandoning much of their baggage and some artillery. They had retreated to Sorocaba, upon which place the Imperial troops were advancing, and expected to reach it or or before the 19th. The force of the insurgents had been greatly reduced by desertion, and General Caxias was confident of finishing the war in a few days, by the capture or dispersion of the insurgents. To counterbalance these successes, however, it appears that a grite had been put forth in Barbacena, province of Minas Geraes, having the same causes and motives with that in the province of St. Paul. In consequence, certain articles of the constitution had been suspended; all persons were forbidden to enter or depart from that place without a passport, and orders were issued for the arrest and detention of suspicious persons there and in some others of the provinces, as well as the province of Rio Janeiro, &c. &c. No other particulars are given. [Com. Adv.

THE ERIE EXTENSION.—A late report from W. Milnor Roberts, Esq. states that this work will soon be completed as far as Conneaut Lake, within eight miles of Meadville, and within thirteen miles of Erie. Sixty thousand dollars, he says, would make the Extension navigable to Lockport, distant about sixty miles from Erie. With $350,000 he would undertake to pass a boat from Ohio to the lake. Should the legislature refuse to go forward with the work, the engineer hopes the citizens may be authorized to complete it.—[Harrisburgh Telegraph.

Sir James Graham lately announced to the House of Commons the terrible fact that twelve hundred thousand people are at present receiving parochial relief in England and Wales! One in every thirteen of the population is the poor rates, and probably one in every ten is destitute. This state of distress is unparalleled in the history of any nation on the face of the earth.

A FOURTH HUSBAND.—A woman aged 103, residing near Berlin, who has a son 80 years of age, recently married a fourth husband, aged 60.

BENEVOLENCE.—It is stated in the Norfolk Beacon, that the effect of the late freshet which devastated a portion of the Roanoke country in North Carolina, was to raise the price of corn from two to ten dollars a barrel. A wealthy planter in that region, finding that the owners of corn were taking such advantage of the general distress, promptly ordered three thousand barrels of his corn to be sent to Halifax, and sold at the prices which had prevailed before the rise of the waters. Such a man deserves to be wealthy, for he makes the right use of his riches.

MARRIED.—At Golden's Point, on the 23th ult. by Elder Wm. Smith, Thomas Williams, to Alvina Merrills.

DIED.—At Laharp, Aug. 26, Ervine B. Wait, aged one year and seven months—measles.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois. In the matter of the petition of Elisha Tucker of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that Elisha Tucker of Hancock county, has filed his petition in said Court to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts, under the Act of Congress in such cases made and provided, and that an order has been duly made in this case, appointing the first day of October next, at the District Court Room in the city of Springfield, in said District, as the time and place for hearing said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

JOHN C. DOREMUS,
Solicitor for Petitioner.
Thomas Morrison, Counsel.

NEW NOVEL SETTLEMENT.—A Society called the "Fraternal Community" has lately been established in Milford, Mass. The views of the association were generally imbued by the members of a religious society, mostly residing in Mendon (Mass.) and vicinity; and known as "Rest-rationists." The conditions and regulations upon which this novel organization is to exist, very like those adopted by the Shakers, though varying in some particulars. All the property of the members is thrown into one common stock; and its possessors are to labor for its increase, and live together as one family. Two hundred acres of land have been purchased, together with a water privilege. One large dwelling house has been already erected; and saw and grist mills and quite a large machine shop are now in process of erection. The community have also a printing office there, and published a small paper, "The Practical Christian." The embryo settlement has been christened "Hopedale," of Fraternal community, No. 1. It now contains some thirty or forty inhabitants; and it is said that great numbers stand ready to join, as soon as sufficient accommodations are provided. The labors of the people will be principally agricultural and mechanical.

NEW YORK ONE HUNDRED AND FORTY YEARS AGO.—The following description of New York as published by Denton in 1703. How strangely it contrasts with its present condition!—"I must needs say, that if there be a terrestrial Canaan, it is surely here. The inhabitants are blessed with peace and plenty; blessed in their country; blessed in the fruit of their bodies, and the fruit of their grounds; blessed in their basket and in their store; in a word, blessed in whatsoever they take in hand, or go about; the earth yielding plentiful increase to their painful labor. Were it not to avoid prolixity, I could say a great deal more, and yet too little to show how free are these parts of the world from that pride and oppression, with their miserable effects, which many, nay, a most all parts of the world are troubled with. Here, a wagon or cart gives as good content as a coach; and a piece of their home-made cloth is better than the finest lawns or finest silks; and though their low roofed houses may seem to shut doors against pride and luxury, yet how do they stand wide open to let charity in and out, either to assist each other or to relieve a stranger; and the distance of place from other nations, doth secure them from the envious frowns of ill affected neighbors, and the troubles which usually attend them."

EGYPTIAN MUMMIES.—"The gilding and columns upon the coffin are still fresh, and the wood of which they were constructed exhibits no indication of decay. Raise the lid! There is the body of the silent inmate, preserved in perfect form. The bandages, though brown with age, are yet entire; and the mysterious writing upon the historical roll of papyrus resting upon the brea t, is still legible. The head, the hair, the teeth, the arms, the legs, the hands, the feet, the skin, the bones, the sinews, are all preserved, and the whole mortal fabric is there, laid in its narrow house, wrapped in the habiliments of the grave, with all the care and neatness that friendship could dictate or art achieve. These sad but astonishing remains of a civilized and enlightened people, having, for a period of more than three thousand years, been permitted the sanctity and repose of death's long, cold sleep, are now rudely torn from their silent tombs, where they were laid by the hands of piety and affection; their coffin shrouds sacrilegiously stripped away; their trilling trinkets plucked by the spoiler, and their naked bodies crumpled and scattered to the winds by Christian hands!—Cooey's American in Egypt.

FROM CANTON.—The ship Coramanda, at New York, from Canton, brings dates to the 27th March. A mer. antile friend has permitted us to make the following extract of a letter from his correspondent, an intelligent and observing Philadelphian:

"The English are playing a curious game here. Their ships go up to Whampoa, discharge their cargoes and load their teas, just the same as if there was no war between the two nations. It is a fact, that the Chinese have worsted them; and if they do not keep a sharp look out, they will be out-generalled yet. The British cannon is to Pekin this summer. They have no troops go there with, having lost a great many men by sickness. Who's regiments have been swept off. They have taken two or three places on the coast but they will be no benefit to them. The Chinamen lay waste the country all about them, and retire into the interior, and scarcely leave a chicken for John Bull to feed upon. The Emperor still holds out, and will not listen to anything. The Chinese are rapidly improving in military tactics. The lower class of people adhere to old customs, and are in favor of supporting the Emperor."—[Phil. Gaz.]

More Shooting Stars.—The New Haven papers gives notice that the annual arrival of the "Shooting Stars," was looked for with great interest on Monday and Tuesday evenings; and much to the satisfaction of the watchers, between 11 and 12 o'clock on Tuesday evening, 29 Shooting Stars were seen. The exhibition it was thought would be continued on Wednesday evening.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT ILLINOIS,
August 15th, 1842.

WE the undersigned officers of the State, being of opinion that there will be danger of loss by receiving the bills of the State Bank of Illinois and branches in payment of the revenue of the State and of the different counties in the State for the year 1842, and in payment of college, school and ordinary debts and interest, do hereby prohibit the reception of said bills for the purposes aforesaid after the 12th day of September next until otherwise provided by law.

Given under our hands the day and year above written.

THOS. CARLIN, Gov.
JAS. SHIELDS, Auditor.
MILTON CARPENTER, Treas.

All the publishers of newspapers in this State are requested to publish the above notice for three successive weeks and send their bills for the same to the Auditor's office.

JAS SHIELDS, Auditor.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of William Carter of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that William Carter of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a Bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court appointing the 1st day of October next at the District court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of the said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 19th day of Aug. A. D. 1842.

RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for Petitioner.
J. F. Owings, Clerk. no20 2w.

NOTICE.

THE undersigned have recently commenced the leather manufacturing business in all its various branches: also the shoe and glove making business. We wish the citizens and vicinity to give us their patronage, as we offer to the public to tan on shares both upper and sole leather; also morocco and deer skins dressed in the neatest manner, and fur dressing. We will also pay the highest prices for all kinds of hides and skins; tan works near Parley St. about one mile east of the river.

R. R. BENTLEY & J. FIELD.
Nauvoo, Sept. 3, 1842. no20-3m.

NOTICE.

LEFT in my care, in the Month of April last, off the Steam Boat Aspy, one trunk, with a label directed to Miss Elizabeth Stouard, Montrose, Iowa; the owner is requested to prove property, pay charges, and take the same away, or it will be sold to pay said charges. An advertisement of said trunk is in the store of Mr. Peck, at this time.

S. H. BURTIS.
Montrose, Sept. 2, 1842. no20-1f.

GROCERIES.

STARNES & SPRINGER inform the customers and the merchants generally of Nauvoo, that they have a large assortment of Groceries on hand which they offer very cheap. Any orders sent to them will be punctually attended to, and goods put at the lowest price.

No. 4 Water St., St. Louis, Sept 3, 1842. no20-3m.

NEIBOUR, SURGEON DENTIST.

IN returning his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo, Hancock county in general, for their patronage since his arrival in this place, and solicits a continuance of their favor. Every branch of surgical dentistry, skilfully and carefully performed. Reference can be given if required. Teeth inserted at $2 a tooth; charges strictly moderate; all manner of produce taken; also wood; labour on the temple; cash not refused.

HURRAH FOR THE NAUVOO MATCH MANUFACTORY.

This article is superior to any that has been offered in the eastern or western market. Store keepers will find them preferable to any they have had; they can be had at the house of Mr. Neibour, S. D.

Nauvoo, Aug. 31, 1842. no20-3w.

NOTICE.

WHEREAS my wife Casander J. Whiting eloped my bed and board about one year ago, without any just cause or provocation, and has not returned; this is, therefore, to forbid all persons trusting her on my account, as I shall pay no debts of her contracting.

NATHANIEL WHITING.
Nauvoo, Aug. 10, 1842. 47-3w.

WINDOW SASH.

WE, carpenters, builders, &c., of the city of Nauvoo, recommend H. Hammond's patent upper and improved lower window sash springs, as a very superior article:

W. Weeks, principal carpenter of Temple,
L. Woodworth, do do Nauv. H's,
R. Hadlock, J. W. Coolidge,
L. Tulle, M. Rainey,
H. Riding.

All windows should be made narrow, high and with parting beads.

For the proper ventilation of a room, it is absolutely necessary to lower the upper sash.

These springs are warranted not to loose their elasticity or break, have points for preserving the notches in the sash, directions for selecting the appropriate sizes and properly putting them into windows.

For sale, wholesale and retail, at several of the hardware stores in St. Louis, Cincinnati, Pittsburg, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, &c. See a window with these springs in operation at Mr. Mills' Masonic Hall.

Nauvoo, Aug. 13, 1842. 17-1y.

NOTES.

DUE the Trustee for labor on the Temple, are left with the Temple Committee for collection. Brethren, remember that your contracts with your God are sacred; the labor is wanted immediately.

W. RICHARDS,
Temple Recorder.
June 25, 1842. 10-1f.

P. S. Remember the notes due for property also.

LOOK HERE! LOOK HERE!

WANTED, at the Nauvoo Foundry, a quantity of Stone coal; any persons wishing to furnish it, will please call on Hiram Kimball, or Geo. W. Robinson, at the Post Office.

Old castings will be taken in exchange for new. Nauvoo, June 13th 1842. 10-1f.

TWO FARMS TO RENT.

FOR rent, two farms adjoining each other containing each about one hundred acres of land under cultivation, and situated on Bear Creek, near Knolton s. They will be rented on reasonable terms, and immediate possession given. The Stock on the farms and all necessary farming utensils will either be sold or let to the renter if desired.

ROBERT JOHNSTON.
Apply to John E. Johnston, Warsaw.
Aug. 27, 1842. no19-3w.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph John-on, Ramus
J. Salsbery, Plymouth.
Harow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Chiffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Pag, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
Jam's Curtis, Horners Town.
W. I. Appleby, Reeces Town.

Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Salem.
Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapier.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirtland.

NEW YORK.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.
L. R. Foster, city of New York.

TRAVELING AGENTS.

Hiram Kimball.

DR. J. F. WELD.

PRACTICE IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.
Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuance of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

DRUGS, MEDICINES, &c.

THE subscriber has opened a Drug Store in Nauvoo, and intends keeping a full assortment of every thing in that line.—Paints, Oils, Varnish, Brushes, Turpentine, Linseed, Spermaceti, and Castor Oil; white Lead, red and black Lead, Vermilion, Prussian Blue, Litharge, Chrome green and yellow, venecian red, spanish brown, lampblack, ivory black, whiting, chalk, yellow ochre, dye stuffs, indigo, cochineal, annatto, madder, copperas, alum, oil vitriol, blue vitriol, logwood, brazilwood, &c.; stationary, plain and ruled cap and letter paper, ink, wafers, quills, sand, &c.; window-glass of all sizes, salicatus, putty, spires, glass ware, perfumery, soaps, snuff, rosin, matches, blacking, every thing in the medicine line, all the patent medicines; all of which will be sold low for cash; Van Studdiford's ague and fever pills, also his medicated lozenges, and cough, worm, and cathartic lozenges, are constantly on hand.

Store on water street above Davis' Hot-l.

A. T. TERRELL.

July 23, 1842.

AGUE AND FEVER.

Gleim's tonic mixture and Dr. Renals' pills; two certain cures for that inveterate pest, the chills and fever.—for sale by.

July 23, 1842.

A. T. TERRELL.

BEESWAX.

The highest price in cash will be paid for Beeswax, by (16 m 3) A. T. TERRELL.

MEDICAL NOTICE.

DR. W. B. BRINK.

Respectfully tenders his professional services to the citizens of Nauvoo, and its vicinity, as a botanic practitioner, having adopted the botanic practice from a positive conviction of the truth of its doctrines, and the unrivaled success which attends the practice; and hopes to give general satisfaction and prove the superior efficacy of the botanic treatment to those who may place themselves under his care; also a number of valuable preparations of his own compounding; such as anti bilious pills peculiarly serviceable in dyspepsia, bilious fever, &c; restorative bitters, pulmonary balsom, cough syrup, rhumatic liniment, neutralizing cordial; this is one of the most valuable preparations known for cholery morbus, cholery infantum, or summer complaints of children, fever ague and cancers, will be treated upon the principle of no cure no pay and those afflicted with cancers will do well to call and try a remedy which has never failed; and those who are not able to pay will be cured without charge.

Dr. B. is consulted in the most intricate and protracted cases of secret disease that require practical experience to ensure success; every species and form of the disease must yield to the treatment which is in all cases mild and soft, requiring no interruption from business or change of diet, and will treat the disease upon the principle of no cure no pay; office at the store of W. Alen, formerly occupied by Mr. E. D. Woolley.

W. B. BRINK, M. D.

Nauvoo, July 2nd 1842. 12-3m.

BENCH & MOULDING PLANES.

WANTED, immediately, a large number of the above Planes on tithing. The brethren who have got such and can spare them would greatly facilitate the building of the Temple by bringing them as soon as possible to the recorder's office, and they shall be entered to their credit on tithing. All kinds of bench planes whether good or indifferent can be made useful at the Temple. The moulding planes should be such as suit the present fashion.

Also all lumber, which would make plane stocks, would be very serviceable.

JOSEPH SMITH, Trustee.

W. CLAYTON, Clerk.

W. H. RALSTON,

ATTORNEY & COUNSELLOR AT LAW, Carthage, Hancock county, Ill., will practice in the Hancock Circuit court, and also in the Supreme Circuit and District Courts of this State. Carthage, Aug. 18, 1842. 10-3m.

THE

WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BYRON.

Volume I.—No. 22

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, September 17, 1842.

Whole Number 22.

THE WASP.

EDITED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY
WM. SMITH.

At the corner of Water and Main Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.
TERMS—$1.50 invariably in advance.

THE INDIAN'S PRAYER.

Let me go to my home in the far distant west,
To the scenes of my childhood in innocence
blest;

Where the tall cedars waive and the bright waters flow,

Where my father's repose. Let me go, let me go.

Let me go to the spot where the cataract plays,
Where oft I have sported in boyhood's bright days,

And greet my poor mother, whose heart will overflow,

At the sight of her child. Let me go, let me go.

Let me go to my sire, by whose battle scars'd
side,

I have sported so oft in the morn of my pride,
And exulted to conquer the insistent foe,
To my father, the chief, let me go, let me go.

And, oh! let me go to my flashing-eyed maid,
Who taught me to love 'neath the green wil-
low's shade,

Whose heart, like the fawn's, leaps as pure as the snow,

To the bosom it loves. Let me go, let me go.

And, oh! let me go to my wild forest home—
No more from its life-cheering pleasures to roam,
'Neath the groves of the green, let my ashes lie
low—

To my home in the woods, let me go, let me go.

BLACKHAWK, JR.

[The foregoing plaintive lines were recently written and sung by an Indian Chief, at Washington.]

OREGON.—The position of Oregon is eminently favorable to commercial purposes, as may be seen by any one who will take the trouble to glance at the map. To the south of it at the distance of eight days' sail, is California: a country which abounds in cattle and wheat, and in the vicinity, are other countries which are filled with the precious metals and whose shores furnish the pearl producing oysters. The coasts of Peru and Chili are within thirty days' sail; the Sandwich Islands at about the same distance, and China and the East Indies within seventy or eighty days' sail. The Pacific Ocean, which is the highway of communication with these regions, is hardly ever ruffled by a storm. Should steam navigation be resorted to, as on this and other accounts it undoubtedly will be, the distance which we have estimated will be much shortened, and Oregon brought within a few days' travel of the richest countries on the globe.

The coasts of Peru and Chili are indented with fine bays and harbors, and these countries stretching in a long narrow line along the ocean would necessarily become commercial were they only supplied with ship timber. They must be dependent on any country which can furnish it.
Oregon abounds in timber, of the most valuable kinds, situated along and at short distances from the coast and easily accessible, and will therefore command their market. The Sandwich Islands produce sandal wood, sugar cane, tropical fruits, and may easily be made to grow cotton and coffee. For those products they want in exchange timber and flour, with which they are already supplied to a considerable extent by the British establishments in Oregon, and might be to any amount were there only hands to cultivate the soil. Then there is the vast fur trade with China and the East Indies, to which we need only allude.

Were Oregon a barren rock like St. Helena, it would still be valuable as a depot for our extensive commerce in the Pacific. But it has great resources within itself. It abounds in the raw materials of commerce, and is adapted to almost every variety of productive labor. The farmer, the grazier and the manufacturer may alike thrive within its limits, and while they are enriching themselves, be constantly developing the capabilities of the country. We say the manufacturer, and this reminds us that we have forgotten to mention the numerous mill-sites which are scattered up and down the rivers, and which greatly enhance the value of the territory. The British it is true have shown their sagacity in occupying the best of these, but we trust they are improving them only for the ultimate benefit of their rightful owners and future possessors.—

These combined advantages of production, situation, and neighborhood, must one day make Oregon a sort of depot for the commerce of the world.

Is not this fair region worth contending for,
more especially when our right to it is beyond dispute? And if it be worth an effort, shall we wait longer without making one?—We have only to take possession formally and efficiently, and notify Great Britain of our purpose, and the work is done. Shall we do it?—[Cin. Chron.]

NEW YORK.—The following gloomy picture of the present condition of the city of New York is given in the Express. The dark clouds which rest upon the face of the entire land are unfortunately but too well in keeping with the view here represented of the commercial emporium:

There are at the present time more stores and houses to rent than we have ever known, and rents are lower than they have been for 20 years past. In the upper part of the city it is truly surprising to see the number of bills posted up. Large and expensive houses rent for a trifling sum. A large number of stores and warehouses out of the business section of the city are either shut up or are to let for a very inconsiderable sum; and in some of our greatest thoroughfares, some of the finest stores are closed up; third, fourth, and fifth-rate stores were never so empty or so deficient to rent as at the present time. For several months past, there have been every few days more or less failures, and very recently there has been some who for years stood high as men in credit and capital.—
Although there has been no sudden fall of goods or produce, nor any great revulsion of trade or commerce, yet there has been a gradual decline in all branches of business.

In the great mechanical and manufacturing branches there has been a general prostration.—
In the great branch of mechanical trade, building, what a change! During the spring and summer not a fourth of the usual number of stores and houses have been put up, a vast number of mechanics and laborers have been thrown out of employ, and at this time laborers are receiving sixty two and a half cents a day; a mere pittance when men are obliged to find themselves. Nor is this all, the prospect for the fall and winter was never worse, nor is there any prospect or promise that there will be any considerable number of buildings put up this year. A number of our most enterprising master builders have recently been compelled to make a signment, and to make arrangements for the bankrupt act. A large number of sail makers, carpenters and various mechanics are thrown out of employ.

The great shipping interest, which is of such vast importance to the country and particularly to this city, is in as bad a state as we have known it for years; the great mass of large freighting vessels are wholly unemployed, and are tied up dismantled at the wharves in the city and Brooklyn. We believe there is but one ship of any magnitude building in the numerous shipyards in this city, a fact seldom or never known before. That the domestic manufacturers are suffering beyond all former precedent, the failures that take place among the proprietors, the shutting up of various establishments, and the large surplus of goods on hand, is conclusive evidence. Nor are the importers doing much better; they all complain that their stocks are on hand, that they make greater losses and more bad debts than ever. The farmer has equal cause of complaint; with pork down to eight dollars per barrel, oats at thirty cents a bushel, and other articles in proportion, they were no better off. Capitalists complain there is but little employment for money, so that all classes seem to suffer alike. It is very far from agreeable to present a picture like this of the distressed state of our trade and commerce but it is nevertheless a faithful representation.

STORM AND RAIN AT FAIRMORE.—We learn from the Baltimore Sun of August 26, that during the day, on Wednesday, the sky was overcast and rain fell occasionally, but not heavily.
Towards evening, the wind being still from the east, the rain began to fall more heavily, and the wind to increase in violence, accompanied by thunder and lightning. In the evening, after dark, the violence of the wind became excessive, the rain poured down in torrents, and thus it continued during the night, with brief intervals of cessation, the wind having meanwhile changed its direction, so that it came from the south east, blowing all the while with very extraordinary force. This forced the tide up to a very unusually high point, which, combined with the heavy fall of rain, caused an inundation which did a considerable amount of damage to merchandise in store on the wharves, and in the low situations in their neighborhood.

After giving extensive particulars, the same paper says, taking it all together this has been one of the most destructive gales with which the Chesapeake has ever been visited, and we fear that we will hear of extensive devastation lower down. Norfolk, we expect, has been completely flooded. So far, we have not heard of any loss of life.

RUNAWAY NEGROES.—Scarcely a day passes without some darkie making his appearance, wending his way to Canada. On Monday morning the 12th a fine young Negro came into town, stating that he had left his master, a Mr.
Smith, of Harrison county, Ky., on the day previous.

He stated that Smith was a bad man, and he thought he had a right to leave, and would be protected in it. About this time he became quite an interesting subject. Different squads of persons were trying to get hold of him.—
John C. Henry, Joseph Henry, and Stephen Porter finally bore him off, going partly towards Kentucky, but it was generally believed they intended to send him to Canada. A skirmish ensued, which continued about four miles, between the posse who had control of him and another, Mr. Levi, Mr. Jones, &c., who were trying to recapture him from the first named individuals. After a contest which produced some bloody noses and black eyes, the persons who first got the boy in tow succeeded in carrying him off—but where to, we have not been informed.—[Georgetown (O.) Examiner.]

SLAVE TRADE.—In the house of lords on the 3rd instant, the earl of Aberdeen moved the second reading of the bill for suspending an act directed against the Portuguese slave trade. The act he proposed to suspend had, his lordship said, been rendered unnecessary by a treaty just concluded, in which the Portuguese government had engaged to conciliate heartily in all measures necessary for the suppression of the slave trade, and being no longer necessary, such an act could not be otherwise than offensive to the nation affected by it. The bill was read a second time, after which lord Brougham in a long and highly animated speech, moved a resolution calling upon the queen's government to take into consideration the present state of the trade in slaves, with a view to its complete suppression.

A letter from a navy officer at Mozambique, states that such strict orders have been received from the Portuguese government, that the slave trade is completely broken up, and the place ruined.

SLAVERY.—The Louisville (Ky.) Advertiser, in an article on the subject of "negro riots," says:—

We believe, and we doubt not every man of sense in the Union, whether of the slave holding or non-slave holding States, coincides with us in the belief, that negro slavery is the greatest evil that has ever befallen the rising fortunes of our country. Whether it has been a curse or a blessing to the negro, we leave to be resolved by better cautions than ourselves; but we are convinced that the evil has weighed more heavily upon the white man, and its severity is aggravated by the impossibility, as far as any experiment has yet been tried, or any scheme proposed and examined, of riding ourselves effectually of it. It clings to us like the poisoned shirt of Nessus, and since we can see no prospect of deliverance from it, we must avail ourselves of the alternative of mitigating, as far as possible, its inflictions, and providing against the dangers which it denounces.

Important.—The Hudson's Bay Company, in the North Pacific Ocean, have purchased the whole of that extensive line of coast, including the Russian possessions, on the north-west coast of America, from Mount St. Elias, south to the latitude of 45 deg. 40 sec. north, with the sole rights and exclusive privileges of all bays, ports, sounds, rivers, &c., within the said territory, together with all the established forts and trading with the Indians, for the term of ten years from January, 1842; for which the Russian American Company are to receive annually 4,000 fur seal skins, or 6,400l, sterling. The Russians retain the island of Sitka, or New Archangle, where they have a large settlement. The paper from whence we extract, says "Jonathan will now be deprived of his means of supplying the Russian settlements on the north-west coast; and thus be cut off from all trade with the most valuable fur regions is the world."

From Sandwich Islands.—Letters from Oahu dated early in May, have been received in this city, via west coast of Mexico, &c. Accounts from Tahiti state that the small pox prevailed to a dreadful extent, and communication between the two places was prohibited. The brig (Chenamus, from Newburyport, which arrived at Oahu the last of March, was detained off the harbor twenty-four hours, it being supposed that she was last from Tahiti. [Boston Courier.]

CANADA 'PATRIOTS'.—The Montreal Herald says it is rumored, on pretty good authority, that Mr. Secretary Daly will shortly bring with him from Downing street an unconditional pardon for both refugees and banished rebels.

CANAL TO THE PACIFIC.—A Mexican paper of the 19th of June, states that the commissioners for surveying the route of a canal, between the two oceans, through Tehuantepec, had reported favorably for the grand enterprise.

MISSOURI MOB LAW.

After all the outrages, which have been committed by the Missourians upon the persons and property of the Latter Day Saints, it looks a little singular that men's compassion, and virtue, and sincerity, and dignity, could be so soon melted into submission as to heat that furnace of murder and manslaughter, plunder, and ravishing—for a second blast. The same can that rose against the law and constitutions in 1833, are stalking forth in 1842. The same banditti which robbed and spoiled at various times from 1833 to 1838, are closing about again. It is said a fund of one or two thousand dollars has been raised for the purpose of transporting Joseph Smith to that land of evil, darkness, and mob law, for a trial; or more likely for massacre. The same threats, the same boasting, the same newspaper lies, and same sly manoeuvres, are used now that were in the crusade gone by. The officers boasted that they would bring Smith dead or alive! The Missourians grin'd horribly a ghastly smile, if they could once get him again into Missouri, he should not hold a candle!

Even that viper licking a file, Sharp of the Signal, and his like animals of venom, were mortified that the Mormons would not resist the law, so that they could have the sport of driving them en masse from the State. What do all these hints of murder mean? Why do officers under the cloak of civil authority, threaten life? What sound reason can be given for chaffing the Latter Day Saints, with taunts of death when their brethren's, their wife's, and their children's bones are now bleaching upon Missouri's blood-stained prairies? Is there any plausibility in trying to flatter the community into a belief that Joseph Smith was an accessory before the fact to shooting Boggs? Take up the subject in the best light you can, and then the reflection, the opinion, and the solid conclusion, is, it is, as has been, from the first start, a RELIGIOUS PERSECUTION! It can not be any thing else. Mr. Rockwell who was sworn at by Boggs as the principal of the attempt to shoot to kill—is rarely named—the whole phalanx of false swearers, tale bearers, writ carriers, deputy government money makers, with all their attendants, are after Jo Smith. These same homicidal rhapsodies have been sung by priests, and mobbers for twelve or fourteen years: Jo Smith, the Imposter; hang him! shoot him!—Great God! how long will the people ask a man to stand as a mark to be shot at, and no man touch him, before they will be satisfied that he is innocent! More than twenty times has he been arraigned before courts upon an manner of cases and crimes—and never found guilty. It is and has been a religious persecution, and the more men move in it, the more they show it.—O fallen freedom!

Ex-Gov. L. W. Boggs.—We have already announced the election of Ex-Governor Boggs, to represent the counties of Van Buren, Jackson and Bates, in the State Senate. We now have the additional pleasure of being able to state, that his majority in the district was 164, and this, notwithstanding his continual confinement to his room during the canvass, while his opponent, Col. Chiles, the regular Locofoco nominee, traveled it from post to pillar, and literally turned it over, broad-cast. And what is better than all, we are credibly informed that he goes into the Senate with clean hands and a pure heart, uncontaminated by the taint and pollution of nullification, and in favor of districting the State.—St. Louis Republican.

In the room of saying—this 'out Herods Herod,' we will say, this out Boggses Boggs. In the Senate with clean hands and a pure heart!—Men, angels, heaven and Gods weep! That bloody vampyre stood in Independence and saw two innocent saints tarred and feathered for their religion, as Lieut. Governor, sworn to protect the constitution of the United States and of the State of Missouri, and laughed! That same hearted pirate of human life, issued an exterminating order, as Gov. of Missouri, by which lives and property were sacrificed as dirt. Joseph Young swears that the number killed and mortally wounded in the wanton slaughter at Hawn's Mills, was EIGHTEEN OR NINETEEN! Clean hands and a pure heart! Heaven, earth and even hell bark! Burnt Negroes and butchered Mormons, this must be the exultation of criminal exaltation! Pharaoh, Nechemiah, Herod, Caligula, Nero, Kiah, and all of Malefactors bloody Register, be comforted, for Boggs has washed his hands in hearts' blood and made them clean. Oh earth! earth! where has truth and virtue fled?

MORMONS LEAVING THE HOLY CITY.—About forty Mormons passed down the other day on the Rosalie,—perfectly satisfied, we suppose, with the Prophet and his doctrine.—Ex. paper.

This is a fresh bone for the world to pick.—Forty apostates, like the dog to his own vomit, or the sow that was washed to his wallowing in the mire have gone to—Babylon. Well,—nothing very extraordinary in all this—the five thousand, that not only saw but eat of the miracle of Jesus Christ, when they found what they had to do to be saved.—From that time went back and walked no more with him! Wonder if the Jews heralded that sight, with 5000 Christians left the Mountain, in ships for Gallilee, perfectly satisfied with the Son of God. [See John 6.]

WE WOULD NOT WONDER.—It is rumored that Joseph Smith has been translated to Heaven without dying. Several of the Mormon sisters are reported to say that they saw him ascend in a cloud.—[Chicago Dem.]

You are wrong, Colonel; the story is this:—One of the conspicuous sheriffs was gaping about, and enquired of a boy, if he knew where Joseph Smith was? To which the boy replied: 'He has gone to heaven, and I have just sent him up his dinner on this kite.' Pour the truth to them, Colonel, like melted lead.

Gen. John C. Bennett, says the N. Y. Herald, has gone to some quiet retreat in Connecticut to prepare his book on the rise, progress and history of the Mormon people. The history of Mahomet will not be half so curious.

Dr. Bennett once made a solemn declaration to a large audience in Nauvoo, that if he ever renounced Mormonism, or left the church, he hoped the saints would call him a 'skunk.' So we will give him one of Tom Sharp's Quill Wheel Rhapsodies:

Evil's rogue and villain am.—

And, so at once, I flunk;—

And all may call me, as I said,

A little nasty skunk!

WEATHER, WIND AND WORKS.

During the week past, the weather has changed to fall in earnest, and the wind, two or three points north of west, has brought a specimen of what is to come between now and next March. Our works, however, are progressing as ever, and the Messrs. Laws have started their steam mill so far as to put their saw mill in operation, and according to our rule—it goes ahead to do business. Where have to ride or be rode.

Too Good to be Lost.—While a Bangor auctioneer was driving on with a large auction sale a few days since, and became quite animated with the importance of the sale and the large company around him, and was putting in the licks with considerable auction, he attracted the attention of an elderly woman in a neighboring store.

'Robert,' said she, speaking to the clerk, 'what is that man doing over there?'

'Oh, he is preaching.'

'Preaching! but what persuasion is he that he preaches in the streets?'

'He is one of the Mormons.'

'A Mormon?' said the old lady, lifting her hands in surprise; 'do tell me, has he many followers?'

'He gets a great many hearers, and preaches often,' said Bob, by this time about as full as an egg.

'Well, I've heard tell of these Mormons, but never thought I should hear one preach; but there, he does seem to feel his subject, and I have no doubt believes his doctrine from the bottom of his heart.'

Bob had to go up stairs.—Ban. Whig.

Well, it all helps fulfill the scripture: for blessed are ye when all men speak falsely of you for Christ's sake. Babylon is the hammer of the whole earth.

Report of deaths for the week ending Friday the 16th inst.

James R. Moor, aged 1 year and 5 months; canker.

Elias Heaton, aged 63 years; typhus fever.

Ann Morgan, aged 19 years; inflammatory fever.

Margaret E. Sawyer, aged 9 months; Consumption.

George Welch, aged 4 years; scarlet fever.
Edward F. Meriam, aged 29 years; typhus.
John Britton, aged 22 years; scarlet fever.
Total 7.

W. D. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton.

General Orders, Headquarters N. L.,
September 10th 1842.

The respective companies of the Nauvoo Legion in the city and throughout the county, are hereby ordered to assemble, on the usual parade ground, in this city, at 9 o'clock A. M. on the 24th inst., completely equipped for review and inspection.

The Colonels will take command of their respective Regiments, at half past 9 o'clock, and the Cohorts will form precisely at 10 o'clock, under the command of their proper officers.

At half past 10 o'clock the Adjutant General will form the Legion, and the Major General will take command and prepare for review and inspection, at which time the Reviewing General and staff will be escorted to the field, and the review and inspection take place immediately after.

At half past 1 o'clock the Legion will be formed and perform such evolutions as may be directed by the commanding officer.

WILSON LAW,

Major Gen'l.

An Ordinance in relation to the return of writs of Habeas Corpus.

Sec. 1. Be it, and it is hereby ordained, by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, that the Municipal Court, in issuing writs of Habeas Corpus, may make the same returnable forthwith.

Sec. 2. This Ordinance to take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Passed Sep. 9th 1842.

GEO. W. HARRIS, Pres protem
JAMES FLOAN, Recorder.

RIOT AT ST. CATHARINES, U. C.—We regret to learn that the apprehension of trouble at St. Catharines, in consequence of the large collection at that place of unemployed and destitute Irish laborers, has been more than realized. We have not yet received any authentic details, but we learn verbally the following. Last Wednesday morning the laborers assembled in immense masses, with banners bearing various devices and inscriptions, and proceeded to supply their wants with the strong hand. All efforts to arrest their proceedings were unavailing. The Catholic priest resident there informed the authorities that all his efforts to restrain them had proved useless, that they were desperate men and would have work or food. The town was completely given up to them, none daring to make any resistance. Several stores and mills were plundered of goods and flour, and an American schoolhouse burnt down, was boarded, and plundered of the pork which formed part of her cargo. We have not heard that any lives were lost, but our informant says it was a terrible thing to see so many men frenzied with passion and hunger with no restraint upon the impulses of their wild natures. We shall be anxious to hear full particulars. At the latest accounts the rioters were enjoying themselves upon what they had taken. Poor wretches, we fear a terrible retribution awaits them. One cannot help pitying them, even while reproaching their acts.—Buffalo Commercial.

Troops for India and China.—The East India Company have not yet concluded the despatch of troops to India, as several large ships are being taken up for the conveyance of troops to Bombay, Calcutta, and Hong Kong. Enlisting, especially for the artillery, is still actively going on in the metropolis. The recruits, after being attested, are sent off to the company's depot, at Chatham, commanded by Colonel Henry. There are no fewer, at present, than four hundred and fifty-four officers of infantry, in Her Majesty's service, and one cavalry officer, in London, employed in the recruiting service in the United Kingdom.

The civilians of India are about presenting Sir Robert Sale with a sword worth two hundred guineas, with the word "Jellalabad," engraved on it.

Sir Charles Napier, now commanding the Poona division of the Indian army, is to proceed to Afghanistan in October. There is a desire to permit General Pollock to reap the harvest for which he has so well toiled; but Lord Ellenborough has determined, I understand, to place in that part of our dominions, a large European force, and a tried general in the roughest sort of warfare, than that to which Indian Generals are exposed.

Large meetings on the subject of the distress of the country, have been held at Liverpool, Leeds, Coventry, Manchester, Paisley, and other places.

The Caledonia, Capt. Scott, arrived home on the 29th, in ten days, and by her full files of Canadian and Lower Province papers were received, and New York journals to the 16th June.

The West India mail steamer Tweed arrived at Falmouth the day previous—as usual, a fortnight over due. The Jamaica papers announce the accouchement of the Countess of Elgin of a daughter. Another of the W. I. Steamers was due on the 30th ult., but will hardly arrive before another week, so uncertain and irregular are their movements.

The whole kingdom was visited with a very severe thunder storm on the 26th, which did considerable damage, by the lightning striking several churches, and other elevated public buildings. The heavy rain which also accompanied, laid and damaged much of the standing corn.

The annual meeting of the members of the Wesleyan Methodist denomination, termed the Conference, was held in London, on the 27th. Preachers from all parts of the country attended, and a very favorable statement of the progress and prospects of the society was presented. Its institutions are in a very flourishing condition, and there has been a very large accession to the numbers of this body during the past year.

Among the deaths in high life, which have recently occurred, are Sir Shes. D. Hesketh, Bart.; Sir W. Woods, Knight Garter, Principal King at Arms; Dr. Brown, Dean of Ferns; James Holmes, Esq. High Bailiff of Southwark; the Prince Dolrouki, (son of the Russian general of that name,) who was killed in a duel.

Foreign Intelligence.—France.—The King of the French had opened the Chambers with a short speech, confined principally to the loss they had sustained, and to the necessity for appointing a Regent. His Majesty was accompanied by his sons, the Duke de Nemours, the Prince de Joinville, the Duke de Aumale and the Duke de Montpensier. It is said that the Duke de Nemours will be constituted Regent, and that the widowed Duchess of Orleans will have the guardianship of her children. Such an arrangement, it is supposed, will be satisfactory to all parties, and be the most effectual means of providing for the safety of the Government. The Duc de Nemours is generally spoken of as a strong minded man, rather taciturn than otherwise—not very popular with the army, but honest and upright, and trusted by those who know him. It was not anticipated that the dynastic opposition would allow the session to terminate, without an attempt to upset the Ministry. The funeral procession of the Duke of Orleans from Neuilly to Paris, took place on the 30th ult., and the funeral itself on the 1st inst.

Portugal.—The Portuguese army, it is said in a letter from Lisbon, is to be immediately increased by 4,295 men. A decree had appeared for the immediate and effectual enforcement of a tax of ten per cent on every description of property. The treaties of commerce with England, and for the suppression of the slave trade, had been agreed upon and ratified.

From Central America.—The brig Francis, Captain Roberts, has arrived in thirty days from Rio Salada, in Central America. We learn from Captain Roberts, that the port of San Juan was blockaded, on the 8th of July, by the British sloop of war Hector, in consequence of alleged insults offered to certain British subjects, as well as the imprisonment of several British residents. Captain Roberts was off that place on the 10th of July, and tried to enter the harbor, but was prevented by the sloop of war. The blockaders demand $200,000 as an indemnity for the wrongs received, when, in fact, the place cannot muster two hun-ded thousand cents. Capt. Peters thinks the only compensation they could obtain, would be the loss of their crew, as it was rather sickly. The brig America, hence, for San Juan, was on the port, but could not enter, in consequence of the blockade.

From Mexico and Texas.—The schooner Henrietta arrived at New Orleans on the 13th inst., in eight days from Galveston. The Crescent City learns from a gentleman who came passenger in the H., that news had been received at Galveston of the movement of 4,000 Mexicans, under General Reis, towards the borders of Texas. Commissions had been issued to raise citizen soldiers for the purpose of protecting the borders against the inroads of the Mexicans. Two Mexicans had been taken prisoners on the borders, who stated that the Mexicans were preparing for another invasion, and that the orders from Santa Anna were "to take no prisoners." This information, says the Crescent, though not official, comes through sources which may be depended upon. The U. S. brig Dolphin arrived at Galveston on the 2d inst. from Mexico.

We give above the Mexican account of the affair at Lepautellan. The following is the Texan account of the same affair:—

"The Texans numbered two hundred men, not one of whom received a scratch. The flying horsemen carried off their dead, rendering it impossible to tell the number who tasted the fruits of the 'Kaintuck' rifles. When they entered our old camp, the chivalrous warriors found one of our old standards, which they took with them; and no doubt it will be sent to Santa Anna with a brilliant account of their victory in taking possession of a deserted camp."

Latest from Mexico.—The schooners Ringgold and Emblem, arrived at New Orleans August 12th, with $19,000 in specie, and the following items of news from Matamoras:—

Matamoras, July 11, 1842.

By an express, we learn that 400 Texans have been defeated in their camp at Lipantillan, by the combined forces of Colonels Antonio Canel and Cayetano Montero. The usurper left in the power of our troops, two stand of colors of infantry, a cavalry flag, twenty-two dead bodies, and a quantity of arms and ammunition. On one of the standards was painted the words—"Galveston invincibles;" yet those invincibles fled at the first charges of our troops, composed of a militia regiment, and a detachment of the 4th infantry of the line.

Mob Law.—The Parkersburg Gazette informs us, that Jackson county, V., is in a state of open rebellion. On last court day, the people paraded the streets of Ripley, with guns, clubs, &c., and threatened to ride upon a rail any man who bid for property under two-thirds of its value. Property was offered, but there were no bidders.—[Cin. Gazette.]

The cheeks of the editors of the Gazette should blush at the words "mob law," while its columns are daily filled with the advocacy not only of mob law, but the subversion of all law—of the actual annihilation of the Legislative department of the state government—of treason of the blackest character against the peace and honor of the State, and the uprooting of society and all civil government. Let not the advocates of this base and daring outrage upon established government talk about mob law of a few private citizens; when the Governor of the State, the Secretary, Treasurer, and the whole whig members of the Legislature, not only plotted a mob to annihilate the Legislative power, but are now traveling and lying to boot, to coax, and drive where coaxing will not answer, the people to sustain them in their act of outlawry and revolution. Shame upon these lawless hypocrites, who tremble at their own daring and shameless treason, that will follow them with infamy to their graves. Such hypocrites talk about mob law! It is a wonder that the special judgements of Heaven do not strike them down as Ananias of old. Have these whig desperadoes no consciences?—fears of the wrath to come? Are they as hardened as the freebooters upon the ocean?—[Statesman.]

THE BOUNDARY TREATY RATIFIED.

We have cheering news from Washington. The Boundary Treaty was confirmed on Saturday night, by a vote of 39 to 5.

The National Intelligencer of yesterday says: The Treaty with England, the first, we believe, ever negotiated with that power in the United States, was ratified by the Senate on Saturday evening, (at about 9 o'clock,) after a discussion of four days. The proceedings are not made public, but it is generally understood that the vote of ratification was no less strong than thirty-nine Yeas to nine Nays.

When we consider the variety of subjects which the Treaty is supposed to embrace, their magnitude, and the obvious and acknowledged difficulty of some of them; and when we consider the state of the country, and the effects of that unhappy party spirit, which in regard to other important subjects, so much distracts our public councils, this strong and decisive majority, necessarily made up of members of all parties, reflects the highest credit upon those who have conducted the negotiation, and gives the fullest assurance that the national honor has been maintained, and all the great interests affected by the Treaty effectually upheld and promoted. [Penn. Inquirer.]

Fatal Casualty.—We learn from the N. H. Patriot, that Mr. George Howe of Epsom, came to his death in a singular manner on the 25 inst. Mr. Howe was in the field ploughing, having for his team a pair of oxen, and a horse before them. By accident the horse became disengaged and while Mr. Howe was fastening the chain, the horse kicked and both feet struck him with full force in his abdomen. He survived only 24 hours. Mr. Howe was a respectable young man, aged about 24 years. He has left a wife and infant child to mourn over his untimely end.—N. H. Dem.

LATEST FROM FLORIDA.—More Murders.—Notwithstanding the official order announcing the close of the Florida War, by Col. Worth, we still have accounts of bloody murders. The Tallahassee Sentinel of the 16th inst. gives the following details of the movements of a party of Indians:—

On Thursday morning the 11th instant, Messrs. John Sandwich, James McMillen, H. Sessions Sr., David Rowell and a Mr. Pindar, of Jefferson county, were out hunting, when they were attacked by about 40 Creek Indians who were lying in ambush. Sandwich and Rowell, who were separated from the others and awaiting their arrival, were first fired upon, one killed on the spot—the other though badly wounded made his escape and gave the alarm. The other three, unconscious of the fate of their comrades, on approaching the spot of danger, were fired upon and all wounded. Messrs. McMillan and Sessions escaped, but Pindar was overtaken and his brains beat out.

The Indians then proceeded to the house of M. H. Womble, killed a Mr. Kennedy and one negro, and wounded two others, one of whom has since died.

Col. W. J. Bailey, with ten or fifteen men, attacked them near the Gum Swamp, on the afternoon of the same day. The Indians made a vigorous resistance, and on the first fire wounded severely three of our men. The Whites were shortly reinforced by ten or fifteen horsemen, when the enemy were driven into the swamp with some loss on both sides. Six whites were wounded, one of whom, Mr. Walter Blackburn, we regret to learn, has since died. Mr. McMillan was also killed, would not recover. The Indians plundered the house of Mr. Hany, and burned that of Mr. Smith.

Cols. W. and W. J. Bailey raised a company of 75 volunteers, and at last accounts, were in hot pursuit of the enemy, with the determination to continue the chase until they were overtaken. We hope the miscreants may be overtaken and slain.

HORSE STEALING.—Edwin Pitch, a young man of about 22 years of age, was examined in this place on Saturday last, charged with stealing a horse, the property of Josiah Raymond, living down town. The horse was taken some four or five weeks ago, and after nearly this lapse of time, was traced to the town of Manticello, State of N. Y., in the neighbourhood of which place the animal had been disposed of, and the thief had settled himself and taken up employment. He was arrested and brought back without resistance and pleaded guilty, and bound over to take his trial at the Superior court sitting at Danbury on the 4th Tuesday of September.—[Norwalk Gaz.]

The Cincinnati Republican of the 25th says: The emigration of Germans to this city, we think was never so great as at present. The number for the last three or four weeks is estimated at one thousand per week. The Penelope from Pittsburgh, on Thursday, had upwards of one hundred, and the Acadie, the day previous, about the same number. The company that arrived yesterday were from the kingdom of Hanover, and were composed almost wholly of young vigorous, temperate families—the best looking set of emigrants we have seen for a long time. They have an immense amount of "plunder" with them, including kitchen utensils, bedding, books, wooden shoes, cradles, and $20,000 in gold. Many of them are mechanics, and the whole company intend to settle in this city. They report that many thousands more are on their way, and may be daily expected.

Wood wanted at this Office.

ORSON PRATT,

PROFESSOR OF MATHEMATICS AND ENGLISH LITERATURE, IN THE UNIVERSITY OF THE CITY OF NAUVOO.

MOST respectfully announces to the gentlemen and ladies of this city and vicinity, that he will commence his regular course of instruction in the various branches of education, pertaining to the Department over which he has the supervision, on Monday, the 26th day of September, A. D. 1842, at a building situated a few rods north of the Temple.

TERMS PER QTR.

For Reading and Writing	25 cts.
Geography, Grammar, and Arithmetic	3, 00
Philosophy, Chemistry, Astronomy, Algebra, Geometry, Conic Sections, Plane Trigonometry, Mensuration, Surveying, and Navigation.	5, 00
For Analytical Plane and Spherical Trigonometry, and Analytical Geometry	7, 50
And for the study of the Differential and Integral Calculus and Newton's Principles.	10, 00
City of Nauvoo, Sept. 12, 1842. no22-3w.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois. In the matter of the petition of Adam Snyder, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that Adam Snyder, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the district court room in the city of Springfield, in this district, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 4th day of September A. D. 1842.

RALSTON WARREN & WHEAT, Solicitors for petitioner. J. F. Owings, Clerk. 22-w2.

NOTICE.

WHEREAS my wife, Mary Eliza Bliss, has taken my beds, and left me without any just cause or provocation; this is to forbid all persons from harboring or trusting her on my account, as I shall pay no debts of her contracting. NORMAN J. BLISS. Nauvoo, Sept. 17, 1842. no22-1w.

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CAMPBOR LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, lassitude and nervous affections generally, Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispensation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.

These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.

This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12½ cents,) brings it within the reach of every person in the community.

A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale by (22-y1.) J. SNIDER, Sole Agent for the City of Nauvoo.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Anthony S. Huddleston, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Anthony S. Huddleston of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts, under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 4th day of September A. D. 1842.

RALSTON WARREN & WHEAT, Solicitors for petitioner. Attest J. F. Owings, Clerk. 22-w2.

THE SUBMARINE BATTERY.—This terrible engine of destruction seems to us one of the most marked and important inventions of the present day—and destined to do much towards the prevention of the horrible calamities of war, for just in proportion as national conflicts become more surely sanguinary and exterminating will they become of rare occurrence. By the agency of electricity, it will be remembered, Mr. Colt is able from any distance to explode his instrument under a vessel and thus send the largest ship careering through the upper element, certainly not after the most approved style of seamanship. How he proposes to deposit the battery under the vessel, with the requisite security and secrecy, is the unexplained marvel; we find in a communication to the Journal of Commerce the following suggestion of two ways in which it may be done:

The first is similar to that employed by Fulton for his submarine Terpedo.—One or more of these batteries are to be sunk at the Narrows, or any other narrow channel through which a vessel must pass in entering the harbor; if the channel be sufficiently narrow, one battery will suffice; but if wider, the number must be increased to the number of times the width of the channel exceeds that of the vessel; the wires from them, properly numbered or placed, communicate with the shore where a watch is to be stationed ready to make the connexion necessary for the explosion the instant the vessel has placed herself in the situation to receive it.

The other method that we shall mention, is more certain in its operation,—is susceptible of a wider application, and has the additional recommendation of being more novel in its nature: properly attended to, it cannot fail of complete and triumphant success. It is as follows:—

A boat is to be constructed upon the principle of the diving bell or otherwise, with the machinery for its propulsion beneath the surface of the water, in any direction. At very late y, the want of air fit for respiration would have effectually prevented the use of such a boat,—the great degree of secrecy necessary in all its evolutions forbidding the employment of the usual apparatus connected with diving bells for the supply of fresh air from above; but thanks to the discoveries in science that almost daily permit us to class among things easily performed, those that were once thought impossible, the difficulty is now surmounted by the following simple means, for the discovery of which science is indebted to Col. Payne, of London.—Two chemical substances are taken down into the boat,—the one, to absorb the carbonic acid gas as fast as generated by the lungs—the other, to give out oxygen gas to supply the place of that consumed. The first of these is found in pure potash, which readily absorbs half its own weight of carbonic acid gas—the other, is the sulphate of potassa which, when heated, gives out a very large proportion of pure oxygen. With these two simple bodies, Col. Payne lately descended in a diving bell to the bed of the Thames, where he remained for the long and hitherto unattained period of seven hours, cut off from all communication with the upper air, without experiencing any of the unpleasant effects usually attendant upon such experiments, to the great surprise of a number of distinguished men of science, who witnessed his performance without the knowledge of his novel application of a couple of well known facts in Chemistry. A boat could thus be constructed for submarine navigation—to remain under water for any desirable time within the limits of twenty-four hours,—to carry the batteries to their several points of destination,—there to sink them or attach them to the vessel's keel, as the case may be.

Starvation and Distress.—That there is considerable distress existing in different parts of the country cannot be denied. A short time since a young girl died from actual starvation in Philadelphia; yesterday a poor man was arrested in the same place for stealing a joint of meat; with tears in his eyes he said his wife and children were starving, and he had no work, a bystander paid for the meat, and the man was let go. A woman in Buffalo was also arrested this week for stealing a loaf of bread to keep her children from starving. Pretty tough.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois. In the matter of the petition of Emma Tucker of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts. Notice is hereby given that Emma Tucker of Hancock county, has filed his petition in said Court to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress in such cases made and provided, and that an order has been duly made in this case appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court Room in the city of Springfield, in said District, as the time and place for hearing said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

JOHN C. D. REMIS, Solicitor for Petitioner. Thomas Morris on, Couns.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT ILLINOIS. August 15th, 1842.

WE the undersigned officers of the State, being of opinion that there will be danger of loss by receiving the bills of the State Bank of Illinois and branches in payment of the revenue of the State and of the different counties in the State for the year 1842, and in payment of college, school and seminary debts and interest, do hereby prohibit the reception of said bills for the purposes aforesaid after the 12th day of September next until otherwise provided by law.

Given under our hands the day and year above written.

TH. S. CARLIN, Gov. JAS. SHIELDS Auditor. MILTON CARPENTER, Treas.

All the publishers of newspapers in this State are requested, to publish the above notice for three successive weeks, and send their bills for the same to the Auditor's office.

JAS. SHIELDS, Auditor.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois. In the matter of the petition of William Carter of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that William Carter of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District Court room in the city of Springfield, in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of the said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 19th day of Aug. A. D. 1842.

RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT, Solicitors for Petitioner.

J. F. GIBSON, Clerk. no 219 3w.

NOTICE

THE undersigned have recently commenced the leather manufacturing business in all its various branches: also the shoe and glove making business. We wish the citizens and vicinity to give us their patronage, as we offer to the public to tan on short notice uppers and sole leather; also Morocco and deer skins dressed in the neatest manner, and for dressing. We will also pay the highest prices for all kinds of hides and skins; tan work near Parley St. about one mile east of the river.

R. R. BENTLEY & J. FIELD, no 30 3w.

NOTICE

LEFT in my care, in the Month of April last off the Steam Boat A. Pry one trunk with a label directed to Miss Elizabeth Stouard, Montrose, Iowa; the owner is requested to prove property, pay charges, and take the same away, or it will be sold to pay said charges. An advertisement of said trunk is in the store of Mr. Peck, at this time.

S. H. BURTIS, Montrose, Sept. 2, 1842. no 10 1f.

GROCERIES.

STARNES & SPRINGER inform the customers and the merchants generally of Nauvoo, that they have a large assortment of Groceries on hand which they offer very cheap. Any orders sent to them will be punctually attended to, and goods put at the lowest price. No. 4 Water St., St. Louis, Sept 3, 1842.

DR. J. F. WELD. PRACTICE IN MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS. Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

DRUGS, MEDICINES, &C.

THE subscriber has opened a Drug Store in Nauvoo and intends keeping a full assortment of every thing in that line.—Paino, Oils, Varnish, Turpentine, Linseed, Spermaceti, and Castor Oil; white Lead, red and black Lead, Vermilion, Prussian Blue, Litharge, Chrome green and yellow, Venetian red, Spanish brown, lampblack, ivory black, whiting, chalk, yellow ochre, dye stuffs, indigo, cochineal, annatto, madder, copperas, alum, oil vitriol, blue vitriol, logwood, brazilwood, &c., &c.; stationary, plain and ruled cap and letter paper, ink, wafers, quills, sand &c.; window glass of all sizes, sahara us, putty, sp. glass ware, perfumery, soaps, snuff, rosin, matches, blacking every thing in the medicine line, all the patent medicines of which will be sold low for cash; Van-toddiford's ague and fever pills, also his medicated lozenges, and cough, worm, and cathartic lozenges, are constantly on hand. Store on water street above Davis' Hot I.

A. T. TERRELL.

NOTICE. WHEREAS my wife Casander J. Whiting

has died and her estate is in the hands of the Court, I hereby give notice that I shall pay no debts of her contracting after the 10th day of August next.

NA. HANDEL WHITING. Nauvoo, Aug. 10, 1842. 47-3w.

WIND W. SASH. WE, carpenters, builders, &c., of the city of Nauvoo recommend H. Hammond's patent upper and improved lower window sash springs, as a very superior article.

W. Weeks, principal carpenter of Temple, L. Woodworth, do do Nauv. H. S. R. Hadlock, J. W. Coolidge, I. Fuller, M. Ramsey, H. Riding.

All windows should be made narrow, high and with parting beads.

For the proper ventilation of a room, it is absolutely necessary to lower the upper sash.

These springs are warranted not to loose their elasticity or break, have points for preserving the notches in the sash, directions for selecting the appropriate sizes and properly putting them into windows.

For sale, wholesale and retail, at several of the hardware stores in St. Louis, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, &c. See a window with these springs in operation at Mr. Mills' Masonic Hall.

Nauvoo, Aug. 13, 1842. 17-ly.

NOTES. DUE the Trustee for labor on the Temple, are left with the Temple Committee for collection. Brethren remember that your contracts with your God are sacred; the labor is wanted immediately.

W. M. HARRIS, Temple Recorder.

June 25, 1842. 10-1f.

P. S. Remember the notes due for property also.

LOOK HERE! LOOK HERE! WANTED, at the Nauvoo Foundry, a quantity of Stone coal; any persons wishing to furnish it, will please call on Hiram Kimball, or Geo. W. Robinson, at the Post Office.

Old contracts will be taken in exchange for new. Nauvoo June 3th 1842. 10-1f.

TWO FARMS TO RENT. FOR rent, two farms adjoining each other containing each about one hundred acres of land under cultivation, and situated on Bear Creek near Knollton. They will be rented on reasonable terms and immediate possession given. The stock on the farms and all necessary farming utensils will be sold or let to the renter if desired.

ROBERT JOHNSTON. Apply to John E. Johnston, Warsaw Aug. 17, 1842. no 19 3w.

AGENTS FOR THE WASH. ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill. Joseph John on, Ramona. J. Salisbury, Plymouth. Harlow R. Field, Pittsfield, Pike. L. R. Chaffin, Labar, Hancock co. Ill. Wm. Walker, M. Lomb M. Donough, co. Ill. Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY. Daniel S. Davis, Montrose. Levi Moffet, Augusta. Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA. Wm. Crutchlow, Carthage. John C. Pag, Pittsburgh. B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY. Abraham Burtis, New Egypt. Jam. Curtis, Horners Town. W. L. Appleby, R. Clinton Town. Israel J. Lewis, on River.

MASSACHUSETTS. E. Astus Snow, Salem. Freeman Nicerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN. S. S. Holmes, Lapeer.

OHIO. John Johnson, Kirtland.

NEW YORK. Charles Thompson, Batavia. L. R. Foster, City of New York.

TRAVELING AGENTS. Hiram Kimball.

DR. W. B. BRINK. Respectfully tenders his professional services to the citizens of Nauvoo, and its vicinity, as a botanic practitioner, having adopted the botanic practice from a positive conviction of the truth of its doctrines, and the unrivaled success which attends the practice; and hopes to give general satisfaction and prove the superior efficacy of the botanic treatment to those who may place themselves under his care; also a number of valuable preparations of his own compounding; such as anti-bilious pills peculiarly serviceable in dyspepsia, bilious fever, &c; restorative bitters, pulmonary balsam, cough syrup, rheumatic liniment, neutralizing cordial; this is one of the most valuable preparations known for cholera morbus, cholera infantum, or summer complaints of children, fever, ague and cancers, will be treated upon the principle of no cure no pay and those afflicted with cancers will do well to call and try a remedy which has never failed; and those who are not able to pay will be cured without charge.

Dr. B. is consulted in the most intricate and protracted cases of secret disease that require practical experience to ensure success; every species and form of the disease must yield to his treatment which is in all cases mild and soft, requiring no interruption from business or change of diet, and will treat the disease upon the principle of no cure no pay; office at the store of W. Allen, formerly occupied by Mr. E. D. Woolley.

W. B. BRINK, M. D. Nauvoo, July 2nd 1842. 12-3m.

B. N. H. & M. GUILDING PLANES. WANTED, immediately, a large number of the above Planes on tithing. The brethren who have got such and can spare them would greatly facilitate the building of the Temple by bringing them as soon as possible to the recorder's office, and they shall be entered to their credit on tithing. All kinds of bench planes whether good or indifferent can be made useful at the Temple. The molding planes should be such as suit the present fashion.

Also all lumber, which would make plane stocks, would be very serviceable.

JOSEPH SMITH, Trustee.

W. CLAYTON, Clerk.

W. H. RALSTON, Attorney & Counselor at Law, Carthage, Hancock county Ill., will practice in the Hancock Circuit court, and also in the Supreme Circuit and District Courts of this State.

Carthage, Aug. 18, 1842. 12-3w.

THE

WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—DRAKE.

Volume I.—No. 23

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, September 21, 1842.

Whole Number 23.

THE WASP.

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY

WM. SMITH,

At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.

TERMS—$1.50 invariably in advance.

ORSON PRATT,

PROFESSOR OF MATHEMATICS AND ENGLISH LITERATURE, IN THE UNIVERSITY OF THE CITY OF NAU-VOO.

MOST respectfully announces to the gentlemen and ladies of this city and vicinity, that he will commence his regular course of instruction in the various branches of education, pertaining to the Department over which he has the supervision, on Monday, the 26th day of September, A. D. 1842, at a building situated a few rods north of the Temple.

TUITION PER QU.

For Reading and Writing $2.50
 " Geography, Grammar, and Arithmetic 3.00
 " Philosophy, Chemistry, Astronomy,
 Algebra, Geometry, Conic Sections, Plane Trigonometry, Mensuration, Surveying, and Navigation. 5.00
 For Analytical Plane and Spherical
 Trigonometry, and Analytical Geometry 7.50
 And for the study of the Differential and Integral Calculus and Newton's Principles. 10.00

City of Nauvoo, Sept. 12, 1842. no 223 v.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Adam Snyder, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that Adam Snyder, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the district court room in the city of Springfield, in this district, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 4th day of September A. D. 1842.

RALSTON WARREN & WHEAT.

Solicitors for petitioner.

J. F. Owings, Clerk. 22-w2.

A TREATY

To settle and define the boundaries between the Territories of the United States and the possessions of Her Britannic Majesty in North America, for the final suppression of the Slave Trade, and for the giving up of criminals, fugitives from justice, in certain cases.

The following condensed statement of its contents, being all that we can conveniently find room for in our columns, will give our readers a correct understanding of it.—St. Gaz.

ART. I.—Northeastern Boundary.—The dividing line is to begin at the 'Monument,' at the source of the St. Croix river; thence north upon the line surveyed by both governments in 1817-18, to its intersection with the river St. John; thence up the middle of the main channel to the mouth of the St. Francis, thence up the middle of the channel of the St. Francis and the lakes through which it flows, to the outlet of Lake Pohenagapook; thence southwardly in a straight line to a point on the northwest branch of St. John, 10 miles distant in a straight line from the main branch, provided that, if said point be less than 7 miles from the summit of the ridge which separates the waters flowing into the St. John and the St. Lawrence, the point shall be seven miles in a straight line from said summit; thence in a straight line south three degrees west to the latitude of 46d. 25m. at a point where that parallel intersects the south west branch of the St. John; thence by said branch to its source of the Matarnette portage; thence down along the highlands, which divide the waters which empty themselves into the St. Lawrence from those which fall into the Atlantic Ocean, to the head of Hall's stream; thence down the middle of said stream till the line thus run intersects the old line of boundary marked by Valentine and Collins previously to the year 1774, as the 45th degree of north latitude, and which has been known as the line of actual division between New York and Vermont on one side, and Canada on the other; and from said point, west along the said dividing line to the St. Lawrence river.

ART. II.—Northern Boundary.—At a point in the Neebrick channel, near Muddy Lake, the line to run into and along the ship channel, between St. Joseph and St. Timmamy Islands, to the division of the channel at or near the head of St. Joseph; thence, turning eastwardly and northwardly, around the lower end of Sugar Island, and following the middle of the channel which divides St. George from St. Joseph; thence up the east Neebrick channel, nearest to St. George's Island, through the middle of St. Mary's river, to a point in the middle of that river, about one mile above Sugar Island, so as to assign said Is and to the United States; thence adopting the line traced on the maps by the commissioners, through the river St. Mary and Lake Superior, to a point north of Ile Royal in said lake, one hundred yards to the north and east of Ile Chapeau, which last mentioned island lies near the north eastern point of Ile Royal, where the line marked by the commissioners, terminates; and from the last mentioned point, southwesterly, through the middle of the sound between Ile Royal on the northwestern mainland, to the mouth of Pigeon river, and at the said river to and through the north and south Fowl Lakes, to the Lakes of the height of Land, between Lake Superior and the Lake of the Woods; thence along the water communication to Lake Saisaguinaga; and through that lake; thence to and through Cypress Lake, Lac au Bois Blanc Lac la Croix, Little Vermilion Lake, and Lake Namecan, and through the several smaller lakes, straits or streams connecting the lakes here mentioned, to that point in Rainy Lake, at the Chaudiere Falls, from which the Commissioners traced the line to the most northwestern point of the Lake of the Woods—thence along the said line to the said most northwestern point, being in latitude 49 23 55 north, and in longitude 95 14 33 west from Greenwich—thence due south to its intersection with the 49th parallel of north latitude, and along that parallel to the Rocky Mountains. It being understood that all the water communications, and all the usual portages along the line from Lake Superior to the Lake of the Woods, and also Grand Portage, from the shores of Lake Superior to the Region River, as now actually used, shall be free and open to the use of the citizens and subjects of both countries.

ART. III.—Navigation of the St. John.—To be free to both nations; all the produce of the forest, in logs, lumber, timber, boards, staves, or shingle, or of agriculture not being manufactured, grown on parts watered by the St. John, or its tributaries, shall have free access through said river and tributaries; when in New Brunswick, said produce shall be dealt with as if it were the produce of said province.

ART. IV.—Rights to private property.—All grants of land by either party in the disputed territory are to be held unimpaired; and all possessory rights, if held more than six years before the date of the treaty, guaranteed.

ART. V.—Payments under the Treaty.—Some moneys having been received by the authorities of New Brunswick, the produce of the forest, which were carried to a fund called the 'Disputed Territory Fund'; it is agreed, that the proportions of the amount due to Maine and Massachusetts, shall be paid to the United States; and the United States agreed to receive and pay over to Maine and Massachusetts their respective portions, and further to satisfy said States, for all expenses incurred in protecting the disputed territory, and make a survey thereof in 1838; the United States agreeing to pay them the further sum of three hundred thousand dollars.

ART. VI.—Survey of Boundary.—Commissioners to be appointed by the parties, and to meet on the 1st of May next, at Langor, to begin the survey of the line from the St. Croix to the St. Lawrence.

ART. VII.—Further stipulations as to navigation.—It is agreed that the channels in the St. Lawrence, on both sides of the Long Sault Island, and Barnhart Island; in the river Detroit, on both sides of the island of Bois Blanc, and between that island and both shores; and all the passages between the various islands lying near the junction of the river St. Clair, with the lake of that name, shall be equally free and open to both parties.

ART. VIII.—Suppression of the slave trade.—Each party to keep on the coast of Africa a naval force of not less than eighty guns, to act separately in suppressing the traffic in Slaves, but still under orders which will enable them to act in concert when necessary.

ART. IX.—Subject continued.—Agreement by both parties to unite in remonstrating with states which allow of the establishment of slave markets within their dominions, against the continuance of such markets.

ART. X.—Surrender of fugitives from justice.—Agreed on in all cases of murder, or assault with intent to commit murder, or piracy, or arson, or robbery, or forgery, or the utterance of forged papers; provided, this shall be done only upon such evidence as, according to the laws of the place where the fugitive shall be found, would justify his apprehension and commitment for trial, if the crime or offence had there been committed. The expense of apprehension and delivery to be borne by the party who makes the requisition, and receives the fugitive.

ART. XI. The eighth article to be in force for five years from date, and afterwards until one or the other party shall signify a wish to terminate it. The tenth article to continue in force until one or the other party shall signify its wish to terminate it, and no longer.

From the New Orleans Picayune.

G. W. KENDALL'S SANTA FE EXPEDITION.

Late on the evening of the 24th October and after a march of uncommon length, we reached Valencia. Here we had a pint of flour distributed to each, but many of the men were so tired, faint and sore from the long and continued marches, and from want of sleep at night, that they had neither the will nor strength to cook even this scanty ration. On the contrary they sank immediately upon the cold ground, and vainly endeavored to smother their pains and sorrows in sleep.

In the morning we found that one of our companions, a man named Ernest, had died during the night—died from hunger, cold and fatigue! His body was thrown in a ditch close by, after the brute who guarded us had cut off his ears.—An American with two or three wagons, who was on his way from St. Louis to Chihuahua with machinery, was encamped within two hundred yards of us and saw the whole of it. Salezar would not allow us to communicate with him; but we afterwards learned that he was from a plantation near this city, although I have now forgotten his name. The machinery consisted of a sugar mill upon a large scale, which he had been hired to set in operation near Monterrey of Saltillo.

As we were about starting, after the events I have just detailed, a man named John McAlister, a native of Tennessee and of an excellent family, complained that one of his ankles was sprained and that he could hardly walk. He was nearly lame in the other ankle, and could never walk without limping. On starting he was allowed to get into a cart which had been employed to carry some of the more feeble of our men; but finding it too heavily loaded, after being a mile on the road, he was ordered out and told to limp along the best way he could. Salezar had frequently told those who were unable to keep up that he would shoot them rather than have the march delayed. Although he had already struck and severely beat several of the sick and more unfortunate, we could not believe him brute enough to murder a man in cold blood, whose only crime was that he was lame; but in this we were mistaken. On being driven from the cart McAlister stated his inability to proceed on foot. Salezar told him to hurry on.—Again the unfortunate man declared himself utterly unable to walk, and this in presence of half a dozen of his comrades. The worse than brutal captain, wound up to a pitch of fury, commanded him to follow the cart or he would order him shot. "Then shoot," said McAlister, throwing open his blanket, "and the sooner the better."—Salezar took him at his word, and a single ball sent as brave a man as ever trod the earth to eternity! His ears were then cut off, his blanket and pantaloons striped from him, and his body thrown by the road side as food for the wolves!

A thrill of horror ran through the crowd as the news was spread along that one of our men was deliberately shot down in cold blood, and deep but whispered threats of revenge were heard upon every lip to atone for this most unnatural murder. In our present condition we could do nothing. At any time we could have risen and overpowered the guard but their arms were worthless, and it would have been impossible, unacquainted as we were with the country, to have cut our way through to Texas without provisions. Another thing—it was a part of Salezar's policy to drive us along and tire us down in order to prevent our escape, to weaken us to that degree that escape was impossible. Had our guard been well armed with rifles or muskets and with plenty of ammunition, we never should have been marched to the Paso del Norte; but those who had charge of us were strong merely from our weakness thus wretchedly we were compelled to journey on, in dreary hope of falling into more humane hands on reaching the State of Chihuahua.

LIGHTNING.—Clouds charged with electricity have been more frequent than usual this summer. In this country twenty-two deaths from lightning have been published, and more than fifty houses and barns burnt since the first of June.

Earthquake at Sea.—Captain Meacom, of the Bark Olof, arrived at New York, reports a heavy shock of an earthquake on the 25 of May, in latitude 67 13, longitude 102 east. The vessel shook violently, and trembled as if the mast would fall out. They threw the deep sea lead over, but found no bottom, although they let out 120 fathoms line.

From the Quincy Herald of Sept. 8.
Another abortive attempt to arrest Joe Smith.—Mr. Ford, the officer bearing the requisition from Gov. Reynolds, of Mo., for the person of Joe Smith, arrived here one day last week from Iowa Territory, whither he had been to make a similar demand on the Governor of Iowa, in case Joe Smith should cross the river. On Friday, the writs for the arrest of Smith and Rockwell were placed in the hands of Messrs. King and Pitman, and on the same evening in company with Mr. Ford and five or six others, they started for Nauvoo. Notwithstanding the officers endeavored to keep the whole proceedings secret, the news of their intentions and errand reached Nauvoo before them; and about two hours before they arrived there, Joe Smith had taken his departure, or secreted himself so that he was not to be found. There were men stationed on the opposite side of the river the day and night previous to the arrival of the officers at Nauvoo, who kept a strict look-out in case he should get wind of the coming of the officers, and cross the river. But neither of the parties saw or heard any thing of him, except that he was at home a very short time before their arrival. His house and premises were thoroughly searched; but no signs of him could be obtained. The officers returned here last Monday morning, and Mr. Ford went back to Missouri.

It was told to the officers at Warsaw, by men who were witnesses of the fact, that Joe Smith made a public speech, on Monday the 29th ult. to his followers, in which he declared that Messrs. King and Pitman were cowards, and were afraid to take him, or even to make a serious attempt. He also stated that Gov. Reynolds, of Mo., and Gov. Carlin, were fools, and that they might go to the d—l; but they would never have the pleasure of taking possession of his person; and much more, of the same braggadocio character. We know not how Gov. Carlin will relish such language, but from his well known character and temper when he is defied, we would suppose he could not swallow it as easily as Joe may suppose. It is perfectly ridiculous that one man, of the calibre of Joe Smith, should throw defiance in the teeth of the people of two States. What in the name of common sense are our laws for, if it is impossible to put them in execution in so simple an instance as the one now under consideration? Can it be possible that the people of Illinois will suffer a proclaimed culprit and fugitive from justice, to throw himself in the centre of some two or three thousand followers, and then defy the Executive of the State, and the officers of justice, and proclaim himself independent of, and above the laws of the State, in the most insulting language?—For the honor of Illinois, we hope that effective measures may be speedily taken on the part of the Governor to crush such treason in the bud.

The Warsaw Signal of Sept. 3, says on the same subject.

Joe Smith's Whereabouts.—It is now reduced to a certainty, that Smith is in Nauvoo. On Monday last, he addressed a large crowd of his followers in that city, on the subject of the late attempt to arrest him. He stated that he would not be taken—that King and Pitman, (the officers charged with the arrest) were cowards, and could not take him. He was very profuse of oaths—cursing every thing that did not smell of Mormonism.

At the conclusion of his speech, he commissioned two hundred and fifty Ministers to travel throughout the country, and preach the Gospel—instructing them to exert all converts to migrate to Nauvoo.

The Nauvoo Wasp says significantly that "Joseph Smith will not go to Missouri to be murdered." Nor will he be permitted to go there, apprehensive that justice may be meted out to him.

We are inclined to see that the Governor's demand is likely to get up; and should he not be "headed" by the "cliche" here, he probably may get Joe Smith—if he wishes to get him.

"All them" gracious calculations ("up there") of weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth, we extract from the "Sangamo Journal" of September 10. Some men are naturally like trude louts as the scripture saith, and just fit to "perish in their own corruption." What is the use of all the froth and foam against Joseph Smith, and the curd and curds for Gov. Carlin? who pays Francis for "firing" for the mobbers of Missouri? It is a crusade of persecution, and the poor foolish Sangamo Journal, and the dark hands of the Signal and Herald, heave the lead, and cry "mark above water now," when they know they are on the quicksands of murder and treason, and where is the virtue, the candor, the generosity, the clemency, humanity, and even common honesty, to call upon men to come out over their own names, as did the Journal, and when they come out as did Elder Rigdon and Orson Pratt, and make fair statement, to abuse them because they did not lie to bolster up such a "scab" of corruption as Bennett?

Notwithstanding the officers endeavored to keep the whole proceedings secret, the news of their intention and errand reached Nauvoo before them. But one answer is needed to heal this wonderful complaint; hoop your own leaky barrels, or else acknowledge a prophet foretelling events.

Seriously, it seems the hand of God, or "fate," as some may say, is against the whole proceeding. With all the libels and slanders of the Journal and his barking blood hounds, put upon the track of the Mormons, by Missouri money or malice, they have not yet coaxed or cozened the good citizens of Illinois into the belief that there is even-handed justice among mobbers, or that it is worth while to disturb the peace of the state of Illinois, because Boggs can murder and swear to it! Neither will honest men be humbugged into a notion to tear the flesh of themselves and neighbors, because the persons upon whom Bennett's statements depended, have left him and those that supported him naked hums of putrid flesh. Carrion is a nuisance!

Tom Sharp, having let his paper edit itself week before last, while he was cyphering in the double rule of one, to multiply the nincompoops of Warsaw, came out last week with another of his awful, fearful, badful, woeful thrusts at Joe Smith and the Mormons because they would consent to be transported to Missouri to be murdered as many have been; or because they would agree to be "driven out of the State en masse for sport." He concluded by saying:

"This is the pass we have come to; and yet there are white men to be found, who tell us that there is no danger to be apprehended from the Mormons?" and singing

Good Lord! good Devil too,

O tell us what to do!

'Tis such a trouble to be troubled

When a Podunk nose is doubt-ed.

Now Tom, what a curious circumstance it is, that the saints won't break nor resist the law, to satiate your thirst for blood. O dear what can the matter be?"

GREAT HOAX.

The following, we believe, is the climax of hoaxing. It would be worth while to be acquainted with men's signatures before they are introduced for war. This truly is Bennett's first wonder.

HEAD QUARTERS, NAUVOO LEGION, }
 City of Nauvoo, Aug. 4th, 1842. }

GENERAL ORDER.

As General John C. Bennett has retired from the service, General James Arington Bennett, the next ranking officer, is hereby ordered to repair forthwith to the Head Quarters of the Legion and assume the command, accompanied by his chief Aid de-Camp, General James Gordon Bennett.

The requisition from the Executive of Missouri, on the Executive of Illinois for the person of the Lieutenant General (at the instance of their accomplice, Dr. John C. Bennett,) for the attempted assassination of Ex-Gov. Boggs, makes it necessary that the most able and experienced officers should be in the field, for if the demand is persisted in, blood must be shed.

By order of Lieut. Gen. JOSEPH SMITH.

HUGH McFALL,

Adjutant General

N. Y. Weekly Herald, of Sep. 2, purporting to be a General Order, ever my signature, as Adjutant General of the Nauvoo Legion, I, Gen. James Arington Bennett, ordering him to repair to Nauvoo, &c., I take this method of testifying to the public that no such order, or any thing of the kind, has ever proceeded from my mouth or pen, in any shape or manner whatever, and I hereby declare the article alluded to, a base forgery and piece of deception. The article has evidently been got up with a design to excite the public feeling and serve as an incentive to the many false, slanderous, and ridiculous statements afloat in the world and which the enemies of the Mormon people would fane make the world believe are true. If a bad course cannot be supported by better arguments let it go down to its own place. The article is a falsehood.

I am not a Mormon, but a lover of truth and justice.

HUGH McFALL,

Adj. Gen. Nauv. Leg.

The last Nauvoo "Times and Seasons" has an article designed to prove, that although Joe Smith may be a great knave, he is about as good a man as any of the Ancient prophets.—Sangamo Journal.

Saul (Sim) among the Prophets. Well, there were lying spirits in old time. Go it State Fool.

THE MORMON DEVELOPMENTS.—Gen. Bennett has turned out a great deal worse than any body anticipated. His lectures are nothing but an unintelligible farrago of nonsense, blasphemy, lewdness and obscenity. For particulars see the Signal and Herald, where they are reported at length.—N. Y. Daily Weekly.

Do you hear that? That that thunder to the fellow Doctor.

The communication of Lyman Wight, with the accompanying affidavit, will appear next week.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM ROBERT D. FOSTER.

For want of room, we cannot give the whole of this interesting letter to our readers, but will extract that part of it which is of most importance.

New York city,

Sept. 1st 1842.

In great haste, I sit down to inform you that I, together with my wife, arrived in this city on the 30th Aug., late in the evening. I took up my board at the corner of Liberty and Greene Streets, at Mr. Rush's; the little Daily Herald was thrown in my room on the morning of the 31st, and I hastily ran over its columns and found that that unhalloved scoundrel, J. C. Bennett, had been lecturing against the people of the city of Nauvoo, in the 2nd Congregational church in this city. Bennett, of the Herald, used the lecture in his own independent way, and with some true sayings of his own summed it up for what it was worth. By this valuable little paper I found out where he was to lecture again, and last evening repaired thither with my wife, and paid 25 cents to hear Mormonism, with all its absurdities, exposed. I hid my face somewhat behind others till he had got through his long ditty, as also his associate, one by the name of Bachelor, a man of no character, no principle, no talent; however they both lied almost every sentence they uttered; they both spoke as they did also the night before. Bachelor commenced by reading from Missouri Documents of Ayer's testimony, John Corvill's and others; he said they were of undoubted veracity; he made much ado about the Danites; all he said, however, might be put in a nutshell and so the majority of the people treated it;—he said, however, that the Mormons preached destruction to all who would not obey them, and said there was no other way of subduing the Mormons than by the SWORD! This, you see, was admissible by such a scoundrel as Bachelor with Bennett to back him. Bennett was now introduced to the congregation by Bachelor—he arose—not as he used to do—(to some extent innocent); but Horror and infamy was depicted on his sallow visage; for his fiend like smile and fained vivacity, he could not obtain from the audience a solitary look of gratitude for all the pains he had taken in their interest—his attack was principally personal; he said Jo was notoriously profane—said that all surplus property must be given up—he calls sister Emma the Delectable Emma—Joseph he calls God of the Mormon Hierarchy—Hyrum Jesus—W. Law the Holy Ghost—says he was Holy Ghost pro tem—he said all the prisoners in Hancock county and Adams were Mormons, and they were murderers, burglars, and they were committed for all manner of theft—he says they stabbed a citizen of Hancock—he says—he was there when they caught and secured the Mormons for this act; but he did not tell, in connection, that it was an unhallowed thing—that he was taken by Mormons, who, at the risk of their lives, took him and delivered him up.

He said he had received letters from Nauvoo this day from S. Rigdon, Mrs. White, Gen. Robinson, P. M. and C. L. Higbee, Mrs. Pratt and Orson Pratt, who said they were preparing to leave and expose Mormonism. S. Rigdon was writing a book against Joseph, which would astound the world—he said Mrs. P. was told to go out and work for a living by Delectable Emma—said Joseph had her provisions stopped in order to bring her over to the spiritual wife system—he said she was one of the best educated ladies of the west—beautiful withal, and I could not resist her,—he says Joseph also tried to seduce a lady of great respectability by the name of Mrs. White—he relates all the affair, but he says she was so virtuous he could not come it—he says Jo wrote to her that she might have all she wanted by going to B. Knight and mention the Old White Hat;—he says Jo offered him $500 to get Miss Nancy Rigdon for him; but he would not do it.—Dr. Weld also tells him all goes on there now.

I listened to all his cursed lies, and when he had got through, I did not know a soul present; but I got up and requested privilege to speak; Bennett said, Dr. Foster, you may speak anywhere else but here; but, however, I went on and he and his associate tried to get off; but they got their change in short order—I told Bennett he was a liar and was worse than many now in the penitentiary. The people cried out for a debate; I told them that I was not accustomed to public speaking; Bennett said I was and he had often heard me;—he said I was the Surgeon General of the Legion;—yes I told them I was, and that I was a Mormon, and was proud of it, and he was a whoremonger and blasphemer, and I was ashamed to acknowledge that I ever knew him. He is to deliver a lecture to gentlemen only on Friday evening, too infamous and obscene for ladies; he says this will be a full exposition of secret wife and Jo Smithism—he says he will put down Jo at all hazards—says he is coming to Nauvoo to make us tremble;—I told him I had seen him before;—he told the people we were well disciplined and well armed, and no one had any business there short of 5 or 6 to one, we were so courageous. So you see how villainous Bennett is;—he says he knows me like a book and I can't have the privilege of speaking in that church; but if he does and I don't, I am no prophet, if he don't tell truth. I can't tell half what he said; but I believe all he does is to study lies enough nights to pay his expenses. I show the people here now he has lied and tried to father all his own eniquity upon Joseph Smith.

Respectfully,

R. D. FOSTER.

For the Wasp.

Post Office, Nauvoo Ill., }
 Sept. 21st 1842. }

Dear Sir: I have been informed this morning by good authority, that a letter was received at this office, from Dr. R. D. Foster, written from New York city, which states that Dr. J. C. Bennett had declared, in said city, that he had received a letter from me, and that I was writing a book making disclosures of some kind, or what character I am not informed. I wish, through the medium of your paper, to say to the public, that said statements are utterly false; I have never written a letter to Dr. J. C. Bennett, on any subject, nor received one from him, since he left Nauvoo; nor am I, nor have I been, writing a book on any subject. I have written to the New York Herald contradicting said report.

Respectfully,

SIDNEY RIGDON.

The First White Settlement in Nantucket.—The New Bedford Gazette says that Thomas Macy was the first white person that settled on the island of Nantucket, of whose history it relates the following incidents; In 1665, King Philip, the sachem of Mount Hope, went to Nantucket with his suite in pursuit of one of his tribe who was guilty of the crime of sacrilege, inasmuch as he had taken the name, of a deceased sachem in vain. The name of the fugitive was Asassam, and the impious act which he had committed had aroused the indignation of the whole tribe. Philip and his retinue landed from their canoes, on the west end of the island, and traveled to the settlement on the east end, where the criminal had taken refuge. On his arrival there, Asassam fled to good old Thomas, imploring his protection, and was concealed. Philip demanded him, and became so warlike that an assembly of the white inhabitants took place, when a treaty was entered into by the parties, one condition of which was, that Philip should have all the money on the island, he would release Asassam. A collection took place, nineteen shillings were raised for Philip, and he returned to Mount Hope satisfied.

ARRIVAL OF THE COLUMBIA.

BALTIMORE, Sunday Morning.

1 o'clock, A. M. Sept. 4, 1842.

DEAR SIR:—I make the following extracts from the "Boston Extra Sun" of the arrival of the Caledonia at Boston on Friday morning at 5 1-4 o'clock A. M.

The Caledonia brings dates, from London and Liverpool, up to the 15th ult.

"We continue to receive very distressing accounts from the disturbed districts. Several rioters have been shot by the military at Burslem, in Staffordshire.

The house of Sir Robert Peel at Tamworth is said to have been burned by a mob.

Alarming state of the Manufacturing Districts in England and Scotland.—A sudden and extensive rising of the working classes took place early in the week in Lancashire, and other manufacturing districts, which has spread the greatest alarm, not only in the localities more immediately affected, but throughout the whole country. Fears are entertained that an organization prevails, which embraces the entire manufacturing population in the kingdom, as, simultaneously with the outbreak in Lancashire, there have been alarming indications of an intention to disturb the public peace in the neighborhood of Glasgow, Dumfries, Aberdeen, and other parts of Scotland. The immediate cause of the outbreak in Lancashire is a dispute between masters and men on the subject of wages.

They accordingly struck work in some of the Manchester Mills, where the reduction was intended to be first carried into effect. The workmen who had thus struck, proceeded in a body to the various other mills in the town and neighborhood, where they were readily joined by the workmen employed in these establishments.

In the course of a very short period the numbers of the disaffected became so great, and their conduct so menacing, that the remaining manufactories were shut by the proprietors, as a measure of precaution for the safety of their property. The outbreak which commenced on Monday morning, had on Tuesday assumed a most fearful aspect, and suggested to the authorities the propriety of taking immediate and decisive steps for the protection of property and life.

The military were accordingly called out, the riot act was read, and upwards of two thousand five hundred special constables have been sworn in Manchester, and five hundred in Salford. In the meantime the mob, amounting to many thousands, have continued to march from place to place, entering shops and houses, demanding bread, and breaking open the gas works, with a view of throwing the town into a state of darkness. In one place they furiously attacked the police, and killed two of their number, while they severely beat others. Near 120 of the turn-outs have been taken into custody and committed to prison. Some of them have received considerable personal injury in the collisions that have taken place between them and the military and the special constables; while no fewer than 23 of the peaceable inhabitants have been so much hurt in these affrays that it has been deemed necessary to send them to the hospital.

In addition to the above, we have been favored with the perusal of a letter received by J. C. Vaughn, Esq., editor of the Gazette, dated Liverpool Aug. 18th and 19th, which refers more particularly to the riots in Manchester. The writer states that the city was literally an immense camp, that the military had surrounded the city, and that the mob had all quit work, and camp in large masses, to reinforce the city mob. Serious fears were entertained for the safety of the town.

Large bodies of troops and whole parks of artillery were moving in every direction where outbreaks had already taken place and where they were expected.

The rising all over the manufacturing districts from Manchester to Glasgow, appeared to be simultaneous.

Vast bodies of men and children were roaming over the fields digging potatoes and other roots for food to satisfy the cravings of hunger.

A crisis seems to have arrived which will require all the strength of the Government to pass with safety. We shall look with much interest and feeling, for the details of these awful occurrences, the natural effect of causes which have long pointed to this end.

Tremendous Rain Storm.—The Northampton (Mass.) Gazette says:—We had one of the heaviest rain storms last Saturday night that we ever witnessed. The rain began to fall in torrents early on Saturday evening, and continued without much cessation, until about 8 o'clock on Sunday morning. At times the water literally poured down. Much damage was done to the roads.

The canal was a sufferer. About five rods on the bank in Easthampton, about a mile this side of Pomeroy's locks, was carried away. This breach will be repaired in three or four days. Another breach occurred in Westfield—how extensive we have not learned.

A part of the new dam, at Hayden's button factory, which was nearly completed, was washed away. Damage about $150.

At Williamsburg, the old bridge near the hotels was carried off. Sears', Eakkers' and Moffat and Mason's dams, across the same streams fell a prey to the resistless torrent.

At Norwich the flood was equally destructive. "Little River bridge," so called, near the mouth of the stream, was swept away; and it is said that every bridge on the stream above shared the same fate. Asa Merritt lost a part of the dam at his saw-mill. A part of the Norwich bridge, near Hatsh's was carried away by the masses of floating timber which were collected against it.

Pomeroy's saw-mill, and Higgins' saw-mill, in Worthington, on Little River, were both carried away.

The dam at the wrapping paper mill, belonging to Mr. Enock Lyman, in Westhampton, was carried away.

TOTAL ECLIPSE OF THE SUN, JULY 8, 1842.

We have been indulged with the perusal of a private letter from that excellent astronomer, Francis Bailey, Esq., giving an account of this superb phenomenon, as witnessed "by himself at Pavia, (in Italy,) which town the line of central darkness exactly passed. The appearances were every way extraordinary, unexpected and most singular. At the moment when the total obscuration commenced, a brilliant crown of glory encircled the moon, like the aureola which Catholic painters append to their saints. Suddenly from the border of the black and laboring moon, thus singularly encircled burst forth, of three distinct points, within the aureola, purple or lilac flames, visible to every eye! At this moment, from the whole assembled population of the town, a simultaneous and deafening shout broke forth. A similar manifestation of popular feeling is recorded at Milan occasioned by the selfsame astonishing spectacle, accompanied in the latter instance with a general "Huzah! vivent les astronomes!"—London Athenaeum.

Mobs in Canada.—We have a letter from a respectable gentleman in St. Catherine's, dated on Sunday, which states that the riots among the laborers there are by no means quelled, although it was confidently expected that the arrival of the troops from Toronto and Kingston, which were hourly expected, would soon restore order and tranquillity. However, whether this would be effected without bloodshed, as for the last five days the village of St. Catherine's and, in fact, the whole district on the line of the Welland canal, had been held in complete abeyance by the mob, which was variously estimated at from 800 to 1200 men. Vessels passing through the canal have been stopped and provisions demanded. On Thursday evening last the mob in great numbers, entered the village of St. Catherine's, bearing in their rout a large placard, on one side of which was painted "BREAD OR WORK," and on the other "Peace and Union—God save the Queen!" They marched through the village, and proceeded to a flour mill and took out some dozen barrels, but, on opening, finding them to be filled with corn meal, they were left, and the mob then proceeded to a vessel there, from which they took thirteen barrels of pork. No resistance was offered, as it would have been madness, opposed to so large a body. No private dwelling has as yet been invaded. On Saturday night the streets were thronged during the whole night, by the mob, shooting, fighting and haranguing. No cause can be assigned by our informant for this extraordinary outbreak, but the simple fact that there is an immense number of labourers more there than can be employed, and consequently, in the spirit of desperation, they have taken this extraordinary method to obtain subsistence.

Scraps of Knowledge.

1. The following is the perpendicular altitude of the highest mountain peaks, in Europe, Asia, Africa and America, respectively:—

	EUROPE.	FEET.
Mont Blanc, (Alps.)		15,663.
	ASIA.
Dhaulagiri, (Himalayas.)		23,077.
	AFRICA.
Geesh, (Abyssinia.)		15,600.
	AMERICA.
Chimborazo, (Andes.)		21,425.

2. Professor Jamieson gives the following estimate of the number of volcanoes in the world:

On the continent of Europe	1.
On the islands of Europe,	12.
On the continent of Asia,	8.
On the islands of Asia,	53.
On the continent of America,	37.
On the islands of America,	19.
	195.

3. The respective lengths of the largest rivers in the world are:—

	EUROPE.	MILES.
Volga, Rises in Central Russia,		2000.
Don, — — Lake St John, Russia,		900.
Rhine, — — Switzerland,		700.
Dnieper, — — Russia,		1000.
	ASIA.
Lena, — — Siberia,		2000.
Yenisei, — — Altai Mountains,		2000.
Indus, — — Himalaeh mountains,		1300.
Hoangho, — — Chinese Tartary,		2000.
Ganges, — — Hindmaeh mountains,		1600.
	AFRICA.
Nile, — — Mountains of the Moon,		2000.
Niger, — — Kong mountains,		2000.
	N. AMERICA.
Mississippi, — — Highlands 47 & 43 deg N.		3000.
Missouri, — — Rocky Mountains,		2500.
Arkansas, — — Rocky Mountains,		1500.
Red River, — — New Mexico,		1500.
Ohio, — — Allegany Mountains,		1350.
Columbia, — — Rocky Mountains,		1500.
St Lawrence, — —		2000.
	S. AMERICA.
Amazon, — — Andes,		4000.
La Plata, — — Mountains of Peru,		2000.
Oronoco, — — Andes,		1400.

4. The estimated numbers of the several species of animals on the globe, are as follows:—

Quadrupeds, 300 species	Fishes, 6,000 species
Birds, 6,000 do.	Amphibia 2,000 do.
Insects, 200,000 do.	Total, 215,000.

4. ASSYRIA, considered as afterwards including Babylonia, is the oldest of nations, and founded on the spot where the tower of Babel was erected. The commencement of this empire may be dated not many years after the dispersion took place, or about 2225 years B. C. Its founder was Ashur, the son of Shem, who built Nineveh, its capital. After standing 120 years it was united to Babylonia, and then became a mighty empire.

5. CHINA, is among the most ancient empires of the world. Its records extend to more than 2200 years B. C. It is said to have been founded by one of the colonies formed at the dispersion of Noah's posterity, under the conduct of Yao, who took for his colleague Chun, afterwards his successor. Other accounts state that Fo-hi was the founder of this monarchy, and many writers consider Fo-hi to have been Noah himself. The Chinese pretend a much higher antiquity than is here assigned to them, but their pretensions are merely the effect of national vanity.

EGYPT claims, and certainly possesses, a high antiquity. Its early annals however are so obscure, that scarcely any thing can be ascertained respecting its first kings, after Menes. He is generally acknowledged as the founder of the Egyptian empire, and is supposed to be the same as Misraim mentioned in scripture among Ham's sons, 2183 years B. C. His children divided the land; whence arose four kingdoms, which subsisted separately during several centuries, and were successively united under one yoke.

These four kingdoms are known by the names of Thebes, Thin, Memphis, and Tanna. The people had attained to considerable civilization, but a period of barbarism soon afterwards succeeded, supposed about 2004 years B. C., under the shepherd kings, or Hyexos, which lasted two and a half centuries. In regard to the history of the kingdoms of Egypt there is extreme uncertainty.

ILLUSTROUS PAUPERS.—Fat salaries paid for doing nothing.—The annuities paid to the royal family of England, for the year ending January 5th, 1841, were as follows:—Duke of Sussex $105,000; Duke of Cambridge $13,000; Princess Mary Duchess of Gloucester $80,000; Princess Sophia $30,000; Augusta $80,000; Sophia of Gloucester $25,000; Adelaide, Queen Dowager $50,000; Duchess of Kent $150,000; King Leopold of Belgium $250,000; Cumberland King of Hanover $105,000; Servants of George III, Queen Charlotte and Queen Caroline $70,000.

REPORT OF DEATHS, FOR THE WEEK ENDING ON FRIDAY THE 23RD INST.

Mary E. Green, aged 1 year and 5 months; inflammation of bowels.

Lois Bois, aged 2 years and 9 months; whooping cough.

Isaac S. Snider, (Aprenose) aged 10 months; whooping cough.

Gazelem G. Bidwell, aged 11 months; inflammation of brain.

Mary Gabbot, aged 4 years and 6 months; consumption.

Sarah Ann McIntire, aged 11 months; black canker.

Lucinda S. Knight, aged 37 years; consumption.

Richard Ashley, aged 43 years and 4 months; fever.

Rebecca Hodge, aged 1 year; canker.

Total 9.

W. D. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton.

District Court of the United States, (within and for the District of Illinois.)

In the matter of the petition of James H. Cooper, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that James H. Cooper, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 7th day of October next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of September A. D. 1842.

RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,

Solicitors for petitioner.

Attest: J. F. Owings Clerk. 23-w-2.

ADMINISTRATOR'S NOTICE.

THE undersigned having taken out letters of administration on the estate of Theodore Carle, late of Hancock county, deceased, hereby notifies and requests all persons, having claims against said estate, to present them to the court of Probate of said county, on the first Monday in the month of November next, in order to have the same adjusted according to law. All persons indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment.

JESSE GILMAN, Administrator.
Carthage, Sept. 16, 1842. no23-1r.

THE WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 24

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, October 1, 1842.

Whole Number 24.

THE WASP.

EDITED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY
WM. SMITH.
At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.
TERMS—$1.50 invariably in advance.

GROCERIES.

STARNES & SPRINGER inform the customers and the merchants generally of Nauvoo, that they have a large assortment of Groceries on hand which they offer very cheap. Any orders sent to them will be punctually attended to, and goods put at the lowest price.
No. 4 Water St., St. Louis, Sept 3, 1842.
no20-3m.

Wood wanted at this Office.

The editors of the Sangamo Journal and the State Register, refusing to publish the following communication, from Col. Lyman Wight, it has been forwarded to us for an insertion in the Wasp.

To the editors of the Sangamo Journal and the Illinois State Register:
Messrs. Editors:—

As I am no politician, but a perfect lover of Washington and Jefferson principles, I wish to make a few statements of facts to disabuse the public mind concerning the late excitement in this place, which has come in consequence of John C. Bennett's expulsion from the Church of the Latter-Day Saints. This excitement at first surpassed its bounds, when we consider that the public prints were teeming with slanderous abuses on the church for having received so notorious a character in fellowship with them. We have learned from some of the presses since his expulsion that he has become notorious for telling the truth. When did he learn to tell so much truth? before he came into the church? certainly not, for he learned to tell the truth while in the church, then the statements he made when with us are true which you will find in the Wasp: cut from the 'Times and Seasons,' concerning his vision of Zion—or has he learned to tell the truth since he left? I leave an honest community to judge for themselves—I shall annex an affidavit of a good citizen of Lyma, Adams county, who does not belong to the Mormons, of Bennett's character. I will evade as much as possible of injuring his character, as this is no object to me.

We found our religion upon a more sure foundation. We appeal to the constitution of the United States for equal rights and privileges which are guaranteed to all fellow citizens; the right of worshipping God according to their own consciences. The excitement which you had in Springfield grew out of Joseph Smith being taken with a writ sworn out by Ex-Governor Boggs, for being accessory to an attempt of assassination on the night of the 6th of May, 1842, when it can be proved by more than one thousand witnesses, who do not belong to the church, and more than five thousand members, who know that he was in Nauvoo on the seventh. I therefore conclude the only object that Ex Gov. Boggs could have had was to get Jo, as he called him, into the State of Missouri, that the people might have a perfect right to exterminate him under a previous order of his Excellency, while officiating in his office. In this Mr. Smith claimed nothing more than the law of the land, which guarantees to every man the right to be tried in his own State for any crime real or pretended, agreeable to the constitution of the United States, Article 4th, Section 2nd, and the State Constitution which guarantees the same right and prohibits the trial contrary to law to gratify the prejudice of any individual or community. Mr. Smith is at home paying attention to his own business, which would be best for all persons to follow the same occupation. I was in Nauvoo on the day Smith was taken and from that time to the present I can say from personal observation there has been no excitement in that city. There is about five hundred dwellings going up to shelter the eastern emigrants from the inclement season which is fast approaching and they who are as sanguine in their belief as any other people; and that man or body of men that falls upon them will commit murder, for they are an innocent people.

And as for the character of Joseph Smith I pledge myself to support it in common with the prophets of the old testament scriptures. I also believe in future rewards and punishments and he that raises his hand by the spirit of mobocracy against a civil community will awake in that auspicious day when the dead shall arise where the presence of God shall never come.

It is however but reasonable to conjecture from the spirit of mobocracy hitherto manifested by Gov. Carlin and his bosom associates, Duncan and Boggs, that their smothered desires will not cease to unvail their cloven feet while a little usurpation of authority can be exercised even in the expiring but dernier hope of keeping that spirit alive, some new writ will be issued by Carlin as well to please his wire workers as his own malevolent disposition.

Yours,

LYMAN WIGHT.

Col. L. Wight:—

Dear Sir: On being requested by a friend to make a few statements concerning the character of John C. Bennett I will proceed as follows: To go into the particulars of his character would be absurdity therefore I will relate a few of the outlines. I became intimately acquainted with him during his residence in Hochocing city, Atlas county, Ohio, he came there as a Physician and Methodist preacher; he also brought with him his family—he was not long there until the citizens began to look upon him with an eye of suspicion on account of bad conduct. To convince themselves farther, they sent to different places where he had been previously residing. On getting returns from those places it was found that he was not worthy of fellowship amongst any civil community—he was then called before council for examination. I was present when there was documents brought against him sufficient to condemn the Heathen. About this time his wife, who was a daughter of Col. Barker (Marietta, Ohio,) came out against him and declared that she could no longer live with him—that his ill-usage towards her was already more than she could bear. She also declared that if he succeeded in separating the pair that he was then in difficulty with that it would be the seventh family that he had parted during their union. She then requested her brothers to take her entirely from him which they immediately done, they being leading members of the country and not wishing to be connected with so base a character, and bid him to leave the country which he done in the night and I saw no more of him until I came to Illinois.

Any persons wishing to know the particulars will do well to call on me and others that lived there at that time, that reside in this country at present. Call on Wm. Stewart, near Fort Madison; E. A. Gibbs and Dr. Stephenson, near West Point.

JOHN CARTER.

I hereby certify the foregoing statements are true.

ROBERT ALLISON.

State of Illinois,
County of Adams.

This day, personally appeared before me, John Carter and Robert Allison, and made oath that the foregoing statements were true.

Given under my hand and seal at my office, in Lima, this first day of September A. D. 1842.
JOSEPH ORR, J. P. [Seal.]
of A. C. Illinois.

DEPARTURE OF LORD ASHBURTON AND THE BRITISH FRIGATE WARSPITE.

The press of foreign news and other matter compels us to be brief on this subject. Lord Ashburton rose last Saturday by half past six; and immediately on entering his sitting room he commenced reading the 'New York Herald' containing the important foreign news. Soon afterwards, he sent over to our office by a special messenger requesting the loan of some English papers, and we had the pleasure of supplying him with two or three files of late London papers. He breakfasted about eight o'clock, read and answered a few letters, received the visits of several friends, and at half-past eleven took his seat in a pain carriage, and was driven down to the Castle Garden. At the boat club stairs, the barge of Lord John Hay, with fourteen oars and a Lieutenant, was in waiting for him. There were about seven or eight hundred persons waiting to see him off. He walked from Mrs. Petter's, the Battery Hotel, to the stairs, leaning on the arm of the first Lieutenant of the Warspite, and followed by the crowd. He went inside the Castle Garden for a minute, and returned and embarked in silence.

Not a cheer was given by those assembled, and no demonstration was made until the barge arrived abreast of the North Carolina. Then that noble vessel opened her mouth, and fired a salute of 19 guns to Lord John Hay. The men in the barge held their oars upright, the crew of the North Carolina manned the yards and gave three hearty cheers. As soon as Lord Ashburton reached the Warspite, that vessel returned the salute. After this, Commodore Perry, in his barge, left the North Carolina, and went on board the Warspite, and took a quiet parting, private drink with Lord Ashburton and Lord John Hay. He stayed there about five minutes. As soon as he left, the Warspite fired a Post Captain's salute in honor of Commodore Perry. When the latter reached the North Carolina he returned the salute, and manned the rigging.

The Warspite then fired a National Salute of 21 guns and got under weigh, with a steamboat on each side of her. The North Carolina returned the National Salute, and the Warspite proceeded slowly down the bay, with the best wishes of all for her speedy and prosperous voyage.—N. Y. Herald.

RUSSIA.

The Russian army under General Grabbe have been defeated by the Circassians, with a loss to the former of 1500 men and 25 officers. The Russian artillery was, however, saved.

CHINA, INDIA, &c.

The overland mail which left Bombay, June 18th, arrived at Marseilles 1st instant, and reached London on the 3d instant, by extraordinary express. The latest intelligence from China is to the 12th of April; that from India to the fifth of May. It was feared that Yang, an imperial commissioner, was en route to offer 40,000,000 dollars as compensation to the British for the expenses of the war, and the surrendered opium; also the session of Hong Kong as the price of peace. The Chinese has already commenced removing the ruins and rubbish preparatory to rebuilding the Bogue forts. Some fighting had taken place at Ningpo, in which 1100 British routed 6000 Chinese, with the loss of from five to seven hundred slain. The British had three killed and forty wounded.

Among the items of intelligence from Scinde, and which may be depended upon as authentic are the announcement that a large army, said to be 25,000 strong, is advancing from Mushed to Herat, and that very suspicious conferences were held at Hydrabad, between the Ameers and others, requiring the most vigilant attention of Major Culram. The Seiks are said to be in force on the Muree territory, without their object being understood.

Afghanistan.—News from Jellalabad is to the 20th of May. Akbar Khan had demanded 10,000 rupees for Gen. Elphinstone's remains.

The Khyber Pass was re-occupied by the Afreedes, and the whole road from Cabul stockaded and defended by all the obstructions, the enemy could oppose.—General Sale's victory over Akbar Khan had struck such terror into the minds of the people that it was thought the British troops might have moved on the capital without resistance, had not the force been deficient in every requisite for so large an army.

THE CANADA RIOTERS.

The Niagara Chronicle of August 31 says that the jail in that town is filled with prisoners, taken during the riots on the Welland Canal, and intimates the necessity of a special commission for their immediate trial. Their national animosities broke out even in the prison. There were among them three Connaught men, and the others, Corkonians, made such ferocious attacks upon these three that to save their lives they were removed to the debtors' side of the jail.

One of the prisoners is charged with murder—a man named Patrick Clark having died of the injuries he received in a riot about three miles from St. Catharines, in which the prisoners was a participant.

The Chronicle says:—

The interior of this district has been in a dreadful state, and from all we hear is very little better yet. Bands of dangerous men, armed, and prowling about in all directions, forcibly entering the dwellings of the inhabitants, and stealing property of all descriptions, more particularly taking away all the arms they can lay their hands upon. And it is evident that there can be neither peace nor safety until the rival factions are so far separated as to remove the chance of collision.

One bad feature of the matter is that many of them will not work, for we know several instances of employment with reasonable wages having been offered and refused. In St. Catharines a corps of 150 volunteers had been formed, who kept watch day and night.

To day we learn that things look more peaceable, and that the plunderings have ceased.

Catimitous.—We learn from the Dayton Transcript that on Saturday afternoon last, during the tremendous thunder storm which passed over that place, the house of Mr. Boyer was struck by lightning. One of his children, a little girl about 13 years old, was killed dead on the spot.

The shock was awful, and shattered the house considerably. The fluid struck the chimney, and then ran down to the cornice and branched off on the tin spouts. It rived the rafter, smashed down the porch, and broke nearly all the windows in the house, tearing out the bricks and splitting the wall in various places. It had been excessively warm for several days previous, and the cloud which passed over appeared to be heavily charged with electricity.

BY INDUSTRY WE THRIVE.

The great change on the face of the earth in Nauvoo, has been wrought by the industry of the saints. The wilderness has been made to blossom as the rose; and where hazle-brush grew and muskitoes couined, gardens decorate, and the saints rest. We say 'rest,' because it is a luxury for them to be let alone two or three years. But to our purpose, the country for several miles around, is already risen into the great mass of a city, built by the only people on the earth, that while they labor incessantly to make this earth like the garden of the Lord, labor also, without purse or script, to make men fit subjects for his kingdom and coming.

The city, we think, may now contain from one to two thousand houses, with a population of 14 or 15000: and no matter what the enemy of true religion may say, nor how many may choose to return to the begarly elements of the world, as in every age when Christ had a church upon the earth, and as, in every place where the saints have been located for the time being, whatsoever they have to do, in righteousness they have done with their might.

If this world would drop the scales from their eyes but once, and see what is designed for the benefit and salvation of mankind, by the course the saints are pursuing, we think that persecution would find less advocates, and honest men more friends. Instead of falsehood, foolish reports, vague surmises, and lies as empty as the space of air they occupy, we would see honest men, act like the wise men of old, we have seen the star in the east and have come to worship the man child. Now ye great of the earth, without honest intention a prophet and the spirit of God, who told those 'wise men' to go and worship the babe in the manger? Would to God that, at least, a balance of this generation would go and do like wise.

The following communications, together with one from Elder Rigdon, last week, will show the public that J. C. Bennett, assisted by his misanthropic friend, Orin Bachelor, continues to live by lying. He cannot long deceive community in this way, but must fall to fester in his own infamy, shame and disgrace. If there is any such thing as working out self-damnation, Bennett and Bachelor can do it.

For the Wasp.

City of Nauvoo, Ill.,
Sept. 26, 1842.

Mr. Editor:—

Dear Sir: I noticed, in the last week's Wasp, a letter from Dr. R. D. Foster, written in Nauvoo, which states that Dr. J. C. Bennett had declared, in said city, that he had received a letter from me and from my wife, and that we were preparing to leave and expose Mormonism. I wish, through the medium of your paper, to say to the public, that said statements are entirely false. We have never, at any time, written any letter or letters to Dr. J. C. Bennett, on any subject whatever. Neither are we 'preparing to leave and expose Mormonism;' but intend to make NAUVOO OUR RESIDENCE, AND MORMONISM OUR MOTTO.

Respectfully,

ORSON PRATT.

For the Wasp.

City of Nauvoo, Ill.,
Sept. 28, 1842.

Mr. Editor:—

Dear Sir: Having noticed in your paper, of the 24th inst., a letter written by Dr. Robert D. Foster, in New York, and addressed to this place, in which he states that John C. Bennett, in delivering a public lecture in the city of New York, said that he received news from this place through me, leaving the impression that I kept up a correspondence with him, which I totally deny, and take this occasion, through the medium of your paper, to say to the public that such a statement is utterly false. I have never written to him on any subject, nor taken any measures, either directly or indirectly, to impart to him any news from this place.

JOHN F. WELD.

'The Mormon Loco Foco paper at Shawneetown, Illinois, recently stated that Daniel Webster had said 'the farmer ought not to put his HUGE PAW on the statute book.' In reply to this calumny, the following answer appears in the Shawneetown Republican:

Y. Y. Weekly Tribune.

Washington, July 12, 1842.

I thank you for your friendly letter of the 1st of this month. No greater or viler falsehood was ever published, than is contained in the printed extract which you enclosed. I never made any such declaration, nor any thing like it, nor ever uttered a sentiment which could give the least foundation for such a libel. Nor did I ever know before, that such a falsehood concerning me had been published.

'The son of a working man' myself, bred among working men, and attached, all my life, to the great farming interest of the country far more than any other interest, all who know me, know that the expression of any such sentiment by me is impossible.

Yours respectfully,

DANIEL WEBSTER.

We have copied the above article, merely because the word 'Mormon' is jammed into it. The paper that thus endeavors to slander an innocent people for the purpose of stigmatizing, injuring or cheating a party, has a knave, a scoundrel, a liar, a cut-throat and, we might as well say, a murderer, for an editor. The Mormons have no paper at Shawneetown, nor never had, neither have they ever published or said a word against Daniel Webster. Go to perdition, ye lying cripples!

THE RISE OF THE MISSISSIPPI.—We notice that the Mississippi has risen about three feet within a few days. We have not seen the water in a better state for steamboating this season, and steamboats already begin to ply rapidly.

A Lyceum has been commenced in this city: the members meet every Tuesday and Saturday evenings, at Professor Orson Pratt's school room.

PROTEST OF THE PRESIDENT.

To the House of Representatives: By the Constitution of the U. S. it is provided that "every bill which shall have passed the House of Representatives and the Senate, shall, before it become a law, be presented to the President of the U. S.; if he APPROVE he shall sign it, but if NOT he SHALL return it, with his objections, to that House in which it originated, who shall enter the objections at large upon the journal, and proceed to reconsider it."

In strict compliance with the positive obligation thus imposed upon me by the Constitution, not having been able to bring myself to approve a bill which originated in the House of Representatives, entitled "An act to provide revenue from imports, and to change and modify existing laws, imposing duties on imports, and for other purposes," I returned the same to the House with my objections to its becoming a law. These objections, which had entirely satisfied my own mind of the great impolicy, if not the unconstitutionality, of the measure, were presented in the most respectful, and even deferential terms. I would not have been so far forgetful of what was due from one department of the government to another, as to have intentionally employed, in my official intercourse with the House, any language that could be, in the slightest degree, offensive to those to whom it was addressed. If in assigning my objections to the bill, I had so far forgotten what was due to the House of Representatives as to impugn its motives in passing the bill, I should owe, not only to that house, but to the country, my most profound apology. Such departure from propriety is, however, not complained of in any proceeding which the house has adopted. It has, on the contrary, been expressly made a subject of remark, and almost of complaint, that the language in which my dissent was couched was studiously guarded and cautious.

Such being the character of the official communication in question, I confess I was wholly unprepared for the course which has been pursued in regard to it. In the exercise of the power to regulate its own proceedings, the house, for the first time, it is believed, in the history of the government, thought proper to refer the message to a select committee of its own body, for the purpose (as my respect for the House would have compelled me to infer) of deliberately weighing the objections urged against the bill by the Executive, with a view to its own judgment upon the question of the final adoption or rejection of the measure.

Of the temper and feelings in relation to myself of some of the members selected for the performance of this duty, I have nothing to say. That was a matter entirely within the discretion of the House of Representatives. But that committee taking a different view of its duty from that which I should have supposed had led to its creation, instead of confining itself to the objections urged against the bill, availed itself of the occasion formally to arraign the motives of the President for other of his acts since his induction into office. In the absence of all proof, and as I am bound to declare, against all law or precedent in parliamentary proceedings, and, at the same time, in a manner which it would be difficult to reconcile with the comity hitherto sacredly observed in the intercourse between independent and co-ordinate departments of the government, it has assailed my whole official conduct, without the shadow of a pretext for such assault; and stopping short of impeachment, has charged me nevertheless, with offences declared to deserve impeachment.

Had the extraordinary report which the committee thus made to the House been permitted to remain without the sanction of the latter, I should not have uttered a regret, or complaint, upon the subject. But, unaccompanied as it is by a particle of testimony to support the charges it contains, without a deliberate examination almost without any discussion, the House of Representatives has been pleased to adopt it as its own, and thereby to become my accuser before the country, and before the world. The high character of such an accuser, the gravity of the charges which have been made, and judgment pronounced against me, by the adoption of the report upon a distinct and separate vote of the House, leave me no alternative but to enter my solemn protest against the proceeding, as unjust to myself as a man, as an invasion of my constitutional powers of Chief Magistrate of the American people, and as a violation, in my person, of rights secured to every citizen by the laws and the constitution. That Constitution has intrusted to the House of Representatives the sole power of impeachment. Such impeachment is required to be tried before the most august tribunal known to our institutions.

The Senate of the United States, composed of the Representatives of all the sovereignty of the States is converted into a hall of justice, and in order to insure the strictest observance of the rules of evidence, and of legal procedure, the Chief Justice of the United States, the highest judicial functionary of the land is required to preside over its deliberations. In presence of such judicatory, the voice of faction is presumed to be silent, and the sentence of guilt or innocence is pronounced under the most solemn sanctions of religion, of honor, and of law. To such a tribunal does the Constitution authorize the House or Representatives to carry up its accusation against any chief of the Executive department whom it may believe to be guilty of high crimes and misdemeanors. Before that tribunal the accused is confronted with his accusers, and may demand the privilege, which the justice of the common law secures to the humble citizen, of a full, patient, and impartial inquiry into the facts, upon the testimony of witnesses, rigidly examined, and deposing in the face of the day. If such a proceeding had been adopted towards me, unjust as I most certainly have regarded it, I should I trust, have met with a becoming constancy, a trial as painful as it would have been undeserved. I would have manifested, by a profound submission to the laws of my country, my perfect faith in her justice; and relying on the purity of my motives, and rectitude of my conduct, should have looked forward with confidence to a triumphant refutation in the presence of that country, and by a solemn judgment of such a tribunal, not only of whatever charges might have been formally preferred against me, but of all the calumnies which I have hitherto been the unresisting victim. As it is I have been accused without evidence, and condemned without a hearing. As far as such proceedings can accomplish it, I am deprived of public confidence in the administration of the Government, and denied even the boast of a good name—a name transmitted to me from a patriot father, prized as my proudest inheritance, and carefully preserved for those who are to come after me, as the most precious of all earthly possessions. I am not only subjected to imputations affecting my character as an individual, but am charged with offences against the country, so grave and so heinous as to deserve public disgrace and disfranchisement. I am charged with violating pledges which I never gave; and because I execute what I believe to be the law; with usurping powers not conferred by the law, and, above all, with using the powers conferred upon the President by the Constitution for corrupt motives and unwarrantable ends. And these charges are made without any particle of evidence to sustain them, and as I solemnly affirm, without any foundation in truth.

Why is a proceeding of this sort adopted at this time? Is the occasion for it found in the fact that having been elected to the second office under the Constitution by the free and voluntary suffrages of the people, I have ascended to the first, according to the express provisions of the fundamental law of the same people? It is true that the succession of Vice President to the Chief Magistracy has never occurred before, and all prudent and patriotic minds have looked on this new trial of the wisdom and stability of our institutions, with a somewhat anxious concern. I have been made to feel too sensibly the difficulties of my unprecedented position, not to know all that is intended to be conveyed in the reproach cast upon a President without a party. But I found myself placed in the most responsible station, by no usurpation or contrivance of my own. I was called to it, under Providence, by the supreme law of the land, and the deliberately declared will of the people. It is by these, the people, that I have been clothed with the high powers which they have seen fit to confide to their Chief Executive, and been charged with the solemn responsibility under which those powers are to be exercised. It is to them I hold myself answerable as a moral agent, for a free and a conscientious discharge of the duties which they have imposed upon me. It is not as an individual merely, that I am now called upon to resist the encroachment of unconstitutional power. I represent the Executive authority of the people of the United States; and it is in their name, as their more agent and servant I am, and whose will, declared in their fundamental law, I dare not, even were I inclined, to disobey, that I protest against every attempt to break down the undoubted constitutional power of this department, without a solemn amendment of that fundamental law. I am determined to uphold the Constitution in this as in other respects, to the utmost of my ability, and in defiance of all personal consequences. What may happen to an individual is of little importance; but the Constitution of the country, or any of its great and clear principles and provisions, is too sacred to be surrendered, under any circumstances whatever by those who are charged with its protection and defence. Least of all should he be held guiltless, who, placed at the head of one of the great departments of the Government, should shrink from the exercise of its unquestionable authority on the most important occasions; and should consent without a struggle, to efface all the barriers so carefully created by the people to control and circumscribe the powers confided to their various agents. It may be desirable as the majority of the House of Representatives has declared it is, that no such checks upon the will of the Legislature should be suffered to continue. This is a matter for the people and the states to decide; but until they have decided it, I shall feel myself bound to execute, without fear or favor of the law, as it has been written by our predecessors.

I protest against this whole proceeding of the House of Representatives, as ex parte and extra judicial. I protest against it as subversive of the common right of all citizens to be condemned only upon a fair and impartial trial, according to the law and evidence before the country. I protest against it, as destructive of all the comity of intercourse between the Departments of this Government, and destined, sooner or later, to lead to conflicts fatal to the peace of the country and the integrity of the Constitution. I protest against it, in the name of that Constitution, which is not only my own shield of protection and defence, but that of every American citizen. I protest against it, in the name of the people, by whose authority I exercised the power which I am charged with having usurped, and to whom I am responsible for the firm and faithful discharge, according to my conviction of duty, of the stewardship confided to me by them. I protest against it, in the name of all regulated liberty, and all limited Government, as a proceeding tending to the utter destruction of the checks and balances of the Constitution, and the accumulating in the hands of the House of Representatives, or a bare majority of Congress, for the time being, an uncontrolled and despotic power. And I respectfully ask that this protest may be entered upon the journal of the House of Representatives, as a solemn and formal declaration, for all time to come, of the injustice and unconstitutionality of such a proceeding.

JOHN TYLER.

Washington Aug. 30, 1842.

FROM FLORIDA.—The Tallahassee Sentinel contains a letter from one of the party in pursuit of the late murderers in Jefferson county. They came upon the Indians about twelve o'clock at night, of the fourth day, after following them a hundred miles. They were lying about their camp fire, and were immediately shot at. The Indians, of whom there were ten, instantly fled. Several were wounded; one of whom was taken prisoner and afterwards hung; and one was killed. They lived on the Steinhatchee river, and their chief was Othla-Powa Tustenugge.

Two companies of 8th regiment United States troops, with several officers and two Indians, arrived at St. Augustine on the 22d August from Fort Pierce, Indian River.

The St. Augustine Gazette says: 'Fort Pierce being broken up, there is no station of white men on all the east coast of Florida, South of St. Augustine. Mariners had better, therefore, at this stormy season, give the land a wide berth, as being wrecked might prove unpleasant.'

OUR TRADE WITH NORTH WESTERN MEXICO.—A gentleman from Santa Fe informs us that the expedition from Independence, Mo., consisted of thirty wagons and one hundred men, which would have been increased to sixty wagons and more than one hundred and fifty men, but for the sinking of the steamboat Lebanon. Two of the traders left our city yesterday on their way to New York city, to receive the insurance money upon the goods sent by that boat, and others are expected daily at Independence Mo., with a considerable quantity of the 'Mexican castings.' In May next, the large caravan will arrive, with more than one million and a half of silver dollars, with which to purchase goods. These traders do not interfere in the quarrels between Mexico and Texas, and are not molested by either party—they have pursued the business of supplying Santa Fe, and the whole North Western portion of Mexico, with goods, for the past four years, with considerable profit.

ALEXANDER, THE MURDERER.—This young gentleman will probably get off. A paragraph in reference to Milton J. Alexander, the murderer of Mr. Lougee, appears in the Bardstown, Ky., Gazette, expressing a decided conviction of his insanity. The writer says he was informed by a gentleman well acquainted with the family, that Alexander was engaged to be married to a young lady in or near Huntsville, Alabama; but when he went down to fulfil his engagement, his betrothed refused to marry him for some frivolous reason. This disappointment seems to have unsettled his mind, for he gave unequivocal signs of mental alienation before he left home for Philadelphia. It is said that $50,000 have been subscribed in Burkesville, to procure his acquittal. Almost any man can be proved crazy for half that sum. $50,000 will not only prove him crazy, but it will establish his sanity again, after his acquittal.

The New Tariff Law.—A cargo of two hundred and sixty cases of crushed sugar, each containing twelve hundred pounds, is now landing at this port. This 310,000 lbs of sugar was imported from Amsterdam, and paid a duty of 20 per cent ad valorem, or about 1 3/4 cts a pound, making a difference of over $13,000 on the cargo. When this sugar was sent here, it was intended to export it to Italy, with the benefit of drawback but having blundered into so favorable a position, it will of course be retained here.

A cargo of brandy is also landing which was admitted last week at a duty of 20 per cent. Under the new Tariff the duty is $1 a gallon, or about five times the former duty.

The cash duties ordained by the new tariff, will operate very severely upon houses of small means, inasmuch as, often purchasing the goods abroad an amount of duty greater in some cases than the cost of the goods must be paid in cash before any thing can be realized from sales.—Jour. of Com.

We believe in the Christian religion, though ever so unworthy of the name of Christian. We believe in the special interposition of Divine Providence in behalf of his favored people. We believe America is under his special protection. We believe that John Tyler is the instrument selected to work out His will.—Madisonian.

Scissors and Rail-road iron! What does the fellow mean? "We believe in the Christian religion." So does the wretch who aims a pistol at your breast with the threat that death's leaden messenger shall cut the brittle thread of life. The idea that John Tyler was selected for such a purpose is more than we can swallow. If he is, we say God deliver us from his special protection.

"We have selected the above very just remarks from the Columbus (Ill.) Advocate.—They breathe a freedom spirit justly commendable and praiseworthy. We do sincerely hope that sensible men will use the golden rule, and do unto others, as they would that others would do unto them.

American antiquities.—The relics from Central America brought by Stevens and Catherwood, it appears, were not burnt at New York, as was apprehended.

POETRY.

SOLITUDE.

BY LORD BYRON.

To sit on rocks, to muse o'er flood and fell,
To slowly trace the forest's shady scene,
Where things that own not man's dominion Dwell,
And mortal foot hath ne'er or rarely been:
To climb the trackless mountain all unseen,
With the wild flock that never needs a fold;
Alone o'er steeps or foaming falls to lean:
This is not solitude; 'tis but to hold
Converse with Nature's charms, and view her Stores unrolled.

But 'midst the crowd, the hum, the shock of men,

To hear, to see, to feel, and to possess,
And roam along the world's tired denizen,
With none who bless us, none whom we can bless.

Minions of splendour shrinking from distress:
None that, with kindred consciousness endued,
If we were not, would seem to smile the less
Of all that flattered, followed, sought and sued:
This is to be alone; this, this is solitude!

More blest the life of god y eremite,
Such as on lonely Athos may be seen
Watching at eve upon the giant height,
Which looks o'er waves so blue, skies so serene.
That he who there at such an hour hath been,
Will wistful linger on that hallowed spot:
Then slowly tear him from the witching scene,
Sigh forth one wish that such had been his lot
Then turn to hate a world he had almost forgot.

An Ordinance creating the office of Notary Public in the city of Nauvoo.

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Nauvoo, that in addition to the city officers heretofore elected, there shall be elected by the City Council, one Notary Public whose duties and fees shall hereafter be defined by ordinance.

Sec. 2. This ordinance to take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Passed Sept. 26, 1842.

WILSON LAW, President pro tem.

JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

An Ordinance to regulate proceedings by and under writs of attachment in the Municipal Court.

Sec. 1. Be it, and it is hereby ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, that the Municipal Court of said city, be and the said Court hereby are, authorized and empowered to issue writs of attachment against all and every person or persons who may commit a contempt of said Court, by disobedience to any writ or order, and to fine to such amount, or imprisonment for such length of time, or both fine and imprisonment as to them in their discretion may seem proper.

Sec. 2. This Ordinance to take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Passed Sept. 26, 1842.

WILSON LAW, Pres. pro tem.

JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

An Ordinance respecting Mad Dogs and other Animals.

Sec. 1. Be it, and it is, hereby ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, that all Dogs or other Animals known to have been bit or worried by any rabid animal, shall be immediately killed, or confined by the owner, under a penalty not exceeding one thousand dollars, at the discretion of the Court, and also no dog shall be permitted to run at large in the city for thirty days after the passage of this ordinance, under a penalty of twenty-five dollars, to be paid by the owner or owners of said dog or dogs, and all dogs during said thirty days shall be liable to be killed, if found twenty rods from their masters, and such penalty or penalties shall be recoverable and applied in like manner as all other penalties within this city.

Sec. 2. This ordinance to take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Passed Sept. 26, 1842.

WILSON LAW, Pres. pro tem.

JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

MARRIED.—At Peakin, Ill., on the 22nd of Sept., by Elder Joseph Rose, Elder Wm. Thorp, to Mrs. Rebecca Shaw, both of the same place.

—In the City of Quincy, on the 18th of Sept., by Elder H. C. Kimball, Mr. Nathan Pinkham, to Miss Lucy Williams, both of that city.

REPORT OF DEATHS, FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY, SEPT. 30, 1842.

Thomas E Stephenson, aged 11 months; whooping cough.
Wm Wightman, aged 34 years; fever.
Cornelia M. Cook; fever.
Sarah Ann Chamberlain, aged 19 years; fever.
Henry J Hunt, 24 years; fever.
Marthy Maxton, 14 months; dropay on brain.
John Bruton, 21 days; canker.
Alace Holte, 4 years; fever.
Warren Sikes, aged 44 years; ague and fever.
Joseph Hamer, aged 11 months; consumption.
Total 10.

WM. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton.

TAVERN STAND

FOR sale, in Appanoose, Hancock county, Ill., 8 miles above Nauvoo, opposite the ferry landing, leading to Iowa; also a house and lot and blacksmith shop, which I will sell low for cash or part in good horses. I good two horse wagon will be taken. Possession given immediately. Any one wishing to settle near Nauvoo will do well to call, hit or miss, at the Tavern in Appanoose, and examine the premises. Good titles will be given.

JAMOS TERRY.

SILAS TERRY.

Appanoose, Sept. 28, 1842. no24-tf

LIST OF LETTERS

REMAINING in the Post Office at Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill., Oct. 1, 1842, which if not taken out before the 1st of January 1843, will be sent to the Post Office Department as dead letters.

N. B. Persons wishing any of the following advertised letters, will please say they are advertised or they may not get them.

Jas Aldridge
O B Adams
Jno Adams
J F Abbott
Capt M Anderson
M B Agnew
E Boss
Jane Blevin
Jno Carnes
F Clark
Albert Clark
Jno Cox
Polly Conklin
David Crockett
H Cutler
Austin Cowles

N Bliss
B R Bentley
H W Bigler
Jas Bohanan
L L Beachner
J H Burghort
C Baldwin
Henry Backwater
R Bentley
Jas Brewer
J B Backenstos
Jno Bottle
Geo Babcock
Margaret Brush
Mr Frotherton
Chas Betterworth
Levi Brooken
John Blayard
P A Benson
Ann Booth
Jnos Bromley
N Boscow
W Broughton
Jesse Baker
H Cooley
Ed Chamberlain
H Clark
Wm Cook
H I Akey or I Conyers
Danl Carter
B Cole
B Curtis
Wm Corpen
Robt D Foster
Jnos Filcher
Jas Flanagan
Mr Goodson
S H Godard
Morgan Gardner and others
Truman Gillet
Sarah Gibson
J Goodall
Wm Gheen
David Grant
L M Geer
Carlos Granger
Carlos Gove
J Gallard
D S Hollister
Elias Higbee
Ester Huse
A Haughton
H Haey
J C Haight
Knollon Hanks
Jas Harwood
J Hadlock
Jnos Hoste
Joel Huff
F M Higbee
Mary Hoover
Ed Hunter sen
Ed Hunter
Ann Hunter
R Hebbord
J N Harpton
J A Hicks
Miss Alice Hordman
S Hulet
Stephen Hales
J P Herr
Wm Hales
Jno Haven
G Hills
Thos Johnson
D Johnson
E Jennings
H Jett
D Judy
Abel Jance
H Jolley
H Kerns
F Kinyon
I H Killbough
O Killbourn
I D Lee
r I Langon
Jno Lindsey
J Lynco'n
Geo Lyman
Stephen Lits
C L Lewis
A Lyman
H Loveland
Sarah Myres
A F Muney
F Maion
R A Moore
Robt Maxton
S C Menill
temperance Mack
Wm Moraden
Jno Miller
Wm Marks
Peter Melling
Mary Maxton
Wm McClery
W G Mullen
F Moon
Geo Miller
Jnos B Marsh
C Marsh
Jas McClalou
Saml McMurtry
Jno Myers
J McElroy
H H Mathews
P Merrick
M Mansfield
Cath Minnerly
E Nelson
L S Nickerson
Jnos Nelson
G W Clyde
S W Crandle
Wm S Covert
James Cayton
A Daniels
A Davis
J Decker
James Duncan
S Denel
I Drake
R B Derby
U Drigs
Simeon Darke
Jas Dawning
R Edwards
J Emmitt
Jno Edgar
Hannah Ellis
T S Edwards
Jos Easton
Wm Earl
Jno Elaridge
Horace Eldridge
Pleasant Ewell
Robt Ellison
Edwin Finch
J M Finch
Geo Fowler
A F Fan
Jos Fisher
C Fuller
Hannah Flint
D Fry
Wm Nerbit
Wm Niswanger
Oliver Olney
D Osburn
A R Orton
Jedediah Pnceen
A Pilkington
N Penney
W. W. Phelps
J Powell
M Phelps
Ad Pratt
Jno Patten
Jos Parks
Jos Prockter
Jos Pullen
S Pinkham
J Peak
P Page
Jno Rice
Jos Robinson
Jne E Rayce
Saml Rolfe
Eric Rodas
J L Robinson
A Richardson
Elizabeth Ravenscroft
H Roberts
Saphia Rills
W H Rolloson
Jno Roles
C Rathbone
Messrs Gracy & Reed
Ed Stiff
J C Scofield
A W Sherman
Ed Stephenson
Allen Stout
Alex Stephens
E Spencer or J Harrington
Jno Stewart
Elijah Sheets
Robt Snyder
Nath Stewart
Wm Stewart
Jno Sweat
Jos Shaw
Rich Spencer
Wm Sutton
Jos Smethies
Jane Smith
Geo A Smith
Elisha Smith
JP or Mory Smith
Jno Smith
Joseph Smith
B Stringham
Jno Sholer
Jno Surpen
J H Tippetts
R S Storey E Thompson
Jno Thorpe
r Drumball
H Umphry
Jno Wheeler
E J Webb
Geo M Warr
r Wait
Jnos Wakefield
A W Whitney
S Winchester
L Wilson
B F Worrlington
Jno Williams
B Worrlington
D Wood
Miles Wilson
C Weston
Jno B Walker
E F Wiggins
Jno Watkins
Wm C Walker
F D Williams
Jno Wakefield
J S Workman
E D Webb
S Otho Williams
C Young
P H Young
Lewis Zigler
SIDNEY RIGDON, P. M.

Wood wanted at this Office.

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CAMPOR LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, Lassitude and nervous affections generally. Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispassion, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.

These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.

This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12½ cents,) brings it within the reach of every person in the community.

A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale by
(22-y1.) J. SNIDER,
Sole Agent for the City of Nauvoo.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois. In the matter of the petition of Anthony S. Huddleston, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Anthony S. Huddleston of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts, under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the District court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 4th day of September A. D. 1842.

RALSTON WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for petitioner.
Attest J. F. Owings, Clerk. 22-w2.

ORSON PRATT,

PROFESSOR OF MATHEMATICS AND ENGLISH LITERATURE, IN THE UNIVERSITY OF THE CITY OF NAUVOO.

MOST respectfully announces to the gentlemen and ladies of this city and vicinity, that he will commence his regular course of instruction in the various branches of education, pertaining to the Department over which he has the supervision, on Monday, the 26th day of September, A. D. 1842, at a building situated a few rods north of the Temple.

TUITION PER QU.

For Reading and Writing $2.50
Geography, Grammar, and Arithmetic 3.00
Philosophy, Chemistry, Astronomy, Algebra, Geometry, Conic Sections, Plane Trigonometry, Mensuration, Surveying, and Navigation. 5.00
For Analytical Plane and Spherical Trigonometry, and Analytical Geometry 7.50
And for the study of the Differential and Integral Calculus, and Newton's Principles. 10.00
City of Nauvoo, Sept. 12, 1842. no22-3w.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of James H. Cooper, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that James H. Cooper, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 7th day of October next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of September A. D. 1842.

RALSTON, WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for petitioner.
Attest: J. F. Owings Clerk. 23-w2.

ADMINISTRATOR'S NOTICE.

THE undersigned having taken out letters of administration on the estate of Theodore Carile, late of Hancock county, deceased, hereby notifies and requests all persons, having claims against said estate, to present them to the court of Probate, of said county, on the first Monday in the month of November next, in order to have the same admitted according to law. All persons indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment.

JESSE GILMAN, Administrator.
Carthage, Sept. 16, 1842. no23-1r.

NOTICE.

THE undersigned have recently commenced the leather manufacturing business in all its various branches: also the shoe and glove making business. We wish the citizens and vicinity to give us their patronage, as we offer to the public to tan on shares both upper and sole leather; also morocco and deer skins dressed in the neatest manner, and fur dressing. We will also pay the highest prices for all kinds of hides and skins; tan work near Parley St. about one mile east of the river.

B. R. BENTLEY & J. FIELD.
Nauvoo, Sept. 3, 1842. no20-3m.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois. In the matter of the petition of Adam Snyder, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that Adam Snyder, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court appointing the 1st day of October next, at the district court room in the city of Springfield, in this district, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 4th day of September A. D. 1842.

RALSTON WARREN & WHEAT,
Solicitors for petitioner.
J. F. Owings, Clerk. 22w2.

WINDOW SASH.

WE, carpenters, builders, &c., of the city of Nauvoo, recommend H. Hammond's patent upper and improved lower window sash springs, as a very superior article:

W. Weeks, principal carpenter of Temple,
L. Woodworth, do do Nauv. H. S.
R. Hadlock, J. W. Coolidge,
I. Tulle, M. Romney,
H. Riding.

All windows should be made narrow, high and with parting beads.

For the proper ventilation of a room, it is absolutely necessary to lower the upper sash.

These springs are warranted not to loose their elasticity or break, have points for preserving the notches in the sash, directions for selecting the appropriate sizes and properly putting them into windows.

For sale, wholesale and retail, at several of the hardware stores in St. Louis, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, &c. See a window with these springs in operation at Mr. Mills' Masonic Hall.
Nauvoo, Aug. 13, 1842. 17-ly.

NOTES

DUE the Trustee for labor on the Temple, are left with the Temple Committee for collection. Brethren, remember that your contracts with your God are sacred; the labor is wanted immediately.

W. RICHARDS,
Temple Recorder.

June 25, 1842. 10-1f.

P. S. Remember the notes due for property also.

LOOK HERE! LOOK HERE!!

WANTED, at the Nauvoo Foundry, a quantity of Stone coal; any persons wishing to furnish it, will please call on Hiram Kimball, or Geo. W. Robinson, at the Post Office.

Old castings will be taken in exchange for new.
Nauvoo, June 13th 1842. 10-1f.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT ILLINOIS,
August 15th, 1842.

WE the undersigned officers of the State, being of opinion that there will be danger of loss by receiving the bills of the State Bank of Illinois and branches in payment of the revenue of the State and of the different counties in the State for the year 1842, and in payment of college, school and seminary debts and interest, do hereby prohibit the reception of said bills for the purposes aforesaid after the 12th day of September next until otherwise provided by law.

Given under our hands the day and year above written.

TH. S. CARLIN, Gov.
JAS. SHIELDS, Auditor.
MILTON CARPENTER, Treas.

All the publishers of newspapers in this State are requested to publish the above notice for three successive weeks and send their bills for the same to the Auditor's Office.

JAS. SHIELDS, Auditor.

NOTICE.

LEFT, in my care, in the Month of April last, off the Steam-Boat A. pry, one trunk, with a label directed to Miss Elizabeth Stouard, Montrose, Iowa; the owner is requested to prove property, pay charges, and take the same away, or it will be sold to pay said charges. An advertisement of said trunk is in the store of Mr. Peck, at this time.

S. H. BURTIS.
Montrose, Sept. 2, 1842. no20-1f.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph John-on, Ramus
J. Salsbery, Plymouth.
Harow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
E. R. Chiffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Fsq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Pag, Pittsburgh.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
Jam s Curtis, Horners Town.
W. I. Appleby, Reclies Town.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Sa'em.
Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapier.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirt and.

NEW YORK.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.
L. R. Foster, city of New York.

TRAVELING AGENTS.

Hiram Kimball.

DR. J. F. WELD.

PRACTIT - NER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.
Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo, and adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

DRUGS, MEDICINES, &C.

THE subscriber has opened a Drug Store in Nauvoo, and intends keeping a full assortment of every thing in that line.—Paints, Oils, Varnish, Brushes, Turpentine, Linseed, Sperm, Olive, and Castor Oil; white Lead, red and black Lead, Vermillion, Prussian Blue, Lytharge, Chrome green and yellow, venecian red, spanish brown, lampblack, ivory black, whitening, chalk, yellow ochre, dye stuffs, indigo, cochineal, annatto, madders, copperas, alum, oil vitriol, blue vitriol, logwood, brazilwood, &c., &c.; stationary, plain and ruled cap and letter paper, ink, wafers, quills, sand, &c.; window glass of all sizes, saleratus, putty, spices glass ware, perfumery, soaps, snuff, rosin, matches, blacking, every thing in the medicine line, all the patent medicines; all of which will be sold low for cash; Van & tuddsford's ague and fever pills, also his medicated lozenges, and cough, worm, and cathartic lozenges, are constantly on hand. Store on water street above Davis' Hot I.

A. T. TERRELL.

July 23, 1842.

AGUE AND FEVER.

Gleim's tonic mixture and Dr. Renal's pills: two certain cures for that inveterate pest, the chills and fever.—for sale by.

July 23, 1842.

BEESWAX.

The highest price in cash will be paid for Beeswax, by (16 m 3) A. T. TERRELL.

MEDICAL NOTICE.

DR. W. B. BRINK,

Respectfully tenders his professional services to the citizens of Nauvoo, and its vicinity, as a botanic practitioner, having adopted the botanic practice from a positive conviction of the truth of its doctrines, and the unrivaled success which attends the practice; and hopes to give general satisfaction and prove the superior efficacy of the botanic treatment to those who may place themselves under his care; also a number of valuable preparations of his own compounding; such as anti bilious pills peculiarly serviceable in dyspepsia, bilious fever, &c; restorative bitters, pulmonary balsom, cough syrup, rheumatic liniment, neutralizing cordial; this is one of the most valuable preparations known for cholery morbus, cholery infantum, or summer complaints of children, fever, ague and cancers, will be treated upon the principle of no cure no pay and those afflicted with cancers will do well to call and try a remedy which has never failed; and those who are not able to pay will be cured without charge.

Dr. B. is consulted in the most intricate and protracted cases of secret disease that require practical experience to ensure success; every species and form of the disease must yield to his treatment which is in all cas s mild and soft, requiring no interruption from business or change of diet, and will treat the disease upon the principle of no cure no pay; office at the store of W. Allen, formerly occupied by Mr. E. D. Woolley.

W. B. BRINK, M. D.

Nauvoo, July 2nd 1842. 12-3m.

BENCH & MOULDING PLANES.

WANTED, immediately, a large number of the above Planes on tithing. The brethren who have got such and can spare them would greatly facilitate the building of the Temple by bringing them as soon as possible to the recorder's office, and they shall be entered to their credit on tithing. All kinds of bench planes whether good or indifferent can be made useful at the Temple. The moulding planes should be such as suit the present fashion.

Also all lumber, which would make plane stocks, would be very serviceable.

JOSEPH SMITH, Trustee.

W. CLAYTON, Clerk.

W. H. RALSTON,

ATTORNEY & COUNSELLOR AT LAW, Carthage, Hancock county, Ill., will practice in the Hancock Circuit court, and also in the Supreme Circuit and District Courts of this State.
Carthage, Aug. 18, 1842. 12-3w.

THE WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 25

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, October 8, 1842.

Whole Number 25.

THE WASP,

IS EDITED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY

WM. SMITH,

At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.
TERMS.—$1.50 invariably in advance.

HUMAN SACRIFICES IN INDIA.

Blackwood's Magazine for August contains a notice of a paper recently published by the Royal Asiatic Society of London, written by Capt. Macpherson of the Madras Army, and giving some account of the Khonds, one of the three races that inhabit the territory which formed the ancient kingdom of Orissa.—They are Polytheists—have an hereditary priesthood—are rigid observers of veracity, and preserve in their religious worship and opinions many of the distinctive but not most beautiful features of the Grecian system in the Pelasgic period. They are almost the only people that offer humane sacrifices; and of their festivals at these horrid rites we find the following account from Capt. Macpherson's work:

"They are generally attended by a large concourse of people of both sexes, and continue for three days, which are passed in the indulgence of every form of gross excess—in more than Saturnalian license.

"The first day and night are spent exclusively in drunken feasting and obscene riot. Upon the second morning, the victim, who has fasted from the preceding evening, is carefully washed, dressed in a new garment, and led forth from the village in solemn procession, with music and dancing.

"The meria grove, a clump of deep and shadowy trees,—
'Sylvia alto Jovis, lucusque Dianæ,' in which the mango, the bar, the dammar, and the pipal generally grow, usually stands at a short distance from the hamlet, by a rivulet, which is called the Meria stream. It is kept sacred from the axe, and is avoided by the Khond as haunted ground. My followers were always warned to abstain from seeking shelter within its awful shade.

"In its centre, upon the second day, an upright stake is fixed, generally between two plants of the sankissar or bazardanti shrub. The victim is seated at its foot, bound back to it by the priest.—He is then anointed with oil, ghee and tumeric, and adorned with flowers; and a species of reverence which it is not easy to distinguish from adoration, is paid to him throughout the day. And there is now infinite contention to obtain the slightest relic of his person; a particle of the tumeric paste with which he is smeared, or a drop of his spittle, being esteemed, (especially by the women,) of supreme virtue.

"In some districts, instead of being thus bound in a grove, the victim is exposed in or near the village, upon a couch, after being led in procession round the place of sacrifice. And in some parts of Goornsur where this practice prevails, small rude image of beasts and birds in clay are made in great numbers at this festival, and stuck on poles; a practice, of the origin or meaning of which, I have been able to obtain no satisfactory explanation.

"Upon the third morning, the victim is refreshed with a little milk and palm sago, while the licentious feast, which has scarcely been intermitted during the night, is loudly renewed. About noon these orgies terminate, and the assemblage issues forth, with stunning shouts and pealing music, to consummate the sacrifice.

"As the victim must not suffer bound, nor on the other hand, exhibit any show of resistance, the bones of his arms, and if necessary, those of his legs, are now broken in several places.

"The acceptable place of sacrifice has been discovered during the previous night, by persons sent out for this purpose into the fields of the village, or of the private oblator. The ground is probed in the dark with long sticks, and the first deep chink that is pierced is considered the spot indicated by the earth god. The rod is left standing in the earth, and in the morning four large posts are set up around it.

"The priest, assisted by the abbaya and one or two of the elders of the village, now takes the branch of a green tree, which is cleft to a distance of several feet down the centre; they insert the victim within the rift, fitting it in some districts to his chest, in others to his throat. Cords are then twisted round the open extremity of the stake, which the priest, aided by his assistants strives with his whole force to close. He then wounds the victim slightly with his axe, when the crowd throws itself upon the sacrifice, and exclaiming, 'we bought you with a price, and no sin rests on us!' strips the flesh from the bones. Each man bears his bloody shred to his fields, and thence returns straight home. Next day all that remains of the victim is burned up with a whole sheep on a funeral pile, and the ashes are scattered over the fields, or laid as paste over the houses and granaries; and for three days after the sacrifice, the inhabitants of the village which afforded it remain dumb, communicating with each other only by signs, and remaining unvisited by strangers. At the end of this time, a buffalo is slaughtered at the place of sacrifice, when tongues are loosened."

Singular Spontaneous Explosion of rocks.—The Ogdenburg N. Y. Times mentions a singular occurrence which happened at Norfolk, in that State, on the 15th ult., and which has produced much speculation in the village. An individual, named Cochran, while walking in the woods at the latter place, had his attention excited by a crackling sound, which was instantly succeeded by a tremendous motion, and a rising of the earth just before him. Alarmed at the phenomenon, and expecting a shock of an earthquake, he precipitately turned to retreat to his house, when at that moment an explosion occurred the intonation of which was as ponderous as that of a smart blast of rocks by powder—rending the rock assunder and throwing out 30 or 40 pounds of fragments. The rock appeared perfectly sound, and is a continuous lime rock from the bank of Racket river, and distant therefrom about 30 rods; and at this place formed the base of the road, and covered with little or no earth. This phenomenon, it is said is attested by credible witnesses.

A MURDERER SHOT.—A horrid tragedy was enacted in Walton county, Georgia, on the 20th ultimo. Jordan Harris, a man of property and respectably connected, murdered his wife and mother-in-law, and when a posse of neighbors came to arrest him, he kept them at bay with a rifle, and finding it hazardous to take him, he was shot dead.

CORN SUGAR.

Extract of a letter from Jacob Alricks, Postmaster at Wilmington, Delaware, to J. S. Skinner, dated 22d August, 1842.

We are making efforts to try how much an acre of land will yield of "corn sugar," fairly and fully, with our present knowledge and experience, so that there shall be no deception. We have every thing ready, but the rollers for pressing out the juice; these will cost about two hundred dollars, and we are all so poor here that this sum cannot be got, and I much fear, we shall fail in making the experiment, if we do not get some assistance. The West and Southwest are much more deeply interested in this business than this district. Will not the members of Congress from those districts contribute something towards our experiment?"

"If I am not greatly mistaken in my calculation on this subject, the corn sugar business will, in a short time, prove of as much benefit to this country as the cotton. I have taken the above liberty, knowing the interest you take in any thing that will benefit our country.

"I should be glad to be in any way instrumental in having a full and fair experiment made on this subject. Specimens of corn sugar may be seen at the Patent Office.

MEXICO.—The Emblem, from Matamorras, brings a few items of Mexican intelligence. Santa Ana was excessively enraged at Mr. Webster's letters to the insolent Bocanegra; but whether his anger will assume a substantial form, we do not learn. The expedition of 7,000 Mexican troops to the Texian frontier was covertly going on. The schooner Water Witch, from this port, and several other vessels in the harbor of Vera Cruz, had been put in requisition as transports.

Considerable sums in silver are about to be shipped from Tampico and Vera Cruz to New Orleans. The steamer Dee brought yesterday $52,000 to the house of Lizardi & Co.

[N. O. Bee.

ANOTHER DEED OF BLOOD.—We learn from the Louisville Advertiser of the 3d instant, the particulars of a shocking tragedy which occurred at Bloomfield, Ky., the night previous. A mulatto slave, belonging to Mr. Jacob Pence, of the neighborhood, and who had been a runaway for a week or two, went to the house of an old widow lady, named McKay, living alone with her grandson, a youth sixteen or seventeen years old, and a servant girl, and butchered the lady and the young man in the most savage manner, splitting their heads open with an axe, and otherwise horribly mangling them. The monster then set fire to the house, and threw the servant girl into the hottest of the flames. She, however, succeeded in escaping, though very severely burnt. The neighbors, attracted by the fire, pursued the murderer until they arrested him, but not before he had received a wound in the breast from a gun.

P. S.—The Louisville papers received yesterday, brought confirmation of the capture and death of this wretch. The Sun says "whilst the party were taking the negro who murdered Mrs. McKay and her grandson, to the county jail in Nelson county, they were overtaken at Col. Allas's, about 8 miles from Bardstown, by Mr. E. H. McKay, who immediately shot him.—The negro died in a few minutes. Mr. McKay was a son of the lady murdered. Whilst we cannot help regretting the occurrence, yet the circumstances connected with it are such as almost excuse the deed."

WASHINGTON, WEBSTER, AND ASHBURTON.—The following, from the Lancaster Journal, stings like a wasp:

The names of Washington, Webster, and Ashburton were connected together at the recent entertainment given to the latter in New York, in honor of the treaty between England and America. Webster must have been stung to the quick by the satire, even while Ashburton laughed at the ignorance which conceived the union. Washington made treaty with England only after he had rebuked her from the cannon's mouth; and every line that he approved carried upon its face the strength of right, the vigor of freedom, and the superiority of his country.—Daniel Webster is too much of an Englishman to make a treaty with England; and Ashburton is too much of a banker to be anything but crafty and plausible. To place the name of Washington between that of these two men, is to place the sun between two minor stars—the light of the one fairly quenches the twinkling of the others. The only good resulting from the sacrilege was, that the company saw Washington alone, and had time to think of how he would have treated with England in 1842!

The Leeds (Eng.) Mercury relates the following instance of astonishing expedition in the manufacture of a coat. That paper says: "The wool of which this coat is made, was in the raw state, and to sort; after two o'clock on Thursday morning, it passed through the regular process of scouring, dyeing, scribbling, spinning, (one jenny) weaving (by hand,) and milling, and was manufactured into superfine cloth in 12 hours and 15 minutes. The cloth was then finished by the patent process, in two hours and 53 minutes, by Mr. Wm. Kirk, of Larchfield, and then made into a dress coat by Messrs. Robinson & Russum, in the short space of three hours and 55 minutes. The whole time that elapsed between this coat being in the wool and made up and wearing, was only 19 hours.

DISCOVERY OF IMPORTANT HISTORICAL RECORDS. In the third report of the deputy keeper of the public records, Sir F. Palgrave gives intimation of the discovery of the legal records of the trial of Queen Anne Bullen, documents which were supposed to have been destroyed, but which have recently been discovered among the records of the Court of Queen's Bench, and whose absence materially impeded the narrative of the historian of the eventful reign of Henry VIII. The list of these records is highly interesting to the literary world.

HAIRSTONES. We are told by the Picayune, fell at Paris, Georgia, a few weeks ago, as large as bird's eggs, and blue as indigo, when exhibited at the fire. It was difficult to determine, by those who saw them, whether the color was caused by the concentrated rays of light, or whether it was the natural appearance of the hail. He thinks it was a shower of "blue ruin."

DUELLING.—A writer in the Democratic Review gives an account of a method of fighting a duel, adopted by a gentleman, a member of the New York Legislature, distinguished as well for his wit and humor as for his talents and sound democracy. Receiving a challenge, he expressed his readiness to accept it, with the privilege of choice of ground and weapons—which, after some considerable correspondence and diplomacy, conducted with great gravity on his part, were conceded by his impatient adversary. The preliminaries at length adjusted, he fixed the place of encounter on the opposite bank of a certain stream in his county, (St. Lawrence,) the weapons being broadswords. Anxious to accommodate the opposite party, he expressed himself, at the same time, willing to use pistols, in the following manner:—the two principals to stand back to back on the top of a short conical hill indicated by him, to walk each forward in a straight line down the opposite descents to the bottom, and then, at the word, to turn and fire!

THE WASP.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1842.

TO THE PUBLIC.

As the nominal editor of this paper, has to attend the Legislature at Springfield, the coming winter, the next man, who makes stings for the Wasp, in counsel with his friends, has concluded to enlarge the said Wasp to an Imperial sheet, and issue the same, as soon as arrangements can be made at Keokuk, Iowa, under the more pleasant title of "The Dove of the West."

The object is to give virtue, innocence, humanity, clemency, patience, law, liberty, industry, mechanics, and general intelligence, as fair a bearing as consistently can be done, not omitting the truth on Mormonism. Located within 12 miles of the united city of the saints, we shall light our taper in the great council fire of Nauvoo.

We shall not cross the Atlantic to become the "Napoleon of the Press," but content ourselves with an effort to act as the Washington of virtue, integrity, justice, reason, and religion, and solicit the N. Y. Herald, Dollar Weekly, and Tribune; United States Philadelphia; Weekly Sun, and Niles National Register, Baltimore; Mail, Boston, and as many other papers as will, to forward as above, and our 'lovely bird,' on the 'west wind,' will reciprocate as soon as we can make the fachers fly.

Fanaticism.—The gentle and lovely JAMES defined pure and undefiled religion to consist in "visiting the widow and the fatherless in their affliction and keeping unspotted from the world." And so with the other apostles. Speculations they left to the worldly-wise philosophers, and book worms. They throw aside abstract theory and urged the practical duties of life.

We rather think St. James would be mightily puzzled were he to light down upon our earth at the present day.

Suppose he were to drop into the spiritual Seraglio of Joe Smith at Nauvoo, and see in that city ten thousand honest looking people devoted to that monstrous delusion.

Or what if, attracted by heavily music from some delightful forest, he were to descend into a Miller Camp Meeting, and the first thing he had thrust under his apostolic nose were a box.

"What is this for?" perhaps he would ask.

"We are collecting money to convert souls with. The world is coming to an end on the 2nd of April, 1843, and all who are in favor of that object are expected to contribute."

Or, on some pleasant day in paradise, he might be commissioned by his brother Apostles to spread his golden pinions, and visit the Churches. What would he find? Stupidity in the Houses of God and selfishness out of it;—men with a holy face for the Sabbath, which they carefully laid away during the other six days;—robberies in the name of the Lord;—cutting, thrusting, gouging, swindling, all done by professed Christians.

Don't be angry, reader. We don't mean you, unless you think it fits. It is the truth. Is it not?

The religion of the Apostle James is that which must ultimately purify and rectify the world. He who relieves the widow and the orphan, wipes away the tear of distress, and keeps himself pure, makes for his dying hour a bed of roses, and paves his path to Heaven with diamonds.—Portland American.

It always pleases us to see well written articles, especially when they are mixed with truth. All the leaves of the man of sin, we despise;—so when the Portland American, "dropped the spiritual seraglio of Joe Smith at Nauvoo," he told a falsehood without any proof, or color of proof, more than the say so, of that wretch and outcast of society, J. C. Bennett. For the rule of marriage among the Mormons, see the Times and Seasons of Oct. 1, 1842. Virtue, candor, temperance, humanity and charity are as necessary for the editors of the public presses, as the four seasons to make the glorious variety of the year, and truth is emphatically as necessary to obtain the righteousness, of the nation, as intelligence to perpetuate the liberty which has thus far exalted the United States Government, over the other governments of the world. Sincerity would forbid the idea of random articles;—for the plain reason that all men are honest till proved otherwise, in the estimation of law.—Wisdom is justified of her children.

"ALAS POOR YORICK!"

Thomas C. Sharp, and his Warsaw Signal, like Benedict Arnold and his treason, have gone to the "Na rows." Sic transit gloria Sharpi.

Newel Knight has recently put into operation a current, water grist mill on the Mississippi, just below the Nauvoo House. Mills manufactories and Mormonism for enterprise. Go ahead ye salt of the earth and improve the tin blessings the Lord hath bequeathed to his children.

WOOD.

We hate to dun those indebted to us, but unless we have Wood the sting of the Wasp will be as cold as an icicle. Bring the wood;—the widow needs; our office needs, and your promises needs to be fulfilled. "While we muse the fire burns."

BY INDUSTRY WE THRIVE.

Yesterday a rope was manufactured from the Messrs. Laws hemp, in about 40 minutes,—all the produce of Nauvoo. This is noble; we understand the business will continue hereafter to considerable extent.

Alanson Brown upon the charge of an assault, with intent to kill, upon the body of Mr. Lawson in this county, was acquitted at the Circuit Court, for Hancock co. The other criminal cases, were put over to the next term.

FANATICISM IN SWEDEN.—We find the following in a letter from Stockholm, dated Aug. 2d:—

"Religious excitement is at a great height in some parts of Sweden. There are a great number of preachers in the open air, and on the 10th inst., at Listerote, not less than 3,000 persons assembled to hear one of those outdoor sermons. During the most passionate part of the preacher's exhortation, several of the men threw away their coats, and the women their rings and earrings, which they trampled under foot, saying they were only the ornaments of the devil.—Amongst the fanatics are two young girls, who have prophesied that the world will be at an end in a month."

FOREIGN NEWS.

FOURTEEN DAYS LATER FROM EUROPE.

The steamship Great Western arrived at New York about 10 o'clock on Sunday night, having sailed from Liverpool on the 3d inst. We copy the following items of interest from the New York Herald and Philadelphia Ledger, extra:

In coming to her slip the Great Western ran foul of the dock, doing her very considerable injury, also damaging the dock somewhat.

Our Minister, Edward Everett, has gone to Paris.

There have been large frauds at the London Custom House.

There have been failures among the corn factors. American and Canadian flour is six pence lower. Grain is down.

The Queen and Prince Albert were on a tour to Scotland.

The Duke de Nemours has been chosen Regent of France.

The Archbishop of Canterbury was lying dangerously ill.

The Great Western, it will be recollected, took out the new Treaty, and she brings the first intelligence in return. The Liverpool Chronicle remarks, that "upon the whole, Lord Ashburton has ably and efficiently discharged his duty, and more than realized the expectations which his embassy held out. All the bad blood which the constant discussion and agitations of the points in dispute between the two countries produced, has been removed between Great Britain and her 'magnificent daughter of the West,' which will endure, it is to be hoped for ages." As far as we notice, the Treaty is received in a like spirit by the London press.

In the Criminal Court, on the 25th ult. John William Bean, aged 17, was tried for his singular assault upon the Queen; found guilty, and sentenced to 18 months imprisonment.

A quantity of American pork has been selling at Southampton from 4 1-2 to 5d, and is of excellent quality.

The Keeseville Calamity.—A letter to the Albany Evening Journal, from a lady at Keeseville, gives the following particulars of this melancholly accident:

"Such heart rending cries for help I never heard before. Three men held on to the iron railing of the bridge for an hour and a quarter. Robert Miller went out in a small boat to save them, but the current was so rapid that the boat upset, and he too was drowned, the more regretted for his generous exertions in trying to rescue the others. All the stores and shops were closed, and every one came to help. Ropes were thrown out to them, but they broke and only one man was saved. It is supposed that twenty are drowned. I do not know the names of any but the little sons of Mortin Pope, Mr. Beach, Richard Peabody, and Mr. Miller. Several of the bodies have been found, and among them several from Clintonville. This is the third foot bridge that has gone off within two or three weeks."

SOUTH AFRICA.

Another cloud has lowered over the brilliancy of the British arms. By the arrival of papers from the Cape of Good Hope, to the 18th of June, we learn from the official report of the commanding officer of the British troops at port Natal, that the detachment despatched from the Cap etc. to suppress the outrages of the Boers of that settlement, has been defeated with considerable loss. Captain Smith of the 27th regiment, the officer commanding, determined to attack the camp of the Boers at Congelis, where they had collected in great force.

The insignificance of the detachment, however, as compared with the force to which it was opposed, and the non-arrival of the boat containing a howitzer and an artillery officer in time, compelled Captain Smith to make the attempt under great disadvantages. These, added to other casualties, compelled the British detachment to retire with considerable loss.—The Dutch encampment was 6,000 strong when the troops arrived, and afterwards obtained a reinforcement of 200 men.—The Boers are said to be able to muster 2,000. The detachment at the disposal of Captain Smith consisted only of one subaltern, and 17 privates of the royal artillery; 1 subaltern, 1 sergeant, and 2 privates, of the royal sappers; 2 captains, 2 subalterns, 5 sergeants, and 100 rank and file of the 27th regiment; and 2 mounted orderlies of the Cape Rifles.—We regret to learn that Lieutenant Wyatt R. A. was killed and the two captains of the 27th severely wounded.

THE WANDERING JEW.—This is a vulgar error of considerable antiquity. Dr. Percy tells us that it obtained full credit in this part of the world before the year 1238, as we learn from Matthew Paris. In that year it seems there came an Armenian archbishop into England to visit the shrines and reliques preserved in our churches, who, being entertained at the monastery of St. Albans, was asked several questions relating to his country. Among the rest, a monk, who sat near him, inquired "if he had ever seen or heard of the famous person named Joseph, who was so much talked of, who was present at our Lord's crucifixion, and conversed with him, and who was still alive in the confirmation of the Christian faith?" The archbishop answered that the fact was true; and afterwards one of his train, who was well known to a servant of the Abbot's, interpreting his master's words, told them in French that his lord knew the person they spoke of very well; that he dined at his table but a little while before he left the East; that he had been Pontius Pilate's porter, by name Cartaphilus, who, when they were dragging Jesus out of the judgment hall, struck him on the back, saying, "Go faster, Jesus; go faster; why dost thou linger?" Upon which Jesus looked at him with a frown, and said, "I indeed am going, but thou shalt tarry till I come." Soon after, he was converted, and baptized by the name of Joseph. He lives forever; but at the end of every hundred years falls into an illness, and at length into a fit of ecstasy, out of which when he recovers, he returns to the same state of youth he was in when Jesus suffered, being then about thirty years of age. He remembers all the circumstances of the death and resurrection of Christ, the saints that arose with him, the composing of the Apostle's creed, their preaching and dispersion, and is himself a very grave and holy person. This is the substance of Matthew Paris' account, who was himself a monk of St. Alban's, and was living at the time when this Armenian Bishop made the above relation. Since his time several impostors have appeared at intervals under the name and character of the Wandering Jew.—Brand's Popular Antiquities.

GETTING ALONG.—The grand trouble among the crowding population of our cities is, how they shall get along, and upon the brow of each the wrinkle of care is plainly legible. As we write, a busy crowd is passing our door, whose clouded countenances betray the trouble within. There goes a merchant, with a more than usual anxious air; in his mind he is counting his chances for getting along. After a survey of the past, he finds that during the seasons of prosperity he could get along without much trouble; but now, high rents, high licenses, and no business, are fast eating up the profits of prosperous seasons, and his chance of getting along is slim. The small dealer is conveying his goods with an anxious get along haste to the steamboat, finding it impossible to live in St. Louis and pay its exorbitant charges for license, and he is resolved to try getting along at some other spot. Yonder saunters a mechanic, his brow clouded indeed, for his business is at a stand still, the future prospect gloomy, and he is almost forced to despair at getting along. Around him are many seeking employment, and those who have it are forced to a reduction, not that their labor is worth less than formerly, but because there is less to do. Thus to enable the employer to get along a little faster, the journeyman has to suffer.

There goes a brow unclouded by care, and from the owner's lips bursts forth a laugh that tells you in an instant he is not troubled about getting along, and though a slave, he is more free than many who make that freedom a boast. It matters little to him how the world wags, or who is President, he is sure of a living, cares for naught beyond that, and while corroding care is gnawing at the hearts of those that surround him, his cheerful laugh rings out upon the air, saying as plain as words can, that he's getting along without any trouble.

St. Louis Organ.

THE CATHOLIC ROW IN NEW ORLEANS.—Some curious movements are taking place in New Orleans between the Bishop and the warden relative to the appointment of a new warden; and they appear to be only the commencement of the same difficulties that have taken place here between the wardens of Saint Patrick's Cathedral and Bishop Dubois. The matter in dispute, it is said, is about to be referred to the Sovereign Pontiff at Rome, but unless the Sovereign Pontiff decides according to the wishes of the wardens, his decision will go for nothing. The fact is, that it is time for the Catholics of this country to come out and take a bold independent stand in defence of their own rights, and for the preservation of their privileges. It is utterly impossible for a sovereign living at so great a distance as Italy is from the United States, can hold judicious sway over so large and intelligent a body of men as the Catholics of America are. And it must at last come to this; that we must have an American Pope; and nothing short of that will be sufficient.

LAND PIRATES.—There are several islands in the Mississippi river, between the States of Arkansas and Mississippi, which have been long noted as harbors for the most desperate villains which infest the southern country. These scoundrels are ever ready to perpetrate any crime, the most revolting to humanity; and but a few years since there were but few flat boat men hardy enough to lay up for the night at one of these haunts of banditti. Not unfrequently has it happened that boats loaded with produce have been decoyed to the shore, their crews murdered, and the boats sunk to prevent detection. The Anawan, on her passenger up from New Orleans, observed, as she passed Montgomery's Point, four dead bodies floating by. They were evidently murdered, as large and ghastly wounds were seen upon their bodies—they were so offensive that they were not taken up. These men were, doubtless, the victims of the scoundrels upon one of these islands.

The "New Orleans Advertiser," says:—The intelligence from Mexico, gives good reason to believe that Santa Anna is seriously bent on warlike operations upon a comprehensive scale. His intentions are involved in mystery, however. Fifty thousand men, it is said, are already under arms, and further augmentations are making in their military force. The navy is undergoing a re-organization, and is strengthened by the addition of several ships and steamers. This preparation is ostensibly to reconquer Texas. It would be singular if the real object was war with the United States.

The Crescent City says:—We learn that great preparations were being made for sending an overwhelming force into Texas. They are increasing the Navy, and daily augmenting the large military force under arms. All classes of citizens are made to bear a part, either as actors or contributors in the affair. Contributions are levied, taxes imposed, and men drafted—in short, every step is being taken to supply both men and money for a vigorous and formidable campaign against the rebellious Texans.

Galveston, August 18.—A party of gentlemen, seven in number, arrived here yesterday from Aransas Bay. They have been on a scouting expedition on their own hook, and have done a pretty fair business. On this side of the Nueces, they encountered a party of the Mexican spies, about fifty in number, and attacked them. The engagement was short—the citizens of the "greatest republic on earth" refused to come up to the scratch. Twelve of the spies were killed, the remainder taking to their heels. On their person were found considerable sums of money, which you may rest assured were removed, no constitutional scruples preventing our boys from pocketing the deposits. The spies were armed with beautiful silver mounted guns, and had they been men, would have given our party a wafra reception.

Horrid Affair.—A Southern paper gives the following story:—"A man named Williams, who resided at the time near 'Lick Skillet,' in Wilsonton county, Miss., some two or three weeks since, took a little negro girl, and swung her up in a horizontal position, her head about two feet from the ground, and her feet about one foot, and while in this position commenced whipping her. Every time the girl made any demonstration of pain, the fiend jagged her with a sharp stick he prepared for the occasion. In this manner the monster continued his cruelties nearly all night, or until he was fairly tired out, when he released his victim; she died the next day and was buried. The neighbors suspected all was not right, disinterred the body, held an inquest over it and brought in a verdict accordingly. The Sheriff with a posse of men went in pursuit of the miscreant, but they were unable to catch him, he having fled. Williams has heretofore borne a good moral character, but it is now surmised by many that he has also whipped to death another negro girl, as there is another grave near the spot where the last unfortunate victim was interred, which is supposed to be that of a girl who disappeared very suddenly about a year since."

Supposed Murderer and Mail Robber.—The Mobile Ledger of the 27th ult., has an account of the arrest of a man named Benjamin Whitney, charged with being concerned in the murder of John Sherrod, a stage driver, who was shot on the 18th of January, 1838, and the U. S. Mail, which he had under his charge, robbed. Five or six men it was known were engaged in that transaction, one of whom, named John Larkin, was arrested in Philadelphia a few months after the murder, was taken to Mobile by one of our police officers, was tried, convicted and hung. At the foot of the gallows he declared his innocence of the murder. Whitney, who was engaged in the U. S. service, was arrested at Pensacola in consequence of some confessions he made in reference to the robbery. His companions had accused him of cowardice, when he began to boast that he was the individual who, when Larkin exhibited repugnance to shoot Sherrod, snatched the pistol from him and blew out the brains of the mail carrier. He had, in a drunken frolic shortly after the murder, confessed the same fact to different persons. It was known there in 1838 that he walked from Pensacola to Mobile in a great state of destitution, but shortly after he had plenty of money and treasury notes, which he could not then account for being in his possession. He has been unable to rebut any of the facts against him so far, and has been committed on the charge.

Dreadful.—The Staunton, Va. Spectator gives an account of a most horrible affair which occurred in the neighborhood of Brownsburg, Rockbridge county, on Sunday last. A man named John Reed, a blacksmith by trade, who had been observed to be laboring under mental derangement for some days before, made an attack upon his wife and eldest daughter, with a bar of iron, no doubt with the intention of killing them, but they succeeded in making their escape. He then caught two of his younger children, one of whom he killed; and the other, though shockingly mangled, is still living. About this time Capt. James McChesney, of Brownsburg, who happened to be riding by in company with another gentleman, attracted by the noise, attempted to enter the house, but was immediately felled by the infuriated maniac with the bar of iron, and his skull so fractured that he died in about two hours. Capt. M'C. was a most worthy man, and has left a wife and a family of children. Reed has been lodged in Rockbridge jail for safe keeping.

Williams, the Greenwich Bank Swindler.—It having been recently ascertained that Williams, who was charged some months since with defrauding the Greenwich Bank in New-York, of a large sum of money, had taken refuge in Monmouth county, N. J., a requisition was made by Gov. Sewall upon Governor Pennington, for his arrest and delivery to the authorities of New-York; and efforts were made on Friday last to arrest him. A process was given to a constable, who, with several other citizens, pursued him to Squam, where he was arrested. He was brought on to the Blue Bell, but there made his escape, and is now at large. He changed his fine suit of clothes in the neighborhood where he escaped, for an old, ragged suit, which he put on.

Lamentable.—Mr. Henry A. Oudinot, was shockingly crushed by the cars at Schylkill Haven, Pa. on Thursday last, causing his immediate death. Mr. Oudinot had visited that place for the purpose of renting a house, intending to remove there shortly with his family. Having completed his arrangements, and wishing, it is supposed, to return to Reading upon the burden train he stationed himself upon the bridge whilst they were passing. Thinking himself perfectly secure he made no effort to extricate himself, and being caught between the train and the bridge, was so mangled that he died almost instantly. Mr. O. has left a wife and fourteen children, depending upon him for support, to mourn his loss.

Miraculous Escape.—On Wednesday night last, whilst the cars were passing over the Portsmouth and Roanoke railroad, a portion of the railing became detached from the sleeper, one end of which struck the bottom of the car, and was forced through. In passing up, which it did almost as quick as thought, it caught the clothes of a gentleman passenger, whose name we did not learn, and in an instant, before he was conscious even what had happened, stripped a portion of his dress—the vest and coat, entirely from his body, without doing him any injury.

We learn from a gentleman just arrived from the South, that the gale of the 23d ult. was very severe on the Carolina Coast. The steamer Gov. Dudley, in going from Charleston to Smithville, N. C. used up all her fuel, and being ballasted with hard pine, burnt that also, making the boat so crank that they had constant fear of her upsetting. The lower coast of North Carolina was overflowed by the tide, and all the corn destroyed. Fortunately the gale hauled to N. and

W. or many vessels would have gone ashore. Two of the bridges on the Wilmington railroad were undermined, and fell as soon as the train of cars had passed over.

Military Appointment.—Colonel George Clison Beekman, has been appointed Aid-de-Camp to Major General James Arlington Bennett, of the Nauvoo Legion.

Colonel Beekman is grand son to General George Clinton, late Vice President of the United States, and for many years Governor of the State of New York. The Colonel is one of the most noble looking officers in the State, and a Clinton, every inch of him. We hope his military prowess and valor will correspond with his other apparent qualities.

The military army of the Mormons is increasing rapidly. Every thing is quiet at Nauvoo, and Joe Smith is going ahead like a steamboat.—[Weekly Herald.]

Warning to Rogues.—The Montreal Herald says, that the Canadian authorities are determined to inflict severe punishment on individuals from the United States, who attempt to swindle the inhabitants of Canada. The Herald says—"In our report of the proceedings before the Court of King's Bench will be found the sentence of seven years' confinement in the Penitentiary, at hard labor, of a person named John Smith, for attempting to pass notes purporting to be issued by a banking company, which existed only in the brain of the swindler. In this case the culprit could not be charged with forgery, but we hope that his punishment will prove a warning to English and American bank note swindlers, to avoid this Province, where severe punishment most assuredly will follow conviction."

The British Troops in Montreal and Quebec.—Orders have arrived for the 7th Hussars to hold themselves in readiness to embark for England. The Guards now stationed in Quebec are also to go home. Two ships of the line are expected to convey them from Quebec. The Montreal papers say:—

"We have learned that the 70th regiment, from this garrison, and the 68th, now stationed at Sorel and Lake Temiscouata, are under orders for Quebec, where they will remain this winter. The 70th in anticipation of returning to England, this autumn, parted with a great number of its men, who were allowed to volunteer into other corps. It will be relieved in the spring, we learn, by the 81st regiment, from the West Indies. The 2d battalion of the 71st regiment, we observe, sailed from Portsmouth on the 13th of August, in H. M.'s troop ship Resistance, for Quebec. As this vessel is a fast sailer, having taken the 56th regiment in sixteen days from Quebec to Cork, her arrival may be daily looked for. In anticipation of the early arrival of the 71st second battalion, the 70th regiment crossed, on Wednesday, to St. Helens, where it is encamped. The 67th Foot, also at St. Helens, will proceed to England on the return voyage of the Resistance."

Distress Among the Farmers of Ireland.—An American editor in the Emerald Isle, writes to the Philadelphia National Gazette as follows:

"For many years past, the standard of comfort among the farmers of Ireland, has been on the decline. When the old leases expired, the landlord at once raised the rents up to the improved value of the farm, and the mode of cultivation. The talents and industry of the farmer were thus converted into capital for the benefit of the land-owner, and while the labor of tenant was increased, his means of subsistence were reduced until potatoes and milk have now become his only food! He is now compelled to sell all the luxuries and comforts he produces, to meet the increased taxes and the rents. The landlord holds the pulse of the tenant, to watch the last drop of sweat he can exact from him, without exhausting his victim. The face of the country looks beautiful, but poverty and the police have totally changed the character of the Irish people. They exhibit a tameness and air of despair and resignation which, to me, is melancholly to contemplate.

The Lead Mines.—The last Galena Gazette says:—We learn from the Inspector of the Mines of the United States, Capt. Wm. H. Bell, of the Ordnance Department, that there has been over 300 leases already granted to miners by the Superintendent, and that he has now applications for 200 more, that there has been made to him returns for nearly two millions of pounds of mineral, under the new system since May last. The Wisconsin whig states, that it is in contemplation to sink two shafts in the mines at Mineral Point and Dubuque, each 1,500 feet deep, to test the question in relation to the under bodies of mineral supposed to exist in the mineral region.

REPORT OF DEATHS FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY OCT. 3, 1842.

Ralph Birkenhead, 45 years; quick consumption.
Hiram S. Mechem, 5 months, cancer.
Mary Read, 58 years consumption.
Mary Bennett 1 year 1 month. fever.
Benjamin Stafford, 2 years 5 months ague and fever.
Roxana Pratt, 36 years, fever.
Eleanor Prows 40 years; bilious fever.
Emma Jane Telford, 1 year 4 months whooping-cough.
Total 8.
WM. HUNTINGTON, Jr. City Sexton.

HARDWARE, CUTLERY, SADDLERY, &c. CHARLES C. NORRIS & CO. No. 97 MAIN STREET, ST. LOUIS.

ARE constantly receiving, direct from the Manufacture's in England and America, a general assortment of articles in their line, among which are—
Table knives and forks,
Pen, pocket, shoe and butcher knives,
Britannia tea and table spoons,
German silver, plated and iron spoons,
Waiters, tea trays, bread and fruit trays,
Brass, iron, plated and japanned candlesticks,
Britannia tea and coffee pots,
Cast iron skillets, kettles, ovens and lids, pans, &c.
Brass and irons, shovels and tongs, fenders, &c.
Chest, stock, pad, till and cupboard locks,
"Carpenter's," "Shaw's" and English knob locks,
Norfolk, thumb, long and square latches,
Parliament hinges narrow and broad butts,
Brass butts and table hinges.
James' wood-screws, ass'd 3-8 to 4 inch,
Chisels, couges and plane irons,
Plains, braces and bits, bevels, saw sets, augurs,
Coopers drawing knives, axes, adzes, compasses,
Cut tacks, springs and casting nails,
Boston and Pittsburg nails, ass'd 3d to 20d,
Files, rasps, anvils, vices, hammers, bellows, &c.
Cast shear spring, German, English and American blistered steel,
Ploughs, hoes, mattocks and picks,
Trace, halter back and coil chains,
Hames, collars and harness,
Hatchets, axes and hammers,
Cotton and worsted webbing,
S. raining and diaper do.
Red, blue, yellow, and other fancy plushes,
Brass, plated, tinn'd and japan'd &c roller buckles,
Tinned, brass, and silver plated spurs,
Curry-bombs, brushes and horse cards,
Wagon, drovers and fancy riding whips, &c.
Together with a general assortment of other goods not enumerated, which they offer for sale very low for cash or city acceptances. Country merchants and the public generally, are respectfully invited to give them a call before purchasing elsewhere.

N. B. Country produce taken at the highest market price for any articles in their line.

CHARLES C. NORRIS & CO.
September 9. 25-w3.

Remarkable Preservation of Human Life.—A cloud passed over the court house of Princess Anne county, on Tuesday evening, heavily charged with electricity, which struck the tavern house, occupied by Col. Whitehurst. Our informant states that he, with three or four other persons, were sitting at the supper table in the back room of the tavern, at the time, and the peals of thunder were awful and terrific. Suddenly he felt as if he had been shot through the head, and he lost all sense of existence. From this trance, which probably continued only a few moments he awoke, bewildered, and as his eyes fell upon his companions they appeared like so many corpses; they had all been affected by the electric shock like himself, but not one of the company had received the slightest injury! The lightning had struck the chimney of the front room, and sent it asunder from top to bottom, tearing off the mantel piece, hurling it to the lower end of the room, and scattering fragments and rubbish in all directions. A stream of the fluid at the same time struck the chimney of the back room, and partly knocked it down, but passed off without entering the house. The main shaft passed out at the back door, to the kitchen, thirty feet from the house, a footway of boards serving as a conductor. Knocked down the cook and her two children, upset her utensils, and made its escape through a back window. But the circumstance most deserving of notice is, that although there were (including Colonel Whitehurst, his wife and seven children) more than a dozen persons in different parts of the house at the time, not one of them experienced the slightest injury, beyond a temporary stupor from the shock. A most signal and providential deliverance, indeed.—Norfolk Herald.

SHERMAN'S

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medicinal prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CAMPOR LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, lassitude and nervous affections generally, Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispensation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.

These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.

This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12½ cents,) brings it within the reach of every person in the community. A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale by

(22-y1.) J. SNIDER,

Sole Agent for the City of Nauvoo.

ADMINISTRATOR'S NOTICE.

THE undersigned having taken out letters of administration on the estate of Theodore Carlie, late of Hancock county, deceased, hereby notifies and requests all persons, having claims against said estate, to present them to the court of Probate of said county, on the first Monday in the month of November next, in order to have the same adjusted according to law. All persons indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment.

JESSE GILMAN, Administrator.
Carthage, Sept. 16, 1842. no23-1r.

NOTICE.

THE undersigned have recently commenced the leather manufacturing business in all its various branches; also the shoe and glove making business. We wish the citizens and vicinity to give us their patronage, as we offer to the public to tan on shares both upper and sole leather; also morocco and deer skins dressed in the neatest manner, and fur dressing. We will also pay the highest prices for all kinds of hides and skins; tan works near Parley St. about one mile east of the river.

B. R. BENTLEY & J. FIELD.
Nauvoo, Sept. 3, 1842. no20-3m.

WINDOW SASH.

WE, carpenters, builders, &c., of the city of Nauvoo, recommend H. Hammond's patent upper and improved lower window sash springs, as a very superior article:

W. Weeks, principal carpenter of Temple,
L. Woodward, do do Nauv. H's,
R. Hadlock, J. W. Coolidge,
L. Tulle, M. Romney,
H. Riding.

All windows should be made narrow, high and with parting beads.

For the proper ventilation of a room, it is absolutely necessary to lower the upper sash.

These springs are warranted not to lose their elasticity or break, have points for preserving the notches in the sash, directions for selecting the appropriate sizes and properly putting them into windows.

For sale, wholesale and retail, at several of the hardware stores in St. Louis, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, &c. See a window with these springs in operation at Mr. Mills' Masonic Hall.

Nauvoo, Aug. 12, 1842. 17-ly.

NOTES

DUE the Trustee for labor on the Temple, are left with the Temple Committee for collection. Brethren, remember that your contracts with your God are sacred; the labor is wanted immediately.

W. RICHARDS,
Temple Recorder.

June 25, 1842. 10-1f.
P. S. Remember the notes due for property also.

LOOK HERE! LOOK HERE!!

WANTED, at the Nauvoo Foundry, a quantity of Stone coal; any persons wishing to furnish it will please call on Hiram Kimball, or Geo. W. Robinson, at the Post Office.

Old castings will be taken in exchange for new.
Nauvoo, June 12th 1842. 10-1f.

NOTICE.

LEFT, in my care, in the Month of April last, off the Steam-Boat Asbury, one trunk, with a label directed to Miss Elizabeth Stoudard, Montrose, Iowa: the owner is requested to prove property, pay charges, and take the same away, or it will be sold to pay said charges. An advertisement of said trunk is in the store of Mr. Peck, at this time.

S. H. BURTIS.
Montrose, Sept. 2, 1842. no20-1f.

GROCERIES.

STARNES & SPRINGER inform the customers and the merchants generally of Nauvoo, that they have a large assortment of Groceries on hand which they offer very cheap. Any orders sent to them will be punctually attended to, and goods put at the lowest price.

No. 4 Water St., St. Louis, Sept 3, 1842. no20-3m.

ORSON PRATT,

PROFESSOR OF MATHEMATICS AND ENGLISH LITERATURE, IN THE UNIVERSITY OF THE CITY OF NAUVOO.

MOST respectfully announces to the gentlemen and ladies of this city and vicinity, that he will commence his regular course of instruction in the various branches of education, pertaining to the Department over which he has the supervision, on Monday, the 26th day of September, A. D. 1842, at a building situated a few rods north of the Temple.

TUITION FEE.

For Reading and Writing $2.50
" Geography, Grammar, and Arithmetic 3.00
" Philosophy, Chemistry, Astronomy, Algebra, Geometry, Conic Sections, Plane Trigonometry, Mensuration, Surveying, and Navigation. 5.00
For Analytical Plane and Spherical Trigonometry, and Analytical Geometry 7.50
And for the study of the Differential and Integral Calculus, and Newton's Principia. 10.00
City of Nauvoo, Sept. 12, 1842. no22-3w.

DRUGS, MEDICINES, &c.

THE subscriber has opened a Drug Store in Nauvoo, and intends keeping a full assortment of every thing in that line.—Paints, Oils, Varnish, Brushes, Turpentine, Linseed, Spermaceti, and Castor Oil; white Lead, red and black Lead, Vermillion, Prussian Blue, Litharge, Chrome green and yellow, venecian red, spanish brown, lampblack, ivory black, whiting, chalk, yellow ochre, dye stuffs, indigo, cochineal, annatto, madder, copperas, alum, oil vitriol, blue vitriol, logwood, brazilwood, &c., &c.; stationary, plain and ruled cap and letter paper, ink, wafers, quills, sand, &c.; window-glass of all sizes, saleratus, putty, spices, glass ware, perfumery, soaps, snuff, rosin, matches, blacking, every thing in the medicine line, all the patent medicines; all of which will be sold low for cash; Van Studdiford's ague and fever pills, also his medicated lozenges, and cough, worm, and cathartic lozenges, are constantly on hand.

Store on water street above Davis' Hotel.
A. T. TERRELL.
July 23, 1842.

AGUE AND FEVER.

Gleim's tonic mixture and Dr. Renals' pills; two certain cures for that inveterate pest, the chills and fever.—for sale by,

July 23, 1842. A. T. TERRELL.
BEESWAX.
The highest price in cash will be paid for Beeswax, by (16 m 3) A. T. TERRELL.

DR. J. F. WELD.

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS. Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

TAVERN STAND

FOR sale, in Appanoose, Hancock county, Ill., 3 miles above Nauvoo, opposite the ferry landing, leading to Iowa; a 1 house and lot and blacksmith shop, which I will sell low for cash or part in good horses, 1 good two horse wagon will be taken. Possession given immediately. Any one wishing to settle near Nauvoo will do well to call, hit or miss, at the Tavern in Appanoose, and examine the premises. Good titles will be given.

AMOS TERRY.
SILAS TERRY.
Appanoose, Sept. 28, 1842. no24-1f.

W. H. RALSTON,

ATTORNEY & COUNSELLOR AT LAW, Carthage, Hancock county, Ill., will practice in the Hancock Circuit court, and also in the Supreme Circuit and District Courts of this State.

Carthage, Aug. 18, 1842. 18-3m.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus
J. Salsbery, Plymouth.
Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Chiffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John C. Page, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Baris, New Egypt.
James Curtis, Horners Town.
W. I. Appleby, Reelless Town.
Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Salem.
Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapier.
John Johnson, Kirtland.

OHIO.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.
L. R. Foster, city of New York.

TRAVELING AGENTS.

Hiram Kimball.
LIST OF LETTERS

REMAINING in the Post Office at Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill., Oct. 1, 1842, which if not taken out before the 1st of January 1843, will be sent to the Post Office Department as dead letters.

N. B. Persons wishing any of the following advertised letters, will please say they are advertised or they may not get them.

Jas Aldridge
O B Adams
Jno Adams
J F Abbott
Capt M Anderson
M B Agnew
E Ross
Jane Blevin 2
Jno Carnes
F Clark
Albert Clark
Jno Cox
Polly Conklin
David Crockett
H Culler 2
Austin Cowles

N Bliss
B R Bentley
H W Bigler
Jas Bohonan
L L Beacher
J H Burghort
C Baldwin
Henry Backwater
R Bentley
Jas Brewer
J B Backenstos
Jno Bottle
Geo Babcock
Margaret Brush
Mr Frotherton
Chas Betterworth
Levi Brooken
John Blayard
P A Benson
Ann Boothe
rhos Bromley
N Boscow
W Broughton
Jesse Baker
H Cooley
Ed Chamberlain
H Clark
Wm Cook
H I Akey or I Conyers
Danl Carter
B Cole
H Curtis
Wm Corpen
Robt D Foster 5
rhos Filcher
Jas Flanagan
Mr Goodson
S H Godard 2
Morgan Gardner and others

G W Clyde
S W Crandle
Wm S Covert
James Cayton
A Daniels
A Davis
J Decker
James Duncan 2
S Denel
I Drake
R B Derby
U Drigs
Simeon Darke 2
Jas Dawning
R Edwards
J Emmitt
Jno Edgar
Hannah Ellis
T S Edwards
Jos Easton
Wm Earl
Jno Eldridge
Horace Eldridge
Pleasant Ewell
Robt Ellison
Edwin Finch 2
J M Finch
Geo Fowler
A F Fan
Jos Fisher
C Fuller
Hannah Flint
D Fry
Wm Nerbit
Wm Niswanger
Oliver Olney
D Osburn
A R Orton
Jedediah Pheen
A Pilkington
N Peney
W. W. Phelps
J Powell 2
M Phelps
Ad Pratt 2
Jno Patten
Jos Parke
Jos Prockter
Jos Pullen
S Pinkham
J Peck
P Page
Jno Rice
Jos Robinson 2
Jne E Rayce 4
Saml Rolfe
Erio Rodes
J L Robinson 2
A Richardson 2
Elizabeth Ravenscroft
H Roberts
Sophia Rills
W H Rolloson
Jno Roles
C Rathbone
Messrs Gracy & Reed
Ed Stiff
J C Scofield
A W Sherman
Ed Stephenson
Allen Stout
Alex Stephens
E Spencer or J Harrington

Truman Gillet
Sarah Gibson
J Goodall
Wm Gheen
David Grant
L M Geer
Carlos Granger
Carlos Gove
J Gallard
DS Hollister
Elias Higbee
Ester Huse
A Haughton
H Hacy
J C Haight
Knollon Hanks
Jos Harwood
J Hadlock
rhos Hoste
Joel Huff
F M Higbee
Mary Hoover
Ed Hunter sen
Ed Hunter
Ann Hunter
R Hebbord 2
J N Harbron
J A Hicks
Miss Alice Hordman
S Hulet
Stephen Hales
J P Herr
Wm Hales
Jno Haven
G Hills
Thos Johnson
E Jennings
H Jett
D Judy
Abel Jance
H Jolley
H Kerns 2
F Kinyon
I H Killbough
O Killbourn
I D Lee
r I Langon
Jno Lindsey
J Lyncoln
Geo Lyman
Stephen Lits
C L Lewis 2
A Lyman
H Loveland
Sarah Myres
A P Muney
E Malon
R A Moore 2
Robt Maxton 2
S C Menill
temperance Mack
Wm Morsden
Jno Miller
Wm Marks
Peter Melling
Mary Maxton
Wm McClery
W G Mullen
F Moon
Geo Miller 3
rhos B Marsh
C Marsh
Jas McClalou
Saml McMurtry 2
Jno Myers
J McElroy
H H Mathews
P Merrick
M Mansfield
Cath Minnerly
E Nelson
L S Nickerson
thos Nelson

Jno Stewart
Elijah Sheets
Nath Stewart
Wm Stewart
Jno Sweet
Jos Shaw
Rich Spencer
Wm Sutton
Jos Smethies
Jane Smith
Geo A Smith
Elisha Smith
J P or Mory Smith
Jno Smith
Joseph Smith
B Stringham
Jno Sholer
Jno turpen
J H Tippets
R S rorey 2
E rhompson
Jno thorpe
r D rumbull
H Umphry
Jno Wheeler
E J Webb
Geo M Warr
r Wait
rhos Wakefield
A W Whitney
S Winchester
L Wilson
B F Worrington
Jno Williams
B Worrington
D Wood
Miles Wilson
C Weston
Jno B Walker
E F Wiggins
Jno Watkins
Wm C Walker
F D Williams
Jno Wakefield
J S Workman
E D Webb
S Otho Williams
C Young
P H Young
Lewis Zigler 2

SIDNEY RIGDON, P. M.

Wood wanted at this Office

THE WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 26

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, October 15, 1842.

Whole Number 26

THE WASP,

AS EDITED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY

WM. SMITH,

At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.

TERMS.—$1.50 invariably in advance.

HARDWARE, CUTLERY, SADDLERY, &c.
CHARLES C. NORRIS & CO.

No. 97 MAIN STREET, ST. LOUIS.

ARE constantly receiving, direct from the Manufacture's in England and America, a general assortment of articles in their line, among which are—

Table knives and forks,

Pen, pocket, shoe and butcher knives,
Britannia tea and table spoons,

German silver, plated and iron spoons,
Waiters, tea-trays, bread and fruit

trays,
Brass, iron, plated and japanned candlesticks,

Britannia tea and coffee pots,

Cast iron skillets, kettles, ovens and lids, pans, &c.

Brass and irons, shovels and tongs,
fenders, &c.

Chest, stock, pad, till and cupboard
locks,

"Carpenter's," "Shaw's" and English knob locks,

Norfolk, thumb, loag and square latch-

es,
Parliament hinges, narrow and broad

buts,
Brass butts and table hinges.

James' wood-screws, ass'd 3-8 to 4 inch,
Chisels, gouges and plane irons,

Plains, braces and bits, bevels, saw sets, augurs,

Coopers drawing knives, axes, adzes,
compasses,

Cut tacks, springs and casting nails,
Boston and Finsburg nails, ass'd 10 to 20d,

Files, rasps, anvils, vices, hammers,

bellows, &c.
Cast shear spring, German, English and American blistered steel,

Ploughs, hoes, mattocks and picks,

Trace, halter back and coil chains,
Hames, collars and harness,

Hatchets, axes and hammers,
Cotton and worsted webbing,

Straining and diaper do.
Red, blue, yellow, and other fancy

plushes,
Brass, plated, tinn'd and japann'd &

roller buckles,
Tinned, brass, and silver plated spurs,

Curry-bombs, brushes and horse cards,
Wagon, drovers and fancy riding

whips, &c.
Together with a general assortment of other goods not enumerated, which they offer for sale very low for cash or city acceptances. Country merchants and the public generally; are respectfully inited to give them a call before purchasing elsewhere.

N. B. Country produce taken at the highest market price for any articles in their line.

CHARLES C. NORRIS & CO.
September 9. 25-w2.

From the People's (N. H.) Advocate.
MORMONISM.

Upon this subject the people have of late been much excited, and the papers have teemed with monstrous reports, awful plots, dark foreboding, violence, blood, war and mysterious disappearances, all of which have sprung from the revelations of a certain vagrant by the name of Bennett, who says that he,

at times, was the Holy Ghost pro tempore
in Joe Smith's New Jerusalem, the city of Nauvoo. As this question has nothing to do with abolition we have never noticed it. But since Bennett is now travelling over the country, retailing out his story at 12 1-2 cents per head, and drawing large audiences in such places as New York and Boston, to listen to the recital of acts, which, whether true or not, must be extremely corrupting to all who hear them, and especially to the young, we would say that if Joe Smith is a rogue, we believe Bennett to be doubly
so.

We have no confidence in the stories he tells, and believe his only object is to raise money from a gullied people. If Mormonism is a humbug, we really think that Bennett's story is ten times more a humbug. If it be true that he is the base wretch he represents himself to be, instead of people's flocking to hear him, he should be arrested on his own confession, as worthy of the cell or the halter.

So far as the Mormons are concerned,
we have no doubt but there is much wickedness among them as among all people, that some of their people are imposters and knaves, and that Bennett was one of that kind, notwithstanding he was an abolitionist. He certainly was so, if his own words can be relied upon; and if he comes into New Hampshire, we trust he will be taken at his word, looked upon as the person he represents himself to be, and treated accordingly. The great body of the Mormons are doubtless like the great body of the people elsewhere, honest unless led astray by designing leaders.

Whatever may be the character of the holy Joe, and we have no doubt it is bad enough, none can deny that he is a man of talent and tact equalled but by few in the nation. If his religion is all a hoax, originating with himself, he must have been a man of giant intellect and most decerning powers, or in this age of the world, and among the most intelligent people of the earth, he never could have led away and kept together such a band as he has. He has not such a theatre for action as Mahomet, or with his present efforts he would ere this have overrun
the land.

It seems from the Times and Seasons,
of which he is the publisher and editor, and which by the way is conducted with a great deal of talent and ability, more so than most of the papers of the country, that he and Rockwell, after having been released, under a writ of habeas corpus, issued according to the constitution and their city charter, fearing, as we think he had good reason to, that Missouri was no place for justice, used his freedom as every man has a right to do, and when the officers again returned to prosecute the arrest was found wanting.

If Joe Smith is an abolitionist, and he ought to be, in these sentiments we sympathize with him, and should look upon him as having attained to much more hu- manity at least, and in this matter carrying out much more Christianity than many of our churches; but whether we agree with any of his views, we do now believe, and shall until we hear from somebody besides Bennett, that there is no foundation for his present prosecution—that it is in fact a persecution, that was delayed until after the election, that they might obtain Mormon votes, and is now permitted in hopes to make sufficient capital to more than overbalance their loss, among his opponents, before another election comes round. Joe Smith seems to us to have much truth in the following editorial of August 15, and to state the case nearly as it is in relation to his people.

"Ever since the formation of the church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, callumnay, reproach and persecution, has flown plentifully into their lap—detrac-tion, slander, falsehood, and misrepresentation has been gratuitously heaped upon them; they have been assailed by vexatious law suits, organized mobs, and illegally treated by militia; they have been imprisoned, whipped, tarred and feathered, and driven from their homes;
they have had their property confiscated, and have suffered banishment, exile, and death for their religion. Missouri has been one of the principal actors in the scene; she has made many a wife a widow, and many a child an orphan. The tears of the oppressed have plentifully watered her soil; the cries of her robbed and spoiled have rung through her valleys, and been re-echoed from hill to hill;
many a weary pilgrim, borne down with oppression and weary of life, has laid himself down to sleep in the arms of death, while the blood of the innocent has drenched her soil. And never till the trump of God shall sound, the sleeping dead shall arise, the books be opened, and the secret history of peoples and nations be unfolded, will the amount of their sufferings be fully known. That day will unfold scenes of wickedness, misery, and oppression, and deeds of inhumanity and blood, that the most eloquent cannot depict, the pencil of the limner portray, and that is beyond the power of language to unfold—scenes of misery, of woe, and human suffering. Dipped in the malice of the most fiendish hate, the cup of misery has been wrung out, and they have drunk it to the very dregs. Missouri, frantic with rage, and not yet filled with blood, wishes now to follow her bleeding victims to their exile, and satiate herself with blood. And not satisfied with staining her own escutcheon, she wishes to decoy the noble, generous, and patriotic sons of Illinois—to deceive them with appearances—to draw them into her snare, that she may be sharer in her crimes, and participate in her guilt, and with eternal infamy her character. We have already to blush for the gullibility of many of her editors who feel desirous to fan the deadly flame, and stain their hands with her foul deeds. We would advise such to halt, to pause for a moment—to reflect upon what they are doing. Have you not witnessed their wanton persecution? their cruel oppression?

their deadly hate? Have you not loudly exclaimed against such proceedings?—
Stood forth in defence of republicanism—and as true patriots defended the rights of man? And can you now advocate a cause that would attempt to or even moot the question of making an innocent, virtu- ous people "tremble at the sight of GATH-ERING HOSTS?"

Whether, however, what Smith there says be true or not in regard to the Mormon question, it is every word true when you come to anti-slavery. "She has made many a wife a widow." We cannot forget what has been the course of Missouri towards ourselves—that in truth there has been "vexatious law-suits and organized mobs" against liberty there.
That within her boundaries men have been "whipt, tarred and feathered, and driven from their homes." We do not forget that she has now three noble spirits locked up in her penitentiary on a twelve years term—that she has permitted the most outrageous murders to be perpetrated in the broad light of day—that there men have been burned over slow fires amid the infernal yells of a hellish rabble—that there our Lovejoy was mobbed, and like the Mormons, pursued into Illinois, and there murdered in cold blood. Yes, every word of that article, whether it be true or not with regard to the Mormons, and we have no reason to doubt it, is true in point of fact concerning those who have been residents in Missouri; and Smith acted the part of a wise man in taking care of himself, where there was no law to protect him.

As to the abolitionism in the above article, we have nothing to do with it. The sentiments of justice, and the truth contained in the reasoning, are what we have transplanted into the columns of the Wasp for. Reason and truth conquer.

From Gleig's Veterans.

A SCENE IN SPAIN DURING THE WAR.—Re- venge.—It was late one night when a party, of which I was one, weary, cold, and famishing, reached the place where we were directed to halt till the morrow. Almost all the army had preceded us, and the waysides were strewn with its wrecks, for men, women, children, horses and bullocks had dropped down from sheer exhaustion, some to die, others to find what rest they might, in utter indifference of the consequences that were to follow, of which the least distressing would be capture by the enemy.—
Moreover, the face of the country bore marks of the moral whirlwind which had passed over it. A few cottages were here and there, with a village or a hamlet at remote intervals, not one of which had escaped the fury of the murderers, and of which several were in ruins. Well, then, we were at our ground about two hours after dark. The snow was falling fast, and the wind blew cold and keen, so that any kind of shelter was, in our eyes invaluable; and happy were we when we saw that there was a homestead at hand, into which without waiting for any orders from our superiors, we entered. It was not in its external shell a ruin; the walls stood upright and the roof had not yet been removed, but such a scene of devastation and misery as the interior presented, the eyes of civilized men have seldom been shocked by beholding; not a shred or particle of furniture was left; the very door had been torn from its hinges, and smouldering ashes of a huge fire pointed out the uses to which they had been turned. There were two or three lamps burning, by the light of which we discovered an old man and woman seated on the ground, and a youth laying dead between them. He was still bleeding from the forehead, through which a ball had passed, and his parents, for so afterwards I understood them to be, were gazing upon him in silent agony. They never moved when we rushed in; they did not even seek to carry their dead out of the way; and the woman at least, continued to regard him with a stare that altered not. The old man, on the other hand, looked up, and the scowl, the fierces and angry glance he cast round him, I shall not forget to my dying day. Unfortunately, several of our people had drunk just as much liquor as to madden, without absolutely stupifying or rendering them harmless; and one of them, swearing at the old man, made a demand for bread. The Spaniard returned no answer, but pointed to the dead body. "You old —," exclaimed the drunken savage, "do you think we can eat that? Give us bread—bread, or we'll burn the house about your ears!" As he said this, he struck the old man with the butt of his musket, but the blow missed the mark. It fell on the cheek of the corpse with a crushing

sound, which caused my flesh to creep. With a wild yell the old man sprang to his feet. He seemed to grasp in his bosom for something which either was not there or he had the prudence not to produce; and rushing out of doors, did not make his appearance all that night—There was a presentiment of evil in my mind, which I was sure would find its fulfilment. The strange and most disgraceful scene operated upon us all. We spoke kindly to the old woman, removed the dead body to one corner of the room, and spread a piece of sackcloth which we found there, over him; and then, laying down ourselves, endeavored to forget both hunger and fatigue in sleep. But we did not all muster on what they called the parade ground when the hour for getting under arms arrived. The man who had acted so brutally was found a yard or two from the cottage door, pierced with three wounds in the breast, and quite dead; and though we could not tell whether he had gone there of his own accord, or been lured abroad, or first slain and then dragged out, there was not one among us who entertained the shadow of a doubt as to the hand from which the blow came. Such is a specimen, an extreme one, I believe of the mode in which feelings, exasperated by much suffering on both sides, relieved themselves here and there between the Spaniard and the Englishman. I believe that, in the instance just referred to the youth had been killed by accident, if indeed the term can be fairly used in reference to a shot which, though not fired with a design to take away life, was meant to facilitate the plunder of the peasant's cottage; for the Spaniards all locked their doors when they saw our people approaching; and our men became so indignant at last that they forced them open—Moreover, the method of doing so was to apply the muzzle of a musket to the key hole, by which means the lock was blown off as soon as the musket was discharged; and, doubtless, the poor youth happened to be looking through the aperture when the ill-fated shot was fired. Still the father not unnaturally attributed his son's death to design; he, therefore regarded the English as his worst enemies; and the complete state of pillage to which they reduced him, may well be pleaded as his excuse for doing so. No wonder, then, that what seemed to be an insult offered to the dead body of the child should have maddened him altogether. He took his revenge on the individual who inflicted it, and who will greatly blame him?

Facts.—The mahogany tree is full grown in 200 years. Cypress trees are known to be 8 or 200 years old.

A Chestnut tree on Mount Etna is 196 feet round close to the ground.

Iron is fibrous; gold is crystalline.

There are no solid rocks in the Arctic Region, owing to the severe frosts.

Fossil bones of the lizard, twenty four feet in length, and of the dragons of antiquity, have been found at Bavaria.

The surface of the sea is estimated at 150,000,000 square miles, taking the whole surface of the Globe at 297,000,000. Its greatest depth is supposed to be equal to the highest mountain, of four miles.

Fresh water begins to freeze at 32 deg. called the freezing point, but salt water not till 36 1-2 deg.

River water contains about 28 grains of solid matter to the cubic foot. Hence such a river as the Rhine carries to the Sea every day 145,000 cubic feet of sand or stone.

Fish are common in the seas of Surinam with four eyes, two of them in horns, which grow on the crown of their heads.

The north polar seas have been explored as far as latitude 80 deg. 48 sec. The South Polar seas have not been penetrated higher than 75 deg.

Of one hundred parts into which the surface of the earth may be divided, Europe contains 7, Africa 21, Continental Asia 33, New Holland, &c. 8, South America 15, North America 6.

A cylinder full of water may be converted into ice, by placing it in five lbs. of sulphate of soda, and four lbs. of sulphuric acid, at 36 deg., well mixed. The ice is extracted for use by putting the cylinder in hot water.

Extreme cold produces the same perception on the skin as great heat. When mercury is frozen at 40 deg. below zero the sensation of the skin is the same as that of touching red hot iron.

Quicksilver melts at 39 deg. above zero. Ether freezes at 47 deg. below zero. Wine at twenty.

The sound of thunder may be heard for 20 or 25 miles, or, with the ear to the ground, much more. Lightning is reflected 150 or 500 miles.

—[Saturday Chronicle]

THE WASP.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1842.

N. B.

Let it be distinctly understood that the publication of the Wasp will continue at Nauvoo, until 'The Dove of the West' is started at Keokuk, be the time 'more or less.'

VICE IN NEW YORK.

'A short time since a poor woman with one child which was in feeble health, was applied to by the wife of a rich lawyer to make up some garments. After to upelling her to do them at the lowest possible price, she insisted upon their being done immediately. The widow agreed, for she had no food for her child, or money to procure it, she neither slept or ate until the work was finished and presented to her employer. The rich wife and mother expressed her surprise at its accomplishment in so short a time. The widow, with tears, told the pitiable story. Instead of hastily paying her and letting her depart in peace, the lady raised her hands, and said, 'Is it possible a pretty woman like you should suffer thus? There are means within your reach, at least while your beauty lasts, to enable you to support your child and live comfortably yourself, and if you do not embrace them you deserve to suffer.' She gave the widow the small sum due, with reluctance, and with her kind advice let her depart. The widow, with insulted feelings and an agonized heart, left her presence, not daring to reply lest she should lose her patronage. She has since learned that the husband and the father of this lady rent their houses—and they have many—for infamous purposes.'

The above horrible innuendo of sin in high life, is from the N. Y. Sun. There has been a great cry against the Mormons on account of what J. C. Bennett trumped up to screen his disgraced character from ruin and infamy, but we were of the opinion that the real truth was, and the mark be put upon the right creature at last—and so it is! New York is not the only city where vice, in all its secret appalling meanness, operates in debauchery, in gambling, in voluptuousness, in drunkenness, in swindling, in counterfeiting, in thieving and in murdering! No; all our great cities are 'sores' upon the body of our Republic, which are cankering the morals of the people, and will eventually produce mortification.

Bennett and his kennel of blood hounds, the Sangamo Journal, Quincy Whig, and some others, have a luscious job to paint vice the color of virtue, and then cry Mormonism! Mormonism! Joe Smith a $1000 will buy a Mormon while behind the curtain, you can obtain them for a picayune a piece! O generation of vipers!

TWO FACES.

A week or two ago the Quincy Whig was so charitable to the Mormons that it advised them all to go to Oregon, where Government would undoubtedly do something handsome by way of donating land to Joseph. While the fumes of this oblation are still curling round the chimneys of Quincy, these same see as come out in the Whig, and say the reward of $300 by Reynolds of Missouri, and the reward of Carlin, of Illinois, of $200, for the apprehension of Joseph Smith, is too small.—$1000 might tempt the Mormon's cupidity! Now ye two faced Januaries, which horn of the dilemma will ye hang on. Government land in Oregon, or a thousand dollars for temptation! See Isaiah 28 chapter, 19 and 20 verses.

LUMBER.

Another large raft of Pine hewn timber, with a respectable portion of boards and planks, came down from the pineries in Wisconsin, and landed in this city on Thursday last. It contained 24 M. cubic feet of timber, and 80 or 90,000 feet of boards. Vigilance, industry and tranquillity will give Nauvoo beauty, elegance, and appearance, suitable to the name, and worthy of imitation.

DROUGHT.

For several weeks the inhabitants of this vicinity have experienced a considerable drought. The crops being out of the way—nothing, if we except now and then a case of 'chill and fever,' suffer much, though a shower of rain would be very agreeable. The first frost of any note, came nipping along on Saturday night the 8th inst., which has turned the beautiful green of summer to the orange and yellow leaf, as a signal, that the cold breath of winter, will soon give us one of his chilling blasts, and shut the scene of summer felicity, and autumn sobriety, for the general benefit of the 'White Surveyor—sans souci.'

CITRONS.

Elder Woodruff of this city, has raised the past season from one seed, some forty or fifty citrons, which weigh in all 600 pounds. This is more than scripture measure, being six hundred fold. Elder Woodruff raised a radish also, in his garden, which measured 18 1-2 inches in circumference. Great things in Nauvoo.

MORE MORMONS.

Elder Brown arrived with a camp of fifty Mormons, on Tuesday last, from Addison co. Vt. all in good health and spirits, and well pleased with the city of Nauvoo, and the country generally.

James Sloan, the City Recorder, has been elected Notary Public for this City.

For the Wasp.

Aphalia, Madison county, N. Y.,
Sept. 27th, 1842.

MR. EDITOR:—I have repeatedly appealed to public mentors of the city of New York and Philadelphia, in answer to Cook Bennett's exposure of Mormonism, and in many instances they have entirely neglected to publish any thing but the exparte of that miserable apostate. The following is a copy of a part of a communication which I sent to the office of the New York Herald, and from which I never yet heard the first syllable. I like fair play, and why I have been thus neglected I know not; I am a subscriber to the Herald and am responsible for what I say and don't like this one sided business. I send it to you and you may keep it or send it to the four winds of heaven in the Times and Seasons, or send it on the wings of your Yellow Jacket, (Wasp,) as you please; you have it as follows.

Dear Bennett of the Herald:—

I noticed in your paper of the fourth of the present month, a synopsis of the immortal expose of Mormonism by John C. Bennett, I was present on the occasion at the Church, and after paying 12 1-2 cts. for admittance, had the satisfaction of listening to one of the filthiest mouthfuls that ever dropped from the lips of a mortal man. Bachelor, the Premier of Bennett, opened the expose and secrets of Mormonism by reading half an hour from Buck's Theological Dictionary. I, like others, was astounded to find the great secrets so public—recorded by Buck as having been written many years previous to the birth of Joseph Smith: but they or set them down for liars and impostors. This Exordium was not very savory, and in order to catch the audience, Bennett had to get up, and with much apology, commenced one poor, pitiful story that he had written before him, the substance of which existed only in the phantoms of his own hellish imagination. I have to testify that it was a bare compound of slander and lies. I am a Mormon and am proud of the name and the substance of our doctrines: I was a Mormon before Bennett and have been as closely connected with all the secrecy of Joseph Smith as he has, and I bear this testimony of the man that he is virtuous, upright, honest and true to his country and his God and as faithful a devotee to the laws and constitution of our country as any man who now lives within the bounds of this great Republic. To this fact I might get ten thousand subscribers, and I challenge Bennett or any other man or woman to show a more exemplary man beneath the sun, or cite to any time or place when he has violated the laws of his country, or when he has taught, either publicly or privately, by precept or example, any thing repugnant to the laws of the Holy Bible, or worthy of bonds or death. It can't be done; it is too well known that he stamps with indignation and contempt every species of vice—if it had not been so Bennett would have been with us yet; but as it is he is looking up associates elsewhere: some who with him will fabricate and send lies by the wholesale; and he has faithfully laboured six months, traveled two or three thousand miles and has made but one proselyte, poor Bachelor; these are hard times—the fish won't bite—vainly he tries to link to his car some one of reputation and good character. Alas, none but the seduced join the seducer; those only who have been arraigned before a just tribunal for the same unbal-

lowed conduct can be found to give countenance to any of his black hearted lies, and they, too, detest him for his seduction, these are the ladies to whom he refers his hearers to substantiate his assertions. Mrs. White, Mrs. Pratt, Niemans, Miller, Brotherton, and others. Those that belong to the church have had to bear the shame of close investigation as to their adulteries, and have been dealt with according to church order, in such case made and provided, in the Book of Covenants, (Sec. 91 and Sec. 13, page 122, and the Holy Bible, Book of Mormon &c.) Mrs. White never was a member of the Mormon church, but really did Bennett try to seduce her from her father's home to wander with him, God knows where; but as he says to enjoy a large estate that had recently fell to him in England, when at the same time he had not the shadow of title to a dollar then on the earth.—Why does he not pay his debts? and contribute to the wants of his wife and helpless family in Ohio? Why does he say that all the prisoners in Hancock county, are Mormons, when he knew there was now in jail but those who were arrested by Mormons, and that on the risk of life, in which arrest a Mormon got stabbed, and for days his life was despaired of, why does Bennett say he was there to staunch the wound of the citizen, as he called him, when he knows that none was there but Dr. Barns, of Carthage? why does he say that five Danites are in the city of New York to take his life, of whom he has pleased publicly to call me captain, pledged to take his life? why did he not arrest me when I told him at the church I was ready to answer his impious charge? why does he not get large congregations? why did the people leave the church, so many of them, before he got through his remarkable disclosures? why is it that he has no other friend than Origen Bachelor? why do the people of New York say he deserves tar? why was he turned out of the Mormon church? why don't his stories of 1840 agree with 1842? why is he denounced by all honest men that know him? why did he plead the cause of the house of ill fame in Nauvoo when he was Mayor and the City Council unanimously declared it a public nuisance? why is it that his speeches all clash? why does he say that Joseph Smith teaches impious doctrine? Why does he say that Porter Rockwell attempted and Joseph Smith was confederate to the shooting of Rogers? why does he read so much courtesy to and name for his unequalled expose? why do pretty much all the public papers, except the Saturday Courier, of Philadelphia, denounce him as an impostor? why did he back out in New York, when I offered to meet him? why do the priests of Salem and Boston welcome him and parade the streets arm in arm with him? why can't he raise a mob after trying so long? Because he is a liar and a vender of lies, and is a liar from the beginning. * * *

Yours respectfully,

R. D. FOSTER.

WHEAT.

George K. Budd of St. Louis, has issued a circular relative to western wheat, from which the following facts are drawn:—

"From the best data within my reach, I estimate the yield of those States bordering on the Mississippi, and of which St. Louis is the great depot, as follows:—Illinois yielded in 1839, 3,335,000 bushels—increase in 1842, 75 per cent, is 5,847,000. Missouri yielded in 1837, 1,037,000 bushels—increase in 1842, 100 per cent, is 2,074,000. Wisconsin yielded in 1839, 212,000 bushels—increase in 1842, 200 per cent, is 939,000. Iowa yielded in 1839, 154,000 bushels—increase in 1843, 500 per cent, is 624,000. Making the aggregate Wheat product of these four States and Territories, nine million four hundred and eighty thousand bushels. The aggregate population, of these States is now not less than 902,000, being a gain of 15 per cent. on the census of 1840, and the consumption of wheat at 4 hf bushels to the head, is 4,464,000 bushels, thus leaving a surplus of 5,016,000 bushels for export—one half of which will find its way through St. Louis, to the seaboard. In conclusion, I remark the price (of Wheat) for our surplus, will almost wholly depend on the English grain crop; if this is short there will be a demand for more than all the excess of yield, and the price in the Atlantic cities would probably rise to a minimum of $1.25, with an upward tendency. If, on the other hand, the crop of Great Britain should be an average one, it is worthy of remark that from the year 1820 to that of 1841, prime Wheat has never been less in price in Philadelphia than 92 cents, equal to $4.66 per bbl. for flour.

"This was in 1820 and 1826, in both which years this country and Great Britain had plentiful harvests.

"Wheat on the Ohio in 1820, sold for 20 cents; in 1826 it brought 33 cents; the discrepancy between 20 and 33, while the prices of each year were the same (92 cents) in the Atlantic cities, may be accounted for by the facilities of steam navigation in 1826 over 1820.

"I repeat my conviction, that prime wheat during the present season, will not go below 90 cents in the Northern Atlantic Cities, at which price in New York it should (if can be landed in New York for 40 cents per bushel) command here 45 cents per bushel—provided, it is standard wheat, and in good condition for foreign shipment, which however, it will not be, till October.

Defeat of British Troops at Port Natal.—We learn from an official report of the journals of the Cape of Good Hope, of the 18th of June, that the detachment despatched from the Cape to suppress the outrages of the boers of that settlement had been defeated with immense loss.—Having received insolent requisition to withdraw the British troops from Port Natal, which was succeeded by the lifting of a considerable number of cattle belonging to them, Captain Smith of the 27th Regiment, the officer commanding, determined to attack the camp of the boers at Congella, where they had collected in great force.

The insignificance of the detachment, however, as compared with the force to which it was opposed and the non arrival of the boat containing a howitzer and an artillery officer in time, compelled Captain Smith to make the attempt under great disadvantages. These, added to other casualties explained in his letter, compelled the British detachment to retire with considerable loss, the Dutch boers being remarkable for their skill in the use of the long rifle they usually carry, particularly when directing their fire, as in this case, from the bush.

Tricks upon Immigrants.—It is supposed that there is some collusion between some of the city authorities and the owners of certain vessels returning to Europe, for the purpose of forcing great numbers of immigrants back to Europe, merely for the sake of obtaining from them the passage money. Such a mercenary scheme is reprehensible in the highest degree. Multitudes of poor, but industrious and able bodied persons, are thus driven back on the hopeless toil and grinding oppression from which they sought an asylum here, and who, had they been permitted, would have found comfortable homes in the distant West.

It is to be hoped that appropriate measures will be taken for the prevention of this despicable traffic in the hopes and fears of these poor people. Emigrants arriving here cannot be too frequently reminded that this country presents ample room and verge enough for exercise of the successful industry and honorable toil of many millions. The fertile plains and valleys of the West teem with the fruits of the earth, and the rapid influx of settlers is every day creating a fresh and rapidly increasing demand for the assistance of the mechanic and tiller of the ground. Why, then, should persons, with their feet already on our shores, forego these advantages and neglect to avail themselves of the thousand opportunities here afforded of acquiring that comfortable subsistence which could never be attained by them in the old world? Let not the emigrant, then, listen to the false statements of interested individuals relative to his prospects, but let him at once wend his way to the comfortable independence which assuredly awaits persevering industry in the fair fields of the West.

Storms on Land and Lake.—The oldest navigators scarcely remember more severe storms at the seasons than have swept along Lake Ontario for some days past.

The quantity of rain which fell in the Genesee Valley may be guessed from the unusually great flood this season—some of the damage by which was noticed in yesterday's post.

We are informed that something like a whirlwind swept across the land about three miles south of Rochester, prostrating most of the timber of thirty acres on one farm—uprooting part of a large orchard near the same, on another farm—and playing other pranks among the farmers, besides seriously injuring some buildings near Pittsford. This was in the storm of Friday night and Saturday morning, the 9th and 10th of September. All the damage that we have yet heard of was on the east side of the Genesee, not far from the river.—Rochester Post Sept.

ST. LOUIS SCRIPT.

Pursuant to the Mayor's requisition, the City Council met last evening, and passed a number of resolutions.—We give a synopsis below:

The annual city expenditures, from this time, shall not exceed $35,000.

The Texas and Revenue shall not be decreased till the present city debt is paid.

No further city work shall be commenced till a fund therefor shall be raised by direct tax on real estate.

From the annual revenue, $100,000 shall be set aside to pay outstanding warrants on the Treasury.

Holders of city warrants may receive of the proper officers, bonds of the city in lieu. The bonds shall be made payable in 3, 4 and 5 years, according to their amount, and bear interest at 10 per cent. per annum; the interest payable semi-annually, and all payable in specie.

There shall not be more than $150,000 of the above bonds issued.

These bonds shall be duly signed by the Mayor and other officers, and bear the seal of the city.

The revenues and property of the city are pledged for the redemption in specie of these bonds.

The Ordinance to take effect from its passage.—Mound City.

The Money voted by Congress.—The Clerk of the House of Representatives, in compliance with an Act of Congress, has published in the National Intelligencer a detailed statement of the appropriations made during the late session of Congress, specifying the amount and object of each. The following is a recapitulation of the whole:

Civil and Diplomatic list	$9,363,293 53
Army	6,405,290 36
Navy	6,774,405 42
Fortifications	278,000 00
Pensions	730,776 00
Ind. Dep't, treaties, &c.	1,340,977 47
Private bills, House of Rep.	37,855 01
Private bills, Senate	62,773 63

$24,932,196 82

The son of a famous L. J. Papineau, the Canadian patriot, has been returned to the Provincial Parliament for the county of Ottawa. Montreal and Toronto papers anticipate the speedy recall of his father from exile. This step would tend greatly to conciliate the French population of the Province, with whom Papineau has great influence.

Ohio has 10 colleges and 80 academies and grammar schools, and 5000 students; and about 5200 primary and common schools, with 220,000 pupils.

It is said that 3 Lt. Colonels, 4 Majors, 17 Captains, 11 First and 19 Second Lieutenants, 1 Surgeon and 5 Assistant do., have been killed by the enemy, or have died from disease in Florida, since the commencement of the war.

Gov. Doty, of Wisconsin Territory, has issued his proclamation, requiring the people to vote at the election to be held on the 4th Monday of next month, for or against the formation of a permanent government for the State of Wisconsin.

The Frankfort Journal announces the death of Mr. Isaac Harwig d'Essen, one of the heads of the German Israelite congregation at Hamburg.—Having no children, he bequeathed his fortune, amounting to 500,000 marks banco ($375,000,) to charitable institutions in Hamburg, Altona, and Copenhagen.

Mr. Ferdan, the officer appointed by the Mayor of New York, with his assistants, prior to the 25th of June, destroyed 665 dogs. From that date to July the 16th, they killed 460 more, and from thence to the 10th instant inclusive, 1133 more have been put to death, making the whole number of dogs destroyed, since early in June, 2267.

The dome of the State House of Boston was visited in 1841 by 43,478 persons. During the present year, since March, by 24,002.

The Bill making appropriations for certain sites for marine hospitals, provides the following sums for the purchase of ground: viz. for a site at Natchez, $7000; at Napoleon, Arkansas, $1,000; at St. Louis, $7,468; at Paducah, Kentucky, $1,000; at Louisville, $6,000; at Pittsburg, $10,258; at Cleveland $12,000.

A Mr. Ames of Cabottville, Mass., who has a large contract with Government for supplying swords, has been notified that one-half of the number only contracted for, will be required. The notification has been received since the signing of the "new Treaty." War stock is on the decline.

The large flowering mill at Plattsburgh was destroyed by fire a few mornings since. Loss, $10,000; insurance, $4,000.

The Constitution 54, the steam frigate Missouri, and two large sloops of war, are shortly expected to join the squadron now lying in Pensacola Bay. This is a larger fleet than has been in the Gulf for a long time.

It was reported last week that the Treasurer of one of the Catholic churches, is a defaulter to the amount of $23,000.

The Providence Journal states that the whole number of persons who have been returned for pay for military services, during the recent insurrection, is about 4100. The aggregate amount of their pay will be about $23,000.

About 50,000 acres of land, (the property of bankrupts) situated in different parts of the State of Maine, were sold at auction in Portland last week. It was a portion of the wreck of the speculations in 1834 and 1835.

The Madisonian announces the ratification by the Senate of the Treaty concluded at Buffalo last March by the Hon. Ambrose Spencer, in behalf of the United States. The Senecas cede about 70,000 acres of good land, and retain two reservations.

A young man, who described himself as a farmer by trade, applied to Alderman Campbell, of Philadelphia, on the 26th ult., to be committed to the County Prison for 30 days. He stated he was homeless, friendless, penniless—he could not obtain employment, and that he had no other resource but to go to prison. A commitment was given him for the specified time.

Cast steel is now manufactured in Pittsburg; and the Pittsburg American says, there is no doubt of perfect success in this important manufacture of a hitherto untried branch of trade in this country. Another triumph of American enterprise.

According to the sixth census of the United States, corrected at the department of State June 1st, 1840, it appears that the amount of Cotton, at that time gathered annually in the United States was 758,459,563, pounds of clean Cotton equal to 1,971,149 bales. Of this amount Virginia produced 3,494,485 North Carolina, 51,926,190 South Carolina, 51,719,274 Georgia, 163,392,392 Alabama, 117,138,692 Mississippi, 193,401,577 Louisiana, 152,556,368 Tennessee, 27,701,277 Arkansas, 6,038,641 Florida, 12,110,533

REPORT OF DEATHS FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY THE 14TH INST.

Infant of Eli Chase.
James Whitesides, 47 years 11 months; Inflammatory fever.
Margaret Whitesides, 8 years 2 months putrid sore throat.
John Wiley, 7 months whooping cough.
Elizabeth Wilson, 1 year 2 months; ague and fever.
Sarah Jane Noe, 18 years 10 months; ague and fever.
Thomas Winworth, 39 years; ague and fever.
Total 7.
WM. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Norman Hart, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that Norman Hart, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts, under the Act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 14th day of Nov. next, at the District Court-room, in the city of Springfield, in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition: all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated October 15, A. D. 1842.

LEVI DAVIS, Solicitor for petitioner.

G. C. SAMPSON, Counselor.

Attest: James F. Swings, Clerk.

ESTATE OF RALPH BIRKINHEAD

PUBLIC notice is hereby given, that on the fifth day of December next, I shall attend before the Probate Justice of the Peace of Hancock county, at his office in Carthage, at one o'clock, P. M. for the purpose of settling and adjusting all claims against the estate of Ralph Birkenhead, late of said county, deceased; when and where all claimants are required to present their demands for adjustment. All persons indebted to said estate also notified to make payment to the undersigned without delay.

Dated this 13th day of October, 1842.

CHRISTOPHER DIXON, Administrator.

no26-1ds.

ESTATE OF HENRY J. HUNT, DECEASED.

PUBLIC notice is hereby given, that on the first Monday of January next, I shall attend before the Probate Justice of the Peace of Hancock county, at his office in Carthage, at 10 o'clock, A. M., for the purpose of settling and adjusting against the estate of Henry J. Hunt, late of said county deceased; when and where all claimants are required to present their demands for adjustment. All persons indebted to said estate are also notified to make payment to the undersigned without delay.

DAVID DeVOL, Administrator.

Dated this 7th day of Oct. 1842. no26-1ds.

STATE OF CHARLES B. BLOYD DECEASED.

PUBLIC notice is hereby given, that on the first Monday of December next, I shall attend before the Probate Justice of the Peace of Hancock county, at his office in Carthage, at 10 o'clock, A. M. for the purpose of settling and adjusting all claims against the estate of Charles B. Bloyd late of said county; deceased; when and where all claimants are required to present their demands for adjustment. All persons indebted to said estate are also notified to make payment to the undersigned without delay.

Dated this 12th, day of October, 1842. no26-1ds.

THOMAS SUMMERS Administrator.

MESMERISM.

The following facts we had from the husband of the patient: Mrs. Erksen had been confined since May last, at which time she had lost her infant child, with that most painful disease called the Milk Leg. She had, in all that time, been unable to sit in a chair more than ten minutes at a time. About a week ago she was mesmerised by Dr. Ewing, and kept in this state about two hours. During this sleep her husband left her with the family, to visit his office on business. On his return his wife was going about the house, and has ever since attended to her household affairs, doing the work thereof without the aid of a servant, with more strength, she thinks, than she had before being taken sick. If mesmerism will cure such diseases, there must be something in it.—Pittsburg Daily American.

Adam Smith says—"Man is an animal that makes bagrains—no other animal does this; one dog does not change a bone with another."

SHERMAN'S

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CAMPBOR LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, lassitude and nervous affections generally. Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispensation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.

These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.

This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12½ cents,) brings it within the reach of every person in the community.

A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale by

(22-y1.) J. SNIDER,
Sole Agent for the City of Nauvoo.

ADMINISTRATOR'S NOTICE.

THE undersigned having taken out letters of administration on the estate of Theodore Carlie, late of Hancock county, deceased, hereby notifies and requests all persons, having claims against said estate, to present them to the court of Probate, of said county, on the first Monday in the month of November next, in order to have the same adjusted according to law. All persons indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment.

JESSE GILMAN, Administrator.
Carthage, Sept. 16, 1842. no23-1r.

NOTICE.

THE undersigned have recently commenced the leather manufacturing business in all its various branches; also the shoe and glove making business. We wish the citizens and vicinity to give us their patronage, as we offer to the public to tan on shares both upper and sole leather; also morocco and deer skins dressed, in the neatest manner, and fur dressing. We will also pay the highest prices for all kinds of hides and skins; tan works near Parley St. about one mile east of the river.

B. R. BENTLEY & J. FIELD.
Nauvoo, Sept. 3, 1842. no20-3m.

WINDOW SASH.

WE, carpenters, builders, &c., of the city of Nauvoo, recommend H. Hammond's patent upper and improved lower window sash springs, as a very superior article:

W. Weeks, principal carpenter of Temple,
L. Woodworth, do do Nauv. H's,
R. Hadlock, J. W. Coolidge,
L. Tulle, M. Romney,
H. Riding.

All windows should be made narrow, high and with parting beads.

For the proper ventilation of a room, it is absolutely necessary to lower the upper sash.

These springs are warranted not to loose their elasticity or break, have points for preserving the notches in the sash, directions for selecting the appropriate sizes and properly putting them into windows.

For sale, wholesale and retail, at several of the hardware stores in St. Louis, Cincinnati, Pittsburg, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, &c. See a window with these springs in operation at Mr. Mills' Masonic Hall.

Nauvoo, Aug. 13, 1842. 17-ly.

NOTES

DUE the Trustee for labor on the Temple, are left with the Temple Committee for collection. Brethren, remember that your contracts with your God are sacred; the labor is wanted immediately.

W. RICHARDS,
Temple Recorder.

June 25, 1842. 10-1f.

P. S. Remember the notes due for property also.

LOOK HERE! LOOK HERE!!

WANTED, at the Nauvoo Foundry, a quantity of Stone coal; any persons wishing to furnish it, will please call on Hiram Kimball, or Geo. W. Robinson, at the Post Office.

Old castings will be taken in exchange for new.
Nauvoo, June 10th 1842. 10-1f.

NOTICE.

LEFT, in my care, in the Month of April last, off the Steam-Boat Asprey, one trunk, with a label directed to Miss Elizabeth Stouard, Montrose, Iowa; the owner is requested to prove property, pay charges, and take the same away, or it will be sold to pay said charges. An advertisement of said trunk is in the store of Mr. Peck, at this time.

S. H. BURTIS.
Montrose, Sept. 2, 1842. no20-1f.

GROCERIES.

STARNES & SPRINGER inform the customers and the merchants generally of Nauvoo, that they have a large assortment of Groceries on hand which they offer very cheap. Any orders sent to them will be punctually attended to, and goods put at the lowest price.

No. 4 Water St., St. Louis, Sept 3, 1842. no20-3m.

ORSON PRATT,

PROFESSOR OF MATHEMATICS AND ENGLISH LITERATURE, IN THE UNIVERSITY OF THE CITY OF NAUVOO.

MOST respectfully announces to the gentlemen and ladies of this city and vicinity, that he will commence his regular course of instruction in the various branches of education, pertaining to the Department over which he has the supervision, on Monday, the 26th day of September, A. D. 1842, at a building situated a few rods north of the Temple.

TUITION PER QK.

For Reading and Writing $2.50
" Geography, Grammar, and Arithmetic 3.00
" Philosophy, Chemistry, Astronomy.
Algebra, Geometry, Conic Sections, Plane Trigonometry, Mensuration, Surveying, and Navigation. 5.00
For Analytical Plane and Spherical Trigonometry, and Analytical Geometry 7.50
And for the study of the Differential and Integral Calculus, and Newton's Principia. 10.00
City of Nauvoo, Sept. 12, 1842. no22-3w.

DRUGS, MEDICINES, &C.

THE subscriber has opened a Drug Store in Nauvoo, and intends keeping a full assortment of every thing in that line.—Paints, Oils, Varnish, Brushes, Turpentine, Linseed, Spermin, Olive, and Castor Oil; white Lead, red and black Lead, Vermillion, Prussian Blue, Lytharge, Chrome green and yellow, venecian red, spanish brown, lampblack, ivory black, whiting, chalk, yellow ochre, dye stuffs, indigo, cochineal, annatto, madder, copperas, alum, oil vitriol, blue vitriol, logwood, brazilwood, &c., &c.; stationary, plain and ruled cap and letter paper, ink, wafers, quills, sand, &c.; window-glass of all sizes, salacatus, putty, spices, glass ware, perfumery, soaps, snuff, rosin, matches, blacking, every thing in the medicine line, all the patent medicines; all of which will be sold low for cash: Van Studdiford's ague and fever pills, also his medicated lozenges, and cough, worm, and cathartic lozenges, are constantly on hand

Store on water street above Davis Hotel.

A. T. TERRELL.

July 23, 1842.

AGUE AND FEVER.

Gleim's tonic mixture and Dr. Renals' pills; two certain cures for that inveterate pest, the chills and fever,—for sale by,

July 23, 1842. A. T. TERRELL.

BEESWAX.

The highest price in cash will be paid for Beeswax, by

(16 m 3) A. T. TERRELL

DR. J. F. WELD.

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS. Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

TAVERN STAND

FOR sale, in Appanoose, Hancock county, Ill., 8 miles above Nauvoo, opposite the ferry landing, leading to Iowa; a so I house and lot and blacksmith shop, which I will sell low for cash or part in good horses. I good two horse waggon will be taken. Possession given immediately. Any one wishing to settle near Nauvoo will do well to call, hit or miss, at the Tavern in Appanoose, and examine the premises. Good titles will be given.

AMOS TERRY.

SILAS TERRY.

Appanoose, Sept. 28, 1842. no24-1f.

W. H. RALSTON,

ATTORNEY & COUNSELLOR AT LAW, Carthage, Hancock county, Ill., will practice in the Hancock Circuit court, and also in the Supreme Circuit and District Courts of this State.

Carthage, Aug. 18, 1842. 18-3m.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus
J. Salsbery, Plymouth.
Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Cliffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Page, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
James Curtis, Horners Town.
W. I. Appleby, Reclless Town.
Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Sa'em.
Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapier.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirtland.

NEW YORK.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.

L. R. Foster, city of New York.

TRAVELING AGENTS.

Hiram Kimball.

LIST OF LETTERS.

REMAINING in the Post Office at Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill., Oct. 1, 1842, which if not taken out before the 1st of January 1843, will be sent to the Post Office Department as dead letters

N. B. Persons wishing any of the following advertised letters, will please say they are advertised or they may not get them.

Jas Aldridge Jno Carnes
O B Adams F Clark
Jno Adams Albert Clark
J F Abbott Jno Cox
Capt M Anderson Polly Conklin
M B Agnew David Crockett
E Boss S Cutler
Jane Blevin 2 Austin Cowles

N Bliss
B R Bently
H W Bigler
Jas Bohonan
L L Beacher
J H Burghort
C Baldwin
Henry Backwater
R Bentley
Jas Brewer
J B Lackenstos
Jno Bottle
Geo Babcock
Margaret Brush
Mr Frotherton
Chas Betterworth
Levi Brooken
John Blayard
P A Benson
Ann Boothe
rhos Bromley
N Boscaw
W Broughton
Jesse Baker
H Cooley
Ed Chamberlain
H Clark
Wm Cook
H J Akey or I Conyers
Dani Carter
B Co'e
H Curtis
Wm Corpen
Robt D Foster 5
rhos Filcher
Jas Flanagan
Mr Goodson
S H Godard 2
Morgan Gardner and others

rruman Gillet
Sarah Gibson
J Goodall
Wm Gheen
David Grant
L M Geer
Carlos Granger
Carlos Gove
J Gallard
DS Holister
Elias Higbee
Ester Huse
A Haughton
H Hacy
J C Haight
Knollon Hanks
Jos Harwood
J Hadlock
rhos Hoste
Joel Huff
F M Higbee
Mary Hoover
Ed Hunter sen
Ed Hunter
Ann Hunter
R Hebbord 2
J N Harron
J A Hicks
Miss Alice Hordman
S Hulet
Stephen Hales
J P Herr
Wm Hales
Jno Haven

G Hills
Thos Johnson
D Johnson

E Jennings
H Jett
D Judy
Abel Jance
H Jolley
H Kerns 2
F Kinyon
I H Killbough
O Killbourn
J D Lee
r I Langon
Jno Lindsey
J Lyndon
Geo Lyman
Steph A Lits
C L Lewis 2
A Lyman
H Loveland
Sarah Myres
A P Muney
E Malen
R A Moore 2
Robt Maxton 2
S C Menill
temperance Mack
Wm Morsden
Jno Miller
Wm Marks
Peter Melling
Mary Maxton
Wm McClery
W G Mullen
F Moon
Geo Miller 3
rhos B Marsh
C Marsh
Jas McClalou
Saml McMurtray
Jno Myers 2
J McElroy
H H Mathews
P Merrick
M Mansfield
Cath Minnerly
E Nelson
L S Nickerson
rhos Nelson

G W Clyde
S W Crandle
Wm S Covert
James Cayton
A Daniels
A Davis
J Decker
James Duncan 3
S Denel
I Drake
R B Derby
U Drigs
Simeon Darke 2
Jas Dawning
R Edwards
J Emmitt
Jno Edgar
Hannah Ella
T S Edwards
Jos Easton
Wm Earl
Jno Eloridge
Horace Eldridge
Pleasant Ewell
Robt Ellison
Edwin Finch 2
J M Finch
Geo Fowler
A F Fan
Jos Fisher
C Fuller
Hannah Flint
D Fry
Wm Nerbit
Wm Niswanges
Oliver Olney
D Osburn
A R Orton
Jedediah Preen
A Pilkington
N Peney
W. W. Phelps
J Powell
M Phelps
Ad Pratt
Jno Patten
Jos Parke
Jos Prockter
Jos Pullen
S Pinkham
J Peck
P Page
Jno Rice
Jos Robinson 2
Jne E Rayce 4
Saml Rolfe
Erio Rodes
J L Robinson 2
A Richardson 2
Elizabeth Ravenscroft
H Roberts
Sophia Rilla
W H Rolloson
Jno Roles
C Rathbone
Messrs Gracy & Reed
Ed Stiff
J C Seofield
A W Sherman
Ed Stephenson
Allen Stout
Alex Stephens
E Spencer or J Harrington

Jno Stewart
Elijah Sheets
Bate Scott

Nath Stewart
Wm Stewart
Jno Sweet
Jos Shaw
Rich Spencer
Wm Sutton
Jos Smethies
Jane Smith
Geo A Smith
Elisha Smith
J P or Mory Smith
Jno Smith
Joseph Smith
B Stringham
Jno Sholer
Jno turpen
J H Tippetts
R S rorey
E Thompson
Jno Thorpe
r D rumbull
H Umphry
Jno Wheeler
E J Webb
Geo M Warr
r Wait
rhos Wakefield
A W Whitney
S Winchester
L Wilson
B F Worrington
Jno Williams
B Worrington
D Wood
Miles Wilson
C Weston
Jno B Walker
E F Wiggins
Jno Watkins
Wm C Walker
F D Williams
Jno Wakefield
J S Workman
E D Webb
S Otho Williams
C Young
P H Young
Lewis Zigler 2

SIDNEY RIGDON, P. M.

Wood wanted at this Office

THE WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 27

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, October 22, 1842.

Whole Number 27

THE WASP.

16 EDITED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY

WM. SMITH.

At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.
TERMS.—$1.50 invariably in advance.

HARDWARE, CUTLERY, SADDLERY, &c.
CHARLES C. NORRIS & CO.

No. 97 MAIN STREET, ST. LOUIS.

ARE constantly receiving, direct from the Manufacture's in England and America, a general assortment of articles in their line, among which are—

Table knives and forks,
Pen, pocket, shoe and butcher knives,
Britannia tea and table spoons,
German silver, plated and iron spoons,
Waiters, tea-trays, bread and fruit trays,

Brass, iron, plated and japanned candlesticks,

Britannia tea and coffee pots,
Cast iron skillets, kettles, ovens and lids, pans, &c.

Brass and irons, shovels and tongs, fenders, &c.

Chest, stock, pad, till and cupboard locks,

"Carpenter's," "Shaw's" and English knob locks,

Norfolk, thumb, long and square latches,

Parliament hinges, narrow and broad butts,

Brass butts and table hinges.

James' wood screws, ass'd 3-8 to 4 inch,

Chisels, gouges and plane irons,
Plains, braces and bits, bevels, saw sets, augurs,

Coopers drawing knives, axes, adzes, compasses,

Cut tacks, springs and casting nails,
Best and Patent nails, ass'd 2 1/2 to 20d,

Files, rasps, anvils, vices, hammers, bellows, &c.

Cast shear spring, German, English and American blistered steel,

Ploughs, hoes, mattocks and picks,
Trace, halter back and coil chains,

Hames, collars and harness,
Hatchets, axes and hammers,

Cotton and worsted webbing,
Straining and diaper do.

Red, blue, yellow, and other fancy plushes,

Brass, plated, tinn'd and japann'd & roller buckles,

Tinned, brass, and silver plated spurs,
Curry-combs, brushes and horse cards,

Wagon, drovers and fancy riding whips, &c.

Together with a general assortment of other goods not enumerated, which they offer for sale very low for cash or city acceptances. Country merchants and the public generally, are respectfully invited to give them a call before purchasing elsewhere.

N. B. Country produce taken at the highest market price for any articles in their line.

CHARLES C. NORRIS & CO.
September 9. 25-w3.

POETRY.

[For the Wasp.]

MEMORY.

BY L. O. LITTLEFIELD.

O memory of my youthful days,
Round which affection is entwined;
How sweetly steal thy peaceful rays,
Thro' ev'ry vision of the mind!

O, dear's the dream of early years
So bright, and yet so fleetly fled!
How free from cares, how free from tears,
Is youth, by luring fancy lead!

No treach'rous hand, no false deceit,
Invades that loving, lovely band;
Where friends, in playful concert, meet,
And warmly press each faithful hand.

As moonlight stealing o'er the sea,
When wave on wave tumultuous foam;
Doth mem'ry kindly steal o'er me—
Memory of my early home.

When men forsake, and fortunes frown,
While plodding on life's fickle main;
Mem'ry of friends all trouble down—
Of friends I long to meet again.

When troubled oft, with jostlings wild,
Within this lowly world of care;
Fond mem'ry tells of friends that smiled
When I was young and with them there.

THE INQUIRY.

BY E. L. LULWER.

Tell me ye winged winds,
That round my pathway roar,
Do ye not know some spot
Where mortals weep no more?
Some lone and pleasant dell,
Some valley in the West,
Where, free from care and pain,
The weary soul may rest?
The loud wind dwindled to a whisper low,
And sighed for pity as it answered—"No!"

Tell me, thou mighty deep,
Whose billows round me play,
Know'st thou some favored spot,
Some island far away,
Where weary man may find
The bliss for which he sighs,
Where sorrow never lives,
And friendship never dies?
The loud waves rolling in perpetual flow,
Stopped for a while and sighed to answer—"No!"

And thou, serenest moon,
That with such holy face,
Dost look upon the earth
Asleep in night's embrace,
Tell me, in all thy round,
Hast thou not seen some spot
Where miserable man
May find a happier lot?
Behind a cloud the moon withdrew in woe,
And a voice sweet but sad, responded—"No!"

Tell me, my secret soul,
Oh tell me Hope and Faith,
Is there no resting place
From sorrow, sin and death;
Is there no happy spot,
Where mortals may be blessed,
Where grief may find a balm,
And weariness a rest?
Faith, Hope, and Love, best boons to mortals given, Waved their bright wings, and whispered "Yes,
in Heaven."

GLORY TO OLD MAIDS.—Old maids are often, very often, women of superior minds; and such are most likely to be old maids, for more than one reason. In the first place, they have the discretion to be slow in selecting their partners for life; and as three fourths of mankind have not the qualifications to make good husbands, it may be supposed that the discreet and judicious woman will reject three or four out of those who solicit her hand. This of course always makes her chances of marriage fewer, but it makes her chances of happiness much greater. The second cause why sensible women are apt to be old maids, is, that most men dread them. Yes, it is a fact that most men dread a sensible woman. It is not uncommon to hear a man who is not a fool himself, make disparaging remarks concerning "female Solomons," "Plato in petticoats," &c. Who has ever known very highly gifted ladies to be popular among their male acquaintances? Men are apt to think that talents do not belong to the feminine mind; and even when they have discernment enough to admire a gifted woman as a friend or occasional companion, they rarely think of making a companion and a friend for life. All these things tend to show that sensible and gifted women are most likely to be old maids, and the converse of the proposition holds good, with few exceptions; old maids are generally sensible and gifted women.

Where is the woman who knows how to conduct business? Is she not an old maid? Who are the successful authoresses? the most meritorious are almost invariably old maids. Where is the lady who has become eminent in any art or science? In nine cases out of ten she is an old maid. Even your most celebrated singers and dancers are unmarried, and presumed to be old maids; though they seldom allow themselves to look old. Where is the woman distinguished or celebrated for any thing, from Queen Elizabeth to Miss Martineau? Ay, search her out, and see an old maid, or something truly wonderful and rare, viz: an exception from a general rule! Glory to the old maids, we say. Let them flourish; let them have statues erected to their honor.

Naval Apprentices System.—It is the opinion of some of our contemporaries that the midshipmen should be chosen from among the apprentices. Common justice seems, at first blush, to require this, for the distinction of plebeian and patrician is not acknowledged in our Declaration of Independence, however much it may be recognized in our daily practice. According to the present plan, an apprentice may become a petty officer. This is a golden hope, truly! After sacrificing his youth to learn the business of seaman, a hopeful, well educated lad may rise to the dignity of the captain of a top, quarter master, quarter gunner, or boatswain! Now if this boy, instead of being sacrificed to Neptune, were put to a trade on shore, he might rise to the dignity of a member of Congress. John Davis, governor of Massachusetts, was a poor boy, put into a lawyer's office—and he is now candidate for Vice President of the United States. Had he been put into the navy, on the present plan, he might have become captain of a top, which would have entitled him to receive a dozen lashes at the gang-way whenever any thing under his command did not work ship shape and Bristol fashion. The naval apprentice system is, root and branch, an imposition upon the good sense of the public. To educate a lad to fill the station of a petty officer, is the greatest folly, since a man who can neither read nor write may be a petty officer. In the next place, a lad who has never known anything all his days but ship duty, would be unqualified to represent the American republic abroad, in the capacity of a warranted officer. A naval officer is required to know something besides seamanship. He is often brought in contact with the big bugs of other countries, who expect to deal with well bred and polished "gentlemen." A lad instructed on board ship, and compelled to associate with unpolished persons on shore, would hardly acquire that ease of manner and courteous bearing, which would make him feel at home in the company of the elite of other countries. This may be an artificial state of things; but we must take the world as it is. If stern reason governed the actions of men, there would be no gentlemen but faithful and honest citizens, rich or poor, learned or unlearned.

Everything connected with war is despotic; and we cannot reform this state of things. There can be no true and equal system, while men settle their disputes by force of arms. Subordination in the navy must be preserved, or the navy must be annihilated. A lad accustomed to associate with the common sailors from his earliest boyhood, would not be in a fit condition suddenly to assume command over those common sailors, and enforce those rigid regulations which are requisite on board a vessel of war. Democratic principles may be carried out almost anywhere excepting in the navy; but it is of no avail to think of making inroads upon the established customs of the navy.—Despotic rule cannot be dispensed with here; and, until the American people generally embrace Friends' principles, and beat their swords into ploughshares, the heaven decended principle of pure democracy will not be in the ascendant. The same voice which said—"Call no man master—let him that is greatest among you be servant to the rest"—said, "Resist not evil."

To talk of introducing democracy into that nursery of despotism and murder called the navy, is like sending a missionary to the infernal regions to convert the devil to christianity.

Corn Doctors.—There is an old saying that "there is nothing like leather;" but a couple of New York French Jews have convinced the good people of Montreal, this week, that there is nothing like "catgut." Two corn extractors have managed to extract a round number of dollars from the pockets of sufferers, by pretending to cure them of the malady at the rate of a dollar per corn. The artifice they use is ingenious, but by no means novel. An examination of the patient, (or rather impatient,) was the preliminary adopted, and after a little hocus pocus, in the way of exhibiting a pair of forceps, a certain something was shown as having been extracted, which turned out to be neither more nor less than a little bit of catgut, ingeniously concealed under the nail of the operator, transferred to the point of the forceps, and declared to be a regular corn, extracted root and branch. To such an extent was the deception carried, that many persons were actually led to believe that corns, varying in number from a dozen down to one, had been really extracted from their feet, and they were exhibiting an agility which can only be accounted for from the force of imagination. One of the quacks was yesterday arrested on a charge of obtaining money under false pretences, and was obliged, by the police magistrates, to disgorge the money he had received, to those individuals who had been gulled, who applied for it. Those sufferers who have not been previously made aware of this latter fact, will find their money and their quack at the police office.—Montreal Herald.

J. S. PH. SMITH.

There is such a laboring and tugging among a portion of newspapers, and especially the religious ones, to scandalize Joseph Smith and bias the public mind against him, that we feel bound by duty, as well as charity, to say a word in his behalf. Can it be possible that we have so many fools, or head-strong hypocrites in the United States, who suppose, after they have published their opinions concerning him and tainted the minds of the people, that, admitting for the sake of a case, that he is guilty of any crime, punishable by law, (which God and many saints know he is not, as charged against him,) he could have a fair trial in any State? No, never, and his friends and honorable men will assist him to keep out of the hands of mobbers and murderers, no matter under what color or pretence they come. Assist him, ye; let him over the wall in a basket, and escape a hanging and the jaws of death, like the apostles of old. There is a God in Israel, but not in Babylon, mark that!

*The Peoria (Ill.) Reg. says that the escape of slaves from Missouri, is becoming very frequent of late. It is reported that they are aided in their flight by abolitionists in Illinois and therefore a regular succession of harbors on the route between Missouri and Canada. A few days ago seven were helped along in one company, and shortly afterwards six in another. I am said that very little concealment is attempted the actors just flying themselves by the broad precept of doing as they would wish to be done by—Public meetings are held in Illinois for the discussion of the question of the honesty of these acts, and how far it is right or wrong to withhold or afford this aid.

Is it not wonder of that the GREAT TRIO, POGGS, REYNOLDS and CARLIN, have not made the necessary AFFIDAVITS and put in motion the requisition upon Canada for the return of these fugitive slaves? And where is the $1000 reward for the necessities before and after the fact, who wish to steal, kidnap or even coax a Missouri Negro? More business for the Quincy Whig, to invite his abolition friends to go to Africa to save trouble in the wigwam. May be the abolition nations would do something right handsome by way of donating land in Liberia to Mr. Buckingham, and the amalgamation party, if they, will only go. Ha, ha for the Quincy Whig, Negroes, &c.

LOCATION OF HELL.

The great Whig assemblage at Dayton, Ohio, on the 20th of last month, and which is said to have numbered between one and two hundred thousand persons, bore on one of their banners, caricaturing John Tyler the President of the United States, these mottoes: "Two miles to the White House—One mile to Hell."

As so many people could not all wish to lie, we shall admit the truth, and allow Hell to be one mile from Dayton, or Washington, just as the motto is meant; and as the scripture says, —Hell enlarges itself, we suppose, to accommodate his numerous hosts now groveling in darkness—and dropping in at the rate of 2000 an hour according to sectarian preaching, it must spread every way about 1200 miles. Surely Hell is all over the globe. Priests, banners, mottoes, killers, Millennium, and mobs. Touch the matches and we shall have fire, whether the bastion burns or not. Oh what a corrupt generation! No wonder God says he will feed it with judgments. Up ye sinners, and smoke for it!

MOONSHINE.

Ex-Governor Boggs, of this State, has published a plan for "relief," which it is said he intends to submit to the Legislature at its approaching session. It provides that the State shall issue her bonds to the amount of $5,000,000, without interest, and deposit them in the State Bank; that the Bank shall issue thereon notes of the usual denominations, and loan them on a pledge of unincumbered real estate; and that the loan shall bear six per cent interest, and ten per cent, on the principal to be paid semi-annually, so as to extinguish the loan in five years. These trust fund notes are to be receivable in payment of taxes and all dues to the State, and all persons and corporations forbidden to purchase them at less than their par value, under severe penalties. Ex-Governor Boggs further proposes that the Bank shall be authorized to issue Post Notes to the amount of $1,000,000; $800,000 of which shall be used at St. Louis, and $200,000 be furnished to each of the branches of the Bank.

The above plan of Ex-Governor B. will meet with very little favor from any quarter. We doubt whether even the Whigs can be brought to countenance so wild and extravagant a project. Public sentiment will no longer tolerate a resort on the part of the Legislature to any such miserable expedients.

The Democrats and the more candid Whigs have become sick of interminable paper money of every description, and will hereafter oppose any measure intended to curse the community again with such a currency. The plan of Ex-Governor B. is too absurd to require comment. Instead of furnishing "relief," it would bring ruin to thousands and good to none. It is too pregnant with the most palpable evils to the people and the State, to deserve or receive serious consideration.

The above judicious remarks upon the Mormon extirpator and affidavit maker Boggs, are from the St. Louis Reporter. They are well timed, and whole-some; and it is to be hoped, that honest men, of all parties, will begin to neglect this eternally disgraced man; that he may fester in his own infamy, as rust corrodes iron, until he is consumed.—et exanimis.

PRODUCTS OF NAUVOO.

Elder W. Woodruff, noticed in our last, has raised the past season in his garden a nice lot of sweet potatoes, some rice, and a quantity of cotton. Such productions, between 30 and 41 degrees of north latitude, speak well for the climate of Nauvoo. No fear of a Latter Day Saint, on y give land and liberty—and he will show this generation a sample of good things, as well as the right alphabet to learn what is coming hereafter.

A BUDGET OF LIES.

There is a long communication in the "Lynn (Mass.) Freeman," signed "W." stating forth the largest budget of lies we have seen since Bennett's. If Mr. "W." who we understand is the Rev. Mr. H. H. had possessed religion, sense, virtue, decency and politeness enough to have landed in Nauvoo and conversed with any of the Saints, or ascertained our faith and doings from unprejudiced authority, the case would have been different,—but as it is, his statement is a lie,—a whole lie, and nothing but a lie:—so he p him Satan.

PSHAW.

About 100,000 office seekers lately met at Dayton, Ohio, to tease the people of the United States to give them the "coaves and fishes," but the wise that work for wealth, know that "fair words butter no parsnips," and have concluded that he that will not work, shall not eat. Away with quibbles.

SHUT UP FOR SIXTY DAYS—in the Penitentiary—the publishers of the vile prints, The Flash, Ra-e, and Whip, in New York.

Pretty good for the Empire city. Wonder if they have taken up the readers, too? The parties are as bad as the thieves.

UNFAIR.

It is very unfair for presses at a distance in the different states, to copy their news relating to Nauvoo, from St. Louis or Quincy papers,—(we went say Sharp's Signal of Warsaw, because he and "that thing" are defunct)—On this head we have been surprised, to see extracts of things, doings and even the "whereabouts of Joseph Smith," taken from papers that knew no more about events that transpired in Nauvoo, or about Joseph Smith, than the man in the moon. We have two presses in Nauvoo, and it has yet to be shown that either of them has spread falsehood or held back the truth.

Give us our due, and so long as the Constitution grants us the privilege of speaking for ourselves, let us be heard in our own defence.

It certainly smells pretty strong of hypocrisy, and looks a little like "Joly sin" to observe the religious papers generally, gleaming all manner of tales about the Mormons and Nauvoo,—with a stab or two at "Jo Smith," from newspapers that actually know no more of the subject, than the Emperor of China does about alligators in Florida. There is no dodging this charge—we have the papers before us, and shall in all probability, unless we witness more fairness, and honor in the premises, among the galaxy of speckled gazettes, give the matter a further notice, and notice the black letter gowns, in a manner that may cause them to try to cast the beams out of their own eyes, before they begin to publish a cure for other peoples' blindness. Useless and vain will it be for man, men, societies, states, nations, kingdoms, or empires to talk of civilizing and christianizing, the world through vicious, slanderous and corrupt means. You might as well try to paint the sky black in order to reflect more light upon the earth. If any thing is found to be wrong in Nauvoo, among the Mormons, truth, virtue, and humanity are the only alternatives to correct it. The combination, union, relation and superfluous state dignity of POGGS, REYNOLDS and CARLIN, cannot do it. Persecution, cruelty, and abuse of power are too glaring to pass unnoticed. And again religious papers, or profane ones, have not the power to correct the evil by misstatements, falsehoods, barlesque, or satire. No, gentlemen, candor fairness, our rights, and the whole truth of us from unquestionable sources, can only answer as coin of common occurrences. Virtue needs no distant heralds, and honesty asks no excuses; wherefore let the presses of Nauvoo speak for themselves.

A Child Lost.—A child three or four years of age, at Milton, in North Carolina, wandered into the woods after its mother, but going wrong wandered about until it was lost. Search was made and continued for several days, and then given up in despair. The child was found eight miles from home by a hunter of deer. A bound puppy that followed at his heels was observed to start suddenly and run down to a branch "and growl; at this moment a feeble voice was heard to echo from a cluster of bushes, "Please, sir, don't let your dog bite me!" Mr. Morris repaired to the spot,—and found the child who had evidently hid. It had been subsisting for four days on grapes and berries.

That child must have been part yankee, "please sir, don't let your dog bite me." Wish people in general was as polite and careful.

Philadelphia, Sept. 24, 1842.

